THE Apoſtle Peter knowing (as he ſaith) that ſhortly he was to put off that his tabernacle of the fleſh, as our Lord Jeſus Chriſt had ſhewed him; he therefore endeavoured that God's people after his deceaſe, might have thoſe things he taught them always in remembrance: And thus it came to paſs, that to this day we have that portion of holy Writ which he then left in writing. If Peter's practice be imitable in this kind, I ſuppoſe the ſame duty lies on * me. Revelation I have none, but many ſtitches and infirmities, which I take to be fore-runners of my departure hence. Some things, and amongſt the reſt, theſe First Things, I have taught you; what remains now, but that after my deceaſe you might have theſe things always in remembrance? To that purpoſe, the ſame I delivered once to your ears, I now preſent to your eyes; as you were then pleaſed to hear them, ſo I truſt you will now peruſe them. Only one thing you may pleaſe to obſerve this in Treatiſe, That whereas in the Name of Chriſt I often Beſeech, Exhort, Command the Unregenerate to believe, to be reconciled to God, to pray, to fall on this or that duty, it is not as if they could do any [redacted] ſtrength or power; but becauſe Jeſus Chriſt, in Exhorting, Entreating, [redacted] puts forth his own power, and his own ſtrength to enable them. While Paul [redacted] to believe in the Lord Jeſus that he might be ſaved, God enabled the Jaylor to believe. Life and power is conveyed to the Soul, in Goſpel Commands and Exhortations. While Ezekiel propheſied over dead bones, breath came into them, and they lived: ſo while the Prophets of the Lord do preach over ſinful, impenitent hearers, who are like to the Prophet's dry bones, the breath of Heaven, the Spirit of the Moſt High in the Miniſtry of the Goſpel, enters into them, and ſo they are made new creatures, and ſee the Kingdom of God. I have no more to ſay, onely I beſeech God you may receive a Bleſſing by theſe poor labours upon your poor ſouls: it is the hearty Prayer of

Yours to be commanded in all Chriſtian Services,
ISAAC AMBROSE.

TREATISES,

INTITULED

Prima, Media, & Ultima:

THE

Firſt, Middle, & Laſt Things.

THe Firſt, and Laſt, and Middle Things: What more?
Thus the well-furniſhed Scribe out of his ſtore Brings new and old. The Firſt Things lay the Ground;
The Middle Build thereon; By th' Laſt All's Crown'd.
By the Firſt things Chriſtians begin to live;
The Middle things a farther progreſs give
In Spiritual life; by th' Laſt they live for ever:
Thoſe things that God hath joyn'd, let no man ſever.
The Firſt Things wrought in me (Lord!) let me find,
And to the Middle ſo direct my mind,
That when the Firſt and Middle Things are paſt,
I may enjoy my hopes, the beſt at Laſt.

The New Birth.

John III. 3.

Except a man be born again, he cannot ſee the Kingdom of God.

WE read in the former Chapter, Joh. 2. 23. When Jeſus was at Jeruſalem, at the feaſt of the Paſſeover, many believed in his Name when they ſaw the miracles which he did: Amongſt thoſe many, here is one of them (ſaith Auſtin;) what one? of all men the moſt unlikely is a Jew, of all Jews a Ruler, of all Rulers a Phariſee; Have any of the Rulers, or Phariſees believed on him? But howſoever it ſeem thus unlikely unto us, the Spirit of God bloweth where it liſteth; here is amongſt many believers one Nicodemus, and he is a man of the Phariſees, a Ruler of the Jews; a Jew, a Ruler, a Phariſee; God is able even of theſe ſtones to raiſe up children unto Abraham; yea, we ſee here (be they never ſo ſtony) our Saviour melts one of them with a miracle, and by a new birth he will make him a ſon of Abraham indeed. A miracle brings him to Chriſt, and Chriſt brings him to a new birth: The firſt Nicodemus confeſſeth, Rabbi, (ſaith he to our Saviour) we know that thou art a Teacher come from God, for no man can do theſe miracles that thou doſt except God be with him. The ſecond our Saviour affirmeth, as if he had anſwered, to ſay, I am ſent from God, and not to be born again, will never help thee to Heaven; thy confeſſion is right, that I am ſent from God; but thy converſation is wrong, that art not born again: thou comeſt to me with confeſſion of thy faith, but here is a further Catechiſm, another leſſon; and therefore (as thou calleſt me Rabbi) if thou wilt be a Scholar in my School, thou muſt learn theſe principles, theſe rudiments, theſe firſt things, this text, this A, B, C, of Chriſtian Religion, Except a man be born again, he cannot ſee the Kingdom of God.

In proſecution of which words (all tending to this one point, the new birth) we ſhall follow the order ſet down by the Holy Ghoſt; where is,

1. The neceſſity of it, no going to heaven without it, Except,
2. The generality of it, every man is bound to it, a man.
3. The manner of it, how a man is wrought in it, he muſt be born again.
4. The iſſue of it, what effects are annext to it, the Kingdom of God, and ſight of that Kingdom; a man that is born again ſhall ſee the Kingdom of God; and, Except a man be born again, he ſhall not ſee the Kingdom of God.

Theſe be the branches; and of every of them (by Gods aſſiſtance) we ſhall gather ſome fruit for the food of your ſouls. The firſt branch is the firſt word, Except.

Except.

THis Except is without exception; for unleſs we are new born, there is no going to Heaven; before we live here we are born, and before we live there we are new born; as no man comes into this World, but by the firſt birth; ſo impoſſible it is that any ſhould go to heaven in another world, but by the ſecond birth: And this gives us the neceſſity of Regeneration.

Except a man be new born, he can never be ſaved. It is our Saviours ſpeech, and he confirms it with a double aſſeveration, Verily, verily, I ſay unto thee. Twice, verily, which we find not any where but in John's Goſpel, and no where in the Goſpel ſo oft as on this argument: how then ſhould we diſbelieve this truth, where we have ſuch a witneſs as Chriſt, ſuch a teſtimony as his Verily, verily, I ſay unto thee?

Again, God the Father thus counſels, not only Nicodemus but all the Jews of the old Church, ſaying, Make you a new heart and a new ſpirit, for why will you die, O houſe of Iſrael? Ezek. 18. 31. Notwithſtanding all their privileges (for they are Iſraelites, to whom pertains the adoption, and the glory, and the Covenants, and the giving of the Law, and the ſervice of God, and the promiſes, Rom. 9. 4.) yet here is one thing neceſſary, that muſt crown all the reſt; they muſt have a new heart, and a new ſpirit, that is to ſay they muſt be new born, or there is no way but death; from which death ſee how the Lord pulls them with his cords of love, alluring, wooing, queſtioning, Why will ye die, O houſe of Iſrael?

Ezek. 18. 31.
Rom. 9. 4.
Unum neceſſarium.

And yet again; not only the Son and the Father, but the Holy Ghoſt too will avouch this truth: He that hath an ear, let hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the Churches; And what's that? To him that overcometh, ——— will I give a white ſtone, and in the ſtone a new name written: yea I will write upon him New Jeruſalem, and I will write upon him my new name, Revel. 2. 17. and. 3. 12. The meaning is, he that is new born, and ſo overcomes ſin, Gods Spirit will give him his grace, the white ſtone; and his Kingdom, the new Jeruſalem; and a new name, the name of filiation, (ſaith a Modern) whereby truly he is called the new born Son of God. See here how Old things being done away, all things are become new; by a new birth man hath got a new name, a new inheritance: and therefore as the Spirit, ſo the new birth is called a fire, that purgeth away droſs, and makes Souls bright and new, ſo that we muſt paſs thorow this fire or no paſſage into Paradiſe.

1 Cor. 3. 17.

Nor is this Doctrine without reaſon or ground.

For, Except by the ſecond birth; man is firſt unholy, and therefore moſt unfit to enter into Heaven Without holineſs no man ſhall ſee God, Heb. 12. 14. And what is man before he is new born? if we look upon his Soul, we may ſee it deformed with ſin, defiled with luſt, outraged with paſſions, overcarried with affections, pining with envy, burthened with gluttony, boyling with revenge, tranſported with rage, and thus is that Image of God transformed to the ugly ſhape of the Devil: or ſhould we take a more particular view, every faculty of the Soul is full of iniquity; the underſtanding underſtands nothing of the things of God, 1 Cor. 2. 14. the Will wills nothing that is good, Rom. 6. 20. the affections affect nothing of the Spirit, Gal. 5. 17. In a word, the underſtanding ſtanding is darkned, the Will enthralled, the affections diſordered, the memory defiled, the conſcience benumbed, all the inner man is full of ſin, and here is no part that is good, no not one. But what ſay we of the body? ſure that is nothing better, it is a rotten carrion, altogether unprofitable, and good for nothing; ſhould we view it in every part and member of it? the head contrives miſchief, the eyes behold vanity, the ears let in ſin, the tongue ſends out oaths. Come we lower, the heart lodgeth luſts, the hands commit murther, the feet run to evil; all the ſenſes are but ſo many matches to give fire to luſts, deceits, envies, and what not? How needful now is a new birth to a man in this caſe? Can he enter into heaven, that ſavours all of earth? Will thoſe precious gates of Gold and Pearls open to a ſinner? No, he muſt firſt be new moulded, and ſanctified, or he is excepted; Except a man be new born.

Pſal. 11. 6.

Secondly, Except] This, and man is Gods enemy; no greater oppoſition than betwixt God and a Sinner; Conſider we him in his Eſſence, or in his Attributes; in his Eſſence he is called Jehovah, both in reſpect of his being, and of his promiſes; in reſpect of his being, and ſo God is contrary to ſin; for ſin is ataxy diſorder, confuſion, a not-being; and God is order, perfection, holineſs, an abſolute and ſimple being; in reſpect likewiſe of his promiſes, wherein there is a main oppoſition to ſin; for howſoever he promiſeth a reward to the regenerate, and ſo the name Jehovah is a golden pledge unto us, that if we repent, he will forgive us; yet withal he promiſeth ſtorms and tempeſts, fire and perdition to the unregenerate; and thus his Name and Nature is altogether oppoſite to Sin and Sinners. But view we thoſe Attributes of God, I mean his Juſtice, Truth, Patience, Holineſs, Anger, Power; his Juſtice in puniſhing the impenitent according to his deſerts, his Truth effecting thoſe plagues which he hath ſpoken in his time, his Patience forbearing ſins deſtruction, till they are grown full ripe, his holineſs abhorring all impurities, He cannot behold iniquity, his Anger ſtirring up revenge againſt all offered injuries, his Power muſtring up his forces, yea all his Creatures againſt his Enemies; and what can we ſay, but if all theſe Attributes are at enmity with ſinful Man, wo worth to man becauſe of offences? better he had never been born, than not to be new born; alas! what ſhall become of him? Can he that is Gods enemy ſee God in his glory? no there is no way but one, Except he repent, Except he be born again.

Epheſ. 2. 12.

1 Cor. 5. 17.

Thirdly, Except] by a new birth, man is without Chriſt; for If any man be in Chriſt, he is a new creature: And if he be not in Chriſt, what hopes of that man? It is only Chriſt that opens Heaven, it is only Chriſt that is the Way to Heaven; beſides him there is no Way, no Truth, no Life; and if we be in him, as the branch in the vine, it is of neceſſity that we bring forth good fruit: Upon theſe terms his death is effectual, if we become new creatures; or otherwiſe, all his Merits (his Blood that was ſhed, his Body that was crucified, his Soul that was agonized) they are nothing unto us, we are nothing bettered by them: he died for all, but his Death is not applied, his Kingdom is not opened, ſave only unto them that have learned and practiſed this rule of Exception.] Except a man be born again.

Fourthly, Except before Excepted, a man is a very limb of Satan, a child of Darkneſs, and one of the Family of Hell. Conſider this, ye that are out of the ſtate of grace, in what miſerable thraldom is your Souls? Should any call you ſervants, or ſlaves of Satan, you would take it highly in diſdain; but take it as you pleaſe, if you are not regenerate, you are in no better caſe. Paul appeals to your own knowledge, Know you not, that to whomſoever you give your ſelves as ſervants to obey, his ſervants ye are to whom ye obey? Rom. 6. 16, 23. If then ye obey the Devil's ſuggeſtions (which you do being unborn) what are you but the Devils Servants? And if he be your Maſter, what is your wages? You may ſee it in the laſt verſe, The wages of ſin is death; death of the Body, and death of the Soul: death here, and death hereafter in Hell-fire. Alas, that Satan ſhould have this power on man! that he who is the enemy, and means nothing to a Sinner but death and damnation, ſhould be his Lord, and tyrannize it over him at his own will and pleaſure! Would any man be hired to ſerve Lions and Tygers? And is not the Devil a roaring Lion, walking about, and ſeeking whom he can devour? To ſerve him that would devour his ſervant, is a moſt miſerable bondage; and what pay can one expect from Devils, but roaring and devouring, and tearing Souls? In this plight are the ſervants of Corruption, ſlaves of Satan, ſo I rightly call them; for, Of whomſoever a man is overcome, even unto the ſame is he in bondage, 2 Pet. 2. 19. To wind up this point; Lord, who ſhall dwell in thy Tabernacle? who ſhall reſt in thy holy Mountain? If we believe David, Not he that ſlandereth with his tongue, or doth evil to his Neighbour,——Or giveth his money upon Uſury, or taketh reward againſt the innocent: No, ſuch are ſervants of Satan; and here is a matter of Exception againſt them; Except a man be born again; he cannot ſee the Kingdom of God.

Rom. 6. 16, 23.

1 Pet. 5. 8.

2 Pet. 2. 19.

Pſal. 15. 1, 3, 5.

The ſum of all: Without Regeneration no Kingdom; for whether we conſider man in regard of himſelf, or of God, or of Chriſt, or of Satan, he is (Except he be new-born) unholy, Gods enemy, out of Chriſt, in Satan.

Uſe.

And if the New Birth be thus neceſſary, how ſhould we (a) labour to be born again? I mean not as Nicodemus, to enter into our mothers Womb again and be born; it is not the ſeed of man in the womb of our Mother, but the ſeed of Grace in the womb of the Church, that makes us bleſſed: and if we are thus born by Grace, then are we ſanctified, made ſons of God, Heirs with Chriſt, over whom Satan can have no power at all. Now then, as you tender your ſouls, and deſire Heaven at your ends (b) endeavour to attain this one thing neceſſary: (c) Lift up your hearts unto God, that you may be waſhed, juſtified, ſanctified, in the Name of the Lord Jeſus; and that by the Spirit of God you may walk in new ways, talk with new tongues, as being new creatures, created unto good works. Thus would you (d) wait on God in his way, I truſt the Lord in mercy would remember you, and his Spirit would blow upon you, and then you would find and feel ſuch a change within you as that you would bleſs God forever, that you were thus born again: Otherwiſe, how woful are you conſidering this barr in Heavens door, to keep out the unregenerate, Except] Except a man be born again, he cannot ſee the Kingdom of God.

Thus far of the Exception; we now come to the Perſon; that is in a niſi prius in the front, Except: This is the party that muſt proſecute the cauſe, a man.

(a) This is the language of God, I ſaid Behold me to a nation that was not called by my Name, Iſa. 65. 1.

(b) Thus whilſt the Miniſter ſpeaks, it is Chriſt comes with power in the Word, Ezek. 18. 31.

(c) Pray, becauſe God bids you pray; it may be he will come in when you pray. When Simon Magus was in the gall of bitterneſs, Peter bid him pray, Acts 8. 22.

(d) Not that we can wait by a power of our own, but he that ſaith, Therefore will the Lord wait, that he may be gracious to you, Iſa. 30. 18. he draws, and gives a power to wait on him, and he comes in, when he hath waited, in the fitteſt time.

A man.]

AND this man] is every man, and every part of man: It implies all men, for all are bound to it; and all man, for all the Parts of his body, and all the powers of his ſoul are to be renewed, or he cannot be ſaved: The word then is general, whether we reſpect genera ſingulorum, the kinds, all men; or ſingula generum, the Individuums; all man, or all the parts of man, body and ſoul.

Doct. 1. We will firſt begin with the kinds: All men (or all mankind) muſt be regenerated before they be ſaved; not one of all the ſons of Adam that ſhall ever go to heaven, except he be born again: may your contemplations (guided by Gods Word) go into that Paradiſe above, there walk the ſtreets, behold the towers, view the ſubjects, from the one end of Heaven to another, and whom find you there? Not one that lives and dies in ſin; there is not in it, nor ſhall enter into it any thing that defileth, neither whatſoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lye, Rev. 21. 27. Rev. 21. 27. yet if ſuch repent them of their ſins, the gates ſhall not be ſhut againſt them; all the Saints that now walk in the light of it, were ſinners; but firſt they were purged by the Lamb, and ſanctified by the Spirit; firſt they were regenerated, and ſo they were ſaved.

You may object, if all men that go to heaven muſt be new born what ſhall become of Infants that die ere they be born? Can a man enter the ſecond time into his mothers Womb, and be born? (ſaid Nicodemus.) But can a man enter into the ſecond Birth of his Mothers Womb, (ſay you) and be born again, before he is once born?

I anſwer [To be born again] ſuppoſeth to be once born indeed; therefore according to the letter, our Saviour ſpeaketh of a man already born into the world, that he muſt be born again. But if we ſeek out the ſence [To be born again] (as our Saviour interprets it) is to be born of Water and of the Spirit; and ſo may Infants not born into the World, be born again. Thus we read of Jeremy, The word of the Letter came Jer. 1. 5. unto him, ſaying, Before I formed thee in the Belly, I knew thee, and before thou cameſt forth out of the Womb, I ſanctified thee, Jer. 1. 5. And thus we read of John the Baptiſt, the Angel of the Lord ſaying of him, that He ſhould be filled with the Holy Ghoſt, even from Luke 1. 15. his Mothers Womb, Luke 1. 15. By theſe examples we ſee what the Lord can do; yea, what he doth indeed, although we know not how, nor can it be obſerved by us.

You may yet object, [to be born again] is (ſaith our Saviour) [to be born of Water and of the Spirit:] now Water is the outward Baptiſm, and the ſpirit is the inward grace (thus * all Ancients have conſtrued this text, ſaith Hooker) but children not born (howſoever they are ſanctified by the Spirit) they cannot be Baptized with water, and therefore they cannot ſee the Kingdom of God.

* Quindecim patres propoſuit Bellarminus. Tomo ſecundo lib. 2 de effectu Sacramentorum, cap. 3. Hook. Eccl. Polit. lib. 5. ſect. 59. Aquin. 3. part quæſt. 68. art. 2.

I anſwer: In caſes of extremity, or impoſſibility if actual Baptiſm be wanting, vocal is enough, and thus far ſome of our Adverſaries grant us; Though it be wanting indeed (ſaith Aquinas) yet Baptiſm in deſire is ſufficient to Salvation: And to this end he cites Auſtin, ſaying Sanctification may be without Baptiſm, and Baptiſm without Sanctification; if Sanctification be, though Baptiſm be not, it avails to Salvation; but if Baptiſm be, and Sanctification be not, it avails nothing at all. Our Pſal. 148. 12. concluſion is this, All men (or all mankind) young men and maidens, old men and children, all muſt be regenerated, or they can never ſee the Kingdom of God.

Secondly, [as all men, ſo all man] all the members Doct. 2. of his body, all the faculties of his Soul. Sanctification (if ſaving) muſt be perfect and entire, though not in reſpect of degrees, yet in reſpect of parts; every part and power of body and Soul muſt have its part of ſanctification, though no part his full perfection, before the diſſolution of our earthly Tabernacles: Hence (ſay Divines) there is a regeneration or ſanctification (it is all one) inchoata and conſummata; inchoata, begun in this life; conſummata perfected in that other: And of this ſaith our Saviour, Matth. 19. 28. Verily I ſay Matth. 19. 28. unto you, that ye which have followed me in the regeneration when the Son of Man ſhall ſit in the throne of his Glory, ye ſhall alſo ſit upon twelve Thrones, judging the twelve Tribes of Iſrael: We ſpeak not of this Regeneration but of that which brings to this: for we muſt be regenerated here, or have no part there with God in his Glory.

And ſhould we conſider man in his parts, every part muſt bear a part in this Birth; his body muſt be regenerated, his Soul muſt be renewed; we will begin with the Body; As you have yielded your Members ſervants to uncleanneſs, and to iniquity, even ſo now yield your members ſervants to righteouſneſs, unto Holineſs, Ro. 6: 19. As every Member of the old Man is full Rom. 6. 19. of Sin, ſo every Member of the new born man is to be renewed by Grace. To inſtance in ſome of them; The Heart, that in the old man is full of evil Thoughts, Matth. 15. 19. Murthers, Adulteries, Fornications, Thefts, Falſewitneſs, Blaſphemies; in the new man it is the member that muſt firſt be renewed; here Grace firſt ſeats it ſelf, and after is diſperſed over all; as in natural generation the heart is firſt framed, ſo in ſpiritual regeneration the heart is firſt reformed. Some call it the firſt mover of all mens actions, for as the firſt mover carrieth all the ſpheres of Heaven with it, ſo doth the heart carry all the members of the body with it: And therefore it is that the new man begins firſt with his heart; for if that fountain be right, all the ſtreams of his Deſires, Purpoſes, Affections, Speeches, Actions, Converſations, run ſweet and clear, and pleaſant. Again, the eye, that in the old man is the broaker, Matth. 6. 23. that goes between the heart and the object, to make up the ſinful bargain: that which our Saviour calls an evil eye, an Adulterous eye; in the new man it muſt 2 Pet. 1. 14. be exerciſed on other objects, I made a covenant with mine eye, (ſaith Job) why then ſhould I think upon a Job 31. 1. maid? I will lift up mine eyes unto the hill (ſaith Da- Pſal. 121. 1. vid) from whence cometh mine help. Again, the ear, Pſal. 58. 5. that in the old man is ſtopped againſt the voice of the Charmer, charm he never ſo wiſely; or if it be open like Deaths Porter, it lets in ſin and Satan at every occaſion; in the new man it muſt be the Gate of Life, or the Door of Faith; therefore there is not a member that the Devil more envieth than the ear, as we ſee in the Man poſſeſſed with a deaf Devil, Mark 9. 25. who poſſeſſed that ſenſe, as the moſt Mar. 9. 25. excellent, to hinder him from hearing. Again, the James 3. 6. tongue, that in the old man is a world of iniquity, that defileth the whole body, that ſetteth on fire the courſe of nature, and is ſet on fire of hell; in the new man it muſt be the trumpet of divine praiſe, or (as David calls it) Pſal. 49. 1. the pen of a ready writer, uttering only thoſe things which the heart enditeth in ſincerity and truth. To ſum up all in one, the heart is it where grace begins firſt, and is felt laſt; and therefore ſaith God, Son give me thy heart, Prov. 23. 26. and therefore prays Prov. 23. 26. David, Create in me a new heart, Pſal. 51. 10. and Pſ. 51. 10. therefore wills Solomon, Keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the iſſues of life, Prov. 4. 23. Prov. 4. 23. Would any man that is regenerate encounter ſin in his heart, it were impoſſible to break out into action; would the heart of any man that is born again, but meet ſin with this Dilemma, If I commit this, I muſt either repent, or not repent for it; if I do repent, it will coſt me more heart-break, and ſpiritual ſmart, then the ſenſual pleaſure can be worth; If I never repent it will be the death and damnation of my Soul: Sure this thought conceived, and rightly followed in the Heart of the regenerate, would be enough to cruſh ſin at the firſt riſing of it; and ſo it is; for if he be regenerate, he doth * not ſin, Whoſoever is born of God doth not commit ſin, 1 Joh. 3. 9. He is moulded anew, and all 1 John 3. 9. the members of his body are conformed to the ſovereignty and rule of grace; yea his Body is preſerved blameleſs, Holy, acceptable unto God; it is a mem- 1 Theſ. 5. 23.

1 Cor. 6. 15, 19. Secondly, as the body, ſo the Soul of this man is 1 Cor. 6. 20. to be renewed by grace; Therefore glorifie God in your body and your Spirit, (ſaith Paul, 1 Cor. 6. 20.) The body and the Spirit muſt both glorifie God; and as all the parts of the body, ſo all the powers of the Soul.

Firſt, the underſtanding, that in the old man is blind and ignorant about heavenly things, or howſoever it may know many things; yet never can attain Epheſ. 4. 18. to ſaving knowledge; in the new man it muſt be Revel. 3. 18. anointed with the eye-ſalve of the Spirit, inſpired with the knowledge of Divine truths, eſpecially with thoſe ſacred and ſaving myſteries which concern the Kingdom of God. Again, the will that in the old man affects nothing but vile and vain things, is froward and perverſe in the ways of godlineſs; in the new Rom. 12. 2. man it muſt prove and approve what is the good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God; yea, it muſt attend and be ſubordinate to the grace of God, ſith God indeed, and God only works in us both the will and the Phil. 2. 13. deed, Phil. 2. 13. Again, the memory that in the old man is ſlippery in the things of God, or if naturally good, yet not ſpiritually uſeful, in the new man it muſt be ſanctified to good performances; and although it cannot encreaſe to a great natural perfection (for grace doth not this) yet the perfections it hath muſt be ſtraight, and right, and guided to Godward, Remember the Lord thy God, ſaith Moſes, Deut. Deut. 8. 18. 8. 18. Again, the conſcience that in the old man ſleeps and ſlumbers, or if it be awake, tears and roars, as if a legion of Devils now poſſeſſed it; in the new man it muſt be calm and quiet; and yet not ſleep or ſlumber, but rather in a friendly loving manner check and controul whereſoever ſin is, yea never be quiet, till with kind and yet earneſt expoſtulations, it draw the ſinner before God to confeſs his fault, and to ſeek pardon for it. Again, the affections that in the old man are ſenſual, inordinate, bewitched, and ſet on wrong objects; in the new man they muſt be turned another way. Mary Magdalene (you know) was given to unclean luſts, but the Lord diverted this ſinful paſſion, and ſo ſhe became penitent, and thirſted after grace. To ſumm up all, all muſt be renewed, the underſtanding, will, memory, conſcience, affections.

But to feel more of their ſweetneſs, I will pound theſe ſpices, and dwell a while on them. Now then for your better acquaintance with the regenerate man, and that you may know his difference from the man unregenerate, obſerve (I pray) theſe Paſſages.

First, I ſay, in the new man the underſtanding muſt be renewed; ſo the Apoſtle, The new man is renewed Col. 3. 10. in Knowledge, Col. 3. 10. and this knowledge im- Col. 1. 9. plies two habits, Wiſdom and Prudence, Col. 1. 9. Firſt, Wiſdom, and that is ſpeculative, Secondly, Prudence, and that is practical. By the one the child of God having the eyes of his mind opened and enlightned, doth ſee the myſteries of ſalvation, the ſecrets of the Kingdom, the whole Counſel, and the wonders of the Law of God; by the other he is enabled with a judicious ſincerity, to deliberate and determine in caſes of conſcience, in the practice of Piety, and the experimental paſſages of a Chriſtian Man. If we conſider the firſt, (Wiſdom) how is it poſſible that a man unregenerate ſhould know the myſteries of Salvation? It may be he may go as far as the power of natural diſcourſe, and light of Reaſon can bear ſway, he may be furniſhed with ſtore of rare and excellent learning, and yet for all this want the true knowledge of Spiritual Wiſdom. Why ſo? Becauſe all his knowledge, like the light of the Moon, is diſcharged upon others, but never returns and reflects upon his own Soul; he ſhould know, but knows not the darkneſs of his own underſtanding, the diſorder of his own affections, the ſlumber of his own Conſcience, the deadneſs of his own heart: But the man regenerate (know he never ſo little) he hath the ſaving knowledge, and in this he exceeds the greateſt Rabbies, the profoundeſt Clerks; he only knows God with a ſtedfaſt apprehenſion, he only knows himſelf a moſt mean, baſe, and contemptible thing; his new Birth hath learned him how wicked a creature he naturally is, and therefore in that reſpect is he odious to himſelf, and loathſome in his own eyes: Or if we conſider the ſecond, (Prudence.) How is it poſſible that a man unregenerate ſhould experimentally know the Practice of piety in a Chriſtian courſe? ſhould we inſtance in this myſtery of Regeneration; Here is one Nicodemus a ruler of the Jews, and a teacher of Iſrael; yet as learned as he was, if he confer with Chriſt about the ſalvation of his Soul, he is ſtrangely childiſh, and a meer infant; tell him of the new Birth, and he thinks it as impoſſible, as for an old man to return into his mothers womb, and be born again: The natural man cannot diſcern the operations of Grace, he knows not that dark and fearful paſſage, which leads from the ſtate of nature (through ſtrange terrours and torments of Soul) into the rich and glorious happineſs of the kingdom of Chriſt; whereas on the contrary, the regenerate man (that hath had the experience of the power of Godlineſs upon his own Soul) he can ſee and judge of the light of Grace, he can taſte and reliſh of the fruits of the Spirit; and hence it is that many a ſilly one (man and Woman) whom the worldly-wiſe paſs by with ſcorn and contempt, are often in ſpiritual affairs more wiſe and learned than the learnedſt Doctors.

Secondly, the Will muſt be renewed; and this Will of the regenerate contains two things Righteouſneſs and Readineſs: It is firſt rectified, when it is conformed to the will of God. Secondly, it is ſo enflamed with the love of goodneſs, that willingly he purſues it with alacrity of ſpirit. If we conſider the firſt (the rectitude of the will) we ſee by experience the will of the unregenerate is all out of courſe, he wills nothing but that which is evil: How ſhould he, conſidering his want of Gods image, his blindneſs of heart, his proneneſs to evil, together with the vehemency of his affections, which draw the will after them, and trouble the Judgment? But in the man that is regenerate, the will being moved, it afterwards moves it ſelf, Gods grace that concurs with it, quickens it, and revives it; ſo that now his will is nothing but Gods will: If it may appear that God bids him, or forbids him to do this, or that, he chooſeth above all to follow his commands, whatſoever becomes of him: why, this is the very * heart and marrow of regeneration, you may be ſure, the man that chooſeth above all to pleaſe God, is the only man of God, and ſhall be rewarded by God. Or if we conſider the ſecond (the readineſs of the will to good) alas, the will of the unregenerate hath no pleaſure in goodneſs, he underſtands not the ſweetneſs of it, and therefore nothing is more † irkſome to him than the ways of godlineſs: whereas on the contrary, the Will of the regenerate is willing, and this willingneſs indeed is the perfection of this will; yea (if we can ſay more) it is the higheſt degree of his perfection in this life, to be willing to do good.

Thirdly, the memory muſt be renewed; and this memory reflects occaſionally on a double object, on God, and the things of God. Firſt, on God by remembrance

* To will Chriſt, or to chooſe Chriſt, or to conſent that Chriſt ſhall be ours, together with his benefits, may be conſiſtent with an unregenerate eſtate; but to will or chooſe Chriſt more heartily ſtrongly and prevailing, than his pleaſures, or inferiour good; no wicked man can do. Baxter's everlaſting reſt.

† Job 21. 14.

brance of his preſence every where. Secondly on the things of God, by calling them to mind at uſeful times. If we conſider the firſt object, God; the unregenerate hath no mind on God, God is not in all his thoughts, like the hood-wink'd fool, that ſeeing no body, thinks no body ſees him; ſo hath he ſaid in his heart, How doth God know? can he judge through the dark cloud? Thick clouds are a covering to him that he ſeeth not, and he walketh in the circuit of heaven. But contrariwiſe, the regenerate man, he remembers his Creator in the days of his youth. And though God, as being a Spirit, is (in ſome ſort) abſent from his ſenſes, yet by virtue of his ſanctified memory (that makes things abſent as preſent) his eye is on God, and he conſiders God as an eye-witneſs of all his thoughts and words, and doings, and dealings; Pſal. 10. 4. he knows nothing can be hid from that all-ſeeing eye, though ſin tempt him with the faireſt opportunities of night and darkneſs, yet ſtill he remembers if his eyes ſee nothing, all thoſe eyes of heaven (of God and of his Angels) are ever about him: and therefore he anſwers the Tempter, How dare I ſin to his face, that looks on me what I am doing? If I dare not do this folly before men, how dare I do it before thoſe heaven-ſpectators, God and his Angels? Or if Job 22. 13, 14. we conſider the ſecond object (the Word of God) the unregenerate never burdens his memory with ſuch bleſſed thoughts; if ſometimes he falls upon it, it is either by conſtraint, or by accident, never with any Eccl. 12. 1. ſettled reſolution to dwell on it, or to follow it: but the ſoul that is regenerate, with Mary, keeps all theſe Luk. 2. 51. things in his heart: or with David gives it out, Pſal. 119. 11. Thy word have I hid in my heart, Pſ. 119. 11. Whatſoever leſſons he learns, like ſo many jewels in a Casket, he lays them up ſafe, and then as need ſerveth, he remembers his ſtore, and makes all the good uſe of them he may. I will not deny, but any man (good or evil) may retain good things according to that ſtrength of retainment, which nature affords him; but the regenerate (whoſe memory only is ſanctified) whatſoever he retains, he hath it opportunely at hand; in tentation or affliction he remembers and applies, and ſo remembring to apply, and applying that he remembers, he is thereby enabled to reſiſt evil, or to follow thoſe good things which the Lord hath commanded.

Fourthly, the conſcience muſt be renewed, and that two ways, either by drawing the ſoul to good, or from evil: firſt, to good, by enclining and encouraging; Secondly, from evil, by reſtraining and bridling. If we conſider its firſt office (in that it draws and leads the ſoul to good) I confeſs the unregenerate is not that conſcience, for the moſt part his conſcience lies dead in his boſom, or if it ſtir ſometimes, he labours all he can to ſmooth it in his waking: to ſuch an one ſhould men and Angels preach, yet ſo far is he bewitched with ſin, that he hath no mind of goodneſs, or if ever he do any good act (which is a rare thing with him) it is not out of conſcience to do good, but for ſome ſiniſter end or reſpect. It is otherwiſe with the regenerate, his conſcience incites him to good, and he doth good out of conſcience; he ſtands not upon terms of pleaſure or profit, but his conſcience being guided by the rule and ſquare of Gods holy truth, he ſubmits to it meerly out of his obedience to God: hence it is that come what will come, weal or wo, his eye is fixt on God; and if man oppoſe where God commands, he is quickly reſolved out of that in Iſaiah Iſa. 51. 12. 51. 12, I, even I am he that comforteth you; who art thou, that thou ſhouldeſt be afraid of a man that ſhall die, and of the ſon of man that ſhall be made as graſs? and forgetteſt the Lord thy Maker, that hath ſtretched forth the heavens, and laid the foundations of the earth? Or if we conſider the ſecond office of Conſcience (in drawing the ſoul from evil) the unregenerate either hears not, or heeds not his reclaiming conſcience: if it ſpeak, he firſt goes about to lull it aſleep again; or if it cry out, and will not peace, then (in ſpight of goodneſs) he runs out of one ſin into another, and uſually from preſumption to deſpair. On the other ſide, the regenerate hath a conſcience that draws him from, and keeps him out of evil: 'tis known eſpecially by theſe two properties, Remorſe and Tenderneſs: remorſe hath an eye on all ſins paſt, and tenderneſs hath an eye on all ſins to come: by remorſe is bred ſorrow for ſin, and loathing of ſin: no ſooner he conſiders how by his manifold ſins he hath offended God, crucified Chriſt, grieved the holy Spirit, but his heart bleeds and breaks that he hath done ſo wickedly againſt ſo gracious a God: this ſorrow for ſin brings with it a loathing of ſin; he cannot but hate it, that hath cauſed his heart-break; yea he hates it, and hates the very thought of it; every look-back is a new addition of deteſtation, and very meditation makes the wound of his remorſe to bleed again and again: by tenderneſs of conſcience is bred a care and watchfulneſs to avoid ſin to come; for no ſooner is ſin preſented to his conſcience, but he ſtartles at its ſight, and thinks on its vanity, and meditates on that ſtrict and general account he muſt one day make for it; which thoughts and ſin put together in the balance, he dares not do wickedly for a world of gain: and you may obſerve it, this tenderneſs (or eaſineſs to bleed at the apprehenſion of ſin) is proper and peculiar to that conſcience alone that is enlightned, and ſanctified, and purged by Chriſt.

Fifthly, the affections muſt be renewed, and that is done by ſetting them upon right objects. I ſhall inſtance in ſome of them, as love, hatred, hope, fear, joy, ſorrow. Love I place firſt, which in the unregenerate man is faſtned inordinately upon the creature; and as one ſin begets another, ſo on whatſoever object it falls, it gets ſome ſin: thus the love of honour breeds ambition, love of riches breeds covetouſneſs, love of beauty breeds luſt, love of pleaſure breeds ſenſuality: whatſoever he loves (the object being earthly) it brings with it ſome ſin, and thereby (the worſt of all) he wickedly prefers earth before heaven, a dunghil before Paradiſe, a few bitter-ſweet pleaſures for an inch of time, before unmixed and immeaſurable joys world without end: But the regenerate man ſettles his love upon other objects; as he that is carnal, minds things carnal, ſo he that is ſpiritual, loves things ſpiritual; no ſooner is he turned (by a ſound and univerſal change of the whole man) from darkneſs to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, but he preſently begins to ſettle with ſome ſweet contentment, upon the flowers Act 26. 18. of Paradiſe, heavenly glimpſes, ſaving graces, and his infinite love runs higher and higher, till it imbrace him that dwells in the higheſt, * God Almighty; how ſweet is that love that caſts it ſelf wholly into the boſom of his Maker? how bleſſed is that man, that yearns, and melts, and cleaves, and ſticks unto his gracious God above all? why, this is right love, and for this is the Church commended, Cant. 1. 4. The righteous love thee, or as others tranſlate, amat in rectitudinibus, ſhe loves thee righteouſly; her love is ſet above all upon the right object, God: not that the regenerate loves nothing elſe, for he † loves the Law, the Miniſters, and all the ordinances of God appointed for his good; but whatſoever he loves it reflects upon God; he loves all for God, and God for himſelf.

The ſecond affection is hatred, which in the unregenerate is ſo inordinate, that he is an hater of God, Rom. 1. 30. Rom 1. 30. not that he hates God in himſelf (for God is univerſally good, and cannot be hated) but in ſome particular reſpect, becauſe he reſtrains him from his pleaſure, or puniſheth him for his ſin, or croſſeth his lewd appetites by his holy Commands. And as he hates God, ſo likewiſe his brother, 1 John 2. 11. Hence ariſe thoſe envies, emulations, jars contentions amongſt thoſe that profeſs themſelves Christians; of which Paul could ſay, A brother goeth to Law with a brother, 1 Cor. 6.6. But of all brethren he hates them moſt, of whom our Saviour is the firſt-born: Gods faithful ones ever were, and ever will be ſigns and wonders, and monſters unto many, a ſcorn, reproach, and deriſion to them that are round about them: But he that is regenerate hates ſin, and in whomſoever ſin rules or reigns, he cannot but hate them; Do not I hate them, O Lord, that hate thee? (ſaith David) and, am not I grieved with thoſe that riſe up againſt thee? Not that David, or any Saint of God, hates the perſons of any one, but ſin in the perſon; or he is ſaid to hate them for ſins ſake that is in them; in this reſpect he bids them defiance in the verſe enſuing, I hate them with a perfect hatred, I account them mine enemies, Pſal. 139 22. I know there is a perpetual combate in the regenerate betwixt the fleſh and the Spirit, and therefore we muſt underſtand this hatred which David calls a perfect hatred, according to the perfection in parts, but not in degrees: never any but Chriſt hated ſin to the full, with all his might, but in ſome meaſure his ſervants hatred is perfect, which makes him always hate ſin in others, and often in himſelf when after the commiſſion of any evil he begins to repent him, and to abhor himſelf (as Job did) in duſt and aſhes, Job 42.6.

*I am perſwaded there is no wicked man amongſt us, but he hath ſome love to Chriſt, more or leſs, only here is the unſoundneſs which undoes ſuch a man; he loves his inferiour bleſſings better than him: and for this he periſheth. Baxters's reſt. Cant. 1. 4. † Pſal. 119. 165. 1 Theſ. 5. 13.

The third affection is Hope (this I rather name than deſire, becauſe whatſoever we Hope for, we cannot but * deſire it, and ſo it is implied in it.) Now this Hope in the unregenerate is faſtned on this world, and the things of this world; he hopes for preferment, riches, or the like; as for his hope of heaven, it is but a * waking mans dream; a dream, ſaid I? Yes, as dreams in the night fill us with illuſions and vain forms (you know a beggar may dream he is a King) ſo hope abuſing the imagination of the unregenerate, fills their ſouls many a time with vain, or empty contentments; but the hope of the regenerate both enjoys the right object, and right means; his eye is fixt on future good, and he endeavours to purſue it, till he get the poſſeſſion; if in the purſuit he meet with croſſes, loſſes, griefs, diſgraces, ſickneſſes, or any other calamities, his Hope is able to ſweeten the bitterest miſery that can poſſibly befal him; the afflictions of this life bid him look for a better, a croſs here minds him of the glory above; and howſoever this Hope may have many difficulties and wraſtlings in him, (therefore it is compared to an anchor, which holds the ſhip in a ſtorm, Heb. 6. 19.) yet it holds and ſticks ſo firm to God and his promiſes above all, that he is confident, that after this life an heavenly crown ſhall be ſet on his head, by the hands of God and his Angels.

* Many that periſh may deſire and hope, and love God, and Chriſt, and heaven; but they deſire, and hope, and love ſome inferiour good more. He that deſires, and hopes, and loves God ſincerely and ſavingly, he doth all this ſupreamly; God above all things elſe. Baxter's reſt.

* Somnium vigilantium.

The fourth affection is fear, which in the unregenerate is either worldly or ſervile: if it faſten on the world, then he fears the loſs of his credit, or of his profit, and becauſe he and the World muſt part at laſt, he fears this ſeparation above all fears: O death (ſaith the Wiſeman) how bitter is the remembrance of thee to a man that liveth at reſt in his poſſeſſions, unto the man that hath nothing to vex him, and that hath proſperity in all things? O the thoughts of theſe griſly forms, and ugly face of death, of the parting from all worldly pleaſures for ever, of his rotting in the grave, dragging to the Tribunal and Terror of the laſt day, they cannot but make his heart to ſhrug together for horror, and (many times) to quake and tremble like an Aſpen leaf; or if his fear reflect on God, then it is a ſervile fear; for as the ſervant or hireling works not for love of his maſter, but only for fear of Puniſhment; or as the adulterous woman is afraid of her husband, not out of love or affection, but leſt he reward her to her foul demerits; ſo he fears God for fear of puniſhment due unto him from God: It is otherwiſe with the man that is born again; his fear is either initial, or filial: in pangs of the new birth, or in the new-born babe it is called initial; becauſe then he caſts away ſin both out of Gods love, to which he hath partly attained, and out of the woful effects of ſin, which he hath throughly conſidered; with the right eye he beholds God, and with the left eye he beholds puniſhment; ſo that this fear is a middle (as it were) betwixt ſervile and filial fear; and as the needle draweth in the thread, ſo this fear draweth in charity, and makes way for filial fear; to which, if by growth in grace he be fully ripened, then he fears God out of love to God, as the Prophet Iſaiah proclaimeth, the fear of the Lord is his treaſure, Iſa. 33. 6. Never was treaſure more dear to the worldlings, than is God's fear to him; his love of God, his deſire to pleaſe God, and his fear of being ſeparated from God, keeps him in ſuch awe, that though no puniſhment, no death, no hell were at all, yet he would not ſin wickedly, wilfully and maliciouſly, for a world of treaſures.

Eccleſ. 41. 1.
Weemſ.
Iſa. 33. 6.

The fifth affection is joy, which in the unregenerate is meerly ſenſual and brutiſh; it hath no better objects than gold, or greatneſs, or offices, or honors, or the like: and what are all theſe but a ſhadow, a a ſhip, a bird, an arrow, a poſt that paſſeth by? or rather, as crackling of thorns under a pot, as flaſhes of lightning before everlaſting fire? But the joy of the regenerate is a ſpiritual joy, and the matter of it is the light of Gods countenance, or the robe of Chriſts righteouſneſs, or the promiſes of Gods Word; or above all, God Almighty, bleſſed evermore: Thus David, Whom have I in heaven but thee? and there is none upon earth that I deſire beſides thee, Pſal. 73. 25. Why, this is that joy which no man can conceive, but he that enjoys it; this is that white ſtone, Rev. 2. 17. whoſe ſplendor ſhines only upon heavenly hearts; this is that glimpſe of heavens glory, which ſpringing up in a ſanctified heart, out of the wells of ſalvation, and carried along with addition of freſh comforts (from the Word and Sacraments) through a fruitful current and courſe of mans life, is at laſt entertained into the boundleſs and bottomleſs Ocean of the joys of Heaven. I will not ſay, but ſometimes it may be aſſaulted, and ſtopped with ſome doubts, or diſtruſts, or weakneſſes of degree, yet in reſpect of its creation, or eſſence, or bliſſful iſſue, it is (ſaith one) a very glimpſe of heaven, a pure taſte of the rivers of life, and firſt fruits (as he calls it) of everlaſting joys.

Pſal. 73. 25.

Bolton's walking with God.

The ſixth affection is ſorrow, which in the unregenerate is a worldly ſorrow, and the affects of it are death; ſo the Apoſtle, the ſorrow of the world worketh death, 2 Cor. 7. 10. In this kind how endleſs are the ſorrows of men for their loſſes or croſſes, that ſometimes may befal them? And howſoever ſome may endeavour to comfort them in Chriſt, they are ſo deadhearted that nothing can perſwade, nothing reliſh with them that concerns heaven or ſalvation. But in the regenerate, ſorrow looks up to God-wards not that the beholding of God in himſelf can bring ſorrow to a man, for he is a moſt comfortable object, which made David ſay, The light of thy Countenance — is gladneſs to my heart, but the beholding of ſin, which hindreth from the clear ſight of that object, this is it which breeds ſorrow, and this the Apoſtle calls godly ſorrow, working repentance to ſalvation, not to be repented of 2 Cor. 7. 10. It is not every ſorrow, but godly ſorrow; I rejoyce (ſaith the Apoſtle) not that ye were made ſorry, but that ye ſorrowed to repentance: And would you know who ſorrows to repentance? it is he, and only he that groans groans and ſighs under the heavy weight and burden of his ſins, that is of a broken and contrite heart, that trembles at Gods Word, that is grieved at his enormities, that forſakes all ſins, and that reſigns up himſelf in all holy obedience to Gods bleſſed will; Pſal. 6. 6. this ſorrow is a bleſſed ſorrow that brings forth joy and immortality: Therefore comfort ye, comfort ye all that mourn in Sion, what though for a night (in pangs of the new birth) you lie ſorrowing and weeping for your ſins? mark a while, and the day will dawn, ride on, becauſe of the word of truth, and a day-ſtar will ariſe in your hearts that will never ſet; nay weep Pſal. 6. 6. and weep again, till you can ſay with David, All the night make I my bed to ſwim with my tears, and preſently the Sun of Righteouſneſs will appear, and he will dry away your tears, and ſhine upon you with everlaſting light. Certainly thus it is with every regenerate man, he loves, and hates, and hopes, and fears, and joys, and ſorrows, and all theſe paſſions are renewed in him: Pſal. 119. 47. To give inſtance in one, David for all the regenerate; his love appears, Pſal. 119. 47. My delight 130. 22. ſhall be in thy commandments which I have loved: his hatred appears, Pſal. 130. 22. I hate thy enemies 62. 5. with a perfect hatred. You ſee now a pourtraicture of the new man, which ſhould be the caſe of all men; my text ſaith indefinitely [A man] implying every Man; and every part of Man, every man ſhould be regenerated, every part of man ſhould be renewed; and whereas man conſiſts of two parts, the body and ſoul, all the members of his body, the Heart, the Eye, the Ear, the Tongue, in ſpecial; all the powers of his ſoul, the Underſtanding, the Will, the Memory, the Conſcience, the Affections in general, all muſt be renewed, and the whole man] born again.

Uſe. And yet (beloved) I mean not ſo, as that a man renewed is never overcome with ſin; I know there is in him a continual fight betwixt the fleſh and the ſpirit, each of which ſtriveth to make his part ſtrong againſt the other and ſometimes Amaleck prevails, and ſometimes Iſrael prevails; ſometimes his heart falls a luſting, his eyes a wandring, his ears a tickling, his tongue a ſpeaking idly; ſometimes his underſtanding errs his will rebels, his memory fails, his conſcience ſleeps, and his affections turn the ſtream after ſenſual objects; but (that which differs him from the unregenerate man) if he ſin, it is with a gracious reluctation, he reſiſts it to the uttermoſt of his abilities, and if at laſt he commits ſin through the violence of tentation, ſubduing the infirmity of the fleſh, he is preſently abaſhed, and then begins he to ſet repentance a-work in all the parts and powers of his body and ſoul; then begins his conſcience to trouble him within, and will never be at quiet until the ciſtern of his heart (being over-charged) hath cauſed his eyes, the flood-gates, with moiſt ſinful humours, to overflow the cheeks with tears of contri- 1 Cor. 6. 9. tion; and thus he is waſhed, juſtified, ſanctified, and reſtored to his former integrity again. Examine then your ſelves, you that deſire heaven at your ends, would you inherit the Kingdom? Would you live with Angels? Would you ſave your Souls? Examine and try whether your Bodies and Souls be Sanctified throughout; and if you have no ſenſe or feeling of the new birth, (for 'tis a myſtery to the unregenerate) then never look to ſee (in that ſtate) the Kingdom of God; but if you perceive the working of ſaving grace effectually in you, (and you cannot but perceive it if you have it) if you feel the power of godlineſs firſt ſeizing the heart, and after diſperſing it ſelf over all the parts and powers of Body and Soul; (or yet more in particular) if your hearts be ſoftned by the Spirit, if your eyes wait upon God, if your ears liſten to his Word, if your tongues ſhew forth his praiſe, if your underſtanding attain to ſaving knowledge, if your wills conform to the will of God, if your memories be ſtored with heavenly doctrine, if your conſciences be tender and ſenſible of the leaſt ſin whatſoever, if you love that which is good, if you hate that which is evil, if you hope for the bleſſings above, if you fear him that can deſtroy both Body and Soul; in a word, if you joy in goodneſs, if you ſorrow for ſin, then are you born again. Happy man in this caſe that ever he was born, and thus every man muſt be, or he cannot be happy, Except a man] (every man, every part of man) be born again he cannot ſee the Kingdom of God.

Thus far of the ſubject, man.] We come now to the act, or deed to be done, he muſt be born again.

[Be born again.]

THE Children are brought to the birth, and leſt the ſaying be true of us, there is no ſtrength to bring 2 Kings 19. 3. forth: I ſhall now (by gods aſſiſtance) proceed to the birth it ſelf. Here we have the manner of it, and we may obſerve a double manner.

Firſt of the words containing the new birth.

Secondly, of the new birth contained in the words.

The manner of the words appears in the original γεννηθῇ ἄνωθεν] two words, and either of them hath its diverſe reading. γεννηθῇ, Valla would rather have to be genitus, begotten. Except a man be begotten.] Others uſually ſay natus, born; Except a man be born.] And as γεννηθῇ, ſo ἄνωθεν, ſome would have to be ἄνωθεν οὐρανόθεν above, or from heaven; Except a man be born from above.] Others uſually ἄνωθεν τὸ πάλιν, be born again. Chryſoſtome cites both theſe, and of each reading we ſhall gather ſomething for our own inſtruction.

Except a man be regenerated, or begotten (ſaith Valla.) Eraſm. As man that is born of a woman is begotten of a man, ſo annot. in he that is born again, muſt have a begetting too: and loc. therefore ſometimes it is called renaſcentia, a new birth, Doct. and ſometimes regeneratio, a new begetting, or regeneration. If you ask of whom is the new man begotten? James tells you, James 1. 18. Of his own will begat he us Jam. 1. 18. with the word of truth: The former words note the impulſive cauſe, theſe latter the inſtrument; it was God that begat us, and with the ſeed of the Word.

Firſt, God begat us, and ſo are we called Gods ſons, born not of Blood, nor of the will of the Fleſh, nor of the John 1. 13. will of Man, but of God, John 1. 13. Regeneration is the work of God; and becauſe it is a work external, it is therefore communicable to each Perſon in the Trinity: Ye are ſanctified (ſaith the Apoſtle) in the Name of the Lord Jeſus, and by the Spirit of our God, 1 Cor. 6. 11. 1 Cor. 6. 11. The Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt, all ſanctifie, all work the ſame work: but as in the God head there is but one Eſſence, and yet three manners of being of the ſame one Eſſence, ſo in Gods outward operations, all the perſons work rem eandem, one thing, but all work not eodem modo, after one manner. For inſtance, the works of Creation, Redemption, and Sanctification, are the common works of God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Ghoſt, yet every one of theſe works common to all three, are terminated in ſome one of them: So the Father is ſaid to create, the Son is ſaid to create, the Holy Ghoſt is ſaid to create; ſo the Father is ſaid to redeem, the Son is ſaid to redeem, the Holy 1 Cor. 8. 6. Ghoſt is ſaid to redeem; So the Father is ſaid to John 1. 10. Sanctifie, the Son is ſaid to Sanctifie, the Holy Ghoſt Job 26. 13.

is ſaid to Sanctifie: Thus all three concurr to every one of theſe works, and yet every one of theſe works, is terminated, ſpecified, and formed (as it were) in the very laſt act by one of theſe tree: The work of the Creation is terminated immediately in God the Father, the work of Redemption is terminated immediately in God the Son, the work of Regeneration is terminated immediately in God the Holy Ghoſt.
And it is memorable, that as the community of theſe works (ad extra) depends on the unity of Gods Eſſence, ſo the diverſity of their determinations depends on the diverſe manners of Gods exiſtence, or ſubſiſting: the Father is of himſelf, neither made nor begotten, and therefore it beſt agrees with him to make all things of nothing, which is the work of Creation; the Son is of the Father alone by reflection of his intellect, and ſo called the repreſentation of his Fathers Image, and therefore it beſt agrees with him to repreſent his Fathers mercies to mankind, by ſaving them from death and hell, which is the work of Redemption; the Holy Ghoſt is of the Father and the Son proceeding (and as it were breathed) from them both by the act of the will, and therefore it beſt agrees with him (that bloweth where he liſteth) to blow on our wills and by his breath to purge and purifie us, which is the work of Regeneration. To ſumm up all in a word, this work of Regeneration (or Sanctification, or whatever elſe you will call it) in reſpect of the work, it is of the Father, Son and Holy Ghoſt, but in reſpect of the laſt act, it is of the Holy Ghoſt, and not of the Father, nor the Son; and thus our Saviour concludes, John 3. 6, 8. That which is born of the Spirit, is Spirit, and ſo is every man Joh.3.6,8. that is born of the Spirit.

Secondly, as Gods ſpirit is the principal, ſo *Gods
Word* is the inſtrumental cauſe of our Regeneration.
Ye are born again (ſaith Peter) not of corruptible ſeed, but of incorruptible by the word of God, which liveth and abideth for ever, 1 Pet. 1 23. This word John calls the word 1 Pet. 1. 23. of Life, Paul the producer of faith, and the power of 1 Joh.1.1. God unto ſalvation; yea this word is quick and powerful, Ro.13.17. and ſharper than any two-edged ſword, piercing even to the Ro. 10.10. dividing aſunder of Soul and Spirit, and of the joynts and marrow and is a diſcerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart, Heb. 4. 12. They that are born again, cannot Heb. 4.12. but remember how quick, and powerful, and ſharp, Gods word was at their Regeneration: Firſt like an hammer it beat on their hearts till it broke them all to pieces, and then like a ſword, by a terrible, cutting, piercing power, it ſtruck a ſhaking and trembling into Lu. 10.30. the very centre of their Souls; laſt of all, like oyl
(when as the man in the Goſpel, they were wounded indeed) it began to ſupple thoſe wounds, and to heal the bruiſes, and to refreſh the weak and tender heart with all the promiſes of God revealed in Chriſt.

And thus a man being begotten of the Spirit with the word of truth, he comes at laſt to the Birth: So we read, Except a man be born.] And this I ſuppoſe to be fuller than the other, becauſe a begeting may be, and no birth follow, as many that are ſtifled in the womb, are begotten, not born; but if the birth be, it doth preſuppoſe a begetting, and ſo it implies it: Except Doct. a man be born, that is, except a man be begotten and born he cannot ſee Gods kingdom. If you ask of whom born? I anſwer, as God is the Father, ſo the Church is the Mother of every child of God; to this purpoſe ſaith the Apoſtle, Jeruſalem which is above, is free which is the mother of us all, Gal. 4. 26. what is Jeruſalem
Gal.4.26. but the Church? for as that City was the ſeat of David, Pſal. 122. 5 ſo is this Church the throne of Pſal.122.5. Chriſt, figured by the kingdom of David Revel. 3. 7.
Rev. 3. 7. and therefore of both theſe God thus proclaims, Here ſhall be my reſt for ever, here will I dwell, for I have a delight Pſal. 132. 14. herein, Pſal. 132. 14. And rightly is the Church called our mother, firſt becauſe ſhe is the ſpouſe of our Father betrothed, Hoſea 2. 19. coupled and made one, Hoſ. 2. 19.

mine; and ſecondly, becauſe we are children born of her: This teacheth us to honour our Mother, and like little children to hang at her breaſts for our ſuſtenance, Suck and be ſatisfied with the breaſts of her conſolations, milk out and be delighted with the abundance of her glory, Iſa. 66. 11.
It is the Church that brings forth children to God by the miniſtry of his word, and if we are children of this mother, we muſt feed on that milk which flows from her two breaſts, the Old and New Teſtament.
As new born Babes, (ſaith the Apoſtle) deſire the ſincere milk of the Word, that ye may grow thereby, 1 Pet. 2.2. 1 Pet. 2.2.
In a word, out of the Church there is no ſalvation: who have not the Church for their mother, cannot have God for their Father, was the ſaying of old, and good reaſon, for out of the Church there is no means of ſalvation, no Word to teach, no Sacraments to confirm, but all theſe, and all other means are in the womb of the Church; it is here, and here only, where the Spirit of immortal ſeed begets grace in the heart and ſo a man is born again.

This ἄνωθεν] ſome read οὐρανόθεν from heaven,] and ſo the word runs, Except a man be born from above.] Doct.
From above it is that every good & perfect gift cometh: A John 3.27.
man can receive nothing, except it be given him from heaven, John 3. 27. But how then ſaith our Saviour of the wind (to which he compareth every one that is born of the ſpirit) that we know not whence it cometh, Verſe 8.
and whither it goeth? I anſwer, this [whence] reſpects more the cauſe than place; we know the wind comes from the South, or North, or Eaſt, or Weſt, but why ſo and ſo, we cannot tell; we know the Spirit is above, and the new birth or regeneration comes from the Spirit: But τὸ διότι why it is ſo, or what moves the Spirit to do ſo, beſides his εὐδοκίαν, the good pleaſure of his will, we cannot tell.

Or if we read ἄνωθεν τὸ πάλιν, as others do, the Beda,& Eraſm. paraph. in loc.
words then run thus, except a man be born again.] To this Nicodemus's reply ſeems more direct, How can a man be born when he is old? can he enter the ſecond time into his mothers womb? No queſtion he took Chriſt ἄνωθεν pro πάλιν, only thus he miſtook, that the ſecond birth ſhould be after the manner of the firſt birth; and therefore he ſaith, Can a man that is old (ſuch as he himſelf was) be born again? No, ſaith our Saviour, that which is born of the fleſh, is fleſh and there is but one birth after this manner; but to be born again] is to be born after the Spirit, and this is that ſecond birth: A man Doct.
is firſt born of the fleſh, and he muſt be again born of the Spirit.

Hence appears the difference of the firſt and ſecond birth, the firſt birth is of the earth, earthly; the ſecond birth is of the Lord, from heaven, heavenly; the firſt birth is of nature, full of ſin; the ſecond is of grace full of ſanctity: the firſt birth is originally of fleſh and blood, the ſecond birth is originally of the Spirit and water: In a word, the firſt birth kills, the ſecond gives life; generation loſt us, it muſt be regeneration that recovers us: O bleſſed birth, without which no birth is happy, in compariſon of which (though it were to be born heir of the whole world) all is but miſery! This was Moſes's praiſe, that eſteemed the reproach of Chriſt above all the treaſures in Egypt; rather heaven, no kingdom: Except a man be born again] he Tit. 2. 5. cannot ſee the Kingdom of God.

Thus far of the manner of the words, which contain the new birth, it appears in them, the Father of it is God, the ſeed of it the World, the Mother of it the Church, the place of it, whence? From Heaven: The time of it, when? After a man is once born, then he muſt be again born: Except a man be born again.]

Secondly, as you ſee the manner of the words, containing the new birth; ſo now the manner of the new birth contained in the words. I know it is not wrought in all after one manner, nor is the manner known to us, but only ſo far forth as it is ſenſible in us, and therefore we muſt conſider man before Baptiſm, in Baptiſm, after Baptiſm.

In ſome is the new birth wrought before Baptiſm, as in the Eunuch under Candace Queen of the Æthiopians, Acts 8. 37. and in Cornelius the Captain: together with his kinſmen and near friends, Acts 10. 47. and in Lydia, Acts 16. 14. and ſo our charity tells us, that every infant dying before Baptiſm, is renewed by the Spirit: But the manner of this working we know not, for it is one of the ſecrets of the Spirit of God.

In others is the new birth wrought in Baptiſm, which indeed is the Sacrament of the new Birth, and ſeal of Regeneration; but howſoever in Pædo-Baptiſm, we ſee the outward ſeal, yet we ſee not, we feel not the manner of the inward working; for this alſo is the ſecret of the * Spirit of God.

Polan. Syntag. l. 6. c. 37. In others is the new birth wrought after Baptiſm; ſo Polanus: But whether after Baptiſm, or in Baptiſm, we will not diſpute; only (as the caſe ſtands with us) this I affirm, That there is no manifeſtation of the new Birth, until after Baptiſm: But when after Baptiſm? I anſwer, whenſoever men receive Chriſt by Faith, which though it be many years after, yet then do they feel the power of God regenerate them, and to work all things in them which he offered in Baptiſm: Now the manner of this feeling (or of Gods Spirit working) proceeds uſually thus:

There be certain ſteps or degrees (ſay Divines) by which it paſſeth; and howſoever in thoſe whom God hath bleſſed with that great favour of Holy and Chriſtian education (the Spirit of God dropping grace into their hearts, even very betimes) theſe ſteps or degrees, are not ſo eaſily perceived: Yet in thoſe men who have lived long in ſin, whoſe ſins have been groſs, and great, and grievous, no ſooner come they to a new Birth but they can feel grace work in them ſtep after ſtep, and theſe ſteps we ſhall reckon to the number of eight.

The firſt is a ſight of ſin, and this our Saviour reckons for the firſt work of the Spirit, When he is come, he will reprove the world of ſin, John 16. 8. Of ſin, how, Joh. 16. 8. Why thus: No ſooner begins this bleſſed change from nature to grace, but the conſcience (wrought on by Gods Word) opens its Book, and preſents to the Soul a bed-roll of thoſe many, mighty, heinous ſins, committed againſt God and man; there he may read in bloody burning lines the abominations of his Youth, the ſins of all his Life; and to bring them into method, the commandments of God ſtand as a remembrancer before his eyes: The firſt tells him of his Loving ſomewhat above God: The ſecond, of his Worſhipping a falſe God, or the true God after a falſe manner: The third, of his diſhonouring the great and mighty name of God: The fourth, of his breaking the Lords days, either in doing the Works of the fleſh, or leaving undone the Works of the Spirit: Nor is this all; as againſt God ſo againſt his Neighbour hath he ſinned: The fifth tells him of his Stubbornneſs and Diſobedience: The ſixth of his Paſſions, and deſires of Revenge: The ſeventh, of his Lewdneſs and Luſtful Courſes: The eighth, of his Robberies and covetous Thefts: The ninth, of his Lyes and Slanders, Back-bitings, and raſh Judgments: The tenth, of his Covetous Thoughts, and motions of the heart to all manner of Evil. Good Lord! What a number of Evils, yea what Innumerable Swarms of Lawleſs Thoughts, and Words, and Actions doth he read in his Conſcience? But above all, his darling-delight, his beloved ſin is writ in greateſt Characters; this he finds to have bewitched him moſt, and to have domineered above all the reſt in his waſted Conſcience; this ſin in ſome is Worldlineſs, Wantonneſs, Uſury, Pride, Revenge, or the like; in others, it is Drunkenneſs Gluttony, Gaming, Scurrillous Jeſting, Simony, or the like; whatſoever it is, the conſcience tells him of again and again; where, that he may read it, together with his other ſins, the Spirit of God now opens the eyes of his mind, and lets him ſee the very mud and filth of his Soul, that lay at the bottom before unſeen, and undiſcerned. This is the firſt working of the new Life, to wit, a feeling of the old Death of his Soul in ſins and treſpaſſes; and here the Axiom is true, No generation without corruption; a man muſt firſt feel this Death, before he is born again.]

The ſecond ſtep is, Senſe of Divine wrath, which begets in him fear; ſo the Apoſtle, The Spirit of Bondage begets fear, Rom. 8. 15. and thus it Works: Rom. 8. 15.
No ſooner hath the man a ſight and feeling of his ſin, but then Gods Spirit, (now called the Spirit of Bondage) preſents to him the armory of Gods flaming wrath and fiery indignation; this makes him to feel (as if he were pricked with the ſtroke of an Arrow, or point of a ſword, or ſting of an Adder) that he is a moſt curſed and damnable Creature, juſtly deſerving all the miſeries of this life, and all the fiery Torments of Hell in that life to come; yea, this makes him tremble, and ſtand, and look, as if he were throughly frighted with the angry Countenance of God Almighty: Would you view him in this Caſe? His Conſcience hath now awaked him out of his dead ſenſual ſleep, by the Trumpet of the Law; his heart is now ſcorched with the ſecret Senſe of Gods angry face, his Soul is now full ſorely cruſhed under the moſt grievous burden of innumerable ſins, his thoughts are now full of fear and aſtoniſhment, as if no leſs than very Hell and Horror were ready to ſeize upon his Body and Soul. I ſay not what meaſure of this wrath is poured on all men in their Converſion; for I ſuppoſe ſome feel more, and ſome have leſs of it; but I verily believe, ſome there are that (in theſe pangs of the new Birth) have been ſcorched (as it were) with the very flames of Hell, inſomuch that they might truly ſay with David Gods wrath lieth hard upon me, and he hath afflicted me with all his waves, Pſal. 88. 7. And no wonder, for Pſa. 88. 7.
this is the time of fear: Now it is that Satan ſtrives buſily to ſtifle the new man in the Womb; and therefore he that before diminiſhed his ſins, and made them appear little or nothing in his eyes, when he once ſees the man ſmitten down into the Place of Dragons, and covered with the ſhadow of Death, then he Pſa. 44. 19.
puts into his mind his innumerable ſins, and (that which immediately follows) the curſe of the Law, and the wrath of God, which he yet makes more griſly and fierce, with a purpoſe to plunge him into the bottomleſs pit of Horror and deſpair. By this means he perſwaded Cain to cry out (when he was in this caſe) My puniſhment is greater than I can bear; or, as others, Mine iniquity is greater than can be forgiven, Gen. 4. 13.

Gen. 4. 13. And therefore thus far the unregenerate goes with the man born again; both have a ſight of ſin, and ſenſe of wrath, but here they part; for the man unregnerate either ſinks under it, or labours to allay it with worldly comforts, or ſome counterfeit calm: But the man born again, is only humbled by it, and ſeeks the right way to cure it, and at laſt (by the help of Gods Spirit) he paſſeth quite through it; I mean through this Hell upon Earth, into the ſpiritual pleaſures of the Kingdom of Grace, which is to be born again.]

The third ſtep is Sorrow for ſin, and this is more peculiar to Gods Child; there is a ſorrow which is a common work of grace, which an hypocrite may have; and there is a ſorrow which is a work of ſpecial Grace, and this likewiſe preceeds the exerciſe of Faith.

But ſome object, Chriſt muſt work this ſorrow, or it is good for nothing; now if Chriſt be in the Soul working ſorrow, then there is Faith; therefore Faith muſt go before ſorrow.

I anſwer, although it is true that Chriſt cannot be in the Soul, but in the ſame inſtant there is the Habit of Faith; yet it follows not that Faith is before ſorrow; for the Habit of theſe Graces are both together, and at once in the Soul; or howſoever, it follows not that the Soul is enabled by an Act of Faith to apply Chriſt to it ſelf aſſoon as Chriſt is in the Soul, or aſſoon as the habit of Faith is infuſed into the Soul: The queſtion is, whether the Soul in reſpect of us (who can only judge of the habit by the Act) cannot be ſaid to have Sorrow or Repentance before Faith? The queſtion is not, which the Soul hath firſt in reſpect of Gods gift, but which it Acts firſt for our apprehenſion? Surely to us it firſt Sorrows for ſin, and then it Acts or exerciſeth Faith by coming to Chriſt, and relying upon Chriſt for Salvation, &c. Obſerve, this Sorrow is ſometimes taken largely, for the whole Work of Converſion; ſometimes ſtrictly, for Conviction, Contrition, and Humiliation; in like manner repentance is taken ſometimes largely, and ſometime ſtrictly: By this diſtinction it may eaſily appear how Sorrow goes before repentance, and how repentance goes before Faith. Indeed for the latter is the greater controverſie; but ſome reconcile it thus: Repentance hath two parts, the averſion of the Soul from ſin, and the Converſion of the Soul to God: the latter part of it is only an effect of Faith, the former part of it, viz. The turning of the Soul from ſin, is alſo an effect, but not only an effect; for it is begun before Faith, though it be not ended till our life end. Some object, that God works Repentance and Faith together: But we diſpute not how God works them, but how the Soul Acts them: not which is in the Soul firſt, but which appears out of the Soul firſt: Neither is it any new thing in Philoſophy to ſay, Thoſe cauſes which produce an effect, though they be in time together, yet are mutually before one another in order of nature in Divers reſpects to their ſeveral cauſalities. Thus a man muſt have Repentance before he have ſaving and juſtifying Faith; and yet a man muſt have Faith, before the work of Repentance be perfect in the Soul As we maintain Repentance to be a precedent work, ſo we deny it not to be a ſubſequent effect: And that Sorrow is before the Birth 2 Cor. 7. 10. too the Apoſtle intimates, 2 Cor. 7. 10. Godly Sorrow works Repentance, that is, Sorrow prepares a man for Repentance, it goes afore it and prepares for it. And now it is, that Gods Spirit begins to renew his heart, Ezek. 11. 19. as God himſelf proclaimeth, I will put a new Spirit within them, and I will take the ſtony heart out of their Bodies, and will give them a Heart of Fleſh, Ezek. 11. 19. his heart that before was hard as flint, and now begins to relent, and ſooften, and break in pieces: Acts 2. 37. How ſo? it is God's Spirit that pricks the Heart, and this pricking ſoftens it; Dum pungit, ungit, ſaith Jerome; Compunction ſoftens and ſupples the heart, Hieronym. ſo that be it never ſo ſtony, preſently it becomes an heart of Fleſh; you know thoſe that are apt to weep, or yern, or Sorrow, we call them tender-hearted; you may be ſure then, he that is prickt till his Heart bleed inwardly, he that weeps Blood (which every Heart doth that is prickt on this manner) ſure his Heart is tender indeed; I ſay, tender, for as the very word imports, (κλαίω παρὰ τῦ κλάω) his Heart weeps, why? His Heart, is broken: David joins theſe together, A broken and contrite Heart, O God, thou wilt Pſa. 51. 17. not deſpiſe, Pſal. 51. 17. And no wonder if an Heart that is broken and rent, and wounded, and prickt, falls a weeping Blood; well might David ſay when he was broken, Pſalm 38. 8. I have wept (nay more; Pſal. 38. 8. I have roared for the very grief (or diſquietneſs) of my Heart: And again, My Soul (or my Heart) melteth (or droppeth) for very Heavineſs. Pſ. 119. 28. Not that his Heart dropt indeed, but becauſe the tears which he ſhed, were not drops of water running only from his Eyes, (an onion may cauſe ſo much) but iſſuing from his heart; which Heart being grieved, and ſore grieved, it is ſaid to be wounded; and ſo his tears coming from it, they may be called no leſs than very Blood, drops of Blood iſſuing from a wounded Heart. Thus it is with the man now labouring in his new Birth, his Heart grieves, his eye weeps; whence the Proverb, The way to Heaven is by weeping Croſs; the way to Gods Kingdom is to cry like Children coming into the World; the way to be new born is to feel throws (as a Woman labouring of Child) and ſo is Chriſt formed in us. Can a man be born again without bitterneſs of Soul? No, if ever he come to a ſight of ſin, and that Gods ſanctifing Spirit work in him Sorrow for Sin, his Soul will mourn till he may ſay with Jeremy, Mine eye droppeth without ſtay; ——Mine eye breaketh my Heart, becauſe of all the Lam. 3. 49. 51. Daughters of my City, becauſe of all the ſins of my Soul, Lament. 3. 51. True it is, as ſome infants are born with more pain to the mother, and ſome with leſs: So may the new man be regenerated in ſome with more, in ſome with leſs anxiety of Travail; but more or leſs; it cannot be ſo little, but the man that Labours in theſe pangs ſhall mourn, and mourn; There ſhall be a great mourning, as the mourning Zac. 12. 11. of Hadadrimmon in the vally of Megiddon, Zach. 12. 11. What elſe? He cannot look on a Saint, Ge. 17. 17. that ſailed not firſt through the Ocean of Tears, and Ge. 32. 24. therefore he falls on his face with Abraham, he wreſtles Job. 3. with God like Jacob, he roars out of his grief 1 Sam. 1. 15. with Job, he pours out his Soul with Hanna, he Pſal. 119. 136. weeps Rivers of Tears with David, he mourns as a Dove with Hezekiah, yea, like a Crane or a Swallow, ſo doth he chatter, Iſa. 38. 14. Iſa. 38. 14. O the bitter pangs and ſore travail of a man, when he muſt be born again.

The fourth ſtep is, Seeking rightly for comfort. He runs not to the World, or fleſh, or Devil, miſerable comforters all; but to Scripture, to Prayer, or to the miniſtry of Gods Word; if he find comfort in † Lex oſtendit peccatum, at ſolum Evangelium peccati remedium. Aug. tract. 17. in Joh. Scriptures, he meets with it in † the Goſpel: not the Law, but the Goſpel (ſaith the Apoſtle) is the power of God to Salvation, to every one that believeth, Rom. 1. 16. The Law is indeed the Miniſtry of Death and Damnation, 2 Cor. 3. ver. 7. but the Goſpel is the glad tydings of Salvation, Luke 2. 10. The Law ſhews Rom. 1. 16. a man his wretched eſtate, but ſhews him no remedy; 2 Cor. 3. 7. and yet we aboliſh not the Law, in aſcribing this comfort to the Goſpel only; though it Luk. 2. 10. be no cauſe of it, yet is it the occaſion of it: Thoſe doleful Terrors, and fears of Conſcience begotten by the Law, may be in their one nature the very Gates and downfal to the pit of Hell; yet I cannot deny but they are certain occaſions of receiving Grace; and if it pleaſe God that the man, now labouring in his pangs of the new Birth, do but rightly ſettle his thoughts on the Goſpel of Chriſt, no doubt but thence he may ſuck the ſweeteſt comforts and delights that ever were revealed to man. Or if he find comfort in prayer (to which he ever and anon repairs in every of theſe ſteps) then is it by Chriſt, in whoſe name only he approacheth to that Heavenly Throne of Grace: No ſooner had the King of Nineveh humbled himſelf, but his Proclamation runs, Let man and beaſt be covered with ſack-cloth, and cry Jonah 3. 8, 9. mightily unto God.——Who can tell if God will turn and repent, and turn away from his fierce anger, that we periſh not? And thus the man now wreſtling with the grievous afflictions and terrors of his conſcience, Who can tell (ſaith he) if God will turn away his fierce anger? Let me then cry mightily unto the Lord of Heaven, let me cry, and continue crying until the Lord of mercy do in mercy look upon me; and if for all this God give him a repulſe, for reaſons beſt known to himſelf, if at the firſt, ſecond, third, fourth, or at many more times, he ſeem to have cried in vain, at laſt he flies to the Miniſtry of the Word, and if he may have his will, he would hit upon the moſt skilful, experienced, Soul-ſearching and ſound-dealing, man amongſt all Gods meſſengers: Thus was it with Peter's hearers, whoſe hearts being pricked, and rent with legal terrors, then could they begin to cry out, Men and Brethren what ſhall we do? Acts Acts 2. 37. 2. 37. Thus was it with the Jaylor, who after his trembling and falling down to the Ground in an humble abaſement, could then begin to ſay, Sirs, what muſt I Act. 16. 30. do to be ſaved? Acts 16. 30. And thus the man now ready to be born again, if he find no means to aſſwage the rage and terrors of his guilty conſcience, at laſt he comes to Gods Miniſter with a What ſhall I do, what muſt I do to be ſaved? Alas! Now I feel the wounded conſcience, the broken Heart, the ſpiritual blindneſs, the captivity and poverty, of which often you have told me: if then there be any inſtruction, direction or duty, which may tend to my good, or free me from this evil, now open thoſe lips that ſhould preſerve knowledge, now direct me in Gods fear, and I will willingly follow it with my utmoſt endeavours.

And now (and not till now) hath Gods Miniſter a ſtrong and ſeaſonable calling to amplifie and magnifie the Soul-ſaving ſufficiency of Chriſts Death and Paſſion: were the blood of Chriſt, and promiſe of Salvation proffered to an unwounded Conſcience, what were it, but like the pouring of a moſt ſovereign balſam upon a ſound member of man? It is the only, right everlaſting method, firſt to wound by the Law, and then to heal by the Goſpel; firſt to cauſe ſmart for ſin, and then to lay to a plaiſter of Chriſts Blood; and therefore when the heart is broken, then hath the man of God his warrant to bind it up again, then may he magnifie Gods mercy, then may he ſet out to the height the heavenly beauty of Chriſts paſſion and perſon, and thus playing the Midwife by his high and holy art of comforting the afflicted, at laſt the Child of God (prepared for his birth) becomes a man born again.

The fifth ſtep is a clear (I ſay not a general ſight which he had before) but The clear ſight of Chriſt laid open to the eye of Faith; no ſooner is the poor wounded ſoul informed throughly in the myſtery and mercy of the Goſpel, but he then looks on his Saviour as the Jews on the brazen ſerpent, and ſeeing him lifted upon the Croſs, he cannot but ſee in him an infinite treaſury of Mercy and love, a boundleſs and bottomleſs ſea of tender-heartedneſs and pity, a whole Heaven of ſweetneſs, happineſs, peace and pleaſures. After the ſpirit of bondage, enters the Spirit of adoption; the terrours of the Law lead him to the comforts of the Goſpel; his ſorrow for ſin brings him to the clear light of his Saviour; and then as a man in deaths-pangs, that lifts up his eyes to heaven, whence cometh his help, ſo he in birth-pangs lifts up his eyes to Chriſt, who muſt either help him, or he ſinks under his ſin to the bottomleſs bottom of Hell. And I muſt tell you, this ſight of Chriſt Jeſus to an humbled ſinner (together with thoſe glorious privileges which he brings with him, as Reconciliation to God, forgiveneſs of ſins, adoption, juſtification, righteouſneſs, wiſdom, ſanctification, redemption) it is a moſt pleaſant, raviſhing, heavenly ſight: Not Solomon in all his Royalty, no nor the Lilies of the field are arrayed better than Solomon: Mat. 6. 21. not all the curious ſights on earth, nor all thoſe glittering ſpangles in heaven, can poſſibly afford ſuch pleaſure or delight to the eye of man, as doth this one object (Chriſt bleeding on the Croſs) to the Soul of a ſinner. Imagine that you ſaw ſome malefactor (whoſe tryal and doom were paſt) to be led to the doleful place of execution; imagine that you heard him wail and weep, for his miſ-pent time, for his bloody acts, for his heinous crimes: Yea imagine his wailings and weepings ſo bitter, that they were able to force tears from others, and to make all eyes ſhoot and water that but look'd upon him; if this man in this caſe ſhould ſuddenly ſee his King running and riding towards him with his pardon in his hand, what a ſight would this be? Sure there is none to this. Thus, thus it is with the man ſorrowing for ſin; whilſt he is weeping his caſe, and confeſſing what a little ſtep there is between him and damnation (as if he were now at hells mouth, the very place of execution) in a maze he looks upon Chriſt, whom he ſees with a ſpear in his ſide, with thorns on his Head, with nails in his Feet, with a pardon in his hands, offering it to all men that will but receive it by Faith. O here's a ſight indeed, able to revive the wickedſt man upon earth, dead in ſins and treſpaſſes. And now there is hopes of the Birth; if it once come to this, there is more than probability of an happy delivery, we may call it the ſtirrings of Gods child, or the firſt feelings of life, before he is born again.]

The ſixth ſtep is, An hungring deſire after Chriſt and his merits, and to this ſtep bleſſed are they that arrive; Bleſſed are they that hunger and thirſt after righteouſneſs; for they ſhall be filled, Matth. 5. 6. Filled: Mat. 5. 6. How? I will give unto him that is athirſt, of the fountain of the water of Life freely, Rev. 21. 6. Rev. 21. 6. This is the ſtep (as it were in Jacob's ladder) that raiſeth him on high towards heaven; it is ſuch a token of true faith, that he who hath it, needs no more doubt that he believeth, than he that breatheth needs to doubt that he liveth; and why? His thirſt of worldly things is cooled, his thirſt of Heavenly things inflamed.

Object. But Chriſt ſaith, He that drinks of the water that I ſhall give him, ſhall never thirſt.

Sol. Not after the world, but he ſhall thirſt more and more after Chriſt. No hungry man did ever with more appetite wiſh for meat, nor thirſty man for drink, nor covetous man for money, nor ambitious man for glory, than he now longeth to be reconciled unto God in Chriſt; in this caſe, had he the pleaſures and profits of a thouſand worlds, willingly would he part with all for the application of Chriſts ſufferings; it is that ſovereign blood that can only heal his Soul; it is that bitter paſſion which can only quench his thirſt: Give him but the merits of Chriſts death (whereby God and he may be at one) and he cares not though he ſuffer death and hell again, yea, he will venture goods, life, all; or if that be not it which the Lord requires, he will do whatever behooves him, even ſell all, all that he hath, part with all ſin that he loveth, yea were it his right hand, or his right eye, nothing ſhall be dear to him, ſo that he may enjoy his Saviour. O here's a thirſt above all thirſts!. It breeds ardent deſires, vehement longings, unutterable groans, mighty gaſpings, juſt like the dry and thirſty ground, that gaſps and cleaves, and opens for drops of rain. David, though in the deſert of Ziph, a barren and dry land without water, yet he complains moſt becauſe of this Pſal. 63. 1. thirſt, My Soul thirſteth for thee, O God, Pſal. 63. 1. This is that violent affection that God puts into the hearts of thoſe who ſeek him in ſincerity and truth; Judg. 15. 19. never was Ahab more ſick for a vineyard, not Siſera for milk, nor Sampſon for water, when God was fain to open him a fountain in the jaw of an Aſs, than is a truly humbled ſoul after Chriſt; ever thirſting and longing, that he may hide himſelf in his righteouſneſs, and bath himſelf in that blood which his Saviour ſhed for him. I have read of a gracious woman, who labouring in theſe pangs, and longing after Chriſt Jeſus, cryed out, I have born nine Children with as great pain as other women, and yet I would with all my heart bear them all over again, yea bear them, and bear them all the days of my life, to be aſſured of my part in Chriſt Jeſus. One replying, Doth not your heart deſire and long after him? Oh (ſaid ſhe) I have an Husband and Children, and many other comforts, I would give them all, and all the good I ſhall ever ſee in this world, or in the world to come, to have my poor thirſty Soul refreſht with that precious blood of my Saviour. So eager and earneſt is the heart of each man (parched with the angry countenance of God) after this blood of his; I thirſt, I faint, I languiſh, I long, (ſaith he) for one drop of mercy; my Spirit is melted in me into tears of blood; my heart, becauſe of ſin, is ſo ſhaken and ſhivered; my Soul, becauſe of ſorrow, is ſo waſted and parched, that my thirſt is inſatiable, my bowels are hot within me, my deſire after Chriſt is extremely great and greedy. Stay! All theſe expreſſions are far ſhort Rev. 2. 17. of thoſe longings, no man knoweth them, ſave he that receives them, ſave he that is born again]

The ſeventh ſtep is A relying on Chriſt: No ſooner he conſiders and remembers thoſe many melting in- John 7. 31. Iſa. 55. 1. Math. 11. 28. vitations of our Lord and Saviour: If any man thirſt, let him come unto me: Ho, every one that thirſteth, come ye to the waters: Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy-leaden with ſin: But (reſting himſelf on the impregnable truth of theſe bleſſed promiſes) he throws himſelf into the merciful and meritorious arms of his crucified Lord. Come life, come death, come heaven, come hell, come what come will, here will he ſtick for ever: Who (ſaith Paul) ſhall ſeparate us from the love of Chriſt? Shall tribulation, or diſtreſs, or perſecution, or famine, or nakedneſs or peril, or ſword? No I am perſwaded (not theſe, nor more than theſe) neither death, nor life, nor Angels, nor Principalities, nor Powers nor things preſent, nor things to come, nor heighth, nor depth, nor any other creature ſhall be able to ſeparate us from the love of God which is in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord, Rom. 8. 35, 38, 39. Rom. 8. 35. 38, 39. Thus it is with the man labouring in this birth: What? (ſaith he) doth Chriſt call the heavy-laden? why, Lord, I am heavy-laden with a weight, a maſs of ſin; and if he may come that is called, Lord, I come, I come, and now I come, with thee will I build my tabernacle, with thee will I reſt for ever. Nor is this any wonder, experience tells us, the hunted beaſt flies unto his den, the wounded man hies unto the Surgeon, and ſo the poor man broken and bruiſed with the weight of ſin, how ſhould he otherwiſe but caſt himſelf willingly into the ſweet compaſſionate inviting arms and embracements of Mat. 11. 28. Chriſt, whoſe promiſes run, I will eaſe him, I will refreſh him? You may ſee ſometimes a little infant, upon apprehenſion and approach of ſome ſudden danger, how haſtily he runs into his mothers arms: even ſo a truly wounded ſoul (purſued by the terrors of the Law, and frighted with the angry countenance of Almighty God) it flies with ſpeed into the boſom of its bleſſed Redeemer, there it clings unto his bleſſed wounds, there it reſts upon his meritorious death, there it graſps about his crucified body, there it hides it ſelf in the clefts of this Rock, yea there it ſticks with this full reſolution, that ſhould all terrors, all temptations, all men, all devils, combine together to caſt him into hell, they ſhould tear him, rent him, pull him, hail him from the bleeding wounds, and tender bowels of his heavenly Saviour. This was Job's caſe, who in the bittereſt of his pangs could cry it out, ſaying, Though the Lord ſlay me, yet will I truſt in him, Job 13. 15. And I muſt tell you, this * affiance, dependance, adherence, reliance (or whatſoever elſe we call it) upon the merits of Chriſt, is the right juſtifying faith, whither if a man once come, there is but one degree more, and he is then born again.].

The laſt and higheſt ſtep is, Univerſal obedience to Chriſt. No ſooner hath he caſt himſelf upon him, but he takes him (not only as a Saviour to redeem him from the miſeries of ſin, but) as an husband a Lord, a King to ſerve him, love him, honour him, and obey him: Now will he take his yoke upon him; now will he bear his Croſs and follow after him; now will he enter into the narrow way; now will he walk in the holy path; now will he aſſociate himſelf to that ſect and brotherhood that is every where ſpoken againſt; now will he oppoſe himſelf againſt all ſin whatſoever; now will he ſhake off his old companions, brethren in iniquity; now will he keep peace and a good conſcience towards God and man, now will he watch over his ſecret ſins, luſtful thoughts, occaſions of evil; now will he direct his words to the glorifying of God, and to give grace to the hearers; now will he conform all his actions to the ſoveraignity of grace; now will he delight in the Word, the Ways, the Saints, the Services of God; now will he never more turn again unto folly, or to his trade of ſin, yea though Satan ſet upon him with baits and allurements, to detain him in his bondage, but by one darling-delight, one mignion-ſin, yet he reſolves to anſwer him as Moſes did Pharaoh, There ſhall not ſo much as an hoof be left behind; for well he knows, one breach in the City expoſeth it to the Enemy, one leak in ſhip will ſink it in the Sea, one ſtab in the heart will ſpeed a man to death; one knot in a thread will ſtay the needles paſſage as well as five hundred; and therefore he will ſell all, all that he hath, even all his ſins, to the laſt filthy rag of his mignion-delight, his bewitching beloved boſom-ſin. And now is the new man born amongſt us, will you view him? Old things are paſſed away, behold all things are become new, 2 Cor. 5. 17 2 Cor. 5. 17. His heart, his eye, his ear, his tongue, his underſtanding, his will, his memory, his conſcience, his love, his hatred, his hope, his fear, his joy, his ſorrow; will you any more? his thoughts, his words, his actions, his affections, are all new; this converſion is univerſal, this change is a through change; now is Chriſt formed in him, now is he tranſformed into a new creature, before he was in making a new man, but now he is made new; God the Father accepts him for his ſon, God the Son ſtamps on him the Image of his Father, but more immediately God the Holy Ghoſt hath thus moulded and faſhioned him, as I have let you ſee him, and now he is born again] which except cept a man be, ——— he (ſhall not) cannot ſee the Kingdom of God.

Lo here thoſe ſteps that raiſe up a man to the ſtate of regeneration, A ſight of ſin, Senſe of miſery, Sorrow for ſin, Seeking for comfort, A ſight of Chriſt, Deſire after Chriſt, Relying on Chriſt, Obedience to Chriſt. One word more before we have done.

Uſe 1. You ſee how God brings along the man whom he purpoſeth to make his; and yet let no truly humbled ſinner be diſcouraged if he obſerve not ſo diſtinctly the order of theſe ſteps, and eſpecially in that degree as (you ſee) we have related; for if in ſubſtance and effect they have been wrought in them, if he have them in truth (though perhaps not in this degree) I dare pronounce of him, that he is ſurely born again. It is one of our worthies hath ſaid it, that in our humiliations, and other preparative diſpoſitions, we do not preſcribe preciſely juſt ſuch a meaſure and quantity, we do not determine peremptorily upon ſuch or ſuch a degree and height, we leave that to the wiſdom of our great Maſter in heaven, the only wiſe God, who is a moſt free agent. But ſure we are, a man muſt have ſo much, and in that meaſure, as throughly to humble him, and then to bring him to his Saviour; he muſt be weary of all his ſins, and of Satans bondage wholly, willing to pluck out his right eye, and cut off his right hand, I mean to part with his beſt beloved, boſom luſts, to ſell all, and not to leave ſo much as an hoof behind; he muſt ſee his danger, and ſo haſt to the City of refuge; he muſt be ſenſible of his Spiritual miſery, that he may heartily thirſt for mercy; he muſt find himſelf loſt and caſt away in himſelf, that Chriſt may be all in all unto him; and after muſt follow an hatred of all falſe and evil ways for the time to come, a through-change of former courſes, company, converſation, and ſetting himſelf in the way and practice of ſobriety, honeſty, and holineſs. And another ſpeaks to the ſame purpoſe, that the diſcovery of the remedy aſſoon as the miſery muſt needs prevent a great part of the trouble, and make the diſtinct effects on the ſoul to be with much more difficulty diſcerned: nay the actings of the ſoul are ſo quick, and oft ſo confuſed, that the diſtinct orders of theſe workings may not be apprehended, or remembred at all. And perhaps the joyful apprehenſion of mercy may make the ſenſe of miſery ſooner forgotten. The ſum is, of every ſoul is required thus much: Firſt, a truly penitent ſight, ſenſe, and hatred, of all ſin. Secondly, a ſincere and unſatiable thirſt after Jeſus Chriſt, and righteouſneſs, both imputed, and inherent. Thirdly, an unfeigned, and unreſerved reſolution of an univerſal new obedience for the time to come. If any man hath had the experience of theſe affections and effects in his own ſoul, whatſoever the order, or whatſoever the meaſure be (leſs or more) he is ſafe enough, and may go on comfortably in the holy faith.

Uſe 2. Now then let me adviſe thee (whoſoever thou art that readeſt) to enter into thine own ſoul and examine thine own ſtate, whether or no thou art yet born again? Search and ſee, whether as yet the ſpirit of bondage hath wrought its effects in thee; that is to ſay, whether thou haſt been enlightned, convinced, and terrified with a ſenſible apprehenſion, and particular acknowledgment of thy wretched eſtate? Search and ſee, whether as yet the Spirit of adoption hath ſealed thee for his own; that is to ſay, whether (after thy heart being broken, thy ſpirit bruiſed, thy ſoul humbled, thy conſcience wounded and awaked) thou haſt had a ſight of Chriſt, and haſt thirſted after him, and haſt caſt thy ſelf on him, and haſt followed his ways and Commandments by an univerſal Obedience? If upon ſearch thou canſt ſay (without ſelf-deceit) that ſo it is with thee, then mayſt thou bleſs God that ever thou waſt born; certainly (I dare ſay it) thou art Born again. But if thou haſt not Senſe or Feeling of theſe Works, if all I have ſpoken are very Myſteries to thee, what ſhall I ſay? but if ever thou meaneſt to ſee the Kingdom of God, ſtrive, ſtruggle, endeavour with thy might and main to become truly regenerate: Thou mayſt ſay perhaps it is not in thy power, thou art only a meer Patient, and Gods Spirit the agent, and who can command the Spirit of the Lord, that bloweth where he liſteth, at his own Will and Pleaſure? I anſwer it is indeed the Spirit, and not Man, that regenerates or ſanctifies: But I anſwer withal, The Doctrine of the Goſpel is the Miniſtration of the Spirit, and whereſoever that is Preached (as I Preach it now to thee) there is the Holy Ghoſt preſent, and thither he comes to regenerate: nay, I can ſay more, there is a common work of Illumination, that makes way for regeneration; and this common work puts a Power into Man of doing that, which when he ſhall do, the Spirit of God may, nay will in the day of his Power mightily work in him, to his quickning and purging; if then as yet thou feeleſt not this mighty work of God in thee, and yet fain wouldſt feel it, and gladly doſt deſire it (otherwiſe I confeſs it is in vain to ſpeak) follow me in theſe paſſages, I ſhall lend thee two wings to bear thee, two hands to lead thee to the Foot of this Ladder, where if thou aſcend theſe Steps aforeſaid, I dare certainly pronounce of thee, Thou art the Man born again.]

Thus whileſt the Miniſter ſpeaks, it is Chriſt that comes with power in the word, Ezek. 18. 31, 32.

The firſt wing is Prayer, which firſt brings thee to Gods Throne, and (there, if thou haſt thy Requeſt) then to the new Birth; if I muſt acquaint thee how to pray; Hoſ. 14. 2. Take with you Words, and turn to the Lord; ſay unto him, Take away all Iniquity, and receive us graciouſly, ———→ and then it follows, I will heal their Back-ſliding, I will love them freely, ver. 4. Jerem. 30. 18. I have ſurely heard Ephraim bemoaning himſelf thus, Thou haſt Chaſtiſed me, and I was chaſtiſed, as a Bullock unaccuſtomed to the Yoke: turn thou me, and I ſhall be turned. The Soul may object, I may ſay thus, and be no better: But I anſwer, Say it though you be no better, becauſe God bids you ſay it: Say it, and ſay again; it may be he will come in when you ſay it, Hoſ. 14. 4. The Soul may object again, How can I pray and have not Faith? I anſwer, Put thy ſelf upon Prayer, and who knows but aſſiſtance, and bleſſing, and faith may come? Pray that God would pleaſe to prepare thy Heart, to Sanctifie thy Affections, to order thy will, to preſerve thee from ſin, to prepare thee for growth unto full holineſs and righteouſneſs: this was the effect of Jeremiah's Prayer, Convert me, O Lord, and I ſhall be Converted; heal me, O Lord, and I ſhall be healed; ſave me, O Lord, and I ſhall be ſaved; Turn thou us, O good Lord, and ſo ſhall we be turned, Jer. 17. 14. and Lament. 5. 21. It is the Lord that converts, and heals, and ſaves, and turns; and Prayer is the means to produce this effect in thee: when we are required to pray, to repent and believe, we are not to ſeek ſtrength in our ſelves, but to ſearch into the Covenant, and turn the promiſe into prayer. As the command is, Repent, Act. 17. 30, ſo the Covenant is, Chriſt ſhall give Repentance, Act. 5. 31. and therefore pray, Turn thou me and I ſhall be turned, Jer. 31. 18. Therefore bow thy knees, and humbly, heartily, frequently, fervently implore the influence of Gods bleſſed Spirit: Cry with the Spouſe in the Canticles, A wake, O North-wind, and come thou South-wind, and blow upon my garden, that the ſpices thereof may flow forth. Cant. 4. 16. more ruſhing and mighty this wind of the Spirit is, the more will he make thee fructifie in his graces and bleſſings; therefore cry again and again, O Lord, Pſal. 51. 10. let thy Spirit come upon me: create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right ſpirit within me. O Lord Jeſus, ſend thy Spirit into me which may reſtore me from this death of ſin, unto the life of holineſs. Thus wouldſt thou ask, and continue asking, thus wouldſt thou cry, and continue crying, then could I aſſure thee of the promiſe (when the Lord comes in) which God hath made, and cannot deny, He that asketh receiveth; and, he that ſeeketh findeth, and to him that knocketh (by continuance and perſeverance) it ſhall Matth. 7. 8. be opened, Matth. 7. 8.

The ſecond wing, or hand, that bears and leads thee to theſe ſteps of the new birth, is, Conſtant hearing of the Word: thou muſt attend the gates of wiſdom, and wait on her poſts: thou muſt come to Gods houſe, and hearken to the miniſtery of the Word: no doubt, but if thou beeſt conſtant in this duty, God will ſtir up ſome good Samuel, God will uſe ſome of his Prieſts (conſecrated to that office) to beget thee again: Underſtand this ſoberly; for if Jeſus Chriſt himſelf ſhould preach to the ſoul every day, and give not out of himſelf, the ordinance would be empty to it: it is Chriſts coming into his people in the ordinances, that only fills the empty ſoul with good things. And yet Gods Miniſters are called Spiritual Fathers. I have begotten you (ſaith Paul) through the miniſtration 1 Cor. 4. 15. of the Goſpel, 1 Cor. 4. 15. The Paſtors tongue is the Lords conduit-pipe, and hereby he derives the ſweet and wholeſome waters of life into the ſouls of his choſen; only do thou frequent the means, and thou ſhalt ſee at one time or other God will remember thee in mercy: It is true, I know not when; and therefore I wiſh thee miſs no Lords day to repair to Gods houſe, leſt the day of thy neglect might have been the day of thy converſion; certain it is, no man ſhould expect Gods bleſſing without his ordinances, no eating of bread without plowing and ſowing, no recovering of health without eating and drinking, no poſting on land without ſomewhat ride on; no paſſage on ſeas, without ſomewhat to ſail in; ſo no bleſſing, no grace, no regeneration, no new birth at all, without waiting upon God in his ways, and in his ordinances. Now then, as thou deſireſt heaven or (the way to heaven) to be born again, I beſeech thee make high account of this ordinance of God, the preaching of his Word: In preaching of the Goſpel, light, motion, and power go out to all, which men reſiſt: and ſome are deſtroyed, not becauſe they could not believe, but becauſe they reſiſt, and will not obey, and ſo die, Acts 7. 51. Luke 13. 34. Ezek. 33. 11. Hoſ. 13. 9. and yet I wiſh thee not only to hear it, but after thou haſt heard, conſider of it, ponder on it; and lay the threats and reproofs, the precepts and promiſes, unto thine own ſoul: thus if thou heareſt and meditateſt, I doubt not but Gods Word will be a Word of power to thee, and (together with prayer) bring thee towards the new birth, whither except a man come, he cannot (poſſibly) ſee the Kingdom of God.

Gen. 28. 12. Thus far of the new birth: you ſee we have mounted thoſe ſteps, whoſe top (like Jacob's ladder) reacheth up to Heaven; witneſs the next word, he that is born again ſhall ſee the Kingdom of God; but he that is not born again, he cannot ſee the Kingdom of God.

He cannot ſee the Kingdom of God.

THe Privileges of the new birth are theſe two, to ſee] and to ſee the Kingdom of God.

Firſt to ſee] Which is all one (ſaith a Modern) as to enjoy: yet a man may ſee that which he doth not enjoy: but without regeneration there is no Aretius in loc. ſight, much leſs poſſeſſion of the kingdom of God.

To ſee then is the leſſer happineſs of which, the unregenerate are debarred; but to ſee, in it ſelf is a great and gracious privilege, to which the regenerate are admitted: for whether by Gods kingdom be meant the kingdom of grace, or the kingdom of glory, Happy are the eyes that ſee theſe things.

But whoſe eyes are they? if we examine the ungenerate, he ſees no whit into the awful Majeſty of God the Father: he ſees no whit of the beauty, mercy, and pity of his Saviour, he ſees no whit into that glorious highneſs of Gods Spirit in Heaven, nor yet of his nighneſs to his brethren on earth: Hence it is, that when he comes among the Congregation of Gods Saints, his ſoul is not delighted with their Prayers, Praiſes, Pſalms and Service; he ſees no comfort, no pleaſure, no content in their actions. But the new Man is of better ſight, the graces of the Spirit, and the wardrobe of Gods glory, are all produced to his eye, as if the Lord ſhould ſay, Come, and ſee: ſo Moſes, Stand ſtill, and ſee the ſalvation of God: So Chriſt to his Apoſtles, It is given to your Venite, & videte. eyes to ſee theſe things, to others, but by parable. He that is born again hath a ſpiritual eye, and a celeſtial object; Pſal. 46. 8. The eye of his underſtanding is enlightned (ſaith Paul) Exod. 14. 13. anointed (ſaith John) to what end? But that he may know what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance is in the Saints, Epheſ. 1. 18. See a privilege, of which the unre- Epheſ. 1. 18. generate is ever barred, his mind is dark, even darkneſs it ſelf, Epheſ. 5. 8. And therefore it is no won- Revel. 3. 18. der, what is ſaid by our Saviour, that he cannot ſee, Epheſ. 5. 8. cannot ſee] the kingdom of God.

The ſecond privilege is the Object of this ſight, here called the kingdom of God.] By which ſome underſtand Heaven, ſome the way to Heaven; moſt of the Ancients ſay, that by this Kingdom is meant Heaven: Calvin is of the mind, that not Heaven, but a Calvin in loc. ſpiritual life is thereby underſtood.. Aretius ſaith, (and Aretius I am of his mind) that whether we underſtand the in loc. Parum refert. one or the other, It matters not much: Sure we are, that both theſe (Grace and Glory) are annexed to the new birth, and both very well may be implyed in this word, the kingdom of God.]

Firſt then, if by the Kingdom of God is meant the kingdom of Grace, (whereof our Saviour ſpeaketh, the kingdom of God is within you, Luke 17. 21.) See Luke 17. 21. to what a privilege the new man hath attained; all the graces of God, all the fruits of the Spirit are now poured into him: If you ask what graces? What fruits? Paul tells you, Gal. 5. 22. Love, joy, Gal. 5. 22. peace, long-ſuffering, gentleneſs, goodneſs, faith, meekneſs, temperance; or would you have us to contract them? Paul doth it elſewhere, The Kingdom of God is,——— righteouſneſs, peace, and joy, in the holy Ghoſt, Rom. Rom. 14. 17. 14. 17.

Firſt, Righteouſneſs, and that is either Active or Paſſive; holineſs of life, or (the cauſe of this holineſs) our righteouſneſs in Chriſt: If the firſt be meant, no ſooner is man born again, but he enters into the holy path, he declines all evil, and ſtands at the ſwords point with his beloved ſin; or if ever any ſin (through the violence of temptation) ſieze on him again, he is preſently put again into the pangs of the new birth, and ſo renewing his ſorrow, and repairing repentance, he becomes more reſolute and watchful over all his ways: And as he abhors Rom. 12. 9. evil, ſo he cleaves to that which is good; his faith like the Sun, ſets all thoſe gracious heavenly ſtars on ſhining, as hope, and love, and zeal, and humility, and patience; in a word, univerſal obedience, and fruitfulneſs in all good works: Not one but all good duties of the firſt and ſecond Table, begin to be natural and familiar to him, and though he find ſome duties more difficult, yet he reſolveth, and ſtriveth to do what he can, and is much diſpleaſed and grieved, if he do not as he ſhould. Or if by righteouſneſs is meant paſſive righteouſneſs, to wit, our righteouſneſs in Chriſt, no ſooner is a man born again, but he is cloathed (1 Cor. 1. 30.) with this righteouſneſs; the other (God knows) is but weak and full of imperfection; and therefore to ſpeak properly, It is the righteouſneſs in God that makes us appear righteous before God: (Extra nos eſt juſtitia, non in nobis, Luther de inſtit. Chriſtiana.) would you have a plain caſe? as Jacob, to procure the bleſſing of his father hid himſelf, into the apparel of his brother, and ſo received it to his own commodity, under the perſon of another: thus the new man puts on the righteouſneſs of Chriſt, with which being clad as with a garment, God accepts him in his ſtead, his faults being covered with his Saviours perfection.

Secondly, from this Righteouſneſs ariſeth Peace: no ſooner is man righteous, but he is at peace with man, at peace with God, at peace with himſelf. He is at Iſa. 11. 6. peace with man; The Wolf ſhall dwell with the Lamb, and the Leopard with the Kid, ſaith the Prophet, Iſa. 11. 6. The meaning is, that in the kingdom of Chriſt, when a man is called into the ſtate of grace (howſoever by nature he is a Wolf, or a Leopard, or a Lion, or a Bear, yet) he ſhall then lay aſide his cruelty, and live peaceably with all men: with all men, I ſay, bad and good; for if bad, the Apoſtle Ro. 12.18. implies them, As much as in you is, have peace with all men, Rom. 12. 18. Or if good, then he cannot but have peace with them, yea, although before his converſion he hated and maligned them, yet now he is raviſhed with the delight and love of them, and to this end he labours might and main to ingratiate himſelf into their bleſſed Communion. True, how ſhould he but love them, and ſympathize with them, whom he believes one day to meet in Heaven, and there to enjoy them, and they him for ever? Nor is this all, he is at peace with God, he hath humbled himſelf and confeſs'd his fault, and cried for mercy, and caſt himſelf upon Chriſt, and vowed amendment of life; ſo that now God, by his Word, hath ſpoke peace to his ſoul, by the mediation of Chriſt it is obtained, and by the teſtimony of the Spirit he feels it within him. This is that Peace which paſſeth all underſtanding; it made the Angels ſing Peace upon earth; it makes his ſoul reply, My peace is in Heaven: What elſe? The ſtorm is paſt, and the rain is gone away, he that lay for a night in the darkneſs of ſorrow, and weeping for his ſins, now he beholds the Sun of righteouſneſs appear (as the Diſciples often did upon the Mount of Olives, ſignifying peace) all quiet, and calm, and pleaſant. Nor is this all, he is at peace with himſelf, I mean his own conſcience; that which before ſtirred up the fire, that brought him to a ſight of ſin, and ſenſe of Divine Wrath, that filled him with fearful terrors, compunction, remorſe, and true ſorrow, for ſin, it is now turned good and quiet. Solomon calls it a continual feaſt, Prov. 15. 15. (Prov. 15. 15.) Who are the attendants, but the holy Angels? What is the chear, but joy in the Holy Ghoſt? Who is the feaſt-maker, but God himſelf, and his good Spirit dwelling in him? Nor is this feaſt without Muſick; Gods Word, and his actions make a bleſſed harmony, and he endeavours to continue it by keeping peace, and a good conſcience towards God and man.

Thirdly, from this peace iſſueth joy in the holy Ghoſt; no ſooner is a man at peace with man, with God, with himſelf, but he is filled with joy that no man can take from him; this joy I take to be thoſe bleſſed ſtirrings of the heart, when the ſeal of remiſſion of ſins is firſt ſet unto the ſoul by the Spirit of Adoption. For thus it is, the ſoul having newly paſſed the pangs of the new birth, it is preſently bath'd in the blood of Chriſt, lull'd in the boſom of Gods mercies, ſecured by the Spirit of its inheritance above, and ſo ordinarily follows a Sea of comfort, a ſenſible taſte of everlaſting pleaſures, as if the man had already one foot in Heaven. But I hear ſome object, they have felt the pangs, caſt themſelves on Chriſt, reſolved againſt all ſin, and yet no comfort comes. It may be ſo, though not ordinarily; certain it is, whoſoever hath this joy is new born; yet not every one new born hath this joy; if any then be in ſuch caſe, let him hear what the Spirit of Truth ſaith, Since the beginning of the world men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eye ſeen, O God beſides thee, what he hath prepared for him that waiteth for him, Iſaiah 64. 4. (Iſa. 64. 4.) Waiting patiently (ſaith a Modern) for the Lords coming to comfort us either in temporal or ſpiritual diſtreſſes, is a right pleaſing and acceptable duty and Service unto God, which he is wont to crown with multiplied and overflowing refreſhings when he comes. To this end ſaith the Prophet, They that wait upon the Lord, ſhall renew their ſtrength, they ſhall mount up with wings as Eagles: They ſhall run and not be weary; and they ſhall walk and not faint, Iſa. 40. 31. (Iſa. 40.31.) Nay and ſhould a man die (ſaith my Author) in this ſtate of waiting, if his heart in the mean time ſincerely hate all ſin, heartily thirſt for the mercy of God in Chriſt, and reſolve truly upon new univerſal obedience for the time to come, he ſhall certainly be ſaved; becauſe the holy Ghoſt ſaith, Bleſſed are all they that wait for him. Iſa. 30. 18. Or if this will not ſatisfie his deſire, let his deſire quicken and ſet on work (with extraordinary fervency) the ſpirit of prayer, let him have recourſe again and again unto the promiſes of Scripture towards the poor, heavy-laden, penitent ſouls; and when the time is come (it will come) which God hath appointed, then ſhall he feel this joy unſpeakable, the joy of the holy Ghoſt; and this is the head, the height, the top, the higheſt ſtep in this Kingdom of grace, the kingdom of God.

Or ſecondly, if by the Kingdom of God is meant the kingdom of Glory, ſee then what a privilege waits on the new man; no ſooner ſhall his breath and body be divorced, but his ſoul mounted on the wings of Angels, ſhall ſtreight be carried above the ſtarry firmament, there ſhall it inherit the Kingdom, Luke 12. 32. and heavenly kingdom, Mat. 7. 21. the kingdom of God, Act. 14. 22. (Luke 12. 32. Mat. 7.21. Act.14.22.) and truly called ſo, for 'tis a kingdom of God's own making, beautifying, and bleſſing; a Kingdom beſeeming the glorious reſidence of the King of Kings; a Kingdom creating all Kings that but inhabit in it: But here my diſcourſe muſt give way to your meditations; I cannot ſpeak this privilege, therefore conclude with Auguſtine, (Auguſtine) Anima quæ amat, aſcendat frequenter, & currat per plateas cæleſtis Jeruſalem, &c. Mount your meditations on the wings of faith, and behold in Heaven thoſe ſtates of wonder, Patriarchs ſhining, Prophets praiſing, Saints admiring, hands clapping, harps warbling, hearts dancing; the exerciſe, a Song; the ditty Allelujah; the quiriſters, Saints; the conſorts, Angels, &c. In this fountain of pleaſure, let the new-born Chriſtian bathe his Soul; for his it is, and he it is only that ſhall ſee it, enjoy it; Except the man born again, no man ſhall ever ſee the Kingdom of God. (See more of this in my laſt things.)

Thus far of the privileges of the new birth: there waits on it the eye of faith, and righteouſneſs, and peace, and joy in the holy Ghoſt; in a word, the kingdom of grace, and the kingdom of glory.

Uſe. And now (beloved) ſay, what would you do to obtain theſe privileges? Should any hand reach you a Crown for the pains to take it? Should any but caſt at your feet a bag of gold, and you might make it your own for the ſtooping, would you not for ſo great a reward do ſo little a ſervice? And what is Gods ſervice but perfect freedom? The yoke is eaſie, the burden is light, but the reward is grace, glory, endleſs felicity. Beſtir then your ſelves, and if ever you mean to ſee the Kingdom of God, endeavour to run through this new birth, and to lead a better life than heretofore you have done. Only remember, ☞ Thus whilſt the Miniſter ſpeaks, Chriſt comes with power, and therefore he ſpeaks and perſwades. I conclude with my ſpeech to thee (whoſoever thou art) into whoſe hands this book is fallen: The truth is, the work is weak, and anſwerable in that kind to the Author of it: Many and many a ſtitch in my ſide, many a pull at my heart, many a gripe in my ſtomach (beſides the pangs of my ſoul, endeavouring to practiſe what I have writ) have I ſuffered and felt ſince I firſt begun it; and yet the comfort I have received my ſelf in this one neceſſary thing, hath made me (contrary to the deſires of my beſt friends) to run through this ſhort work, by taking a longer time, as my continual diſeaſe would now and then ſuffer me. If (when I am gone) thou reapeſt any ſpiritual good by this my ſurviving pains, it is, next to Gods glory, all my deſire; Yet I live, but to ſave thy Soul I care not how ſoon I might die, yea, on that condition I could be willing (if God ſo pleaſed) the lines that thou readeſt were writ with the warmeſt blood in my heart: Willing ſaid I? Yea I could be willing and glad (as little blood as I have in my body) to let it run and run, for thy ſpiritual good, to the very laſt drop in my veins. I ſay no more Conſider what I have ſaid, Except a man be born again, he cannot ſee the kingdom of God.

Matth. 11. 30.

AN APPENDIX,

Containing a more particular Method, For the Man not yet born again, to have his part in the ſecond Birth.

CHAP. I.

The ocaſion and method of this Treatiſe.

SOme there are, who hearing the new birth (or firſt repentance) to be ſo neceſſary to ſalvation, but never feeling in themſelves any ſuch change or converſions, have therefore deſired further helps; though naturally they are blind and wretched, and miſerable, and poor, and naked, yet the Lord hath not left them without means and helps: to this purpoſe he hath ſet up his Ordinances; not that man of himſelf can diſpoſe himſelf unto grace, but that the Spirit of Chriſt in the uſe of the ordinances (without any habitual or ſanctifying grace in mans heart) can diſpoſe of man to the reception of habitual or ſanctifying grace. True it is, I adviſed them in the former Treatiſe to be frequent in prayer, and hearing of the Word: But ſo we have done, ſay they, and yet we feel no converſion: it may be ſo, for not always the doing of them, but perſeverance in them through Chriſt obtains the bleſſing deſired. And yet if they will out of hand ſettle themſelves to the work, (ſeeing it is the Lord that ſaith, Break up the fallow ground, Jer. 4. 3. (i. e.) Seek to the Lord to break them for thee: Be in the uſe of the means, that the Lord may come in, in and break thy heart.) I ſhall, for their further ſatisfaction, give them a more particular Method, and without a Text taken, take my ſelf more liberty to put them in the way.

Jer. 4. 3.

Two things I ſuppoſe neceſſary for them that would have part in the new birth.

1. To get into it.
2. To be delivered of it.

1. The means to get into it, is
    1. Examination of themſelves.
    2. Confeſſion of their ſins.
    3. Hearty prayer for the ſoftening of their hearts.

By which three are obtained the three firſt ſteps,
- Sight of ſin.
- Senſe of divine wrath.
- Sorrow for ſin.

2. The means to be delivered of it, is by application of the promiſes; and theſe According to their ſeveral objects, produce their ſeveral effects;

Some
- A ſight of Chriſt.
- A deſire after Chriſt.
- A Relying on Chriſt.
- An obedience to Chriſt.
- A comfort in Chriſt, not only ſought for, but Obtained, if the promiſes be rightly applyed.

CHAP. II.

Sect. 1. The Firſt means to get into the new birth.

THe means to get into the new birth, is firſt Examination: and the way to examine, is to ſet before men that Chryſtal-glaſs of the Law for their light and rule: To this purpoſe I have here annexed a Catalogue, or Table, to ſhew them their offences; not I that can poſſibly enumerate all ſins, but only the kinds; and if herein I come ſhort, yet the conſciences awaked may be occaſioned hereby to bring into their thoughts thoſe others not mentioned.

Now then (whoſoever thou art that beginneſt this bleſſed work) examine thy ſelf by this Catalogue, but do it warily, and truly; and where thou findeſt thy ſelf guilty, either note it in this book, or tranſcribe it into ſome paper, that ſo they may be ready for thine eye when thou comeſt to Confeſſion.

Sect. 2. Sins againſt the firſt Commandment.

IN every Commandment we muſt obſerve both the duties required, and ſins forbidden, for both theſe are implied in every one of the Commandments; if in the firſt thou art guilty, thou muſt anſwer negatively; if in the ſecond, thou muſt anſwer affirmatively: now then to proceed.

It is the firſt commandment, Thou ſhalt have no other Gods but me.]

For the duties here required.

Say, firſt, haſt thou ever in mind, will, and affections, took the true God in Chriſt to be thy God? Secondly haſt thou abounded in thoſe graces by which thou ſhouldeſt cleave unto God, as in the warmth of knowledge, and love, and fear, and joy, and truſting in God? Thirdly, haſt thou obſerved Gods mercies, and promiſes, and works and judgments upon thee, and (by a particular application) took ſpecial notice thereof? Fourthly, haſt thou communicated with the godly, and joined thy ſelf to Gods people, and delighted chiefly in them?

Or for the ſins here forbidden.

Say, firſt, haſt thou not ſometimes been guilty of blaſphemy, or idolatry, or witchcraft, or Atheiſm, or Epicuriſm, or hereſie? Secondly, haſt thou not been guilty of pride, a ſin flatly oppoſing God, Pſal. 14. 1. and firſt committed by devils; Thirdly, haſt thou Iſai. 29. 15. not had inward reaſonings that there is no God, or that he ſeeth not, or knoweth not, or that there is no pro- Job 21. 14. fit in his ſervice? Jer. 17. 5. Fourthly haſt thou not failed to love God, and fear God, and to put thy whole truſt in God? Fifthly, haſt thou not truſted in man, or feared man, or loved the world, and thereby alienated thy heart from God? Sixthly, haſt thou not reſorted to witches, or in the firſt place to Phyſicians, and not to the living God; Seventhly, haſt thou not tempted God, and in the matters of God, been either cold or lukewarm, or prepoſterouſly zealous? Eighthly, haſt thou not a proneneſs to ſin, yea to rebel againſt God, in thy whole man? Ninthly, haſt thou not been careleſs to perform the inward duties of Gods worſhip in ſincerity and truth? If in theſe thou haſt tranſgreſſed, then haſt thou broken this Commandment, Thou ſhalt have no other Gods but me.

Sect. 3. Sins againſt the ſecond Commandment.

IT is the ſecond Commandment, Thou ſhalt not make to thy ſelf any graven Image.]

For the duties here required.

Say, firſt, haſt thou ever worſhipped the true God purely according to his will? Secondly, haſt thou obſerved all thoſe outward duties of his worſhip, as prayer, and vows, and faſting, and meditating, and the reſt? Thirdly, haſt thou repaired to Gods houſe, obſerved family-duties, received the Preachers of the Goſpel?

Or for the ſins here forbidden.

Jer. 9. 19. Say, firſt, haſt thou not ſometimes walked after the imaginations of thy own heart, ſerving God out of cuſtom, or (after the manner of thy fore-fathers) by will-worſhip and ſuperſtitions? Secondly, haſt thou not committed Idol-worſhip, conceiving of God in thy mind, or reſpecting him in thy ſenſe in the likeneſs Exod. 23. 13. of a creature? Thirdly, haſt thou not mentioned the names of other gods, either by way of ſwearing, or Iſai. 40. 18. apology? Fourthly, haſt thou not made an image to liken God to it, or uſed any geſture of love and reverence, Zac. 14. 17. to any ſuch images? Fifthly, haſt thou not Pſ. 14. 4. been careleſs to worſhip God, to call upon the Lord, to Matth. 10. 14. receive Gods Miniſters, or to perform any other of the outward duties of Gods worſhip? If in any of theſe thou haſt tranſgreſſed, then haſt thou broken this Commandment, Thou ſhalt not make to thy ſelf any graven image.

Sect. 4. Sins againſt the third Commandment.

IT is the third Commandment, Thou ſhalt not take the Name of the Lord thy God in vain.]

For the duties here required.

Say, firſt, haſt thou been ever a conſtant learner, hearer, and doer of God's Word and Will? Secondly, haſt thou prayed with perſeverance, underſtanding, and power of the Spirit, without doubting or wavering? Thirdly, haſt thou come preparedly to the Sacrament of the Lords Supper, and being come, haſt thou diſcerned the Lords body? Fourthly, haſt thou uſed all the titles, and properties, and works, and ordinances of the Lord with knowledge, faith, reverence, joy, and ſincerity?

Or for the ſins here forbidden.

Say, firſt, haſt thou not ſometimes, in thy talk diſhonoured the Titles, Attributes, Religion, Word, People of God, or any thing that hath in it the print of his holineſs? Secondly, haſt thou not ſworn or forſworn, or loved falſe oaths? Zach. 8. 17. Thirdly, haſt thou not cauſed the name of Religion, or people of God to be evil thought of by thy ill courſe of life or by committing ſome groſs ſin? Fourthly, haſt thou not raſhly, or unpreparedly, or heedleſly, read the Word, heard Sermons, received the Sacraments, or perfomed any other part of the worſhip of God? Fifthly, haſt thou not thought or ſpoken blaſphemouſly, or contemptuouſly of God, or of any thing whatſoever pertaining to God? If in any of theſe thou haſt tranſgreſſed, then haſt thou broken this Commandment, Thou ſhalt not take the Name of the Lord thy God in vain.

Sect. 5. Sins againſt the fourth Commandment.

IT is the fourth Commandment, Remember thou keep holy the Sabbath-day.]

For the duties here required.

Say, firſt, haſt thou (according to the equity of this Commandment) ever obſerved the Lords day, and other days and times ſet apart for Gods ſervice? Secondly, haſt thou on thoſe days reſted from the ſervile works of ſin, and reſted and relied upon Chriſt for the remiſſion of ſins, and led an holy and religious life, that ſo thou mayeſt enter into that reſt of Heb. 4. 11. heaven? Thirdly, haſt thou always prepared thy heart, before thou wenteſt into the houſe of the Lord, by meditation of Gods Word and Works, by examination and reformation of thy ways, by prayer, thankſgiving, and holy reſolution to carry thy ſelf as in gods preſence, and to hear and obey whatſoever thou ſhouldeſt learn out of the pure Word of God? Fourthly, haſt thou repared to Gods houſe in due time, and ſtayed the whole time of Prayer, reading, preaching of the Word, ſinging of Pſalms, receiving of the Sacraments? Fifthly, haſt thou performed private religious offices upon the Lord's day, to wit; in private prayer and thankſgiving, in acknowledging thy offences to God, in reconciling thy ſelf to thoſe thou haſt offended, or with whom thou art at variance, in viſiting the ſick, comforting the afflicted, contributing to the neceſſity of the poor, inſtructing thy children and ſervants (and the reſt of thy family) in the fear and nurture of the Lord.

Or for the ſins here forbidden.

Say, firſt, haſt thou not ſometime ſpent the Lords day in idleneſs, or in worldly buſineſs, in vanities, Ezek. 45. 10. or in ſin? Secondly, haſt thou not omitted publick duties, or cameſt in too late, or wenteſt out too ſoon?

Neh. 10. Thirdly, haſt thou not on thoſe days ſold wares, carried
31. and burthens, brought in ſheaves, or wrought in the harveſt?
13. 15. Fourthly, haſt thou not employed thy cattel, or ſervants, or children, or any other, though thou workedſt not thy ſelf? Fifthly, haſt thou not profaned the Lord's day, by needleſs works, words, or thoughts about thy calling, or about thy recreation? Sixthly, hath not the ſtrict obſervance of the duties of that day been tedious unto thee, ſaying in thine heart, Amos 8.5. When will the day be gone? If in any of theſe thou haſt tranſgreſſed, then haſt thou broken this Commandment,
Remember that thou keep holy the Sabbath-day.

Sect. 6. Sins againſt the fifth Commandment.

IT is the fifth Commandment, Honour thy Father and thy Mother.]

For the duties here required, they are either in Family.
Common-weal.
Church.

First, for the Family: Say, if thou art an huſband: 1. Haſt thou ever loved thy wife, and dealt Epheſ. 5. with her according to knowledge, giving honour to her as to
25. the weaker veſſel, and as being heirs together of the grace
1 Pet. 3. 7. of life, that your prayers were not hindred? If thou art
Eph. 5,22, a wife: 2. Haſt thou ſubmitted to thine own husband,
24. as unto the Lord in every thing? 3. Haſt thou put on 1 Pet. 3. 4. the ornament of a meek and quiet ſpirit, which is in the Epheſ. 6. 4. ſight of God of great price? If thou art a parent: 4.
Haſt thou brought up thy children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord? 5. Haſt thou corrected them, yet
1 Tim. 5. not provoked them by immoderate correction? 6. Haſt
8. thou provided for them in their callings, or outward Rom. 1. 30. eſtates? If thou art a child. 7. Haſt thou obeyed thy Heb. 12. 9. parents, and received correction with ſubmiſſion and reverence? 8. Haſt thou relieved them in their wants?
9. Haſt thou obſerved their inſtructions, and covered their Prov. 15. infirmities? If thou art a Maſter: 10. Haſt thou
15. entertained Gods ſervants, and given unto thy ſervant
Gen. 9. 22. that which is juſt and equal? If thou art a Servant:
Col. 4. 1. 11. Haſt thou been obedient to thy Maſter according to
Tit. 2. 9, the fleſh, with fear and trembling, in ſingleneſs of heart,
10. as unto Chriſt? Not anſwering again, not purloining, but ſhewing all good fidelity.

Secondly, for the Common-weal; if thou art a Magiſtrate: 12. Haſt thou executed juſt laws? 13. Haſt thou reformed others abuſes, according to the power that is in thee? If thou art a Subject: 14. Haſt thou obeyed the higher powers in all juſt commands?
Rom. 13. 1. 15. Haſt thou been ſubject unto them, not only for wrath, but alſo for conſcience ſake?

Thirdly, for the Church; If thou art a Miniſter:
Matth. 5. 16. Haſt thou taught in ſeaſon, and out of ſeaſon? 17.
16. Hath thy light ſhined before men, that they might ſee thy Gal. 6. 6. good works? If thou art an hearer. 18. Haſt thou communicated to them that teach thee in all good things?
Heb. 13. 19. Haſt thou obeyed them, and prayed for them, and 7, 17, 18. loved them, and followed them, conſidering the end of their converſation?

Or for the ſins here forbidden.

And firſt, for the Family: Say, if thou art an Prov. 21. huſband, 1. Haſt thou not ſometimes abuſed thy 19. wife, or ſmitten her, or injured her in thought, word, or deed? If thou art a wife, 2. Haſt thou not been waſtful, or froward, or idle? If thou art a parent,
3. Haſt thou not been careleſs, eſpecially of thy childrens Souls? If thou art a child, 4. Haſt thou not deſpiſed thy Fathers or Mothers inſtructions? 5.
Prov. 15. 5. Haſt thou not mocked them, or deſpiſed them, or curſed
Prov. 30. them, or ſmitten them, or ſhamed them, or grieved
17. and them? If thou art a maſter, 6. Haſt thou not governed
19. 26. thy family negligently? 7. Haſt thou not with-held that which is juſt and equal in diet, wages, encouragement? If thou art a ſervant, 8. Haſt thou not been idle, and ſlothful? 9. Haſt thou not ſerved grudgingly, and not from the heart?

Secondly, for the Common-weal? If thou art a Magiſtrate, 10. Haſt thou not been as a Lion, or Prov. 28.
a Bear, roaring and ranging over the poor people? 11. 15.
Haſt thou not decreed unrighteous decrees? reſpecting the Iſai. 10. 1.
perſons of the poor, or honouring the perſons of the mighty? Levit. 19.
If thou art a Subject, 12. Haſt thou not reviled the 15.
Gods, or curſed the Ruler of thy people? 13. Haſt thou Exod. 12.
28.
not diſobeyed the higher powers, or not denied tribute or Rom. 13. 1, cuſtom, or honour, or fear, to whom they are due? 7.

Thirdly, for the Church. If thou art a Miniſter, Jerem. 23.
14. Haſt thou not been prophane and wicked in 11.
thy life and converſation? 15. Haſt thou not run before 1 Tim. 4.
thou waſt ſent? or being ſent haſt thou not been negligent 14.
in the gift that is in thee? 16. Haſt thou not prophesied Jerem. 23.
in Baal, and cauſed Gods people to err? 17. Haſt 13.
thou not committed Simony, or ſought indirectly for the fleece, not regarding reſpectively the flock? 18.
Haſt thou not ſtrengthened the hands of evil doers, in preaching peace to wicked men? 19. Haſt thou not Jerem. 23.
given heed to fables (or to ſome unprofitable matter) 14.
rather than a godly edifying which is in faith? If thou 1 Tim. 1. 4.
art an Hearer, 20. Haſt thou not reſiſted the Miniſter, Gal. 6. 6. and the Word preached by him? Whatſoever Heb. 13. 7, thou art, Husband, or Wife, or Parent, or Child, 17, 18.
or Maſter, or Servant, or Magiſtrate, or Subject, or Miniſter, or Hearer, if in any of theſe thou haſt tranſgreſſed, then haſt thou broke this Commandment, Honour thy Father and thy Mother.

Sect. 7. Sins againſt the ſixth Commandment.

IT is the ſixth Commandment, Thou ſhalt do no murther.]

For the duties here required. Gen. 26.
14.

Say, Haſt thou ever deſired and ſtudied by all means lawful, to preſerve thine own perſon, and the perſon of thy neighbour?

Or for the ſins here forbidden.

Say, 1. Haſt thou not ſometimes envied others for Num. 11.
their wealth, or for their gifts, or for their reſpects 29.
with others? 2. Haſt thou not offended others in Gen. 37.
gestures, gnaſhing on them with thy teeth, or ſharpening 11.
thine eyes on them? 3. Haſt thou not offended others Job 16. 9.
in words, by cenſuring, or reviling, or rendring evil 1 Pet. 3. 9.
for evil, or railing for railing? 4. Haſt thou not offended Pſal. 37.
others in deeds, plotting againſt the Juſt, or 12.
doing evil to any man? 5. Haſt thou not been angry Matth. 5.

Sect. 8. Sins againſt the Seventh Commandment.

IT is the Seventh Commandment, Thou ſhall not commit Adultery.]

For the duties here required.

Say, Haſt thou ever kept thy ſelf pure in ſoul and body, both towards thy ſelf and others?

Or for the ſins here forbidden.

Say, Haſt thou not ſometimes been defiled with buggery, Sodomitry, inceſt, whoredom, adultery, Rom. 1.26. Polygamy, ſelf-pollution, or with changing the natural uſe into that which is againſt nature? 2. Haſt thou not offended in the occaſions of uncleanneſs, as in idleneſs, gluttony, drunkenneſs, wanton company, whoriſh attire, or perfumes? 3. Haſt thou not ſinned in thy ſenſes, or geſtures, or words, by Pov. 7.19, 17. filthy communication proceeding out of thy mouth? 4. Haſt Col. 3. 8. thou not harboured in thy heart burning luſts, Mat. 5.28. impure thoughts, inordinate affections? Col. 3. 5. 5. Haſt thou not behaved thy ſelf immodeſtly, unſoberly, or ſhameleſly abuſing thy body, or uſing ſome manner of dalliance and wantonneſs? If in any of theſe thou haſt tranſgreſſed, then haſt thou broken this Commandment, Thou ſhalt not commit adultery.

Sect. 9. Sins againſt the eighth Commandment.

IT is the eighth Commandment, Thou ſhalt not ſteal.]

For the duties here required.

Say, Haſt thou ever, by all good meanes, furthered the outward eſtate of thy ſelf and of thy neighbour?

Or for the ſins here forbidden.

Say, Firſt, haſt thou not ſometimes got thy living by an unlawful calling? Secondly, haſt thou not Deut. 25. 16. impoveriſht thy ſelf by idleneſs, luxurious or unneceſſary expences? Thirdly, haſt thou not withheld Malac. 3.8. from thy ſelf, or others, that which ſhould have been expended? Fourthly, haſt thou not gotten, or kept thy neighbours goods by falſehood or force, and made no reſtitution? Fifthly, haſt thou not ſtollen by uſury, or oppreſſion, or fraud in buying or ſelling? An abomination unto the Lord! Sixthly, haſt thou not robbed God of his tithes and offerings by ſacrilege or ſimony? Seventhly, haſt thou not ſome way or other impaired thy neighbours ſtate? If in any of theſe thou haſt tranſgreſſed, then haſt thou broken this Commandment, Thou ſhalt not ſteal.

Sect. 10. Sins againſt the ninth Commandment.

IT is the ninth Commandment, Thou ſhalt not bear falſe witneſs.]

For the duties here required.

Say, Haſt thou ever by all means ſought to maintain thy own and thy neighbours good name according to truth and a good conſcience.

Rev.22.15. Jer.20.10. Matth.7.3. Prov. 24. 24.

Or for the ſins here forbidden.

Say, Firſt, haſt thou not ſometimes loved (or made) a lye? Secondly, haſt thou not raiſed a falſe report, to the defaming of many? Thirdly, haſt thou not cenſured or judged others, yet never conſidered the beam that is in thine own eye? Fourthly, haſt thou not flattered thy ſelf and others, ſaying unto the wicked, Thou art righteous? Fifthly, haſt thou not condemned ſome without witneſs, or forborn to witneſs for others when thou knoweſt the truth? Sixthly, haſt thou not been uncharitably ſuſpicious or a deſpiſer of thy neighbour? Seventhly, haſt thou not told a lie, whether jeſtingly, or officiouſly, or perniciouſly? If in any of theſe thou haſt tranſgreſſed, then haſt thou broke this Commandment, Thou ſhalt not bear falſe witneſs.

Sect. 11. Sins againſt the laſt Commandment.

IT is the laſt Commandment, Thou ſhalt not covet.]

For the duties here required.

Say, Firſt, haſt thou ever been truly contented with thy own outward condition? Secondly, haſt Mat. 15. 19. thou rejoyced at others good, and loved thy neighbour as thy ſelf.

Or for the ſins here forbidden.

Say, Firſt, haſt thou not ſometimes conceived Mat. 19. 19. evil thoughts in thy heart? Secondly, haſt thou not delighted in the inward contemplations of evil? Thirdly, haſt thou not been full of diſcontent with thy own condition and ſtate? Fourthly, haſt thou not felt another law of thy members warring againſt the Rom.7.29. law of thy mind? Fifthly, haſt thou not coveted after ſomething or other that was thy neighbours, either with will, or by actual concupiſcence? If any of theſe thou haſt tranſgreſſed, then haſt thou broke this Commandment, Thou ſhalt not covet.

CHAP. III.

The ſecond means to get into the new birth.

AFter examination, (which may well ſerve thee for one days work or two) the next duty is Confeſſion. Now then take the Catalogue of thoſe Sins (or if thy awaked conſcience can tell thee of any other) which thou knoweſt thou haſt committed, and noted, either in this book, or in ſome other paper; and kneeling on thy knees, ſpread thy Catalogue before the Lord, I ſay, ſpread thy Catalogue before the Lord, as Hezekiah did his letter; 2 King.19 13. there read thou ſeriouſly, and particularly, ſaying, O Lord I confeſs I have committed this ſin, and the other ſin [as they are before thee in order] of all theſe ſins I am guilty, eſpecially of thoſe ſins wherein I delighted, my darlings, my minions, my boſom-ſins, [take notice of them, and confeſs them again] of all theſe ſins I am guilty; And now, O Lord, ſtanding (as it were) at the bar of thy tribunal, I arraign my ſelf, and accuſe my ſelf, and judge my ſelf worthy of the utmoſt of thy wrath and indignation; for one ſin thou caſtedſt Adam out of Paradiſe, for one ſin thou caſtedſt the Angels out of Heaven, for one ſin thou deſtroyedſt a world of men, and what then ſhall become of me, that have committed a world of ſins? ——[Here pauſe a while, and meditate on thy unworthineſs,] O that I ſhould be ſo fooliſh, ſo bruitiſh, ſo mad to commit theſe ſins, theſe manifold ſins! O that by theſe ſins I ſhould break ſo holy a law, provoke ſo good and great a Majeſty! What ſhall I do but Ezek. 30. 31. remembring my evil ways, even loath my ſelf in my own ſight (yea abhor my ſelf in duſt and aſhes) for my iniquities and my abominations? &c. —— For concluſion, thou mayeſt imitate the Publican, who not daring to lift up his eyes, ſmote his breaſt: So do thou, Luke 18. 13. and ſigh, and ſay with him, O God be merciful to me a ſinner.

CHAP. IV.

Sect. 1. The third means to get into the new birth.

AFter Confeſſion (which may well ſerve thee for another days work) the next duty thou muſt labour for, is to ſeek for true ſorrow and mourning for thy ſins: Seek thou muſt, and never leave ſeeking, till thou feel thy heart melt within thee. To this purpoſe read ſome Tracts of death, of judgement, of hell, of Chriſts paſſion of the joys of Heaven: Laſt of all (and I take it beſt of all) reſolve to ſet every day ſome time a part to beg it of the Lord: When Daniel ſet himſelf to pray, the Lord came in to him, Dan. 9. 3. When Peter had gone a-part to pray, and when Paul had prayed in the Temple, then the Lord came in to them, Acts 10. 6. and 22. 17. And why may not I bid thee pray, as well as Peter bid Simon Magus, yet being in the gall of bitterneſs, and bond of iniquity? Acts 8. 22, 23. Reſolve then, and at the time appointed fall down on thy knees ſpread thy Catalogue, confeſs, accuſe, judge, condemn thy ſelf again; which done, beg, beg of the Lord to give thee that ſoft heart he promiſed, * Ezek. 36. 26. A new heart will I give you, and a new ſpirit will I put within you, and I will take away the ſtony heart out of your fleſh, and I will give you an heart of fleſh. Say then to thy ſelf, Is this the Lords promiſe? O Lord perform it to my heart; take away my ſtony heart, and give me an heart of fleſh, a new heart, a new ſpirit, &c.—— [Here make thine own prayer be not careful of words, only let the words be the true voice of thy heart:] and the more to work ſoftning, thou mayeſt ſob, and ſigh, and beat thy breaſt, above all thou muſt pray, and call and cry with vehemency and fervency not to be uttered. When thou haſt done, if the Lord do not yet hear thee, pray again the next day, and the next day, yea put on this reſolution, that thou wilt never leave praying till the Lord hear thee in mercy, till he make thee to feel thy heart melt within thee, yea, (if it may be) till thou ſeeſt thy * tears trickling down thy cheeks, becauſe of thy offences. The Lord will (perhaps) hear thee at the firſt time, or at the ſecond time; or if he do not, be not diſcouraged, God hath his times; Moſes ſmote the Rock at Horeb twice before it would yield, Num. 20. 11. and at laſt it ſent out abundant ſtreams of living waters; God ſpeaketh once and twice, and man perceiveth not; happy he who relenteth at laſt: Give it not over, perſiſt thou, thy ſuit is juſt, and importunity will prevail; yea, I can ſay, Thy deſire to ſorrow being reſolute, it is a degree of Godly ſorrow it ſelf, and no doubt the Lord will encreaſe it, it thou begg'ſt hard a while.

Sect. 2. The firſt reaſon for this ſorrow.

THis muſt be done; Firſt, becauſe without pangs no birth: The pangs of a penitent man are as the pangs of a woman: Now as there can be no birth without pains of travail going before, ſo neither true repentance without ſome terrors of the law, and ſtraits of conſcience. Ye have not received the ſpirit of bondage again to fear, ſaith the Apoſtle to the Romans; and what is that? But to ſhew us, they once did receive it; when? But in the very firſt preparation to converſion: Then it was that the Spirit of God in the law did ſo bear witneſs unto them of their bondage, that it made them to fear. And certainly thus it is with every man in his firſt converſion, his contrition muſt be compungent, and vehement, bruiſing, breaking, renting the heart, and feeling the throws (as a woman labouring of child) before there can be a new birth, or the new creature be brought forth.

Rom. 8. 15.

Sect. 3. The ſecond reaſon for this ſorrow.

AGain, without contrition no Chriſt; therefore it was that God firſt opened the eyes of our firſt parents, to make them ſee, and be ſenſible of their ſin and miſery, Gen. 3. 7. before he promiſed Chriſt, verſ. 15. Therefore it was that John Baptiſt (ſaith Chryſoſtom) firſt throughly frighted the minds of his hearers with the terror of judgment, and expectation of torment, and with the name of an axe, and their rejection, and entertainment of other children, and by doubling the puniſhment, to wit, of being hewn down, and caſt into the fire; and when he had thus every way tamed, and taken down their ſtubbornneſs, then at length he makes mention of Chriſt Why, then is Chriſt ſeaſonably revealed (ſaith Muſculus) when the hearts of men being ſoundly pierced by preaching repentance, as poſſeſſed with a deſire of his gracious righteouſneſs. Or if you will, hear Clavin To whom is Chriſt promiſed, but to them alone who are humbled and confounded with the ſenſe of their own ſins? Certainly, the firſt thing that draws to Chriſt, is to conſider our miſerable eſtate without him; No man will come to Chriſt except he be hungry; no man will take Chriſts, yoke upon him, till he come to know and feel the weight of Satans yoke; to this end therefore muſt every man be broken with threats and ſcourges, and laſhes of conſcience, that ſo deſpairing of himſelf he may flie unto Chriſt.

Chryſoſt. in c. 3. Matth. hom. 11.
Muſcul. in Mat. c. 3. Sect. Tunc accedit Jeſus. Calvin. in Iſai. 61.

Sect. 4. The third reaſon for this Sorrow.

AGain, without hearty ſorrow, no Spritual comfort. We muſt firſt be humbled before the Lord, and then he will lift us up. Chriſt indeed was anointed to preach good tidings, but to whom? To the poor, to the broken-hearted, to the captives, to them that are bound, to the bruiſed, Eſay 61. 11. God pours not the oil of his mercy ſave into a broken veſſel; God never comforts throughly, ſave where he finds humiliation and repentance for ſin. The Word of God (ſaith one) hath three degrees of operation in the hearts of his choſen: Firſt, it falleth to mens ears as the ſound, of many waters, a mighty, great, and confuſed ſound, and which commonly bringeth neither terror nor joy, but yet a wondring and acknowledgment of a ſtrange force and more than humane power; this is that which many felt, hearing Chriſt, when they were aſtoniſhed at his doctrine, as teaching with authority, what manner of doctrine is this? Never man ſpake like this man. The next effect is the voice of thunder, which bringeth not only wonder, but fear alſo; not only filleth the ears with ſound, and the heart with aſtoniſhment, but moreover ſhaketh and terrifieth the conſcience. The third effect is the ſound of harping, while the Word not only raviſheth with admiration, and ſtriketh the Conſcience with terror, but alſo laſtly, filleth it with ſweet peace and joy. Now albeit the two firſt degrees may be without the laſt, yet none feel the laſt, who have not in ſome degree felt both the firſt. He ſaith true, in ſome degree, though commonly the deeper is the ſenſe of miſery, the ſweeter is the ſenſe of mercy. In our dead ſecurity before converſion (ſaith another) God is fain to let the law, ſin, conſcience, Satan, a deep ſenſe of our abominable and curſed ſtate looſe upon us and to kindle the very fire of hell in our ſouls, that ſo we might be rouzed, and afterward more ſweetly and ſoundly raiſed and refreſhed; for after the moſt toilſome labour is the ſweeteſt ſleep, after the greateſt tempeſt the ſtilleſt calms; ſanctified troubles and terrors eſtabliſh the ſureſt peace, and the ſhaking of theſe winds makes the trees of Gods Eden take the better rooting. Spiritually there is never a perfect calm but after a tempeſt; the wind, and earthquake, and fire make way for the ſoft voice.

CHAP. V. Sect. 1.

The means to be delivered out of the pangs of the New Birth.

ANd now if (by God's bleſſing) thou feeleſt this ſorrow and melting of heart, the next thing thou muſt do, is to ſeek for the remedy, which remedy, conſiſts of theſe ingredients: Firſt, A ſight of Chriſt. Secondly, A deſire after Chriſt. Thirdly, A relying on Chriſt. Fourthly, An obedience to Chriſt. Fifthly,

*The promiſes of Jeremy. 31. 33. Heb. 8. 10. Hoſe. 2. 23. Hoſ. 14. 4. Iſa. 65. 4. are abſolute promiſes which are made not only to them that be for the preſent his people, but to them that for the preſent are not. which 1. Raiſeth up the Soul of an helpleſs ſinner to ſome hope (at leaſt) of mercy and help from the Lord. And 2. They ſerve to create, and draw out faith in Jeſus Chriſt in the promiſes; it is obſerved, that no conditional promiſe firſtly begets faith; for he that is under a condition, is preſuppoſed to have faith; in the firſt place therefore look on the abſolute promiſes, Ezek. 36. 39.

* Ut hoc modo confringas capita draconum tuorum in aquis.

ly, A comfort in Chriſt ſought for and obtained. Thou wilt ſay, Theſe ingredients are pearls indeed, but how ſhould I obtain them? I anſwer, By application of the promiſes; and ſith every ingredient hath its particular promiſes, I ſhall let thee ſee them in order, only do thou apply them thy ſelf; it is enough for the Phyſician to prepare the medicine, thy own body muſt receive it; ſo in this medicine it is, thou muſt apply it if thou wilt have ſouls health. —— Some may object, I dare not look to the promiſe, I cannot believe; if I could believe, then I could expect good from the promiſe. —— I anſwer, Thou ſhalt never believe upon theſe terms, thou muſt not firſt have faith, then go to the promiſe, but thou muſt firſt go to the promiſe and from thence receive power to believe: The dead (ſaith Chriſt) ſhall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear it ſhall live, Joh. 5. 25. it is ſpoken of the dead in ſin; firſt, there is the voice of Chriſt to the ſoul, before there can be again an echo of the ſoul to Chriſt; the Lord ſaith, Come, ſoul, and the ſoul ſaith, I come Lord: O then, go to the promiſe, and expect faith from thence; this is the rule, I muſt not bring faith to the promiſe, but to receive faith from it, and therefore there will I hang, and wait till the Lord pleaſe to work it.

Sect. 2. The promiſes procuring a ſight of Chriſt.

THe Firſt ſtep, or ingredient that brings comfort to thy heavy ſoul, is the ſight of Chriſt: And to procure this ſight, thou haſt theſe promiſes.

Matth. 1. 21. Thou ſhalt call his Name Jeſus, for he ſhall ſave his people from their ſins.

Luke 2. 10, 11. Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, that ſhall be to all people, that is, that unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Chriſt the Lord.

John 1. 29. Behold, the Lamb of God which taketh away the ſins of the world.

John 3. 16. God ſo loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, to the end that all that believe in him ſhould not periſh, but have life everlaſting.

John 3. 17. God ſent not his Son into the world, that he ſhould condemn the world, but that the world through him might be ſaved.

Rom. 3. 25. God hath ſet forth Chriſt Jeſus to be a reconciliation through faith in his blood.

1 Cor. 1. 30. Chriſt Jeſus of God is made unto us wiſdom, and righteouſneſs, and ſanctification, and redemption.

1 Tim. 1. 15. This is a true ſaying, and by all means worthy to be received, that Chriſt Jeſus came into the world to ſave ſinners.

Heb. 13. 12. Jeſus, that he might ſanctifie the people with his own blood, ſuffered without the gate.

1 John 2. 1, 2. If any ſin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jeſus Chriſt the righteous, and he is the propitiation for our ſins, and not for us only, but alſo for the ſins of the whole world.

Rev. 5. 8. Thou waſt killed, and haſt redeemed us to God by thy blood, out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation.

All theſe tell thee, that as thou art a ſinner, ſo thou haſt a Saviour; only do thou apply them, and certainly they will help thee in the firſt ſtep, the firſt ingredient of this remedy to thy miſery, to wit, the ſight of Chriſt.

Sect. 3. The promiſes procuring a deſire after Chriſt.

THou mayeſt ſay, I ſee Chriſt, and I ſee that his perſon, and death, and blood-ſhed are precious and ſaving; but how may I make him mine? How may I know that he is my Saviour? I anſwer, Thou muſt hunger and thirſt after him; this deſire is the ſecond ſtep: And to provoke thee to this duty, conſider of theſe promiſes.

Eſay 55. 1. Ho, every one that thirſteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money, come ye, buy and eat; yea come, buy wine and milk without money, and without price.

Mat. 5. 6. Bleſſed are they which hunger and thirſt after righteouſneſs, for they ſhall be filled.

John 7. 37. 38. In the laſt day, that great day of the feaſt, Jeſus ſtood and cryed, ſaying, If any man thirſt, let him come unto me and drink; he that believeth on me, as the Scripture hath ſaid, out of his belly ſhall flow rivers of living water.

Rev. 21. 6. I will give to him that is athirſt, of the water of life freely.

Rev. 22. 17. Let him that is athirſt come, and whoſoever will, let him take the water of life freely.

Pſal. 63. 1. O God thou art my God, early will I ſeek thee: My Soul thirſteth for thee, my fleſh longeth greatly after thee, in a barren and dry land without water.

Pſal. 145. 19. He will fulfill the deſire of them that fear him.

All theſe may provoke thee to thirſt after Chriſt, that moſt ſovereign, and ſoul ſaving fountain, opened to the houſe of David, and to the inhabitants of Jeruſalem for ſin, and for uncleanneſs, Zach. 13. 1.

Sect. 4. The promiſes procuring a relying on Chriſt.

YEt thou mayeſt ſay, I thirſt indeed, but I dare not drink; I deſire, but I dare not come near, to lay hold on Chriſt: How ſo? I am (ſayeſt thou) a moſt vile unworthy, wicked wretch, and my ſins are of a ſcarlet, crimſon die: True it is, for thee to pretend part in Chriſt, wallowing yet in thy ſins; for thee to believe that Chriſt is thy righteouſneſs, purpoſing yet to go on in the practice, or allowance of any one known ſin, it were a moſt curſed horrible preſumption indeed; but where all ſin is a burthen, every promiſe as a world of gold, and the heart ſincere for a new way, there a man may be bold: A man may? Yes, he muſt; if thou groaneſt under ſin, if thou longeſt after Chriſt, apply theſe promiſes, and they will force thee to lay hold upon the Rock, to take Chriſt for thine own, to throw thy ſinful ſoul upon the bleeding wounds of Jeſus, and to caſt thy ſelf with confidence into the boſom of his love.

Firſt then, Take notice (ſaith a Modern) that Jeſus Chriſt keeps open houſe for all hungry and thirſty ſouls.

Rev. 22. 17. Let him that is a thirſt come, and whoſoever will, let him take the water of life free. Or if open houſe will not fit without invitation, hear him call: ——

Matth. 11. 28. Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you reſt. Or if invitation will not fit without proclamation, hear him proclaim: ——

John 7. 37. Jeſus ſtood and cried, ſaying, If any man thirſt, let him come unto me and drink: He that believeth on me, out of his belly ſhall flow rivers of water. Or leſt thou ſhouldeſt think thou muſt come to thy coſt, and bring ſomewhat in thy hand, hear how he doubles and trebles his cry to the contrary: ——

Iſai. 55. 1. Ho, every one that thirſteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money, come ye, buy and eat, yea come, buy wine and milk without money, and without price. And yet leſt thou ſay, I am ſo far from bringing any thing in my hand, that I bring a world of wickedneſs in my heart, and my ſins I fear will hinder my acceptation; No, (ſaith he again;)

Iſai. 55. 7. Let the wicked forſake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, (and this is thy deſire, thy caſe) and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him, and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon. Or if all this will not do without a more ſolemn invitation, ſee then how the Lord of Heaven ſends forth his Ambaſſadors to move thee, and entreat thee to come in: ———

2 Cor. 5. 20. Now then we are Ambaſſadors for Chriſt, as though God did beſeech you by us, we pray you in Chriſts ſtead be ye reconciled unto God. Or if he cannot woo thee, lo, he commands thee: ———

1 John 3. 23. And this is the Commandment, that we ſhould believe on the Name of his Son Jeſus Chriſt, Or yet to drive thee to Chriſt, he not only commands, but threatens: ———

Heb. 3. 18. And to whom ſware he that they ſhould not enter into his reſt, but to them that believed not.

And what can he do more unto his Vineyard? Firſt, (to bid thee welcome) he keeps open houſe. Secondly, he invites. Thirdly, he proclaims. Fourthly, he calls thee ſans-fee, without money, or money-worth. Fifthly, he apologizeth. Sixthly he ſendeth. Seventhly, he commandeth. Eighthly, he threatneth. Hear what mine Author concludes from theſe promiſſes; How cruel then is that man to his own wounded conſcience, who in his extream ſpiritual thirſt will not be drawn by this eighth-fold merciful cord, to drink his fill of the fountain of the water of life, to caſt himſelf with confidence and comfort into the arms of the Lord Jeſus? ——— Yea, how is it poſſible, but that all, or ſome of theſe, ſhould bring in every broken heart to believe, and every one that is weary of his ſins, to relie upon the Lord of life for everlaſting welfare?

Sect. 5. The promiſes procuring obedience to Chriſt.

AND yet thou maſteſt ſay, I have caſt my ſelf on Chriſt, is this all I muſt do? No, there is yet another ſtep; he is not only to be thy Saviour, but thy husband; thou muſt love him, and ſerve him, and honour him, and obey him; thou muſt endeavour not only for pardon of ſin, and ſalvation from hell, but for purity, new obedience, ability to do or ſuffer any thing for Chriſt. And to provoke thee to this duty, conſider of theſe texts.

Jer. 31. 33. But this ſhall be the Covenant that I will make with the houſe of Iſrael: After thoſe days, ſaith the Lord, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts, and I will be their God, and they ſhall be my people. See the ſame promiſe in Heb. 8. 10. Heb. 10. 10.

Matth. 7. 21. Not every one that ſaith, Lord, Lord, ſhall enter into the Kingdom of Heaven, but he that doth the will of my Father which is in heaven.

Matth. 11. 29. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye ſhall find reſt unto your Souls.

Matth. 16. 24. If any man will follow me, let him take up his croſs and follow me.

2 Cor. 5. 15. He died for all, that they which live, ſhould not henceforth live unto themſelves, but unto him which died for them.

2 Cor. 5. 17. If any man be in Chriſt let him be a new creature: Old things are paſſed away; behold, all things are become new.

1 John 1. 6. 7. If we ſay we have fellowſhip with him, and walk in darkneſs, we lie, and do not the truth. But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowſhip one with another: And the Blood of Jeſus Chriſt, his Son cleanſeth us from all ſin.

1 John 2. 5. 6. He that keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected: Hereby know we that we are in him. He that ſaith, he abideth in him, ought himſelf alſo to walk, even as he walked.

1 John 3. 6. 9. Whoſoever abideth in him ſinneth not.———Whoſoever is born of God, doth not commit ſin for his ſeed remaineth in him, and he cannot ſin becauſe he is born of God.

1 John 4. 24. He that keepeth his Commandments, dwelleth in him: And hereby we know that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us.

1 John 5. 18. We know that whoſoever is born of God, ſinneth not: And he that is begotten of God, keepeth himſelf, and that wicked one toucheth him not.

All theſe may invite thee to enter into the holy path, and to fight under Chriſt's banner againſt the world, the fleſh, and the Devil, unto thy lives end.

Sect. 6. The promiſes procuring comfort in Chriſt.

ONce more thou mayeſt ſay, I have been truly humbled with the ſenſe of ſin, and ſenſe of miſery, and ſorrow for ſin; yea, I have ſeen, and thirſted, and relied, and purpoſed univerſal obedience to my Saviour, and yet no comfort comes: It may be ſo; but haſt thou praiſed God for this work of wonder, the new birth wrought in thee? If ſo, then is there another duty expected from thee, right precious and pleaſing unto God, and that is waiting: Yet I could wiſh thee to addreſs thy ſelf to theſe precious promiſes: Settle thy ſoul on them with fixed meditation and fervent prayer, and where thou perceiveſt the condition of the promiſes to be by Gods grace formed in thee, thou mayeſt ſafely aſſure thy ſelf of ſo much favour as is expreſly contained in the promiſes.

Levit. 26. 40, 41, 42, 44. If they ſhall confeſs their iniquity, ——— If their uncircumciſed hearts be humbled, ——— Then will I remember my Covenant, —— that I might be their God, I am the Lord: The condition is to confeſs and be humbled; and this if thou doſt, the Covenant is ſure, the Lord is thy God.

Job 33. 27, 28. If any ſay, I have ſinned, and perverted that which is right, and it profited me not: He will deliver his Soul from going into the pit, and his life ſhall ſee the light. The condition is, If any ſay, I have ſinned, if thy heart ſay thus in ſincerity and truth, the promiſe is ſure, God will deliver thy Soul from hell, and thou ſhalt ſee the light of heaven.

Pſal. 51. 17. A broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not deſpiſe. The condition is a broken and contrite heart for ſin, and if thy heart, be thus, be ſure God will not deſpiſe it.

Prov. 28. 13. Whoſoever confeſſeth and forſaketh his ſin, ſhall have mercy. The condition is, to confeſs and forſake ſin, And this if thou doeſt, as ſure as God is God, thou ſhalt have mercy.

Iſa. 57. 71. I dwell in the high and holy place, with him alſo that is of a contrite and humble Spirit, to revive the ſpirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones. The condition is, to be of a contrite and humble ſpirit; and if thou art thus, God is true who hath ſaid it, he dwells in thee to revive thy ſpirit, and to revive thy heart.

Iſa. 61. 1. The Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek: He hath ſent me to bind up the broken-hearted. The condition is, to be meek and broken-hearted: and if this be thy caſe, then good tidings belong to thee, and Chriſt is ſent to bind up thy broken heart in the bundle of peace.

Jerem, 31. 19, 20. Surely, after that I was turned, I repented (ſaith Ephraim) and after that I was inſtructed, I ſmote upon my thigh, I was aſhamed; yea, even confounded, becauſe I did bear the reproach of my youth.—Therefore (ſaith God) my bowels are troubled for him, I will ſurely have mercy upon him ſaith the Lord. The condition is to repent, to be aſhamed, confounded for ſin, and if thy caſe be like Ephraims, God is the ſame to thee, his bowels yearn for thee, he will ſurely have mercy on thee.

Matth. 5. 6. Bleſſed are they which hunger and thirſt after righteouſneſs. The condition is, to hunger and thirſt after the righteouſneſs of Chriſt; and this if thou doeſt, then art thou bleſſed from the mouth of our Saviour.

Matth. 11. 28. Come unto me all ye that labour, and are heavy-laden, and I will give you reſt. The condition is, to come to Chriſt, and if this thou wilt, Gods Word is ſure, thou ſhalt have reſt ſpiritual and eternal.

Rev. 21. 6. I will give unto him that is athirſt, of the water of life freely. The conditon is, to thirſt after the Heavenly ſtreams of Gods favour, and Chriſts ſovereign Blood; and this if thou doeſt, then haſt thou part in the fountain of the Water of Life, that proceeds out of the Throne of God, and of the Lamb, Rev. 22. 1.

All theſe are ſo full of comfort, that if thou but cruſh them with the hand of faith, they cannot but yield ſome juyce of ſweetneſs to thy afflicted Soul. —— O alas! (ſay ſome) I have done what I may, and yet no comfort comes: Sweet Soul, be not diſcouraged, but be the more humbled; in this caſe thou muſt fall down with Mary, and lye ſtill waſhing the feet of Chriſt with thy tears; and then look up again, view again and again theſe promiſes of Chriſt, it may be he will even now, or before long take thee up in his arms, and kiſs thee with the kiſſes of his mouth.

Sect. 7. The means to apply the ſaid promiſes.

I Said before, it was enough for me to prepare the medicine, it is thou muſt apply it; yet if thou feeleſt a back-wardneſs to perform thy part, I ſhall tell thee of ſome means to incite thee, and help thee onward to the performance of this duty.

Take then the promiſes, and carry them (as thou didſt the Catalogue of thy ſins) into the preſence of the Lord; and, faln down on thy knees, beſeech God for thy Saviour's ſake to encline thine heart to believe thoſe promiſes. If thou haſt the repulſe, pray again and again, yea, reſolve never to make prayer, but to uſe this petition, that the Lord would pleaſe to let thee have ſome feeling of the life of thoſe promiſes. Some ſoul may object, I have no heart or ſpirit to pray: Yet uſe thy endeavour, and in thy endeavours God may come in; and whenſoever thou feeleſt any of them to be ſpirit and life to thee, whenſoever thou feeleſt (by a certain taſte) the joys of the Holy Ghoſt to fall upon thee; O happy man that ever thou waſt born! Then art thou (to thy own knowledge) new born indeed: Then haſt thou Matth. 5. 4. (without doubt done this moſt glorious exerciſe of paſſing through the new birth, and then haſt thou cauſe (as thou canſt not chuſe) to ſing and praiſe God day and night world without end: So true is that of Chriſt, Bleſſed are they that mourn for they ſhall be comforted. Amen.

Sect. 8. The Concluſion.

HEre is an end, and to you to whom I have dedicated this work, my Concluſion is this: The year hath now run his round ſince I firſt came amongſt you, and how the Lord hath wrought by me, you your ſelves know beſt: For my part, if I did but know one poor Soul amongſt you truly converted by ſuch a weak unworthy inſtrument, I would ever think my ſelf moſt happy in that ſoul, and richly payed for my pains. I know it, neither Paul nor Apollo can do this except God give the increaſe: Howſoever, I muſt tell you, with Paul, my deſires have been this way: I have ſince my coming travailled of you, and travailled again, that Chriſt might be formed in you. And what's the iſſue? Once Gal. 4. 19.
could the Lord ſay, Shall I bring to the birth, and not Iſa. 66 9.
cauſe to bring forth? And (to joyn iſſue with you) have I travailled of you in birth, and not one of you brought forth? The Lord forbid. I confeſs (beloved) I have received from you many kindneſſes of love; now, for the Lord's ſake do me this one kindneſs more; give me at leaſt one Soul among you, that I may give it unto God; O what a kindneſs would you then do me! Not all the wealth in your Town, nor all the increaſe of your ſtate, nor all you have, or ever ſhall have, would do me ſo much good in the day of my Lord Jeſus, as this one boon I ask: Then could I ſay, Lord, I have not loſt the fruits of my labour in this Town, ſee here the Soul now ſhining in glory which I converted by thy power; ſee here the Soul of ſuch a one, and ſuch a one which through thy grace and my miniſtery were converted unto thee. If this were thus, why then (beloved) you would bleſs me for ever, and I ſhould bleſs you for ever, and we ſhould all bleſs God for ever, for this ſo gracious and ſo bleſſed a work. Now the Lord of his goodneſs give you a ſight of your ſins, and a true ſorrow for ſin; and if not afore now, yet now, this day, the Lord this day ſet his print, and ſeal upon you.

The time draws on, and I have but a minute, a little time to ſpeak to you; for a farewell then, let theſe laſt words take a deeper impreſſion in your hearts: If you would do all I would have you do, I could wiſh no more, but that to this humiliation or repentance, you would add charity or love: The firſt you owe to God, and the ſecond to your neighbour: By the firſt you might become new creatures, by the ſecond true Chriſtians, like them in the Churches infancy, of one mind, one heart, and one Soul; ſure it is not poſſible that we ſhould have forgiveneſs of ſins; but that we muſt be of the communion of Saints. A thouſand pities it is to hear of the many factions in our Church, and Kingdoms, and Towns, and Families; O pray for the peace of Jeruſalem, they ſhall proſper that love it; and let us pray (as need we have too) for our own peace one with another: You cannot come to a Communion, but you hear this leſſon in the invitation, You that do truly, and earneſtly repent you of your ſins, and be in love and charity with your neigh- Judg. 5. 15.
bours, &c. Here's both repentance to God, and Cha- 2 Cor. 13.
rity (nay more than charity, as we uſe the word 11. commonly) even love of your neighbours. For my part, I wiſh that my very heart-blood could cement the deviſions of Reuben (for which are great thoughts of heart) in this Town, in this Church, in theſe Kingdoms. I will ſay no more, but conclude with thoſe words of the Apoſtle, Finally, brethren, fare ye well: Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace, and the God of love and peace be with you for ever and ever.

THE DOCTRINE AND DIRECTIONS;

But more eſpecially,

The PRACTICE and BEHAVIOUR of a Man in the act of the NEW BIRTH:

A TREATISE

By way of

APPENDIX.

The occaſion of this Treatiſe.

HItherto I have given the Doctrine and application of the ſoul-ſaving New-Birth; but ſome there are whoſe hearts are ſo ſteelly, that all this cannot work upon them: If any ſuch deſire yet any more (and deſire they muſt, or there is no remedy for them) I have for their help in the practice, brought a Practitioner afore them. It was Cæſar's great praiſe, that he bade his Souldiers ſtill, Come; and if men had but many Cæſars or Leaders in theſe practical points, I ſuppoſe there would be more followers. A plain Doctrine may win ſome, and a particular Direction may win more, but a good Example wins moſt. Howſoever then, concerning the new-Birth, I have delivered the Doctrine in the Sermons and Directions in the Appendix; yet one thing is wanting, which may help more than either, to wit, the Practice of ſome Saint in this one neceſſary thing: And what Saint? what man that hath writ more on this ſubject, than T. Hooker? It was ſaid, of bleſſed M. Bolton, That for himſelf, he could profeſs to his comfort on his Deaths-bed, That he never taught any godly point, but he firſt wrought it on his own heart; the ſame, do I more than probably think, was the practice of this man. Now therefore I thought fit, not only to contract his Books in this Appendix (which ſome without his privity have unskilfully put out) but alſo, and that more eſpecially to ſet afore you (whoſoever you are) thoſe prime, powerful, pathetical expreſſions of his Soul-pangs in the New-Birth as matter for your imitation. Theſe expreſſions indeed are they I moſt eſpecially aim at, which if you obſerve, are always delivered in the firſt perſon (I,) and I verily believe they were not feigned, but feeling from his own heart and ſoul. What needs more? if either Doctrine in the firſt part, or Direction in the ſecond part, or Practice in the third part of the Book (which conſiſts moſt of Practice) can work on your ſouls, I hope ſome of theſe, or all of theſe, will help you on in the way from Corruption to Chriſtianity, and from the ſtate of Nature into the Kingdom of Grace.

CHAP. I.

The Souls Preparation.

BEfore the ſoul can ſhare in Chriſts Merits (*to ſpeak in the * Authors ſtile or language, without any alteration*) two things are required.

1. A preparation to receive and entertain Chriſt.
2. An implantation of the Soul unto Chriſt.

That there muſt be a Preparation, is the firſt ground we lay; and herein obſerve we,

The Matter / Manner / Means of this Preparation.

* M. T. Hooker in his ſeveral treatiſes of the Souls preparation, humiliation, vocation, union & communion with Chriſt.

1. For Matter: The Soul of a ſinner muſt be prepared for Chriſt, before he can entertain him. When Kings go to any place, they ſend (to make readineſs) their Harbengers afore them; if Chriſt (the King of Saints) come into a ſoul, there muſt be a Preparation before he enter: And good Reaſon, he is not a meer man, an ordinary perſon, but a King, a King of Glory. David in this caſe could call upon his Soul, (ſo we may expound his Gates and Doors) Lift up your heads, O ye gates, and be ye lift up ye everlaſting Doors, and the King of Glory ſhall come in; as who ſhould ſay, be enlarged, Love, Joy, Hope; ſet open, give way, for the Lord is coming: But who is the Lord? It is the Lord of Hoſts, the Lord ſtrong and mighty, the Lord mighty in Battle: And with that he knocks again, Lift up your heads, O ye gates, and be ye lift up ye everlaſting Doors, and the King of Glory ſhall come in; as if he ſhould ſay, What, ſhall the Lord knock? Shall the King of Glory ſtand? Open ſuddenly, and make all preparation. Pſal. 24. 7.

2. The Manner of this Preparation conſiſts in theſe three paſſages: Firſt, the ſoul breaks that league which formerly it hath had with Corruptions, and reſerves it ſelf for Chriſt: And ſecondly, the Soul is moſt willing to give way to Chriſt Jeſus, and to let him overthrow whatſoever ſhall oppoſe him: Thirdly, the Soul is content that God ſhould rule all, not only the eye, or hand, or tongue, or heart, but the whole man; it opens all the Gates, and deſires Chriſt to come, and take all the Keys of the houſe upon him.

3. The Means of this Preparation is the powerful Miniſtery, which God hath appointed for this work; and it is diſcovered in three particulars; Firſt, in a particular Application of the Truth to the ſouls of men with courage. Secondly, in a confirmation of the Truth by ſoundneſs of Argument, and plain evidence of Scriptures. Thirdly, in a kind of Spiritual heat in the heart and affections of the Miniſter, anſwerable to that which he communicates to the people. And this powerful Miniſtery works on the Soul. 1. By diſcovering what is in mans heart, ſo that the Soul ſeeth that it never ſaw before, and ſo is driven to a ſtand. 2. By driving the ſoul into an awe of ſin, ſo that it dares not now meddle with ſin, as formerly it hath done.

Uſe. If any Soul that hath enjoyed theſe Means any while, is not yet fitted and prepared, it is a fearful ſuſpicion, that God will never confer any good to that Soul: Go home then, (if there be any ſuch) and reaſon with your own Souls, and plead with your own hearts, ſaying, Lord, why not yet am I humbled and prepared? Will exhortations never prevail with me? Will Terrors and Reproofs never break my heart into pieces? I have heard Sermons that would have ſhaken the very ſtones I trod on, that would have moved the very ſeat I ſat on; the very fire of Hell hath flaſhed in my Face; I have ſeen even the plagues of Hell, and if any thing can do me any good, why not thoſe Exhortations, Inſtructions, Admonitions, and Reproofs that I have often had? I have had as powerful means as may be, which never yet did me good. The Lord be merciful [illegible] ſuch a poor ſoul; the Lord turn the heart of ſuch a poor ſinner, that he may lay hold on mercy in due time.

CHAP. II.

Sect. 1. The general Circumſtances of Preparation on Gods part.

But for a further diſtribution, which ſhall be our Method: In this Preparation two Things are conſiderable.

The { General Circumſtances.
Subſtantial Parts.

The general cicumſtances are two-fold, ſome on { Gods Part.
Mans Part.

On Gods part they are theſe { 1. The offer of Chriſt and Grace.
2. The condition of this offer.
3. The eaſineſs of this condition.

On Mans part, two things are conſiderable:
{ 1. That corruption doth oppoſe this Grace.
2. That God will remove this corruption.

The firſt general circumſtance of the Souls Preparation, is on Gods part; wherein is The offer of Chriſt Jeſus, The condition of this offer, and The eaſineſs of this condition; we may have all in this one compariſon: As with a Malefactor convicted of High Treaſon, for plotting ſome wicked practice againſt his Prince, if (after the diſcovery of all paſſages) the King make a Proclamation, That upon the ſurceaſing of his Enterprizes, he ſhall be pardoned; nay, if the King ſhall continue to ſend Meſſage after Meſſage, ſecretly to tell him; that would he yet lay down his arms and take a pardon, he ſhall freely be remitted, and graciouſly accepted into favour again: If this Traitor now ſhould rather fling away his Pardon than his Weapons, then ſhould the King raiſe an Army and overcome him, and take him, and excecute him without any pity or mercy, I appeal to your own Conſciences, is he not juſtly rewarded? What will the World ſay? He had a fair offer of Pardon, and the King ſent Meſſenger after Meſſenger unto him; ſeeing therefore he refuſed and neglected ſuch offers, it is pity but condemnation ſhould befall him: Thus would all ſay. Why, this is the condition of every poor Soul under Heaven; we are all Rebels and Traitors; by our Oaths and Blaſphemies, we ſet our mouth againſt Heaven; and yet after all our pride, and ſtubbornneſs, and looſeneſs, and prophaneneſs, and contempt of Gods Word and Ordinances, the Lord is pleaſed to proclaim Mercy ſtill to every one that will receive: All you that have diſhonoured my Name, All you that have prophaned my Sabbaths, and contemned my Ordinances, all you curſed wretches, Come; Come who will, and take Pardon; therein is the Offer: Only let them lay aſide all their weapons; therein is the Conditions, and then have Chriſt for the taking; therein is the Eaſineſs of the condition.

Bleſſed God (may every ſoul ſay) If I will not do this for Chriſt, I will do nothing: Had the Lord required a great matter of me to have attained ſalvation; had he required thouſands of Rams, and Ten thouſand rivers of Oyl; had he required the firſt-born of my body for the ſins of my Soul; had he required me to have kneeled and prayed until mine eyes had failed, until my hands had been wearied, until my tongue had been hoarſe, and until my heart had fainted, one drop of mercy at the laſt gaſp would have quit all this coſt: But what goodneſs is this, that the Lord ſhould require nothing of me, but to lay down my weapons, and to receive Chriſt offered? Lo, the Lord this day hath ſent from Heaven, and offered Salvation unto you ſons of men; the Lord Jeſus is become a ſuitor to you, and I am Chriſts ſpokeſman, to ſpeak a good word for him: O that we may have our errand from you! O that there were ſuch an heart in my people (ſaith God) to Fear me, and keep my Commandments always! Deut. 5, 29. Shall the Lord and his Meſſengers thus wooe and intreat? And will any yet ſtand out againſt God, and ſay, I will none of Chriſt, I will try it out to the laſt? O then, if the great God of Heaven and earth ſhall come with Ten thouſand thouſand of Judgments, and excecute them upon that man? If he ſhall bring a whole Legion of Devils, and ſay, Take him Devils, and torment him Devils in Hell for ever; Becauſe he would not have mercy when it was offered, he ſhall not have mercy; becauſe he would not have Salvation when it was tendered, let him be contemned: If God ſhould thus deal with that man, the Lord ſhould be juſt in ſo doing, and he juſtly miſerable.

Sect. 2. The general Circumſtances of Preparation on Mans part.

THe ſecond general circumſtance of the ſouls Preparation, is on Mans part; and herein is obſervable,

{ 1. That Corruption oppoſeth Grace.
{ 2. That God will remove this Corruption.

1 Cor. 2. 14. First, the firſt is clear, 1 Cor. 2. 14. The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, neither can he know them; and, Acts. 7.51. Acts 7. 51. Ye ſtiff necked, and uncircumciſed in heart and ears, ye do always reſiſt the Holy Ghoſt, as your fathers did, ſo do ye. Give us a man in the ſtate of Nature, and though all the Miniſters under heaven ſhould preach mercy unto him; though all the Angels in heaven ſhould exhort and intreat him; though all glory and happineſs were laid before him, and he were wiſhed only to believe and take it, and it ſhall be his for ever; yet in his natural condition he could have no power to receive ſo bleſſed an offer: Howſoever, this hinders not but he is to wait upon God in the means. And then ——

Secondly, God may remove this Corruption, which he himſelf cannot do: Herein obſerve we

The { Author / Time } of this Grace.

Ezek. 11. 19. Fiſt the Author is God: I will take away their ſtony heart, (ſaith God) and give them an heart of fleſh; I will remove that ſturdy heart which is in them, and will give them a frameable, teachable heart, which ſhall ply, and yeild to whatſoever I ſhall teach them: The taking away of the indiſpoſition of the ſoul to any duty, and the fitting, framing and diſpoſing of a ſoul toperform any ſpiritual ſervice, is the alone work of God.

Uſe 1. Quiet then thy ſoul, and content thy heart; thou mayeſt ſay, I have an hard heart within, and it will receive no good from without, the Word prevails not, the Sacraments have no power over me; all the means and coſt, and charges that God hath beſtowed upon me is loſt, and my heart is not yet humbled, my corruptions are not yet weakened: But in this be thou comforted, though means cannot do it, which God uſeth at his pleaſure, yet the Lord can do it; there is nothing difficult to him that hath hardneſs it ſelf at command.

Uſe 2. Be then Exhorted, you that have ſtony hearts, to have recourſe unto this great God of Heaven. Should a Phyſician ſet up a Bill, That he would cure all that are troubled with the Stone in the Reins, and that we ſhould hear of many healed by him, this would ſtir up all to repair to him, that laboured of this Diſeaſe. Why, the Lord this day hath ſet up a Bill, That he will cure all ſtony hearts that will but come to him, and all the Children of God have found the proof hereof, to the comfort of their ſouls. You Wives therefore, that have husbands with ſtony hearts, and you parents, that have children with ſtony hearts, tell them, You have heard this day of a Phyſician that will cure them, and exhort them to repair unto him.

Secondly, the Time of this Grace, is either in regard of the { Means. / Men.

1. In regard of the Means; and that is, when the ſons of men have the Goſpel ſhining in their faces; if ever God work upon their hearts, it will be then.

Uſe 1. This ſhould teach us how thankful we ought to be unto the Lord, that enjoy theſe liberties in the Land of the living; That a man was born in ſuch a time, in the laſt Age of the World, in ſuch a place in this Kingdom, wherein the way of life and ſalvation is ſo fully, ſo plainly, and ſo powerfully made known, that the Sun of the Goſpel ſhines full in his face, and is not yet ſet: O how thankful ſhould he be!

Uſe 2. And for thoſe that neglect the Means of their Salvation, how ſhould we pity them? Methinks I ſee a poor creature, that ſlighted mercy and ſalvation when it was offered him; methinks I ſee that ſoul lying upon his Deaths bed, light is departing from his eyes, and his ſoul is departing from his body; O the name of a Miniſter, of a Church, they are as Bills of Indictments againſt the Soul of this man; methinks I hear ſuch a man ſay at his laſt gaſp, The day is gone, the gate is ſhut, and now it is too late to enter: And thus the Soul departs from his Body, the body to the Grave, and the Soul to Hell; O what bitter lamentations will that Soul make in Hell? O the Golden time that I have ſeen, and not regarded! O the gracious opportunities of Salvation that my eyes have beheld, and yet I neglected? O the mercy, and Grace, and goodneſs of God, that have been offered unto me! All theſe I have contemned, and trampled under my feet, and therefore now muſt I be tormented with the Devil and his Angels, from everlaſting to everlaſting. Now the Lord give us hearts to take notice of theſe things. If I were now breathing out my laſt breath, I would breath out this Legacy to all ſurviving Christians, This is the accepted time, this is the day of Salvation. Do ye hear? This day is Grace offered, and if any here would entertain it, O what comfort might he have! I was never humbled afore (might he ſay) but this day was I humbled; I could never before receive mercy, but this day have I received it; O this was a good day to me, now bleſſed am I for ever.

2. In regard of men, on whom God works; that is to ſay, on ſome in their tender age, on ſome in their ripe age, on ſome in their old age: But however the Lord doth at ſeveral times convert ſeveral of his ſervants, yet moſt, and moſt uſually before their old age; and that ſome Interpreters wittily obſerve out of the Parable of the Vineyard, Mat. 20. 3, 4, 5. The Maſter of the Vineyard (ſaith the Text) went out at the third, ſixth and ninth hour, and ſaw ſome ſtanding idle, and he ſent them into his Vineyard: He went then (ſay Interpreters) on purpoſe to ſee, and hire, and to ſend in labourers to work in this Vineyard; but he went out at the eleventh hour, not to hire any, he expected not then to have ſeen any idle; he went out upon ſome other occaſion, and therefore ſeeing them ſtanding, he wondered at it, ſaying, Why ſtand ye here all the day idle? As if he ſhould ſay, No man will hire you now, it is but an hour to night, and therefore rather a time to leave working, than to begin to work. Matth. 20. 3, 4, 5.

Uſe. O let this provoke us, that while the flower is in prime, we would uſe all means for our good; let us now in the heat and ſummer of our days, improve our ſelves in good works, that ſo when the harveſt comes, we may be gathered into Gods Barn: O, would we be exhorted to take the beſt time and opportunity of ſalvation, then might we receive the fruits of our labours, the ſalvation of our Souls.

CHAP. III.

The Subſtantial parts of Preparation on Gods part; or his diſpenſations of his work on the Soul.

Hitherto of the general Circumſtances of the Souls preparing for Chriſt. Now the Subſtantial parts of this Preparation are generally two:

The { Diſpenſation of Gods work on the Soul.
Diſpoſition of the Soul by Gods work.

The diſpenſation of Gods work diſcovers it ſelf in drawing the Soul

{ From Sin,
To himſelf.

But becauſe theſe two are made up by one action and motion, we ſhall therefore handle them together: And the ſum is this, that God by an holy kind of violence (which is called Drawing, John 6.44.) doth pluck the Soul from theſe ſins that harbour in it unto himſelf: Wherein we may conſider two things; Joh. 6.44.

{ 1. What the nature of this drawing is.
2. The means whereby God draws.

First, for the nature of this drawing, it is of a double kind:

1. There is a Moral drawing, when by Reaſons propounded, and good things offered to the Underſtanding and Will, a man comes thereby to have his mind enlightned, and his will moved to embrace things offered: Thus was it with Paul, when he was conſtrained by Lydia to abide in her houſe, Acts 16.15. Act.16.15. 2. There is a Phyſical drawing, when the Lord is pleaſed to put a new power into the Soul of a Sinner, and withal to carry the will to the object propounded, that it may embrace it; when the Lord not only offers good things to the Soul, but enables the Soul to lay hold upon the things offered: And thus the Lord draws a ſinner from ſin unto himſelf.

Secondly, for the means whereby he draws, they are theſe four:

First, the Lord lets in a light into the Soul of a poor ſinner, and diſcovers unto him that he is in a wrong way: This the Soul marvels at, becauſe uſually, it comes on a ſudden, the ſinner perceiving nothing leſs, Iſai. 66. 1. Iſa. 66. 1.

Secondly, though a man would defeat the power of this light, yet God ſtill follows it with forcible Arguments, and draws with the cord of his Mercy; I taught Ephrahim to go, (ſaith God) taking them by the Arms; I drew them by the cords of love, and with the bonds of a man. Hoſ. 11.4. This mercy conſiſts in theſe bonds, or this love is made up of four cords.

1. The Lord reveals himſelf to be ready to receive, and willing and eaſie to entertain poor ſinners when they come unto him: Let the wicked (ſaith the Prophet) forſake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him, and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon; Iſa. 55. 7. the word in the Original is, He will multiply Pardons: Haſt thou multiplied rebellions? The Lord will alſo multiply pardons: The bowels of compaſſion are ſtill open, and the arms of mercy are ſtill ſpread abroad; he pardoned Manaſſes, and Paul, Peter, and ſo he will thee; his pardons are multiplied; there is yet mercy for thee alſo, and for a thouſand thouſand more.

2. The Lord is not only ready to forgive when men come to him, but that they may come, he alſo calls and commands them. O but may I, (ſaith a poor ſinner) ſhall I, dare I go unto the Lord God for mercy? May I be ſo bold to preſs in for favour at the hands of the Lord? I have been a grievous ſinner and have heaped abomination upon abomination; I am afraid therefore to approach near unto the Lords preſence. Is it ſo? Hear what the Lord ſaith, Come unto me ye rebellious people, and I will heal your rebellions. You that never Prayed, never came to Hear, all Rebells, come unto me; Jer. 3. 22. and then the people anſwer, Behold, we come unto thee for thou art our God. This is great encouragement to a poor ſinner; he begins now to wonder, and ſay, Lord, ſhall all my ſins be pardoned? Shall all my oaths and abominations be forgiven? I that ſlighted ſo many mercies, and committed ſo many follies, ſhall I be entertained? Yes, (ſaith the Lord) come unto me, and thou ſhalt be forgiven? come; I command you, come.

3. The Lord doth not only command a poor ſinner to come in, but when he is nice in this caſe, ſaying, There is mercy with God, but not for me; The Lord then followeth him ſtill, and ſends another cord after him, that if it be poſſible, he may win him, and wooe him to receive mercy of him: If command therefore prevail not, he intreats and beſeeches him to come and receive mercy, and this (methinks) ſhould move the hardeſt heart under Heaven. We (ſaith the Apoſtle) are Ambaſſadors for Chriſt, as though God did beſeech you by us, we pray you in Chriſts ſtead, be reconciled unto God: 2 Cor. 5. 20. rather than you ſhould go away from Chriſt, even Mercy it ſelf will come and kneel down before you, and beſeech you, and intreat you, for the Lord Jeſus ſake to pity your poor ſouls, and to receive pardon for your ſins: A ſinner is not able to comprehend this, but he begins to be at a ſtand, and at amazement; What, that the Lord ſhould beſeech him! O that thou wouldeſt receive pardon for thy ſins, and be bleſſed for ever! Good Lord, (ſaith the Soul) is this poſſible, that the great King of Heaven ſhould come and beſeech ſuch a Traitor, ſuch a Rebel as I am, to take Pardon? That a King on Earth ſhould proclaim a pardon to ſome notorious Traitor, this were much; but that the King of Heaven ſhould lay down his Crown, and come creeping to me, and beſeech me (on his knees as it were) to take mercy; this is a thing beyond all expectation: What, ſhall Heaven ſtoop to Earth? Shall Majeſty ſtoop to Miſery? Shall the great God of Heaven and Earth, that might have condemned my Soul, and if I had periſhed and been damned, might have took Glory by my deſtruction—— Is it poſſible, is it credible, that this God ſhould not only entertain me when I come, and command me for to come, but intreat and beſeech me to come and receive mercy from him? O the depth of the incomprehenſible love of God! Imagine you ſaw God the Father intreating you, and God the Son beſeeching you, as he doth this day, Come now, and forſake your ſins, and take mercy, which is prepared for you, and ſhall be beſtowed upon you: Would not this make a Soul think thus with it ſelf, What, for a Rebel? Not only to have mercy offered, but to be intreated to receive mercy, it were pity (if I will not take it) but I ſhould go to Hell, and be damned for ever. Ezek. 18. 31. The Lord he complains, Why will ye die? As I live ſaith the Lord, I deſire not the death of a ſinner: Turn ye, turn ye, why will ye die, ye ſinful Sons of Men? Ezek. 33. 11. Mercy is offered you, the Lord Jeſus reacheth out his hand to you: Fain would he pluck the Drunkard out of the Alehouſe, and the Adulterer from his Whore: O, if you break this cord, I know not what to ſay to you, this is able to break a Mountain in pieces. Shake O Mountains (ſaith the Prophet) Why? Becauſe God hath redeemed Jacob; Iſa. 44.23. The redemption of Jacob was enough to break a Mountain; let his Mercy break our hearts; it is God that begs, the bleſſing is our own.

4. If yet all this prevail nothing at all, the Lord will then wait, and ſtay in long patience and ſuffering, to ſee if any time a ſinner will turn unto him. Our Saviour follows poor ſinners from Alehouſe to Alehouſe, and ſays, I beſeech you, Drunkards, take mercy, and have your Sins pardoned: The Lord (as we may ſay) tires himſelf, and wearieth himſelf with waiting one day after another, and one week after another: 'It may be (ſaith Chriſt) this week, this Sabbath, this Sermon a Sinner will turn unto me; What, will it never be? Are you not aſhamed (my Friends) that the Lord Jeſus ſhould thus wait your leiſure, and follow you from houſe to houſe, and from place to place; nay, that Chriſt ſhould every Morning appear to your underſtanding, and every Night come to your Bed-ſide, ſaying; Let this be the laſt Night of ſinning, and the next day the firſt day of your Repentance: O, when will you be humbled? When will you receive mercy, that it may go well with you, and with yours for ever? If none of the other will move you, yet for ſhame let this cord draw you to the Lord: Hear, hear his doleful pangs, O Jeruſalem, Jeruſalem, wilt thou not be made Jer.13.27. clean? O when will it once be? A Woman that is in Travail, O how ſhe expects and longs for her delivery! Now a throb comes, and then ſhe cries: anon comes a ſecond throb and then ſhe cries again, O, when comes deliverance? Thus God the Father takes on him the perſon of a travailing Woman; he travails and travails until he bring forth a Son, until ſome Soul be converted, and brought home unto him. O Jeruſalem, Jeruſalem, wilt thou not be made clean? When will it once be? I have waited; One, Ten, Twenty, Thirty, Forty years long have I waited on this generation; when will it once be? The Lord thus travails in patience, looking when we will receive mercy; will never our proud Hearts be humbled? Will never our ſtubborn Hearts be ſoftned? Will never our prophane Hearts be ſanctified? When will it once be? Chriſt hath waited this day, this Week, this Month, this Quarter, this Year, theſe Ten, Twenty, Thirty, Forty years on us: You old ſinners, that are Gray-headed in your wickedneſs, how long hath the Lord waited on you? O for ſhame let him wait no longer, but turn, turn ye unto him, that ye may receive mercy from him.

Thirdly, if Bonds of Love move not, The Lord hath iron cords, that will pluck in pieces; to wit, the cords of Conſcience; Which thus diſputes, He that being often reproved, doth ſtill harden his heart, ſhall periſh everlaſtingly:

But thou being often reproved, doſt ſtill harden thy heart: Therefore thou ſhalt periſh everlaſtingly:

In this Syllogiſm are contained the { Monition
Accuſation
Condemnation } of Conſcience.

In the firſt Propoſition, Conſcience gives the ſinner a Monition, to come from ſin, upon pain of the heavieſt Judgment that can be inflicted. It is the Lord that ſends the Conſcience on this errand, Go to ſuch a man, and tell him, You have Blaſphemed Gods Name, and you have ſpoken againſt Gods Saints, and you have broken Gods Sabbaths, and you have contemned Gods Ordinances; Be it known then unto thee, (ſaith Conſcience when it delivers the Meſſage) That I have a command from Heaven, and from God; I charge you, as you will anſwer it at the dreadful day of Judgment, take heed of thoſe evils and ſinful practice that heretofore you have com- Prov.29.1. mitted, leſt you damn your Souls for ever. Will you queſtion his commiſſion? See Prov. 29. 1. He that being often reproved, hardneth his neck, ſhall ſuddenly be deſtroyed: If you often be reproved, and will not be bettered, then the Lord ſays, and Conſcience from the Lord tells you, Be it at your own peril, ye ſhall ſuddenly be deſtroyed: No ſooner Conſcience thus perks upon the Crown, but the ſinner hangs the wing, and withdraws himſelf from his former lewd courſes. But now when wicked perſons ſee their companion is gone, they make after him amain, and then Conſcience plucks one way, and they pluck another way; at laſt by carnal company, and curſed perſwaſions, the Soul is drawn back again to his former wicked courſes, and ſo perhaps this twiſt is broken, and the ſinner is gone.

2. If ſo, then Conſcience, that was a Monitor, now turns Accuſer in the minor Propoſition; before it was only Gods Herald to forwarn him, but now it is become a Purſuivant and Serjeant to Arreſt him: It follows him to the Alehouſe, and purſues him home; then takes him in his Bed, and Arreſts him in his ſleep; there (by a Meditation) it hales the Soul before the Tribunal ſeat of God, ſaying; Lo, Lord, this is the Man, this is the Drunkard, Adulterer, Blaſphemer, this is he, Lord; an enemy to thy ſervants, an hater of thy Truth, a deſpiſer of thy ordinance: at ſuch a time, in ſuch a place, with ſuch a company this man deſpiſed thy Truth; this is he, Lord, this is the Man. And when Conſcience hath thus dragged him before God, and accuſed him, then Take him Jaylor, take him, Devil, (ſaith the Lord) and impriſon him; let vexation, and Horror, and Trouble, and anguiſh lie upon his Soul, until he confeſs his Sins, and reſolve to forſake them. In this caſe was David, when he was forced to ſay, My bones waxed old through my roaring all the day long; for Day and Night thy hand was heavy upon me, my moiſture is turned into the drought of ſummer: What then, O then (ſaid David) I acknowledged my Sin unto thee,——I confeſſed my tranſgreſſions unto Pſal. 32. 3, 4, 5. thee, O Lord, and ſo thou forgaveſt the iniquity of my ſin. David, he folded up his Sins at the firſt, and therefore his bones were conſumed, and he roared continually; when the Lord had him on the Rack he made him roar again, and would never leave tormenting, till David came to confeſſing; but when he confeſſed this ſin, and the other ſin, then the Lord forgave him the iniquity of his Sin. Thus Conſcience brings the Soul of a ſinner on the Rack (as Traitors are uſed, that will not confeſs otherwiſe) and makes him to confeſs his Sins, and then he cries, O the abominations I have committed which the Sun never ſaw; in ſuch a place, at ſuch a time, O then I railed on Gods Servants, and Blaſphemed Gods Name, I prophaned Gods Sabbaths, and contemned his Ordinances: What then? Conſcience will make him confeſs more yet, to the Rack again with him; and then he cries and roars for anguiſh of Spirit, then he confeſſes all, and reſolves to mend, then he will pray, and hear, and ſanctifie Gods Sabbaths and lead a new life. Thus Conſcience receives ſome ſatisfaction, and begins to be quiet; and now having got ſome quiet, his curſed Companions ſet upon him again, Refreſh (ſay they) your Soul with ſome of your ancient dalliance, &c. To this, and the like Temptations of Satan, he liſtens again, and then he begins to follow his old ſins, perhaps with more violence and eagerneſs than ever he did before; and now is another twiſt broken likewiſe.

3. If ſo, then Conſcience that was a Monitor and Accuſer, now turns Executioner, The firſt Propoſition admoniſhed, the ſecond accuſed; if neither of theſe prevail, then Conſcience concludes, Thou muſt to Execution, thou ſhalt periſh everlaſtingly. And now Conſcience cries, Monitions, or Accuſations could not prevail with this Man; Come, come, ye damned Ghoſts, and take away this Drunkard, this Blaſphemer, this Adulterer, and throw him headlong into the Pit of Hell: He would not be amended, let him be condemned: He would not be humbled, therefore let him be damned. The man hearing this, then he is amazed, and thinks himſelf paſt Hope, paſt Help, paſt Cure: Did you ever ſee or hear a Tormented Conſcience in theſe pangs? Now he calls, then he cries, Lo, where De- vils ſtand, the Heavens frown, God is incenſed, Hell's-mouth is opened: And now a Miniſter is ſent for, who diſplays to this deſpairing Soul, the mercy and Grace of God in Chriſt Jeſus: O, (replies he) this is my bane, my Damnation, If I had never heard of mercy, if I had never lived under the Goſpel, and the means of Salvation, then had I been an Happy Man: Alas! It is Mercy I have neglected, it is Salvation I have contemned, how then ſhould I be ſaved? O the perſwaſions of the Lord that I have had! The Lord hath even wept over me, as he did over Jeruſalem, O that thou hadſt known the things belonging to thy Peace! Yet all theſe perſwaſions have I contemned, and therefore certainly to Hell I muſt go. The Miniſter replies, Truth it is, you have done thus, but would you do ſo ſtill? Is it good now to be Drunk, or to Blaſpheme, or to rail on Gods Saints, or contemn Gods ordinances? O, no, no, (ſaith he) I now find what the end of theſe wicked courſes will be, Gods Word could not prevail with me, the Miniſter could not perſwade me. O the good Sermons that I have heard, the very flames of Hell have even flaſhed in my Face, the Miniſter hath ſpent his Pains, and would have ſpent his Blood for the good of my poor Soul! But Alas! I deſpiſed the Word, and mocked the Miniſter: Wo, wo unto me for ever! Now my Conſcience gnaws, and tears, and terrifies my Soul here, and I ſhall to Hell hereafter; and periſh for ever and ever. The Miniſter replies again, The truth is, you have done thus, but would you do ſo now? Would you ſtill Blaſpheme, and Curſe, and be Drunk, and Riotous; or rather would you not now part with all theſe, and take mercy inſtead of them! Then the Poor Soul cries out, Now the Lord for his mercies ſake remove theſe ſins from me: O, I had never ſo much delight in my Sins heretofore, as now I have wo, miſery and vexation for them; but (Alas!) it is not in my power to help my Soul; of the Lord would do this, let him do what he will with it. What? (ſaith the Miniſter) you are then willing and content to part with your ſins: O yes, (ſaith the Soul) I would rather offend all the World than God; I had rather go to Hell, than to the committing of a ſin; if it would pleaſe God to help me; I would forſake my ſins with all my Heart. Why, now the poor Soul is coming again and God is drawing him again from his Corruptions, and ſinful diſtempers.

Fourthly, when the Soul is thus looſened, the Lord then fully plucks it by the cord of his Spirit: With an Almighty hand he cuts the Soul off from ſin, and takes it into his own hand, that he may Govern him, and diſpoſe of him, according to his own good will and pleaſure. Thus much of preparation for the ſubſtance of it on Gods part.

CHAP. IV.

Sect. 1. The Subſtantial parts of Preparation on Mans part, or the diſpoſition of the Soul by Gods Werk.

NOw are we to obſerve the diſpoſition of the Soul on mans part, which God works on the hearts of whom he draws. It is known in two works:

{ Contrition, whereby the Soul is cut off from ſin.
Humiliation, whereby the Soul is cut off from it ſelf.

For ſo it is, that either the Soul ſeeth no need to depart from ſin, or elſe it thinks it can help it ſelf out of ſin; the firſt is called Security, when the ſoul being blind, takes reſt and ſeeing no need to be better, deſires it not therefore: Againſt this the Lord ſends Contrition, cauſing men thereby to know the miſery of ſin, and to ſee need of a change: The ſecond is Carnal Confidence, when a ſinner begins to ſeek ſuccour, and to ſcramble for his own comfort in his ſelf-ſufficiency: Againſt this the Lord works Humiliation, cauſing the ſoul hereby to ſee the weakneſs and emptineſs of its Duties, and that there is enough in its beſt ſervices to condemn him for ever. Before we ſpeak of the works, it is not amiſs to begin with the lets.

The firſt is Security: When the Soul is taken up with a ſecure courſe, and reſts it ſelf well apaid in its own practices, and therefore it never ſeeth any need of a change, nor never goes out for a change: Now while a man lives thus, and bleſſeth himſelf in his ſin, it is impoſſible that ever he ſhould receive faith, or by the power of faith repair unto Chriſt: where faith comes, it ever works a change, Old things are done away, and then all things are become new; The Lord therefore to remove this let, he burthens the ſoul extreamly, and ſays, You will live in drunkenneſs, in covetouſneſs; you will have your ſins, then take your ſins, and get you down to Hell with them. At this voice the ſinner begins to ſee where he is: Is this true? (ſaith he) then I am the moſt miſerable creature under heaven; therefore as they ſaid, Men and brethren, what ſhall we do? We have been thus and thus, but if we reſt here, it will be our ruine for ever, O what ſhall we do? So the ſoul comes to a reſtleſs diſlike of it ſelf, and ſaith, I muſt either be otherwiſe, or elſe I am but a damned man for ever. Acts 2. 37.

2. When the ſoul is thus reſolved that it muſt of neceſſity change, when it ſeeth his wound and his ſin ready before him to condemn him, and it hath (as it were) a little peep-hole into hell; the ſoul in this diſtreſs ſends over to Prayer, and Hearing, and holy ſervice, and thinks by his wits and Duties, or ſome ſuch like matters, to ſuccour it ſelf; and it begins to ſay, My hearing and my Prayer, will not theſe ſave me? Thus the ſoul in concluſion reſts on Duties; I will not ſay but theſe Duties are all good, honourable, and comfortable yet they are not Gods, but the Ordinances of God. It is the nature of a ſinful heart, to make the means, as meritorious to ſalvation: A man that ſeeth his Drunkenneſs and his baſe contempt of God, O then he voweth and promiſeth to take up a new Courſe, and he begins to approve himſelf in reformation of his ways, Then he cries, Now I will have no more drunkenneſs, now no more ſcoffing and ſcorning at thoſe that go to hear the Word; and then he thinks what can I do more? to heaven I muſt go. All this is but a mans ſelf? Why ſo? Chriſt (who is the ſubſtance of all) and the pith of a promiſe is forgotten; a Chriſt in hearing, a Chriſt in praying is not regarded, and therefore the poor ſoul famiſheth with hunger. Miſtake not, I pray you, theſe Duties muſt be had and uſed, but ſtill a man muſt not ſtay here: Prayer ſaith, There is no ſalvation in me; and the Sacraments and Faſting ſay, there is no ſalvation in us: All theſe are ſubſervient helps, no abſolute cauſes of ſalvation. A man will uſe his bucket, but he expects water from the Well; theſe Means are the buckets, but all our comfort, and all our life and grace is only in Chriſt: if you ſay, your bucket ſhall help you, you may ſtarve for Chriſt, if you let it not down into the Well for Water: So though you boaſt of Praying, and Hearing, and Faſting, and of your Alms, and building of Hoſpitals, and of your good deeds, if none of theſe bring you to a Chriſt, or ſettle you on a Chriſt, you ſhall die, though your works were as the works of an Angel. As it is with a graft therefore, firſt it muſt be cut off from the old ſtock; Secondly, it muſt be pared, and made fit for implantation into another: ſo the ſoul by Contrition being cut off from ſin, then Humiliation pares it (pares away all a mans privileges) and makes it fit for the ingraffing into Chriſt Jeſus. Thus much of the lets, now for the works of Contrition and Humiliation.

Sect. 2. A ſight of Sin.

BUt for a further diſcovery of theſe two neceſſary things, we ſhall enter into particulars, and begin firſt with Contrition; which contains theſe ſteps.

A ſight of Sin.
Senſe of Divine Wrath.
Sorrow for Sin.

The firſt ſtep is A ſight of Sin: and ſin muſt be ſeen { Clearly. Convictingly.

First, Clearly, It is not a general ſight, and confuſed ſight of Sin that will ſerve the turn; it is not enough to ſay, It is my infirmity, and I cannot amend it, we are all ſinners: No, this is the ground why we miſtake our evils, and reform not our ways; a Man muſt ſearch narrowly, and prove his ways, as the Goldſmith doth his Gold in the Fire: I conſidered my ways, (ſaith David) and turned my Feet unto thy Teſtimonies, in the Original, I turned my Sins upſide down, he looked all over his ways. And this clear ſight of Sin appears in two Particulars. Pſal. 119. 50,

1. A Man muſt ſee his Sin nakedly in its own proper Colours: We muſt not look on Sin through the Mediums of Profits, and Pleaſures, and Contentments of this World, for ſo we miſtake Sin: But the Soul of a true Chriſtian that would ſee Sin clearly, he muſt ſtrip it of all content and quiet that ever the Heart received in it; as the Adulterer muſt not look upon Sin in regard of the ſweetneſs of it, nor the Covetous man on his Sin in regard of the profit of it: You that are ſuch, the time will come, when thou muſt die, and then conſider what good theſe ſinful courſes will do you: How will you judge of Sin then, when it ſhall leave a blot on your Souls, and a guilt on your Conſciences?

2. A man muſt look on ſin in the venom of it; and that you may do partly, if you compare it with other things, and partly, if you look at it in regard of it ſelf. 1. Compare ſin with thoſe things that are moſt fearful and horrible; as ſuppoſe any Soul here preſent were to behold the damned in Hell, if the Lord ſhould give any one of you a little peep-hole into Hell, that you ſaw the Horror of the Damned, then propound this to your Heart, What are thoſe pains which the Damned endure? And your Heart will ſhake and quake at it; yet the leaſt ſin that ever you did commit, is a greater Evil (in its own nature) than the greateſt pains of the Damned in Hell. 2. Look at ſin ſimply as it is in it ſelf, what is it, but a profeſs'd oppoſing of God himſelf? A ſinful Creature joins ſide with the Devil, and comes in battel-array againſt the Lord, and flies in the face of the Lord God of Hoſts. I pray you in cold Blood conſider this, and ſay, Good Lord, what a ſinful wretch am I? that a poor Damned wretch of the Earth, ſhould ſtand in defiance againſt God: That I ſhould ſubmit my ſelf to the Devil, and oppoſe the Lord God of Hoſts!

Secondly, Convictingly, that ſin may be ſo to us, as it is in it ſelf; and that diſcovers it ſelf in theſe two particulars:

1. When we have a particular apprehenſion in our own perſon, that whatſoever ſin is in general, we confeſs it the ſame in our own Souls; It is the curſed Diſtemper of our Hearts, howſoever we hold the Truth in general, yet when we come to our own ſins, to deny the particulars. The Adulterer confeſſeth the danger and filthineſs of that ſin in Groſs, but he will not apply it to himſelf: The Rule thereof is, Arreſt thy Soul (whoſoever thou art) of thoſe ſins particularly whereof thou ſtandeſt guilty; To this purpoſe, ſay, Is Murther, and Pride, and Drunkenneſs, and Uncleanneſs ſuch horrible ſins? O Lord, it was my Heart that was proud, and vain; it was my Tongue that did ſpeak filthily, and Blaſphemouſly; my Hand that wrought wickedneſs; my Eye that was wanton; and my Heart that was unclean and filthy; Lord, here they are: Thus bring thy Heart before God.

2. When the Soul ſits down with the audience of Truth, and ſeeks no ſhift to oppoſe Truth revealed: When the Lord comes to make Racks in the Hearts of ſuch as he means to do good to, the Text ſaith, He will reprove the World of ſin; that is He will convince the World of wickedneſs: He will ſet the Soul in ſuch a ſtand, that it ſhall have nothing to ſay for it ſelf, he cannot ſhift it off. The Miniſter ſaith, God hates ſuch and ſuch a Sinner; And the Lord hates me too, (ſaith the ſoul) for I am guilty of that ſin. Thus many a time, when a Sinner comes into the Congregation (if the Lord pleaſe to work on him) the mind is enlightned, and the Miniſter meets with his Corruptions, as if he were in his boſom, and he anſwers all his cavils, and takes away all his objections: With that the Soul begins to be in a maze, and ſaith, If this be ſo (as it is for ought I know) and if all be true that the Miniſter ſaith, then the Lord be merciful unto my Soul, I am the moſt miſerable Sinner that ever was born. Joh. 16.8.

Uſe. You that know not your Sins, that you may ſee them Convictingly get you home to the Law, and look into the Glaſs thereof, and then bundle up all your ſins thus. So many ſins againſt God himſelf in the firſt Commandment, againſt his Worſhip in the ſecond, againſt his Name in the third, againſt his Sabbath in the Fourth: Nay, all our Thoughts, Words and actions, all of them have been ſins, able to ſink our Souls into the bottom of Hell. And ſecondly, that you may ſee them clearly, conſider of their effect, both in their Doom, and in the Execution: Only to inſtance in their Doom; Methinks I ſee the Lord of Heaven and Earth, and the Attributes of God appearing before him, The Mercy of God, the Goodneſs of God, the Wiſdom of God. the Power of God, the Patience and Long-ſuffering of God, and they come all to a Sinner, an Hypocrite, or to a Carnal Profeſſor and ſay; Mercy hath relieved you, Goodneſs hath ſuccoured you, Wiſdom hath inſtructed you, Power hath defended you, Patience hath born with you, Long-ſuffering hath indured you: Now all theſe comfortable Attributes will bid you adieu, and ſay, Farewell, damned Souls; you muſt go hence to Hell, to have your fellowſhip with damned Ghoſts: Mercy ſhall never more relieve you, Goodneſs ſhall never more ſuccour you, Wiſdom ſhall never more inſtruct you, Power ſhall never more defend you, Patience ſhall never more bear with you, Long-ſuffering ſhall never more endure you: And then ſhall you to endleſs, eaſeleſs and remedileſs Torments, where you will ever remember your ſins, and ſay, My Covetouſneſs and Pride was the cauſe of this, I may thank my ſins for this. Think of theſe things (I beſeech you) ſeriouſly, and ſee your ſins here, to prevent this ſight hereafter.

Sect. 3. Senſe of Divine Wrath.

THe Sinner by this time having his eyes ſo far opened, that he beholds his ſins; he begins then to conſider, That God hath him in chaſe; And this Senſe of Divine Wrath diſcovers it ſelf in theſe two particulars;

1. It works a fear of ſome evil to come.
2. It poſſeſſeth the Soul with a feeling of this Evil.

First, the Soul conſiders, That the puniſhment which God hath threatned, ſhall be Executed on him ſooner or later: He cries therefore, What if God ſhould damn me? God may do it: And what if God ſhould execute his Vengeance upon me? Thus the Soul fears, that the evil diſcovered will fall upon him. This is the reaſon of thoſe phraſes of Scripture, We Rom. 8.15.

have not received the Spirit of Bondage to fear again; The Spirit ſhews our Bondage, and thence comes this fear: Again, 1 Tim. 1. 17. God hath not given us the Spirit of fear; that is, the Spirit of Bondage that works Fear. It is with a Soul in this Fear, as it was with Belſhazzar, when he Commanded the Cups to be brought out of the Houſe of the Lord; An hand writing came againſt him on the wall, and when he ſaw it, his Dan. 5. 6. thoughts troubled him, and his face began to gather paleneſs, and his knees knocked one againſt another; as if he ſhould ſay, Surely there is ſome ſtrange evil appointed for me; and with that his heart began to tremble and ſhake: Juſt ſo it is with this Fear; he that runs riot in the way of wickedneſs, and thinks to deſpiſe Gods Spirit, and to hate the Lord Almighty, and to reſiſt the work of his Grace; now it may be there comes this fear and hand-writing againſt him, and then he cries; Theſe are my ſins, and theſe are the Plagues and Judgments threatned againſt them, and therefore why may not I be damned, Why may not I be plagued?

Secondly, the Lord purſues the Soul, and diſcharges that evil upon him which was formerly feared; and now his Conſcience is all on a flame, and he ſaith to himſelf, O I have ſinned, and offended a juſt God, and therefore I muſt be damned, and to Hell I muſt go; Now the Soul ſhakes, and is driven beyond it ſelf, and would utterly faint, but that the Lord upholds it with one hand, as he beats it down with the other; he thinks every thing is againſt him, he thinks the Fire burns to conſume him, and that the air will Poiſon him: And that Hell's-mouth gapes under him, and that Gods wrath hangs over him, and if now the Lord ſhould but take away his Life, that he ſhould tumble down headlong into the Bottomleſs Hell: Should any man, or Miniſter perſwade the Soul in this caſe to go to Heaven for Mercy, it replies in this manner, Shall I repair to God? O that's my trouble! Is not he that great God, whoſe Juſtice, and Mercy, and Patience I have abuſed? And is not he the great God of Heaven and Earth, that hath been incenſed againſt me? Oh, with what a Face can I appear before him? And with what Heart can I look for any mercy from him? I have wronged his Juſtice, and can his Juſtice pardon me? I have abuſed his Mercy, and can his Mercy pity me? What, ſuch a Wretch as I am? If I had never enjoyed the means of Mercy, I might have had ſome plea for my ſelf; but Oh, I have refuſed that Mercy, and have trampled the Blood of Chriſt under my Feet, and can I look for any Mercy? No, no, I ſee the wrath of the Lord incenſed againſt me, and that's all I look for.

Sect. 4. Sorrow for Sin.

THe next ſtep, is Sorrow for ſin; concerning which, are two Queſtions: 1. Whether it be a Work of ſaving Grace? 2. Whether God Work it in all alike?

To the firſt, I anſwer, There is a double Sorrow; one in Preparation, the other in Sanctification: They differ thus; Sorrow in Preparation, is when the Word of God leaves an impreſſion upon the Heart of a Man, ſo that the Heart of it ſelf is as it were a Patient, and only bears the blow of the Spirit; and hence come all thoſe phraſes of Scripture, as wounded, pierced, pricked, in the paſſive voice: So that this Sorrow is rather a Sorrow wrought on me, than any work coming from any ſpiritual ability in me: But Sorrow in Sanctification, flows from a Spiritual Principle of Grace; and from that power which the Heart hath formerly received from Gods Spirit; ſo that in this a man is a free worker: Now both theſe are ſaving ſorrows, but they differ marvellouſly; many think, that every ſaving work is a ſanctifying work, which is falſe. Thoſe whom he calleth (ſaith Rom. 8. 36. the Apoſtle) them he alſo juſtifies, and whom he juſtifies, he glorifies. You may obſerve, That Glorification in this place implies Sanctification here, and glory hereafter; now before Glorification, you ſee there is Juſtification and Vocation, and both theſe are ſaving.

To the ſecond, I anſwer; Howſoever this work is the ſame in all for ſubſtance, yet in a different manner it is wrought in moſt: Two men are pricked, the one with a pin, the other with a ſpear; two men are cut, the one with a penknife, the other with a ſword: So the Lord deals kindly and gently with one ſoul, and roughly with another: There is the melting of a thing, and the breaking of it with Hammers; ſo there is a difference in Perſons: For inſtance, if the perſon be a Scandalous liver, and an oppoſer of God and his Grace: Secondly, if a man have harboured a filthy Heart, and continues long in ſin. Thirdly, if a man have been confident in a formal civil courſe. Fourthly, if God purpoſe by ſome man to do ſome extraordinary great work: In all theſe four caſes he lays an heavy blow on the heart; the Lord will bruiſe them, and rend the caul of their Hearts, and make them ſeek to a faithful Miniſter for direction, and to a poor Chriſtian for Counſel, whom before they deſpiſed. But if the Soul be trained up among godly Parents, and live under a Soul-ſaving Miniſtery, the Lord may reform this man, and cut him off from his Corruptions kindly, and break his Heart ſecretly, in the apprehenſion of his Sins, and yet the world never ſee it. In both theſe we have an example in Lydia and the Jaylor: Lydia was a ſinful woman, and God opened her eyes, and melted her Heart kindly, and brought her to a taſte of his goodneſs here, and glory hereafter: But the Jaylor was an outragious rebellious wretch; for when the Apoſtles were committed to Priſon, he laid them up in the ſtocks, and whipped them ſore; now there was much work to bring this man home: When the Apoſtles were ſinging Pſalms, there came an Earthquake, which made the Priſon-doors flie open, and the Priſoners Fetters to fall off, but yet Act. 16. 3 the Jaylors Heart would not ſhake: At laſt the Lord did ſhake his Heart too, and he came trembling, and was ready to lay violent hands upon himſelf, becauſe he thought the Priſoners had been fled; but the Apoſtles cryed to him, Do thy ſelf no harm, for we are all here: With that he fell down before them, and ſaid, Men and Brethren, what ſhall I do to be ſaved? For Concluſion, give me a Chriſtian that God doth pleaſe to work upon in this extraordinary manner, and to break his Heart ſoundly, and to throw him down to purpoſe, though it coſt him full dear; this man walks ordinarily with more care and Conſcience, and hath more comfort coming to himſelf, and gives more Glory unto God.

Uſe 1. Is it ſo, that the Soul of a man is thus pierced to the quick, and run through by the wrath of the Almighty? Then let this teach all how to carry themſelves towards ſuch as God hath thus dealt withal: Are they pierced men? O pity them! O let the bowels of commiſeration and compaſſion be let out toward them! Let us never ceaſe to do good to them, to the very uttermoſt of our powers! And to the performance of this, Reaſon and Religion, and pity (methinks) ſhould move us: Hear the cry, Oh (ſaith the poor Soul) will theſe and theſe ſins never be pardoned? Will this proud Heart never be humbled? Thus the Soul ſighs and mourns and ſays, O Lord, I ſee this ſin, and feel the burthen of it, and yet I have not an Heart to be humbled for it, nor to be freed from it: O when will it once be? Did you not know this, it would make your hearts bleed to hear him: Oh! The Sword of the Almighty hath pierced through his Heart, and he is breathing out his ſorrow, as though he were going down to Hell, and he ſaith, If there be any Mercy, and Love, any Fellowſhip of the Spirit, have Mercy upon me a poor Creature, that am under the Burden of the Almighty! O pray, and pity theſe wounds and vexations of Spirit, which no man finds nor feels, but he that hath been thus wounded. It is a ſign of a Soul wholly devoted to deſtruction, that hath a deſperate diſdain againſt poor wounded creatures; Is it poſſible there ſhould harbour ſuch a ſpirit in any man? If the Devil himſelf were incarnate, I cannot conceive what he could do worſe.

Uſe 2. 2. If ever thou wouldeſt be comforted, and receive Mercy from God; labour never to be quiet till thou doſt bring thy Heart to a right pitch of ſorrow: thou haſt a little ſlight ſorrow; but Oh! Labour to have thy Heart truly touched, that at laſt it may break in regard of thy many diſtempers; Remember, the longer ſeed-time, the greater Harveſt: Mat. 5. 4. Bleſſed are they that mourn, for they ſhall be comforted: But wo to you that are at eaſe in Zion: Thou hadſt better now be wounded, than everlaſtingly tormented; and therefore if thou deſiredſt to ſee Gods face with comfort, if thou wouldeſt hear Chriſt ſay, Amos 6. 1. Come, thou poor heavy hearted Sinner, I will eaſe thee, Labour to lay load on thy Heart, with ſorrow for thy ſin; O what a comfort ſhall a poor broken heart find in that day:

Sect. 5. The extent of this ſorrow.

Hitherto of Contrition; the next work is Humiliation, which differs from the other, not in ſubſtance, but circumſtance: For Humiliation (as I take it) is only the extent of Sorrow for Sin, of which we have ſpoken: And it contains theſe two Duties:

1. Submiſſion, } to be at the Lords
2 Contentedneſs } diſpoſal.

The firſt part of Humiliation, is Submiſſion, which is wrought thus: The ſinner now having had a Sight of his ſins, and a Sorrow in ſome meaſure for ſin, he ſeeks far and wide improves all means, and takes up all Duties, that (if it were poſſible) he might heal his wounded Soul: Thus ſeeking, and ſeeking, but finding no ſuccour in what he hath, or doth, he is forced at laſt, (in his deſpairing condition) to make trial of the Lord: It is true, for the preſent he apprehends God to be juſt, and to be incenſed againſt him, he hath no experience of Gods favour for the while, no certainty how he ſhall ſpeed, if he go to the Lord: Yet becauſe he ſees he cannot be worſe than he is, and that none can help him but God, if it would pleaſe him: Therefore he falls at the footſtool of Mercy, and he lies groveling at the Gate of Grace, and ſubmits himſelf to the Lord, to do with him as pleaſeth himſelf, or as it ſeemeth good in his eyes.

This was the Ninevites caſe, when Jonah had denounced that heavy Judgment, and (as it were) thrown wild-fire about the Streets, ſaying, within forty days Nineveh ſhall be deſtroyed: See what they reſolved upon, Jonah 3. 9. They faſted and prayed, and put on ſackcloth and aſhes; Who can tell (ſaid they) but God may turn, and repent him of his fierce wrath, that we periſh not? As if they had ſaid, We know not what God will do, but this we know, that we cannot oppoſe his Judgments, nor ſuccour our ſelves: Thus it is with a Sinner, when he ſeeth Hell-fire to flaſh in his face, and that he cannot ſuccour himſelf, then he ſaith, This I know all the means in the world cannot ſave me; yet who can tell but the Lord may have mercy on me, and cure this diſtreſſed Conſcience, and heal all theſe wounds that ſin hath made in my Soul? This is the lively Picture of the Soul in this caſe.

Firſt, he ſeeth and confeſſeth that the Lord may, and (for ought he knows) will proceed in Juſtice againſt him, and execute upon him thoſe plagues that God hath threatned, and his ſins have deſerved; he ſeeth that Juſtice is not yet ſatisfied, and thoſe reckonings between God and him are not yet made up, and therefore he cannot apprehend, but that God will take vengeance on him: What elſe? When he hath done all he can, he is unprofitable ſtill; Juſtice remains unſatisfied, and ſaith, Thou haſt Sinned, and I am wronged, and therefore thou ſhalt die.

Secondly he conceives, that what God will do that he will do, and he cannot avoid it; if the Lord will come, and require the glory of his Juſtice againſt him, there is no way to avoid it, nor to bear it. And this cruſheth the Heart, and makes the Soul to be beyond all ſhifts and evaſions, whereby it may ſeem to avoid the dint of the Lords blow.

Thirdly, he caſts away his weapons, and falls down before the Lord, and reſigns himſelf into the ſovereign power and command of God. Thus David, when the Lord caſt him out of his Kingdom, 2 Sam. 15. 25, 26. he ſaid to Zadock, Carry back the Ark of God into the City, if I ſhall find favour in the eyes of the Lord, he will bring me back again, and ſhew me both it, and his Habitation: But if he thus ſay to me, I have no delight in thee; Behold, here I am, let him do with me as ſeemeth good in his eyes. This is the frame of a poor Soul; when a poor ſinner will ſtand upon his privileges, the Lord ſaith, Bear my Juſtice, and defend thy ſelf by all thou haſt, or canſt do: and the Soul anſwereth, I am thy Servant, Lord, do what is good in thine eyes, I cannot ſuccour my ſelf.

Fourthly, the Soul freely acknowledgeth, That it is in Gods power to do with him, and diſpoſe of him as he will; and therefore he lies and licks the duſt, and cries, Mercy, Mercy, Lord: He thinks not to purchaſe Mercy at the Lords hands, but only ſaith, It is in Gods good pleaſure to do with him as he will, only he looks for favour and cries, Mercy, Lord, Mercy to this poor diſtreſſed Soul of mine: O, (replies the Lord) doſt thou need mercy? cannot thy Hearing, and Praying, and Faſting, carry thee to Heaven without hazard? Gird up now thy loins, and make thy ferventeſt Prayers, and let them meet my Juſtice, and ſee if they can bear my Wrath, or purchaſe any Mercy: No, no (ſaith the Sinner) I know it by lamentable experience, that all my Prayers and performances will never procure peace to my Soul, nor give any ſatisfaction to thy Juſtice; I only pray for Mercy, and I deſire only to hear ſome news of Mercy, to relieve this miſerable wretched Soul of mine; it is only Mercy that muſt help me, O Mercy (if it be poſſible) to this poor diſtreſſed Soul of mine. Methinks the Picture of thoſe poor Lepers, may fitly reſemble this poor Sinner, when the Famine was great in Samaria; There 2 Kings 7. 3, 4. were four Leprous men ſate in the Gate of the City, and they ſaid why ſit we here until we die; if we enter into the City, the Famine is there; and if we ſit here, we die alſo; now therefore let us fall into the hands of our enemies, and if they ſave us alive, we ſhall live; and if they kill us we ſhall but die: They had but one means to ſuccour themſelves withal, and that was to go into the Camp of the enemies, and there, as it hapned, they were relieved. This is the Live-picture of a poor Sinner in this deſpairing condition, when he ſeeth the wrath of God purſuing him, and that the Lord hath beſet him on every ſide; at laſt he reſolves thus with himſelf, If I go and reſt on my privileges, there is nothing but emptineſs; and if I reſt in my natural condition, I periſh there alſo: Let me therefore fall into the hands of the Lord of Hoſts. I confeſs he hath been provoked by me, and for ought I ſee he is mine enemy; I am now a damned man, and if the Lord caſt me out of his preſence, I can be but damned. And then he comes to the Lord, and he falls down before the foot-ſtool of a conſuming God, and ſaith, as Job did, What ſhall I ſay unto thee, O thou preſerver of men? I have no reaſon to plead for my ſelf, and I have no power to ſuccour my ſelf, my accuſations are my beſt excuſe, all the privileges in the World cannot juſtifie me, and all my Duties cannot ſave me; if there be any mercy left, O ſuccour a poor diſtreſſed ſinner in the very Gall of Bitterneſs. This is the behaviour of the Soul in this work of Subjection.

The ſecond part of Humiliation is Contentedneſs to be at the Lords diſpoſal; and this point is of an higher pitch than the former: For example, Take a debtor who hath uſed all means to avoid the creditor, in the end he ſeeth he cannot avoid the Suit, and to bear it he is not able, therefore the only way is to come in, and to yield himſelf into his creditors hands; but ſuppoſe the creditor ſhould exact the utmoſt, and throw him into priſon, to be content now to undergo the hardeſt dealing, it is an hard matter, and a further degree. So when the Soul hath offered himſelf, and he ſeeth that Gods Writs are out againſt him, and he is not able, (whenſoever the Judgment comes) to avoid it, nor to bear it, therefore he ſubmits himſelf, and ſaith, Lord, whither ſhall I go? Thy anger is heavy and unavoidable; Nay, whatſoever God requires, the Soul lays his hand on his mouth, and goes away contented, and well ſatisfied, and hath nothing at all to ſay againſt the Lord. This is the nature of Contentedneſs.

Or for a further light, this Contentedneſs diſcovers it ſelf in theſe three following particulars:

Firſt, the Soul reflects on Gods Mercy, which though he begg'd when he ſubmitted, yet now he ſeeth ſo much Corruption and unworthineſs in himſelf, that he acknowledgeth himſelf unfit for Mercy: O Mercy, mercy, Lord! What? (ſaith the Lord) I had thought your own Duties would have purchaſed Mercy: O no, (ſaith the Soul) it is only Mercy that muſt relieve and ſuccour me; but ſuch is my vileneſs, that I am not fit for the leaſt Mercy and Favour; and ſuch is the wickedneſs of this wretched Heart of mine, that whatſoever are the greateſt plagues, I am worthy of them all, though never ſo inſupportable: All the Judgments that God hath threatned, and prepared for the Devil and his Angels, they are all due to my wretched Soul. O, (ſaith the Soul) had the Devils the like hopes, and means, and patience that I have enjoyed, for ought I know they would have been better than I am: It is that which ſhames the Soul in all his ſorrows, and makes him ſay, Had they the like Mercy! O thoſe ſweet Comforts, and thoſe precious Promiſes that I have had! How many heavy journeys hath the Lord Jeſus made to me! How often hath he knocked at my Heart, and ſaid, come to me, ye rebellious Children; turn ye, turn ye, why will ye die? O that Mercy that hath followed me from my houſe to my walk, and from thence to my Cloſet; here Mercy hath conferred with me, and there Mercy hath wooed me; yea, in my night-thoughts when I awaked, Mercy kneeled down before me, and beſought me to renounce my bad courſes, yet I refuſed Mercy, and would needs have mine own will; had the Devils but ſuch hopes, and ſuch offers of Mercy, that they tremble now for want of Mercy, they would (for ought I know) haven given entertainment to it? And what, do I ſeek for Mercy? Shall talk of Mercy? What, I Mercy? The leaſt of Gods Mercies are too good for me, and the heavineſs of Gods Plagues are too little for me? I ſuppoſe (for ſo is my Opinion) that God cannot do more againſt me than I have juſtly deſerved, but be ſure, God will not lay more upon me than I am juſtly worthy of. Nay ſure it is, the Soul cannot bear nor ſuffer ſo much as he hath deſerved, if God ſhould proceed in rigor with him; therefore it reaſons thus: I only for one ſin deſerve eternal Damnation, for the wages of all ſin is Death, being committed againſt Divine Juſtice and againſt an infinite Majeſty; and then what do all theſe my my Sins deſerve, committed and continued in, againſt all checks of Conſcience, and Corrections, and the light of Gods Word? Hell is too good, and ten thouſand Hells to little to Torment ſuch a wretch as I am: What, I mercy? I am aſhamed to expect it: With what Heart (I pray you) can I beg this Mercy, which I have troden under my Feet? The Lord hath often wooed me, and when his wounds were bleeding, and his ſide goared, and his hideous cries coming into mine ears, My God, My God, why haſt thou forſaken me? Then, even then this Chriſt have I ſlighted, and made nothing of his Blood; and can this Blood of Chriſt do me now any ſervice? Indeed I crave grace, but how do I think to receive any? All the Pillars of the Church can teſtifie, how often Grace and Mercy have been offered and offered, but I have ever refuſed; how can I beg any Grace? O this ſtubbornneſs and villainy, and this wretchedneſs of mine! What, I mercy; It is more than I can expect, I am not worthy of any; Oh no, I am only worthy to be caſt out for ever.

Secondly, the Soul reflects on Juſtice, and now it acknowledgeth the Equity of Gods dealings, be they never ſo harſh; he confeſſeth that he is as clay in the hands of the Potter, and the Lord may deal with him as he will: Yea, the Soul is driven to an amazement at the Lords patience, and that he hath been pleaſed to reprieve him ſo long, that God hath not caſt him out of his preſence, and ſent him down to Hell long ago: It is the frame of the Spirit which the poor lamenting Church had, Lam. 3. 23. It is the Lords mercy that we are not confounded, becauſe his compaſſions fail not. When the Lord hath humbled the Heart of a Drunkard or Adulterer, he begins thus to think with himſelf, The Lord ſaw all the evils I committed; and what then? O then the Soul admires that ever Gods Juſtice was able to bear with ſuch a Monſter, and that God did not confound him in his drunkenneſs or burning luſts, and caſt him down into hell. Oh (ſaith he) it is becauſe his mercies fail not, that my life and all have not failed long ago. Hence it is that the Soul will not maintain any kind of murmuring, or Heart-riſing againſt the Lords dealings: or if Nature and Corruption will be ſtriving ſometimes, and ſay, Why are not my prayers anſwered? I know ſuch a Soul humbled, and I ſee ſuch a Soul comforted, and why not I as well as he? Then the Soul ſtifles, and cruſheth, and choaks theſe wretched diſtempers, and doth alſo abaſe it ſelf before the Lord, ſaying, What if God will not hear my prayers? what if God will not pacifie my Conſcience, doth the Lord do me any wrong? Vile Hell-hound that I am, I have my ſin and my ſhame; Wrath is my portion, and Hell is my place, thither may I go when I will, it is mercy that God thus deals with me. And now the Soul clears God in his Juſtice, and ſaith, It is Juſt with God that all the Prayers which come from this filthy Heart of mine, ſhould be abhorred, and that all my Labours in Holy duties ſhould never be bleſſed; It is I that have Sinned againſt checks of Conſcience, againſt Knowledge, againſt Heaven, and therefore it is Juſt that I ſhould carry this Horror of Heart with me to the Grave; it is I that have abuſed Mercy, and therefore it is juſt that I ſhould go with a Tormenting Conſcience down into Hell: And O that (if I be in Hell) I might have a Spirit to glorifie and juſtifie thy Name there; and ſay, Now

I am come down to Hell amongſt you damned Creatures, but the Lord is righteous and bleſſed for ever in all his doings and dealings, and I am juſtly condemned.

Thirdly, hence the Soul comes to be quiet and framcable under the heavy hand of God in that helpleſs condition wherein he is, it takes the blow, and lies under the burthen, and goes away quietly and patiently: O this is an heart worth Gold! O (ſaith he) it is fit that God ſhould glorifie himſelf, though I be damned for ever, for I deſerve the worſt: Whatſoever I have, it is the reward of my own works, and the end of my own ways: If I be damned, I may thank my pride, and my ſtubbornneſs, and my peeviſhneſs of Spirit: What, ſhall I repine againſt the Lord, becauſe his Wrath and his diſpleaſure lies heavy upon me? Oh no! Let me repine againſt my ſin, the cauſe of all; let me grudge againſt my baſe heart that hath nouriſhed theſe Adders in my Boſom, but let me bleſs the Lord, and not ſpeak one word Pſal. 39.9. againſt him. Thus David, I held my tongue (ſaith he) and ſpake nothing, becauſe thou Lord haſt done it. So the Soul, when the Sentence of Condemnation is even ſiezing upon him, and God ſeems to caſt him out of his favour, then he cries, I confeſs God is juſt, and therefore I bleſs his Name, and yield unto him; but ſin is the worker of all this miſery on me. Jeremiah pleading the caſe of the Church, now going to Captivity, Wo is me for my hurt, (ſaith he) my Jer. 10.19. wound is grievous; but I ſaid, Truly this is my grief, and I muſt bear it. Such is the frame of an Heart truly Humbled, it is content to take all to it ſelf, and ſo to be quiet, ſaying, This is my wound, and I muſt bear it; this is my ſorrow, and I will ſuffer it. Thus you ſee what is the Behaviour of the Soul in this Contentedneſs to be at the Lords diſpoſal.

Object. But ſome may object, Muſt the Soul, or ought the Soul to be thus content to be left in this damnable condition?

Anſw. For anſwer, This Contentedneſs implies two things: Firſt, a carnal ſecurity, and a regardleſneſs of a mans eſtate, and this is a curſed ſin. Secondly, a calmneſs of Soul, not murmuring againſt the Lords diſpenſation towards him; and this Contentedneſs is ever accompanied with the ſight of a mans ſin, and Suing for mercy: It ever improves all means and helps that may bring him nearer to God; but if Mercy ſhall deny it, the Soul is ſatisfied, and reſts well apaid. And this Contentedneſs (oppoſed againſt quarrelling with the Almighty) every humbled Soul doth attain to, although in every one it is not ſo plainly ſeen. To give it in a Compariſon: A Thief taken for Robbery, one whom the ſentence of Death hath paſſed, he ſhould not neglect the means to get a Pardon: And yet if he cannot procure it, he muſt not murmur againſt the Judge for condemning him to Death, becauſe he hath done nothing but Law: So we ſhould not be careleſs in uſing all means for our good; but ſtill ſeek to God, for Mercy: Yet thus we muſt be, and thus we ought to be contented with whatſoever Mercy ſhall deny, becauſe we are not worthy of any Favour. The Soul in a depth of Humiliation, it firſt ſtoops to the condition that the Lord will appoint, he dares not fly away from God, nor repine againſt the Lord, but he lies down meekly. 2. As he is content with the hardeſt meaſure, ſo he is content with the longeſt time, he will ſtay Iſa. 8. 17. for mercy be it never ſo long: I will wait upon the Lord (ſaith Iſaiah) that hath hid his face from Jacob; and I will look for him: So the humbled Sinner, Although the Lord hide his face, and turn away his loving countenance from me, yet I will look towards Heaven, ſo long as I have an eye to ſee, and a hand to lift up; the Lord may take his own time, it is manners for me to wait; Nay, the poor broken heart reſolves thus, If I lie and lick the duſt all my days, and cry for Mercy all my life long, if my laſt words might be mercy, mercy, it were well, I might get mercy at my laſt gaſp. Thirdly, as he is content to ſtay the longeſt time, ſo he is content with the leaſt pittance of mercy: Let my condition be never ſo hard (ſaith the Soul) do Lord what thou wilt for me, let the fire of thy wrath conſume me here, only recover me hereafter; If I find mercy at the laſt I am content, and whatſoever thou giveſt I bleſs thy Name for it; he quarrels not, ſaying, Why are not my Graces encreaſed; and why am I not thus and thus comforted? No, he looks for mercy, and if he have but a crumb of mercy, he is comforted and quieted for ever: And now (you may ſuppoſe) the heart is brought very low.

Vſe 1. Hence we collect, 1. That they which have the greateſt parts, and gifts, and ability, and honour, are (for the moſt part) hardly brought home to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; they that are moſt hardly humbled, are moſt hardly converted: What is Humiliation, but the emptying of the Soul from whatſoever makes it ſwell? The Heart muſt not joy in any thing, nor reſt upon any thing, but only yield to the Lord, to be at his diſpoſing and carving: Now theſe Parts, and Gifts, and Abilities, and Means are great props and and pillars for the heart of a Carnal man to reſt upon, and to quiet it ſelf withal; whence the Apoſtle, Not many wiſe men after the fleſh, not many mighty men, 1Cor.1.28. not many Noble men are called; Indeed (bleſſed be God) ſome are, but not many: Few (that have ſo much of themſelves) are brought to renounce themſelves; and no wonder; for a rich man to become poor, and a Noble man to be abaſed, and a wiſe man to be nothing in himſelf, this will coſt hot Water; and yet this muſt be in all that belong to the Lord: Not that God will take away all theſe outward things and parts, but that they muſt looſen their affections from theſe, if they will have Chriſt.

2. That an humble Heart makes all a Mans life quiet, and marvellouſly ſweetneth whatſoever eſtate he is in; indeed ſometimes he may be toſſed and troubled, yet he is not diſtracted, becauſe he is contented; as it is with a Ship on the Sea, when the billows begin to roar, and the waves are violent, if the Anchor be faſtned deep, it ſtays the Ship: So this work of Humiliation is the Anchor of the Soul, and and the deeper it is faſtened, the more quiet is the Heart: When Job in time of his extremity gave way to his proud Heart, he quarrelled with the Almighty, his Friends, and all; but when the Lord had humbled him, then, Behold, I am vile, and baſe; once Job 40. 4. have I ſpoken, yea twice, but now no more.

And this Humiliation quiets a Man both in.

{ Fierceſt Temptations, { Heavieſt Oppoſitions.

1. In fierceſt Temptations; when Satan begins to beſiege the heart of a poor Sinner, and lays a battery againſt him, ſee how the humbled heart runs him out of breath at his own weapons: Doeſt thou think (ſays Satan) to get mercy from the Lord, when thy own Conſcience dogs thee? Go to the place where thou liveſt, and to the chamber where thou lieſt, and conſider thy fearful abominations, ſure God will not reſpect the prayers of any ſuch vile Sinners. True (ſaith the poor Soul) I have often denied the Lord when he called upon me, and therefore he may juſtly deny me all the prayers I make; yet thus he hath Commanded, that ſeek to him for mercy I muſt, and if the Lord will caſt me away, and reject my prayers, I am contended therewith; What then Satan? What then, ſaith the Devil? I thought this would have made thee to deſpair? but this is not all, for God will give thee over, and leave thee to thy ſelf, to thy luſts and corruptions, and thy latter end ſhall be worſe than thy beginning;

ning; thou mayeſt call and cry, and when thou haſt done be overthrown; God will leave thee to thy ſelf, and ſuffer thy Corruptions to prevail againſt thee, and thou ſhalt fall fearfully, to the wounding of thy Conſcience, to the grieving of God's people, to the ſcandal of the Goſpel, to the reproach of thy own perſon. To this anſwers the humbled Soul, If the Lord will give me up to my baſe luſts, which I have given my ſelf ſo much liberty in, and if the Lord will leave me to my ſins, becauſe I have left his gracious Commands; and if I ſhall fall one day, and be diſgraced and diſhonoured, yet let the Lord be Honoured, and let not God loſe the praiſe of his Power, and Juſtice, and I am contented therewith; what then Satan? What then, ſaith the Devil? I ſure thought now thou wouldſt have deſpaired; but this is not all, for when God hath left thee to thy ſins then will he break out in vengeance againſt thee, and make thee an example of his heavy Vengeance to all Ages to come; and therefore it is beſt for thee to prevent this untimely Judgment by ſome untimely Death. To this replies the Soul, Whatſoever God can do or will do, I know not, yet ſo great are my ſins, that he cannot, or (at leaſt) will not do ſo much againſt me as I have juſtly deſerved: Come what will come, I am contented ſtill to be at the Lords diſpoſal: What then, Satan? And thus he runs Satan out of Breath.

The want of this Humiliation many times brings a man to deſperate ſtands and ſometimes to untimely Deaths: Alas, why will you not bear the wrath of the Lord? It is true indeed your ſins are great, and the wrath of God is heavy, yet God will do you good by it, and therefore be quiet. In time of War, when the great Cannons fly off, the only way to avoid them, is to lie down in a furrow, and ſo the Bullets flie over: So in all Temptations of Satan, lie low, and be contented to be at Gods diſpoſing, and all theſe fiery Temptations ſhall not be able to hurt you.

2. In heavieſt oppoſitions: When Satan is gone then come Troubles and Oppoſitions of the World, in all which Humiliation will quiet the Soul. A man is ſometimes Sea-ſick not becauſe of the Tempeſt, but becauſe of his full ſtomach, and therefore when he hath emptied his ſtomach he is well again: So it is with his Humiliation of Heart, if the heart were emptied truly, though a man were in a ſea of oppoſitions, if he have no more trouble in his ſtomach, and in his proud Heart, than in the oppoſitions of the World, he might be very well quieted. Caſt diſgrace upon the humble Heart cauſeleſly, and he cures it thus: He thinks worſe of himſelf than any man elſe can do, and if they would make him vile and loathſome, he is more vile in his own eyes than they can make him: O that I could bring your Hearts to be in Love with this bleſſed Grace of God!

Is there any Soul here that hath been vexed with the Temptations of Satan, of oppoſitions of men, or with his own diſtempers? And would he now arm and fence himſelf, that nothing ſhould diſquiet him, or trouble him, but in all, to be above all, and to rejoyce in all? O then be humbled, and then be above all the Devils in Hell: Certainly they ſhall not ſo diſquiet you, as to cauſe you to be miſled, or uncomforted, if you would but be humbled.

Uſe 2. What remains then? Be exhorted (as you deſire mercy and favour at Gods hands) to this Humiliation. And for Motives, conſider the good things that God hath promiſed, and which he will beſtow upon all that are truly humbled; I ſhall reduce all to theſe three following Benefits.

Firſt, by Humiliation we are made capable of all thoſe Treaſures of Wiſdom, Grace, and Mercy that are in Chriſt.

Iſa. 62. 8.

Secondly, Humiliation gives a Man the comfort of all that is good in Chriſt: Many have a right to Chriſt, and are dear to God, yet they want much ſweet refreſhing, becauſe they want this Humiliation in ſome meaſure. To be truly humbled, is the next way to be truly comforted: The Lord will look to him that hath an humble contrite Heart, and trembles at his Word: The Lord will not only know him (he knows the wicked too in a general manner) but he will give him ſuch a gracious look, as ſhall make his Heart dance in his Breaſt. Thou poor humbled Soul, the Lord will give thee a glimpſe of his favour, when thou are tired in thy trouble; when thou lookeſt up to Heaven, the Lord will look down upon thee, and will refreſh thee with Mercy; God hath prepared a ſweet morſel for his Child, he will receive the humble: O be humbled then, every one of you, and the Lord Jeſus, who comes with healing under his Wings, will comfort you, and you ſhall ſee the Salvation of our God.

Mat. 18 4.

Thirdly, Humiliation uſhers Glory, Whoſoever humbles himſelf as a little Child, ſhall be greateſt in the Kingdom of Heaven; He ſhall be in the higheſt degree of Grace here, and of Glory hereafter: For as thy Humiliation, ſo ſhall be thy Faith and Sanctification, and Obedience, and Glory.

Pſal. 2. 12

And now methinks your Hearts begin to ſtir, and ſay, Hath the Lord engaged himſelf to this, O then (Lord) make me humble. Now the Lord make me, and thee, and all of us humble, that we may have this Mercy. See how Everlaſting happineſs and bleſſedneſs looks and waits for every humbled Soul; Come, (ſaith Happineſs) thou that haſt been vile, and baſe, and mean in thy own eyes; Come, and be greateſt in the Kingdom of Heaven. Brethren, though I cannot prevail with your Hearts, yet let Happineſs, that kneels down, and prays you to take Mercy, let that (I ſay) prevail with you: If any man be ſo regardleſs of his own good, I have ſomething to ſay to him, that may make his Heart ſhake within him. But Oh! —— Who would not have the Lord Jeſus to dwell with him? Who would not have the Lord Chriſt, by the Glory of his Grace, to honour and refreſh him? Methinks your Hearts ſhould yearn for it, and ſay, O Lord, break my Heart, and Humble me, that mercy may be my portion for ever; Nay, methinks every man ſhould ſay as Paul did, I would to God that not only I, but all my Children and Servants were not only thus as I am, but alſo (if it were Gods will) much more humbled, that they might be much more comforted and refreſhed. Then might you ſay with comfort on your Deaths-bed, Though I go away and leave Wife and Children behind me, poor and mean in the World, yet I Leave Chriſt with them: When you are gone, this will be better for them, than all the beaten Gold or Honours in the World, what can I ſay? But ſince the Lord offers ſo kindly, now Kiſs the Son, be humble, yield to all Gods Commands, take home all Truths, and be at Gods diſpoſing: let all the evil that is threatned, and all the good that is offered prevail with your Hearts, or if means cannot, yet the Lord prevail with you; the Lord empty you, that Chriſt may fill you; the Lord humble you, that you may enjoy happineſs and peace, and be lifted up to the higheſt Pinacle of Glory, there to reign for ever and ever.

CHAP. V.

The call on Gods part, for the Soul to cloſe with, and to relie on Chriſt.

Hitherto of our firſt general, to wit, The Preparation of the Soul for Chriſt: The next is, The Implantation of the Soul into Chriſt: And that hath two parts.

{ 1. The putting of the Soul into Chriſt.
{ 2. The growing of the Soul with Chriſt.

As a graft is firſt put into the ſtock, and then it grows together with the ſtock: Theſe two things are anſwerable in the Soul, and when it is brought to this, then a Sinner comes to be partaker of all ſpiritual benefits.

The firſt part is, The putting in of the Soul: When the Soul is brought out of the world of ſin, to lie upon, and to cloſe with the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; and this hath two particular paſſages:

{ The call on Gods part.
{ The Anſwer on Mans part.

The Call on Gods part is this, When the Lord by the Call of his Goſpel. and work of his Spirit, doth ſo clearly reveal the fulneſs of Mercy, that the Soul humbled returns Anſwer:

In which obſerve the { Means / Cauſe } whereby God doth Call.

1. The Means is only the Miniſtery of the Goſpel; the ſum whereof is this, That There is fulneſs of Mercy, and Grace, and Salvation brought unto us through the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Hence the phraſe of Col. 2. 3. Scripture calls this Goſpel, or this Mercy, a treaſury; All the Treaſures of Wiſdom and Holineſs are in Chriſt: Not one Treaſure, but all Treaſures; not ſome Treaſures, but all Treaſures: Where the Goſpel Iſa. 61. comes, there is Joy for the Sorrowful, Peace for the Troubled, Strength for the Weak, Relief ſeaſonable and ſuitable to all wants, Miſeries and Neceſſities, both Preſent and Future.

Uſe. If then Sorrow aſſail thee (when thou art come thus far) look not on thy ſins, to pore upon them; neither look into thy own ſufficience, to procure any good there. It is true, thou muſt ſee thy ſins and ſorrow for them, but this is for the lower Form, and thou muſt get this leſſon before-hand; and when thou haſt gotten this Leſſon of Contrition and Humiliation, look then only to Gods Mercy and the riches of his Grace in Chriſt.

2. For the Cauſe: The Lord doth not only appoint the Means, but by the work of the Spirit, he doth bring all the Riches of his grace into the Soul truly humbled: If you aſk, How? Firſt, with ſtrength of evidence; the Spirit preſents to the Broken-hearted Sinner, the right of the freeneſs of Gods grace to the Soul: And ſecondly, the Spirit doth forcibly ſoak in the reliſh of that Grace, and by an over-piercing work, doth leave ſome dint of ſupernatural and ſpiritual virtue on the Heart.

Now the word of the Goſpel, and the Work of the Spirit always go together; not that God is tyed to any means, but that he tyeth himſelf to the means: Rom. 1.16. Hence the Goſpel is called, The power of God to Salvation, becauſe the power of God ordinarily, and in common courſe appears therein: The Waters of Life and Salvation run only in the channel of the Goſpel; there are Golden mines of Grace, but they are only to be found in the Climates of the Goſpel, Nay, obſerve this, when all arguments prevail not with Corruption, to perſwade the Heart to go to God, one Text of Scripture will ſtand a man in ſtead above all Humane Learning and Inventions, becauſe the Spirit goes forth in this, and none elſe.

This may teach us the worth of the Goſpel above all other things in the World, for it is accompanied Uſe. 1. with the Spirit, and brings Salvation with it. What if a man had all the Wealth and Policy in the World, and wanted this? He were a Fool: What if one were able to dive deep into the ſecrets of Nature to know the Motions of the Stars, to ſpeak with the Tongues of Men and Angels, and yet knew nothing belonging to his Peace, what avails it? Why do we value a Mine, but becauſe of the Gold in it? Or a Cabinet, but becauſe of the Pearl in it? O this is that Pearl we ſell all for.

Wouldeſt thou know whether thou art Carnal Uſe. 2. or Spiritual? Obſerve then, if thou haſt the Spirit, it ever came with the Goſpel: See then, how the Soul ſtands affected with the Goſpel, and ſo it ſtands affected to the Spirit, Is it ſo (may every Soul reaſon with it ſelf) that I will not ſuffer the Word to prevail with me? Then ſhall I miſs of the Spirit, then will Chriſt none of me. O Remember, the time will come when you muſt die as well as your Neighbours, and then you will ſay, Lord Jeſus, forgive my ſins; Lord Jeſus, receive my Soul: But Chriſt will anſwer, Away, be gone, you are none of mine, I know you not. Any man, whether Noble or Ignoble, let him be what he will be, if he hath not the Spirit he is none of Chriſts: His you are to whom you obey; but Pride and Covetouſneſs you obey: Pride therefore will ſay, Rom. 6.16. This heart is mine, Lord, I have domineered over it, and I will torment it: Corruptions will ſay, We have owned this Soul, and we will Damn it. You therefore that have made a tuſh at the Word, This Wind ſhakes no Corn, and theſe words break no Bones; little do you think that you have oppoſed the Spirit: What, reſiſt the Spirit? Methinks it is enough to ſink any Soul under Heaven: Hereafter therefore think this with thy ſelf, Were he but a man that Speaks, yet would I not deſpiſe him; but that is not all, there goeth Gods Spirit with the Word, and ſhall I deſpiſe it? There is but one ſtep between this and that unpardonable ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt, only adding Malice to my Rage: I oppoſe the Father, perhaps the Son Mediates for me; I deſpiſe the Son, perhaps the Holy Ghoſt pleads for me; but if I oppoſe the Spirit, none can ſuccour me.

CHAP. VI. Sect. 1.

The Anſwer on mans part for the Soul to cloſe with, and to relie on Chriſt.

Hitherto of the Call on God's part; now we are come to the Anſwer on mans part. No ſooner hath the Goſpel and God's Spirit clearly revealed the fulneſs of God's mercy in Chriſt, but then the whole Soul (both the Mind that diſcovers mercy, and Hope that expects it, and Deſire that purſues it, and Love that entertains it, and the Will that reſts on it) gives anſwer to the Call of God therein. Mercy is a proper object of all theſe; of the Mind to be enlightned, of Hope to be ſuſtained, of Deſire to be ſupported, of Love to be cheared: Nay, there is a full ſatisfactory ſufficiency of all good in Chriſt, that ſo the will of man may take full repoſe and reſt in him; therefore the Lord ſaith, Come unto Matth. 11 28. me, all that are weary and heavy-laden; Come, Mind, and Hope, and Deſire, and Love, and Will, and Heart: They all anſwer, We come: The Mind ſaith, Let me know this Mercy above all, and deſire to know nothing but Chriſt and him Crucified: Let me expect this Mercy (ſaith Hope,) that belongs to me, and will befal me: Deſire ſaith, Let me long after it: O, ſaith Love, let me embrace and welcome it: O, ſaith the Heart, let me lay hold on the handle of Salvation; here we will live, and here we will die at the Footſtool of God's Mercy. Thus all go, Mind, Hope, Deſire, Love, Joy, the Will and all lay hold upon the Promiſe, and ſay, Let us make the Promiſe a prey, let us prey upon mercy, as the wild Beaſts do upon their Proviſion. Thus the faculties of the Soul hunt and purſue this mercy, and lay hold thereupon, and ſatisfie themſelves herein.

Sect. 2. A ſight of Chriſt, or of Mercy in Chriſt.

But for a further diſcovery of theſe Works of the Soul, we ſhall enter into particulars: And for their order; Firſt, the Lord lets a light into the mind, for what the eye never ſeeth, the heart never deſireth, hope never expecteth, the Soul never embraceth: If the Soul then ſeems to hang afar off, and dares not believe that Chriſt will have mercy on him; in this caſe the Spirit lets in a light into his Heart, and diſcovers unto him, that God will deal graciouſly with him. It is with a Sinner, as with a Man that ſits in darkneſs, haply he ſeeth a light in the ſtreet out of a Window, but he ſits ſtill in darkneſs, and is in the dungeon all the while, and he thinks, How good were it, if a man might enjoy that light? So, many a poor humble-hearted broken Sinner ſeeth, and hath an inckling of Gods mercies, he heareth the Saints ſpeak of Gods Love, and his Goodneſs, and compaſſion; Ah (thinks he) how happy are they? Bleſſed are they, what an excellent condition are they in? But I am in darkneſs ſtill, and never had a drop of mercy vouchſafed unto me: At laſt, the Lord lets a light into his houſe, and puts the Candle into his own hand, and makes him ſee by Particular evidence, Thou ſhalt be Pardoned, and thou ſhalt be Saved.

The manner how the Spirit works this, is diſcovered in three paſſages.

Firſt, the Spirit of the Lord meeting with an humble, broken, lowly, ſelf-denying Sinner (he that is a proud, ſtout-hearted Wretch, knows nothing of this matter) it opens the eye, and now Epheſ.3.4: the humbled Sinner begins to ſee (like the man in the Goſpel) ſome light and Glimmering about his underſtanding, that he can look into, and diſcern the ſpiritual things of God.

2. Then the Lord lays before him all the riches of the Treaſure of his Grace; no ſooner hath he given him an eye, but then he lays colours before him (the unſearchable riches of Chriſt) that he may ſee and look, and fall in love with thoſe ſweet Treaſures; and then ſaith the Soul, O that mercy, and Grace, and Pardon were mine. O that my ſins were done away! The Lord ſaith, I will refreſh them that are heavy-laden; then ſaith the Soul, O that I had that refreſhing! You ſhall have reſt, ſaith God; O that I had reſt too, ſaith the Soul! And now the Soul begins to look after the mercy and compaſſion which is laid afore it.

3. The Spirit of the Lord doth witneſs or certifie throughly and effectually to the Soul, that this mercy in Chriſt belongs unto him, and without this, the Soul of an humble, broken-hearted Sinner hath no ground to go unto Chriſt: What good doth it an hungry ſtomach to hear that there is a great deal of cheer and dainties provided for ſuch and ſuch men, and he have no part therein? Take a Beggar that hath a thouſand Pounds told before him (he may apprehend the ſum of ſo much Gold, and ſo much Silver) but what is all that to me (ſaith he) if in the mean time I die and ſtarve? It falls out in this caſe with a broken-hearted Sinner, as with a Prodigal Child: The Prodigal he has ſpent his means, and abuſed his Father, and now is there a Famine in the Land, and poverty is befallen him; he knows indeed there is meat and cloaths enough in his Fathers Houſe, but (Alaſs!) What can he expect thence but his Fathers heavy diſpleaſure? If a man ſhould ſay, Go to your Father he will give you a Portion again; would he (think you) believe this? No, (would he ſay) it is my Father I have offended, and will he now receive me? Yet ſhould a man come and tell him, that he heard his Father ſay ſo, and then ſhew him a Certificate under his Fathers hand that it was ſo, this would ſure draw him into ſome hope that his Father meant well towards him: So it is with a Sinner when he is apprehenſive of all his rebellions; if a man ſhould tell ſuch a Soul, Go to God and he will give you abundance of mercy and compaſſion; the Soul cannot believe it, but thinks, What, I mercy? No, no: Bleſſed are they that walk humbly before God, and conform their lives to his Word, let them take it; but for me, it is mercy I have oppoſed, it is Grace I have rejected; no mercy, no grace for me: But now if God ſend a Meſſenger from Heaven, or if it come under the hand of his Spirit, that he will accept of him, and paſs by all his ſins, this makes the Soul grow into ſome hopes, and upon this ground it goes unto the Lord: But here obſerve me, that none either in Heaven or in Earth, but only Gods Spirit can make this Certificate; when it is Night, all the Candles in the World cannot take away the darkneſs: So all the means of Grace and Salvation, all the Candle-light of the Miniſtery, they are all good helps, but the darkneſs of the Night will not be gone, before the Sun of Righteouſneſs ariſe in our Hearts. Hence it is that it proves ſo difficult a matter to comfort a diſtreſſed Soul; I ſhall one day periſh, ſaith David, I ſhall one day go down to Hell, ſaith the Soul: Let all the Miniſters under Heaven cry, comfort ye, comfort ye: Still he replies, I mercy? And I comfort? Will the Lord pardon me? It is Mercy I have deſpiſed and trampled under my Feet; and I mercy? No, no: Thus we Miniſters obſerve by experience, ſome that in their own apprehenſions are gone to the bottom of Hell, we make known to them Reaſons, and Arguments, and Promiſes, but nothing takes place; what's the the Reaſon? O none but Gods Spirit can do it; he muſt either come from Heaven, and ſay, Comfort ye, Comfort ye, my people, or it will never prevail: Let me ſpeak therefore to you that are Miniſters, you do well to Labour to give Comfort to a poor fainting Soul, but always ſay, Comfort, Lord: O Lord, ſay unto this poor Soul, that thou art his Salvation.

Sect. 3. Hope in Chriſt.

The mind being thus enlightned, the Lord calls on the affections; Come Deſire, Come Love; But the firſt voice is to Hope, now Hope is a faculty of the Soul that looks out for mercy, and waits for the ſame; So the Apoſtle, Phil. 1. 20. According Phil. 1.20.
to my earneſt expectation: It is a ſimilitude taken from a man that looks after another, and lifts up himſelf as high as he may to ſee if any be coming after him: ſo here the Soul ſtands as it were a tip-toe, expecting when the Lord comes; he hath heard Phil. 1.10.
the Lord ſay: Mercy is coming towards thee, Mercy is provided for thee: Now this affection is ſet out to meet Mercy afar off, it is the looking out of the Soul: O when will it be, Lord? Thou ſayeſt Mercy is prepared, thou ſayeſt Mercy is approaching; the Soul ſtandeth a tip-toe, O when will it come Lord? Here is the voice of Hope; This ſinful Soul of mine, it may through Gods Mercy be ſanctified; this troubled, perplexed Soul of mine, it may through Gods Mercy be pacified; this evil and Corruption which harbors in me, and hath taken poſſeſſion of me, it may through Gods mercy be removed; and when will it be?

The manner how Gods Spirit works this, is diſcerned in three particulars: 1. The Lord doth ſweetly ſtay the Heart, and fully perſwade the Soul, that a mans ſins are pardonable, and that all his ſins may be pardoned, and that all the good things he wanteth, they may be beſtowed: This is a great ſuſtainer of the Soul; when a poor Sinner ſeeth his ſins in their number, nature; when he ſeeth no reſt in the Creature, nor in himſelf; though all means, all help, all men, all Angels, ſhould join together, yet they cannot pardon one ſin of his; then the Lord lifteth up his voice, and ſaith from Heaven, Thy ſins are Pardonable in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

2. The Lord doth ſweetly perſwade the Soul that all his ſins ſhall be pardoned; the Lord makes this appear, and perſwades his heart that he intendeth Mercy, that Chriſt hath procured pardon for the Soul of a broken-hearted Sinner in ſpecial, and that he cannot but come unto it; by this means Hope comes to be aſſured, and certainly perſwaded to look out, knowing the Promiſe ſhall be at the laſt accompliſhed: The former only ſuſtained the Heart, and provoked it to look for Mercy; but this comforts the Soul, that undoubtedly it ſhall have Mercy: The Lord Jeſus came to ſeek and to ſave that which was loſt: Now ſaith the broken and humble Sinner, I am loſt. Did Chriſt come to ſave Sinners? Chriſt muſt fail of his end, or I of my comfort: God ſaith, Come unto me, all you that are weary, and heavy-laden: I am weary, and unleſs the Lord intend good unto me, why ſhould he invite me and bid me come? Surely he means to ſhew me Mercy, nay he promiſeth to relieve me, when I come, therefore he will do good unto me.

3. The Lord lets in ſome reliſh and taſte of the ſweetneſs of his love, ſome ſcent and ſavour of it, ſo that the Soul is deeply affected with it, and carried mightily unto it, that it cannot be ſevered; it is the letting in the riches of his Love, that turneth the expectation of the Soul another way, yea it turneth the whole ſtream of the Soul thitherward.

Uſe 1. This reproves, 1. Thoſe that caſt off all Hope. 2. Thoſe that without ground will do nothing but Hope. 1. If the Lord ſtir up the Heart of his to Hope for his Mercy, then take heed of that fearful ſin of Deſpair. Deſpair we muſt in our ſelves, and that is good; but this Deſpair we ſpeak of, is heinous in the eyes of God, and hurtful to thee. 1. Injurious to God; thou goeſt to the Deep Dungeon Iſa. 40. 27. of thy Corruption, and there thou ſayeſt, Theſe ſins can never be pardoned, I am ſtill proud, and ſtubborn: God ſeeth not, God ſuccours not, his hand cannot reach, his Mercy cannot ſave. Now mark what the Prophet ſaith to ſuch a perplexed Soul, Why ſayeſt, thou, thy way is hid from the Lord? The Lord ſaith, Why ſayeſt thou, Is any thing too hard for the Lord? O you wrong God exceedingly, you think it a matter of humility, when you account ſo vilely of your ſelves: Can God pardon ſin to ſuch unworthy creatures? It is true, (ſaith the Soul) Manaſſes was pardoned, Paul was converted, God's Saints have been received to Mercy. But can my Sins be pardoned? Can my Soul be quickened? No, no, my ſins are greater than can be forgiven. Why then, poor Soul, Satan is ſtronger to overthrow thee, than God to ſave thee; and thus you make God to be no God, nay you make him to be weaker than ſin, than Hell, than the Devil. 2. This ſin is dangerous to thy own Soul, it is that which taketh up the Bridge and cutteth off all paſſages, nay it plucks up a mans endeavours (as it were) quite by the roots: Alas, (ſaith he) what ſkilleth it for man to pray? What profits it a man to read? What benefit in all the means of Grace? The ſtone is rowled upon me, and my Condemnation ſealed for ever: I will never look after Chriſts Grace, Salvation any more; the time of grace is paſt, the day is gone. And thus the Soul ſinketh in it ſelf; Will the Lord caſt me off for ever? And will he ſhew no Favour? I ſaid, (ſaith David) This is my infirmity: The word in the Original is, This is my ſickneſs; as who ſhould ſay, What? Is mercy gone for ever? This will be my Death, then is life gone. Pſal. 77. 7.

2. This reproves and Condemns that great ſin of Preſumption, a ſin more frequent, and (if poſſibly may be) more dangerous; as they ſaid, Saul had ſlain his Thouſands, and David his ten Thouſands: So hath Deſpair ſlain his Thouſands, but Preſumption his Ten Thouſands. It is the Council of Peter, 1 Pet. 3. 14. that every man ſhould be ready to give an account of his Faith and Hope that is in him. Let us ſee the Reaſons that perſwade you to theſe groundleſs, fooliſh Hopes; you ſay, You Hope to be ſaved, and you Hope to go to Heaven, and you Hope to ſee God's face with comfort; and have you no Grounds? It is a fooliſh Hope, an unreaſonable Hope.

Uſe 2. Iſa. 40. 31. But comfort ye, comfort ye, poor drooping Spirits; They that wait upon the Lord ſhall renew their ſtrength: you ſay, you cannot do this, and you cannot do that; I ſay, If you can but hope, and wait for the Mercy of the Lord you are rich Chriſtians. If a man have many Reverſions, they that judge of his Eſtate, will not judge him for his preſent Eſtate, but for the Reverſions he ſhall have; Haply thou haſt not for the preſent the ſenſe and feeling of Gods love and aſſurance: away with that feeling, do not dote upon it, thou haſt Reverſions of old Leaſes, ancient Mercies, old Compaſſions, ſuch as have been reſerved from the beginning of the world, and know thou haſt a fair Inheritance.

Uſe 3. You will ſay, Were my hopes of the right ſtamp, then might I comfort my ſelf: but there are many falſe flaſhy hopes, and how ſhould I know that my hope is ſound and good? I anſwer you may know it by theſe particulars.

1. A grounded hope hath a peculiar certainty in it; it doth bring home unto the ſoul in ſpecial manner, the goodneſs of God, and the riches of his love in Chriſt Jeſus. It ſtands not on If's and And's, but ſaith, It muſt undoubtedly, it muſt certainly be mine; and good reaſon, for this hope hath a Word to hang and hold upon: What is that? I will wait upon the Lord, and I will hope in his Word; it is a Scripture-hope, a Word-hope: the Word ſaith, The Lord came to ſave thoſe that were loſt, Why, I find my ſelf to be loſt, ſaith the ſoul, and therefore I hope the Lord will ſeek me, though I cannot ſeek him; I hope the Lord will find me, though I cannot find my ſelf; I hope the Lord will ſave me, though I cannot ſave my ſelf. So the Word ſaith, He appointeth them that mourn in Sion, to give unto them beauty for aſhes: Will you have a Legacy of Joy, Mercy, and Pity? here it is, the Lord Chriſt left it you, I bequeath and leave this to all broken-hearted ſinners, to all you humble mourning ſinners, this is your Legacy, ſue for it in the Court, and you ſhall have it for ever. Pſal. 130. 5. Mat. 18. 11.

2. A grounded hope is ever of great power and ſtrength to hold the ſoul to the truth of the Promiſe; hence take a poor ſinner when he is at the weakeſt, under water, when all Temptations, Oppoſitions, Corruptions grow ſtrong againſt him, and he ſaith, I ſhall one day periſh by the hand of Saul, this proud, fooliſh, filthy heart of mine will be my bane, I ſhall never get power, ſtrength and grace againſt theſe ſins: Here is the loweſt under of a poor ſoul. If a man ſhould now reply, Then caſt off all hope and confidence, reject the means, and turn to your ſins: Mark how Hope ſteppeth in, and ſaith, Nay, whatſoever I am and do, whatſoever my condition is, I will uſe the means;

means; I am ſure all my help is in Chriſt, all my hope is in the Lord Jeſus; and if I muſt periſh, I will periſh ſeeking him, and waiting upon him. Why this is Hope, and I warrant that ſoul ſhall never go to hell; I will wait for the Lord, yea, though he hath hid himſelf from the houſe of Jacob. Iſa. 8. 17.

Uſe 4. The laſt Uſe is of Exhortation: I deſire you, I entreat you, (I will not ſay, I command you, though this may be enjoyned) if you have any Hope of Heaven, if you have any treaſure in Chriſt, labour to quicken this affection above all. The means are theſe:

1. Labour to be much acquainted with the precious Promiſes of God, to have them at hand, and upon all occaſions: Theſe are thy comforts and will ſupport thy ſoul: as the body without comfort is unfit for any thing, ſo it is here; unleſs a man hath that Proviſion of Gods Promiſes, and have them at hand daily, and have them diſhed out, and fitted for him, his heart will fail.

2. Maintain in thy heart a deep and ſerious acknowledgment of that ſupreme Authority of the Lord, to do what he will, and how he will, according to his pleaſure. Alaſs we think too often to bring God to our bow; We have hoped thus long, and God hath not anſwered, and ſhall we wait ſtill? Wait! Ay wait, and bleſs God that you may wait: If you may lie at Gods feet, and put your mouths in the duſt, and at the end of your days have one crumb of Mercy, it is enough; therefore check thoſe diſtempers, Shall I wait ſtill? It is a moſt admirable ſtrange thing, that a poor Worm, worthy of Hell, ſhould take up ſtate, and ſtand upon terms with God; He will not wait upon God; Who muſt wait then; Muſt God wait, or Man wait? It was the Apoſtles queſtion, Wilt thou now reſtore the Kingdom of Iſrael; to whom our Saviour anſwered, It is not for you to know the times and ſeaſons; as who ſhould ſay, Hands off, it is for you to wait, and to expect mercy, it is not for you to know. If you begin to wrangle, and ſay, How long, Lord? When, Lord? And why not now, Lord? Why not I, Lord? Now check thy own Heart, and ſay, It is not for me to know; it is for me to be humble, abaſed and to wait for mercy.

Sect. 4. A deſire after Chriſt.

WHen the Soul is humbled, and the eye opened, then he begins thus to reaſon, O happy I that ſee Mercy, but miſerable I, if I come to ſee this and never have a ſhare in it! O why not I (Lord) why not my ſins pardoned? And why not my Corruptions ſubdued? My Soul now thirſteth after thee, as a thirſty Land, my affections now hunger after righteouſneſs, both infuſed and imputed. Now this deſire is begotten thus:

When the Soul is come ſo far, that after a through conviction of ſin, and ſound Humiliation under Gods mighty hand, it hath a timely and ſeaſonable revelation of the Glorious Myſteries of Chriſt, of his excellencies, invitations, truth, tender-heartedneſs, &c. of the Heavenly ſplendor, and riches, of the Pearl of great Price; then doth the Soul conceive by the help of the Holy Ghoſt, this deſire, and vehement longing: And (leſt any cozen themſelves by any miſconceits about it, as the Notorious Sinner, the meer Civil man, and the formal Profeſſor) it is then known to be ſaving:

1. When it is joined with an hearty willingneſs and unfeigned reſolution, to ſell all, to part with all ſin, to bid adieu for ever to our darling delight; it is not an effect of ſelf-love, not an ordinary wiſh of natural appetite (like Balaam's, Numb. 23. 10.) of thoſe who deſire to be happy, but are unwilling to be holy; who would gladly be ſaved, but are loath to be ſanctified; no, if thou deſireſt earneſtly, thou wilt work accordingly; for as the deſire is, ſo will thy endeavour be.

Numb. 23. 10.

2. When it is earneſt, eager, vehement, extreamly thirſting after Chriſt, as the parched earth for refreſhing ſhowers, or the hunted Hart for the water-brooks. We read of a Scottiſh Penitent, who a little before his Confeſſion, freely confeſſed his fault, to the ſhame (as he ſaid) of himſelf, and to the ſhame of the Devil, but to the glory of God; he acknowledged it to be ſo heinous, and horrible, that had he a Thouſand lives, and could he die Ten Thouſand Deaths, he could not make ſatisfaction. Notwithſtanding (ſaith he) Lord, thou haſt left me this comfort in thy Word, that thou haſt ſaid, Come unto me, all ye that are weary and heavy-laden, and I will refreſh you: Lord, I am weary, Lord, I am heavy-laden with my ſins, which are innumerable, I am ready to ſink, Lord, even into Hell, unleſs thou in thy Mercy put to thine hand and deliver me: Lord, thou haſt promiſed by thine own Word out of thy own mouth, that thou wilt refreſh the weary Soul: And with that he thriſt out one of his hands, and reaching as high as he could towards Heaven, with a louder voice and ſtrained, he cried, I challenge thee, Lord, by that Word, and by that Promiſe which thou haſt made, that thou perform and make it good to me, that call for eaſe, and mercy at thy hands, &c. Proportionably, when heavy-heartedneſs for ſin hath ſo dried up the bones, and the angry Countenance of God ſo parched the heart, that the poor Soul begins now to gaſp for Grace, as thirſty land for drops of rain; then the poor Sinner (though duſt and aſhes) with an Holy Humility thus ſpeaks unto Chriſt, O Merciful Lord God, Thou art Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end; Thou ſayeſt it is done, of things that are yet to come; ſo faithful and true are thy Decrees and Promiſes, that thou haſt promiſed by thine own Word out of thy own mouth, that unto him that is a thirſt, thou wilt give him of the fountain of the water of life freely. O Lord, I thirſt, I faint, I languiſh, I long for one drop of Mercy: As the Hart panteth for the water-brooks, ſo panteth my Soul after thee, O God, and after the yearning bowels of thy wonted compaſſions: Had I now in poſſeſſion the Glory, the Wealth, and Pleaſures of the whole World; Nay, had I Ten thouſand lives, joyfully would I lay them all down and part with them, to have this poor trembling Soul of mine received into the bleeding arms of my bleſſed Redeemer. O Lord, my Spirit within me is melted into tears of Blood, my Heart is ſhievered into pieces; out of the very place of Dragons and ſhadow of Death, do I lift up my thoughts heavy and ſad before thee; the Remembrance of my former Vanities and pollutions, is a very vomit to my Soul, and it is ſorely wounded with the grievous repreſentation thereof; The very flames of Hell, Lord, the fury of thy juſt wrath, the ſchorchings of my own Conſcience, have ſo waſted and parched mine heart, that my thirſt is inſatiable, my bowels are hot within me, my deſire after Jeſus Chriſt, Pardon and Grace, is greedy as the Grave; the coals thereof are coals of fire, which have a moſt vehement flame: And, Lord, in thy bleſſed Book thou calleſt and crieſt, Ho, every one that thirſteth, come ye to the Waters. In that great day of the feaſt, thou ſtoodeſt and criedſt with thine own mouth, If any man thirſt, let him come unto me and drink; and theſe are thine own words, Thoſe who hunger and thirſt after righteouſneſs ſhall be filled. I challenge thee, Lord, in this my extreameſt thirſt after thine own bleſſed ſelf, and ſpiritual life in thee, by that Word, and by that Promiſe which thou haſt made, that thou perform, and make it good to me, that lie grovelling in the duſt, and trembling at thy Feet: Oh! Open now that promiſed well of life, for I muſt drink or elſe I die.

Matth. 11. 28.

Rev. 21. 6.

Iſa. 55. 1.

John 7. 37.

Matth. 5. 6.

The means to obtain this deſire, are theſe three:

1. Be acquainted throughly with thine own neceſſities and wants, with that nothingneſs and emptineſs that is in thy ſelf; a groundleſs preſumption makes a man careleſs; ſee into thine own neceſſities, confeſs the want of this deſire after the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

2. Labour to ſpread forth the exeellency of all the beauty and ſurpaſſing Glory, that is in the Promiſes of God: Couldſt thou but view them in their Proper Colours, they would even raviſh thee, and quicken thy deſires.

3. After all this, know it is not in thy power to bring thy Heart to deſire Chriſt; thou canſt not hammer out a deſire upon thine own Anvil, dig thy own pit, and hew thy own Rock as long as thou wilt; Nay, let all the Angels in Heaven, and all the Miniſters on Earth provoke thee, yet if the hand of the Lord be wanting, thou ſhalt not lift up thine Heart, nor ſtep one ſtep towards Heaven; then go to him who is able to work this deſire in thy Soul. It is the complaint of a Chriſtian, O they are troubled, becauſe they cannot fetch a good deſire from their own Souls, and one falls, another ſinks, a third ſhakes, and they are overwhelmed with diſcouragement: What a wretched heart have I? (ſaith one) I Grace? No, no, the World I can deſire; the life of my Child I long for; and I ſay with Rachel, Let me have Honour or elſe I die: But I cannot long for the unconceivable riches of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; and will the Lo[illegible] ſhew any mercy upon me; Is it thus? Remember now, deſires grow not in thy Garden, they ſpring not from the root of thy abilities: O ſeek unto God, and confeſs, In truth, Lord, it is thou from whom come all our deſires, it is thou muſt work them in us, as thou haſt promiſed them to us, and therefore Lord, quicken thou this Soul, and enlarge this Heart of mine, for thou only art the God of this deſire. Thus Matth. 12. 20. hale down a deſire from the Lord, and from the Promiſe, for there only muſt thou have it: The ſmoaking flax God will not quench: Flax will not ſmoak, but a ſpark muſt come into it, and that will make it catch fire and ſmoak; thus lay your hearts before the Lord, and ſay, Good Lord, here is only flax, here is only a ſtubborn Heart, but ſtrike thou by the Promiſe one ſpark from Heaven, that I may have a ſmoaking deſire after Chriſt, and after Grace.

Sect. 5. A Love of Chriſt.

WE have run through two affections, Hope, and Deſire, and the next is Love: A poſſible good ſtirs up Hope; a neceſſary excellency in that good, ſetleth Deſire; and a reliſh in that good ſettled, kindles Love. Thus is the order of Gods Work: If the good be abſent, the underſtanding ſaith, It is to be deſired, O that I had it! Then it ſends out Hope, and that waits for that good, and ſtays till he can ſee it; and yet if that good cannot come, then Deſire hath another proper work, and it goes up and down wandring, and ſeeketh and ſueth for Chriſt Jeſus. After this if the Lord Jeſus be pleaſed to come himſelf into the view of the Heart, which longeth thus after him, then Love leads him into the Soul, and tells the Will of him, ſaying, Lo, here is Jeſus Chriſt the Meſſiah, that hath ordered theſe great things for his Saints and people.

The Motive or ground of this Love, is Gods Spirit in the Promiſe, letting in ſome intimation of Pſal. 42. 8. Gods love into the Soul; thus Pſal. 42. 8. The Lord will command his loving kindneſs in the day time: This is a phraſe taken from Kings and Princes, and great Commanders in the field, whoſe words of Command ſtand for Laws: ſo the Lord ſends out his loving kindneſs, and ſaith, Go out, my everlaſting love and kindneſs, take a commiſſion from me, and go to that humble, thirſty and hunger-bitten Sinner and go and proſper and prevail, and ſettle my love effectually upon him, and faſten my mercy upon him; I command my loving kindneſs to do it. Thus the Lord doth put a Commiſſion into the hands of his Loving kindneſs, that it ſhall do good to the poor Soul, yea, though it withdraw it ſelf, ſaying, What, I mercy? Will Chriſt Jeſus except of me? No, no, there is no hope of Mercy for me: Indeed If I could pray thus, hear thus, and perform Duties with that enlargement, and had thoſe parts and abilities, then there were ſome comfort, but now there is no hope of mercy for me. We demand, Is this your caſe? Is it thus and thus? Are you thus humbled? And have you thus longed for the riches of his mercy in Chriſt? Lo then the Lord hath put a Commiſſion into the hands of his loving kindneſs, ſaying, Go to that poor Soul, and break open the doors upon that weary weltering Heart, and break off all thoſe bolts and rend off that veil of ignorance and Carnal Reaſon, and all thoſe Arguments: Go (I ſay) to that Soul, and chear it, and warm it, and tell it from me, That his ſins are pardoned, and his Soul ſhall be ſaved, and his ſighs and prayers are heard in Heaven; and I charge you do the Work before you come again.

Here is the ground of Love; Gods Love affecting the Heart and ſettled upon it, it breeds a love to God again; We love him, becauſe he loved us firſt: 1 John 4. 19. The burning-glaſs muſt receive heat of the beams of the Sun, before it burn any thing; ſo there muſt be a beam of Gods love to fall upon the Soul, before it can love God again; I drew them with the cords of a man, even with the bands of love; God lets in the Hoſea 11. 4. cords of love into the Soul, and that draws love again to God: He brought me into the banquetting houſe, Cant. 2. 4. and this banner over me was love; ſtay me with flaggons, comfort me with apples, for I am ſick of love. When the banner of Chriſts love is ſpread over the Soul, the Soul comes to be ſick in love with Chriſt.

Now this love of God doth beget our love in three Particulars:

Firſt, there is a ſweetneſs and a reliſh which Gods love lets into the Soul, and warms the heart with; you ſhall ſee how the fire is kindled by and by: As when a man is fainting, we give him Aqua vitæ: So a fainting Sinner is cold at the Heart, and therefore the Lord lets in a drop of his loving kindneſs. and this warms the Heart, and the Soul is even filled with the happineſs of the mercy of God; Let Cant. 1. 1. him kiſs me with the kiſſes of his mouth, (ſaith the Spouſe in the Canticles) for his Love is better than Wine: The kiſſes of his mouth are the comforts of his Word and Spirit; the Soul ſaith, O let the Lord refreſh me with the kiſſes of his mouth, let the Lord ſpeak comfort to my Heart, and this is better than Wine.

Secondly, as that ſweetneſs warms the heart, ſo the freeneſs of the love of God let in, and intimated, begins even to kindle this love in the Soul that it ſparkles again: God ſetteth out his love towards us, ſeeing that while we were yet Sinners, Chriſt died Rom. 5. 8. for us. This commends the love of God, the Lord ſends to poor and miſerable, ſinful, broken-hearted Sinners, and ſaith, Commend my mercy to ſuch a one, and tell him; That though he hath been an enemy to me, yet I am a friend to him, and though he hath been rebellious againſt me, yet I am a God and Father to him: When the poor ſinner conſiders this with himſelf, he ſaith, Is the Lord ſo merciful to me? I that loved my Sins, and continued in them, had it not been juſt that I ſhould have periſhed in them? But will the Lord not only ſpare his enemy, but give his Son for him? O let my Soul for ever rejoice in this unconceivable goodneſs of God! Be thy heart never ſo hard, if it have but the ſenſe of this, it cannot but ſtir thee to Humiliation.

Thirdly, the greatneſs of the freeneſs of this Mercy of God, being ſetled upon the Heart, inflames it; the ſweetneſs warms the Heart, this freeneſs kindles the fire; and when the greatneſs of the ſweetneſs comes to be valued, this ſets the Heart all on a flame: the Apoſtle deſires, that the Epheſ. 3. 17, 18. Epheſians being rooted and grounded in love, might be able to Comprehend with all Saints, what is the breadth and height of the love of God in Chriſt; as if he had ſaid, the unmeaſureableneſs of Gods Mercy will blow up the Soul, and inflame the heart with admirable love of God again, and will make the Soul ſay; What, I that have done all that I could againſt this good God? O it breaks my heart to think of it? There was no Name under Heaven that I did Blaſpheme and tear in pieces more than this Name; no command under Heaven I ſo much deſpiſed, as the command of God and of Chriſt; no Spirit that I grieved ſo much as the good Spirit of God; and therefore had the Lord only given me a look, or ſpoken a word to me, it had been an infinite Mercy, but to ſend a Son to ſave me, it is incomparable: I could not conceive to do ſo much evil againſt him, as he hath done good to me: O the breadth of that Mercy beyond all limits! O the length of that Mercy beyond all time! O the depth of that Mercy below a Mans miſery: O the height of that Mercy above the height of my underſtanding! If my hands were all Love, that I could work nothing but love; and if mine eyes were able to ſee nothing but love, and my mind to think of nothing but love; and if I had a thouſand bodies, they were all too little to love that God that hath thus unmeaſurably loved me a poor ſinful Hell-hound: I will love the Lord dearly, Pſal. 18. 1. (ſaith David) O Lord my ſtrength. Have I gotten the Lord Jeſus to be my comfort, my buckler and my ſhield? If I have any good, he begins it; if I have any comfort, he bleſſeth it: Therefore I will love thee dearly, O Lord my ſtrength, O how ſhould I but love thee!

Uſe. Methinks there is a poor ſincere Soul that ſaith, My underſtanding is not ſo deep as others, my Tongue runs not glib as ſuch and ſuch; I cannot talk ſo freely of the things of Grace and Salvation; I have meaner parts and cannot inlarge my ſelf in holy Duties, and holy Services; I cannot diſpute for a Saviour, or perform ſuch Duties as others can do: Yet, ſweet Soul, canſt thou love Chriſt Jeſus, and rejoice in him? O yes, I bleſs the Name of the Lord, that all I have, all my Friends, and parts, and means, and abilities, are but as dung and droſs in Compariſon of Chriſt Jeſus; it were the Comfort of my Soul, if I might be ever with him. Say you So? Go thy way, and the God of Heaven go with thee: This is a work of God that will never leave thee, it is a badge and proper livery that the Lord Jeſus gives only to his Saints; never a meer Profeſſor under Heaven ever wore it, never any Hypocrite under Heaven to whom God did intend it, but only to thoſe whom he hath effectually called, and whom he will ſave; therefore though thou wanteſt all, thou haſt this to comfort thee in the want of all; and thou mayeſt ſay, I can ſay little for Chriſt, my Tongue faulters, and my memory is weak, yet the Lord knows I love the Lord Jeſus. This is enough; David deſired no more, but what God was wont to do to his children that loved his Name, Do to me (ſaith the text) Pſal. 119. 13. 2. as thou uſeſt to do unto thoſe that love thy Name; I know thou loveſt them that love thee, and will ſave and glorifie them in the end: I deſire no more but this, do as thou uſeſt to do to thoſe that love thy Name. And doth David a King deſire no more? Sure then if thou (poor Soul) haſt ſo much as he had, it is enough, be quiet with thy childs part; Thy lot is fallen into a marvellous fair ground.

Object. Some may ſay, If this is all the difficulty; How may I know whether my love be a true love, or a falſe love? How may I know, that my love is of the right ſtamp?

Anſ. Let every man put his love upon the trial, and examine thus, Whether doeſt thou welcome Chriſt and Grace, according to the Worth of them? If thou doeſt, it will appear in theſe particulars: 1. Obſerve the root and riſe from whence thy love came; canſt thou ſay, I love the Lord, becauſe he hath loved me? Then thy love is of the right metal, and know it for ever, that that God which cannot but love himſelf, he cannot but like that love which came from himſelf: Is thy Soul affected and enlarged in love to the Lord, becauſe thou haſt felt and retained the reliſh and ſweetneſs of his Grace? Canſt thou ſay, The Lord hath let in a glimpſe of his favour? And the Lord hath ſaid in his truth, he looks to him that trembles at his Word; the Miniſter ſaid it, and the Spirit ſaith it, that my Mercy is regiſtred in Heaven: O how ſhould I Love the Lord! My ſins are many, which I have bewailed; my ſighs and ſobs I have put up to Heaven, and at the laſt the Lord hath given me a Gracious anſwer: O how ſhould I love the Lord my ſtrength dearly? If it be thus with thee, thy love is ſound, and will never fail.

2. If thou entertain thy Saviour as it beſeems him, thou muſt entertain him as a King, and that is thus; give up all to him, and entertain none with him upon terms of Honour, but ſuch as retain to him, or be attendants upon him; love all in Chriſt, and for Chriſt, but expreſs thy love and joy to Chriſt above all: He is as a King, and all the reſt are but as retainers; he that loves any thing equal with a Chriſt, it is certain he did never love Chriſt: To ſet up any thing cheek by jole with Chriſt, it is all one as if a man did put a ſlave into the ſame Chamber with the King, which is upon the Point to drive him away.

3. The Soul that rightly entertains Chriſt, and ſtudies wholly to give him contentment, he is marvellous wary and watchful, that he may not ſad that good Spirit of God to grieve him, and cauſe him to go away as diſpleaſed: See this, Cant. 3. 4, 5. Cant. 3. 4, 5. the Spouſe ſought long for her beloved, and at laſt brought him home; and when ſhe had welcomed him ſhe gives a charge to all the houſe, not to ſtir, nor awaken her Love, till he pleaſe. When a Prince comes unto the Houſe of a great Man, what charge is there given to make no noiſe in the Night, leſt ſuch and ſuch a man be awakened before his time? The Soul when it hath received the Spirit of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, doth thus; he gives a peremptory charge to keep watch and ward, and gives a charge to Hope, and Deſire, and Love, and Joy, and the Mind, and all, not to grieve and moleſt the good Spirit of God; Let there be no motion but to entertain it, no advice but to receive it, and do nothing that may work the leaſt kind of diſlike unto it.

4. He that truly entertains Chriſt, rejoyceth in the good and glory of Chriſt: When Mephiboſheth had been wrongfully accuſed to David, and when David, who had taken away all the inheritance from him, was returned in ſafety, then ſaid, David to comfort him, Thou and Ziba divide the Land: Nay, ſaid Mephiboſheth, let him take all, foraſmuch as my Lord the King is come again in peace, it matters not for inheritance; and for my ſelf and my life, I paſs not, ſith the King is returned in peace; it is enough that I 2 Kings 19. 30. enjoy thy preſence, which is better to me than goods, life or liberty: So it is with a kind loving Heart, which cannot endure to ſee Chriſts Honor and Glory laid in the duſt; but if his praiſe be advanced, then is he glad; Lord I have enough (ſaith the Soul) that Chriſt is mine, and that his Honor and Glory is magnified; whatſoever becomes of me, it matters not; let the World take all, if I may have Chriſt, and ſee him praiſed and magnified. Let this try any mans Spirit under Heaven, and labour to bring the Soul to this pitch: A Miniſter in his place, and a Maſter in his place, and every Chriſtian in his place; let it be our care to Honour God, not our ſelves; and let it be our comfort, if God may be better Honoured by others, than by our ſelves: This is our baſeneſs of Spirit, we can be content to lift up Chriſt upon our ſhoulders, that we may lift up our ſelves by it; but we ſhould be content to lie in the duſt, that the Lord may be praiſed; and if any of Gods people thrive and proſper more than thou, let that be thy joy.

5. He that welcomes Chriſt truly, covets a nearer union with Chriſt: Love is of a linking and gluing nature, and will carry the Soul with ſome kind of ſtrength and earneſtneſs, to enjoy full poſſeſſion and fellowſhip of the thing that is loved; it cannot have enough of it: Nothing (ſaith the Soul) but Chriſt, ſtill I deſire more of that Mercy, and Holineſs, and Grace, and Love in Chriſt Jeſus: As it is with parties that have lived long together in one houſe, and their affections are linked together in way of Marriage, they will ever deſire to be talking together, and to be drawing on the Marriage; ſo the Soul that loves Chriſt Jeſus, and hath his holy affection kindled, and his Spirit enlarged therein; when the Lord hath let in ſome glimpſe of his love, he thinks the hour ſweet when he prayed to the Lord Chriſt, he thinks the Lords day ſweet wherein God revealed, by the power of his Holy Ordinances, any of that rich Grace and Mercy of his: It is admirable to ſee how the Heart will be delighted to recount the time, and place, and means, when, and where the Lord did reveal it; Oh this is good (ſaith the Soul) O that I might ever be thus cheared and refreſhed! Or as the Spouſe contracted thinks every day, a year, till ſhe enjoy her beloved, and take ſatisfaction to her Soul in him: So the Soul that hath been truly humbled, and enlightned, and is now contracted to Chriſt Jeſus, Oh when will that day be, (ſaith it) that I ſhall ever be with my Jeſus! He takes hold of every word he hears, every promiſe that Phil. 1.23. reveals any thing of Chriſt, But Oh! When will that day be, that I ſhall ever be with Chriſt, and be full of his fulneſs for ever!

Uſe 2. And now let me prevail with your hearts, and work your Souls to this Duty, Love the Lord, all ye his Saints; whom will you love, if you love not him! Oh you poor ones, love you the Lord, for you have need; and all you rich ones, Love you the Lord, for you have cauſe; and you little ones too, (if there be any ſuch in the Congregation) he knocks at every mans Heart, and perſwades every mans Soul, Love ye the Lord.

Pſal. 31. 23. The means are theſe. 1. Labour to give attendance daily to the promiſe of Grace, and Chriſt; drive away all other ſuitors from the Soul, and let nothing come between the promiſe and it; forbid all other bands, that is, let the promiſe confer daily with thy heart, and be expreſſing and telling of that good that is in Chriſt, to thy own Soul. If all things be agreed between parties to be married, and there wants nothings but mutual affection; the only way to fix their affections upon one another, is to keep company together, ſo as they meet wiſely and holily: So let the Soul daily keep company with the promiſe, and this is the firſt way.

2. Labour to be throughly acquainted with the beauty and ſweetneſs of Chriſt in the Promiſe: Now there are three things in the promiſe we muſt eye and apprehend, that our hearts may be kindled with Love in the Lord: 1. The worth of the party in himſelf, Chriſt is worthy of it. 2. The deſert of the party, in regard Chriſt deſerves it. 3. The readineſs of the party in himſelf to ſeek our good, Chriſt ſeeks it.

1. Chriſt is worthy in himſelf: If we had a thouſand hearts to beſtow upon him, we were never able to love him ſufficiently, as Nehemiah ſaid, The Name of the Lord is above all praiſe; will you let out your love and affections? You may lay them out here with good advantage: What would you love? Wouldſt thou have beauty? Then thy Saviour is beautiful, Thou art fairer than the children of men, Pſal. 45. 2. Pſal. 45. 2. Wouldſt thou have ſtrength? Then is thy Saviour ſtrong, Gird thy ſword upon thy thigh, O moſt mighty, Pſal. 45. 3. Pſal. 45. 3. Wouldſt thou have riches? thy Saviour is more rich (if it be poſſible) than he is ſtrong, He is heir of all things, Heb. 1. 1. Heb. 1. 1. Wouldſt thou have Wiſdom? then thy Saviour is wiſe, yea wiſdom it ſelf, In him are hid all the treaſures of Wiſdom and Knowledge. Col. 2. 3. Col. 2. 3. Wouldſt thou have life eternal? Chriſt is the Author of life and happineſs to all that have him; and he hath not only theſe in himſelf, but he will infeoff thee in them, if thou wilt but match with him.

2. Chriſt deſerves our love, in regard of benefits to us; be man never ſo worthy in himſelf, yet if he have wronged, or expreſs'd the part of an Enemy, a woman ſaith, I will not have him though he have all the world, this takes off the affection; it is not ſo with the Lord Jeſus: as he is worthy of all love in himſelf, ſo he hath dealt mercifully and graciouſly with you: In your ſickneſs who helped you? In wants, who ſupplied you? In anguiſh of heart, who relieved you? It was Jeſus Chriſt: Oh therefore love him, deal equally with him and as he deſerves, ſo enlarge your hearts to him for ever.

3. Chriſt ſeeks our love: Here is the admiration of Mercy, That our Saviour, who hath been rejected by a company of Sinful creatures, ſhould ſeek their love: For ſhame refuſe him not, but let him have love ere he go: Had the Lord received us, when we had come to him, and humbled our Hearts before him; had he heard, when we had ſpent our days, and all our ſtrength in beging and craving, it had been an infinite Mercy: But when the Lord Jeſus Chriſt ſhall ſeek to us by his Meſſengers (it is all the work we have to do, to wooe you, and ſpeak a good word for the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; yea, and if we ſpeak for our ſelves, it is pity but our tongue ſhould cleave to the roof of our mouth) when the Lord Jeſus ſhall come and wait upon us, and ſeek our Love, O this is the wonder of mercies! Think of this, O ye Saints! The Lord now by us offers love to all you that are weary and have need. What anſwer ſhall I return to him in the evening? Shall I ſay, Lord, I have tendred thy Mercy, and it was refuſed: Brethren, it would grieve my Heart to return this anſwer: O rather let every Soul of you ſay, Can the Lord Jeſus love me; In truth, Lord, I am out of love with my ſelf; I have abuſed thy Majeſty, I have loved the World, I have followed baſe luſts, and can the Lord Jeſus love ſuch a Wretch as I am? yea, ſaith the Hoſea 14.5. Lord, I will heal their back-ſlidings, I will love them freely. He looks for no portion, he will take thee and all thy wants; get you home then; and every one in ſecret, labour to deal truly with your own hearts; make up a match in this manner, and ſay, Is it poſſible that the Lord ſhould look ſo low? That a great Prince ſhould ſend to a poor Peaſant; That Majeſty ſhould ſtoop to meanneſs? Heaven to Earth? God to man? Hath the Lord offered mercy to me? And doth he require nothing of me but to love him again? Call upon your hearts I charge you, and ſay thus, Lord if all the light of mine eyes were love, and all the ſpeeches of my Tongue were love, it were all too little to love thee: O let me love thee dearly! If you will not ſay thus, then ſay hereafter, You had a fair offer, and that a poor Miniſter of God did wiſh you well. Alas, be not coy and ſqueamiſh, the Lord may have better than you; lie down therefore, and admire at the mercy of the Lord, that thou ſhould take a company of dead dogs, and now at the laſt, ſay as the Prophet did, Lift up your heads, O ye gates! And Pſal. 24. 7, 9. be ye lift up, ye everlaſting doors, and the King of Glory ſhall come in.

Sect. 6. A relying on Chriſt.

WE are now come to the work of the Will, which is the great wheel and Commander of the Soul. The former affections were but as hand-maids to uſher in Chriſt and the Promiſes; the mind ſaith, I have ſeen Chriſt: Hope ſaith, I have waited: Deſire ſaith, I have longed: Love ſaith, I am kindled: Then ſaith the Will, I will have Chriſt, it ſhall be ſo: And this makes up the match; the ſpawn and ſeeds of Faith went before, now Faith is come to ſome perfection, now the Soul repoſes it ſelf upon the Lord Jeſu.

And this repoſing or reſting it ſelf, diſcovers a five-fold act:

First, it implies A going out of the Soul to Chriſt: When the Soul ſeeth this, that the Lord Jeſus is his aid, and muſt eaſe him, and pardon his ſins, then Let us go to that Chriſt, ſaith he, it is the Lords call, Come to me, all ye that are weary: Now this voice coming home to the heart, and the prevailing ſweetneſs of the call over-powering the Heart the Soul goes out, and falls, and flings it ſelf upon the riches of Gods Grace.

Cant. 2. 15. Secondly, It lays faſt hold upon Chriſt: When the Lord ſaith, Come, my Love, my Dove: O come away! Behold I come (ſaith ſhe) and when ſhe is come, ſhe faſtneth upon Chriſt, ſaying, My beloved is mine, and I am his: Faith lays hold on the Lord and will not let Mercy go, but cleaves unto it, though it conflict with the Lord; Should he ſlay me, (ſaith Job. 13. 15. Job) yet will I truſt in him. The caſe is like Benhadad's, who being overcome by Ahab, his Servants 1 Kings 20. 31, 31, 33. thus adviſe him: We have heard that the Kings of Iſrael are merciful Kings, we pray thee let us put ropes about our necks, and ſackcloth on our loins, and go out to the King, peradventure he will ſave thy life: Thus the ſervants go, and coming to Ahab, they deliver the Meſſage; Thy ſervant Benhadad ſaith, I pray thee let me live: And he ſaid, is he yet alive? He is my brother: Now the men diligently obſerved whether any thing would come from him, and did haſtily catch at it, and they ſaid, Thy brother Benhadad, and they went away rejoycing. This is the lively Picture of a broken-hearted Sinner, after he hath taken up arms againſt the Almighty, and that the Lord hath let in Juſtice, and he ſeeth (or hath ſeen) the Anger of God bent againſt him; then the Soul reaſons thus, I have heard, though I am a Rebellious Sinner, that none but Sinners are pardoned, and God is a Gracious God, and therefore unto him let me go: With this he falls down at the footſtool of the Lord, and Cries, O what ſhall I do! What ſhall I ſay unto thee? O thou preſerver of men! O let me live, I pray thee in the ſight of my Lord! The ſoul thus humbled, the Lord then lets in his ſweet voice of mercy, and ſaith, Thou art my Son, my love, and thy ſins are pardoned: Theſe words no ſooner uttered, but he catcheth thereat, ſaying, Mercy, Lord? and a Son, Lord? And love, Lord? And a pardon, Lord? The Heart holds it ſelf here, and will never away.

Thirdly, it flings the weight of all its occaſions and Iſaiah 50. 10. troubles (guilt and corruptions) upon the Lord Jeſus Chriſt: He that walks in darkneſs, and hath no light, let him truſt in the Name of the Lord, and ſtay upon his God; that is, if a man be in extremity, hopeleſs in miſery, and walks in deſperate diſcouragements, yea and hath no light of comfort, Let him truſt in the Name of the Lord, and ſtay upon his God: As when a man cannot go of himſelf, he lays all the weight of his body upon another; ſo the Soul goes to a Chriſt, and lays all the weight of it ſelf upon Chriſt, and ſaith, I have no comfort, O Lord, all my diſcomforts I lay upon Chriſt, and I relie upon the Lord for comfort and conſolation: Who is this, ſaith Solomon, that cometh up from the wilderneſs leaning upon her beloved? Cant. 8. 5. The party coming is the Church, Cant. 8. 5. the wilderneſs is the troubles and vexations the Church meets withal, and the beloved is the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; now the Church leans her ſelf all upon her Husband, ſhe walked along with him, but he bare all the burthen: Caſt all your care upon him, (ſaith Peter) for he careth for you, 1 Pet. 5. 7. the Original is, Hurl your care upon the Lord: The Lord 1 Pet 5. 7. will not thank you for carrying your cares and troubles about you, he requires that you hurl them upon him, for he careth for you.

Fourthly, it draws Vertue, and derives power from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt for ſuccour and ſupplies; and here is the eſpecial life of Faith, it goes for Mercy, and Grace, and Comfort in Chriſt, he knows 'tis to be had from him, and therefore he fetcheth all from him; With Joy ſhall he draw water out of the Wells of Salvation, Iſa. 12. 3. The Fountain Iſa. 12. 3. of Salvation is Chriſt, and all the waters of life, of Grace and Mercy, are in Chriſt Jeſus: Now it is not enough to let down the bucket into the well, but it muſt be drawn out alſo; it is not enough to come to Chriſt, but we muſt draw the water of Grace from Chriſt to our ſelves; They ſhall ſuck and be ſatisfied (ſaith Iſaiah) with the breaſts of her conſolations, Iſa. 66. 11. that they may milk out, and be delighted with the abundance of her Glory: The Church is compared to a Child, and the breaſts are the Promiſes of the Goſpel; now the Elect muſt ſuck out, and be ſatisfied with it; the word in the Original is, Exact upon the Promiſe, and oppreſs the Promiſe, as the Oppreſſor Grinds the Face of a poor man; ſo with an holy kind of oppreſſion you ſhould exact from the Promiſe and get what good you may from it.

Fifthly, Faith leaves the Soul with the Promiſe; yea, notwithſtanding all delays, denials, diſcouragements from God, Faith brings on the heart ſtill; it will be ſure to lie at the gate, and keep the Soul with the promiſe, whatever befalls it. Excellent is that paſſage, Gen. 32. 26. when the Lord and Jacob were Gen. 32. 26. wreſtling, Let me go, ſaith the Lord, I will leave thee to thy ſelf, I care not what becomes of thee; No, I will not let thee go, until thou haſt bleſſed me, ſaith Jacob: So the faithful ſoul lays hold upon the Lord for Mercy, Pardon, Power and Grace, and though the Lord ſeem to give him up to the Torment of Sin and Corruption, yet the Soul ſaith, Though my Soul go down to Hell, I will hold here for Mercy, till the Lord comfort and pardon, and ſubdue graciouſly theſe curſed Corruptions, which I am not able to maſter my ſelf. As it is with a Sun-dial, the needle is ever moving, and a man may jog it this way and that way, yet it will never ſtand ſtill, till it come to the North-point: So when the Lord leaves off a believing heart with frowns, and with the expreſſion of diſpleaſure, and the Soul turns to the Lord Chriſt, and will never leave till it go God-ward, and Chriſt-ward, and Grace-ward, and ſaith, Let the Lord do what he pleaſe, I will go no further, till he be pleaſed to ſhew Mercy. Thus the Soul once come to Chriſt, it will never away, but ever cleaves to the Promiſe; and is turned towards God and Chriſt, whatſoever befalls it.

Vſe 1. Poor Soul, art thou yet ſhut up in Unbelief? Do then as the Priſoners in New-Gate; what lamentable cries do they utter to every Paſſenger by? So do thou, look out from the Gates of Hell, and from under the bars of infidelity, and cry, that God would look on thee in mercy, and ſay, Spare, Lord, a poor unbelieving wretch, lock'd up under the bars of Unbelief: Good Lord, ſuccour, and deliver in thy due time. Pſal.79.11. David could ſay, Let the ſighing of the priſoners come up before thee; that indeed was meant of bodily impriſonment, yet the argument prevails much in regard of the Spiritual; Good Lord let the ſighing of priſoners come up before thee; let the ſighing of poor diſtruſtful Souls come up before thy Majeſty: O ſend help from Heaven, and deliver the Soul of thy Servant from theſe wretched diſtempers of Heart. Is there no cauſe thus to pray? He that believeth not (ſaith our Saviour) is condemned already: He is caſt in Heaven and Earth, by the Law and Goſpel; there is no relief for him abiding in this condition; lay this under thy pillow and ſay, John3.18. How can I ſleep, and be a condemned man? What if God ſhould take away my life this night? Alas! I never knew what it was to be enlightned, or wounded for ſin; I can commit ſin, and play with ſin, but I never knew what it was to be wounded for ſin; I never knew what it was to be zealous in a good cauſe; O I confeſs I have no faith at all! Beloved! Would you yield this, then were there ſome hopes that you might get out of this condition and ſtate; to have a ſenſe of its want, to go to the Lord by prayer, and to ask hearty counſel of ſome faithful Miniſter, are the firſt ſteps to obtain it. And to help a poor wretch in this caſe, O you that are gracious, go your ways home, and pray for him: Brethren, let us leave preaching and hearing, and all of us fall to praying and mourning: In truth, I condemn my own Soul, becauſe I have not an heart to mourn for him; we reprove his ſin, and condemn him of his ſin; and we muſt do ſo; but where are the heart-blood petitions that we put up for ſuch a one? Where are the tears that we make for the ſlain of our people? You tender-hearted Mothers, and you tender-harted Wives, if your Children or Husbands be in this woful caſe, O mourn for them, let your hearts break over them, and ſay, O wo is me for my Children! O wo is me for that poor husband of mine.

Vſe 2. Or Secondly, haſt thou gotten faith? Then labour to husband this grace well, and to improve it for the beſt good. It is a marvellous ſhame, to ſee thoſe that are born to fair means (I mean the poor Saints of God) that have a Right and Title to Grace and Chriſt, and yet to live at ſuch an under-rate: I would have you to live above the World, for the Lord doth not grudge his people of Comfort, but would have them live chearfully, and have ſtrong conſolations, and mighty aſſurance of Gods love: Is there not cauſe? Why, faith (if it be right) will make the life of a Chriſtian moſt eaſie, moſt comfortable. Unfaithful Souls ſink in their ſorrows upon every occaſion, but faith gives eaſe to a man in all his Converſation: 1. Becauſe Faith hath a skill, and a kind of ſlight to put over all cares to another: We take up the Croſs, but Faith hurls all the care on Chriſt; an eaſie matter it is to lie under the burthen, when another bears all the weight of it. Look how it is with two Ferry-men, the one hales his Boat about the ſhoar, and cannot get off, but tugs, and pulls, and never puts her forth to the Tide; the other puts his Boat upon the ſtream, and ſets up his Sail, and then he may ſit ſtill in his Boat; and the wind will carry him to whether he is to go: Juſt thus it is with a faithful Soul, and an unbeliever; all the care of the faithful Soul, is to put himſelf upon the ſtream of Gods Providence, and to ſet up the Sail of Faith, and to take the Gale of Gods mercy and Providence, and ſo he goes on chearfully, becauſe it is not he that carries him, but the Lord Jeſus Chriſt: Whereas every unfaithful Soul tugs and pulls at the buſineſs, and can find neither eaſe nor ſucceſs; Alas! He thinks by his own wits and power to do what he would. 2. Becauſe Faith ſweetens all other afflictions, even thoſe that are moſt hard and full of tediouſneſs; and howſoever it apprehends all troubles and afflictions, yet withall it apprehends the faithfulneſs of God, ordering all [illegible] good: And that's the reaſon why all our troubles are digeſted comfortably, without any harſhneſs at all: When the Patient takes bitter Pills, if they be well ſuggared they go down the eaſier, and the bitterneſs never troubles him; ſo it is with Faith, it takes away the harſhneſs of all inconveniencies, which are bitter Pills in themſelves, but they are ſweetned and ſuggared over by the faithfulneſs of God, for the good of the Soul; and therefore it goes on cheafrully.

You will ſay, If faith bring ſuch eaſe, how may a man that hath Faith, improve it to have ſuch comfort by it? I anſwer, the rules are four:

1. Labour to gain ſome evidence to thy own Soul, that thou haſt a title to the promiſe: The reaſon why poor Chriſtians go drooping, and are overwhelmed with their ſins and miſeries, is becauſe they ſee not their title to mercy, nor their evidence of Gods love: To the Word and to the Teſtimonies: Eſay 8.20. Take one evidence from the Word, 'tis as good as a thouſand; if thou haſt but one promiſe for thee, thou haſt all in truth, though all be not ſo fully and clearly perceived.

2. Labour to ſet an high price on the promiſes of God: One promiſe, and the ſweetneſs of Gods mercy in Chriſt, is better than all the Honours or riches in the World; Prize theſe at this rate, and thou canſt not chooſe, but find eaſe, and be contented therewith.

3. Labour to keep thy promiſes ever at hand. What is it to me I have a thing in the houſe, if I have it not at my need? If a man ready to ſwoon and die, ſay, I have a good cordial water as any in the World, but I know not where it is; he may ſwoon and die before he can find it: So when miſery comes, and thy heart is ſurcharged, O then ſome promiſe, ſome comfort to bear up a poor fainting drooping Soul, my troubles are many, and I cannot bear them: Why, now Chriſt and a promiſe would have done it; but thou haſt thrown them in a corner, and they are not to be found: Now for the Lords ſake let me intreat thee be wiſe for thy poor Soul; there is many a fainting fit and qualm comes over the heart of many a poor Chriſtian; perſecutions without, and ſorrows and corruptions within, therefore keep thy cordials about thee, and be ſure that thou haſt them within reach; take one, and bring another, and be refreſhed by another, and go ſinging to thy grave, and to Heaven for ever.

4. Labour to drink an Hearty draught of the promiſe; beſtow thy ſelf upon the promiſe every hour, whenſoever thou doſt find the fit coming; and this is the way to find comfort, Eat, O Friends, and drink ye abundantly, O well-beloved: Cant. 5. 1. The Original is, in drinking drink; ye cannot be drunken with the Spirit, as you may with wine; drink abundantly; were dainties prepared, if an hunger-ſtarved man comes in, and takes only a bit and away, he muſt needs go away an hungred: Think of it ſadly, you faithful Saints of God; you may come now and then, and take a ſnatch of the promiſe, and then comes fear, and Temptation, and Perſecution, and all quiet is gone again; it is your own fault, Brethren, you come thirſty and go away thirſty; you come diſcomforted, and ſo you go away. Many times it thus befalls us Miniſters; when we preach of conſolation, and when we pray, and confer, we think we are beyond all trouble; but by and by we are full of fears, and troubles, and ſorrows, becauſe we take not full contentment in the promiſe, we drink not a deep draught of it: Of this take heed too; 1. Of Cavelling and Quarrelling with carnal reaſon. 2. Of attending to the parlies of Satans Temptations; if we liſten to this chat, he will make us forget all our comfort.

CHAP. VII.

The growing of the Soul with Chriſt.

Hitherto of the firſt part of the Souls implantation; to wit, of the putting of the Soul into Chriſt. We are now come to the ſecond, which is, The growing of the Soul with Chriſt. Theſe two take up the nature of ingraffing a Sinner into the ſtock Chriſt Jeſus. Now this growing together is accompliſhed by two means.

1. By an union of the Soul with Chriſt.
2. By a conveyance of ſap or ſweetneſs (all the treaſures of Grace and happineſs) that is in Chriſt to the Soul.

Firſt, every believer is joined unto Chriſt, and ſo joined or knit, that he becomes one Spririt. 1. He is joined; as a friend to a friend; as a father to a child, as a Husband to a Wife; as a graft to a Tree; as the Soul to a Body, So is Chriſt to a believer, Gal. 3. 10. I live, yet not I, but the Lord Jeſus liveth in me: Hence the body of the faithful is called Chriſt, 1 Cor. 12. 12. 2. So joined that the believer comes to be one Spirit with Chriſt this myſtery is great, and beyond the reach of that little light I enjoy: Only I ſhall communicate what I conceive, in theſe three following Concluſions: 1. That the Spirit of God (the third perſon in the Trinity) doth really accompany the whole Word, but more eſpecially the precious promiſes of the Goſpel. 2. The Spirit (accompanying the promiſe of Grace and Salvation) it doth therein, and thereby leave a ſupernatural dint and power, a ſpiritual, and over-powering vertue upon the Soul, and thereby carries it, and brings it unto Chriſt: It is not ſo much any thing in the Soul, as a ſpiritual aſſiſting, and moving, and working upon the Soul, by vertue whereof it is moved and carried to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. 3. The Spirit of Grace in the promiſe working thus upon the heart, it cauſeth the heart to cloſe with the promiſe, and with it ſelf in the promiſe; and this is to be one Spirit. As it is with the Moon (the Philoſopher obſerves, That the ebbing and flowing of the Sea, is by Vertue of the Moon) ſhe flings her beams into the Sea, and not being able to exhale as the Sun doth, ſhe leaves them there, and goes away, and that draws them, and when they grow wet, they return back again; Now the Sea ebbs and flows, not from any principle in it ſelf, but by vertue of the Moon: So the heart of a poor creature is like the water, unable to move towards Heaven, but the Spirit of the Lord doth bring in its beams, and leaves a ſupernatural vertue by them upon the Soul, and thereby draws it to it ſelf.

Uſe 1. Hence an uſe of Inſtruction: This may ſhew us that the ſins of the Faithful, are grevious to the bleſſed Spirit; not only becauſe of Mercies, bonds and engagements which the believer hath received, but becauſe a man is come ſo near to Chriſt and the Spirit, to be one Spirit with Chriſt: Should a wife not only entertain a whoremonger into the houſe, but alſo lodge him in the ſame bed with her husband, this were not to be endured; and wilt thou receive a company of baſe luſts, and that in the very face and ſight of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt? What? Lodge an unclean Spirit, with a clean Spirit of the Lord! The Holy Ghoſt cannot endure this: Let no filthy communication come out of your mouth, Epheſ. 4. 29. What if their do? (you may ſay) what? A Chriſtian and a Lyer? A Chriſtian and a Swearer? Eph. 4. 30. O grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, becauſe by it you are ſealed unto the day of Redemption: The good Spirit of the Lord hath ſealed you unto Redemption, and knit you unto himſelf, and will you rend your ſelves from him and grieve him? O grieve not the Holy Spirit!

Uſe 2. 2. For Examination; If thy heart be therefore eſtranged from ſuch as walk exactly before God, becauſe they are humble and ſaithful, it is an ill ſign; when they are made one Spirit with Chriſt, wilt thou be of two Spirits with them? I confeſs a godly heart will have his fits and excurſions now and then, but all this while this is poyſon, and the Soul of a godly man ſees this, and is weary of it, and is marvellouſly burthened with it, and ſaith, O vile wretch that I am, what would I have? And what is he, that I cannot love him? Is it becauſe the good Spirit of the Lord is there? Shall I reſiſt the good Spirit of the Lord? And ſo commit the ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt? Away thou vile wretched heart, I will love him: Thus the Soul labours and ſtrives for that exactneſs, and would fain have that goodneſs which he ſees in another.

Secondly, as there is an Union with Chriſt, ſo there is a conveyance of all Spiritual Grace from Chriſt, to all thoſe that believe in him: If you would know the Tenure of this Covenant, and How Chriſt conveyeth theſe ſpiritual graces unto us, it diſcovers it ſelf in theſe Particulars: 1. There is fully enough in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt for every faithful Soul. 2. As there is enough in Chriſt, ſo Chriſt doth ſupply or Communicate whatſoever is moſt fit. 3. As the Lord doth Communicate what is fit, ſo he doth preſerve what he doth beſtow and communicate. 4. As the Lord doth preſerve what he communicates, ſo he quickens the Grace that he now doth preſerve. 5. As the Lord quickens what he preſerves, ſo he never leaves till he perfects what he quickens. 6. As the Lord perfects what he quickens, ſo in the end he crowns all the Grace he hath perfected: And now may I read your Feoffment to you, you poor Saints of God, you live beggarly and baſely here: Oh! If you have a Saviour you are made for ever; it is that which will maintain you, not only Chriſtianly, but Triumphantly; what you want, Chriſt hath, and what is fit, Chriſt will beſtow; if you cannot keep it, he will preſerve it for you; if you be ſluggiſh, he will quicken it in you; what would you have more? He will perfect what he quickens; and laſtly, he will crown that he perfects; he will give you an immortal Crown of Glory for ever and ever.

Uſe. Hence we ſee whither the Saints of God ſhould go to fetch ſuccour and ſupply of whatſoever Grace they want, yea increaſe and perfection of What they have already; Chriſt is made all in all to his Servants; why then, away to the Lord Jeſus: he calls and invites, I counſel thee to by of me eye-ſalve; Rev. 3. if thou be an accurſed man, buy of Chriſt Juſtification; if thou be a polluted Creature, buy of Chriſt Sanctification: Pſal. 31. With thee is the well-ſpring of life (ſaith David) and in thy light we ſhall only ſee light: It is not with us, but with thee; it is not in our heads, or hearts, or performances, 'tis only in Chriſt to be found, only from Chriſt to be fetched. I deny not but we ſhould improve all means, and uſe all helps, but in the uſe of all, ſeek only to a Chriſt, with him is the well of life; away to Chriſt? Wiſdom, Righteouſneſs, &c. all is in him, and there we muſt have them.

You will ſay, What are the means to obtain theſe Graces from Chriſt: I anſwer: Firſt, eye the promiſe daily, and keep it within view. Secondly, yield thy ſelf, and give way to the ſtroke of the Promiſe, and to the power of the Spirit; for inſtance, Imagine thy heart begins to be peſtered with vain thoughts, or with a proud haughty ſpirit, or ſome baſe luſts and privy haunts of Heart, how would you be rid of theſe? You muſt not quarrel and contend and be diſcouraged; No, but eye the promiſe, and hold faſt thereupon, and ſay, Lord, thou haſt promiſed all Grace unto thy ſervants, take therefore this Heart, and this mind, and theſe affections, and let thy Spirit frame them aright according to thy own good will; by that Spirit of wiſdom (Lord) inform me; by that Spirit of Sanctification (Lord) cleanſe me from all my Corruptions, by that Spirit of Grace (Lord) quicken and inable me to the diſcharge of every Holy Service: Thus carry thy ſelf, and conveigh thy Soul by the power of the Spirit of the Lord, and thou ſhalt find thy Heart ſtrengthened and ſuccoured by the Virtue thereof upon all occaſions.

Concluſion For Concluſion (to dart this uſe deeper into your Hearts) If every believer be joined with Chriſt, and from Chriſt there be a Conveyance of all ſpiritual Graces unto every believer; then above all labour for a Chriſt in all things: Never let thy Heart be quieted, never let thy Soul be contented until thou haſt obtained Chriſt. Take a Malefactor on whom Sentence is paſſed, and execution to be adminiſtred, ſuggeſt to him how to be rich, how to be honoured, or how to be pardoned, he will tell you, Riches are good, and Honours are good; but O, a pardon or nothing: Ah, but then ſhould you ſay, he muſt leave all for a pardon; he will anſwer again, Take all, and give me a pardon, that I may live, though in poverty; that I may live, though in miſery: So it is with a poor believing Soul. Every man that hath committed ſin, muſt ſuffer for ſin, ſaith Juſtice; the Sentence is paſſed; Every man that believes not, is condemned already, ſaith our Saviour: John3.11. What would you have now? Thou ſayeſt, thou wouldeſt have a pardon, but wouldeſt thou not have Riches? Alas! What is that to me (ſaith the Soul) to be rich and a reprobate? Honoured and Damned? Let me be pardoned; though impoveriſhed; let me be juſtified, though debaſed, yet though I never ſee good day: Why, then labour for a Chriſt, for there is no other way under Heaven; get a broken Heart; get a believing Heart: but O, above all, get a Chriſt to Juſtify thee, get a Chriſt to ſave thee: If I could pray like an Angel could I hear and remember all the Sermon; could I confer as yet never man ſpake, what is that to me, if I have not a Chriſt? I may go down to Hell for all that I have or do,; yet take this along and underſtand me aright, Chriſt is not only a Saviour of all his, Note But he is the God of all Grace; as he is the God of all pardoning, ſo he is the God of all purging and purifying unto the Soul of each Believer: Grace therefore is good, and duties are good; ſeek for all, we ſhould do ſo; perform all, we ought to do ſo; but Oh, a Chriſt, a Chriſt, a Chriſt, in all, above all, more than all. Thus I have ſhewed you the way to the Lord Jeſus: I have ſhewed you alſo how you may come to be implanted into the Lord Jeſus; and now I leave you in the Hands of a Saviour, in the Bowels of a Redeemer; and I think I cannot leave you better.

Of theſe ſome of our Worthies have written largely; and amongſt the reſt, that watchful Soul-rouzing, Soul-ſearching Shepherd: I ſhall not therefore dwell on them, but ſum what he hath delivered, in theſe following Sections.

Shepherd's Sound Believer.

Sect. 2. Of the firſt Privilege, viz. Juſtification.

THe firſt Privilge which immediately follows our Union with Chriſt, is Juſtification; which conſiſts in theſe particulars, Imputation of Chriſts Righteouſneſs, and Remiſſion of ſin.

To prevent, erroneous miſconceits, which ſpring from the confounding of things that differ, underſtand, That a man may be ſaid to be juſtified either intentionally, or virtually, or actually; either in God, or in Chriſt, or in himſelf.

1. Intentionally in God (i. e.) in Gods Purpoſe and Decree: This is from all eternity but this Decree and Intention doth not put any thing into a ſtate of actual being, but in the fulneſs of time.

2. Virtually in Chriſt: and this is from the day of Chriſts Paſſion, and in the virtue of his Satisfaction; yet this intendeth no more but that Satisfaction is made, and Remiſſion purchaſed by the Blood of Chriſt.

3. Actually in himſelf: When a man hath the poſſeſſion of Juſtification, immediately after his Union with the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Now this Juſtification conſidered, as it is a ſtate of favour, a Covenant-ſtate with God, which a man at his firſt believing is put into, is not reiterated, no more than a wife, after that firſt entrance into the relation, is frequently made a wife; yet the particular acts of Pardon and imputations of Chriſts Righteouſneſs, are continually by God communicated unto the Believer. In this reſpect this actual Juſtification (or particular Acts of Pardon) hath its degrees of progreſſion: The beginning thereof is laid in our firſt Union and Incorporation into Chriſt: the conſummation of it is not till the Judge at the latter day hath ſolemnly pronounced the Sentence of final Abſolution, and ſo ſet us in full poſſeſſion of entire Remiſſion: Between both theſe, there is a progreſſive work of Juſtification, by the conſtant actings of the Spirit applying the Blood of Chriſt by the hand of Faith, to the quiet and comfort of the Soul: The firſt we may term initial Juſtification, the ſecond progreſſive, the laſt perfective: The ſecond is the fruit of the firſt, and the preludial aſſurance of the laſt: The firſt is wrought and ſealed in the firſt Sacrament; the ſecond is wrought and ſealed in the Second Sacrament; and both theſe branches of Sacramental Juſtification, are to us the pre-aſſurance of that complemental and perfective Juſtification, the ſentence whereof putteth an end to all fears, changing our Faith and Hope into fruition and full poſſeſſion.

It hath been commonly ſaid by ſome of our beſt Divines, That Juſtification is tranſacted in our firſt Union and Incorporation into Chriſt; at which time it is conceived, That the pardon of all ſin is ſealed to the Believer * at once. But I fear them iſ-underſtanding of this point (not untrue in it ſelf, if not miſtaken and miſapprehended) hath laid the ground upon which ſome build that unhappy Structure which turneth the Grace of God into wantonneſs: Who knoweth not that Juſtification in the proper acceptation of the Word, according to the Scripture-phraſe, is the act of a Judge pronouncing a judicial ſentence, wherein he abſolveth the Perſon of the Sinner from all ſin and puniſhment due to him for ſin, and that for the alone Righteouſneſs of the ſurety Chriſt, freely imputed, and by Faith received of him? And according to this, I ſuppoſe we ſhall not erre from the truth if we ſay, 1. That a work of Juſtification, is even as yet to us future, viz. at the great and laſt day of Judgment, when we ſhall receive a final Quietus eſt, and diſcharge, and when God ſhall wipe away all tears from our eyes: And yet, 2. That in our firſt Union with Chriſt there is a work of Juſtification, viz. Actual Imputation of Chriſts Righteouſneſs, and actual Remiſſion of all ſin, or of what ſin for the preſent the Soul ſtands guilty of at once, or at that time when it's firſt united to Chriſt. I dare not ſay, that (a) Juſtification, quatenus it comprehends Imputation, and Remiſſion of ſin, is one individual Act; or that all ſins, paſt, preſent, and to come, are remitted to the Believer at once; but this I ſay, That in our firſt union, all our ſins paſt and preſent, are Actually Pardoned; and this favour received, is a pledge of aſſurance; that in future alſo, by applying our ſelves to Chriſt, we may and ſhall receive the forgiveneſs of our dayly ſins, and that at the laſt day we ſhall at once be abſolved from all Accuſations and Charges laid in againſt us, and that (b) Juſtification (beſides thoſe particular Acts of Pardon, and Imputation of Chriſts Righteouſneſs) doth connote a ſtate that the ſubject at his firſt believing is put into, viz. A ſtate of Grace, and favour, and reconciliation with God, for the imputed Righteouſneſs of Chriſt without Apoſtacy from it, either total or final.

O glorious Privilege! Eſpecially in theſe reſpects.

1. By this a Sinner is Righteous; a wonder that may aſtoniſh Angels, for a man accurſed and ſinful in himſelf, to be at that very inſtant bleſſed and righteous in another! Our own Duties, Works and Reformation, may make us at the beſt but leſs ſinful, but this Righteouſneſs makes a Sinner * ſinleſs.

2. By this a Sinner is righteous before the Judgment-Seat of God: It is God that juſtifies, who ſhall condemn? Rom. 8. 32. Not Chriſt, he is our Advocate; not ſin, for Chriſt was made ſin for us; not the Law, for Chriſt hath fulfilled the Law for us; not Satan, for God is our Judge, and if he have acquitted us, what can the Jaylor do?

3. By this we have perfect Righteouſneſs: We are as perfectly Righteous, * as Chriſt the righteous. Little Children, let no man deceive you, he that doth righteouſneſs is righteous, even as he is righteous. Indeed our own righteouſneſs, though it be the fruit of the Spirit of Grace, is a blotted, ſtain'd righteouſneſs, very imperfect and very little; but by this, the Faith of David, Peter, Paul, was not more precious than ours is, becauſe we have the ſame righteouſneſs as they had: What ſincere Soul but eſteems of perfect Holineſs more than of Heaven it ſelf? O conſider, we have it (in this ſence I now ſpeak of) in the Lord Jeſus.

4. By this we have continual Righteouſneſs: Do we complain becauſe we feel new ſin, or old ſins confeſſed, lamented, ſubdued, returning upon us again, and the ſprings in the bottom filling our Souls again that we are weary of our ſelves? O but remember, this is not a Ciſtern, but a fountain opened for us to waſh in; Zech 13. 1. as ſin abounds, ſo grace in this gift of righteouſneſs abounds much more: The Lord hath changes of Garments for us, Zech. 3. 14. by means whereof there ſhall never enter into the Lords heart one hard thought towards us, of caſting us off, or of taking revenge upon any new occaſion, or fall into ſin ſo as for final deſtruction.

5. By this we have eternal righteouſneſs, that never can be loſt. If the Lord ſhould make us as perfectly righteous as once Adam was, or as the Angels in Heaven are, we might be in danger of loſing this; but now the Lord hath put our righteouſneſs into a ſafer hand, which never ſhall be loſt: Heb. 9. 12. Dan. 9. 24. Chriſt hath obtained an eternal Redemption for us, he hath made an end of ſin, and brought in an everlaſting Righteouſneſs.

* I dare not ſay all Sins paſt, preſent, and to come are, pardoned at once; but I may ſay, that Juſtification properly ſo called is wrought at once. If you would know how at once? I anſwer with reverend Downame, at once, as excluding degrees; our Juſtification is perfect at firſt as well as at laſt: And at once as excluding iteration; our Juſtification is one continued Act from our vocation to our glorification; and in that ſence we are juſtified but once. Biſhop Downame of Juſtification. Or, as learned Burges, at once, as connoting a ſtate we are put into upon our believing. Burges of Juſtification.

a Some call this, partial and Improper Juſtification, for it only comprehends the particular acts of it, as remitting of ſin, and imputing of Chriſts righteouſneſs, which are daily and continually performed.

(b) There is (ſay ſome) a double notion of Juſtification. 1. Univerſal, and properly ſo called. 2. Partial and unproperly ſo called; or there is a Juſtification of the perſon and ſtate; and a Juſtification repeated, or rather a reiterated remiſſion; for I doubt whether it may be called Juſtification, ſaith Abbot, Rutherford, and others.

* Non formali & intrinſecâ juſtitiâ, ſed relativâ, non quoad quantitatem, ſed veritatem, ſic enim finit Applicatio infinitæ juſtitiæ. Si aliter, æque juſti eſſemus ut Chriſtus, poſſimus alios ſalvare ut Chriſtus; At non; Juſtitia Chriſti fit noſtra non quoad univerſalem valorem ſed partiuclarem neceſſitatem, & imputatur nobis, non ut cauſis ſalvationis. Sed ut Subjectis ſalvandis; juſtitia Chriſti eſt vere meritoria, noſtra autem ex mera Gratia. Juſtitia Chriſti eſt ſubjective inhæſiva, nobis tantum communicativa quoad virtutem & efficaciam; 1 John. 3. 7.

6. By this we pleaſe God more, than if we had a perfect righteouſneſs in our ſelves: Do not ſay, This is a poor righteouſneſs, which is out of my ſelf in another: Suppoſe it were in our ſelves: ſuch a righteouſneſs at beſt would be nothing but mans righteouſneſs, but this is called The righteouſneſs of God: 2 Cor. 5. 21. Now what is Angelical righteouſneſs, to the righteouſneſs of God; 'Tis but a Glow-worm before the Sun; the ſmell of Eſau's Garments: The Robes of this righteouſneſs of the Son of God are of ſweeter odour than ours can be, or ever ſhall be.

By this we glorifie God exceedingly: Abraham believed, and gave glory unto God; Rom. 4. 20. ſo when we believe, we Glorifie God, we advance his Mercy and Free Grace, and triumph in it.

Rom. 5. 1. 8. By this we have Peace in our Conſciences: For Chriſts blood is ſprinkled on them; and that cools the burning Torments of them: None of our Duties can pacifie Conſcience, but as they carry us hither to this righteouſneſs, only if this Rain-bow appear over our heads, it is a certain ſign of fair weather, and that there ſhall be no more deluge of Wrath to over-whelm us.

9. By this, all miſeries are removed: When our ſins are pardoned, there is ſomething like ſickneſs, ſhame, and Death, but they are not; The inhabitants of Zion ſhall not ſay, I am ſick: The people that dwell therein ſhall be forgiven their iniquity; Iſa. 33. 24. 'tis no ſickneſs in a manner, nor ſorrow, nor affliction, if the venom, ſting, and curſe be taken away by pardon of ſin, this is the bleſſedneſs of all believers. Pſal. 32. 1, 2. Bleſſed is he whoſe iniquity is forgiven, and whoſe ſin is covered: Bleſſed is the man to whom the Lord imputeth not iniquity. Here's a bleſſing pronounced, what ſhall we do but believe it, and rejoice in it?

Sect. 3. Of the Second Privilege, viz. Reconciliation.

THe Second Privilege is Reconciliation: This I called the ſtate or condition which a Believer in his Juſtification is put into; and here I conſider it as a Privilege, which in order of nature follows pardon of ſin, as pardon of ſin in order of nature follows Imputation of Chriſts righteouſneſs: Being juſtified by Faith, we have peace with God; Rom. 5. 1. (i. e.) Chriſts righteouſneſs being imputed and ſins pardoned, we have peace with God; not only peace from God in our Conſciences, but peace with God in our Reconcilement to him, and in his favour towards us; in our Imputation and pardon the Lord accounts us juſt, in our Reconciliation the Lord accounts us Friends: Indeed our Meritorious Reconciliation is by Chriſts death; as the Kings Son, who procures his Fathers favour towards a Malefactor, who yet lies in cold Irons, and knows it not; and this is before actual pardon, or actual being: But actual and efficacious Reconciliation, whereby we come to the fruition and poſſeſſion of it, is (to my weak conception) after pardon of ſin. Now this reconciliation conſiſts in two things! 1. In our peace with God whereby the Lord lays by all acts of hoſtility againſt us. 2. In the Love and favour of God: He now loves us not only with a love of good will, as in our Election; but with a love of complacency and delight. O conſider what a bleſſed ſtate is this.

1. That God ſhould be pacified with us after anger; after provocation by ſin, after ſuch wrath which like fire hath conſumed thouſand thouſands, and burnt down to the bottom of Hell, and is now, and ever ſhall be burning upon them in Hell.

2. That God ſhould be pacified wholly and throughly, that there ſhould be no conſuming fury left for us to feel: Fury is not in me, ſaith God, Iſa. 27. 4. indeed briars and thorns (i. e.) obſtinate Sinners, that prick and cut him to the very Heart by their impenitency, he will burn them together: God out of Chriſt is a conſuming fire, but in Chriſt he is Love; 1 John 4. 16. and though there may be fatherly frowns, chaſtiſements, reproofs, and rods; though he may for a time hide his face, ſhut out our Prayers, deferr to fulfill Promiſes; yet all theſe are out of love to us in ſome ſort, and we ſhall ſee it, and feel it ſo in the latter end.

3. That the Lord ſhould be pacified eternally, never to caſt us off again for any ſins or miſeries that we fall into: This is wonderful. Thoſe whom men love, if their love be abuſed, or if their Friends be in affliction, they many times forſake, but the Lords Love and Favour is everlaſting: The mountains may depart, and the Hills be removed; but my kindneſs ſhall not depart from thee, neither ſhall the Covenant of my peace be removed, ſaith the Lord, that hath mercy on thee! Iſa. 54. 10. Nay, that which is ſomething more the abounding of our ſin, is now the occaſion of the abounding of his Grace; our very wants and miſeries, are the very objects and occaſions of his bowels and tender Mercies: Rom. 5. 20. O what a Privilege is this! Did the Lord ever ſhew Mercy to the Angels that Sinned? Did not one ſin caſt them out of favour utterly? And yet that ſo many thouſand thouſands of ſins ſhould guſh out of my Heart, and thy Heart that readeſt, againſt the Mercy, love and kindneſs of our good God, and for all this he not be incenſed; that the Lord who poured out all his anger upon his own Son for us, cannnot now pour out, nay hath not one drop left (though he would) to pour out upon us for any one of our ſins! Stand amazed ye Angels, and all the Hoſt of Heaven at this!

4. That the Lord ſhould be thus pacified with enemies: A man may be eaſily pacified with one that offends him but a little, but with an enemy, that ſtrikes at his life (as by every ſin we do at the living God) what can we ſay to this?

5. That he ſhould be pacified by ſuch a wonderful way as the Blood of Jeſus Chriſt: This is ſuch a love, as one would think the infinite wiſdom of a bleſſed God could have deviſed no greater: It is enough to burſt the Heart with aſtoniſhment and amazement, to think that the party offended (who therefore had no cauſe to ſeek peace with us again) ſhould find out ſuch a way of peace as this: Wo to the World that deſpiſe this peace.

6. That being thus pacified, we may come into Gods preſence with boldneſs at any time, and ask what we will: I wonder what he can deny us if he loves us: This is the confidence that we have in him, That if we ask any thing according to his will, he heareth us. 1 John 5. 14.

7. That all Creatures ſhould be at peace with us; Thou ſhalt be in league with the ſtones of the field, and the Beaſts of the field ſhall be at peace with thee: Job 5. 23. As when the Captain of the Army is pacified, none of the Souldiers muſt hurt or ſtrike that man; ſo no Creature muſt hurt us, nay all the Creatures that ſeem our enemies, ſhall be forced to do us good: O death, where is now thy ſting? O Grave, where is thy victory? 1 Cor. 15. 55. All our wants will make us pray the more, our ſorrows humble us the more our Temptations make us exerciſe our Graces, our Spiritual deſertions make us long for Heaven, and to be with Chriſt; not only Paul and Apollos, and the World, and Life, but Death it ſelf is ours, to do us good: We may now ſleep, and none ſhall make us afraid; Job 11. 18. we ſhall not be afraid of evil tydings; our hearts are fixed, truſting in the Lord. Pſal. 112. 7.

Sect. 4. Of the third Privilege, viz. Adoption.

THe third Privilege is Adoption, which in order of nature follows Reconciliation, whereby the Lord accounts us Sons, and gives us the Spirit 1 Joh. 3. 1. and Privilege of Sons: Behold what manner of love the Father hath beſtowed upon us, that we ſhould be called the Sons of God: The Lord accounts us juſt in our Juſtification, friends in our Reconciliation, Sons in our Adoption: Now this Adoption, is either begun here in this life, or perfected in the world to come, when we ſhall receive all the privileges of Rom. 8. 23. Sons, not one excepted. For this latter Adoption, to wit, The Redemption of our Bodies, we wait, but of the former we ſpeak, the manner of which is thus.

1. God loves Jeſus Chriſt with an unſpeakable love, as his only Son, and our elder Brother.

2. Hence when we are in Chriſt his Son, he loves us with the ſame love as he doth his Son.

Epheſ. 1. 5. 3. Hence the Lord accounts us Sons, having predeſtinated us unto the Adoption of children by Jeſus Chriſt to himſelf, according to the good pleaſure of his Will. O the excellency of this Privilege! It appears in theſe reſpects.

1. That the Lord ſhould prize us as his Sons: A man that hath Sons, eſteems them more than all his goods and ſervants; ſo the Lord eſteems of the pooreſt, unworthieſt Believer, more than of all his houſhold-ſtuff, more than of Heaven, Earth, and all the Glory of it, more than of all the Kings and great men in the world.

2. That the Lord ſhould take care for us as for Sons: In times of want we are ready to queſtion, Mat. 6. 31. What we ſhall eat or drink? How we ſhall live? O conſider, are we the Sons of God? Then he that feeds the Ravens, and Cloaths the Lillies, will provide for us; or ſuppoſe we continue in the want of Temporal things, why the Lord is therein plotting our eterHeb. 12. 11. nal good: No chaſtening for the preſent ſeemeth joyous, but grievous; nevertheleſs, afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteouſneſs, unto them which are exerciſed thereby.

3. That the Lord ſhould love us as his Sons: Sometimes we think that the Lord loves us not, becauſe we do not feel his love, or know his love; but do not we love our Sons, becauſe whiles they are young, they know not their fathers, or becauſe their fathers are ſometimes out of ſight, and have not them always in their arms? *Zion ſaid, The Lord hath for*Iſa. 49. 14. ſaken me, and the Lord hath forgotten me: Can a woman forget her ſucking child, that ſhe ſhould not have compaſſion on the ſon of her Womb? Yea, they may forget, yet I will not forget thee. We may think, becauſe we have ſo many ſins, or ſo many afflictions, that therefore the Lord loves us not; but judge we righteouſly? Have our Children no love from us becauſe they are ſick, and we keep them under a ſpare-dyet? God knows our mould and that we are but duſt: He hath freely choſen us to be his Sons, and therefore (notwithſtanding all our ſins and ſufferings) he loves us ſtill: If he ſees Ephraim bemoaning his ſtubbornneſs, as well as ſickneſs, the Lord cries out, Jer. 31. 20. and cannot hold, Is Ephraim my dear Son? Is he a pleaſant Child? For ſince I ſpeak againſt him, I do earneſtly remember him ſtill; therefore my bowels are troubled for him, I will ſurely have mercy upon him, ſaith the Lord.

4. That the Lord ſhould make us heirs and coheirs Rom. 8. 17. with Chriſt: Sons by Nature are not always heirs, but all Sons by Adoption are; We are heirs. 1. Of the viſible world, 1 Cor. 3. 22. 2. Of the other World, 1 Pet. 1. 4. 3. Of all the promiſes Heb. 6. 17. And herein Jehova himſelf comes to be our Inheritance and Portion for ever; O that ſuch veſſels of wrath, fire-brands of Hell by nature, ſhould thus become the children of God by Grace, and heirs of Heaven.

5. That the Lord ſhould give us the Spirit of Rom. 8. 15. Sons, The Spirit of Adoption, whereby we cry Abba Father; The Spirit of Aſſurance, witneſſing with our Spirit, that we are the Children of God: It doth not only witneſs to our Spirits, but with our Spirits, (i. e.) with our renewed Conſciences; thus, All Believers are Sons; but I am a Believer; therefore I am Son: Herein the Spirit bears witneſs with us in every part, premiſes, and concluſion; only it teſtifies more clearly, certainly, comfortably, ſweetly, raviſhing the Soul with unſpeakable Joy and Peace, in the concluſion: Sometimes indeed it may be ſuſpended, and ſometimes we may not hear it; or if we do, we may * Quando actus intermittitur, habitus non amitur. object againſt it, though the unbelief in part remaining in us: Yet * if we want of it in the witneſs and comfort of it, we have it in the Holineſs of it: Hence it is called The holy Spirit of God, whereby we are ſealed Eph. 4. 30. unto the day of Redemption.

Sect. 5. Of the Fourth Privilege, viz. Sanctification.

THe fourth Privilege is Sanctification, which in order of nature follows Adoption: No ſooner are we ſons, but we receive the image of our Heavenly Father in Sanctification; The manner of it is thus.

1. The Spirit works in us a principle of Spiritual life: The Scripture ſometimes calls it a Seed, ſome1 John 3. 9. times a Spring or Fountain; ſometimes The life of Chriſt, John 4. 14. becauſe it is conveyed unto us by the Spirit of Chriſt, 2 Cor. 4. 10, 11. by means of our inſeparable union with Chriſt. What name ſoever we give it, we may not conceive it to be a new faculty added unto thoſe which are in men by Nature, but an improvement of thoſe abilities to work Spiritually as they did naturally before Regeneration: Hence it is that a RegeneRom. 8. 1. rate man in Scripture is ſaid To walk after the Spirit, Gal. 6. 18. Gal. 5. 25. ——— To be led by the Spirit, ——— To walk in the Spirit.

2. From this Fountain ſprings all thoſe habits of Spiritual grace, which are ſeverally diſtinguiſhed by the names of Faith, Hope, Love, &c. Although to ſpeak properly, they are but the diverſifications of that Spiritual Principle within us, diſtinguiſhed by theſe names.

3. From theſe habits of Grace abiding in us, ordinarily proceed Spiritual motions and operations according to thoſe habits. And as it is with Natural habits, ſo it is with ſpiritual, they are much encreaſed and ſtrengthned by their motions, operations (i. e.) by the uſe and exerciſe of them, and are as much weakned by diſuſe, and neglect of ſuch an exerciſe. I deny not, but for all this, there is within us a woful, ſinful nature, croſs and contrary unto Holineſs, and leading us daily into captivity: Yet here's our Privilege, even Sanctification in part; ſurely the Lord hath given us another Name a new Nature: There is ſomething elſe within us, which makes us wreſtle againſt ſin, and ſhall in time prevail over all ſin: A bruiſed reed ſhall he not break, and Mat. 12. 20. ſmoaking flax ſhall he not quench, till he ſend forth Judgment unto victory.

The excellency of this Privilege appears in theſe particlulars.

1. This is our Glory and Beauty, even Glorification begun: What greater glory than to be like 2 Cor. 3. 18. unto God? We are changed into the ſame image, from Glory to Glory; every degree of Grace is Glory; and the perfection of Glory in Heaven conſiſts chiefly in the perfection of Grace.

2. This will give us abundance of ſweet peace: From whence come troubles, and doubts of Gods favour and love? Is it not ſome guilt or decay here? Is it not ſome boldneſs to ſin? Is it not our ſecret dalliance with ſome known ſin, continued in with ſecret impenitency? On the other ſide, what was 1 Cor. 1. 12. Paul's rejoicing? Hezekiah's peace? The one cryed, that In all ſincerity and ſimplicity he had his converſation amongſt men; Iſa. 38. 2, 3. the other, Lord remember I have walked before thee uprightly: Not that this weas the ground of their peace, for that only is Free Grace in Chriſt, but the means of their peace: That is a curſed peace, that is kept by looking to Chriſt, and yet loving our luſts.

3. This will make us fit for Gods uſe. A filthy unclean Veſſel is good for nothing, till cleanſed; a man muſt firſt purge himſelf and then he ſhall be a 2 Tim. 2. 21. veſſel unto Honour ſanctified and meet for the Maſters uſe, and prepared unto every good Work.

4. By this we have moſt ſweet and comfortable evidence of our Juſtification: Nor is this a running upon the Covenant of Works; Is not Sanctification (the writing of the Law in our hearts) a privilege of the Covenant of Grace, as well as Juſtification: And can the evidencing of one Privilege by another, be a running upon the Covenant of Works? O conſider, how many Evangelical Promiſes are made to perſons inveſted with ſuch and ſuch Graces! As of Poverty, Mourning, Meekneſs, &c. And to what Mat. 5. 3, 4, 5, 6. end? But that every one may take, and be aſſured of his Portion manifeſted particularly therein? Surely none are juſtified, but they are ſanctified; or if not ſanctified, they are not juſtified.

Sect. 6. Of the Fifth Privilege, viz.. Glorification.

THe fifth Privilege is Glorification, which is the laſt in excecution of God's eternal Purpoſe towards all his beloved and choſen ones: And hereby we are made partakers of thoſe endleſs and unutterable joys, which neither eye hath ſeen, nor ear hath heard, nor the Heart of any man conceived: But of this ye have ſeveral Sermons in my Laſt things, enough to chear up all thoſe precious Hearts that have any Title to, or intereſt in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt: My meaning therefore is, to paſs by theſe Privileges, and Secondly to come to the Duties, which gracious Spirits, in all faithful and thankful Obedience unto him that hath called them, are ready to fall upon.

CAAP. II. SECT. I.

Of Duties in General.

And Firſt, of the Equity of Duties.

NO ſooner is the Soul Tranſlated into the ſtate of Grace, and crowned with thoſe Glorious Privileges, but immediately it cries out, O Lord, what ſhall I now do for thee? How ſhall I now live to thee? Good reaſon; the Soul ſhould now give up her ſelf to Chriſt, for ſhe knows ſhe is not her own, but Chriſts. Can there be ſuch a Heart in any Chriſtian, as now to caſt off Duty, and to continue in ſin, becauſe ſo much Grace hath abounded? O no! The love of 2 Cor. 5. 14, 15. Chriſt conſtrains us (ſaith the Apoſtle) becauſe we thus judge, —— That he died for all, that they which live, ſhould not henceforth live unto themſelves, but unto him which died for them, and roſe again. There is a principle of love now in the Hearts of Believers, and this love of Chriſt conſtrains them to live to Chriſt: 1 Pet. 2. 9. Ye are now a choſen Generation, a Royal Prieſthood, a Holy Nation, a peculiar People that ye ſhould ſhew forth the praiſes of Chriſt, who hath called you out of darkneſs into his marvellous light: What bleſſed Titles are theſe? And to what end? But that they who are ſo ennobled by Chriſt, may now adorn the Goſpel 11. of Chriſt, and ſhew forth the praiſes of him who hath called them? Dearly Beloved (ſaith the Apoſtle) I beſeech you, as ſtrangers and pilgrims, abſtain now from fleſhly luſts, which war againſt the Soul, having your converſation honeſt among the Gentiles, that whereas they ſpeak againſt you as evil doers, they may by your good works which they ſhall behold, Glorifie God in the day of Viſitation. What duties muſt they fall on? 12. 13. 17. 19. 1. Submit your ſelves to every Ordinance of man for the Lords ſake. 2. Honour all men. 3. Love the Brotherhood. 4. Fear God. 5. Honour the King. 6. Suffer wrongs. You have herein Chriſt for example, and you muſt do all for Chriſts ſake; or if theſe Duties will not Luke 1. 74, 75. contain all, Zachary tells us that being delivered out of the hands of our enemies, we muſt ſerve him without fear, in holineſs, (in all duties of the firſt Table) and righteouſneſs (in all Duties of the Second Table) all the days of our life. Indeed how can we love Chriſt, and neglect duty to Chriſt? If you love me (ſaith Chriſt) keep my Commandments; the love of Chriſt will conſtrain us to embrace his Commandments, as a moſt precious Treaſure. John 14. 15. I hope aſſuredly, that the God of Grace and mercy will keep by his Power to Salvation, all thoſe perſons he doth deliver; and that he will ſow the ſeeds of Grace in their Hearts, that they may not ſin (i. e.) preſumingly. And I hope alſo God will meet with ſuch as are diſturbers of of the Truth of Chriſt, and peace of the Goſpel, by their baſe and vile converſations: And I ſhall recommend to them the reading of the Epiſtle of Jude, where they may ſee the fearful wrath of God upon ſuch perſons as abuſe the Grace of God to ſin. O let not the love of Chriſt thus manifeſted, be ſo baſely requited at your hands, ſeeing the Lord hath ſo freely loved you, and given Chriſt to you, that you might be to the praiſe of the Glory of his Grace, in a Godly Chriſtian Converſation, whereunto you are ordained. An ingenious Confeſſion of Dr. Criſp's, our open adverſary; ſome that extol him may do well to remember it. See Dr. Criſp Aſſurance of Faith. For you are Gods workmanſhip (ſaith the Apoſtle) Created in Chriſt Jeſus unto good works, which God hath before ordained, that you ſhould walk in them. Eph. 2. 10. And I beſeech you always to remember, That you cannot anſwer the free love of God towards you any other way, but by ſhewing it in a fruitful Converſation in the World; conſidering that one end of your Redemption, that Chriſt who gave himſelf for you, Titus 2. 14. might redeem you from all iniquity, and purifie you unto himſelf, a peculiar people zealous of good works. Here's good equity for Duties; the Soul cannot conſider her deliverance by the Blood of Chriſt and by the Spirit of Chriſt, but ſhe cries, What ſhall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits towards me? I will take the cup of Salvation, and call upon the Name of the Lord: I will pay my vows unto the Lord, now in Pſal. 116. 12, 13, 14, 16. the preſence of all his people: O Lord, truly I am thy Servant, I am thy Servant, and the Son of thy hand- maid; thou haſt looſed my bond. For a man that hath a touch of the loving kindneſs of Chriſt, and therefore ſtands ready to ſpeak forth the praiſe of the Glory of his Grace, that hath ſo freely ſaved him, it muſt needs be an acceptable ſervice to God in Chriſt.

Sect. 2. Of the inſufficiency of Duties.

Job 22. 2, 3. BUt alas, what are theſe Duties to my Lord? Or what are theſe Duties in themſelves?

1. All the Duties of man, they are nothing at all unto God: Can a man be profitable unto God, as he that is wiſe can be profitable unto himſelf? Is it any pleaſure to the Almighty, that thou art righteous? Or is it gain to him, that thou makeſt thy ways perfect? Job 35. 7. If thou be righteous, what giveſt thou him? Or what receiveth he from thine hand? O My Soul thou haſt ſaid unto the Lord, Thou art my Lord: And what then? What recompence to God for this propriety? Nay, David Pſal 16. 2. is here non-pluſs'd, My goodneſs extendeth not unto thee. All the ſervice of Men and Angels, though they run parallel with the longeſt lines of eternity, are no ſufficient recompence for my Souls deliverance: Luke 17. 10. When we have done all we can, ſtill we muſt ſay, we are unprofitable Servants.

1. All the Duties of man, as they are done by man, are in that reſpect ſinful: What is Duty but man's tye to that which is due? Or (if we follow the Latines) what is Duty but Obedience commanded by God, to be performed by man? Now wherein any thing is to be done as of man, therein is ſome mixture of ſin: all our Righteouſneſs is as filthy Rags, as a menſtruous Cloth; Iſa. 64. 6. How, All our righteouſneſs? It is true, whilſt a believer's Heart is overcaſt with groſs vapours, and is more than ordinarily dull in hearing, whilſt it flies low and ſlow in praying, and is ſomewhat ſtiff, and untoward in faſting above meaſure, ſuch Righteouſneſs goes uſually for ſin: But if a Soul gets under full ſail; if it be filled with a ſtiff gale of the Spirit of Chriſt; if floods of meltings flow from it; if it cry mightily, be ſwift to hear, be greedy in ſucking in Divine Truths, and be ſomewhat exact in obſerving practical righteous means, to mourn and pray luſtily, being helpt by the Spirit herein: Are ſuch Prayers, Mourning, and other Divine Exerciſes in any ſort ſinful? Yes, as there is ſome mixture of Man's infirmity in them: and in our beſt Duties there is ſome ſuch mixture; For all our righteouſneſs is as filthy Rags, as menſtruous Clothes; I know who hath ſaid it, and yet I know not wherein to contradict it. "Chriſtians may "diſtinguiſh between that which is the Spirit, in "works after renovation, and the whole work af- "ter they have done it: Now although the moti- "ons and aſſiſtance of the Spirit be pure, holy and "without skum in the ſpring, to wit, in it ſelf, yet "by that time theſe motions and aſſiſtance have "paſſed through the Channels of their Hearts, "and have been mixed with their manifold Cor- "ruptions in doing, even the whole work thereby "becomes polluted. * With him agrees one truly Orthodox, ſaying; Albeit our good works are perfect "in reſpect of the Spirit, from whom they firſt "flow, yet are they polluted when they paſs from "us, becauſe they run through our corrupted hearts "and wills, as fair Water that runs through a Dir- "ty Channel. If this be ſo, that our beſt recompence to Chriſt for his loves be unprofitable to him, and ſinful as done by man; What ſhall I ſay? How muſt I carry my ſelf (ſaith the Soul) to my Redeemer?

Sect. 3. Of the Healing of Duties.

I Dare not but obey; though all the Duties in the World are inſufficient to recompence thoſe Bowels of Gods mercies in Chriſt, I muſt not therefore caſt away Duties. It is true, I cannot, but ſin in all I do, my beſt Duties (nakedly and barely conſidered in themſelves) are tainted, poyſoned, and mingled with ſin: But will it follow, that becauſe I cannot be more clean, therefore I muſt be more filthy than needs? Nay, O my Soul, if thou art married to that Bridegroom Chriſt, Duties and all things elſe are clean to thee. The whole filth and dung of our Works, through faith in Chriſt, is exracted by Chriſt, and he preſenting the ſame, purged by himſelf alone, they are accepted with God. Dr. Criſp on Phil. 3. 8. In this reſpect there is an healing of Duties, if we be in Chriſt. Certainly that fruit which cometh from a root of Faith, muſt needs be good Fruit, I believe, therefore I ſpeak, Pſal. 116. 10. ſaith the Pſalmiſt: O my Soul, canſt thou ſay thus? I believe, therefore I pray; I believe, therefore I ſanctifie the Lords Day; I believe, therefore I do all duties of Obedience: Thy Obedience then is the fruit of Paradiſe, for it grows on the very Tree of Life Chriſt is the Son of Righteouſneſs, that ariſeth with healing in his Wings: Mal. 4. 2. Chriſt is that Sun, that by his heat of Love extracts all the filth of ſin out of thy Duties performed; and ſo thy Duties are healed, the ſpiritual part of them being preſented by the interceſſion of Chriſt, and carnal defects covered by the righteouſneſs of Chriſt, in whom the Father is always well-pleaſed.

Sect. 4. Of the manner of Healing our Duties.

NOw the manner (O my Soul) how Chriſt heals our Duties; It is thus:

1. He takes our perſons, and carries them into God the Father, in a moſt unperceivable way to us; he knows, that if our perſons, be not firſt accepted, our Duties cannot be accepted; Love me, and Love my Duty; hate me, and hate my Duty. It is true, that in the Covenant of Works, God firſt accepted of the Work, and then of the Perſon: But in the Covenant of Grace, God firſt accepts of the Perſon, and then of the Work: Now therefore, that our Works (our Duties) may be accepted, Chriſt Jeſus our great High Prieſt, firſt takes our Perſons, and carries them into the Preſence of God the Father; This was plainly ſhadowed out to us by that of the High Prieſt, who went into the Holy of Holies, with the names of all the tribes upon his Breaſt. Exod. 28. 6.

2. As Chriſt takes our Perſons, and carries them in to God the Father; ſo when we perform Duty, he obſerves what evil or failing there is in that Duty, and draws it out before he preſents it to God the Father: As a Child that would preſent his Father with a poſie, he goes into the garden, and gathers flowers and weeds together; but coming to his Mother, ſhe picks out the Weeds, and binds up the flowers by themſelves, and ſo it is preſented to the Father. Thus we go to Duty, and we gather Weeds and Flowers together; but Chriſt comes and picks out the Weeds, and ſo preſents nothing but Flowers to God the Father; Who may abide the day of his coming (ſaid the Prophet of Chriſt) and who ſhall ſtand when he appeareth? For he is like a refiners fire, and like fullers ſoap: And he ſhall ſit as a refiner and purifier of Silver, and ſhall purifie the Sons of Levi, and purge them as Gold and Silver, that they may offer unto the Lord an offering in righteouſneſs; then ſhall the offerings of Judah and Jeruſalem be pleaſant unto the Lord: Mal. 3. 2, 3, 4. Mark? Then ſhall their offerings be pleaſant: Then? When? When he had purged themſelves, their Sacrifices, and their offerings. Thus it was in the days of his fleſh and much more now.

3. As Chriſt takes away the iniquity of our Holy things, ſo he obſerves what good there is in any of our Duties, and with that he mingles his own Prayers, Interceſſions, Incenſe, and Preſents, all as one Work mingled together unto God the Father: And another Angel (viz. the Angel of the Covenant) came Rev. 7. 3, 4. and ſtood at the Altar, having a Golden Cenſer; and there was given to him much incenſe, that he ſhould offer it with the Prayers of all Saints upon the Golden-Altar, which was before the Throne: And the ſmoke of the incenſe which came with the Prayers of the Saints, aſcended up before God, out of the Angels hand.

Sect. 2. The Soul's Queries in this Caſe.

1. IF this be ſo, O my Soul, what is thy caſe? Are not moſt of thy Duties performed with 1. Query. many failings, infirmities, hardneſs of heart, ſtraitneſs of Spirit, diſtracting thoughts? And is there any healing for ſuch a Duty as this?

Anſw. O Yes! For firſt, in every Duty we perform, there are two things; there is the Sacrifice, and there is the Obedience in offering of the Sacrifice; the Sacrifice may be imperfect, and yet our obedience in offering the Sacrifice may be perfect, with Goſpel-perfection. Secondly, God deals with our Duties, as with our perſons; though he finds a great deal of ungodlineſs in them, yet he imputes his righteouſneſs unto them and ſo he juſtifies our Duties, which in our eyes are moſt ungodly. This indeed is a wonder; did we ever hear or read of any Seal, that when it was ſet upon the Wax, would change the Wax into its own Metal? Or did we ever hear or read of any ſtamp, that being ſet upon Braſs, it would change the Braſs into Silver, or being ſet upon Silver, it would change the Silver into Gold? O but when Chriſt comes unto a Duty and ſets his own ſtamp, and his own righteouſneſs upon a Duty, that which was Braſs before, (i. e.) full of failings, and much unrighteouſneſs, he changes it into Silver, into Gold; he only hath the Philoſophers Stone (as I may ſo ſpeak) and all that Chriſt toucheth, it preſently turns into Gold; he turns all our Duties into Golden Duties, and ſo preſents them unto God the Father.

2. Query. 2. But how ſhould I know that Chriſt thus takes my Duties and heals them, and mingles them with his own incenſe, and carries them in unto God the Father?

Anſw. Conſider, didſt thou never find a Spiritual fire come down (as it were) upon thy Heart in Duty or after Duty? In the times of the Old Teſtament, if they offered up a Sacrifice, and a material fire came down from Heaven, and burnt up the Sacrifice to aſhes, it was a certain Teſtimony that the Sacrifice was accepted: Now in the times of the Goſpel, we muſt not expect material fire to come down upon our Duties, but hath the Lord at any time cauſed an inward and ſpiritual fire to fall down upon thy Heart, warming the Spirit in Duty? There the Lord ſpeaks thus much to thee, that thy Sacrifice is turned into aſhes, and it is accepted by Jeſus Chriſt.

3. Query. 3. O but whence comes this fire now in theſe Goſpel-times?

Anſw. It iſſues from the Blood and interceſſions of Chriſt our Great High Prieſt; it is the efficacy of his Blood, and power of his glorious interceſſion that when thou feeleſt any good in Duties doth at that very inſtant prevail with God the Father for what thou feeleſt: Say then, Do I now in this Ordinance, or in this Duty, feel my Heart warmed, or ſavingly affected? O I ſee, I am bound to believe, that the Lord Jeſus who ſits in Glory at the right Hand of God, now, now he remembers me a poor worm on Earth; now I feel the fruit of his Death and interceſſion in Heaven; now I feel his Spirit, Power, Grace, Comfort, Preſence, Sweetneſs; now I taſte, I drink, I enjoy, and am abundantly ſatisfied with his Rivers of Pleaſures; And if this Preſence of Chriſt be ſo ſweet, what is himſelf then? O my Soul, if ever thou doſt thus reliſh the Blood and Spirit of Chriſt upon thy Spirit in duties, go thy way, and give Glory to God.

Sect. 4. No reſting in Duties.

AND yet be wary, O my Soul; it was Luther's ſaying, Take heed not only of thy ſins, but alſo of thy good Duties; they are apt, (by reaſon of our Corruption) to bring men into themſelves, and this is very dangerous. Certainly, a man may not only exclude Chriſt from his Soul by groſs ſins, but by ſelf-confidence: Ye are they which juſtifie your ſelves, ſaid Chriſt to the Phariſees. Take a prophane man, Lu. 16.19. what makes him Drink, Swear, Cozen, Game, Whore? Is there no God to puniſh? Is there no Hell hot enough to torment? Are there no Plagues to confound him? Yes: Why ſins he then? Oh! He prays to God for forgiveneſs, he ſorrows and and repents in ſecret (as he ſaith) and this bears him out in his lewd pranks. Take a moral man, he knows he hath his failings, and his ſins, as the beſt have, and is overtaken ſometimes, as the beſt are; Why doth he not remove theſe ſins then? Why is he not more humbled under his ſins? The Reaſon is, he conſtantly obſerves Evening and Morning Prayer, and then he craves forgiveneſs for his failings, by which courſe he hopes to make his peace with God: And hence he ſinneth without fear, and riſeth out of his fall into ſin without ſorrow; he maintains his ſins by his Duties. Take a Profeſſor, ſuch a one as may be exceedingly troubled about his ſins, as endeavours very much after mourning, repenting, reforming, and others commend him for a diligent Chriſtian, Do you not ſee how he mourns, and weeps, and prays? And now the wind is over, the tempeſt down, and there is a great calm in his Soul, how comes he to this quiet? Oh! His affections were enlarged, he hath reached ſo high, as to a very large proportion of Repentance, and Tears, and Sorrow, and Faſting, &c. and this hath given him eaſe, this hath took away the burden, and laid his Soul at reſt: O poor Soul is this all the remedy to rid thee of the ſting and Guilt of Sin? Haſt thou no more pantings, but only after Bitterneſs, Heavineſs, Mourning, Melting, Extraordinary enlargements? Why then, let me tell thee, all thy righteouſneſs (though it were more perfect than it is) is but a filthy rag. Couldſt thou weep thy heart out, ſhould thy heart melt like Wax, diſſolve Iſa. 64. 6. into water: Couldſt thou deſire and pray till Heaven and Earth ſhook, till thou hadſt worn thy Tongue to the ſtumps; Couldſt thou faſt till thy skin and bone cleaves together: Shepherds Sincere Convert. Couldſt thou promiſe and purpoſe with full reſolution to be better; Couldſt thou reform thy Heart, Head, Life, Tongue, ſome, nay, all ſins; Couldſt thou live like an Angel, ſhine like a Sun, walk up and down the World like a diſtreſſed Pilgrim; Couldſt thou die ten Thouſand deaths, lie at the fire-back in Hell ſo many millions of years, as there be piles of Graſs on the Earth, or ſands on the Sea-ſhore, or ſtars in Heaven, or motes in the Sun; I tell thee, not one ſpark of Gods wrath againſt thy ſins, can be quenched by all theſe Duties, nor by any of theſe Sorrows or Tears.

It was Auſtin's ſaying though it ſounds harſh, that Repentance damns more than ſin; meaning, that Thouſands did periſh by reſting therein: It is no digging within our ſelves, for power to leave ſin, to be more Holy, and Humble, and Religious, and Hoſ. 14. 2.

Conſcientious, and ſo to think to work out our ſelves, in time out of this ſtate: The words which the Prophet put into Iſrael's mouth, if they would truly turn unto God, were theſe, —— Aſhur ſhall not ſave us, we will not ride upon Horſes, q. d. We will truſt no more to theſe outward means, we will not ſave our ſelves, by our Graces, or our abilities.

But how ſhall any man know, that he reſts in his Duties?

Signs of mans reſting in Duties. Shepherds Sincere Convert.

1 Anſwer, By theſe ſigns following:

1. It is a ſign a that man reſts in his Duties, if he never found it a hard matter to come out of his Duties: Examine, if thou never yet ſaweſt, if thou canſt not tell the time when thou didſt reſt in Duties, and then didſt groan to be delivered from theſe entanglements, thou haſt juſt cauſe to fear.

2. It is a ſign that a man reſts in Duties, if he exceedingly prize the bare performance of Duties; thoſe Duties that carry thee out of thyſelf unto Chriſt, make thee to prize Chriſt. Now tell me, Doſt thou glory in thy ſelf? Doſt thou ſay, Now I am ſome body? I was before ignorant, forgetful, hard-hearted, but now I underſtand better, now I can Sorrow for my ſins, I can pray with ſome life, now I have done very well. Alas poor Soul! Theſe things do argue only Spiritum moventem, non inhabitantem, the Spirit of God breathing on thee, not dwelling in thee. If thou reſteſt here, if thou thus inhanceſt the price of Duties, that thou beginn'ſt to doat on them; then do I pronounce from God, that thou doſt reſt in Duties: Theſe things (ſaith Paul) I accounted gain (i. e. before his Converſion) but now I account them loſs: This is the reaſon why a Child of God commonly after his prayers doubts much of God's love towards him: Whereas another man that falls ſhort of him, never ſo much as queſtions his eſtate: The firſt ſeeth much Rottenneſs and Vileneſs in his beſt Duties, and ſo adjudgeth meanly of himſelf; but the other is ignorant of any ſuch Vileneſs, and therefore he prizeth and eſteems highly of them.

Phil. 3. 8.

3. It is a ſign that a man reſts in his Duties, if he never came to be ſenſible of their poverty, and utter emptineſs of any good in them. Didſt thou never feel thy ſelf in this manner? Oh! I am as ignorant as any Beaſt, as vile as any Devil; what a neſt and litter of ſin and rebellion works in my Heart? I once thought, at leaſt, my Heart and deſires were good, but now I feel no ſpiritual life. O dead Heart! I am the pooreſt, vileſt, baſeſt and blindeſt Creature that ever lived! If thou never feeleſt thy ſelf thus, thou never cameſt out of thy Duties.

4. It is a ſign that a man reſts in his Duties, if he gain no Evangelical Righteouſneſs by Duties: (i. e) if he prize not, deſire not, delight not in union with the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; Hence a Child of God asks himſelf after Sermon, after Prayer, after Sacrament, What have I gained of Chriſt? Have I got more knowledge of Chriſt? More admiring of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; Have my affections been raiſed, my graces acted, my Soul refreſhed with the delights of Chriſt? On the contrary, a carnal heart that reſts in his Duties, asketh only, What have I done? I thank God (ſaith the Phariſee) I am not as other men are, —— I faſt twice in the Week I give tithes of all that I poſſeſs: So I pray, and hear, and reform, and Sorrow for ſin, therefore I think verily I ſhall be ſaved? * no ſuch matter: Let a man have a bucket of Gold, doth he think to get water, becauſe he hath a bucket? No, no, he muſt let it down into the Well, and draw up water with it: So muſt thou let down all thy Duties into the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and draw life, and light, and grace from his fulneſs, otherwiſe (though thy Duties be Golden Duties) thou ſhalt periſh without Chriſt. Oh that the Miniſters of Chriſt would become ſons of Thunder in this matter! Many have had experience of Chriſts enabling, enlarging, encreaſing the common gifts of his Spirit; but what have they felt of Chriſts renewing, ſanctifying, and healing of their luſts? Oh, its far more comfortable, to find Chriſts power melting thy heart for ſin, mortifying thy luſts, quickening thee up to Holineſs, than to find Ten thouſand enlargements in holy performances.

Luke 18. 11.

Sect. 5. Of the uſe and Ends of Duties.

AND canſt thou not, O my Soul, be ſaved by thy Duties? To what end ſhouldeſt thou Pray; or Hear, or Sorrow, or Repent, or Meditate, or Examine, or Confer? I anſwer, there are many ends and purpoſes, for which Chriſtians may, and muſt perform Duties.

1 Theſ. 5. 16, 17, 18.

1. That herein, and hereby, they may expreſs their Obedience to Gods Will; Rejoice evermore, pray without ceaſing, in every thing give thanks, for this is the Will of God in Chriſt Jeſus concerning you (ſaith the Apoſtle;) and this was the ground of David's inference, thou haſt commanded us to keep thy Precepts diligently: And what then? O that my ways were directed to keep thy ſtatutes.

Pſal. 119. 4, 5.

2. That God the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt may be honoured by the performance of theſe Duties: Herein is my Father glorifyed, that you bear much fruit; and as the Apoſtle, Ye are a choſen Generation, a Royal Prieſthood, an Holy Nation, a peculiar People, that ye ſhould ſhew forth the praiſes of him who hath called you out of darkneſs into his marvellous light; Abraham believed, and gave God Glory; So we ſhould pray, and meditate, and hear, and all ſhould tend to the Glory of God indeed. Hypocrites are at other ends, by giving Alms, and Praying, and Faſting, that they may have Glory of men, —— That they may be ſeen of men, —— That they may appear unto men, —— But the Child of God aims at the Glory of God. I confeſs its Gods Grace to account of mans Duty as his Glory, ſeeing it is ſo defective.

John 15. 8. 1 Pet. 2. 9. Mat. 6. 2, 5. 16.

Shep. ibid.

3. That Duties may be as Evidences of Gods everlaſting love to them who are in Chriſt Jeſus: They cannot ſave, but they let the Soul in to Chriſt, and follow and accompany ſuch a man as ſhall be ſaved. We hear of ſome that boaſt of Joys, Feeling, Gifts, Spirit, and Grace; but if they walk in the Commiſſion of any one ſin, or in the omiſſion of any one known Duty, or in the ſlovenly ill-favoured performance of Duties, they can have no aſſurance (ſay what they pleaſe) without flattering of themſelves; If theſe things be in you (ſaith Peter,) and abound, they will make you that ye ſhall never be barren, or unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; and he that lacketh theſe things is blind, —— Wherefore, Brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election ſure. Duties bring you in to Chriſt, and are Evidences when you are in Chriſt, that the Lord and Mercy is yours; even as at the Sacrament, the Elements of Bread and Wine are outward ſigns to bring Chriſt and the Heart together: Indeed the Heart muſt not reſt in theſe ſigns, but when the Soul is let in to Chriſt, then Faith muſt let go the outward Elements, and cloſe, and treat immediately with the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. So Grace and Duties are inward ſigns; and whiles men make uſe of them only, as ſigns and means to let them come in unto Chriſt, and their rejoicing is not in them,

2 Pet. 1. 8, 9, 10.

* O that Chriſtians would obſerve the main that they would obſerve whether the duties, that for the matter of them be ſpiritual, are alſo ſpiritual in the effect, whether they leave them more humble, outed of themſelves, more depending upon Chriſt and his Grace, more mortified to the World, and the temptations thereof? It may fall out, that a mans religious duties be the ſtage, upon which all a mans luſts do eminently act, as the Phariſees, who did all things to be ſeen of men. Burges, Treatiſe of Grace.

them, but in Chriſt, their confidence, is not pitch'd upon them, but upon Chriſt; there is and will be no danger at all in making ſuch uſe of ſigns; eſpecially ſeeing in nature, the effect is a ſign of the cauſe: Neither is it more derogatory to Free grace, or to Chriſts Honour, for God to make ſuch effects ſigns of our union with him, than it was to make outwards ſigns of his Preſence: It's true, theſe are not full Teſtimonies without the Spirit of Chriſt.

4. That they that uſe and exerciſe Duties may obtain the Promiſes: 1 Tim. 4. 8. Godlineſs is profitable unto all things (ſaith the Apoſtle) having the Promiſes of the Life that now is, and of that which is to come. There are many Promiſes ſcattered up and down in the Word, and hereby if God be not a debtor unto thee, yet he is to himſelf, and to his own faithfulneſs. Reddis debita, nulli debens, cried Auſtin; Thou Lord payeſt debts, and oweſt to none; it was free for thee before thou hadſt promiſed, whether to give me Heaven, or no; but now the word is out of thy mouth, I uſe Duties as means, though I adhere only to thee, and to thy faithfulneſs, who haſt promiſed. To prevent miſtake, Duties are conſidered in a double Relation: Firſt, as Services, in reſpect of the command; and Secondly, as means to obtain bleſſings at Gods hands, in Relation to his Promiſe: Now the moſt in the World perform Duties as Acts of Obedience only, and ſo reſt in the preſent performance; but if we do them in Faith, we ſhould have an eye to the Promiſe, and look on Duties as * means to obtain ſome mercy; yea, Salvation it ſelf at Gods hands, Phil. 2. 12. Rom. 10. 10. 2 Cor. 7. 10. 1 Pet. 1. 9.

But is not this to be ſaved by duties:

No ſuch thing: For herein we ſpeak not of Duties orignally, or per ſe, but inſtrumentally, and with relation to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; not as meritorious cauſes, but as ſubordinate means of our Salvation in the name of Chriſt: The beſt of Duties carry not ſuch luſtre, beauty, and Energetical virtue in their own faces and natures; they are but meer empty pits, and dry channels (of themſelves) though never ſo curiouſly cut out, but Chriſt fills them (and as ſome deſire Miniſters to do) ſo I am willing for my part to ſay and expreſs thus much of Chriſt, that the people may clearly underſtand and remember ſo much, and be guided explicitely to the Fountain it ſelf, Chriſt alone. Dr. Criſp. on Phil. 3. 8.

5. That theſe Duties may turn to our comforts. Not ſo, as to put confidence in them, to take comfort from them as cauſes; that cannot be, for who can look upon any thing he doth with that boldneſs? But as the Teſtimony of Gods eternal love to us: And as the means of conſolation. Thus Hezekiah, not as a proud Phariſee, but as a thankful acknowledger of what was in him, prayed, 2 Kings. 20. 3. I beſeech thee O Lord, remember me, how I have walked before thee in truth, and with a perfect Heart, and have done that which is good in thy ſight: Some ſuppoſe, that ſuch a Temptation as this might fall on Hezekiah, that when he had laboured to demoliſh all thoſe Superſtitions, and now became dangerouſly ſick, that he had not done well; and therefore he comforts himſelf in his Heart, That he did thoſe things with a perfect Heart, not abſolutely, but comparatively perfect: We may therefore take comfort from * Duties, not ſo as to reſt in them, but as a means, and ſo as to praiſe God thereby. It's a good way, neſciendo ſcire, in not knowing, to know, that ſo we may praiſe God for them; and ſciendo neſcire, in knowing, not to know, that ſo we may be humble in our ſelves.

6. That others might receive good, and thereby be occaſioned to glorifie God: Theſe things are good, and profitable unto men, ſaith the Apoſtle; and Tit. 3. 8. Mat. 5. 16. Let your light ſo ſhine before men, that they may ſee your Good Works, and glorifie your Father which is in Heaven. Chriſt doth not here encourage vain-glory, but he propounds the true ends of our viſible holineſs; for godlineſs being light, it ought not (in ſuitable Duties) to be hid under a buſhel: Pſal. 16. 2, 3. My goodneſs extendeth not to thee, but to the Saints that are on the Earth, and to the excellent, in whom is all my delight. Hierom ſaid of Auguſtine, That he loved Chriſt dwelling in Auguſtine; ſo ought we to walk, that others may love Chriſt dwelling in us. There's an Exhortation to wives 1 Pet. 3. 1. ſo to walk that their Husbands may be won to the Lord: Sweet Soul, it may be thou prayeſt for thy Husband, in a carnal condition, thou deſireſt him to go to hear ſuch a Miniſter, ſuch a Sermon; go on in theſe Duties, adding this to the reſt; See that thy life alſo may convert him.

7. That Duties may carry us to the Lord Jeſus, the only Saviour; he alone is able to ſave them to the uttermoſt that come unto God by him, (i. e.) in the Heb. 7. 25. Shep. ibid. uſe of the means: Hear a Sermon to carry thee to the Lord Jeſus; Faſt, and Pray, and get a full Tide of affections in them, to carry thee to Lord the Jeſus Chriſt, (i. e.) to get more love of him, more acquaintance with him, more union in him, and communion with him; uſe thy Duties as Noah's Dove did her Wings, to carry thee to the Ark of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, where only there is reſt: If ſhe had never uſed her Wings, ſhe had faln in the Waters; and if ſhe had not returned to the Ark, ſhe had found no reſt: So, if thou ſhalt uſe no Duties, but caſt them all off, thou art ſure to periſh; and if they convey thee not to Chriſt, thou mayeſt lie down in Sorrow: Or as it is with a poor man, that is to get over a great water for a Treaſure on the other ſide, though he cannot fetch the Boat, he calls for it, and uſeth it, to carry him over to the Treaſure: So Chriſt is in Heaven, and thou on Earth, he doth not come to thee, and thou canſt not get to him: now call for a Boat, though there is no Grace, no Good, no Salvation in a pithleſs Duty, yet uſe it to carry thee over to the Treaſure, The Lord Jeſus Chriſt: When thou comeſt to hear, ſay, Have over, Lord, by this Sermon; when thou comeſt to pray, ſay Have over, Lord, by this Prayer to a Saviour: But this is the miſery of People, like fooliſh lovers, when they are to wooe for the Lady, they fall in love with her Handmaid, that is only to lead them to her: So men fall in love with, and dote upon their own Duties, and reſt contented with the naked performance of

* Certainly duties are not only as ſigns, but they are means, ways, and qualifications, which God hath appointed antecedently to grace and Salvation —— though ſtill we ſay they have no merit or condignity in them to purchaſe Salvation, —— yet they are uſed as means whereby Heaven is obtained. Burges of the true Doctrine of Juſtification. Say not, it is not duty, but Chriſt, for it is Chriſt in a way of Duty. As duty cannot do it without Chriſt, ſo Chriſt will not without Duty. Baxters Everlaſting Reſt.

* Some profeſs that when they meditate, pray, read, &c. and labour for comfort from duties; they either have none, or at leaſt but humane, and of a lower kind, but all the comforts that they own and value, are immediately injected, and without their pain: So do I expect my comforts to come in, in Heaven, but till then I am glad if they will come with labour, and the Spirit will help me to ſuck them from the breaſts of the promiſe, and to walk for them daily to the ſeat of God. Baxters Everlaſting Reſt —— It is true, God muſt give us our comfort by his Spirit, but how? By quickning up our Souls to meditate, pray, believe and to conſider of the promiſed glory; and not by comforting us we know not how, nor why. Idem ibid. If thou ſayſt, our comfort is all in Chriſt, I muſt tell thee, it is a Chriſt remembred, loved, believed in, and not a Chriſt forgotten, or only talked of, that will ſolidly comfort. Idem ibid.

them, which are only Handmaids, to lead the Soul unto the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

8. That the Lord Chriſt may be exalted, and advanced by Duties. The main end of Duties, is the glory of him who hath Redeemed us with the price of his blood, and by the power of his Spirit; this ſets the crown on his head: Behold King Solo- Cant.3.11. mon, with the Crown wherewith his Mother Crowned him. How many perform Duties, not to ſet the Crown on Chriſts head, but to ſet the Crown on their own heads? So do Hypocrites, that ſeek their own praiſe, and credit, and profit; ſo do all eſpecially that do any thing with a conceit of meriting at Gods Hands. Now this is the main end of right obedience, That the Crown may be ſet on Chriſts head, that he who is King of Saints, may have the Honour given him, due to his Kingly Office. In this reſpect, I cannot blame them who blame others, for crying up, and magnifying mans works in their own name. To ſay that Chriſt is always ſup- Dr. Criſp in Phil. 3. 8. poſed as principal, is no ſufficient Apology: For why only ſuppoſed? Why not he named, as well as Duties, and Righteouſneſs? Certainly, it is not good manners (to ſay no worſe) to forget him, whilſt his poor Inſtruments are ſo highly remembred. When Servants bring preſents from their Maſters to any, they do not ſay, I beſtow ſuch and ſuch a thing on you, But, My Maſter ſends it you; if he ſhould take it on himſelf, he ſhould go for an arrogant fellow: Nor will it ſalve the matter, when he is taxed for ſuch arrogancy, to ſay, My Maſter ſhould have been ſuppoſed, when he gave no hint of him. Methinks it were comely, (ſaith the Author rightly in this) in extolling of mans Righteouſneſs, explicitely to aſcribe all Mr. Burges Vindiciæ legis. the praiſe to the Glory of Chriſt, and his Grace: And, I ſee not (ſaith another ingeniouſly) but that miniſters may be humbled, that they have preſſed religious Duties, but not ſo as to ſet up Chriſt: And hereby people have been content with Duties and Sacraments, though no Chriſt in them: But as veſſels were to be of pure Gold in the Temple, ſo ought all our Duties to be pure and meer Chriſt for acceptation. Again, If Bernard ſaid, He did not love to read Tully, becauſe he could not read the Name of Chriſt there; how much rather may we ſay, That in many Sermons, in many a mans Miniſtry, the drift and end of all his preaching is not, that Chriſt may be advanced. And again, Let Chriſt be the matter of our Righteouſneſs and Comfort, more than he hath been: You know the poſts that were not ſprinkled with Blood, were ſure to be deſtroyed, and ſo are all thoſe perſons and duties that have not Chriſt upon them. How ſweet is the harmony of Diſſenting Brethren! Methinks, I would not loſe a ſhred of that Gold which both Authors (ſo ſtrongly my heart beats and pants after unity) give out to be weight in the Balance of the Sanctuary. It is obſerved by the former, That when the Church grew into credit, then Religio peperit Divitias & filia devoravit matrem; I may as truly ſay, Chriſtus peperit Juſtitiam, & filia devoravit matrem; juſt as if a King ſhould promote a Favourite, and then he ſhould be ſo applauded for his uſefulneſs to the Subjects, that the King muſt be dethroned, and he Crowned in his place: —— In all exigences, wants and extremities, how few followers hath Chriſt himſelf? How rarely are men ſent to ſhelter themſelves under the ſhadow of his wings? In the mean while, what hideous out-crys for Prayers, Mournings, Faſtings, &c. to help men at a dead lift? What ſending and poſting to them in extremities, as if they kept a Court by themſelves? For Chriſt is ſeldom heard of, at leaſt not ſet up ſo high as to do all; and that this Righteouſneſs is but meerly his miniſtring Servant: What the Apoſtle ſaid of himſelf, I may as truly ſay of the beſt Righteouſneſs beſt aſſiſted, What is Prayer, Mourning, Faſting, Hearing, but Miniſters by whom ye believed, and received Mercy? And if but as Miniſters 1 Cor. 3. 5. at beſt, ſhall they be greater than the Lord? Let me not be miſtaken, I intend no derogation to Righteouſneſs, but the bringing of it into its own place, namely, that it is to be uſed as that, where according to Chriſts directions we may meet with him, from whoſe Dr. Criſp ibid. hands alone we may expect whatever we pant after, according to his will; reſerving a ſubmiſſion to be diſpoſed of otherwiſe, if he ſee fit. Again, it is not the Spiritualneſs, nor the fervency in the performance of Duties that carries it, but when Duties are performed as to the Lord, and for the Lord, and not to and for our ſelves. O my Soul, in reſpect of all theſe ends, uſe and exerciſe Duties, but be ſure of Chriſt in all, above all, more than all: O let Chriſt have the Crown ſet on his Head, give him all the glory. Caſt not away Duties, but caſt them down at the feet of Jeſus Chriſt, as the Twenty four Elders caſt their Rev. 4. 31. Crowns, ſaying, Thou art worthy O Lord to receive Glory, and Honour, and Power: For thou haſt Created all things, (all Duties) and for thy pleaſure they are and were Created.

Sect. 6. Of the Saints abilities, or power to do Duties.

Object. But alas, how ſhould I perform my Duty? By nature I am dead, and except God give me an Heart and ſtrength, what can I do? There is no power in my Pſal. 77. 10. hands, I am nothing in my ſelf, and therefore till God come, or naked Chriſt come, I will ſit down in diſcouragements; Let God do all, ſee I have no ability at all, &c.

Anſw. What ſayſt thou (O my Soul?) Surely this is thine infirmity; theſe concluſions are ill drawn from a true Principle; It is true, all is of God, and by nature I am dead: But it is ill urged in this caſe, for that the Regenerate have in them a Seed, a Spiritual Principle, a power to do good; Firſt, becauſe ſuch are living, and all life is a power to act. 2. Elſe there is no ſpecifical difference betwixt a man regenerate and unregenerate, if both were ſtill dead, and without ſtrength. 3. Grace is a renewing of that image of God and Holineſs, Eph. 4. 24. which we loſt in Adam; but that was a power to do what God required, therefore ſo far as that image is repaired, ſo far there is power. 4. Elſe we ſhould not have as much benefit by the ſecond Adam, as we had by the firſt; for the firſt would have Communicated his power to do good, and being Corrupted, doth communicate power to do Object. John 15. 5. ſin; therefore much more by Chriſt have we a life, a power to do good in our meaſure.

Sol. χωρὶς ἐμοῦ ſeorſim à me. Calv.

It may be objected, Without me ye can do nothing.

The meaning is, Except ye be implanted into me ye can do nothing: The word [Without me] ſignifieth, Separate from me, or apart from me; and intimateth this only, That till we are knit unto Chriſt, we are but dead and barren branches, and ſo Chriſt explains himſelf, As the Branch cannot bring forth fruit of it ſelf, except it abide in the Vine, no more can ye, except ye abide in me.

Object. Phil. 2. 13. It may be objected again, It is God that worketh both to will and to do of his good Pleaſure.

Sol. This denies not that the Saints have in them, A Seed, a Spring, a Principle of Life, a Power; but on the contrary, it affirms, That they have a Power, only that this Power is of God; We ſhould work out our Salvation in humility, not boaſting in our own ſelves, for all is received of God; more fully, God is ſaid to work the Will and the Deed. * 1 By giving a Principle of Life, habitual Grace, a renewed frame of Heart. 2. By exciting and and ſtrengthning this Grace; and both theſe are ever afforded to the Saints, only the latter is more or leſs, according to his pleaſure: So that in the worſt times a Believer hath power to do good, though not alike at all times; and this power we muſt uſe, and put forth our ſelves as we are able, or we cannot with reaſon expect his help. A ſhip hath inſtruments of motion (though not an internal Principle) and if the Mariner would have help by the winds, he muſt looſe his Cables, and hoiſe his Sails; ſo muſt we, or elſe we may lie ſtill.

* 1 There is a Grace Regenerating, or converting whereby of dead men in ſin, we come to have a Life of Grace. 2. There is a Grace exciteing, ſtirring, quickning, whereby that former principle of Grace is ſtirred up, and provoked to action; now as man is the Subject of the firſt converting Grace, ſo he is meerly paſſive, he doth not at all cooperate, or work with the Grace of God: But it is otherwiſe with the exciting, quickning, acting grace, for there being the Supernatural principles of Grace before, when he is ſtirred up, he is not meerly paſſive. Acti agimus, being moved, we move: This is excellently expreſſed by the Church Draw us, and we will run after thee, Can. 1. 4. The Church was liſtleſs, unprepared, and therefore ſhe deſires the Grace of God to draw her. And then ſhe would run after him. Draw a dead man, and for all that he cannot run, but the Church had the life of Grace in her, only ſhe wanted this quickning, exciting Grace; if Chriſt would but give her that, why then ſhe would run after him. Burges of Grace.

Now that which we are to do, is,——

Firſt, To ſtir up our ſelves; for God hath promiſed to meet us and to reach out his hand to help us, if we be not wanting to our ſelves; It is certain, a Godly man cannot, by his own endeavours alone, raiſe up his Soul, nor recover his loſs, though he ſhould lay Mountain upon Mountain, and pile endeavours upon endeavours; yet endeavours without God cannot, ſo God without endeavours will not help us herein, and therefore labour we to quicken our ſelves, (i. e.) work we upon our own Hearts, by our underſtandings; as the ſtriking of the Flint and Steel together begetteth fire, ſo the meeting of theſe two faculties having an internal life in them, do quicken the Soul. Thus we ſee David pleading with himſelf, ſometimes chiding, Pſal. 42.5. Why art thou caſt down O my Soul, and why art thou diſquieted within me? Sometimes exciting himſelf to Pſal. 103.1. Duty, Praiſe the Lord O my Soul, all that is within me praiſe his Holy Name: Sometimes comforting himſelf Pſa. 116.7. in God, Turn to thy reſt of my Soul, for God hath dealt bountifully with thee: It was an uſual thing for him to talk with himſelf, and he found ſo much good Pſalm 4.4. in this way, that he puts all upon it, Commune with your own Hearts upon your Beds, and be ſtill; the underſtanding is to the Heart, as the ſtomack to the body all is fed by it: Set therefore upon your hearts with quickning thoughts; for as rubbing and chafing the hands with hot Oils is a means to recover them when they are benumb'd; ſo the plying of the Heart with ſtirring thoughts, and enforcing arguments is a means to revive it: And amongſt all thoughts, there are none more prevalent, than Of ſins paſt, Of Heaven, Hell, Eternity, Love of Chriſt, theſe are ſtrong Cordials to chear up the Spirits.

2. To fall on the Duty; for if we be doing, he will work with us, in us, and for us. Is it thus (O my Soul,) that thy Heart is ſtirred, rowzed, revived? Then ſet to thy hands; Idle beggars muſt be whipped; he that will not work, muſt not eat. Remember, we have a life in us if we be in Chriſt: And as we have a life, ſo there is a never-failing preſence of the Spirit, to attend that power which we have: If then we put forth our ſelves to that we are able, and as far as our power extends, God will draw near to us. It is true, that which we want is out of our reach, we are not able to make crooked things to become ſtraight, to lay thoſe ſwelling mountains of Corruption level, but yet we muſt ſet to the work: Joſhua could not with the ſtrength of Rams horns ſounding, caſt down the walls of Jericho, but yet he muſt ſet upon the Work: When the Midianites fall, there muſt be The Sword of the Lord, and Gideon: The father holdeth an Apple to the Child, the Child cannot reach it, yet his ſhort arm muſt be put forth, and then the Father whoſe arm is long enough will reach it to him; we muſt be doing, and yet when all is done, our hearts muſt learn habitually to ſay, Not I, but Chriſt in me. Let us ſtill intereſt Chriſt in all we do, * as the ſufficient, final cauſe.

* I confeſs it is a moſt neceſſary part of our Chriſtian wiſdom to keep our ſubordination to God and dependance on him. Take heed of ſlacking our daily expectations of renewed help, or of growing inſenſible of the neceſſity of the continual influence and aſſiſtance of the Spirit. When we begin once to truſt to our ſtock of habitual grace, and to depend on our own underſtandings and reſolutions, for duty and holy walking, we are then in a dangerous declining ſtate. In every duty remember, our ſufficiency is of God, 2, Cor. 3. 5.

Sect. 7. Of the Saints delights in Duties.

M*Y yoke is eaſie, and my burthen is light*, ſaith Chriſt; and that which makes it ſo, is, The make Heavenly Muſick: Muſick even chearing him in the midſt of his ſorrows; Trouble and anguiſh are upon me, yet are thy Commandments my delight; and, Unleſs thy Law had been my delight, I ſhould have periſhed in my affliction.

Now the reaſon why God's people find ſuch delight in Duties, is, 1. Becauſe in Duties they come to ſee the face of God in Chriſt: Hence Duties are called, The face or preſence of God: The Worſhip of the Jews was called, An appearing before God. Exod. 23. 17. David breaths out his deſires in the ſame expreſſion, Pſal. 4. 1. When ſhall I come and appear before God? The Queen of Sheba counted it an high favour to ſtand before Solomon: What high favour then is this, to ſtand before Jeſus Chriſt, and to hear wiſdom it ſelf ſpeak to our Souls? 2. Becauſe in Duties they have converſes, and communion with God, who is the God of all conſolation; and with the ſpirit of God, who is called the Comforter: Now as a man that walks amongſt perfumes, muſt needs ſmell of the perfumes; ſo they that converſe with the God of all joy, muſt needs be filled with all joy: And therefore David calls God His exceeding joy. Pſal. 43.4. The Saints look upon Duties (the Word, Sacraments, Prayers, &c.) as Bridges to give them a paſſage to God, as Boats to carry them into the Boſom of Chriſt, as * means to bring them into more intimate communion with their Heavenly Father, and therefore are they ſo much taken with them: When they go to the Word, they go as one goes to hear news of a Friend; when they go to pray, they go to talk with a Friend; when they go to read, they go to read a Letter from a Friend: when they go to receive, they go to ſup with a Friend: They look upon Duties and Ordinances, as thoſe things whereby they have to do with God and Chriſt, and therefore are Duties ſo precious. Indeed, to them who have to do with nothing but Duty in Duty, but Prayer in Prayer, but Hearing in Hearing, to them Duties are dead and dry, and ſpiritleſs things; but they that have to do with God, and Chriſt in Duty, to them Duties are paſſing ſweet and precious. This ſeems a Riddle to unregenerate men, they wonder what the Saints find in Duties where the ſweetneſs, what the comfort is, what ſecret Golden Mines they find in theſe diggings, when themſelves find nothing but burthenſome Stones and Clay: Oh! The Saints meet with Chriſt in Duties, and therefore they cannot but find Pſal. 42. 2. great Treaſure: David's Soul was athirſt, not for a Kingdom, but for God, for the living God, Pſal. 42. 2. It is the higheſt reward, the very wages which the Saints look for in Duties, to find God in them; Bleſſed is the man whom thou chooſeſt, and cauſeſt to Pſal. 55. 4. approach unto thee, that he may dwell in thy Courts: We ſhall be ſatisfied with the great goodneſs of thy houſe, even of thy Holy Temple.

* When thou kneeleſt down in ſecret or publick prayer, let it be in hope to get thy Heart nearer God, when thou openeſt the Bible or other Books, let it be with this hope to meet ſome paſſage of Divine Truth, and ſome ſuch bleſſing of the Spirit with it, as may raiſe thine affections nearer Heaven, when thou goeſt to the publick Ordinance and work, ſaying, I hope to meet with ſomewhat from God, that may raiſe my affections before I return. Baxters Saints Everlaſting Reſt.

A good Caveat in theſe days, when ſo many do cry down Duties: What, my Brethren, Shall we look upon that as our Brethren, which is our delight? Our Bondage which is our Privilege? What is the Happineſs of a Glorified Saint, but that he is always under the line of Love, ever in the Contemplation of, and converſes with God; and ſhall that be thought our burthen here, which is our glory hereafter? Take heed of this; take heed you do not think it an Hell: a pain, a vexation, to be in God-approaching, and Chriſt-meeting Duties, I know wearineſs may be upon the fleſh, there are weakneſſes and diſtempers there, but chide them away, entertain them not; Number it among your choiceſt Privileges, Comforts, Delights to converſe with God in Chriſt: Conſider if there be an Heaven, it is the very preſence of this God in Chriſt. Hence they who meet with God in duty, uſually find their Hearts ſweetly refreſhed, as if Heaven were in them: For in Pſal. 16. 11. thy preſence there is fulneſs of joy, and at thy right hand there are pleaſures for evermore.

But if there be ſuch delight in Duties, what is the reaſon that wicked men account it a weariſomneſs, and Object. Mal. 1. 13. burthen, and ſnuff at it? Behold what a wearineſs is it! And ye have ſnuffed at it, ſaith the Lord.

Anſw. A wicked man cannot delight in Gods ſervice, becauſe it is above his capacity; Whiles he is at Duty, he is like a fiſh out of his Element; the Duty is heavenly and Spititual, but he is worldly and natural, no wonder therefore he delights not in it. But more particularly, a wicked man delights not in Duties.———

1. Becauſe of his ignorance of the worth, and excellency of Duties: He cannot poſſibly delight in what he knows not; So much as we know, ſo much we deſire and delight in, and no more.

2. Becauſe of his infidelity: Faith is the main Organ of comfort, and therefore no wonder (as it was ſaid of the Jews) if the Word preached do not pro- Heb. 4. 2. fit him, not being mixed with Faith in him that heard it.

3. Becauſe of the abſence of the all-ſeeing and quickning Spirit: It is the Spirit that quickneth, the John 6. 63. fleſh profiteth nothing; the words that I ſpeak to you are Spirit and life: As the Body is dead without the Spirit; ſo Duties without Chriſts quickning Spirit, are dead and lifeleſs.

But if there be ſuch delight in Duties, what is the reaſon that the Saints themſelves do miſs of their comforts 2. Object. in Duties?

Anſw. I anſwer, 1. There are none of Gods people but they do ſometimes or other find comfort, either in Duties, or after Duties. 2. If at any time they miſs of comfort, it is becauſe they do not meet with God, whom they came to converſe withal: As when a man goes to meet with a Friend, and meets him not, he comes away ſadded in his Spirit; ſo when a child of God comes to ſome Duty, hopeing to enjoy ſweet commmunion with God in it, and then fails of his expectation, this muſt needs fill him full of ſadneſs. It was an excellent ſpeech of Bernard, I never go from God without God. Happy Chriſtian, Nunquam abs te recedo Domine ſine te. that when he goes to converſe with God in ſome Duty, can ſay, I never go from God without God; I never go to God, but I meet with God; and, I never go from God, but I carry God with me.

But if no comfort, no delight without God in our Duties, 3. Object. What then is my caſe, that have no ſenſe, no feeling of Gods preſence in Duties? When I have done all I can, methinks I cannot find God, I cannot meet with Chriſt.

I anſwer, Haſt thou indeed no ſenſe of Gods Anſw. preſence, and yet haſt thou a ſence of Gods want? It is good then to obſerve the different effects of Gods preſence, or elſe thou mayeſt wrong God, as well as thy ſelf; to ſay he was not with thee when yet he was: As 1. There are manifeſt and evident fruits of Gods preſence, in Duties; as, much liberty of Spirit, much Joy, much Peace, aſſurance of Faith. 2. There are more inward and reſerved fruits of his preſence; as, Sence of want, ſorrow for want, deſire of enjoyment, willingneſs unto further Duties, to find that which we want in ſome other: In the former, God is with us, and we know he is with us: In the latter, God is with us, and we know not ſo much: This was the caſe of the two Diſciples going to Emmaus, there eyes were holden, Luke 24. 16. that they could not know Chriſt; yet afterwards when they did know him; they remembred, that they had ſufficient evidence of his preſence, even when they knew him not, Did not our hearts burn within us, Luke 24. 32. while he talked with us by the way, and opened the Scriptures to us? Now whence was that fire, but from the Spirit of Chriſt conveyed in his Word.

But what is the reaſon that Gods people do ſometimes 4. Object. miſs of Gods comfortable preſence in Duties?

I anſwer, they miſs of Gods comfortable preſence, Anſw. 1. Becauſe (it may be) they bring no veſſels at all to hold the Conſolations of God; I mean, no hunger after Gods preſence in the Ordinance: Or, 2. Becauſe they bring veſſels, ſo little, and ſo narrow-mouthed, that they will hold but very little water; I mean, they bring ſo little hunger after God, that God will not vouchſafe to ſatisfie it: Or, 3. Becauſe they bring their ordinary hearts, their carnal and worldly Hearts to Heavenly and Spiritual Duties, Hearts unſutable to the Duties, Hearts unſenſible of the Duties: Thus a man finds no ſweetneſs in his meat; the reaſon is not becauſe his meat is unſavoury, but becauſe his taſte is diſtempered; the Ordinances are ſometimes ſweet, and would always be ſo, were the Souls palate always in the ſame temper: Or, 4. Becauſe there is ſome Achan uſtonned, ſome ſin unrepented of, that eclipſeth the Light of Gods countenance, ſome Spiritual obſtructions; theſe, and ſuch like are the cauſes, why the Saints ſometimes miſs of their comforts.—— But the fault is never in the Duty, which is brim-full of rare and raviſhing comfort; that as Barnard relates the ſtory of himſelf, Sometimes when he went to his Prayers, he found himſelf dull, and heavy; but after he had ſtrugled a little with his dulneſs, all on a ſudden he was viſited with the viſitations of the Almighty. I ſhould account my ſelf happy (ſaid he) if theſe viſitations would always laſt; but Oh, it continues but a while! And Auſtin relates this ſtory Beatum me prædicarem &c. Sedra hora, brevis mora, oh ſi duraret. Bernard.

of himſelf, that Upon a time, when he and his Mother Monica were diſcourſing together about the joys of Heaven, and the comforts of Gods Spirit, they were ſo filled with joy, that Auſtin uſeth theſe words, Lord, thou knoweſt in that day, how vilely we did eſteem of the World, with all his delights. ——— The comforts of the World are not worthy to be named that day that we ſpeak of theſe comforts: O the pure, the undefiled comforts and delights that are to be found in Duties, when God is found in them! Can a man who is cold, come to the fire and not be warmed? Can he that is in the dark, come into the open Sun and not be enlightned? God is the Spring of Comfort, and therefore ſurely our Hearts will be comforted, if we meet with God in our Duties. I might add ſome Caveats, but I refer you to Chap. 5. Sect. 20.

Quám mundus evilvit cum omnibus ſuis delectationibus. Auguſt.

And yet let me warn you of one dangerous ſnare; ſome think if they fetch in their comfort by Duties as by prayer, meditation, &c. that then it would be a comfort only of their own hammering out, and not the genuine joy of the Holy Ghoſt. A deſperate miſtake; they ſet the workings of Gods ſpirit and their own ſpirit in oppoſition, when their Spirits muſt ſtand in ſubordination to Gods: Gods ſpirit uſually works our comforts, by ſetting our own Spirits awork upon the promiſes, and by raiſing our thoughts to the objects of our comforts. And yet I deny not, that if any ſhould ſo think to work out his comforts by meditation, prayer, reading the Word, as to attempt the work in his own ſtrength, and do not all in ſubordination to God, and the Spirits aſſiſtance, the comfort will be nothing but Vanity, a comfort indeed of their own hammering out.

Sect. 8. Of the eſſential Requiſites in Duties

BUt what are they we call Duties? Or what are thoſe eſſential Requiſites (O my ſoul) in Duties? Many by Duties intend nothing but that which is external and ſenſible, as Coming to the Church and receiving of Sacraments, &c.

I anſwer, theſe are like clothes upon a dead man, that cannot warm him, becauſe there is no life within. The ſoul of all Duties is that which is internal or eſſential; In which reſpect three ingredients are neceſſary, viz.

That they be {
From God.
Through God.
To God.

Lev. 19.

1. From God: It is of the very eſſence of a Duty, that it be comanded by God. Hence in one Chapter we read thirteen ſeveral times I am the Lord, q. d. Such and ſuch Commands I injoin you: Would you know the Grounds? I am the Lord, a God of Sovereign Power and authority, and my Will it is that ſuch Duties be done. Look to this (O my Soul) in thy Duties, know the Commands, and do them, becauſe they are commanded: If thou doſt them, and yet knoweſt not that God commands them, this is no true obedience; or if thou knoweſt they are commanded, but yet doſt them not becauſe they are commanded, or in Conſcience to his Command, neither is this obedince to God. In all Duties rightly performed, there muſt be a knowledge of, and an eye to the will of our God, Rom. 12. 2. Eph. 5. 17.

Rom. 12. 2. Eph. 5. 17.

2. Though God (i.e.) {
Through the Spirit, who doth Spiritualize them.
Through Chriſt, who preſents them and makes them acceptable to God.

1. Through the Spirit of God: Now the Spirit works on our Spirits, ſtirs up the regenerate part to the performance of our Duties: And therefore look how much there is of the Inner man, of the regenerate part, of the holy Spirit in Duty, ſo far it is ſanctified, ſo far it is accepted, and no further. God is my witneſs (ſaith Paul) whom I ſerve with my Spirit in the Goſpel of his Son: In every ſervice we perform, Rom. 1. 9. * our Spirit ſtirred up by Gods Spirit muſt needs have a hand in it, or it is but the body and carcaſe of a right Service: The Soul, will, and affections muſt go together with our Duties, (that I mean by our Spirit;) or the vitals are wanting. Ex. Gr. If a man come to confeſs his ſins, and yet ſlights them inwardly in his heart; if a man pray for reconciliation with God, and yet have no longing, and ſighing in his heart after it; if he earneſtly aſk Grace, or the Spirit of Mortification, and yet his Heart doth not inwardly ſeek it, Now he prays not in the Spirit and therefore God will not accept it; For God is a Spirit, and they that worſhip him, muſt worſhip him in Spirit, and in truth: Joh. 4. 24. In Spirit (i. e.) not only in the underſtanding and mind (Prayer is not a work of wit, or of memory) but alſo in will and affection: When all within us is opened, and explicate, and expoſed to the view of the Lord; when we call in all our thoughts and affections, and recollect them together, as the lines in the Centre, or as the Sunbeans in a burning-glaſs, That makes prayer to be * hot and fervent; whereas otherwiſe it is but a cold and diſſipated thing, that hath no ſtrength or efficacy in it.

* Hence the Scripture ſometimes adds the word Spirit to Duties: Having the ſame Spirit of faith, 2 Cor. 4. 13. Supplication in the Spirit, Epheſ. 6. 18. Which Worſhip God in the Spirit, Phil. 3. 3. Your love in the Spirit, Col. 1. 18. This implies that unleſs theſe actions be done in the Spirit, they are unacceptable with God.

* The Spirit of God appeared in fire, and in a mighty ruſhing Wind: And whereſoever this Spirit is, there is zeal, fervency, activity; a formal cuſtomary, ſuperficial performing of Holy Duties is extreamly oppoſite to a Spiritual deportment in them.

Queſt. If this Spiritualneſs in Duties be ſo neceſſary, how is it that the Saints have ſo much of earth and fleſh ordinary in their Dutes?

Anſw. I anſwer, In every regenerate man there is both Fleſh and Spirit; It may be the Fleſh lies uppermoſt, and the Spirit lies in the bottom, ſo that a man, though a Saint, may hear carnally, receive carnally, pray carnally, that is, when the fleſh hath gotten the upper hand, as in ſome fits it may, when the mind is filled with worldly ſorrow, worldly rejoicing, and worldly deſires; ſuch Duties the Lord regards not, be the man never ſo Holy: But if the regenerate part be acted and ſtirred up by Gods Spirit, and the Fleſh, that always hinders, be removed by the ſame Spirit, then are the Saints able to do their Duties to God in Chriſt Jeſus Spiritually.

2. Through Chriſt: For Chriſt perfects, perfumes, and preſents our Duties to his heavenly Father: As Duties come from us, they ſavour of fleſh, but the Angel of the Covenant mingleth much Incenſe with them, and ſo he offers them upon the golden Altar, which is before the Throne. Here is ſweet comfort (O my Soul) What though thy Duties are weak, and cold, and confuſed, full of diſtempers, and damps? Yet through Chriſt they are fortified, and enlivened, with his pacifying perfection, and interceſſory Spirit. Through Chriſt they are perfumed with the precious odours of his freſh bleeding Merits, and bleſſed Meditation, and ſo they are made acceptable to God, that he may receive them, that he may not refuſe and reject them.

Obſerve here a double Interceſſor;
- One is the Spirit, that helps our infirmities.
- The other is Chriſt, that makes them acceptable to God.

3. To God: (i.e.) to ſet forth his glory, and Free-grace; for as his Name is blaſphemed when we walk in wickedneſs, ſo it is glorified in doing our Duties: This is the end of all our Duties, indeed of all our doings; 1 Cor. 10. 31. Whether ye eat or drink, or whatſoever ye do, do all to the Glory of God; One Duty Sanctifying Chriſt and Free-grace in the heart, is more than a thouſand. Young Chriſtians it may be do more works, but not as works, of grace; the more Evangelical our works are, and the more to God (for that is the end of the Goſpel, to Honour Chriſt and Free-grace) the better Phil. 3. 3. they are: We are of the Circumciſion, who rejoyce in the Lord Jeſus, worſhip God in the Spirit, and have no confidence in the fleſh.

Sect. 9. Of the kinds of Duties in ſeveral diviſions.

THeſe Duties ſome have diſtributed according to their ſeveral objects, God, our Neighbour, and our ſelves: 1. The Lord claims our Love, Fear, Honour, and Obedience. 2. Our Neighbour claims our Duty, Courteſie, Bounty. And for our ſelves, we muſt, 1. Inſtruct The Underſtanding: 2. Bridle the Will: 3. Moderate the affections. Others in retribution to Chriſt, give us another ſcheme of ſuch Duties, as they call meer Goſpel-Duties. So it is our Duty, 1. To think and muſe much on Chriſt and upon his love towards us. 2. To ſpeak much of Chriſt, and to commend him to others: When the Spouſe Cant. 5. 9. 16. was asked, What her beloved was above others? She ſets him forth in every part of him, and concludes with this, He is altogether lovely.

3. To be oft in the company of Chriſt, and to grow up thereby into a familiar acquaintance with him. Now Chriſt is with us here but theſe two ways, either in his Ordinances or Providences, by his Holy Spirit: So that to be oft in Chriſts company, is to be much in his Word, in Prayer, in Sacraments, in Chriſtian Communion, in Meditation, in Examination of our Hearts, in his Providences of Mercies, Croſſes and Trials. 4. To do much for Chriſt, and that willingly: This is love indeed to keep his Commandments, and thoſe are not grievous. 5. To ſuffer and endure any evil for Chriſt: What tell you me (ſaith Paul) of bonds and impriſonments? I am ready, not only to be bound but to die for the ſake of Chriſt at Jeruſalem. 1 Joh. 5. 3. My life is not dear to me, that I may finiſh my courſe with joy: For thy ſake we are killed all the day long. Acts 21. 13. Rom. 8. 36. No queſtion theſe Heads will include all ſorts of Duties: But the method I I ſhall proſecute (wherein I deſire to confound Duties, Ordinances, and Means, as being all one, and the ſame thing, whereby a Chriſtian walks on in the holy path) I have otherwiſe digeſted thus.

The Duties of a Chriſtian are either of
- The firſt kind, as Watchfulneſs.
- The ſecond kind: And theſe have reference —

Either
- only to
  - Secret Ordinances, as
    - Self-trial.
    - Self-denial.
    - Experiences.
    - Evidences.
    - Meditation.
    - Life of Faith.
    - Looking unto Jeſus.
  - Private Ordinances, either
    - In one Family, as Family-Duties.
    - In more Families join'd, as Chriſtian Society.
  - Publick Ordinances, as
    - Hearing the Word.
    - Receiving the Sacraments.
- Jointly to all three, (i. e.) to ſecret private, and publick; and they are either
  - Ordinary, as
    - Praying.
    - Reading.
    - Suffering.
  - Extraordinary, as
    - Faſting.
    - Feaſting.

Object. It may be objected, That in this Analyſis there is not that expreſs mention of Chriſt; and the reaſon why ſome vilifie Duties, is, becauſe the very Name of Chriſt is not in them.

Sol. But I anſwer, 1. If the name be wanting, yet Chriſt is not. 2. In the opening of them we ſhall find the very Name of Chriſt uſually, frequently; only obſerve by the way; I have heard of many that have ſtood much in appearance for Jeſus Chriſt, ſo that they will bow, and do homage to the very ſound and ſyllables of his Name; and yet none more enemies unto Chriſt than they, being the very limbs of Antichriſt: Mat. 7. 22. Many (ſaith Chriſt) will ſay to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not Propheſied in thy Name, and in thy Name have caſt out Devils, and in thy Name have done many wonderful Works? (As if the Name of Chriſt had been a Spell.) And then will I profeſs unto them, I never knew you, depart from me ye that work iniquity; 23. and thereupon he concludes, 24. that he only is a wiſe man, and builds upon the rock, who 25. hears Chriſts ſayings and doth them. Hence learn (O my Soul) that he that preſſeth to the practice of the Word of Chriſt, he preacheth Chriſt, he ſets up Chriſt, though his text be not literally of Chriſt; even as a man may have no other ſubject of his Sermon but Chriſt, and yet betray Chriſt. Thus much of Duties in General.

CAAP. III. SECT. I.

Of Duties in Particular.

And firſt, of the Nature of Watchfulneſs.

WAtchfulneſs is the firſt and principal help to all exerciſes of Religion; it is the eye to ſee them all well done and uſed, and therefore we ſet it in the front of all Duties: We are to Watch unto Prayer, Eph. 6. 18. and we are to watch unto hearing Luke 8. 18. and we are to watch unto Faſting, Mat. 6. 18. and we are to watch to alms-giving, Mat. 6. 1. and we are to watch in all things, 2 Tim. 4. 5.

Eph. 6. 18. Luke 8. 18. Mat. 6. 18. Mat 6. 1. 2 Tim. 4. 5.

Now for our better direction in the exerciſe of this Duty, obſerve we the - Nature.
- Objects.
- Manner of it.

For the Nature of it: Watchfulneſs is a continual, careful obſerving of our Ways in all the paſſages and turnings of our Life, that we ſtill keep cloſe to the written Prov. 4. 23. Word of God. Keep thy heart in all diligence: I ſaid, I Pſal. 39. 1. will take heed to my ways, that I ſin not with my tongue, Pſal. 119. 9. Wherewith ſhall a young man cleanſe his way? By taking heed thereto according to thy word.

Sect. 2. Of the Objects of Watchfulneſs.

THe object of our Watch is either
- Evil works, or ſin.
- Good works, or Duties, or
- any thing in its own being, good.

1. Watch we muſt over ſin,
   - More general,
     - Original ſin, or corrupt nature.
     - Actual ſin.
   - More ſpecial, as ſins of our
     - Calling.
     - Conſtitution.

2. Watch we muſt over any thing (in its own being) good; and herein if we look for the adequate object including every thing that ought to be watched,

It is either
- Hearts,
- Tongues,
- Actions,

which howſoever good in themſelves, yet if we watch not, they will ſoon contract evil.

Sect. 3. Of the manner of watchfulneſs over ſin Original.

THat we may watch over ſin Original, or that inward corruption we carry about us, obſerve we theſe Rules.

1. Let us take matter and motives to humble our Souls under the ſight and ſenſe of this inherent pollution. And to that purpoſe, conſider we the rueful complaints of the Holieſt Saints againſt it: O wretched man that I am (ſaith Paul) who ſhall de- Rom. 7. 24. liver me from the Body of this Death? Behold, I was ſhapen in iniquity (ſaid David) and in ſin did my mo- Pſal. 51. 5. ther conceive me: Did not God in Chriſt accept of our complaining, ſtriving, grieving, and hating this, how could we find any comfort?

2. Let us pray againſt it, that though it be in us, yet it may not hurt us, nor be imputed to us: That God would give us his Spirit to bridle our Corruption, and eſpecially that he would give us the Spirit of Sanctification, that he would cleanſe us from this filth more and more, that he would ſeaſon the fountain, and at laſt dry it up.

3. Let us ſtrive after contrary Holineſs, and endeavour the reformation of our natures and lives: Put we off the old man, which is corrupt according to Eph. 4. 22, 23. deceitful luſts, and be we renewed in the Spirit of our mind.

4. Let us conſider the promiſes of Remiſſion, and thoſe Privileges which the Saints have in the Blood of Chriſt; and let us actuate and exerciſe our faith in reſpect of ſuch promiſes: I knew that thou wouldeſt deal treacherouſly (ſaith God) and that Iſa. 48. 8, 9. thou waſt called a tranſgreſſor from the womb; yet for my Names ſake I will deferr mine anger, and for my praiſe I will refrain for thee, that I cut thee not off.

Sect. 4. Of the manner of Watchfulneſs over ſins actual.

THat we may watch over Actual ſins, obſerve we theſe Directions:——

1. Avoid we all occaſions of evil: Be afraid, not only of the fire and flame, but of the very ſmoak of ſin; it is dangerous to approach near to the Whirl-pit, or to play about the hole of the Aſp, or the den of the Cockatrice; and therefore prayed David, Pſal. 119. 37. Turn away mine eyes from beholding vanity: Not my Heart only from affecting it, but mine eyes alſo from beholding it: There is a ſhutting of the eyes from beholding evil, brought in amongſt other Duties by the Prophet Iſaiah, to which is affixed this promiſe, that Iſai. 33. 15, 16. ſuch a one ſhall dwell on high, his place of defence ſhall be the munition of rocks.

2. Reſiſt we the temptations of ſin: It may be (notwithſtanding all our care) temptations will offer themſelves, and urge us to evil, but then we muſt conſtantly reſiſt, and this is praiſe-worthy; If a man keep himſelf ſober, when he cannot come to wine or ſtrong drink, it is nothing; but for a man to be careful not to break the bounds of ſobriety, when he ſhall be in place were Wine is plentiful, and no reſtraint of it; and where company will be urging him to take more than is meet, this is true temperance indeed: If a man live chaſtely when he wants his lewd company, it is nothing; but for a Joſeph (ſued and ſought to by his Miſtriſs, yea, urged and ſollicited day after day to condeſcend to her adulterous deſires) to refuſe then, and to chooſe rather loſs of preſent liberty by not ſinning, than to gain further preferment by conſenting to ſin, this is true chaſtity indeed. Away then with thoſe idle Apologies, I was urged to ſin, I was provoked to lewdneſs, &c. Neither man nor devil can compel you to ſin, unleſs you will your own ſelf: * The devil may perſwade, entice, ſuggeſt, and provoke, but he cannot inforce nor conſtrain; nor (unleſs your own hearts give conſent) can he cauſe you to ſin.

* Suadere & ſolicitare poteſt, cogere omnino non poteſt, Aug. Hom. 12. Habet aſtutiam ſuadendi, non poteſtatem cogendi, Idem in Pſal. 91. & in Joh. 12.

3. Confeſs we our ſins, mourn we for ſin, and eſpecially labour we for hatred of ſin: The fear of the Lord is to hate evil, Prov. 8. 13. not only to forbear it, but (as the Apoſtle ſpeaks) to abhor it, Rom. 12. 9. as the meat that ſometimes we have ſurfeited of, our ſtomack nauſeateth and goeth againſt it: ſo ſhould our hearts riſe again ſin; and to this purpoſe conſider we, 1. The foulneſs of ſin; it is fouler than the fouleſt Friend in hell. 2. The illneſs of ſin; it is a greater ill than the damnation of a mans ſoul, or than the deſtruction of all the creatures in the world. 3. The infectiouſneſs of ſin; it is of that peſtilential property, that it pollutes every thing it comes near. 4. The perniciouſneſs of ſin; it deprives us of Gods favour, of our part and portion of the Blood of Chriſt, of the providence of that bleſſed Trinity, of the guard of Angels, of the Communion of Saints, of Heavens joys; and it brings upon us infinite ſorrows, as blindneſs of mind, hardneſs of heart, deadneſs of Spirit, deſperate thoughts, horrour of Conſcience, vexation of Spirit, and (without repentance) all the terrours of hell. 5. Chriſts ſufferings for ſin; ſhall we not hate him that kills our Friend, Brother, Father? how much more ſin, that put to death the Lord of life, who is indeed our deareſt Friend, Brother, Father, Saviour? Look on Chriſt crucified, and ſee if this will not make us hate ſin.

Prov 8. 13. Rom. 12. 9.

4. Believe, and by faith expect victory over our ſin; yea, by that Faith in which we have confeſſed, mourned, prayed, let us reſt perſwaded, That ſuch means ſhall not be uſed of us in vain: O lift we up the hand of Faith towards heaven, and lay hold on the promiſes of pardon, on the mercy of God in Chriſt Jeſus.

Sect. 5. Of the manner of Watchfulneſs over ſpecial ſins.

THat we may watch over our ſpecial ſins, our Dalilah-ſins, our darling-delights, obſerve we theſe Rules.

1. Endeavour we the mortifying of this ſin: Some one ſin there is in every ſoul of us that is moſt predominant: Now it is the main work of a Chriſtian, as to fall out for ever with all ſin, ſo eſpecially to improve all his ſpiritual forces and aid from from heaven utterly to demoliſh, and to beat down to the ground this hold, this boſom-ſin.

2. Lay we load of deepeſt groans, and ſtrongeſt cries for mortifying grace againſt this domineering ſin: Eſpecially every Morning and Evening ſtrive with God in our Prayers for a comfortable Conqueſt over it, enforce and enlarge that paſſage with an extraordinary pang of fervency, cry we mightily to God for power and ſtrength againſt this luſt, that continually wars againſt the Soul.

3. Bend we our ſelves againſt the ſpecial acts, occaſions, and opportunities of this ſin; as ſuppoſe raſh anger, the ſin which a man ſifteth, and purſueth to the extirpation of it; in this caſe, he ſhould reſolve with himſelf, not to ſpeak harſhly, nor to look fiercely, nor to uſe any churliſh behaviour, whether his Servant diſpleaſe him with negligence, or his Friend offend him with unfaithfulneſs, or his enemy provoke him with ill language, or ſome malicious dealing.

4. As oft as we find any motion of this ſin to ſtir, and ſhew it ſelf in us, it will be convenient, not only to with-hold our conſent, but withal to exerciſe ſome act of contrary holineſs; as ſuppoſe Deſire of Revenge be the ſin, which ſtirreth up our Blood and boileth within us, we muſt not only forbear to avenge our ſelves, but alſo bend our ſelves to pray for him that hath offended us; and if he hunger, to feed him, if he thirſt, to give him drink.

5. Settle we in our ſelves a purpoſe of heart to forbear it for time to come: In undertaking of which purpoſe, it will be expedient to ſet our ſelves ſome ſhort ſpace of time, in which we may force our ſelves to the forbearance of it, as for a day, or a month, or the like; and when the prefixed time is come, we ſhould then queſtion our ſelves, How well we have performed? Or how, or wherein we have failed? And then begin a new purpoſe, and preſcribe our ſelves a like time, for ſhunning of the ſame ſin and ſo on from time to time, till we have gotten a full victory.

6. If in our daily or monthly review, we find that we have been defective in performing of what we had purpoſed, than with an holy revenge we ſhould correct our former errours, beg pardon for our defects, and puniſh our ſelves for ſuch ſlothfulneſs, or wilfulneſs, by abſtinence from meat, eaſe, recreation; Keeping under our bodies, and bringing them into ſubjection, by mulct, or forfeiture of ſome portion to the poor, whereby we may feel ſmart: This holy revenge is commended by the Apoſtle, 2 Cor. 7. 11. as a worthy fruit of ſerious Repentance.

1 Cor. 9. 27.

7. Above all, without which all the reſt are as nothing, Believe the promiſes of pardon in the blood of Chriſt; It is Faith in the Promiſes which will be able to cleanſe, and purge the heart from this ſin; If the blood of Bulls and of Goats (ſaith the Apoſtle) and the aſhes of an Heifer, ſprinkling the unclean, ſanctifieth to the purifying of the fleſh, how much more ſhall the blood of Chriſt, who through the eternal Spirit offered himſelf without ſpot to God, purge your conſciences from dead works, to ſerve the living God; the ſence is, When a man hath once applyed the blood of Chriſt for his Juſtification, this effect will follow it, That there will accompany it a certain vigour, vertue, power, and ſtrength, which will alſo purge his conſcience from dead works; there will go a power of the Spirit together with this blood, that ſhall not only forbid him, and ſhew him that he ought not to do ſuch and ſuch evil things, but it ſhall cleanſe his conſcience from thoſe roots of dead works, thoſe corrupt luſts and ſinful affections, that are in him, and that diſpoſe him to that evil: Now this power is gotten by applying the blood (i.) by applying the Promiſes and Pardon and forgiveneſs by the blood of Jeſus Chriſt: Let no man think by his own ſtrength to prevail againſt any luſt; it is not our endeavouring, praying, bending our ſelves againſt the ſpecial acts and occaſions, exerciſing ſome acts of contrary holineſs, purpoſing to forbear it, puniſhing our ſelves for it (if gone about by our own might, and power, and ſtrength) will ever kill this ſin: no, no, we muſt do all theſe at the feet of Chriſt, and draw vertue from Chriſt; we muſt Believe the Promiſes, get aſſurance of Pardon, get aſſurance of Gods love to us in Chriſt; we muſt labour to delight in God, to get communion with Chriſt, and then our hearts will grow to an application of the Commandment; and whereas before they reſiſted it, rebelled againſt it, they will then cleave to it, and love it, and delight in it, and receive an impreſſion from it. This I take it, is the meaning of that Text, Whereby are given to us exceeding great and precious promiſes, that by theſe we might be partakers of the divine nature having eſcaped the corruption that is in the world through luſt; q. d. by believing the Promiſes we are made partakers of the godly nature, and we overcome our corruptions and luſts: Conſonant to which, is that of the Apoſtle, Know ye not, that as many as are baptized into Chriſt, are baptized into his death? q. d. as many as are baptized into Chriſt, for reconciliation with God, muſt needs be baptized into his death; they muſt be dead to ſin, as he was dead: We cannot be baptized into him for Reconciliation or Juſtification, but we muſt be baptized likewiſe for Mortification of the fleſh, and for Reſurrection to newneſs of life. To wind up all in a word, He that hath the ſtrongeſt Faith, that believes in the greateſt degree the Promiſes of Pardon and Remiſſion; he hath the holieſt heart, the moſt mortified life: Sanctification and Mortification ariſe from that root of Juſtification. The blood of Chriſt hath not only a power to waſh us from the guilt of ſin, but alſo to cleanſe us, and purge us from the power and ſtain of ſin: And therefore I ſay, the beſt way to get a great degree of Sanctification, the beſt way to get a greater meaſure of the graces of the Spirit, the beſt way to mortifie our ſinful luſts, the beſt way to watch over our ſpecial ſins, is labour to grow in Faith, in the belief of thoſe Promiſes of the Goſpel of Chriſt; and this would be well obſerved by thoſe that are a little legally byaſſed, or carried to mortifie ſin only by Vows, Promiſes, ſhunning occaſions; removing temptations, ſtrictneſs and ſeverity in Duties, fear of Hell and Judgments, ſcarce riſing ſo high for their Mortification, as Chriſt. Now theſe in themſelves are but empty, weak means of prevailing againſt ſin, like the mighty Sails of a Ship, without wind and tide; no queſtion but ſhunning occaſions, ſtrictneſs and ſeverity in Duties, watchfulneſs, &c. do well in their place and order, like Oars in a Boat, (See Saltmarſh, Freegrace, pag. 68.) which though it be carried with the Tide, if well managed, yet they may help it to go the faſter: Howſoever, it is Chriſt crucified which is the power of all in all; it is Chriſt lifted up, as Moſes lifted up the Serpent, which ſtrikes more ſoundneſs into the wounded beholder, than any other way; wherein ſome have toiled all their time for power over corruptions, and like Peter, have caught little or nothing, becauſe Jeſus Chriſt was not in the company.

Rom. 6. 3.

Saltmarſh Free grace pag. 68. who though a perfect adverſary yet here brings truth abed.

Sect. 6. Of the manner of watchfulneſs over our Hearts.

THat we may watch over our hearts, obſerve we theſe directions:

Job. 31.1. Pſal. 119. 37.

1. Guard we the windows of our ſoul, the Senſes: I made a Covenant with mine eyes, (ſaid Job) why then ſhould I think upon a Maid? Turn mine eyes from beholding vanities (ſaid David) and quicken thou me in thy way. It is incredible, what a deal of pollution and ill the Devil conveys inſenſibly into the heart, through theſe flood-gates of ſin, and therefore we had need to watch over the Senſes.

2. Go we down into our hearts, and conſider well all our thoughts; theſe if good, will bring forth good fruit; and if evil, they are the parents and begetters of all ſins, the firſt plotters and contrivers of all Treaſons, and Rebellions of our life, the bellows and incendiaries of all inordinate affections, the Panders to all other luſts, that take thought to provide for the ſatisfying of them, the diſturbers in all good Duties, that interrupt, and ſoil, and fly-blow all our Prayers, that they ſtink in the noſtrils of God; and therefore conſider and weigh well all our thoughts, for as our thoughts, are, ſo be our affections, prayers, ſpeeches, actions.

Let us make Conſcience of our thoughts; By them eſpecially do we ſanctifie, or ſin againſt God; by them eſpecially do we evidence our ſelves to be ſincere-hearted Chriſtians, or diſſembling hypocrites; by them eſpecially will the Lord judge us at the laſt day, when he will make manifeſt the counſels of our hearts; by them eſpecially (if we will not make Conſcience of them) will God laſh us in Hell to all eternity, even by thoughts accuſing, there ſhalt thou meditate terrors, and ſtudy God's wrath, together with thy own ſins and miſeries, for ever and ever

Iſai. 33. 8.

4. Reſiſt and cruſh we every exorbitant thought which draws to ſin, at the very firſt riſing: Is the temptation ſtrong? encounter it with this dreadful Dilemma, If I commit this ſin, either I muſt repent, or not repent; If I repent, it will coſt me more heart-break and ſpiritual ſmart, before I can purchaſe aſſurance of pardon and peace of Conſcience, than the ſenſual pleaſure can be worth; if I never repent, it will be the death and damnation of my ſoul.

5. Lodge we not ſo much as light thoughts, unprofitable or vain thoughts in our hearts; they will ſtill be entring in, whilſt we are in theſe houſes of clay, yet lodge they muſt not. Hence the Apoſtle, Let not the Sun go down upon your wrath; q. d. if thoughts of anger come in, in the morning or daytime, they muſt be turned out ere night; or if idle thoughts offer to come to bed to thee, let them not lodge with thee. I deny not but many good thoughts and motions may paſs, as ſtrangers through a bad man's Heart, and multitudes of vain thoughts and motions may make a through-fare of a Believer's heart, and diſturb him in good Duties, by knockings, and interruptions, and breakings in upon his heart, but ſtill they lodge not there, they are not there foſtered and harboured.

Eph 4 26.

6. Forget and ſtifle we all thoughts of ſinful actions already paſſed: The mind is very apt to run over the paſſages and circumſtances of the ſame ſins, long ſince committed, with a new and freſh delight; this argues wickedneſs of Heart, and ſuch as when it is ordinary with the heart to do ſo, is ſcarce compatible with grace: What fruit had you of thoſe things whereof ye are now aſhamed? All that the Saints reap out of ſuch fruit is ſhame and ſorrow, and many a ſad ſigh: When Ephrahim remembred his ſins, he was aſhamed and repented; A truly ſanctified ſoul will hate the appearence of his former ſins, and will have his heart inflamed with a zeal and revenge againſt it. What? Do you repeat to your ſelves your old ſins with delight? This provokes God exceedingly, you thereby ſtand to, and make good your former act; you ſhew a delight to rake in thoſe wounds you have given Chriſt already, and therefore in hell it will prove the greateſt gall, to remember your old ſins; every circumſtance in every ſin then, will be as a dagger in your Hearts. O ſtudy not theſe thoughts, forget them, ſtifle them.

Rom. 6.12.

7. Entertain all good motions put into your heart by the bleſſed Spirit, howſoever occaſioned; whether by the Miniſtery of the Word, mindfulneſs of Death, Chriſtian admonition, reading ſome good Book, ſome ſpecial Croſs, or extraordinary Mercy; feed, enlarge, and improve them to the utmoſt, ſo ſhall we preſerve our Hearts in a ſoft, comfortable temper, and heaven-ward, which is a ſingular happineſs.

8. Endeavour we to preſerve and keep up lively, holy, and Spiritual affections, and ſuffer them not to cool; or if we have grown remiſs, endeavour to recover thoſe affections again: Thoughts and affections are mutual cauſes of each other, Whilſt I muſed, the fire burned, ſaid David; and again, How love I thy Law? It is my meditation day and night. Firſt his thoughts were the bellows that kindled and enflamed his affections: And ſecondly, his affections enflamed, made his thoughts to boil, and to meditate on Gods Law day and night. Hence it is that men newly converted to God, having new and ſtrong affections, can with more pleaſure think of God than any elſe can.

Pſal 39.3. Pſal. 119. 97.

9. Let us captivate and conform all the thoughts and imaginations of our Heart to the Rules and Soveraignity of Grace; Bring into captivity every thought to the obedience of Chriſt: If thy change in words, actions, and all outward carriages were Angelical, yet if thy thoughts be ſinful and unſanctified, thou art a limb of Satan ſtill: Purity in the inward ward parts is one of the moſt ſound evidences of of our portion in the purity and power of Chriſt: Jer. 4. 14. O Jeruſalem, waſh thine heart from wickedneſs, that thou mayeſt be ſaved: How long ſhall thy vain thoughts Pſal. 139. 2. lodge within thee? God ſeeth (ſaith the Pſalmiſt) and underſtandeth our thoughts afar off: And hence it is that many humble Souls, ſenſible of their ſecret ſins, in the preſence of Gods pure eye, are more grieved (ſetting aſide ill example and ſcandals) for the rebelliouſneſs of their thoughts, than the exorbitancy of their actions, for of theſe the world ſees the worſt; but concerning the other, it cuts them to the heart, that they are not ſo well able to preſerve their inward parts in purity, towards the All-ſearching eye of God, as their words and actions in plauſibleneſs towards Man.

10. Get we our hearts poſſeſt with deep, ſtrong, and powerful apprehenſions and impreſſions of Gods Holineſs, Majeſty, Omnipreſence and Omniſcience: If any thoughts be of power to ſettle, fix, and draw in the mind of Man, they are thoughts of him. What is the Reaſon that Saints and Angels in Heaven have not a vain thought to Eternity, but that their eye is never off him? We find it by experience a bleſſed means to avoid diſtractions in Prayers, to enlarge a man's thoughts in his preparations before, or at the beginning, if with a conſideration of God's Attributes and Relations to us, he ſets on the Duty.

11. Let us Elevate, and often lift up our hearts towards Heaven: Conſider the bliſsful depths of God's boundleſs Mercies in Chriſt; Conſider the glory, the everlaſtingneſs, the unutterable excellencies of that immortal ſhining Crown above, which after this life (and this life is but a buble, a ſmoak, a ſhadow, a thought) ſhall be ſet on our heads by the hand of God; a very glimpſe whereof is able to ſweeten the bittereſt griefs that can be, and to diſpel thoſe miſts of fading vanities which the world (heated by the fire of inordinate luſts) is wont to evaporate, and interpoſe betwixt the ſight of mens Souls, and the bliſs of Heaven.

12. Let us ſpend ſome thoughts, yea many thoughts, about the ſaving excellencies of Jeſus Chriſt: Conſider the wonder of our Redemption, the moſt admirable, and moſt aſtoniſhing plot of the bleſſed Trinity, ſitting in Council about the ſaving of our Souls; a Myſtery which the Angels ſtoop down to pry into; an Orient Pearl, that will out-ſhine all the ſparkling Jewels of the whole Creation; Conſider the Love-letters of Chriſt in his glorious Goſpel: The love-tokens he hath ſent to our dear Souls: And ah! What flames of divine affection? What raptures of zeal! What raviſhments of delights? What briniſh Sorrows, and great indignation againſt ſin? What extaſies of obedience can be enough for our bleſſed Lord, and deareſt Redeemer?

Sect. 7. Of the manner of Watchfulneſs over our Tongues.

THat we may watch over the Tongue, two things muſt be heeded:

{ 1. That it be not unſeaſonably idle.
{ 2. That it be not ſinfully exerciſed.

1. That it be not unſeaſonably idle: And herein obſerve thoſe generally, and much neglected Duties.

of { Chriſtian Reproof.
{ Heavenly Diſcourſe.

1. For Chriſtian Reproof, obſerve theſe Directions: ——

1. If a Brother be overtaken with a fault, or ſome leſs offence, admoniſh him in the Spirit of meekneſs, conſidering thy ſelf, leſt thou alſo be tempted. Gal. 6. 1.

2. If he offend more grievouſly, then reprove him freely, and ſuffer not ſin to reſt upon his Soul. Lev. 19. 17.

But in this caſe, when, or how muſt we reprove? Object.

This caſe is cloathed with ſuch variety of circumſtances, and conſtancy of alterations, that we cannot give any particular directions: Only the Chriſtian that is perplex'd what to do let him conſult with theſe boſom Counſellors: Sol.

1. With his Spiritual Wiſdom; it is that muſt ſuggeſt to him, when and how to reprove, whether preſently upon it, or ſometimes afterwards; whether directly and down-right, or indirectly and by intimation; whether perſonally, or in the general; whether in a fair and milder manner, or with a more bold or reſolute Spirit; whether only by diſcountenance, or by diſcourſe, &c.

2. With his heart: A reproof muſt not ſpring from any imperious humour, of cenſuring, and medling with his brethren; from any ſecret ambitious deſire, to purchaſe an opinion and reputation of holineſs to himſelf, or from any other by-end, but from an heart truly humbled with ſight and ſenſe of its own infirmities, graciouſly reſolved into compaſſion and commiſeration of the offender, and lifted up in a ſecret ſupplication for the ſucceſs of the Reproof, and Salvation of the party, all at once to Gods Throne of Grace.

2. For Spiritual and Heavenly diſcourſe, obſerve theſe Directions: ——

1. Apprehend all opportunities and occurrences which may miniſter matter of digreſſion from worldly talk, into Divine diſcourſe. It is pity that Profeſſors ſhould ever meet without ſome talk of their meeting in Heaven, or of the bleſſed ways and means that lead thereunto; and therefore by ſome wiſe tranſition, turn thou the current of the diſcourſe towards ſome Heavenly good: It was the practice of our Saviour, upon mention of bread, he preſt upon his Diſciples a diſſwaſion from the Leaven of the Phariſees: And upon occaſion of John 4. 10. Drink being denyed him by the Samaritan woman, Mat. 16. 5, 6. he (forgetting his wearineſs, hunger and thirſt) labors to allure her to the well-head of everlaſting happineſs.

2. Have ever in a readineſs ſome common heads of more ſtirring and quickning motives to mind heavenly things; as the curſed condition of our natural ſtate, the dear purchaſe of Chriſt to Redeem our Souls, the incomparable ſweetneſs of Chriſtian ways, the vanity and vexation of earthly things, the uncertanty and miſery of this ſhort life, the everlaſtingneſs of our ſtate in another world, the terrors of Death, the dreadfulneſs of that great and laſt day drawing on now apace, the horrors of damned Souls, &c. Mention of theſe things many times, may ſtrike full cold to the Heart of the ſenſual Belſhazzar, and drive him into his dumps; and by Gods bleſſing may ſometimes prepare the hardeſt hearts, for ſome thoughts of remorſe, and more heavenly impreſſions.

3. Get we into our hearts an habit of more Heavenly-mindedneſs, by much excerciſe, and intercourſe and acquaintance with God, by often contemplation, and foretaſte of the ſweetneſs, Glory, and eternity of thoſe Manſions above, by reflecting on time paſt, how long the Soul was detained in the ſtate of darkneſs; what bitterneſs and terrors it paſſed through in the pangs of its New-birth, what relapſes and deſertions it hath been incident to ever ſince that time to this; and being thus buſied at home in our own Hearts, we ſhall find our ſelves much more pregnant and plentiful in Holy talk when we come abroad: Men for the moſt part ſpeak moſt, and moſt willingly of thoſe things they mind moſt; ſuch proviſions within, will make the Tongue ſo ready, that it cannot be unſeaſonably idle.

2. Watch we muſt over the Tongue, that it be not ſinfully exerciſed: And herein obſerve theſe Directions.

1. Be dumb to all unſavory Communication; as, Lying, Swearing, &c. O, how do theſe ſins wound the Heart of Chriſt, and Crucifie again the Lord of Glory?

2. Be ſilent from Slandering, Backbiting, Falſe accuſing, Cenſuring: A true Heart is ever moſt angry and diſpleaſed with, moſt Eagle-ey'd and watchful over, moſt ſtrict and ſevere againſt its own ſins; which homebred imployment haply hinders, and moderates a man from too much medling abroad.

Mat. 7. 6. 3. Give not that which is holy unto Dogs, neither caſt your Pearls before Swine, leſt they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rent you: By Dogs are meant obſtinate enemies, that maliciouſly revile the Miniſters of the Word, and the Meſſengers thereof: By Swine are meant thoſe ſottiſh, ſcurrile wretches, who ſcornfully and contemptuouſly trample under foot all Holy Inſtructions, Reproofs, Admonitions, tendred unto them by any Chriſtian out of the Word of Truth. Now if accidentally ſuch a ſon of Belial, or Scoffing Iſhmael, be in our company, we are commanded by Chriſt to ſay nothing, at leaſt of the conſolations of Chriſt, of the ſpecial promiſes of Chriſt, of the gentle entreaties of the Goſpel of Chriſt: Conſider this, and tremble, all ye that are ſcornful, and furious oppoſites to the purity and power of the Word; it is the Lords will that you ſhould run furiouſly towards the pit of Hell, and that no body ſhould ſtay you; not a man muſt call and cry unto you, to tell you of ſuch things as are peculiar to the Saints, in way of application to you: But he that is filthy, let him be filthy ſtill; let him drink, be drunk, deſpair, Rev. 22. 11. die, and be damned. All this while not a word of comfort belongs to you.

Sect. 8. Of the manner of Watchfulneſs over our actions.

Our actions are either { Natural, Civil, Religious. } In all which obſerve theſe Directions.

1. Concerning Natural actions, as Eating, Drinking, Sleeping, Viſitations, Recreations, &c. no conſtant Rule can be preſcribed; becauſe it is much diverſified by Health, Sickneſs, Age, conſtitution; and every one hath either learned by his own experience, what ſeaſons, and proportions of ſuch natural helps are fitteſt for his temperament, or he is moſt unworthy of that precious thing (an Underſtanding Soul) which he bears in his boſom; only let me inform Chriſtians, that they may ſin in any of theſe actions, and therefore let them beware and watch over themſelves in the uſe and enjoyment of theſe things; which howſoever lawful in their own nature, yet by our Corruption are capable of inordinateneſs and exceſs. Some are of opinion, That Chriſtians are in more danger of being Spiritually undone, by a ſlie inſinuation and enſnarement of licentiouſneſs and immoderation in ſuch lawful things, than by the groſs aſſaults of foul ſins and Temptations; their hearts may riſe againſt any work of darkneſs, as Adultery, Murther, Swearing, Prophaning the Lords day, Speculative wantonneſs, &c. which yet may ſo often be inſenſibly ſeized upon, by an exceſſive ſinful delight, in things, unſinful in themſelves; and therefore we had need to watch over our Natural actions.

Concerning Civil actions, as Bargains, Contracts, Covenants, Dealings, Negotiations, &c. obſerve theſe Directions.

1. Think we ſeriouſly and ſolemnly of that Principle, Do as thou wouldſt be done by. In fellow-feeling, real conceit, put thy ſelf into the place, and impartially put on the perſon of the party with whom thou art to deal, and then returning to thy ſelf, deal out and proportion unto him that meaſure in every particular, which thou wouldeſt be willing to receive at anothers hand, if thou wert in his caſe: Whatſoever (Saith our Saviour) ye would Matt. 7. 22. that men ſhould do to you, do ye even ſo to them for this is the Law and the Prophets.

2. Abhor with an infinite diſdain, to get any thing by any wicked means, wrong doing, or unconſcionable dealing; we may aſſure our ſelves in ſuch caſes, That beſides the ſecret grumblings, of our ſelf-accuſing Conſcience, the angry eye of God ſees ſecretly our doings, and will ſhortly, and moſt certainly revenge.

3. Let our deſire and delight never faſten it ſelf immoderately upon any earthly thing, though never ſo excellent: Exorbitancy and error this way, brings many times with it either a loſs of the thing ſo doated on, or it may be a croſs, or howſoever a curſe. O conſider we the vanity of theſe earthly things! Conſider we the Glores above! Methinks this one preſervative would be powerful enough to keep the heart of every Chriſtian from doating upon the World, or ſuffering it to be poſſeſſed thereof; it is this, Every Chriſtian by a fruitful Faith, may be aſſured of a Crown of life, either by aſſurance of adherence, or evidence, or both: Now if that once a day he ſhould take a ſerious ſurvey of the Glory, everlaſtingneſs, and unutterable excellencies of that immortal Crown, which our dear Redeemer holds for him in his hand, ready to ſet upon his Head, when he ſhall be diſſolved from this vale of tears: Methinks it were able ſo to dull the edge, and diſſolve the droſſineſs of all earthly deſires, that they ſhould never be able to beat or harden this Heart any more.

3. Concerning Religious actions, as Meditating, Hearing, Reading, Faſting, Praying, Alms-giving, &c. obſerve theſe Directions:

{ 1. In Geneneral.
2. In Special.

1. In General, obſerve, That we draw and derive from Chriſt by the attractive force of Faith, Special abilities; 1. To perform all Duties. 2. To exerciſe all Graces. 3. To reſiſt and overcome all Temptations and Corruptions which ſhall befal us: To this purpoſe are thoſe Promiſes are Grace and Strength, Iſa. 44. 3. Ezek. 36. 27. Zech. 10. 12. John 1. 16. And theſe are Securities given us from God, that we ſhall receive Grace through Duties, which are Conduit-pipes or Inſtruments of conveying the ſame into the Soul from Chriſt. This is to do all in the ſtrength of Chriſt, and to take forth a great deal of Chriſt into the Soul, ſo that not I, but Chriſt Gal. 2. 20. may live in me.

2. In Special, obſerve theſe Directions:

1. That before the doing of Duties, we remove all lets and impediments which may hinder, and improve all occaſions which may forward us thereunto.

2. That in doing of them, we behave our ſelves well and wiſely, performing them rightly and religiouſly.

3. After all is done, that we be careful all be not loſt through our own vileneſs, and viciouſneſs, Privy Pride, or ſecret Hypocriſie.

For inſtance, Would we watch unto Prayer, as the Apoſtle injoins us? Eph. 6.18.

1. Then, before we fall on our knees, let us ſhake off three impiſoning and heavy hindrances, which otherwiſe will clog and clip the wings of our prayers, that they will never be able to aſcend up into Heaven; as Anger and Diſtruſt: And let us poſſeſs our ſelves of three excellent helps and enflaming furtherances; the firſt is, a right apprehenſion of God's Dreadfulneſs, Purity, Power, &c. The ſecond is, a true ſenſe of our own Vileneſs, Abominableneſs, Nothingneſs, &c. The Third is, an hearty ſurvey of the Infiniteneſs, and unexpreſſibleneſs of Gods Bounty, Bleſſings, and compaſſionate forbearance towards us.

2. After we are down on our knees, firſt repel with an undaunted Spirit Satans Blaſphemous injections: Secondly, watch over the world with care and timely oppoſition, that (if it be poſſible) not an earthly thought may creep into our Heart all the while: Thirdly, ſtrive to hold our Hearts in heat, as well in Confeſſion as Deprecation, in Deprecation, as Petition; as well for purity of Heart, as for Pardon of ſin throughout: Prayer is the Creature of the Holy Ghoſt, every part whereof we ſhould heartily wiſh, and earneſtly wreſtle for, That he would proportionably animate and enliven, even as the Soul doth the body.

3. After we have riſen off our knees, Firſt; Take heed of reſting in the Duty, take heed of Privy Pride, and ſecret Hypocriſie, take heed of returning with the Dog to his Vomit: Secondly, purſue and preſs after the things prayed for, by a timely apprehenſion, fruitful exerciſe, and utmoſt improvement of all occaſions, and heavenly offers, which may any ways concur to the compaſſing of them: But of this I ſhall ſpeak more largely when I come to the Duty of prayer. Thus much of Watchfulneſs.

CAAP. IV. SECT. I.

Of the Nature of Self-trial.

We have done with Watchfulneſs; the eye that overſees and directs all other Duties: Now to the Duties themſelves; wherein we ſhall follow this Method: 1. To conſider them as in reference to private perſons: 2. As in reference to Families: 3. As in reference to publick Aſſemblies. The Philoſopher in his Method of Practical Philoſophy, firſt handles Ethicks, in reference to paticular perſons: and then he proceeds to his Oeconomicks, in reference to Families; and laſtly, to his Politicks, in reference to Cities and Countrys. Of many particulars ariſe a Family; of many Families is conſtituted a City: The ſame order ſhall we follow in theſe Divine Arts, of our Ethicks, Oeconomicks, and Politicks. And we ſhall firſt handle Duties, in reference to particular perſons; of which ſort are theſe:

1. Self-trial.
2. Self-denial.
3. Experiences.
4. Evidences.
5. Meditation.
6. Life of Faith.

The firſt Duty is Self-trial: And for our better direction in the exerciſe of this Duty.

obſerve we
1. The Nature.
2. The Objects.
3. The Manner.
4. The time of it.

For the Nature of it, Self-trial, is a kind of judicary proceeding, in which a man keepeth private Seſſions at home, paſſing a Sentence on his Thoughts, Words, and Actions.

Or, for more deſtinct knowledge, two ſorts of Actions are implyed in this Duty of Trial, ſome Eſſential.

Accidental.

1. Of the former ſort, or of Eſſentials, are theſe three Diſcuſſion.
Application.
Cenſure.

1. Diſcuſſion is a ſifting of our life and dealings, by which we pull things out of the heap, where before they lay confuſed, and unſeen, and by which we ſet every fact of ours in open view, that it may be ſcanned, and ſeen by it ſelf what it is.

2. Application is a laying of theſe acts, thus ſearched and found out, to the Rule of Gods Law, which is the Touch-ſtone of all our doings, and according to which God will judge us at the laſt day.

3. Cenſure is the judgment that our minds and Conſciences give upon our Thoughts, Words, and Deeds, according to the Rule of the Law. Theſe three laid together, make up the nature of this work of Examination, or Self-trial: So that we may not unfitly deſcribe it out of its own Principles, thus:——

Self-trial, is, A Diſcuſſion of a mans life, that his Thoughts, Words and Deeds may be ſeen, and cenſured according to the Rule of Gods Laws.

2. Of the latter ſort (or of Accidentals) are theſe two;

viz.
The one going before.
The other following after Self-trial.

1. That which goes before, is a purpoſe to better a mans Spiritual State, by Correcting what is amiſs.

Confirming what is right.

2. That which follows after it, is a practice of ſuch Rules as may back our Trial, and make it more effectual to us: I ſhall mention only theſe three Rules:

1. That after we have Tryed, we then compare our preſent, with our former ſtate, and conſider whether we have encreaſe or decayed in Grace.

2. That if we have profited in Grace, we then conſider by what means we have profited, that ſo we may make more conſtant uſe of ſuch means; or if you have decayed in Grace, we then obſerve by what Temptations we were overcome, that ſo our former errors may make us more wary, and more reſolute againſt them for the future.

3. That as we meet with any occaſions of moment concerning which we had a purpoſe to better our Spiritual ſtate, we then recal home our thoughts, and make uſe of our former reſolutions, and practiſe what we did purpoſe.——— Out of all theſe laid together, we may more fully deſcribe it thus:

Self-trial is a diſcuſſion of a mans life for the finding out the true ſtate of a mans Soul towards God, accompanied with a purpoſe and practice of whatſoever, upon trial ſhall appear requiſite for the Salvation and good of a mans Soul.

Sect. 2. Of the Objects of Self-trial.

THe Object of our Trial is either { Works. / Rewards.

1. For our works, they are either { Evil works, or Sin. / Good works, or Duties.

1. We muſt examine or try our ſin in { General. / Special.

1. In General, whether of Omiſſion or Commiſſion: For as in the Laſt Judgment, our Lord will not only give Sentence againſt Murthers, and Oppreſſions, but againſt Uncharitableneſs, and Unmercifulneſs, in not feeding the Hungry, and not lodging the Stranger, in not clothing the Naked, in not viſiting the Sick: So when we judge our ſelves we muſt cenſure not only our Robbing the poor, but our not Relieving the poor; not only our Commiſſions of evil, but our Omiſſions of good.

2. In Special, whether of our Calling or Nature: The ſins may breed ſpecial danger, becauſe we are ready to drop into them of their own diſpoſitions; and therefore in the daily care of our Souls, we had need to try our ſelves concerning theſe ſins.

2. As we muſt examine or try our evil works, ſo our good works.

1. Becauſe we are many times deceived with ſhews, thinking that good which is evil: Thus Paul thought he ſhewed much zeal, when he perſecuted the Churches of Chriſt? Phil. 3. 6. And Micha, thought he highly merited God's favour, when he kept a Prieſt for Idolatrous Service. Jud. 17. 13.

2. Becauſe in the very works which are truly good, we do many times intermingle Corruptions of our own; ſometimes evil ends, and ſometimes evil thoughts, and ſometimes we perform them in an evil manner; but always in our beſt devotions there are many imperfections and failings. Indeed this trial is a Duty neceſſary to all Duties: If we believe, we muſt do it with the Heart, Rom. 10. 10. If we ſing Pſalms, we muſt do it with the Spirit, 1. Cor. 14. 15. If we come to the Lord's Supper, firſt, Let a man examine himſelf and ſo let him eat, 1 Cor. 11. 28. If we pray, we muſt therein examine: And hence (as ſome obſerve) the ſame Hebrew word ſignifies to pray, and to judge a mans ſelf.

Rom. 10. 10.
1 Cor. 14. 15.
1 Cor. 11. 28.

But becauſe Duties are of ſeveral ſorts, { inward / outward } of { Heart. / Tongue. / Action.

In trying theſe three, we ſhall incluſively try all ſorts of Duties that are in reference to them.

2. For rewards, our only trial in reference to them is concerning our Right and Title to them; our intereſt in them, Of which in Order.

Sect. 3. Of the manner of trying or examining our ſins in General.

THat we may try, or examine our ſins of all ſorts, obſerve theſe Rules:

1. Procure we a Catalogue of our ſins both before, and ſince our Converſion; and to that purpoſe, go we through the Commandments one by one; and in each of them conſider what ſins are condemned, and what Duties are enjoined: And hereupon queſtion with our own hearts, Whether have I committed this or that ſin? 2. Whether have I neglected this or that Duty? And as the heart anſwers, be ready to note down thoſe ſins whereof we ſtand guilty.

2. The ſins thus found out, make we a ſolemn Confeſſion to God, with deep Humiliation; let them be dolorous Confeſſions with Grief and Sorrow for Sin, and from a ſight and ſence of it; Thus Ephraim did, and God was fain to acknowledge it, I have ſurely heard Ephraim bemoan himſelf: O the Lord loves to hear ſuch bemoaning Ephraims, and ſuch bemoaning Confeſſions.

3. The ſins thus confeſſed and bewailed, let us judge and condemn our ſelves: This is that Duty inſtanced in by the Apoſtle, Jer. 31. 18. If we would judge our ſelves, we ſhould not be judged. There is a Tribunal that we ſhould every one erect within us, where Conſcience is the Accuſer, Reaſon the Judge, Fear, the Goaler, Sorrow the Executioner.

4. After we have thus judged our ſelves, let us then apply our ſelves to God's Throne of Grace; 1. Cor. 11. 31. let us deſire of God Salvation in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt: Let us caſt all our confidence on him, who never fails them that put their truſt in him, and in his precious Merits.

Sect. 4. Of the manner of trying, or examining our ſpecial ſins.

THat we may try, or examine our ſpecial ſins, our Dalilah ſins, obſerve we theſe Rules:

1. Endeavour we to find out this ſin; and in our ſcrutiny, we may diſcover it by theſe marks:

1. That is the Dalilah, which thy own Conſcience and the finger of God in the Miniſtry many times meets with, and chiefly checks thee for.

2. That which thou art lotheſt to leave, haſt leaſt power to reſiſt, and which moſt hinders the reſignation and ſubmiſſion of thy Soul and Body, to the Word and will of God.

3. That which God often corrects in thee, even in the interpretation and guilty acknowledgment of thy ſelf-accuſing heart; and if ever the Sword of the Spirit ſhall cleave it from thy boſom (which is infinitely to be deſired), it will coſt the bittereſt tears, and deepeſt groans.

4. Thoughts, Plots, and Projects about it (a thouſand to one) ordinarily ſeize upon thy heart at the very firſt waking, if they have not broken thy ſleep, and troubled thee in thy dreams.

2. The ſin once found out, do we purſue it, and make we a ſolemn Confeſſion to God of it; mourn we under it, and deſire we help from God for his mortifying Grace.

3. Settle we in our ſelves a purpoſe of heart, to forbear it for time to come: In undertaking of which purpoſe, it will be expedient to ſet our ſelves ſome ſhort ſpace of time, as for a day or a month, &c. and when the prefixed time is come, we ſhould then queſtion our ſelves, How well we have performed? Or how, or wherein we have failed? And then begin a new purpoſe.

4. Be we ever jealous of our ſelves, and of our infirmity and proneneſs to this ſin. Now we have two grounds of this jealouſie:

1. Leſt we be deceived about it.
2. Leſt we be overtaken with it.

1. We may be deceived, in ſuppoſing that we are utterly divorced, and quite delivered from this boſom-ſin, when it is nothing ſo; as thus:

1. We may change only in the outward form and not in truth: For inſtance, whereas the ſame ſin of Covetouſneſs doth utter and expreſs it ſelf by Uſery, Symony, Sacriledge, Bribery, Grinding the faces of the poor, Detaining ill-gotten goods without reſtitution; we may perhaps inſenſibly glide out of one gulf of griping cruelty into another, or it may be from one of theſe more notorious, to ſome others leſs obſerved, and leſs odious in the world, and yet ſtill abide in the chambers of Death, and under the tyranny of this reigning ſin.

2. We may ſurceaſe, and refrain from the outward groſs acts of ſuch hateful villanies, and yet our inwards be ſtill defiled with inſatiable, ſenſual hankerings after them: For inſtance, Whereas the foul ſin of uncleanneſs doth actuate it ſelf by Fornication, Adultery, Self-pollution, immoderate abuſe of the Marriage-bed, Speculative wantonneſs, we may perhaps forbear the external acts of uncleanneſs, and yet lie and languiſh in the delightful revolvings of them in our mind, in Adulteries of thought.

3. We may change the kind of our boſom-ſin in reſpect of the matter, form, object, every way; and yet upon the matter it ſelf, it is but the exchange of one ſoul fiend for another: For inſtance, Wantonneſs may be our ſweet ſin in youth, and Wordlineſs in old age; Hypocriſie may reign at one time, Apoſtacy at another; Furious zeal for one while, Prophane irreligiouſneſs for another.

4. We may for a time pull our necks of this ſtrong yoke of Satan (out of a melancholick pang of Slaviſh terror, ſerious fore-thought of death, lying everlaſting in Hell,) but becauſe it is not the work of the word, humbling us ſoundly under God's mighty hand, planting Faith, and infuſing mortifying power, anon will this unclean Spirit return, and rule in us again far more imperiouſly than before ——— I know it is not impoſſible, but that a man after his Converſion, by the ſudden ſurpriſal of ſome violent Temptation, and cunning train of Satan, may be hailed back to commit his ſweet ſin again (though it be an heavy caſe, and to be lamented, if it were poſſible, with tears of Blood) yet he never doth, nor never can return to wallow in it again, or to allow it: Here is the difference, the Temporary man, after his formal enforced forbearance, engulphs himſelf again with more greedineſs into the ſenſuality and pleaſures of his boſom-ſin, he lies in it: and delights in it, and hardens himſelf more obſtinately in it: but the ſound Convert after a relapſe, his heart bleeds a freſh with extraordinary bitterneſs, and he cries more mightily to God, for the return of his pleaſed countenance, and he prayes, and fortifies the breach with ſtronger reſolution, and more invincible watchfulneſs againſt future aſſaults; obſerve then, if our change be but formal, outward, miſtaken, temporary, we are utterly deceived, and therefore we had need to be jealous of our ſelves.

2. We may be overtaken with this ſin, before we be aware, our nature is very apt to take fire, our Corrupt heart is like Tinder or Gunpowder: This ſin is called Peccatum in deliciis, our darling pleaſure, to our minion delight: It is ever ready at every turn to allure us, tempt us; perſwade us; and the ſoul by a ſecret ſenſual inclination is apt to follow it, to feed upon it, with much affectionate ſweetneſs: It may be we have ſometimes given it a deaths wound, by the power of his might, who is our all in all and yet as it is ſaid of the firſt Beaſt, this deadly wound is ready to be healed again; Rev. 13. 12. it is an Hydra with many heads, and if we be not ſtill hacking and hewing, it will revive and recollect ſtrength, and at laſt rage more than before; and therefore what need have we to this Holy jealouſie?

5. Above all, without which all the reſt are nothing, believe we the promiſes of Pardon, and of Sanctification: The Promiſes of the firſt ſort I ſpoke to in our Watchfulneſs over this ſin, and therefore now I ſhall ſpeak of the latter. The Lord hath promiſed to deliver us from all our enemies, that we may ſerve him in righteouſneſs and holineſs all the days of our life; Luke 1. 72. 74, 75. The Lord hath promiſed to write his Law in our Hearts, Heb. 10. 16. and that can never be, except he obliterate all the old writing; Now then, believe theſe promiſes and preſs the Lord with them, or we ſhall never be able to out-wreſtle our luſts, what though we find out our ſweet ſins, confeſs them, reſolve againſt them, be jealous over them? Unleſs we go to God and Chriſt in the promiſes for ſtrength, we ſhall lie down in ſorrow: Could we of our ſelves ſubdue our Corruptions, God would not take this upon him, to give us new Hearts, and new Spirits, to ſanctifie us, to make us new Creatures, to crucifie the fleſh, to weaken the dominion of ſin: Alas, he knows our weakneſs, and he knows all is in his own power; and therefore if we would mortifie theſe luſts, we muſt go to him, and beſeech him to do it when a man is once in Chriſt, he lives by a principle without himſelf: I live by the faith of the Son of God, (ſaid Paul) who loved me and gave himſelf for me: Gal. 2. 20. If we ask, Why will the Lord have our ſtrength out of our ſelves? Why may not a man have ſufficient habitual ſtrength in himſelf, by which we may be able to out-wreſtle luſts and overcome Temptations? The reaſon is, Becauſe no fleſh ſhall rejoice in it ſelf, and therefore Chriſt is made Sanctification unto us: O let us believe theſe promiſes, and have continual dependance on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

Sect. 5. Of the manner of trying, or examining our Hearts.

THat we may rightly try or examine our Hearts obſerve we theſe Rules

1. Uſe we retiredneſs when we fall on this work: To this purpoſe ſaith the Pſalmiſt, Commune with your own Hearts on your beds and be ſtill: Pſal. 4. 4. When we get alone purpoſely to ſtudy our hearts, our hearts will then come to us, they will be more apt to diſcourſe with us privately, then in a crowd; and therefore ſet we ſome time apart out of our publick or particular occaſions to deal with our hearts, as David, who after the publick buſineſs was done, turned home to viſit, and to bleſs his own houſe. 2 Sam. 6. 20.

2. Try what thoughts are within, and which way runs the ſtream of our thoughts: The heart is an houſe of common reſort, into which multitudes of thoughts, like ſo many gueſts, enter, and have free and open acceſs: Only if it be ſanctified, it ordinarily diſtils Holy, Sweet, and uſeful Meditations out of all objects; as the Bee ſucks Honey out of every flower; and a good ſtomack ſucks ſweet and wholeſome nouriſhment out of what it takes to it ſelf; So doth a Holy heart (ſo far as ſanctified) convert and digeſt all into ſpiritual and uſeful thoughts: But on the contrary, if it be wicked ed, then a World of Vain, Light, Wanton, Prophane, and diſſolute thoughts lodge there, and defile thoſe Rooms they lodge in; which made the Jer. 4. 14. Lord ſay to Jeruſalem, O Jeruſalem, waſh thine heart from wickedneſs, that thou mayeſt be ſaved. How long ſhall thy vain thoughts lodge within thee?

3. If upon tryal we find a loathneſs to entertain holy thoughts, and unſteadineſs in them, a miſplacing of them (which diſorder is a vanity and ſin, be the thought materially never ſo good) or if we find in us many times a taking thought to Rom. 13 14. fulfil the luſts of the fleſh, a repreſenting or acting over ſin in our thoughts (O how much of that precious ſand of our thoughts run out of this way;) Then let us humble our ſelves for them; and thus Agur teacheth, If thou haſt done fooliſhly in lifting up thy ſelf, or if thou haſt thought evil, lay thine hand Prov. 30. 32. upon thy mouth; (i. e.) be humbled, be aſhamed of theſe thoughts.

4. After humiliation, we muſt proceed to Judgment: And to that end conſider, what will be the ſubject of that great Inqueſt at the laſt day? The Apoſtle Anſwers, The counſels of the Heart: And who 1 Cor. 4. 5. will be the Exeutioner? Even Thoughts accuſing: O then let us prevent this doom, and this Execution, by our own Judgment and Self-condemnation; let us ſentence our Hearts, and whip out our evil thoughts, and give them their paſs.

5. Let us watch over, and obſerve our hearts ever after: Thoughts will be crouding in, when we have done all we can, yet let them know that they paſs not unſeen; where ſtrict watch, and ward is kept, where Magiſtrates, and Marſhals, and Conſtables are diligent to examine vagrant Perſons you ſhall have few of them there: The Reaſon that ſuch ſwarms of vagrant thoughts make their Rendezvouz, and paſs in our hearts, is, Becauſe there is no ſtrict watch kept, we obſerve not our hearts with all diligence.

6. Set our thoughts in order every morning, ſtrengthen and perfume our ſpirits with ſome Gracious Meditations on God's Holineſs, Majeſty, Om- Pſal. 130. 6. nipreſence, Omniſcience, My Soul waiteth for the Lord (ſaid David) more than they that watch for the Morning; obſerve it, if you pleaſe, when we firſt open our eyes, there ſtand many ſuiters; attending on us to ſpeak with our thoughts, even as Clients at Lawyers doors; but ſpeak we firſt with our God, and he will ſay ſomething to our hearts, and ſettle them for all the day after.

7. Now and then propoſe we to our hearts theſe two queſtions: 1. Heart, how doſt thou? A few words, but a very ſerious queſtion: You know this is the firſt queſtion, and the firſt ſalute that we uſe to one another, How do you Sir? I would to God we would ſometimes thus ſpeak to our Hearts, Heart, how doſt thou? How is it with thee for thy Spiritual ſtate? 2. Heart what wilt thou do? Or, Heart, what doſt thou think will become of thee and me? As that dying Roman once ſaid Animula, vagula, blandula, &c. Poor, Wretched, miſerable Soul, whither art thou and I a going, and what will become of thee, when thou and I ſhall part? This very thing doth Moſes propoſe to Deut. 32. 26. Iſrael, though in other terms, O that they would conſider their latter end! And, O that we would propoſe this queſtion conſtantly to our Hearts to conſider Pſal. 4. 4. and debate upon! Commune with your own Hearts, ſaid David; q. d. debate the matter betwixt you and your own hearts to the very utmoſt: Let your Hearts be ſo put to it in communing with them, as that they may ſpeak their very bottom. Commune,] or hold a ſerious communication, and clear intelligence and acquaintance with your own Hearts: It was the Confeſſion of a Divine, ſenſible of his neglect, and eſpecially of the difficulty of this Duty, * I have lived (ſaith he) forty years and ſomewhat more, and carried my heart in my boſom all this while, and yet my Heart and I are as great ſtrangers and as utterly unacquainted, as if we had never come near one another: —— Nay I know not my Heart, I have forgotten my Heart; Ah my bowels, my bowels! That I could be grieved at the very Heart, that my poor Heart and I have been ſo unacquainted! We are fallen into an Athenian age, ſpending our time in nothing more than in telling or hearing News: How go things here? How there? How in one place? How in another? But who is there that is inquiſitive, How are the things with my poor Heart? Weigh but in the Ballance of a ſerious conſideration, what time we have ſpent in this Duty, and what time otherwiſe? And for many ſcores and hundreds of hours or days that we owe to our Hearts in this Duty, can we write Fifty? Or where there ſhould have been fifty Veſſels full of this Duty, can we find Twenty, or Ten? O the days, months, years we beſtow upon Sin, Vanity, the affairs of this World! Whiles we afford not a minute in converſe with our own Hearts concerning their caſe.

*Mr. Lightfoot in his Sermon before the Houſe of Commons on Pſa. 44. Where obſerve, that I ſet not the Author here under the confeſſion of a wilful neglect of that main Duty till that very time that he was exhorting others to it; I rather look upon it as his daily confeſſion, both before and ſince: Which argues, not an impious, voluntary, wilful neglect; but rather a tender, humble, watchful, ſoft, and ſenſible Spirit, truly ſenſible of that neglect, which is infirmity.

Sect. 6. Of the manner of trying, or examining our Tongues.

THat we may rightly try, or examine our Tongues, obſerve we theſe Rules.

1. Search we into our diſpoſitions, whether we are Men of few words, or given to much ſpeaking? The Tongue may offend both ways but eſpecially if we are wordy.

2. Peruſe with a broken heart and bleeding affection the many kinds of thoſe ſins of the tongue, whereof (no doubt, at one time or other) we have been deeply guilty, Some number them in thirty particulars; as, Blaſphemy, Murmering, Defence of Sin, Swearing, Forſwearing, Lying, Equivocating, Slandering, Flattering, Curſing, Railing, Brawling, Scoffing, Giving ill Counſel, Sowing ſeeds of diſcord amongſt Neighbours, Double-tonguedneſs, Boaſting, Diſcovering of Secrets, Haſty or indiſcreet Threatning, Raſh Promiſes and Vows, Idle words, Loquacity, or immoderate talkative-Filthy talking, Scurrility, or fooliſh Jeſting, Tale-telling, Railing of Rumors, Sinful ſilence, Raſh cenſuring, Malicious informing, Whiſpering.

3. Conſider, we the laſt Judgment, when men ſhall give account for every idle Word; for by our words we muſt be juſtified, and by our words we muſt be juſtified, and by our words we muſt be condemned. Will it not be a fearful Bill, wherein muſt be written every word that we ſpoke all our life long? O let us tremble to think of it, and judge and condemn our ſelves, and ſeal up our lips with amazement, as if we were ſtruck dumb.

4. Let us ever after ſet a watch at the door of our lips: I ſaid, I will take heed to my ways, that I ſin not with my Tongue; I will keep my mouth with a Bridle. It is ſtoried, That when this verſe was read, or Lectured upon a Religious Perſon, he cryed out, Stay there and I will hear the reſt when I have learned that verſe. A long time after being demanded, Why he returned not to his old Maſter, he anſwered, that As yet he was not perfect in his firſt leſſon: And hence the Apoſtle could ſay, If any man offend not in word, the ſame is a perfect man, and able alſo to bridle the whole Body. It is an hard work to bridle the Tongue, and therefore we had need to watch over it.

5. Pray we the Lord for the guidance of his Spirit in right governing of our Tongue; The preparation of the Heart is in man, and the anſwer of the Tongue is from the Lord: And therefore prayed David, Set a Watch, O Lord, before my mouth, keep the door of my lips: O the Tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity; as the fire flies about, ſo the Tongue is ſaid to have wings; as the fire aſſimulates and turns every thing into its own Nature, ſo the tongue aſſimulates the Hearts of men to whom it ſpeaks; we had need therefore to pray, that God would order this fire in our mouths, leſt we kindle ſuch a fire in the breaſts of others, as we ſhall never live to quench again, and ſo kindle the fire of God's Wrath, which ſhall ſmoak to our deſtruction.

Sect. 7. Of the manner of trying or examining our Actions.

THat we may rightly try or examine our Actions (I mean ſuch actions as are matters and concernments of the Soul, whether the work of ſaving grace, or the individual companions of this ſaveing work, as Duties and Graces) obſerve we theſe Rules.

1. For the Work of ſaving Grace or Converſion try———— ————.

1. Whether ever our Souls were wounded with a clear diſcovery and wide opening of our many ulcerous ſecret Corruptions? Whether ever they were affected and preſſed with a through ſence and and feeling of the fierce wrath of God, ready to break out into unquenchable flames of vengeance againſt us?

2. Whether, after theſe bruiſings and breakings, our Souls ever caſt their eyes upon that infinite Sea of God's mercy, gloriouſly ſtreaming through the Bleeding Wounds of Jeſus Chriſt upon every truly broken, contrite and wounded Heart? Whether ever they ſetled and faſtned their ſight ſtedfaſtly upon this Bleſſed Redeemer, as he was hanging on the Croſs, ſtrugling with his Father's wrath for our ſins, and crying out at laſt, It is finiſhed.

3. Whether, after this ſight, and conſideration of the Work of our Redemption, our Souls ever hungred and thirſted after the Precious Blood of the Lord Jeſus, far more greedily and inſatiably than ever the panting Hart thirſted after the Rivers of Water? Whether ever with ſtrong cries, prayers, groans and ſighs, they threw themſelves with ſome comfort and confidence into the bleeding and bleſſed boſom of our dear Redeemer, and there hid themſelves ſweetly and deeply in his ſacred wounds, and goared ſide, from the eager purſuit of the wounding Law, the rage of Satan, and ſtingings of their own Conſciences.

4. Whether, after this faſt hold upon the Paſſion and Merits of Chriſt, our Souls ever received this comfortable news, That we were pardoned, juſtified, entitled by the Covenant of Grace unto a Crown of Immortality, and endleſs joys in the Heavens? Whether this ever melted us into an Evangelical Repentance, to bewail heartily all our ſins, and former wretchedneſs of life, for having ſo vilely and rebelliouſly grieved and offended ſo gracious and loving a Father?

5. Whether, after theſe comforts and ſorrows, our Souls ever reſolutely abandoned the practiſe of every groſs ſin, and threw out of their affections the liking and allowance of every the leaſt infirmity? Whether, we have ever ſince ſettled our ſelves to Holineſs of life, univerſal obedience to all God's Commandments, though not in perfection and height of degree, yet in truth and ſincerity of heart.

It may be every Soul (truly converted) cannot ſpeak affirmatively to every of theſe Quæres in intention: or height of meaſure, though for the ſubſtance they can; and if ſo, we may conclude, there is the Working of ſaving Grace. This trial is only in reference to our firſt Converſion, but if that be not well remembred, and we would try this work by ſomething ſince, or by our preſent condition, then ſee the next Section.

2. For the inward companions of this ſaving work, as { Duties.
Grace.

1. For Duties, try——

1. How we manage them before, in, and after the work; Of this we ſhall inform more particularly in moſt of the Duties, as we handle them in order.

2. What ſenſible and quickning communion we have with Chriſt in our Duties; This is the main buſineſs and end of all the Ordinances of Chriſt. It is ordinary with us to terminate our Devotions, with a circular courſe of Praying Morning and Evening, or of coming to Church every Lord's day; we look no further, but only to the exerciſe of the Body, we ſee not any thing of the power of Chriſt ſhining out ſtrength in theſe Duties: And therefore try we particularly,

1. Whether we have (in the uſe of any Divine Ordinance) an intimate, tender and effectual preſence of Chriſt himſelf with us.

2. Whether we have a conſtant influence, a quickning power of Spiritual refreſhing, a ſenſible Spiritual taſte of Divine Love, or of God himſelf by this preſence of Chriſt. In right performance of Duties, we come to have fuller Union with Chriſt; and by this coming to him, we come to, and ſee the Father by him? And hence follows by this preſence of Chriſt, theſe three things, 1. Peace with, and a Spiritual joy in God: 2. A ſtrength Communicated to walk with Chriſt, and in his Power with God. 3. A ſealed aſſurance of eternal Communion with God in Glory.

2. For Graces, examine——

1. The truth of our Graces.

2. The growth of our Graces.

3. The wants of our Graces: All which we ſhall diſcuſs at large in a Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Sect. 8. Of the manner of trying our Title to heaven, our right to reward.

IN this great and main buſineſs of the Soul, obſerve we theſe directions following;

1. Fall down before God, and in hearty Prayer deſire we the aſſiſtance of his Spirit, to diſcover to us the plain truth of our conditions, and to enlighten us in our whole progreſs in the work: And to remove from us ſelf-love, and carnal confidence, that if we be Carnal, or Hypocrites, it may ſo appear to us, and that we be no longer deluded.

2. Draw forth either from our memories, or in writing the Scripture marks, either of grace or of glory; for they are both to one purpoſe. I ſhall inſtance in theſe.——— ——— 1 John 2. 3. And hereby do we know that we know him, if we keep his Commandments. 1 Joh. 2. 3. 1 Cor. 1. 12. For our rejoicing is this, the Teſtimony of our Conſcience, that in Godly ſimplicity, and ſincerity, we have had our converſation in the world. 1 Cor. 1. 12. 1 John 3. 9, 10. Whoſoever is born of God ſinneth not, becauſe the ſeed abideth in him, neither ther can be ſin, becauſe he is born of God; in this the Children of God are manifeſted. 1 John 3. 9, 10. 1 John 4. 13. Hereby we know that we dwell in him, and he in us, becauſe he hath 1 John 4. 13.

3. Proceed we now to put the queſtion to our ſelves, but be ſure to ſtate it right; let it not be Whether there be any good in us at all? For ſo we ſhall err on the one hand; nor yet Whether we have ſuch, or ſuch a degree and meaſure of Grace? For ſo we ſhall err on the other hand; but, Whether (according to the forementioned Scripture) ſuch, or ſuch a ſaving Grace be in us, or not? As for example.

1. O my Soul, haſt thou reſpect to, and obſervation of all God's Commandments? Doſt thou keep the laſt in truth and ſincerity, though not in gradual perfection? Doſt thou know God in part, and love God in part, by a ſincere inchoate Obedience, though not to ſuch a full degree as Chriſt did, or as the Saints do in Heaven? Doſt thou keep the Commandments in an Evangelical ſence (i. e. doſt thou endeavour to keep them? And, wherein thou faileſt, Doſt thou acknowledg thy failings, and reply upon Chriſt for pardon, as knowing that thy righteouſneſs conſiſts more in the Remiſſion of what is imperfect, than in doing of what is perfect? Is thy Univerſal Obedience internal and ſpiritual, as well as external? Is thy Ro. 7. 22. delight in the Law of God in the inner man? It may be in thy life there is no groſs ſin againſt God, no injuſtice or oppreſſion to men, but art thou not deſtitute of the Spirit, and void ſupernatural life? Is thy Obedience equal to the Duties of both Tables; For not Religion to God, if there be unconſcionable dealing toward men; nor duty to men, if there be negligence in the religious Service to God, is ſincere and univerſal Obedience? Doſt thou make conſcience of particular Duties of Relation, as well as of Generals? Or on the contrary, haſt thou not reſpect to the Commandments only in ſome things, as Ahab, and Herod, who did many things? Is not thy Jer. 7. 9. Obedience only external? Doſt thou not reſt wholly upon the outward Obedience of the Law, (as the Phariſees did) whileſt thy heart ſtill remains as a Den of thieviſh Luſts? Doſt thou not pretend much Devotion in matters of God, but ſheweſt no conſcience or equity in matters of Man? Or doſt thou not love a Civil, Juſt, Man? Art thou not careleſs of ſtrict keeping of the Sabbath; of diligent, and powerful Family-duties, or of the other Duties of Relation?

2. O my Soul, haſt thou ſincerity, and uprightneſs of Heart? And becauſe the Heart of a man is naturally deceitful above all things, and there is no Truth no integrity in it, till God hath changed it? Is there a full and powerful change of the whole man by the Grace of God? Doſt thou any good Duty upon this account, becauſe God Commands it? Not becauſe this will agree with thy ends, or ſtand with thy luſts, but becauſe God hath required it? Are the motives and ends of all thy actions pure and heavenly, and ſuch as God's Word doth require? Art thou diligent, and conſciencious in internal, or ſecret Duties, to perform them; and in Spiritual or Hearts-ſins, and ſecret luſts, to avoid them? Doſt thou ſerve God in Spirit? Doſt thou eye God whether in private or publick? Doſt thou ſet thy ſelf zealouſly againſt thoſe ſins that thou art moſt enclined unto? Doſt thou hate ſins moſt in thy ſelf, and in thoſe that are neareſt unto thee, as a man that hateth a toad moſt in his own boſom? Doſt thou take thoſe ways and uſe thoſe means only that God hath apointed for the obtaining of lawful ends? Haſt thou reſpects to all God's Commandments. But yet in that due Order as God commandeth; as to the Duties of the firſt Table, before the ſecond; to the Commands of greater Duties above thoſe of leſs Duties? Or if in theſe particulars thou findeſt not ſuch an uprightneſs, as hath no deceit, or falſe-hood, or carnal reſpect at all joined with it (for as all other Graces are but in part, ſo are we ſincere and upright in part) yet art thou humbled under thy falſehood, and hypocriſies, and ſpiritual guiles? And doſt thou truſt only in Chriſt? And doſt thou cry as David did for truth in the inner parts?——Or on the contrary, is not thy Heart full of guile, and void of all grace? Art thou not a ſtranger to regeneration, or the New-birth? And if at any time thou obeyeſt any of God's commands, is it not becauſe thoſe actions may conſiſt with ſome carnal ends? Doſt thou not pray, and faſt, and give alms, as the Phariſees did, to be on a Theatre, and admired by others applauſe? Doſt thou obſerve the frame of thy Heart in thoſe things which none but God knows? Or rather do not ſecreſie, or privacy many times entice thee to ſin? Haſt thou not ſome Dalilah, ſome Wolf or other in thy breaſt, to whoſe ſheaf (as it were) all other ſins muſt make their ſheaves to bow, and yet thou art inſenſible of thine own ſinfulneſs? doſt thou not endeavour by unlawful, or unwarrantable ways to get thine own ends? Art thou not careful to tythe mint and cummin, but altogether neglect righteouſneſs and judgment.

3. O my Soul, doſt thou oppoſe againſt, and abſtain from ſin? And is this oppoſition and abſtinence ſettled and fixed in thy heart, not only for ſome fits and ſeaſons, but by the habitual inclination of thy Soul? Is thy repugnancy univerſal in every part, not only in reaſon and conſcience, but in thy Heart, Will, Affections, and in the whole Man? Is there in thee a difficulty, yea kind of impoſſibility to ſin with wilfulneſs, and purpoſed continuance, cr with ſuch an univerſal content of Soul as wicked men do? And doth this impoſſibility to ſin ariſe wholly from a kindly work of grace within, and not from any terrible reſtraint upon thy conſcience without? Doſt thou in good meaſure, and by degrees not only leave outward groſs ſins, but even conquer and crucifie the inward Body of ſin? Doſt thou oppoſe and leave ſin becauſe of the foul nature of ſin, becauſe, it is contrary to God, becauſe it is a tranſgreſſion of his Law? Is the bent and inclination of thy Heart againſt ſin univerſal? The Phariſees were free from outward wickedneſs, yet abounded with Heart-defilements, but doſt thou as Paul, bemoan the evil motions of thy Heart? Doſt thou as Hezekiah, humble thy ſelf for the Pride of thy Heart? Is Pride, Unbelief, Earthlineſs, and ſeveral luſts of thy Soul diſcovered, and crucified by thee? Doſt thou abhor ſecret ſins as well as publick, and fear God's knowledge of thy ſin more then all the Worlds? Doſt thou abhor defects in Holy ordinances as well as groſs ſins, Omiſſions of Holy Duties, neglect, lukewatmneſs and diſtractions therein? Doſt thou not only oppoſe ſin in thy ſelf, but ſet againſt it in others? Doſt thou chooſe rather to ſuffer afflictions with the People of God, then to ſin againſt God? ——— Or on the contrary, is not ſin thy pleaſure, thy ſweet and delight? Or if at any time thy Heart cries out of ſin, O thou wilt meddle no more with it! Is not this oppoſition only from conſcience illightned, from that terrible reſtraint God puts on the Conſcience, and not from thy Heart, whereby thou art carried out in all the powers of thy Soul againſt ſin? Or ſuppoſe thou haſt left ſome outward groſs ſins, yet is not the root of thy affections and motions thereunto unmortified ſtill? Peter ſpeaks of ſome who hath eſcaped the pollutions of the World, and yet they were Dogs and Swine in their Nature: Many are tyed up from ſin as Maſtives and Wolves are, their Natures not being at all changed; or ſuppoſe thou art extreamly ſet againſt ſome ſins, yet art thou not highly in love with ſome other ſins? Art thou ſuch a one that thou canſt not ſin, that dareſt not ſin, that haſt an habitual averſeneſs from ſin? Art thou ſuch a one, that thou liveſt not in a courſe of known ſin, thou ſinneſt not out of malice, thou makeſt not a trade of ſin? 1 John 3. 6.

1 Pet. 2. 20, 22.

O my Soul doſt thou perform Holy Duties ſpiritually? Are thy motives and ends ſpiritual in thy ſpiritual actions, ſuch as the Command of God, enjoining of, and communion with God, the light of God's countenance, increaſe of Grace, &c. is there zeal, fervency, activity in thy performance of Duties? Art thou full of the Holy Ghoſt? Is there in thee a free and ſpontaneous inclination to the Duties that God requireth? For where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is Liberty; are there in thee ſtrong oppoſition, and combats by the fleſh unregenerate part? ——— Or on the contrary, are not thy Duties as the Jews faſts, not unto God, even to God? Are not thy formal, cuſtomary, ſuperficial performing of Holy Duties extreamly oppoſite to a ſpiritual deportment in them? Art thou not backward to Duties, and wholly unacquainted with thoſe combats betwixt the fleſh and the Spirit?

5. O my Soul, doſt thou love the brethren? Doſt thou love them becauſe of the image of God in them, becauſe they are Holy, and wrought on by Gods Spirit; Doſt thou love them becauſe they are brethren, and becauſe they are Godly? and ſo, the more Godly, the more is thy love? Doſt thou love all the Godly, Rich and Poor, High and Low, Deſpiſed and Honourable; but yet them moſt of all, who excel moſt in purity and power, and practice of Godlineſs; for if Godlineſs be the Reaſon of thy Love, then the more Godlineſs, the more Love: Art thou ready and willing to own them as brethren, and to join with them in the time of perſecution? Doſt thou delight and rejoice in other Mens Godlineſs and Abilities whereby the Kingdom of God is advanced, though it be an umbrage and overſhadow of all thy Glory, though thou beeſt laid aſide, and accounted as no body? Haſt thou an holy zeal againſt Sinners, an impatiency and holy grief at the wickedneſs of others? Is thy Soul vexed by hearing and ſeeing the wicked Sodomites amongſt whom thou liveſt? Doſt thou procure all ſpiritual good to the Brethren, as thou art able? Doſt thou pray for them, exhort them, provoke them to good? Doſt thou prefer their good, and eſpecially their Spiritual good, before and above all carnal things? In this caſe, wouldſt thou hazzard thy worldly happineſs, or thy very life, if thou hadſt a right call? Doſt thou bear the burthens, and forbear their infirmities? Or if ſometimes thou findeſt ſome envyings, ſome impatiencies towards ſome of the brethren (for in the beſt is imperfection of Graces, many Saints are in a great meaſure carnal, and thou art rather to ſeek after truth than perfection) yet is thy Soul troubled at this? Doſt thou pray down theſe Devils in thy Heart? And art thou at no reſt till it be otherwiſe with thee? ——— Or on the contrary, doſt thou not hate, oppoſe, ſcoff, and reproach the brethren? Doſt thou not ſay in thy Heart, I could Love ſuch a one, Honour ſuch a one, but I cannot abide his ſtrictneſs, Or if indeed thou loveſt them, is it not for other reſpects than their Godlineſs? As, becauſe they are wiſe, learned, potent? Becauſe they are of thy conſtitution, condition, opinion, or the like? Art thou not aſhamed of them? Doſt thou not prefer worldly intereſts before their Spiritual good? Art thou not aſhamed to be called one of the believers, one of the holy Brethren, or one of the holy Siſters in time of perſecution? Or if thou loveſt a Godly Man that lives remote from thee, yet doſt thou not envy him that is thy Neighbour of the ſame profeſſion and dealing? Eſpecially when the eminency of his Graces and worth carries away the eſteem and repute from thee?

6. O my Soul, doſt thou love Chriſt? Doſt thou evidence this love by keeping his Commandments, and by accepting of his Rebukes? Doſt thou love him for himſelf, for his odoriferous ointments, for his fragrant name? Is thy Love to Chriſt a long-laſting, everliving, and continuing Love? Doſt thou love him in ſincerity? In incorruption? Can not many waters of affliction quench this thy love, neither can the floods of perſecution drown it? Is thy Love a tranſcendant Love? Never ſtand diſputing the point, whether thy love differing from the love of Hypocrites, be only gradual, or ſpacifical? Whether extention of parts, intention of degrees, protenſion of time, can make their love as thy love? Or whether only a gradual difference in Nature, can make a Specifical difference in Morality? (Oh that dear brethren would agree in the main, and paſs by theſe notions!) Only examine for thy ſelf, is thy love to Chriſt (for ſo it muſt be, if it be true and ſincere love) a tranſcendant love ſurpaſſing all other loves? Doth the love of Father, Mother, Wife, Son, Daughter, Brother, Siſter; Yea, and thy own life alſo give place to this love? Doth Chriſt ſit in the Throne of thy Heart, and do all theſe ſit below at his foot-ſtool? Doſt thou bear ſuch fervent, warm affection to Chriſt, that thou wouldſt be content to part with all rather than part with him? Canſt thou Pſal. 16.5. and 73. 25. ſay with David, the Lord is my Portion And whom have I in Heaven but thee? And whom in Earth that I deſire in compariſon of thee? The world it may be will be ſometimes creeping into thy affections, and thou canſt not be quite freed from the love of the World, yet doſt thou in thy ordinary, ſettled, prevailing judgment and affections, prefer Chriſt before all things in the world? Doſt thou make Chriſt the end of thy deſires, and endeavours? The very reaſon wherefore thou heareſt and prayeſt, the very ground why thou deſireſt to live and Mat. 9.33. breath upon Earth; Doſt thou firſt ſeek the Kingdom of Chriſt and his righteouſneſs? If thou doſt not ſeek it ſo deſirouſly and zealouſly as thou ſhouldeſt, yet hath it the cheif of thy deſires and endeavours; and is nothing elſe deſired and preferred before it? Is thy valvation of it ſo high, that thou wouldeſt not exchange thy title to it, and hopes of it, for any worldy good whatſoever? Nay, art thou willing to labour, and ſuffer for it? And though the fleſh may ſometimes ſhrink, or draw back, yet art thou reſolved and content to go through all? —— Or on the contrary, art thou not diſobedient to Chriſt? Or doſt thou not love Chriſt for carnal reſpects, for the loaves, &c? Doſt thou not in thy Heart prefer thy worldly happineſs, and fleſhy delights before Chriſt? Though thy Tongue may ſay, that Chriſt is lovely, the chiefeſt of ten thouſands, yet doth not thy heart otherwiſe eſteem of him? Is not the world the cheif end of thy deſires and endeavours? Is not thy very heart ſet upon it? Is it not thy greateſt care and labour to maintain thy eateſt, or credit, or fleſhy delights? And is not the leaſt of thy care and labour for that life to come? Nay, if it muſt come to trial, that either thou muſt forſake Chriſt, or thy worldly happineſs, if the wind which was on thy back doth turn in thy face, wilt thou not rather venture Heaven than Earth, and ſo wilfully deny thy obedience to Chriſt?

7. O my Soul doſt thou believe in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt? Doſt thou find that thou art naturally a loſt condemned Creature, for thy breach of the firſt Covenant? And doſt thou believe that Jeſus Chriſt is the Mediator, who hath made a ſufficient ſatisfaction to the Law? And conſidering, that in the Goſpel he is offered without exception to all, doſt thou heartily conſent that he, and he alone ſhall be thy Saviour? Yea, art thou content to take him for thy King, to govern and guide thee by his Laws and Spirit? Art thou willing to to obey him even when he commands the hardeſt duties, and thoſe which moſt croſs the deſires of the fleſh? Is it thy ſorrow when thou breakeſt thy reſolution herein, and thy joy when thou keepeſt cloſe in obedience unto him? And though the World and fleſh do ſometimes intice and over reach thee, yet, is it thy ordinary deſire and reſolution to obey, ſo that thou wouldſt not change thy Lord and Maſter for all the World. —— Or on the contrary, doſt thou not indeed diſbelieve Jeſus Chriſt? Though the Tongue may ſay that Chriſt is thy Lord and Saviour, yet thou never foundeſt thy ſelf ſo loſt without him, as to drive thee to ſeek him, and truſt him, and to lay thy Salvation to him alone, or at leaſt thou didſt never heartily conſent that he ſhould govern thee as thy Lord? Nor didſt reſign up thy Soul and Life to be ruled by him, nor takeſt his Word for the Law of thy thoughts and actions? It may be thou haſt now and then a motion or purpoſe to good, yet is not the ordinary deſire and choiſe of thy heart the other way?

4. The queſtions thus put, force we our hearts to anſwer; ſuffer them not to be ſilent, nor to jangle, and think of other matters; if any queſtion be hard, through the darkneſs of our Hearts, yet do not give it over ſo, but ſearch the cloſer, and ſtudy the caſe the more exactly; and, if it be poſſible, let not our Hearts give over till they have reſolved the queſtion, and told us off or on, in what caſe we are: Yea, wreſtle with our Hearts till we have prevailed, and ſay, I will not let thee go, till thou haſt anſwered, he that can prevail with his own Heart, ſhall alſo be a prevailer with God.

5. When we have diſcovered the truth of our ſtates, then paſs the ſentence on our ſelves accordingly, meer examination will do us little good, if it proceed not to a Judgment. Conclude as we find, either that we are true believers, or that we are not; either that we have a Title to Heaven or that we have not. But paſs not this ſentence with ſelf-flattery, nor from melancholy Terrors and Fears. I ſay, 1. Not with ſelf-flattery; Alas, what will it profit us to quit our ſelves as the Children of God, when we viſibly expreſs the power of Sin and Satan in our lives? Oh, rather ſay to our ſelves, whoſe image and ſuperſcription is this Pride, this earthlineſs, this Malice, this hatred of that which is good? Gal. 15.19 What are not the works of the fleſh Manifeſt, Envyings, Railings, Drunkenneſs, &c? And ſhall I be ſo made to live in Lying, Swearing, Uncleanneſs, any groſs Wickedneſs, and yet perſwade my ſelf to be in a good ſtate? Oh my Soul take heed of Self-flattery! 2. On the other ſide, paſs not this ſentence from Melancholy, Unbelief, Terrors, Fears; as the carnal man fails the former way, ſo the Tempted Chriſtian ſometimes fails this way, in this caſe run we over our evidences again and again, and proceed we from thoſe that are more facile, to thoſe that are more difficult; one ſign may perhaps be more eaſily perceived then another, than if we can but diſcover ſome, yea, if but one, we may aſſuredly gather all the reſt are there. Come then, paſs on now to Sentence! O but —— implore the Spirits aſſiſtance; now, if ever, deſire him to ſhine on our Graces; and then ſpake groundedly, and deliberately, and truly, as we find according to our very conſciences. Do not conclude as ſome do, I am a good Chriſtian: Or as others do, I am a reprobate, or an Hypocrite, and ſhall be Damned; when we have no ground for what we ſay, but our own fancy, or hopes, or fears; let not our judgment be any way byaſſed, or bribed, and ſo foreſtalled from ſentencing aright.

6. Labour to get our Hearts kindly affected with its diſcovered condition, according to the ſentence paſſed on it; do not think it enough to know, but labour to feel what God hath made us to ſee. If we find our ſelves undoubtedly graceleſs, Oh get this to our Hearts, and think what a doleful condition it is to be an enmety to God, to be unpardoned, to be unſanctified, and (if we ſhould ſo die) to be eternally damned: One would think ſuch a thought ſhould make an heart of ſtone to quake. On the contrary, if we find out ſelves renewed, and ſanctified indeed, Oh get this warm, and cloſe to our Hearts; bethink our ſelves what a bleſſed ſtate hath the Lord brought us into; to be his Children, his Friends; to be pardoned, juſtified, and ſure to be ſaved; why, what is it we need to fear but ſinning againſt him? Come War, or Plague, or Sickneſs, or Death, we are ſure they can but thruſt us into Heaven. Thus follow theſe Meditations, till they have left their impreſſions on our Hearts.

7. Be ſure to record this ſentence ſo paſſed; write it down; or at leaſt write it in our memories; at ſuch a time upon through-examination I found my Spiritual ſtate to be thus, or thus. This record will be very uſeful to us hereafter; if we be ungodly, what a damp will it be to our preſumption and ſecurity to go on, and read the ſentence of our miſery under our own hands? If we be Godly, what an help will it be againſt the next Temptation to doubting and fear, to go and read under our hands this record? May we not think, if at ſuch a time I found the Truth of Grace, is it not likely to be now the ſame? And theſe my doubts to come from the Enemy of my peace? —— Yet truſt not ſo to one diſcovery as to try no more, eſpecially if we have made any foul defection from Chriſt, and played the backſlidders; ſee then that we renew the ſearch again; neither let this hinder us in the daily ſearch of our ways, or of our increaſe in grace and fellowſhip with Chriſt: It is an ill ſign, and a deſperate vile ſin for a man, when he thinks he hath found himſelf gracious, and in an happy ſtate, to let down his watch, and grow negligent of his heart and ways, and ſcarce look after them any more. Neither ſhould we give over in diſcouragements if we cannot at once, or twice, or ten times trying diſcover our caſe, but follow it on till we have diſcovered it. If one hours labour will not ſerve, take another; if one day, or month, or year be too little, follow it ſtill; if one Miniſter cannot direct us ſufficiently, go to another? The iſſue will anſwer all our pains; there is no ſitting down diſcouraged in a work that muſt be done. See 2 Pet. 1. 10.

8. Take heed, if we find our ſelves to be yet unregenerate, that we do not conclude of our future ſtate by our preſent: Let us not ſay, becauſe I am ungodly, I ſhall die ſo; or becauſe I am an Hypocrite, I ſhall continue ſo, No, we have another work to do, and that is, to reſolve preſently to cleave to Chriſt, and to break off our Hypocriſie and wickedneſs. If we find that we have been all this while out of the way, do not ſit down in deſpair, but make ſo much the more haſt to turn into it. If we have been Hypocrites, or ungodly perſons all our life, yet is the promiſe offered to us by Chriſt, and he tendreth himſelf to be our Lord and Saviour; neither can we poſſibly be ſo willing to accept of him, as he is to accept of us; nothing but our own unwillingneſs can keep our Soul from Chriſt, though we have hitherto abuſed him, and diſſembled with him.

Oh that the Lord would perſwade us to the cloſe performance of this Self trying task! That we might not tremble with horror of ſoul when the Judge of all the World ſhall try us; but have our evidence and aſſurance ſo ready at hand, and be ſo able to prove our Title to Heaven, that the thoughts, and approaching of Death and Judgment might revive our Spirits, and fill us with joy, and not appale us, and fill us with amazement!

Sect. 9. Of the time of Self-trial.

THe Scriptures have determined no ſet time, yet ſome Rules there are, partly in Scripture, and partly preſcribed by holy men, which we may make uſe of, as thus:

1. There is no danger of ſurfeiting upon too much; the oftner we reckon with our Souls, the fewer things we ſhall have to reckon for every time; and the fewer things there be, the more readily will they be called to mind, and more exactly be ſcanned: This made Bernard ſay of this work, If we will do it as often as we need, we muſt do it always. Bern. in Cant. Ser. 58. fin.

2. The time that learned and devout men commend to us, is once every day: So Chryſoſtom, Let this account be kept every day; —— Have a little book in thy Conſcience, and write therein thy daily tranſgreſſions; and when thou layeſt thee down on thy bed, then bring forth thy book, and take an account of thy ſins. Chryſoſt. Exp. in Pſal. 4.

3. The time that eſpecially Scripture holds forth to us, is at Evening or at Night: I call to remembrance, ſaid David, my Song in the Night; I commune with my own Heart, and my Spirit made diligent ſearch: Pſal. 77. 6. And thus he bids us, Commune with your own Hearts upon your bed, and be ſtill. Pſal. 4 4. Upon which words ſays Chryſoſtom, What means this that he ſaith, Commune with your own hearts upon your beds? q. d. After ſupper, when you lie down, and are ready to ſleep, and have great quietneſs and ſilence, without preſence or diſturbance of any, then erect a Tribunal for your own Conſciences. Chryſoſt. in loc.

4. Other times may be as occaſion requires: When the Church of Iſrael was in diſtreſs, and ſighed to God, then they encouraged each other, Let us ſearch and try our ways, and turn again to the Lord. Lam. 3. 40. When Chriſtians purpoſe to receive the Lord's Supper, then Let a man examine himſelf, and ſo let him eat: 1 Cor. 11. 28. When we obſerve days of Faſt for Humiliation of our Souls; or when we obſerve a Sabbath of Feaſts, or eſpecially when we are caſt down upon our ſick beds, and in expectation of our Solution, then it's time to examine, and to judge our ſelves, that we be not judged. 1 Cor. 11. 31.

5. Beſides thoſe daily and caſual times, it is convenient alſo, after ſome good ſpace of time, to try our ſelves over again, ex. gr. After a month, or a year, to conſider our ſelves for the month or year paſt, that we may ſee how we have profited or decayed for that ſpace of time; for as our Members grow, and our ſhape every day changeth, and our black hairs turn gray while we perceive it not, yet after ſome ſpace of time, we may eaſily diſcern; ſo it is in our Souls, beſides the manifeſt changes which ſometimes appear at the inſtant, there are certain inſenſible alterations, which are not to be diſcerned; but after ſome continuance of time, and for rectifying of theſe, it is neceſſary to take a more general view of our Souls, in a monthly or yearly trial; by this means we ſhall ſee wherein we are better or worſe, how our zeal is encreaſed or decreaſed; if we are bettered ſince our laſt general account, we ſhall have occaſion to praiſe God; if otherwiſe, we muſt therefore be humbled, and blow the coals of zeal, and ſtir up the Grace of God in us, that we may ſtrengthen the things which remain, and are ready to die. Rev. 3. 2.

To this purpoſe we read of many Ancients that were accuſtomed to keep Diaries or Day-books of their actions, and out of them to take an account of their lives: Such a Regiſter (of God's dealings towards him, and of his dealings towards God in main things) the Lord put into a poor Creatures Heart to keep in the year 1641. ever ſince which time he hath continued it, and once a year purpoſes (by God's Grace) to examine himſelf by it; the uſe and end of it is this:

1. Hereby he obſerves ſomething of God to his Soul, and of his Soul to God. 2. Upon occaſion he pours out his Soul to God in Prayer accordingly, and either is humbled or thankful. 3. He conſiders how it is with him in reſpect of time paſt, and if he have profited, in Grace, to find out the means whereby he hath profited, that he may make more conſtant uſe of ſuch means; or wherein he hath decayed, to obſerve by what Temptation he was overcome, that his former errors may make him more wary for the future.

Beſides many other uſes, as of his own Experiences, and Evidences, which he may (by the Lord's help) gather out of this Diary.

Sect. 10. The daily Regiſter of a weak unworthy Servant of Chriſt for ſome time.

IT may be expected, that I give ſome example hereof, wherein if I might any way advance Chriſt, or benefit his Church, though I lay in the duſt, I ſhould willingly publiſh and ſubſcribe the daily Regiſter of a poor unworthy Servant of Chriſt, indeed one of the meaneſt of his Maſter's family, for ſome ſpace of time: As thus,

May 13. I retired my ſelf to a ſolitary and ſilent place, to practice eſpecially the ſecret Duties of a Chriſtian, my ground is that of Cant. 2. 11, 12.
Cant. 2. 11, 12. Come my beloved, let us go forth into the fields, &c. there will I give thee my loves. The Bridegroom of our Souls (ſaid Bernard) is baſhful, and more frequently viſits his Bride in the ſolitary places.

May 14. In a pleaſant wood, and ſweet walks in it the Lord moved and inabled me to begin the exerciſe of ſecret Duties: And after the Prolegomena, or Duties in general, I fell on that Duty of Watchfulneſs: The Lord then gave me to obſerve my former negligence, and to make ſome reſolutions. I found the Lord ſweet to me in the concluſion of the Duty. Allelujah.

May 15. I fell on the Duty of Self-trial, and in the Morning confeſſed my ſins before and ſince Converſion, wherein the Lord ſweetly melted my heart. In the Evening I peruſed my Diary for the laſt year, wherein many paſſages of mercies from God, and troubles for ſin, &c.

May 16. In the Morning I went through the Duty of Experiences, and felt ſome ſtirrings of God's Spirit in my Soul. In the Evening I fell on the Duty of Evidences, when I acted Faith, and found my Evidences clear. Oh how ſweet was my God!

May 17. This day in the Morning, I meditated on the love of Chriſt, wherein Chriſt appeared, and melted my heart in many ſweet paſſages: In the Evening I meditated on Eternity: Of Hell, and on Eternity of Heaven, wherein the Lord both melted, and cheered, and warmed, and refreſhed my Soul. Surely the touches of God's Spirit are as ſenſible as any outward touches. Allelujah.

May 19. In the former part of this day, I exerciſed the Life of Faith, when the Lord ſtrengthened me to act Faith on ſeveral Promiſes, both Temporal, Spiritual, and Eternal; I had then ſweet, refreſhing, and encouraging impreſſions on my Soul againſt all the fearful, ſinful, and doubtful dreams I had the night or two before dreamed. In the Evening I conſidered the Duty of Prayer, obſerved ſome workings of God's Spirit in my peruſing the Rules, and afterwards in the practice of this Duty. Bleſſed be God.

May 20. In the Morning I fell on Reading the Word, peruſed the directions, and then ſearched into the Common places and uſes of my Corruptions in Nature and Practice; of my comforts againſt the burthens of my daily infirmities; of eſtabliſhing my heart againſt the fear of falling away; of directions in my calling; of comforts againſt outward Croſſes; of my Privileges in Chriſt above all the wicked in the World: In every of theſe Chriſt appeared in ſome meaſure ſuitably to my Soul. In the Evening I proceed in the Common places and uſes of ſweet paſſages that melted my heart; of ſenſible comforts, and of places hard to be underſtood: In the firſt my heart was ſweetly melted, in the ſecond cheered; in the concluſion the Lord ſtruck me with a reverence of his Majeſty and Preſence, filled my Soul with Spiritual refreſhings, enlarged my Heart with praiſes of him, and deſires to live unto him, who hath given me in this time of Love ſo many ſweet viſits, and kiſſes of his mouth. Allelujah.

May 22. Occaſionally, though not in courſe, I fell on ſome parts of the Duty of Self-denial: The Lord in mercy wrought in my Soul ſome ſuitableneſs to that Spiritual Goſpel-Duty; Lord keep this fire up in a flame ſtill. Oh it is a ſweet, but a very hard leſſon.

May 31. I practiced (as the Lord enabled) the Duty of Saints-ſufferings; Into which condition as I I was caſt, ſo the Lord gave me to ſee my ſin and to bewail it, and to pray for the contrary, Grace and God's Favour. The Lord was ſweet to me in the preparations to, but eſpecially in the improving of, Sufferings. Now the Spirit left in my Soul a ſweet ſcent and favour behind it, Allelujah. Amen. Amen.

I had proceeded in this Diary, but that I doubt whether the knowledge of many ſuch particulars may not prove offenſive either to the Weak or Wilful. And I would not willingly occaſion any matter of offence to thoſe that are within or without the Church. Thus much (only for edification and imitation) I have written. And though with David, I declare what God hath done for my Soul, Pſal. 66. 15.
yet with Paul I ever deſire to correct my ſelf; I live, yet Gal. 2. 20.
not I, but Chriſt liveth in me.

CHAP. V. SECT. I.

Of the Nature of Self-denial.

Matt. 16. 24. Ἀπαρνησάσθω ἑαυτὸν. Abneget (i) omnino neget, Leigh Critica ſacra. Perneget, & prorſus neget Reynolds. Abdicet ſeipſum Beza.

IF any man will come after me (ſaith Chriſt) let him deny himſelf. The Word in the original is a Compound, nothing more than a ſingle, ordinarily Self-denial. It ſignifies to deny utterly, totally, not at all to ſpare, or regard a man's ſelf: It imports a perfect, or univerſal Self-denial; it is as much as to reject and caſt off a man's ſelf, as a man doth a graceleſs Son whom he will not own any more for his. From the Word opened we may diſcover the nature of it, which divers give in, though with ſome variety, as thus. To deny a man's ſelf (ſay ſome) it is to forſake the motions of our own corrupt Reaſon and Will, which is the very ſame with mortifying of the old man, and crucifying the fleſh. To deny a man's ſelf (ſay others) it is to refuſe to be ſubject to, or to work for a man's ſelf, as if it were our Maſter: And this diſcription is taken from the ſimilitude of a ſervant who renounceth to be under the government of ſuch a Lord. To deny a man's ſelf (ſay others) it is not to deny himſelf to be a man, or to put off humane affects, but to humble himſelf. This likewiſe is true, but it is not full enough for a Chriſtian's Self denial. And therefore to deny a man's ſelf (ſay others) it is to put himſelf, and all that he hath in hazard, rather than to neglect the Glory of Chriſt. This Antitheſis much enlargeth it; and in this ſence a man is ſaid to deny himſelf when he comes Gal. 2. 20. up to that height of the Apoſtle, as to ſay, I live, yet not I, but Chriſt liveth in me. q. d. the life that I live in reſpect of the Original, it is not of Nature, but of Grace; not of my ſelf, but of Chriſt; in reſpect of the Rule, It is not after my own fancy, but according to the will of Chriſt; not after my own luſts, but after the Spirit; in reſpect of the End, It is not to my ſelf, but to Chriſt; not to exalt or magnifie my ſelf, but to be all that I am unto Jeſus Chriſt; in reſpect of Opinion, It is not to make my ſelf my own Lord and Maſter, but to proſtrate all at the feet of Chriſt; not to ſuffer any thing in me to exalt it ſelf, but to make all veil and bow to Chriſt. And hence I ſhall give this deſcription of it, that Self-denial is a total thorough, utter abnegation of a man's own ends, councels, affections, and a whole proſtration of himſelf, and of all that is thus under Chriſt Jeſus. And thus we have the meaning of Chriſt, If any man will come after me, let him deny himſelf. (i e.) Let him lay aſide his own wiſdom as an empty Lamp, his own will as an evil Commander, his own imaginations as a falſe Rule, his own affections as corrupt Counſellors, and his own ends as baſe and unworthy Marks to be aimed at. Let him deny himſelf, whatſoever is of himſelf, within himſelf, or belonging to himſelf as a Corrupt and Carnal man; Let him go out of himſelf, that he may come to me; let him empty himſelf, that he may be capable of me, and that I may reign Gen. 37. 7, 9. and rule within him. As in Joſeph's dream, the Sun, Moon, and the eleven Stars did obeiſance to him, and all the ſheaves in the field veiled to his ſheaf; So in the Life, Way, Work, and Soul of a regenerate man, all the ſupernatural Gifts and Graces, all the moral Endowments and Abilities, all the natural Powers and Faculties of the Soul, with all the Members of the Body, and all the Labours of the Life, and whatſoever elſe, muſt do obeiſance, and veil, and be made ſubject and ſerviceable unto Jeſus Chriſt. And this is true Self-denial.

Sect. 2. Of the diſtribution of Self, and of the manner how every Self is to be denied.

BUt for the better underſtanding of this Duty of Self-denial, we muſt firſt diſtinguiſh of Self, and then apply it accordingly.

1. There is a threefold Self, viz. a Sinful Self, a natural Self, and a moral, vertuous, or renewed Self.

The firſt Self, which is ſinful Self, or corrupt Self, Eph. 4. 22. 1 Cor. 15. 47. Rom. 7. 24. Rom. 8. 7. Tit. 2. 12. is that which the Apoſtle calls the old man, Epheſ. 4. 22. the earthly Adam, 1 Cor. 15. 47. the body of Death, Rom. 7. 24. the Carnal Mind, Rom. 8. 7. in which Sence to deny a Man's-ſelf, it is in the Apoſtles phraſe, to deny ungodlineſs, and worldly luſts, Tit. 2. 12.

The ſecond Self, which is natural Self, is either conſiderable in regard of being, or of well-being: 1. In regard of being and ſubſtance, and ſo it imports our life, which is the continuance and preſervation of our being, together with the faculties and powers of nature, our underſtanding, will, affections, ſences, fleſhly members. 2. In regard of well-being, or the outward Comforts of Life, and they are either, 1. External Relations, as betwixt Husband and Wife, Parent and Child, Brother and Brother, Friend and Friend: Or, 2*ly*. Special gifts and endowments, as Learning, Wiſdom, Power, or any other Abilities of Mind and Body. Or, 3*ly*. Common ends, which naturally men purſue and ſeek after, and they are all by the Apoſtle compriſed under three heads, of Prophet, Pleaſure, and Honour; The luſts of the eyes, The luſts of the fleſh, and the Pride of Life, 1 John 2. 16. 1 John 2. 16. Of this kind are Houſes, Lands, poſſeſſions, Fleſhly, Worldly, Natural, Unnatural, Artificial Delights, Liberty, Praiſe, Favour, Applauſe, any thing from which a man doth draw any kind of content or ſatisfaction in order to himſelf.

The third Self, which is moral Self, or vertuous Self, or renewed Self, it is a man's Duties, Holineſs, Obedience, Righteouſneſs, the Graces of the Spirit, the Image of Chriſt, Col. 3. 10. Rom. 8. 29. For Col. 3. 10. Rom. 8. 29. as the firſt Adam begets us after his image; ſo the ſecond Adam regenerates us after his image; from the one we receive Luſt for Luſt, and from the other Grace for Grace.

2. Now according to this threefold Self, there are three branches of Self-denial; for ſome things are to be denied ſimply and abſolutely, ſome things conditionally, and upon ſuppoſition; ſome things comparatively, and in certain reſpects.

1. Some things are to be denied ſimply and abſolutely, and ſo a man is to deny Sinful-ſelf; Firſt generally, as it imports the whole body of Corruption, and concupiſcence, which we are to Coloſ. 3. 5. Rom. 8. 13. mortifie and ſubdue, to crucifie and to revenge the blood of Chriſt againſt it, Coloſ. 3. 5. Rom. 8. 13. Secondly, ſpecial in regard of thoſe perſonal Corruptions, which we in our particulars are more notably carried unto, which David calls the keeping of himſelf from his own iniquity, Pſal. 18. 23.

Pſa. 18.23.

2. Some things are to be denied conditionally, and upon ſuppoſition of God's ſpecial call; and ſo a man is to deny his natural ſelf, whenſoever it ſtands in oppoſition unto, or in competition with Chriſt, his Glory, Kingdom, or Command. And this we are to do: 1. Habitually, in preparation of the Soul, and that always. 2. Actually, whenſoever any thing dear unto us is inconſiſtent with the conſcience of our Duty to God: And thus Paul regarded neither liberty nor life in compariſon of the Goſpel of Grace, and of the Name of the Lord Jeſus, Acts 20. 24.——21. 13. This Michajah regarded not his ſafety or reputation in Ahab's Court, 1 King. 22. 14. Thus Levi regarded not his Father, or Mother, or Brethren, or Children in the zeal of God's Honour, Deut. 33. 9. Thus Ezekiel regarded not his dear Wife, the delight of his eyes, when God took her away with a ſtroak, and forbad him to mourn for her, Ezek. 24. 16, 17, 18. Thus Matthew regarded not his receipt of cuſtom, Luke 5. 27. Nor James and John their Nets, their Ships, their Father, when they were called to follow Chriſt, Matth. 4. 21, 22.

Act.20.24. —21. 13. 1 King.22. 14. Deut. 33. 9. Ezek. 24. 16, 17, 18. Luk. 5.27. Matt.4.21, 22.

3. Some things are to be denied comparatively and in ſome reſpect; and ſo a man is to deny his renewed ſelf, his very Duties, Vertues, Graces. I deny not but in the Nature and Notion of Duties we are bound to Seek, to Pray, to Practice, to Improve, to Treaſure up, and exceedingly to value them; but in relation unto Righteouſneſs, in order to juſtification in the ſight of God, and in compariſon of Chriſt, we muſt eſteem all theſe things but as loſs and dung, Phil. 3. 8, 9, 10.

Phil. 3. 8, 9, 10.

Sect. 3. Of the Denial of Sinful-ſelf, and firſt of Cautions.

FIrſt, we muſt deny Sinful-ſelf, and this we are to deny ſimply and abſolutely, whether it be the whole Body of Corruption and Concupiſcence; or thoſe Perſonal Corruptions which we in our particulars are more notably carried unto.

Concerning both theſe I ſhall give ſome { Cautions
Directions.

The Cautions in General as theſe——

1. That the denial of Sinful-ſelf is ſtill imperfect in this life, even in the moſt excellent Servants of Chriſt; the beſt of us feel in our ſelves another Law and power of Sin rebelling againſt the Law of our Mind; and leading us into Captivity to the Law of Sin that is in our Members, Rom. 7. 23, 24. Howſoever Self-denial is as a deadly wound given unto Sin, whereby it is diſabled to bear rule or commanding power in the Heart of a regenerate man, yet Self-denial is not perfect; it doth not ſo ſlay ſin, as that we have no ſin at all in us, or that we ceaſe to ſin; there is ſtill the ſap of ſin in the Heart of the moſt regenerate and holy man; hence Self-denial is not for a day only, but it muſt be a continual work; as we have denied ſin to day, ſo we muſt deny it to morrow; for ſin is of a quickning nature, it will revive, if it be not deadly and continually wounded.

Rom.7.23, 24.

2. As this Self-denial is imperfect, ſo it is unequal, every man having a Portion of Grace according to the meaſure of the Gift of Chriſt, Epheſ. 4. 7. The ſame meaſure of the Spirit is not to be expected in all; all have not the ſame meaſure of ſorrow for their ſins that others have, yet it may be true, and unfeigned, and ſo accepted of God: the fruits of repentance are in ſome 30. in ſome 60. and in ſome an hundredfold, Matt. 13. 23. Though every true Believer have the Spirit, Rom. 8. 9. And be a Spiritual perſon, 1 Cor. 2. 14, 15. Yet ſome truly Spiritual are ſo weak, that in compariſon of others they are not ſpiritual, 1 Cor. 3. 1. And therefore ought not any for this to be diſcouraged if they find themſelves inferiour unto others.

Epheſ.4.7. Matt.13.23. Rom. 8. 9. 1 Cor. 2. 14, 15. 1 Cor.3.1.

3. As this Self-denial is unequal, ſo it is in ſome reſpects unlike in the faithful; as there are divers meaſures of it, ſo there are divers manners of it: Hence ſome that have not ſo ſtrongly denyed the outward actions of ſin, may have ſtriven more in the Self-denial of their inward luſts and affections: And ſome that have not denied themſelves for a time, in reſpect of more heinous ſins, may yet exceed others in Self-denial, which never fell into ſuch groſs and heinous Tranſgreſſions. It is hard for any to determine whether it was greater Grace in Joſeph reſiſting the Temptation, and not committing Adultery with his Miſtreſs, or in David after his fall to humble himſelf ſo far, as being a glorious King, to ſhame himſelf by publick confeſſion of his Adultery; for as God magnifies his mercy by ſin in forgiving it, more than if no ſin had been, Rom. 5. 20. So the godly may ſometimes manifeſt their Grace by open and effectual repentance, more than if that ſpecial ſin had not been committed by them, Luke. 7. 44, 45, 46, 47.

Rom.5 20. Luk. 7.44. &c.

4. Howſoever this Self-denial is in the beſt Saints imperfect, unequal, unlike, yet we muſt endeavour abſolutely and ſimply to deny Sinful-ſelf: We muſt ever be hacking and hewing at this Tree till it falls; we muſt grieve at it, ſtrive againſt it, and thus continue grieving and ſtriving all the days of our life. Say not now, I have Grace enough, but as that great Apoſtle, ſtill preſs forward to have more vertue from Chriſt; if we have prevailed againſt the outward act, reſt not, but get the riſing of Luſt mortified, and that rowling of it in our fancy: Get our Hearts deaded towards it alſo; and reſt not there, but get to hate it, and the thought of it. The Body of Death muſt not only be Crucified with Chriſt, but Buried alſo, and ſo rot and molder away more and more after its firſt Deaths wound, Rom. 6. 4. 6.

Rom. 6. 4. 6.

Sect. 4. Of the manner of Denying our natural Concupiſcence.

THe directions have reſpect either to our Natural Concupiſcence, or to our Perſonal Corruptions.

1. We are abſolutely to deny the whole body of Corruption and Concupiſcence: we are to mortifie and ſubdue, to Crucifie and to Revenge the Blood of Chriſt againſt this ſin. This is the meaning of the Apoſtle, Mortifie your Members which are upon Earth, Fornication, Uncleanneſs, Inordinate Affection, Evil Concupiſcence.——Now for the denying or mortifying of this Concupiſcence, obſerve theſe directions.——

Col. 3. 5.

1. Be ſenſible of it, cry out with Paul, O wretched man that I am, who ſhall deliver me from the Body of this Death?

Rom.7.24.

2. Endeavour we to get a willing Heart to have this Sin Mortified. Bleſſed are they which Hunger and Thirſt after Righteouſneſs, for they ſhall be filled.

Matt. 5. 6.

3. Be we peremptory in denying the requeſts of Concupiſcence, bar up the doors, give it no audience; nothing is better than a peremptory will if it be well ſet, nothing worſe if it be ill. When Abiſhai would have perſwaded David to ſlay Shimei, David gives him a peremptory denial ſaying,

2 Sam. 16. 10. and 19. 22. ſaying, What have I to do with you, ye Sons of Zerviah? So Chriſt gave Peter a peremptory denial when he would have diſſwaded him from his paſ- Matt. 16. 23. ſion, ſaying, Get thee behind me Satan. The old man is of our old acquaintance that hath been born and bred with us, and therefore is ready to deceive us; look to it, and whenſoever it ſuggeſts, give it a peremptory denial.

4. Take we pains to mortifie this ſin, I run not 1 Cor. 9. 26. in vain as one that beats the Air: That is, I take pains, but not in vain, I take no more pains than I muſt needs, if I took any leſs, I could not come to that I aim at: The leſs pains we take in ſubduing this Corruption, the more will it increaſe; but what pains? I anſwer, we muſt uſe the means God hath appointed, as the Word, and Praying, and Faſting, and Watching, and Weeping, and Mourning; to theſe I may add Covenants and Vows: Provided that 1. They be of things lawful. 2. That we eſteem them not as Duties of abſolute neceſſity, and 3. That we bind not our ſelves perpetually, leſt our vows become burthens to us; if we will vow, let us but vow for a time, that when the time is expired, we may either renew or let them ceaſe as neceſſity requires.

5. Let us intermix theſe means, Duties, or ſervices one with another. Chriſt hath variety of bleſſed employments for us, and we ſhould fly from flower or flower; as ſomtimes hear, otherwhile pray, frequently meditate, and be not ſeldom in godly company. When our luſtings ſolicite us to this or that object; ask our ſouls the queſtion that the Prophet did Ahaziah's Meſſengers, Is there not a God 2 Kings 1. 2. in Iſrael, that thou ſhouldeſt go to Baal-zebub the God of Ekron? Is there never a promiſe in the Scripture? never a Saint of my acquaintance? never a mercy to be thankful for? no beauty and glory in Heaven to be planting after?

6. Labour we to get the aſſiſtance of the Spirit of Chriſt. This you may think ſtrange, The wind John 3. 8. bloweth where it liſteth, (i. e.) the Spirit worketh where it liſteth; yet this hinders not, but that the Spirit may liſt to blow in the uſe of the means. Surely there are means to get the Spirit, and to hinder the Spirit; the Spirit may be won or loſt in the doing, or not doing of theſe things.———

1. If we would have the Spirit, then we muſt know the Spirit; we muſt ſo know him, as to give him the glory of the work of every grace; The want of the knowledge of Chriſt's Spirit is the ve- John 14. 17. ry reaſon why men receive not the Spirit. I will ſend unto you the comforter, whom the world cannot receive, becauſe they know him not. The world knows not the preciouſneſs of the Spirit, and therefore they lightly eſteem of him: The firſt means to have the Spirit, it is to know the Spirit, that we may give him the glory of every grace.

2. If we would have the Spirit, take heed that 1 Theſ. 5. 19. we quench not the Spirit; I mean not, by quenching the Spirit, a quite putting of it out: But 1. A growing careleſs and remiſs in the Duties of Religion: 2. A not cheriſhing every good motion of the Spirit in our hearts, either to pray or to hear, &c.

3. If we would have the Spirit, take heed that Eph. 4. 30. we grieve not the Spirit; let us not drive him by our ſins out of the temples of our Souls, diſturb him not in his gracious and comfortable operations there, but ſo demean our ſelves that he may ſtay in our ſpirits, and manifeſt, without any eclipſes or interruptions, his ſweet and powerful preſence within us. Surely the ſpirit is a clean ſpirit, and he loves a clean habitation: It is ſin makes the Spirit loath the ſoul of a man; Evil ſpeeches, and evil actions grieve the ſpirit of Chriſt.

4. If we would have the Spirit, take heed that we reſiſt not the Spirit. Now we may be ſaid to Acts 7 51. reſiſt the ſpirit, 1. By not doing the good required, when he hang oft from that good to which we are ſtrongly moved by the inward pulſations and perſwaſions of the Spirit of God. 2. By ſinning againſt light, in this reſpect the ſins againſt the ſecond Table reſiſt more than ſins againſt ſome of the firſt, becauſe theſe are ſins againſt a multiplied light, againſt the light of the Word, and light of the Spirit, and light of Nature. 3. By falling into Gal. 5. 19. foul ſins, ſuch as are the manifeſt deeds of the fleſh, as adultery, fornication, uncleanneſs, laſciviouſneſs: indeed Eph. 5. 3. theſe ſins are not fit to be named amongſt Chriſtians. But fornication, and all uncleanneſs, or covetouſneſs, let it not be once named among you, as becometh Saints This laſt is called Idolatry, Coloſſ. 3. 5. Now the name Idol in Scripture doth ſometimes ſignifie an Image or ſculpture, or repreſentation; ſometimes an heathen God under the notion of a falſe God; and ſometimes an heathen God under the notion of filthy, unclean, and abominable, 1 Pet. 4. 3. 1 Cor. 10. 7, 8. Iſa. 57. 5. 1 Cor. 6. 9. The reaſon whereof was, becauſe in their idol-feaſts, and Idol-worſhips they uſed thoſe heathen villanies of filthineſs and uncleanneſs; Revel. 2. 14. or at leaſt their Idol-feaſts were wont to be previous, and preparatory to fornications, Acts 15. 20. Revel. 2. 14. O theſe are foul ſins, which were a ſhame for Chriſtians to name, or ſpeak out, much more to commit. But why is covetouſneſs unfit to be named? And why is it called Idolatry? Some Criticks obſerve very well, that the word in the Original is πλεονεξία, which is not covetouſneſs properly but inordinate deſire, not only of wealth, but alſo of luſts, thoſe nefanda, that were common to the Gentiles. O take heed of thus reſiſting the Spirit, this is a deſperate, and a dangerous ſin.

5. If we would have the Spirit, let us pray for the Spirit: This was the means that Chriſt uſed. John 14. 14. I will pray the Father (ſaith he concerning his Apoſtles) and he will ſend the comforter to you. And this was the means Chriſt put us upon, for if your earthly Luke 11. 13. parents can give good things unto their children, how much more will your heavenly Father give the Holy Ghoſt unto them that ask him, Prayer is prevailing with God, it is reſtleſs and pleaſing to God, it will have no denial.

6. If we would have the Spirit, then let us walk Gal. 5. 16. in the Spirit; do the actions of the new man; We know ſome Phyſick is for reſtoring, ſome to preſerve the ſtrength of the body, and ſuch is this walking in the actions of the new man; it preſerves the ſtrength of the ſoul, it preſerves ſpiritual life in a man, it enables him to fight againſt corruptions and luſts, Walk in the Spirit, and ye ſhall not fulfil the Gal. 5. 16. luſts of the fleſh.

But the Saints may object; all this we have done in our meaſure, but ſtill we find a body of death, many luſts yet remaining and riſing up in us, and rebelling againſt the law of our mind, yea ſometimes captivating and leading us away to the minding and ſeeking of our ſelves, and ſerving our own baſe affections.

I anſwer, it may be ſo, nay I told you it would be ſo in the firſt caution; and yet if we pray againſt them, if by an holy, gracious, and conſtant conteſtation we fight and war againſt them, if by a godly grief and ſorrow of heart, we mourn and are troubled for them, then here is our comfort, though we are not fully freed from them, yet we have truly denied them. There the luſt of a man are denied, where they do not reign, and bear dominion, where they have not the full and peaceable poſſeſſion. Paul was one that had in a very high meaſure denied himſelf, and though he complained of ſin, and of a Law in his members rebellion againſt the Law of his mind, and bringing him into captivity to the Law of ſin, yet this being his trouble, the Lord thereupon comforts him with the ſufficiency of his grace, My grace is ſufficient for thee. 2 Cor. 12. 9.

Sect. 5. Of the manner of Denying our perſonal corruptions.

2. WE are abſolutely to deny thoſe perſonal Corruptions which we in our particulars are more notably carried unto. Now for the denying and mortifying of this ſin (whatſoever it may be) obſerve theſe directions.———

1. Labour we to ſee the diſeaſe; No man will ſeek for cure, except he ſee the diſeaſe; the ſight of the diſeaſe is half the cure of it. O then endeavour we to find out, what is our ſpecial ſin, our Dalilah ſin, let us be perſwaded and convinced of it. See the marks whereby to diſcover it in Chap. 4. Sect. 4

2. Obſerve the baſeneſs of this condition, which appears partly in the nature of it, and partly in the evil it brings. 1. For it's nature, it is the baſeſt ſlavery in the World. Iſraels bondage in Egypt was but a ſhadow to this; Men that will not deny their Corruptions, they are Servants to Sin, and Servants to Satan, they walk after the Prince of the Power of the Air; Nay they are Servants to their own corrupt Minds, they are led by their luſts as a fool to the ſtocks. 2. For the evil that comes by it, it deprives us of God's favour and brings upon us infinite ſorrows; as blindneſs of Mind, hardneſs of Heart, deadneſs of Spirit, horror of Conſcience, and without Repentance, all the Terrors of Hell. Eph. 2. 2.

3. Abſtain we from all beginnings and occaſions of this ſin; Quench it at firſt; if we cannot put out a ſpark, how ſhould we put out a flame? If we get not the maſtery over the firſt motion to ſin, how ſhall we overcome it when it is brought to maturity in action? As a ſtream riſeth by little and little, one ſhower encreaſing it ſomewhat, and another making it bigger ſtill; ſo ſin riſeth by degrees, James 1. 14, 15. And therefore take heed to the beginning of our affections, look we to the beginning of this inordinate luſt; if we perceive but a glimpſe of it, let us quench and reſiſt it; if we hear it knocking at the door of our Hearts, do not preſently let it in, but ask his errand, plead the cauſe with it, conſider the hindrances and inconveniences that come by it.

4. Proportion the remedy to the diſeaſe: As the luſt is greater, ſo uſe we greater abſtinence; make ſtronger vows againſt it if the tide beat ſtrongly, keep the bank good; repair it by ſweet renewals of our Graces in us; make we new Covenants againſt it: What though we are weak, and frail, and ſubject to break our promiſes in this kind? Yet remember that they are God's Ordinances, and he will put to his helping hand to enable us.

5. Turn we our delights to God, and Chriſt, and Heavenly things? There is no true Self-denial, that is only privative; a man cannot leave his Earthly-mindedneſs, but preſently he muſt be Heavenly-minded; as a man cannot empty a Veſſel of Water, but preſently Air will come in its place: So a man cannot deny Sinful-ſelf, but Grace will immediately enter, and take poſſeſſion of his Heart. And Oh, when it is thus, when the intentions of our mind (as our morning thoughts, &c.) which we ſpent upon Vanities, are now drawn into Prayer and Holy Meditations; then luſts wither, then doth Corruption ſhale off more and more.

6. Maintain in our Souls the Authority of God's Truth; Either Self, or Chriſt will rule in the Soul; and therefore ſet up truth, and let that be the ſpring of all our actions; he that will free himſelf from being an hired Servant to this or that Maſter, he muſt hire himſelf. When David went to Achiſh, he was free from Saul; if we would not have Saul and Sinful-ſelf to rule in us, we muſt give up our ſelves to the command of God and his Word.

7. Labour to thwart that particular Corruption to which we are inclined. ex. gr. Are we given to wrath? Endeavour we to be humbler and meeker than other men. Are we given to the World? Look after that better and more enduring ſubſtance in Heaven; Conſider that the reproaches of Chriſt are greater riches than the treaſures of Egypt. Contraries in Nature do expel one another; cold is expelled with heat, darkneſs with light; thus it is in Grace. Heb. 11. 26.

8. Pray that Chriſt would baptize us with the Holy Ghoſt, and with fire, that like fire he would heat the faculties of our Souls, and inflame our love unto God; for as our love to God is ſtronger, ſo our love to Holy things will be more earneſt, and conſequently our hatred to Sinful-ſelf will be more ſtrong and perfect. O pray for the Spirit, and wait for the Spirit, and labour to be baptized with the Holy Ghoſt more, and more fully. If we be left to our ſelves, it is impoſſible for us to deny ſelf, to mortifie ſelf; and therefore we are to pray to God to give us his holy Spirit. It is he that is the refiners fire, and fullers ſoape: Now as in refining and purifying, uſe what means you will, except you uſe fire, you can never refine Silver; ſo if a man be left to his own Spirit, he will run into a thouſand noiſome luſts; but when God's Spirit is cloathed in a man's Heart, then he is kept from ſin. Mat. 3. 12. Mal. 3. 13.

9. Labour after further diſcoveries of Chriſt. Believe more, and depend more upon Chriſt; yea let us trade immediately with Chriſt; for Chriſt is the only Agent in the work of Self-denial. Miſtake not, I do not ſay, that we are meer paſſives in Self-denial; indeed at that firſt habitual beginning of it at Converſion, and at that final perfecting and finiſhing of it, and carrying away all ſin at Death, I believe we are meer paſſives; but now in our progreſs we are workers together with Chriſt: And therefore it is ſaid that we purge our ſelves, and that we purifie our ſelves, and that we, by the Spirit mortifie the deeds of the fleſh, becauſe Chriſt ſtill in going on to purge us, purifie us, and to mortifie our Luſts, he doth it by ſtirring up our Graces, and uſeth therein acts of our Faith, and Love, and many motives, and conſiderations to do it. Let us therefore uſe all means required, but above all let us bring our Hearts more and more acquainted with Chriſt. It is Chriſt that great Ordinance appointed by God to get our Luſts mortified; how many Souls have gone puddring on (as I may ſo ſpeak) in the uſe of other means? And though in them Chriſt hath Communicated ſome vertue to them, yet becauſe they did not trade with him, they had little in compariſon: The more diſtinctly a man underſtands Chriſt, and how to make uſe of him, the more eaſily he will deny himſelf, and get his Luſts purged; Such a one as trades immediately with Chriſt, will do more in a day, than another in a year. Now this is as God opens our Faith to ſee him, and know him, and to be acquainted with him; Hence it was Paul's deſire, that I may know him and the power of his Reſurrection: 2 Tim. 2. 21. 1 Joh. 3. 3. Rom. 8. 13. Phil. 3. 10.

That I may know him as a Prophet inſtructing me, as a Prieſt ſanctifying me, as a King reigning ſpiritually in me; That I may know the power of his Reſurrection in the vivification of my Soul in the abolition of my ſin, and eſpecially of mine own iniquity. It was Chriſt, Paul made uſe of in this work. Pſal. 18. 23. Gal. 6. 14. By Chriſt the World is Crucified unto me, and I unto the World. Thus much for the Denial of Sinful-ſelf.

Sect. 6. Of the Denial of our external Relations; and firſt of Cautions.

SEcondly, We muſt deny natural ſelf; and this we muſt deny only conditionally, and upon ſuppoſition of God's call, whether it be in regard of our being, or well being. I ſhall begin with the latter, and that contains either external relations, ſpecial gifts, or common ends.

1. We are conditionally to deny our external relations; To this purpoſe (ſaith Chriſt) Luke 14. 26. If any man cometh to me, and hateth not Father, and Mother, and Children, and Brethren, and Wife, and Siſters —— he cannot be my Diſciple. Not that Religion teacheth, or commandeth, or endureth a Saint to break the ties of Religion, or Nature; you ſee it puts in a Plea againſt ſuch unnaturalneſs, Honour thy Father and Mother, is the firſt Commandment, with Promiſe. 6. 2. And the Ravens of the valleys ſhall pick out their eyes that mock and deſpiſe their Father and Mother. r. 30. God's Commandments do not enterfere, the Goſpel in this caſe gives no Superſedeas to the Law: And therefore in the denial of Relations I ſhall lay down { Cautions. Directions.

1. That Relations are the bleſſings of God; they are God's gifts, and beſtowed on the Saints in a way of Promiſe. Bleſſed is every one that feareth the Lord, that walketh in his ways; How may that apper? Pſal. 128. 1, 3, 4. Thy Wife ſhall be as a fruitful Vine by the ſides of thine houſe, thy Children like Olive-plants round about thy table: Behold thus ſhall the man be bleſſed that feareth the Lord. Now thus we muſt not deny, but Love, and Cheriſh, and dearly eſteem of our Relations: They are the gifts of God's bounty, of his Gracious Covenant, proceeding from the free undeſerved Love of God; they are the Tokens of God's ſpecial good Will and Favour in Jeſus Chriſt: They are the Loving Tokens which Chriſt ſends to our Souls, that ſo he might draw our Loves to him again; and hence it is Lawful and Commendable to Rejoice in them in their way, and eſpecially to lift up our Souls in Thankſgiving to God for them; for every Creature of God is good (much more the Children of our Loins, and Wives of our Boſoms) 1 Tim. 4. 4. if received with Thankſgiving.

2. Notwithſtanding they are the bleſſing of God, yet we muſt deny them for God, as in theſe caſes. ——

1. If they retard us in the way to Chriſt, if they entice us to make haltings in our runnings through fire and through water to the Lord Jeſus. Thus as it was ſaid of Levi, ſo ſhould it be ſaid of every Saint, Deut. 33. 9. He ſaid unto his Father and Mother, I have not ſeen him, neither did he acknowledge his Brethren, nor know his own Children. This is meant either of the Prieſt's continued Duty, who, if his Father, Mother, Brother, or Child died, he might not mourn for them, but carry himſelf as if he did not reſpect, know, or care for them: Or, it is meant of that fact of the Sons of Levi, who being Exod. 32. 27, 28. commanded of Moſes, they killed every man his Brother, Friend, Neighbour, and Son, that had ſinned in making and worſhipping the Golden Calf; and to this latter the Chaldee refers it, Tranſlating thus, Who had no compaſſion on his Father, or on his Mother, when they were guilty of judgment, and accepted not the Perſons of his Brother, or of his Son. If our deareſt Relations ſhould beckon us out of the way, or retard us in the way to Jeſus Chriſt, we muſt not reſpect Father or Mother, we muſt not acknowledge our Brethren, nor know our own Children. And Chriſt gives Matt. 10. 37. the Reaſon, he that Loveth Father or Mother more then me, is not worthy of me? And he that Loveth Son or Daughter more then me, is not worthy of me. A man ſhould love Father and Mother, and a man will love Son and Daughter, for Love deſcends rather than aſcends; but if any man love Father, or Mother, or Son, or Daughter more than Chriſt, he is not fit to be a Diſciple of Chriſt, or to be ſaved by Chriſt.

2. If they draw contrary ways to Chriſt, if their ways be Croſs, Chriſt drawing one way, and Relations drawing another way. Now in this caſe, as Chriſt ſaid, If a man hate not Father, and Mother, and Wife, and Children, and Brethren, and Siſters? Yea, and his own Life alſo, he cannot be my Diſciple. Luke 14. 26. If any man hate not, (i. e.) if a man renounce not all carnal affection, if a man be not diſpoſed (where theſe loves are not incompatible) to hate Father, and Mother, and all for the love of Chriſt, he cannot belong to Chriſt. Theſe two Caſes may be ſummed up thus; if our Relations do either retard our way to Chriſt, or draw us from Chriſt, in this ſence they ought to be forgotten, yea, to be hated. Chriſt in this caſe, called Peter Satan: we muſt not Love Father, or Mother, or Daughter, or Wife, or Child more then Chriſt. So Matt. 10. 37. expounds that place of Luke 14. 26. This is plain, for we muſt love Chriſt with all our Heart, and with all our Soul; and though by the Second Commandment, we muſt love our Neighbour as our ſelf, yet we muſt not love our Neighbour as our Chriſt.

THe directions of Self-denial in reſpect of our Relations, are theſe. ——

1. Let us have them, as if we had them not! This is the expreſſion of the Apoſtle: The time is ſhort (ſaith he) and what then? it remains, that both they that have Wives, be as though they had none, and they that weep as they that wept not, and they that rejoyce as if they rejoyced not, 1 Cor. 7. 29, 39. 1. The time is ſhort: The Apoſtle here alludes to Sea-faring men that have almoſt done their voyage, and begin to ſtrike ſail, and to fold them up together, and are even putting into harbour; So it is with us; our time is ſhort, as ſoon as we begin our Voyage, we are ready to ſtrike ſail preſently. 2. It remains that both they that have wives, be as though they had none, &c. q. d. You that are ready to caſt anchor, trouble not your ſelves about theſe things, but rather be ye ſtedfaſt, gird up the loins of your minds, let your care be the greateſt for Heaven; and as for theſe outward Relations, be as if you had none, or think as ſoon as you are aſhore, you ſhall have none; do not glut your ſelves, but moderate your hearts in all ſuch comforts as theſe.

2. Let us reſign up all to God. This we have done, and this we muſt do ſtill. 1. This we have done in that day when we made up our bargain for Chriſt. Every ſoul that comes to Chriſt, he parts with all to buy that Pearl, and in ſelling all he ſells not only his corruptions and luſts, but his father, mother, wife, children, all relations conditionally. 2. This we muſt do ſtill; we muſt give up all to God; we and they, and all muſt be at the command of Chriſt, at the pleaſure of God and Chriſt; indeed nothing is properly called our own but God and Chriſt; all other things are God's gifts, lent of God, and therefore due (as occaſion is) we muſt give up all to God again.

3. In all things, yea above all things be we fill'd with the Spirit. This will take off our thoughts from other things that are inferiour: If our ſouls be once filled with the things of a better life, then Wife, Children, Parents, Friends will never draw away our hearts. O that our ſouls would but mount up and take a view of thoſe rare things that are provided for us in another life! What! to have God our Father, Angels our keepers, to be the friends, brethrens companions of Angels! Weigh theſe things daily, and then we ſhall deny our Relations here: Theſe on earth may be comforts, but what is earth to heaven? what are theſe joys to joys eternal;

4. Let us muſe on the many Relations betwixt Chriſt and us; he is our Creator, we the work of his hands; he is our Shepherd, we the flock of his paſture; he is our Father, the great Father of the Family, who provides all things neceſſary for them that be under his government, and we are his children; he is our Bridegroom, we his Spouſe: Now if Chriſt be inſtead of all Relations, how ſhould we but leave all for Chriſt? As a woman leaves her fathers Houſe, and her own people, to co-habit with her husband, ſo ſhould we leave our Country with Abraham; leave your friends with Levi; Gen.12.1. leave our poſſeſſions with the Diſciples: yea, be ready to Deut.33.9. leave our life with Paul for the teſtimony, honour, Mat.4.22. and ſervice of Chriſt. The ſoul that is related to Chriſt, hath enough in Chriſt to pleaſe and delight it ſelf. Though all friends, according to the fleſh, become ſtrangers or prove enemies, yet Chriſt is inſtead of all friends.

5. Let us imitate them (as occaſion is) who for Chriſt's ſake have not only in will, but actually parted Heb. 11. with their deareſt Relations. Thus Moſes refuſed 24, 25, 26. that relation, to be called the ſon of Pharaohs daughter, chuſing rather to ſuffer affliction with the people of God, then to enjoy the pleaſures of ſin for a ſeaſon. Thus the Apoſtles of Chriſt refuſed not ſome but all their Relations: Behold we have forſaken all, and followed Matt. 19. thee. To whom Chriſt anſwered, 27. every one that hath forſaken houſes, or brethren, or ſiſters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands for my names ſake, ſhall receive an hundred-fold (which Chriſt gives them in beſtowing himſelf on them) and ſhall inherit everlaſting life. It was Jerom's ſaying, If the Lord Chriſt ſhould call me to him, though my father ſhould 29. lye in the way, and my mother ſhould hang about my neck, I would go over my father and ſhake off my mother, and run to my Chriſt. But this was only ſaid; if you would know a greater matter then this done and practiſed, I ſhall give you one notable inſtance, enough to inflame all our hearts towards Chriſt and his truth in the very publiſhing of it.

I have read a notable Hiſtory of one Galeacius Caracciolus the noble Marqueſs of Vico: This Vico was one of the Paradiſes of Naples, and Naples was the Paradiſe of Italy, and Italy is the Paradiſe of Europe, and Europe the Paradiſe of all the Earth, Yet this Marqueſs being brought to hear a Sermon of Peter Martyr's, God pleaſed ſo to work upon his Spirit that he began to enter into ſerious thoughts, whether his way of Popery, wherein he was trained, was right or not. At laſt having further light let into his Soul, not only of ſeeing Truths, but likewiſe of delivering himſelf from that Idolatry which he apprehended himſelf defiled withal, his Reſolutions were ſtrong to leave the Court, and his Honours, together with his Father, Wife, and Children, and whatſoever was dear to him. Many grievous combats he had betwixt the Fleſh and the Spirit when he reſolved of his departure, but the greateſt troubles were his Relations; For ——

1. As often as he looked on his Father, which he almoſt did every hour, ſo often he was ſtricken at the Heart with unſpeakable grief; his thougths run thus, What? And muſt I needs forſake my dear and loving Father? And cannot I elſe have God my Father? O unhappy Father of my Body, which muſt ſtand in competition with the Father of my Soul?

2. No leſs inwardly was he grieved in reſpect of his noble wife; for, having no hope that ſhe would renounce Popery, and go with him, he reſolved alſo for Chriſt's ſake to leave her, and to follow Chriſt, whereupon his thoughts run thus: And ſhall I ſo, yea ſo ſuddenly, and ſo unkindly leave and forſake my Wife, my dear and loving Wife, the only joy of my Heart in this World, and ſhall I leave her not for a time, but for ever! Poor Lady! How many doleful days without Comfort, how many walking nights without Sleep ſhall ſhe paſs over? What will ſhe do, but Weep, and Wail, and Pine away with Grief? Theſe two Cogitations of his Father and Wife, greatly Tormented, and the more becauſe he laboured to keep cloſe this fire which burned and boiled in his Heart; he durſt not make known his departure, leſt it ſhould have been hindred, which he would not for a World.

3. There was yet a third, and ſpecial care that pinched him, and that was for his Children; which were ſix in all. It was the more grief in that they were ſo young, as that they could not conceive what it was to want a Father! The Eldeſt was ſcarce Fifteen, and the Youngeſt ſcarce Four years old: Towards them, ſaith the Story, his thoughts run thus. And ſhall I within theſe few days utterly forſake theſe ſweet Babes? Shall I leave them to the wide and wicked World, as though they had never been my Children, nor I their Father? —— And you poor Orphans, what ſhall become of you, when I am gone? Your hap is hard, even to be Fatherleſs, your Father yet living. —— And what can your woful Mother do, when ſhe looketh on you, but weep and wring her Hands, her Grief ſtill encreaſing as ſhe looks upon you? Yet thus muſt I leave you all confounded together in heaps of Grief, weeping and wailing one with another, and I, in the mean time weeping and wailing for you all.

This noble Spirit thus reſolved, at laſt he left his Family, and went to Geneva; who no ſooner gone, but his Friends and Family were ſo aſtoniſhed, that nothing was heard or ſeen amongſt them but Lamentations. The ſtory is large: I ſhall wind up all in this one paſſage. By his Father's Commands, and his Wifes Entreaties, he was perſwaded to ſee them once in his Life, and take his Journey from Geneva, to Vico; thither come, and having ſtayed awhile, and now ready again to return to his dear Geneva, his Father, at his farewel, gave him many an heavy and bitter curſe; his Wife embraced him, and took him about the neck, beſeeching him in a moſt loving and pitiful manner, that he would have care of himſelf, of his dear Wife and Children, and not ſo willingly caſt them all away; His young Children, all upon their knees with arms ſtretched out, and hands holden up, and faces ſwollen with Tears, cryed unto him to have pity on them, his own Bowels, and not to make them fatherleſs before the time: His friends with heavy Countenances and watry Eyes looked rufully on him, and though for grief they could not ſpeak a Word, yet every look, and every countenance, and every geſture was a loud cry, and a ſtrong entreaty that he would ſtay, and not leave ſo ancient and noble an houſe in ſuch a woful, and deſolate caſe. But above all, there was one moſt lamentable Sight: Among all his Children, he had one Daughter of Twelve years old, who crying out amain, and wallowing in Tears, fell down, and catching faſt hold about his Thighs and Knees, held him ſo hard that he could by no means ſhake her off, and the affection of a Father wrought ſo with him, as he could not offer with violence to hurt her; he laboured to be looſe, but ſhe held faſter; he went away, but ſhe trailed after, crying to him, not to be ſo cruel to her his own Child, who came into the World by him: This ſo wonderfully wrought with his Nature, that he thought (as he often reported) that all his Bowels rouled about within him, and that his Heart would have burſt preſently, and there inſtantly have died. —— But notwithſtanding all this, being armed with a Supernatural and Heavenly fortitude, he broke through all thoſe Temptations, and for Chriſt's ſake denied all, and ſo returned to Geneva: (where Maſter Calvin then lived) a Glorious Self-denial, or a Glorious denier of his Natural-ſelf. And thus much of denying our Relations.

Sect. 8. Of the Denial of our ſpecial Gifts; and firſt of Cautions.

2. WE are conditionally to deny our ſpecial Gifts and Endowments: As Learning, Wiſdom, Power, or any other Abilities of Mind and Body. In proſecution of this I ſhall give ſome { Cautions.

Directions.

The Cautions are theſe, ——

1. That Learning, Wiſdom, Abilities, are in themſelves excellent things. Æneas Silvius in his Epiſtle to Sigiſmund Duke of Auſtria, ſaid, that if the face, even of Humane Learning could but be ſeen, it is fairer, and more Beautiful than the Morning, or the Evening Star: How much more may be ſaid in reſpect of Divine, Spiritual, Theological Learning, whoſe Subject is God, and Chriſt, and the things of God? In this reſpect therefore we muſt not deny them.

2. Notwithſtanding the excellency of Learning, Wiſdom, or other Abilities, yet muſt we deny them, as in theſe Caſes, ——

1. In reſpect of any high thoughts of ours, of any overweening conceit of our own excellencies. Rom. 12. 16. Be not wiſe in our own conſeit, ſaith the Apoſtle; to Prov. 3. 5, 7. which agrees that of Solomon, lean not to thine own underſtanding, —— be not wiſe in thine own eyes. It is a ſad thing to ſee in theſe times how all our debates, differences, controverſies, even in Spiritual matters, do almoſt ſavour of nothing elſe but of the affectation of natural Wiſdom, Subtilty, Eloquence; how doth Pride move men to outſtrip one another, either by ſhewing their Parts, as Wit, Language, Reading, Philoſophy, Hiſtory, and other Learning; or by laſhing and ſmiting one another with the Tongue, to ſeek a Conqueſt rather by the infamy of others, than by the Armour of Righteouſneſs on the right hand and on the left? By theſe unchriſtian and unconſcionable ways the more able men are, the more deſtructive they make themſelves to the comforts of their brethren, and the nearer their debates relate unto Religion, the further off they ſet themſelves, and others, from the Kingdom of Jeſus Chriſt. The reſpect which is had to gain credit with men, to loſe no ground in the debate, and to be thought Leaders in the cauſe together with the fear leſt they ſhould be foiled in any thing, doth even ſtrip them of all Chriſtian Simplicity, With the lowly is Wiſdom, (ſaith Solomon) whereas from Pride Prov. 11. 2. cometh ſhame. That wiſdom cannot be true, which brings us nearer to our own wit, and further off from the Simplicity and Humility which is in Chriſt Jeſus. I ſuppoſe this is one cauſe why ſo much contempt is now caſt upon the Name of Learning, though it may be wrongfully by men, yet deſervedly as from God; and I believe God will not ceaſe to ſtain the Pride of all their Glory, and their greatneſs, by a full diſcovery of their ſhame, till they that are Learned do ſhew themſelves willing to be reformed herein.

2. In reſpect of any uſe of them according to the World. Of this God ſpeaketh when he ſaith, I will deſtroy the Wiſdom of the Wiſe, and will bring to 1 Cor. 1. 19. nothing the underſtanding of the Prudent. And thus the Apoſtle triumphed over the Wiſards of the World, ſaying, Where is the Wiſe? Where is the 1 Cor. 1, 30. Scribe? Where is the Diſputer of this World? Hath not God made fooliſh the Wiſdom of this World? Worldly wiſdom uſually ſcorns and diſdains the great myſteries of Godlineſs, Fooliſhneſs of Preaching, Simplicity of the Saints; but this Wiſdom deſcendeth not from above, (ſaith the Apoſtle) this Wiſdom is but James 3. 15. Earthly, Senſual, Deviliſh; 1. Earthly, it minds only Earthly things; though a man be to paſs perhaps the next day, the next hour, the next moment to that dreadful Tribunal of God, yet it ſo glues his Hopes, Deſires, Projects, Reſolutions to Earthly, Tranſitory Pelf, and things of this Life, as if both Soul and Body at their diſſolution ſhould be wholly and everlaſtingly reſolved into earth or nothing. 2. It is Senſual; it prefers the pleaſures of Senſe, and pleaſing the appetite, before the Peace of Conſcience and Senſe of God s favour; it provides a Thouſand times better for a Body of Earth, which muſt ſhortly turn to Duſt, and feed the Worms than for a precious immortal Soul, that can never die; it highly prefers a few bitter-ſweet pleaſures, for an inch of time in this vale of Tears, before unmixt and immeaſurable joys through all Eternity in the Glorious Manſions of Heaven. 3. It is Deviliſh; for it imitates the Devil in plotting and contriving miſchief and ruine againſt the Glory of God, the Miniſtery of his Word, the paſſage of his Goſpel, the Plantation of his Grace in the Hearts of men: Or it is deviliſh, becauſe the Devil uſually ſets thoſe on work that have a little more wit to do him Service; He knows they are more able, and active to Quarrel, Rail, Slander, diſgrace the Truth of God, or Miniſtry of Chriſt. O poor Souls! How do you bark and ſnatch at thoſe hurtleſs hands, which would heal and bind up your bleeding Souls? O poor Ideots, what wiſdom is it for you to endeavour their extirpation, who are as Stars on the right Rev. 1. 16. Hand of Chriſt? They that would do Chriſt's Miniſters any deadly harm, they muſt pluck them thence; I could wiſh thoſe Worldly, Earthly, Senſual, Deviliſh-wiſe, that imploy their Wits, their Power, their Malice, their Friends, their Underhand-dealings, to Slander, Diſgrace, Hinder, ſtop the paſſage of a conſcionable Miniſtery; but to remember thoſe few Texts, He that toucheth you, toucheth the apple of my Eye: And he that deſpiſeth you, deſpiſeth me; and he that deſpiſeth me, deſpiſeth him that ſent Zech. 2. 8. me. Surely there is ſomething in it that God ſo Lu. 10. 16. ſtrictly chargeth, Touch not mine Anointed, and do Pſal. 105. 15. my Prophets no harm.

Sect. 9. Of the manner of the Denying our Special Gifts.

THe directions of Self-denial in reſpect of our Special gifts, are theſe.——

1. Think we ſoberly of our ſelves according as God hath dealth to every man the meaſure of Faith. We were not Sober in the Apoſtles phraſe, if either we took Rom. 12.3. that upon us, which we have not, or bragged of that which we have.

2. Mind the true ends of Learning, Wiſdom, Abilities, and aim at them. What are thoſe ends? I anſwer, 1. To do God more Excellent, and more Glorious Service. 2. To furniſh the Soul for an higher Degree, and a greater meaſure of Sanctification. 3. To do more Nobly in Ephratah, and to be more Famous in Bethlehem. What a ſhame and Sin is it for Men by their Abilities to hunt after certain ſecondary Prizes, as Pleaſure of Curioſity, Ability of Diſcourſe, Victory of Wit, Gain of Profeſſion, Inablement for imployment and Buſineſs, and ſo (by the abuſe and miſapplying of it) to put their great engine of Gifts into the Devils hands, for the inlarging and advancement of his Kingdom? O conſider thoſe more noble ends, and ſeek after them.

3. Endeavour to walk before God in Humility and Lowlineſs of Mind. What? Are thy Gifts more eminent than others? It is the Lord that makes thee differ; and as God hath been favourable to thee, ſo ſhould his Favours be as obligations to Obedience, Humility, Meekneſs in thee.

4. Remember it is not the greatneſs of the Gift, but the well-uſing of the Gift that is the Glory of the Receiver; it is not the having of any thing whether much or little, but the having of Chriſt with it, that makes it full and ſatisfactory, ſweet and comfortable, uſeful and beneficial unto Man.

5. Know and be aſſured, that whatſoever we have, if it puffs us up, and make us ſwell, it is not food, but Poiſon; or Mercy, but a Curſe; no Evidence of Divine favour, but of ſevere anger to our Souls.

6. Obſerve and weigh well, that the iſſue and event of all depends not upon the Abilities of Man, but upon the all-diſpoſing hand of God. The race Eccl. 9.11. is not to the Swift, nor the battel to the Strong, neither yet bread to the Wiſe, nor riches to men of Underſtanding. All our Abilities are under God's providence, who puts an efficacy into Man's Abilities even as he pleaſeth.

7. Eſteem we all Abilities, Gifts, Knowledge, Phil. 3. 8. as dung and droſs in compariſon of the excellency of the knowledge of Chriſt Jeſus our Lord. Thus Paul determined to know nothing but Chriſt and him Crucified. All Knowledge, Art, Learning is nothing to Chriſt; there is no fulneſs, no Divine excellency in that Man's knowledge that knows not Jeſus Chriſt. Si 1 Cor. 2.2. Chriſtum neſcis, &c. If we know not Chriſt, it is nothing if we know never ſo much: Si Chriſtum diſcis, &c. If we know Chriſt, it is enough, though we know nothing more; enough indeed, for in knowing him we have all knowledge; In Chriſt are hid all the Treaſures of Wiſdom and Knowledge. Among wiſe Col. 2. 3. men he is the choiceſt that knows moſt of Chriſt; it is Chriſt that puts a fulneſs into our knowledge, as the ſhining of the Sun in the air puts a fulneſs of light into the eye; hence Paul made Chriſt Crucified the Center and Circumference of his Knowledge, Eph. 3. 18. the Breadth, and Length, and Depth, and Heighth of his Knowledge, this was the full Latitude of his Knowledge, to know Jeſus Chriſt; and this is excellent Knowledge, excellent for the Author, Matter, Subject, Fruits, and Effects of it; this is ſaving Knowledge, this is Life eternal to know thee, and whom thou Phil. 3. 8. haſt ſent, Jeſus Chriſt. O never ſpeak of Learning, Wiſdom, Gifts, Abilities, in compariſon of Chriſt. Bernard could ſay, If thou writeſt, it doth not reliſh John 17 3. with me, unleſs I read Jeſus there; if thou diſputeſt or conferreſt, it doth not reliſh with me, unleſs Jeſus ſound Si ſcribas, non ſapit mihi niſi, legero ibi Jeſum, &c. Bern. there: All Learning is but ignorance in compariſon of the knowledge of Chriſt Jeſus our Lord. Come then, and down with all Carnal Knowledge in this reſpect; Come then, and ſubmit to that True, Spiritual, Applicatory, Experimental Knowledge of Jeſus Chriſt. Henceforth (ſaith the Apoſtle) we know no man after the Fleſh, yea though we have known 2 Cor. 5.16. Chriſt after the Fleſh, yet henceforth know we him no more. We know him not after an Earthly Carnal Manner, but after a Divine and Spiritual manner agreeable to the State of glory whereto Chriſt is exalted.

8. Conſider that Gifts and Abilities are the ſtay, and ſtaff, and ſtrength only of Hypocrites; they only lean on theſe, they only ſecure themſelves in theſe: Are they not Hypocrites that dare to plead thus with God himſelf? Many will ſay to me in that day, Lord, Mat. 7. 22. Lord, have we not Propheſied in thy Name, and in thy Name caſt out Devils, and done many great Wonders? They truſted upon, have we not propheſied? Have we not prayed? have we nor done Wonders? q. d. God hath opened the Secrets of Heaven to us, and do you think he will ſhut the Gates of Heaven upon us? We have Preached, we have been Inſtruments of ſaving others, and ſhall not we be ſaved our ſelves? We have caſt out Devils, and ſhall we be caſt to the Devil? We have not walked in an ordinary tract of profeſſion, but we have traded in Wonders and done Miracles, we have amazed the World with Reports of the great things we have done; is all this nothing? Thus they plead with Τίς ὑλται τὸ ξένον ϗ παράδοξον τῦτο τέλ@, Chryſoſt. Chriſt, as if he were bound to ſave them by the Law of theſe Services; Yet Chriſt tells them, Depart from me, I know you not. One of the Ancients repreſents them in ſuch an amazement. What means this ſtrange, unexpected anſwer from Chriſt, Depart, &c. Muſt we depart, who have lived ſo near thee? Muſt we be damned, whom thou haſt thus Honoured?

9. Conclude hence, though a man have never ſuch parts and Gifts, yet if we have not Grace withal, he may go to Hell and periſh to all Eternity; for by his Gifts he is not united to Jeſus Chriſt nor made the Child of God, nor eſtated into the Covenant of Grace. You ſee how it is with Children playing together in the Day, when Night comes, one Child goes to his Father; and the other to his Father; it may be all the day they are ſo like, that you cannot ſay, whoſe Child is this, or that: But when Night comes, the Father then comes to his Child, and ſaith, Come my Child, come in at Doors: And if the other offers to go in their, no Child, you muſt go home to your Father, So while we are living, Grace and Gifts are mingled together; ſome men have Gifts, and ſome men have Graces and they look very like; Ah but when Night comes, and when Death comes, then ſaith God to thoſe that have Grace, Come my Children, enter in; but if thoſe that have Gifts only come, he ſends them away. And if a man do go to Hell and periſh, the more Gifts he hath, the deeper will he ſink into Hell; as it is with a man that is in the water, ſinking in the water, the more he is Laden with Gold, the more he ſinks; and as he is ſinking, if he have any time to cry out, he ſaith, Oh take away theſe Bags of Gold, theſe Bags of Gold will ſink me, they will undo me: So I ſay, theſe Golden Parts, and Golden Gifts, will undo men; when men come to Hell, and ſhall periſh indeed, the more Golden Gifts and Parts they have had, the deeper they ſhall ſink in Hell. And thus much of Denying our ſpecial Gifts.

Sect. 10. Of the Denial of our Worldly Profits: And firſt of Cautions.

3. WE are conditionally to deny our Common ends, which naturally men purſue and ſeek after, as Profit, Pleaſure, and Honour. I ſhall begin with the firſt, viz. Profit, In proſecution of which I ſhall give the { Cautions.

Directions.

The Cautions are theſe ———

1. It muſt be granted that worldly Profits, ſuch as Houſes, Lands, Poſſeſſions, are a bleſſing of God, and uſeful in their kind and places; namely, becauſe they ſerve for the refreſhing, comforting, ſupporting, of our frail weak Bodies, while we live in this World. And hence it is that God of his infinite Bounty and free Grace hath undertaken and promiſed to make competent Proviſion for his Pſal. 34.9, 10. Children. O fear the Lord ye his Saints, for there is no want to them that fear him; the young Lions do lack and ſuffer Hunger, but they that ſeek the Lord ſhall not want any good thing. ——— Truſt in the Lord, and do Pſal. 37.3, 11. good, ſo ſhalt thou dwell in the Land, and verily thou ſhalt be fed. ——— The meek ſhall inherit the Earth, and ſhall delight themſelves in the abundance of Peace. ——— Seek ye firſt the Kingdom of God, and all Mat. 6.33. theſe things ſhall be added unto you. All theſe argue that Earthly enjoyments are in themſelves Mercies, and the Bleſſings of God to Godly men.

2. Notwithſtanding this, yet we muſt deny them as in theſe Caſes. ———

1. As Temptations and Snares; when they are Act. 8. 20. either bates unto Sin. Thus Simon Magus offering Mony for the Gifts of the Spirit, the Apoſtle doth abhor ſo abominable a Negotiation. Though an Idol be made of Silver and Gold, yet being an Idol it muſt Iſa. 30.22. be thrown away with deteſtation like a monſtruous Cloth. Even the Brazen Serpent when it became a ſnare by the abuſe of men, it is no longer preſerved as a Monument of Mercy, but broken in pieces as Nehuſhtan, a piece of Braſs. Or when they are them- 2 Kin. 16. 4. ſelves the fruits and wages of Sin. Thus Zacheus denies himſelf in all his unjuſt gain which he had gotten by Sycophancy and Defraudation; and when Chriſt offered to come into his Houſe, he would not ſuffer Mammon to ſhut the door againſt him; Reſtitution as it is a moſt neceſſary, ſo it is one of the hardeſt parts of Self-denial; when a covetous Heart muſt be forced to Vomit up all his ſweet Morſels again; unjuſt gain is like a barbed Arrow, it kills if it ſtay within the Body, and pulls the Fleſh away if it be drawn out.

2. As oblations and Sacrifices when Chriſt calls us to dedicate them unto him, then we muſt deny them. Thus when Abraham was called from his Country into a Land of ſojourning, which he knew not; and when Daniel was called from a King's Court to a Den of Lions; when Moſes was called from the Honours of Egypt to the afflictions of God's people; when the Diſciples were called from their Nets and Ships to follow Chriſt, immediately they conſulted not with Fleſh and Blood, but willingly left their own Comforts to obey God's Commands. All we are, or have, we have it on this condition to uſe it, to leave it, to lay it out, to lay it down unto the Honour of our Maſter, from whoſe bounty we received it.

THe directions of Self-denial in reſpect of our Worldly profits are theſe. ———

1. Look we on Worldly Profits as vanity, nothing; Prov. 23.5. Wilt thou ſet thine eyes upon that which is not (ſaith Solomon) for Riches certainly make themſelves Wings, they fly away as an Eagle. Obſerve firſt, that Riches are not, they are nothing; Thoſe things that make men great in the eye of the World, are nothing in the eyes of God. 2. Obſerve, the Holy Ghoſt would not have us ſo much as ſet our eyes upon Riches, they are not objects worth the Looking on. 3. Obſerve with what indignation he ſpeaks againſt thoſe that will ſet their eyes upon them, Wilt thou ſet thine eyes upon that which is not? q. d. What a vain, unreaſonable, ſottiſh, ſenceleſs thing is this? 4. Obſerve, that he ſays, their parting from us is by way of flight, that is a ſudden, ſwift and irrecoverable Motion. 5. Obſerve, that this flight is by the Wings of an Eagle, which of all Birds hath the moſt ſudden, the moſt ſwift, and the moſt irrecoverable Motion. 6. Obſerve, that none needs to put wings upon them to fly away, for they make themſelves Wings, there is matter enough in themſelves to work out their own Corruption, and to put themſelves into a flight. Oh that the Glory of the World were darkned in our eyes as once it ſhall be, that it might not be ſo dear unto us as it is!

2. Conſider them as inſtabilities, uncertainties, All worldly things whatſoever are mutable, changeable, tranſitory; and hence the Apoſtle ſtiles Riches uncertain Riches. All worldly things are like the Sea Ebbing and Flowing; or like the Moon always Increaſing or Decreaſing; or like a Wheel always turning up and down. Such a ſtory we have of Seſoſtris King of Egypt, who would have his Chariot drawn with four Kings, and one of them had his Eyes continually on the wheel? whereupon Seſoſtris asked him, what he meant by it? He anſwered, it put him in mind of the mutability of all Earthly things, for I ſee (ſaid he) that part of the wheel which is now up on high, is preſently down beneath, and that part which is now below, is preſently up on high: Whereupon Seſoſtris being moved, conſidering what mutability might be in his own eſtate; he would never have his Chariot drawn after that manner any more.

3. Conſider them as ſnares, and thornes. To this Ecceſ. 2. 26. purpoſe cried Solomon, all is Vanity, and vexation of Spirit. Worldlings! Do you not feel this true? Mark but how your worldly cares do ruſh upon you in the Morning as ſoon as you awake; mark but how they accompany you in the day; mark but how they follow you to your beds at Night, mark but how they hinder your Sleeps, and afflict you in your Dreams; O what fears? What ſuſpicions? What undermining of one another? What diſappointments? What vexations? What a clutter of buſineſſes croſſing one the other? What Job. 18. 8. ſnares and Temptations lie in your way at every hand? You walk all the day long upon ſnares; upon dangerous ſnares that bring much Sin and Guilt, and will bring much Sorrow and Miſery.

4. Conſider them as fading in regard of uſe, which yet may prove eternal in regard of puniſhment. O what a dreadful noiſe is that in Hell! We have loſt Eternity, for ſetting our Hearts upon things that were but momentary. A ſtrong motive to work in us a ſelf-denial of theſe Prophets; What? Shall I loſe Eternity for things momentary? Shall I whirle away that time that I have to improve for Eternity, to ſeek after you, and to take content and pleaſure in you? This is no ordinary Motive or Argument. Indeed the the knowledge of this in ſome general notion may be ordinary, but to know it powerfully indeed, and affectually indeed, it is a Parable, a Riddle to Pſal. 49. 4. the World, Pſal. 49. 4. Some obſerve that when God works any ſaving work upon the Soul, he begins in this way, to ſettle upon the Soul this Truth, that all things here are fading: And what is a year or two to enjoy all the contentments in this World, if then I muſt be gone, and bid farewell to all? Have not I an immortal Soul? And when ſhall be the time that I ſhall provide for Eternity? To help on ſuch a Soul (now I am upon this Subject) conſider whoſoever thou art, theſe two or three queſtions: 1. What is thy Heart upon? I urge this queſtion as in the name of Chriſt, and anſwer thou that readeſt, what is thy Heart upon? If thou lookeſt upon things Eternal as high notional things, and fitter for ſome thoughts hereafter; then 2. What will be thy thoughts at the hour of Death? It may be theſe: Now are all my Hopes at an end, now I muſt bid farewel to all my comforts, I ſhall never have Mirth and Jollity any more, the Sun is ſet, the Seaſon is at an end for all my comforts; Now I ſee before me an infinite vaſt Ocean of Eternity, and of neceſſity I muſt lanch into it, O Lord, what Proviſion have I for it? O there's a thought that will rent the Heart in pieces! O what a dreadful ſhriek will that Soul give that ſees before it that infinite Ocean of Eternity, and ſees no proviſion that it hath made for it? What will it think, but here's an Ocean of hot ſcalding Lead, and I muſt lanch into it, and I muſt ſwim naked in it for ever and ever? I know not how this word may work, but if it be trampled under foot, it may be within this year or two, or three, it will be ſaid of thee; Such a one was at ſuch a Sermon, or ſuch a one read ſuch a Book, and learned that worldly profits wear but momentary, but now he is gon; or it may be thou wilt ſay on thy Deathbed, ſuch a book, and ſuch a thing I read, that all worldly profits were but momentary, and that I had not only a little River to Swim over, but an infinite Ocean to lance into, and yet I would not be warned, and now my ſeaſon is gone, and I am lanching into Eternity, the Lord knows what will become of me. And if thou periſh indeed, then 3. What will be thy thoughts in Hell (I ſpeak only to ſuch as go on reſolvedly in their ſin, or will take no reſolutions of better courſes,) it was the ſad expreſſion of one Lyſimachus, who loſt his Kingdom for one draught of water; O for what a ſhort pleaſure have I loſt a Kingdom? O conſider what a Soul-ſinking thought will this be to think hereafter, O God for how ſhort a pleaſure have I loſt a Kingdom? The Kingdom of Heaven? And again, for what a ſhort pleaſure have I made my ſelf a bond-ſlave to Hell and Devils for ever? It is reported of Pope Sixtus the 5th. that to enjoy the Glory and Pleaſure of the Popedom for Seven years, he ſold his Soul to the Devil; what infinite folly poſſeſſeth the Hearts of the Children of Men, who were made for Eternity, to venture eternal miſcarrying for a few years, yea a few Hearts-contentments to the fleſh.

5. Compare Chriſt, and the things of Chriſt, with riches, or worldly profits in the particulars forementioned, and thence draw out Concluſions: As, 1. Worldly profits are vanities, but Chriſt and the things of Chriſt are realities, they are true, real, ſubſtantial, ſolid things. 2. Worldly profits are inſtabilities, uncertainties, but Chriſt and the things of Chriſt are ſtable things; they are things that periſh not; an enduring ſubſtance; Eternal things: So the John 6.27. Apoſtle, the things which are ſeen are Temporal, viz. Riches, Honours, Houſes, but things which are not ſeen, Heb. 10. 34. as Chriſt, Grace, Holineſs, God's Favour, 2 Cor. 4. 17, 18. Heaven, are Eternal. 3. Worldly profits are Thornes, Vexation of Spirit, but Chriſt and the things of Chriſt are full of joy and comfort; not like the joys of Earth, that blaze for a time, that are like the crackling of Thorns under a Pot, but yield no durable, ſolid heat; No, no, they are inward, ſound, ſubſtantial, laſting joys; and when we come to Heaven, they ſhall be unmixt joys, pure comforts without any mixture of diſcomfort, or Grief of any kind. 4. Worldly profits are but momentary, and of fading, periſhing nature; but Chriſt and the things of Chriſt are all durable, and laſting, yea everlaſting. Heb. 13. 1. Chriſt is the ſame yeſterday, and to day, and for ever. 1 Pet. 1. 4. And Heaven (wherein Chriſt is) is an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, that fadeth not away. Iſa. 35. 10. Iſa. 45. 17. Spiritual joy is an everlaſting joy, and Salvation is an everlaſting Salvation. Oh muſe on theſe differences betwixt Chriſt and Profits! What wiſe man would make it his buſineſs to fill his coffers with Pibbles, when he may have Pearls, Gold, or Silver? Mat. 16. 26. What is a man profited, if he ſhall gain the whole World, and loſe his own Soul?

6. Go on in the ways of Godlineſs, though all our profits be hazarded; keep on our way, and paſs not for them, truſt God with them; If we do ſtill enjoy them, ſo it is; if not, yet maintain a conſtant ſtrong reſolution of keeping on in the ways of God's fear. Dan. 6. 10. Thus did Daniel, notwithſtanding the Princes and Nobles watched him in the matter of the Lord his God, yet he abated not one whit, he went on in his courſe for all the hazard he was in; the conſtant ways of Godlineſs in Communion with his God was more ſweet and precious to him than all his Court-preferments. Neh. 7. 1. Nehemiah, notwithſtanding the oppoſition he had, notwithſtanding the conſpirings, complaints, and many letters ſent to inform againſt him, yet he went on in the work of the Lord. Thus David profeſſeth, Though Princes ſpake againſt him, yet he did (and he would) meditate on God's Law. Pſal. 119. 23.

7. Appear for God, and his Cauſe, his Truth, and People, though the iſſue may ſeem dangerous, Eſther 4. 16. and when none elſe will. Thus Heſter did with that brave reſolution of hers, If I periſh, I periſh. Neh. 2. 4, 5. Thus Nehemiah did, who though he was ſomething afraid at firſt to ſpeak to that Heatheniſh King in the behalf of his Religion and his People, yet having lift up his Heart to God, he ſpake freely unto him. O let not a publick good cauſe be daſhed and blaſted, and none have an Heart to appear for it, for fear of the loſs of Worldly profits: Chriſtians ſhould have that mobility of mind which the Prophets had, and the Apoſtles had, and which they that ſerve Riches cannot have. What? Do publick cauſes for God and his people, call you out to venture your Eſtates? Surely it is beneath true Nobleneſs of Spirit to provide only for your eaſe and ſafety. We ſhould ſtudy duty, more than ſafety.

8. Conſider, that our Hearts are not perfect with the Lord till we come to a diſpoſition to let go every thing for the Lord. Look under the whole Heaven, if there be any thing we would not forſake, or any thing we would not ſuffer for the Lord, our Hearts are not perfect with God. Whoſoever he be that forſakes not all (in vote or act) for Chriſt, he cannot be a Diſciple of Chriſt; if thou art born to a thouſand pound Lands a year, yet if God and a good Conſcience to witneſs the Truth, call for it, thou muſt forſake all. As Chriſt ſaid to the young man, if thou wilt be perfect, go, ſell all that thou haſt, and give it to the poor, and thou ſhalt have Treaſure in Matt. 19. Heaven;

Heaven; Were Chriſt now on Earth he might ſay as much to any man, and we were bound upon pain of Damnation to obey him. O get our Hearts into this habitual frame; theſe thoughts (if well meditated on) would much abaſe us, and keep us from contemning any man for his mean condition in the World, for we know not how ſoon a good Conſcience may bring us into the like condition. Certainly to have theſe looſe and dying affections to the enjoyments of the World, are greater mercies than the enjoyments themſelves.

5. Let all go indeed rather than be brought to the committing of any ſin: it is better to endure all the frowns and anger of the greateſt of the Earth, than to have an angry Conſcience within our breaſt; it is better to want all the profits and pleaſure that Earth can afford, than to loſe the delights that a good Conſcience will bring in: O let the bird in the breaſt always be kept ſinging, whatſoever we ſuffer for it; it is better we loſe all we have, than to make ſhipwrack of a good Conſcience: In this caſe we muſt be willing to loſe all, or elſe we are loſt in the enjoyment of all. I confeſs it is no little matter for them who have much of the world to deny themſelves in thoſe things that give content to the fleſh, conſidering the corruption that is in the hearts of the children of men; it is an hard thing, and ſeldom hath ſucceſs to give rules for the ordering of life to men who are in great proſperity in this World; For a man to be ſet on high, and yet to have the heart kept down, it is hard and unuſual, ſays Bernard; but the more unuſual, the more glorious; the more hard, the more honourable; the more rare, the more comfortable it is to yield unto it. Bern. Eph. 84.

Sect. 12. Of the Denial of our Worldly Pleaſures; and firſt of Cautions.

THe next common end which naturally men purſue and ſeek after, and which we muſt deny, it is pleaſure: In proſecution of this (as in the former) I ſhall give ſome { Cautions.

Directions.

The Cautions are theſe——

1. That pleaſure, delights, recreations are in ſome ſenſe lawful and laudable, namely, as in a ſober, moderate, ſeaſonable uſe of them they ſerve for the refreſhing, comforting and ſupporting of our frail weak bodies, whileſt we live here in this world. In which reſpect the Preacher could ſay, There is nothing better for a man then that he ſhould eat, and drink, and delight his ſenſes. And again, I perceive there is nothing better then that a man ſhould rejoyce in his own works, for that is This portion. And again, to every thing there is a ſeaſon, and a time to every purpoſe under the Sun. A time to weep, and a time to laugh, a time to mourn, and a time to dance. Thus, and in this ſenſe, and in their ſeaſon we need not to deny them. Eccle. 2. 24. Eccle. 2. 22. Eccle. 3. 1, 4.

2. Notwithſtanding the lawfulneſs, and laudable uſe of pleaſure, yet we muſt deny them as in theſe caſes.

1. When they are baits to draw us unto ſin; thus it is ſaid of the wicked, They take the Timbrel and Harp, and rejoyce at the ſound of the Organ, they ſpend their days in mirth.—— And then it follows, therefore they ſay unto God, depart from us, for we deſire not the knowledge of thy ways; what is the Almighty that we ſhould ſerve him? and what profit ſhould we have if we pray unto him? Men given to pleaſure are very ready to caſt off their God. Job 21. 12, 13, 14, 15.

2. When they are ſin, or the concomitants of ſin, or the fruits, and wages of ſin. Thus Solomon found them, and therefore denied them, I ſaid in my heart, go to now, I will prove thee with mirth, therefore enjoy pleaſure; and behold this alſo is vanity; I ſaid of laughter, it is mad, and of mirth, what doth it? The ſum of that book is this, when Solomon forſook God, then he ran to pleaſures and vanities, and ſought every thing that ſhould pleaſe his carnal eye, and tickle his vain fancy; but he no ſooner returns to himſelf (as the Prodigal did) but he ſayes of pleaſure, this is vanity, and of mirth, this is madneſs, and of laughter, what is this thou doſt? Eccle. 2. 1, 2.

THe directions of Self-denial in reſpect of our worldly pleaſures are theſe.——

1. Look on pleaſures as vanity, and nothing. Thus Amos charging the Courtiers of riotouſneſs, he tells them, They lye upon beds of Ivory, and ſtretch themſelves upon their couches, and eat the lambs out of the flock, and the calves out of the midſt of the ſtall; they chant to the ſound of the vial, and invent to themſelves inſtruments of muſick like David; they drink wine in bowles, and anoint themſelves with the chief oyntments, they are not grieved for the affliction of Joſeph. This their life might ſeem to ſome a moſt brave and deſirable thing, but mark what the Holy Ghoſt ſayes of it, ye which rejoyce in a thing of naught. q. d. all theſe pleaſures put together, were in a true judgment but a thing of naught, res nihil; they had nothing, no reality in them. Amos 6. 5, 6. Verſe 13.

2. Look on pleaſures not only as vain, but as vaniſhing; they are ſoon gone from us, or we are ſoon gone from them. 1. They are ſoon gone from us, the faſhion of this world paſſeth away. Solomon compares all the proſperity of the wicked to a candle; and how ſoon is the candle of the wicked blown out; All pleaſures are but like a mountain of ſnow that melts away preſently. 2. We are ſoon gone from them, it is but a while, and then we and all our pleaſures muſt together vaniſh; if death draw the curtain, and look in upon us, then we muſt bid a farewell to them all, never laugh more, never have merry meeting more; never be in jollity any more, now all is gone, as Adrian ſaid, when he was to dye, Oh my ſoul whether goeſt thou? thou ſhalt never jeſt it, ſport it any more. Oh! when we are called to eternity; then all our delights will leave us, and bid us adieu for ever, and how doleful will this ſound be then to all the ſons and daughters of pleaſure! your ſeaſon is done, you have had your time, it is gone, it is paſt, and cannot be recalled. 1 Cor. 7. 20. Prov. 24. 20.

3. Conſider, this is not the ſeaſon that ſhould be for pleaſure. Son, remember in thy life-time thou hadſt thy pleaſure, it ſhould not have been then: The Apoſtle James lays it as a great charge upon thoſe in his time, that they lived in pleaſure on earth, and were wanton. This is a time for vertuous actions, to do the great buſineſs for which we were born; Oh did we think that our eternity depended upon this little uncertain time of our lives, we would not ſay that ſenſual pleaſures were now in ſeaſon. Surely this time ſhould be ſpent in ſeeking to make our peace with God; this is a time of ſuing out our pardon, of Mourning, and Sorrow, and Trouble of Spirit, and no time for jollity, and Fleſhly delights. If a condemned man had two or three days granted him that he might ſue out his Pardon, were that a time for Pleaſure and Sports? Thus it is with us, the ſentence of Death is upon us, only a little uncertain time is granted us, to ſue out a Pardon, let us know then what is our Luke 16. 25. James 5. 5.

work we have to do, and let us apply our ſelves to it.

4. Meditate on that laſt and ſtrict account that muſt be given for them all. Rejoyce O young man in Eccleſ. 11. 19. thy youth, walk in the wayes of thy heart, and in the ſight of thine eyes. q. d. Live after the Luſts, and do what thou wilt; it is an ironical conceſſion: But remember withal, that for all theſe things God will bring thee to Judgment. For all theſe things.] There is not one merry meeting, not one hour ſpent in pleaſure, nor one pleaſurable act, or thought, but an account muſt be given for it. There are three heads upon which the enquiry at the day of Judgment will be concerning our pleaſures. 1. What kind of pleaſures they were, whether wicked in their own natures or not? 2. What time was ſpent in them? 3. How far the Heart was let out upon them?

5. Weigh the fearful end of theſe delightful things; thoſe morſels which are ſweet in going down, they muſt come up again as bitter as gall: Hence Solomon adviſed; look not upon the wine when Prov. 23. 31, 32. it is red, when it giveth his colour in the cup, when it moveth it ſelf aright; at the laſt it biteth like a ſerpent, and ſtingeth like an adder. The young man that Prov. 7. 22, 23. follows the enticings of the Whore, he goes as an Oxe to the Slaughter, and as a Fool to the Stocks, till a Dart ſtrikes through his Liver. Senſual pleaſure leads to, and fits for deſtruction; Hell hath enlarged her ſelf, and opened her mouth without meaſure. — he that rejoyceth ſhall deſcend into it. They take the Tim- Iſa. 5. 14. brel and Harp, and rejoice at the ſound of the Organ, they ſpend their days in wealth, and in a moment go Job 21. 12, 13. down to Hell. And it was ſaid of Babylon, how much ſhe hath glorified her ſelf, and lived deliciouſly, ſo much Rev. 18. 7. Torment give her. O how grievous will eternal pain be to them, who are now altogether for delight and pleaſure? Now they cannot endure any ſad thoughts, O they make them Malancholy, but how will they endure the diſmal thoughts of an accuſing, tormenting Conſcience everlaſtingly? Now their Fleſh is Dainty, Delicate, and Tender, it muſt lie ſoft, and fare deliciouſly, but how will it endure thoſe Evelaſting burnings?

6. Ponder the carriage of the Saints before us. You know the mean proviſion that John the Baptiſt, the forerunner of Chriſt had, his fare was Lo- Mat. 3. 4. cuſts, and Wild Honey, and yet there was not a grea- Dan. 10. 3. ter born of Woman before. Daniel was afraid of taking liberty to his fleſh in eating the King's meat, and the time he had his moſt Heavenly Viſion, He eat no pleaſant bread, neither came fleſh, nor wine into his mouth, neither did he anoint himſelf at 1 Cor. 9. 27. all. Paul was careful to beat down his Body, to club it down, even till it was black and blew, ſo the word ὑπαπιάζω ſignifies. Timothy, although he was ſickly, yet would not take liberty to drink a little wine, but only water, till Paul wrote to him, and in that liberty there was but a little granted, and that for 1 Tim. 5. 23. his ſtomacks ſake, and his often infirmities. Baſil in an Epiſtle to Julian mentions the mean fare he, and others with him lived withal, he eat no Fleſh, they had no need of Cooks, all their proviſion was but the leaves of plants, and a little Bread: And Hierom reports of Hilarion, that he never eat any thing before the Sun went down, and that which at any time he eat was very mean: And Hierom himſelf lived ſo abſtemiouſly, that he had nothing daily, but a few dried figs with cold water.

7. Do we in ſome meaſure for Chriſt, as Chriſt out of meaſure hath done for us. What? Was he content to part with the pleaſures of Heaven, the boſom of his Father to redeem poor Man? And ſhall not we part with the pleaſure of a little meat or drink for him? What? Was he content to part with his Blood for us? And ſhall not we be content to part with our Luſts for him? Is not all his Glory revealed in his word and work ſufficient to ſhew him worthy of our Loves, and to make us willing to part with ſuch empty, poor, ſlight things, as a deal of ſenſual pleaſures? Surely the Daughters of pleaſure muſt undreſs; if ever they will be beautiful in Chriſt's eyes, they muſt lay aſide their paintings and dreſſings, their curling and perfumings of the hair; Their orna- 1 Pet. 3. 3, 4. ment muſt not be the outward adorning of platting the hair, and of wearing Gold, and putting on of apparel, but the hidden man of the Heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet Spirit, which is in the ſight of God, of great price.

8. Keep on in the ways of Godlineſs; by this means we ſhall not loſe, but change our pleaſures for the better: If things may be rightly ſcanned there is more pleaſure in the very act of Self-denial, than in all the pleaſures of men's lives: And if ſuch pleaſure be in the denial of falſe pleaſure, what is there in enjoyning of True? Surely God hath pleaſure enough for us, if we had an Heart to truſt him with our pleaſure, we ſhall hereby only loſe our ſin, but not our pleaſure. Bernard hath a notable ex- Bernard. de bonis deſerendis. preſſion to this purpoſe, If you be willing (ſays he) to ſacrifice your Iſaac, which ſignifies laughter, your Iſaac, your pleaſure ſhall not die, it is the Ram (i. e.) your ſtoutneſs of Spirit, your ſelf-willedneſs that ſhall die, but Iſaac ſhall live, you ſhall have your pleaſure ſtill. Do not harbour ill thoughts of God; do not think God is an Enemy to your pleaſure; if you would truſt him with your pleaſure, you ſhould have pleaſure enough, it may be in this World, or howſoever in the World to come. Auguſtin hath ſome expreſſions to like purpoſe, how ſweet was it to me Aug. Confeſſ. l. 9. c. 1. of a ſudden (ſaid he) to be without thoſe ſweet vanities? Thou Lord who art the true ſweetneſs didſt caſt them from me, and inſtead of them didſt enter in thy ſelf, who art more delightful than all pleaſure, and more clear than all light. Keep on therefore in God's ways; If we would not be ſad, let us live well, ſaid Bern. de intern. dom. c. 45. Bernard.

9. Underſtand what are the ways of Godlineſs, and what is in the ways of Godlineſs to cauſe delights. Nothing more deadens the Heart to falſe delights than rightly to know what it is in God's ways that cauſeth true delights: Now it is the love of God that appears upon our Souls in every duty which cauſes delight, it is the preſence of God, and the Glory of God that appears in every gracious action which makes it delightful; let us therefore thus look upon the wayes of Godlineſs. Many go on in duty haled by conſcience, but they little underſtand of the pleaſantneſs of God's ways, and for want of the ſence of theſe Spiritual pleaſures, no wonder if they fail in the denial of outward, ſenſual, carnal pleaſure.

10. Meditate on thoſe pleaſures above, and ſay (you that have the experience of the pleaſantneſs of God's ways) if the nether ſprings be ſo ſweet, what will the upper be? If the lower Jeruſalem be paved with Gold, ſurely that upper Jeruſalem is paved with pearls. It is an excellent ſpeech of Bernard, Good art thou O Lord to the Soul that ſeeks thee, what art thou to the Soul that finds thee? If Grace be pleaſant, how pleaſant is Glory? Therefore the Saints die ſo pleaſantly, becauſe there is a meeting of Grace and Glory; Grace is delightful, Glory more delightful; but when both theſe meet together, what delight will there then be? It is a ſpeech of one ſpeaking of carnal delights, None can go from delight to delight; but it is not ſo ſpiritually; the more delight we have here, the more we ſhall have hereafter: And therefore let this be all our prayer, Lord give us evermore this pleaſure, ſatisfie our Souls with this pleaſure; if the drops be ſweet, the Rivers of pleaſure and joy that are at Chriſt's right hand, how ſweet are they?

11. Above all, O taſte and ſee how ſweet the Lord is, even in the want of all outward pleaſures; this will bear up the Heart when all is gone. Heb. 3. 17, 18. Although the Fig-tree ſhall not bloſſom, neither ſhall Fruit be in the Vines, the Labour of the Olive ſhall fail, and the field ſhall yield no meat, the flock ſhall be cut off from the fold, and there ſhall be no herd in the ſtalls; yet I will rejoice in the Lord, I will joy in the God of my Salvation. When all is dark abroad in the World, then let our Souls rejoyce in God alone, yea then let us expatiate our joyes to the utmoſt. As it is a work of Grace to moderate all carnal pleaſures, and to keep them down, ſo it is a ſpecial work of Grace to expiate the Soul to the utmoſt in all Spiritual pleaſures, and rejoycings in the Lord. And to this purpoſe we ſhould exerciſe our Faith in the word and office of the Holy Ghoſt: Look upon the Holy Ghoſt as deſigned by the Father and the Son to bring joy and delight to the Souls of his People. O what a vaſt difference is betwixt the comforts of a Carnal Heart, and the comforts of the Godly? The one comes from a little meat and Drink, &c. but the other comes from the exerciſe of Faith about the office of the Holy Ghoſt, who is deſigned by the Father and the Son to be the comforter of his Saints. What ſay we then? Are all outward pleaſures gone; let them go: Only by the help of the Spirit Rejoyce in the Lord, and again I ſay rejoyce in the Lord. Oh taſte and ſee how good the Lord is, even in the want of all outward pleaſures.

Sect. 14. Of the Denial of our Honour, Praiſe, Favour, Good Name among men: And firſt of Cautions.

The next common end which naturally men purſue and ſeek after, and which we muſt Deny, is Honour, Praiſe, Favour, Good Name. In proſecution of this (as in the former) I ſhall give ſome { Cautions.

Directions.

The Cautions are theſe. ———

1. That Honour, Praiſe, Favour, Good Name are the Gifts and bleſſings of God. Moſes was Honourable; and before Moſes was gathered unto his People, the Lord bade him to put ſome of his Honour Numb. 27. 20. upon Joſhua, that all the congregation of the Children of Iſrael might be obedient unto him. And God bleſſed the Children of Iſrael themſelves with Honour, Deut. 26. 19. he made them high above all Nations in Praiſe, and in Name, and in Honour. And becauſe Solomon begged Wiſdom of God, the Lord told him that he would give him Riches and Honour to boot. Yea, that theſe are God's gifts, David in his Prayer ſpeaketh expreſly, 1 Kings 3. 13. both Riches and Honour come of thee, and thou reigneſt over all. 1 Cor. 29. 12. And for a good name which is true Honour indeed, the Lord hath made a promiſe to his, Iſa. 56. 5 that he will give them in his houſe a place, and a name better of Sons and of Daughters, an everlaſting name that ſhall not be cut off. ——— Zeph. 3. 20. Yea, he will make them a name and a praiſe among all the People of the Earth. Surely theſe are the Bleſſings of God, yea comparatively far above other Bleſſings. A good name is better than precious ointment. Eccle. 7. 1. Yea, a good Name is rather to be choſen than great Riches, and loving Favour rather than Silver and Gold. Prov. 22. 1.

2. Notwithſtanding they are the bleſſings of God, yet we muſt deny them for God, as in theſe caſes.

1. When they are as ſnares or baits unto Sin. And in all thoſe, ſc. Honour, Praiſe, Favour, Good Name, there are dangerous ſnares; how prone do they make a man to thoſe Sins of vain-glory, ſelf-exhortation, ſelf-admiration, ſelf-eſtimation? Surely it is a great Mercy of God if any man be preſerved from theſe ſins that enjoys thoſe bleſſings: And hence it is that few Honourable men prove Self-deniers, becauſe they are moſt prone to thoſe Sins which are moſt formally oppoſite unto Self-denial; what is more oppoſite to Self-denial than Vain-glory, Self-love, Self-ſeeking, Self-advancing, deſire of men's praiſe? In this reſpect Bildad truly ſpeaks of ſuch men, that they are caſt into a Net by their own Feet, and they walk upon ſnares. Job 48. 8. Take heed of theſe ſnares; in this reſpect we had need to deny them.

2. When we are called by God to dedicate them to God. The Lord never gave us theſe things, Honour, Praiſe, Good Name, upon any other terms, but that we ſhould be willing to part with them for the Honour of his name; God never made us owners, but ſtewards of them for his Service, and if ever we were brought to Chriſt, into Covenant with God in him, we then reſigned up all to him, we profeſs'd to part with all for him, we entred into Bond that we would give up whatſoever we were or had to the Lord when it ſhould be called for. And good reaſon, for whatſoever honour or excellency we have, it is he that gives it; it is he that made the difference betwixt us and others; the Rain-bow is but a common vapour, it is the Sun that gilds it, that enamels it with ſo many Colours; the beſt of us are but a vapour; and if any of us be more Glorious, more Honourable than others, it is the Lord that hath ſhined upon us, and hath put more Beauty, more Luſtre upon us, than upon other vapours. The Honour, Favour, Good Name we have, God hath put it upon us, and ſeeing it is of him, the Glory of it is infinitely due to him; if he calls for it, good reaſon we ſhould not deny it.

Sect. 15. Of the manner of denying our Honour, Favour, Praiſe, Good Name among men.

The directions of Self-denial in reſpect of our Honour, Favour, Praiſe, Good Name among men, are theſe. ———

1. Look on Honour, Praiſe, Favour, Applauſe, as vanity, nothing. Eccleſ. 1, 2. Vanity of vanities ſaith the Preacher, Vanity of vanities, all is vanity. Obſerve his expreſſion, 1. Vanity, not only vain, but vanity it ſelf. 2. Exceſſive vanity, for it is vanity of vanities. 3. An heap of vanities, for it is in the Plural Number, vanity of vanities. 3. All is vanity, not only profit, and pleaſure, but honour too; Solomon had experience of them all, and all is vanity. 5. He adds his name to that he ſaith, vanity of vanities, ſaith the Preacher. The word ſignifies the Soul that hath gathered wiſdom. There is no reality in Honour, Praiſe, Favour, Applauſe of men, which are ſo much admired and magnified by the moſt; Honour is but a ſhadow, a fancy, a wind, a breath, an external additament, for there is no internal excellency in it: A meer Fable as Auguſtus Cæſar could ſay on his deaths-bed, Sueton in Auguſt. Have not I ſeemed to have acted my part ſufficiently in this Fable of the World? Now then farewel.

2. Beware of thoſe attendants, or companions of Honours, as vain-glory, ſelf-love, ſelf-exhortation, ſelf-admiration. Let us not be deſirous of vain-glory. Gal. 5. 26. Let us not exalt our ſelves above others. Let us not ſtrive or ſtudy to be magnified by others. Let us not pleaſe and bleſs our ſelves in the vain applauſe of others. It is not humane applauſe, but God's approbation which Miniſters matter of true Honour to a Chriſtian. We ſhould rejoyce to ſee God Honoured, but fear to hear our ſelves applauded, leſt either we be Idolized, our Hearts elevated, or God's Honour obſcured. Certainly ſhame will be at laſt that man's portion that exalts himſelf. O how ſhould Chriſt put the Crown of Glory on his head, who takes the Crown of praiſe from the head of Chriſt? Them that Honour me (ſaith God) 1 Sam. 2. 30. will I honour, and they that deſpiſe me, ſhall be lightly eſteemed.

3. Be convinced, that of all vices, vain-glory, ſelf-admiration, ſelf-exhortation, hunting after men's praiſe, are the moſt invincible. The roots thereof are ſo deep and ſtrong, and ſo largely ſpread in the Heart of man, that there is no diſeaſe in the Soul ſo hardly cured, no Weed in the Garden of man's Heart ſo uneaſily plucked up: It is the hardeſt task that ever man undertook truly to deny himſelf, and fully to proſtrate, and put himſelf under God, and Chriſt's yoke. He that can rule his own Spirit (ſaith Prov. 16. 32. Solomon) is better than he that taketh a City. The overcoming of a Kingdom nothing in compariſon of a man's overcoming his own Corruption. O This Self-exaltation will ſtand it out like a mighty Champion in the Heart when all other luſts ſeem to fly (as Shammah was ſaid to ſtand it out, and to de- 1 Sam. 23. 12. fend the Field when the people fled) other luſts may go out like fire that wants fewel, yet this luſt will ſtill put forth, and ſoar a loft, and ſtrive to climb up into the throne of God ſo long as any thing of the old man remains in man. Of all the evils that are within us, we have moſt cauſe to be convinced, yea to watch and pray againſt this evil of vain-glory, Self exaltation, Self admiration.

4. Learn inwardly, by heart, this Goſpel truth, that man's honouring of Chriſt, and being honoured by Chriſt is the trueſt honour of man. John 12. 26. If any man ſerve me, him will my Father honour. As the honouring of the Father, Husband, Soveraign, is the honour of the Son, a Wife, a Subject: So the honouring of Chriſt, and eſpecially being honoured by Chriſt, it is the Glory of them who are the Children, Spouſe, and Subjects of Jeſus Chriſt. Vain and carnal men think no honour comparable to the honour which men give, as it was ſaid of the Chief Rulers in John 12. 43. Chriſt's time, They love the praiſe of men more than the praiſe of God; and therefore they ſtrive more to have the Teſtimony of man applauding them, than the witneſs God's Spirit ſealing them up unto the day of Redemption. O but this honour ſhould darken the other in our eyes; what great matter is it though the Glory of the other be loſt, ſo that God do but highly honour us with this? Whoſoever knows himſelf to be the Son of God, he never wonders more at that which is humane. Surely he debaſes himſelf from the height of true generouſneſs, who admires at any thing beſides God and Chriſt himſelf; all other honour is but of nature, but this honour is of Grace; it is a ſparkle of the Divine nature, a ray of the very Glory of God himſelf ſhining into the Souls of his Saints.

5. Let us herein conform our ſelves to Chriſt. He came from the Boſom of his Father, and from that infinite Glory he had with him before the John 17. 55. World was; for ſo he prays, that the Father would glorifie him with that Glory he had with him before the World was. He left the Riches and Pleaſures of Heaven, and that honour which he might have had from all the Angels, and all to ſave poor wretched ſinful Creatures; He that was equal with God, ſo emptied himſelf that he became man; nay he was made a ſcorn of men, he was called the Carpenters Son, as one that was contemptible, he made himſelf of no reputation, he came in the form of a ſervant, yea of an evil ſervant that was to be beaten; he was made a Curſe, as if he had been the vileſt of men living; and yet this was the honour of Chriſt himſelf, becauſe it was all for God and good of Souls. O then who is he that knows any thing of Jeſus Chriſt, that can think it much to lay down all his honour, or any outward dignity under Heaven for him? What can be more unworthy? What more deteſtable than that a man ſhould magnifie himſelf after he hath ſeen God humbled. It is intolerable impudency, that where Majeſty hath emptied it ſelf, a worm ſhould be puffed up and ſwell.

6. Let us ſubmit to the meaneſt ſervice of our God, though it darken our honours never ſo much in the eyes of the World. Thus Hierom writ to Panachius a Godly young Noble man, that he would have him to be eyes to the blind, feet to the lame, Hierom. Epiſt. ad Pamach. hands to the weak, yea, if need were to carry water, and cut wood, and make fires; for what are all theſe (ſaith he) to bonds, buffetings, ſpittings, whippings, death. To this purpoſe Conſtantine, Valentinian, Theodoſius, three Emperors called themſelves the vaſſals of Jeſus Chriſt, as Socrates reports of them; and Theodoſius eſpecially did manifeſt it in the work of his humiliation, when in the face of a full Congregation, he caſt himſelf down upon the pavement, weeping, and lamenting for his Sin; which many haughty Spirits, though inferiour to him would have ſcorned to have done.

7. Let us willingly join with thoſe of lower degree Rev. 12. 16. in any way of honouring God. Mind not high things (ſaith the Apoſtle) but condeſcend to men of low eſtate. Thus Hierom adviſed Pamachius to equal himſelf with the poor, to go into the Cells of the needy. Who knows but that the pooreſt Creature may be far more honourable in the eyes of God and of his Saints than we? Where greater graces ſit below us, let us acknowledge their inward dignity. My brethren, have James 2. 1, 5. not the Faith of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt the Lord of Glory, with reſpect of perſons. ——— Hearken my beloved brethren, hath not God choſen the poor of this world, rich in Faith, heirs of the Kingdom, which he hath promiſed to them that love him? It may be ſome of them were in Chriſt before us, and others of them are in Chriſt as well as the beſt of us, and if we muſt differ in Glory as we do differ in Grace, who can tell but they may be in Heaven as the ſtars of a bigger magnitude, and of a greater Glory?

8. Let us bear or ſuffer the moſt diſgraceful thing that can be put upon us for the cauſe of Chriſt; Yea, though all the world ſhould frown upon us, and caſt us off, and ſcorn us, and account us as a diſgrace unto them. As Theodoret reports of Hormiſda a Nobleman in the King of Perſia his Court, becauſe he would not deny Chriſt, he was put into ragged clothes, deprived of his honours, and ſet to keep the Camels; after a long time King ſeeing him in that baſe condition, and remembring his former eſtate, he pitied him, and cauſed him to brought into the Palace, and to be cloathed again like a Nobleman, and then he perſwades him to deny Chriſt; at which he preſently rent his ſilken cloths, and ſaid, If for theſe you think to have me deny my Faith, take them again, and ſo with ſcorn he was caſt out. We muſt be content to be made a bye-word and reproach for Chriſt: But this is an hard leſſon, and for which I had need to give other more particular directions in another Section.

Sect. 16. Rules how to bear Reproaches for the name of Chriſt.

THe directions for Reproaches I ſhall reckon up { Negatively.
Poſitively.

1. Negatively thus.

1. We muſt not bear reproaches Stoically, inſenſibly, for in ſome ſort they are afflictions. A good name is better than a precious ointment. Eccle. 7.1. A good name is rather to be choſen than great riches, and loving Favour rather than Silver and Gold. Prov. 22.1.

2. We muſt not bear them deſperately, as many deſperate wretches do, who uſually ſay, let men ſpeake the worſt, I care not, I muſt appeal unto God: Though it be true, that innocency is a good bulwark, and a good Conſcience is a brazen wall; yet we are not only to care to approve our ſelves unto God, but to men alſo; We are to provide things honeſt before all men, eſpecially among the people of God, and the Churches of Chriſt.

3. We muſt not carry our ſelves paſſionately under reproaches; there are many evils follow upon this diſtemper of heart. As, 1. Thereby we greatly diſturb our own Spirits. 1 Cor. 4. 13. 2. We diſcover a great deal of evil within us. 3. We ſhew the baſeneſs of our Spirits to be ſo ſoon put out of frame. 1 Pet. 2.23. 4. We feed the humors of reproaches and we make others think we are guilty of thoſe reproaches they lay upon us. It is true we ſhould be more ſenſible of the wrong done to our names, than of any wrong done to our eſtates, yet neither are the wrongs of the one or the other to be born paſſionately,

4. We muſt not carry our ſelves revengefully under reproaches. To this purpoſe ſaith the Apoſtle, being defamed we entreat. It is unbeſeeming Chriſtians to revile again, and to ſpeak evil for evil. It is ſaid of Chriſt, that when he was reviled, he reviled not again; and if we profeſs our ſelves to be Chriſt's, we muſt not revile again when we are reviled: There is no contending this way where the overcomer is the loſer: When Demoſthenes was reproached by one, I will not (ſaith he) ſtrive with thee in this kind of fight, in which he that is over-come is the better man.

5. We muſt not be hindred in our way, or break of our courſe of Chriſtianity when we are reproached. What though filth be caſt in our way, ſhall we decline the way? What though the clouds do riſe and darken the light of the Sun, doth the Sun ceaſe ſhining, becauſe it is darkned? Pſal. 37.6. No, it goes on in it's courſe, and ſhines till it breaks forth; ſo you that are ſhining in a good Converſation, go to, and in time you will break through the clouds.

2. Poſitively thus. ———

1. We muſt bear our reproaches wiſely. Though we ſhould not be inſenſible, yet we ſhould not take too much notice of every reproach. Chriſt himſelf was ſilent in this caſe, ſo that the Rulers wondred Mat. 26. 62. David could ſay, they ſpake miſchievous things, but I as a deaf man heard not. Pſal. 38. 12, 13. But how then ſhould we ſtop their mouths? I anſwer. 1. Let us walk innocently; innocency will clear all, and will overcome all in time. 2. Let us labour to be eminent in that which is quite contrary to that we are reproached for. Perhaps you are reproached for a diſſembler, labour for the greateſt eminency of plainneſs of heart and ſincerity; Perhaps you are reproached for covetouſneſs, labour to be eminent in liberality, in heavenly mindedneſs, in doing good wiſely; Perhaps you are reproached for Pride, clear up your ſelves (not by yielding to their humour, but) by eminency of humility, that thoſe can judge right, may ſee there is humility in you.

2. We muſt bear reproaches patiently. What are we? Or what is our names that we ſhould think much to bear reproach; Conſider, have not others of God's Servants, far holier than we are, been under exceeding reproach? Nay how is God and Chriſt reproached? How is the name of God ſlighted? How is the Majeſty, and Soveraignty, and authority of God contemned in this World? How are the dreadful threatnings of God, and the revelation of God's wrath ſcorned in the World? What reproaches indured Chriſt in his own perſon, in his preaching? How was he contemned when he preached againſt covetouſneſs? the Phariſees ſcorned at him, Luk. 16.14. ἐξεμυκτήριζον. the word ſignifies they blew their noſes at him. He was called a Devil, a Samaritan; a wine-bibber, a friend of Publicans and Sinners; What worſe can be imagined than was caſt upon Chriſt? They ſpat on his face, that bleſſed face of his that the waves of the Sea were afraid of, and that the Sun withdrew his light from, as not being fit to behold it; They put thorns upon his Head, and bowed to him in reproach. This argument ſhould methinks move us to bear reproaches patiently. But how ſhould we do it? How ſhould we bear reproaches patiently?

1. Be we ſure to keep Conſcience clear; O let not that upbraid us; be we careful of what we do, and then we need not be much careful of what men ſay; if Conſcience do not reproach us, reproach will not much move us: One of Conſcience's Teſtimonies for us is more than ten Thouſand ſlanders againſt us. As the ſtorms and winds without do no move the Earth, but vapours within cauſe the Earthquakes; So all the railings of all the Shimei's in the World cannot much trouble us, if our Conſciences within do abound with good works; if I can but ſay with Job, My heart ſhall not reproach me as long as I live, Job. 27. 6. I am ſafe enough from the evil of reproach.

2. If we are failing in any thing, let us begin with our ſelves before any others begin with us; let us accuſe our ſelves firſt. So ſome interpret that place, I am wiſer than my Enemies, q. d. Pſal. 119. 98. though mine enemies are witty, and do plot, and their malice helps on their invention, yet I am wiſer, I can find out the ways of mine own heart, and mine own evils better than all mine enemies.

3. Let us exerciſe our ſelves in great things, in the things of God, and Chriſt, and eternity Labour to greaten our Spirits in an Holy manner, and be above reproach. Surely if our Spirits were but truly greatned (I mean not with pride, but with exerciſing of our ſpirits in things that are above the World) reproaches would be nothing in our eyes. It is a notable expreſſion that John hath againſt the evil tongue of Diotrephes, He prates againſt us with malicious words; in the Original it is, he trifles. Although his words were malicious, and Diotrephes a great man, yet all was but trifles; ſo high was John's Spirit above them. 3 Joh. 10. The ſinking of the heart under reproaches argues too vile a puſillanimity ſuch a poor low Spirit, as is not conſiſtent with the true magnanimity of a true Chriſtian.

4. Make we our moans to God, and lay our caſe before him, as Hezekiah (when Rabſheka came and reviled God, and the people of God) he went and ſpread the letter before God, and made his moan to God; ſo if we can but do likewiſe, we ſhall find unſpeakable refreſhments to our Souls, and Job 16.20. Pſal. 109. 24. that will be a great Argument of our innocency. My friends ſcorn me (ſaith Job) but mine eye poureth out tears unto God. And the mouth of the wicked (ſaith David) and the mouth of the deceitful are opened againſt me, they have ſpoken againſt me with a lying Tongue.--- But I gave my ſelf unto Prayer.

5. Get our hearts quietly and kindly to lament the condition of our reproachers. Their folly ſhould cauſe us to pity them, to be patient towards them, and to paſs by the wrongs they do to us. This was one of the Arguments that Abigail brought to David to quiet his Spirit that was ſo ſtirred againſt 1 Sam.25. 25. Nabal, becauſe of his reproaches; O ſaid ſhe, Nabal, is his name, and folly is with him. q. d. It is his folly David, and therefore rather pity him David; it is too low a thing for ſuch a Spirit as David to be ſtirred with folly. Indeed, inſtead of being troubled with reproaches, our Spirits ſhould be moſt troubled for their ſin; Alas, they ſin by their re-Prov.8.13. proaches, and God hates them for it. Pride, and Arrogancy, and the evil way, and froward mouth do I hate. If we have any love, we ſhould think thus; this poor man, what hath he done? He hath brought himſelf under the hatred of God. O this ſhould mightily affect the heart of the Godly.

6. We muſt bear reproaches fruitfully. Chriſtians ſhould not think it enough to free themſelves from reproach, but they muſt improve it for good; and to that end ———

1. Conſider what ends God aims at by it, and labour to work them upon our ſelves, that we may attain to thoſe ends.

2. Draw what good inſtructions we can from the reproaches of other, as thus; When I hear men reproach and revile, Oh what a deal of evil is there ſecretly in the heart of man, that is not diſcovered till it have occaſion! Again, do I ſee another ſo vigilant over me to find out any thing in me to reproach me? How vigilant ſhould I be over my ſelf to find out what is in me to humble me?

3. Set upon what duty God calls for at the preſent; the leſs credit I have in this World, the more credit let me deſire after in Heaven; if there be a breach of my name here, let me ſeek to make up my name in Heaven,

4. We muſt bear reproaches joyfully and triumphing- Rom. 5. 3. ly. We glory in Tribulations, ſaid Paul; And if I 2 Cor. 11. 30. muſt needs glory, I will glory in things concerning mine infirmities. By infirmities, we are not (ſay ſome) to underſtand the infirmities of ſin, but his weakneſs and evils that he endureth for Chriſt. Therefore I take pleaſure in infirmities, in reproaches, in neceſſities, in perſecutions, in diſtreſſes for Chriſt's ſake. Hierome 2 Cor. 12. 10. upon that, Bleſſed are you when men ſhall ſpeak evil of you, and revile you; O (ſays he) who would not be Matt.5.11. willing to ſuffer? Who would not wiſh to be proſecuted for righteouſneſs ſake? Who would not deſire to be revi- Hierom. Epiſt. ad Ocean. led? Oh that all the rout of unbelievers would proſecute me for righteouſneſs ſake! I would this fooliſh world would all riſe up againſt me to reproach me. When Chriſt Act. 22. 7, 8. appeared to Saul, he cryed, Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me? Who art thou Lord, anſwered Saul? I am Jeſus of Nazareth, replyed Chriſt. But why Jeſus of Nazareth? Does any good come out of Nazareth? Surely there is ſomething in this; he ſaith not, I am the Son of God, the 2d. Perſon in the Trinity, the King of the Church; no, but I am Jeſus of Nazareth: That was a reproach caſt upon Chriſt, and Chriſt Glories in that. Reproaches are the Enſigns of Heavenly Nobility; Chriſtians therefore ſhould not fear them, but bear them joyfully.

5. We muſt return good for evil, and then we come to the top of Chriſtianity. This is a ſign of great progreſs to Religion; If I be weak (ſaith one) perhaps I may pardon one charging me falſely; but if I have profited, although not altogether perfect, I hold my peace at his reproaches, and anſwer nothing; but if I am perfect, I then bleſs him that reviles me, Ambroſ. offic. l.1. c. 48. according to that of Paul, Being reviled, we bleſs. If we can do thus, if we can heartily pray for our reproachers, and deſire good to them, and ſo heap coals of fire upon them, this is a great ſign of Grace. Bleſs them (ſaith Chriſt) that curſe you, pray for them that deſpightfully uſe you; that ye may be the Children of your Father, &c. Why? Where they Mat. 5. 44, 45. not Children before? Yes, but this declares it, now God owns them for his Children indeed. And thus much of denying our common ends, Profit Pleaſure, and Honour.

Sect. 17. Of the denial of our Very being, our life for Jeſus Chriſt; and firſt of Cautions.

I Have done with the denial of natural-ſelf in regard of well being, I now conſider the denial of natural-ſelf in regard of very being, and ſo it imports our life, together with the faculties and powers of nature, our underſtanding, will, affections, ſenſes, fleſhly members, all within us muſt be captivated to Chriſt, and all without us muſt endure to ſuffer for the Name of Chriſt.

For them we call Faculties or Powers of Nature, as the underſtanding, will, affection, ſenſes, I ſhall diſpatch in a word.

1. The underſtanding muſt be captivated as it hinders from Chriſt. Suppoſe the word of Chriſt be contradicted or check't by way of reaſon or underſtanding, as in the buſineſs of the Trinity, Union of two Natures, Reſurrection of the Body. In this caſe I muſt deny my reaſon, and believe Chriſt; I muſt bow down and worſhip, I muſt captivate my underſtanding to the Obedience of Faith. We ſee by experience, thoſe are ſooneſt brought to Chriſt, who for the moſt part are fooliſh, ſimple, and of weak conceits; whereas thoſe who have been moſt famous for worldly wiſdom and underſtanding, they have been hardly brought to the ſubjection of God's wiſdom and truth. This is that which the Apoſtle doth teach, Not many wiſe, not many mighty are called, &c. 1 Cor. 1. 28. We Preach Chriſt Crucified, unto the Jews a ſtumbling block, and to the Verſe 23. Grecians fooliſhneſs.

2. The Will muſt be renounced in reference to Chriſt. Servants muſt not follow their own will, but their Maſters directions: How much more ought we, who always may juſtly ſuſpect our ſelves, and can never ſuſpect the will of Chriſt, it being the ſquare of right? For therefore is a thing good, and juſt, and equal, becauſe God wills it; hence * our will, if good, yet ſometimes it muſt be denied; but if evil, and contrary to the Will of God, it muſt be ſubdued. It is meet that Hagar ſhould ſtoop to Sarah, our will to Chriſt's will.

* Voluntates non ſolum malas ſed & bonas abnegemus, neq; enim in Chriſto fuerunt niſi bone, & nihilominus cum illas abnegâſſe legimus. Joh. 5. 30. Luke 22. 42. Non mea voluntas, ſed tua fiat

3. Our Affections and Senſes muſt be denied, both as good, and as they are cheriſhers of evil; or opposers of good. This latter is that crucifying of the fleſh, with the luſts and affections, which the Apoſtle Gal. 5. 24. mentions. But all theſe being within the compaſs of natural life, I ſhall only inſiſt on that Self which we call Life. And concerning which (as in the former) I ſhall give the { Cautions.

Directions.

The Cautions are theſe.——

1. That our Being, or Life is in it ſelf the gift of God, and the bleſſing of God. It was God that breathed into man the breath of Life. The Spirit Gen. 2. 7. of God hath made me (ſaith Elihu,) and the breath of Job 33. 4. the Almighty hath given me life. He gives it, for he is the fountain of it. With thee is the fountain of life, and Pſal 36. 9. in thy light ſhall we ſee light. This was the ſumm of Paul's Sermon to the Athenians, he giveth to all, life, and breath, and all things; and to this purpoſe, he cites Aratus one of their Greek Poets, in him we live, and move, and have our being. And as it is the Act. 17. 25. Verſe. 28. gift; ſo it is the bleſſing of God: Hence the promiſe of life, and of long life is made to obedient Children; Exod. 20. 12. and this turned into a Prayer by the believing Parents, it is uſually called by the name of bleſſing.

2. Notwithſtanding it is the Bleſſing of God, yet we muſt deny it for God. As in theſe Caſes.——

1. As a Sacrifice. If God will rather be honoured by Death, than by the Life, by the ſufferings, than by the Services of his Saints, in this caſe we ſhould be willing to ſubmit to God. Thus many of the Martyrs who had opportunity of flight, yet tarried to witneſs the Truth, and gave their lives to the Flames for it. It is not what I, or others may think, that God will be honoured this way or that way; but we ſhould obſerve what is God's Will, and which way God will be honoured: All our intentions and aims at the Glory of God are nothing; God cares not for them, if they be out of his way. It was an excellent reſolution of David, If I ſhall find favour in the eyes of the Lord, 2 Sam. 15. 25, 26. he will bring me back again; but if he thus ſay, I have no delight in thee, Behold here I am, let him do to me as ſeemeth good to him.

2. As Temptation. Thus, rather than Sin, the primitive Chriſtians, when apprehended, choſe willingly to die. We have a notable Story of that 2 Mac. 7. heroical Mother, and her Seven Sons. who rather than they would break God's Law in eating forbidden meats, they died one after another; the Mother in the mean while, being content to ſee them all butchered before her eyes, and laſt of all ſhe dying alſo. Surely life is nothing in compariſon of thoſe glorious inviſible rarities which Sin may hinder us from; and therefore if it be on this condition that we may avoid Sin, that we may be ſure of the main, that by loſing life we may go to Chriſt, in whom we ſhall find with an infinite overplus, whatſoever we can loſe for his ſake; then we muſt deny life it ſelf.

Sect. 18. Of the manner of denying our natural life for Jeſus Chriſt

THe directions of Self-denial in reſpect of our natural being, or life, are theſe.——

1. Apprehend God's Love to our Souls in his Joh. 3. 16. Son: He thought nothing too good for us, God Rom. 5. 8. ſo loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son; and this he did for us, when we were enemies; Nay, God hath not only given us his Son for a Saviour, but he hath given us himſelf for an Husband; now as the Husband loves all in the Family, but gives himſelf to his Wife; ſo God beſtows his Sun to ſhine, and his Rain to fall on the good and bad, but he gives himſelf only to his Saints. O let us apprehend this Love, let us often by ſad and ſolemn Meditation renew the ſenſe of his Love to us in Chriſt, and we cannot but give up all we have, and all we are to God.

2. Get we a Sovereign love to God again. It was from this Soveraign love that thoſe admirable Self-denials of the Martyrs ſprung; we muſt not think they had bodies of braſs, or muſcles of ſteel, or that they were not as ſenſible of torments as others were; Oh no, it was their love to God did ſwallow up all: As the heat of a Feaver ſwallows up the heat of an Ulcer, or as the heat of a Fire ſwallows up the heat of a Feaver; ſo the heat of the Martyrs love to God ſwallowed up the heat of all Fires, together with the heat of all loves to their Wives, Children, Friends, and their own lives. We muſt love the Lord above all, not ſubordinately as a Creature, but ſovereignly as a Creator.

3. Let us cleave to God with ſtedfaſtneſs and reſolvedneſs of ſpirit, come what will come. Thus Barnabas exhorts the Brethren, that with full purpoſe Acts 11. of heart they would cleave to the Lord: Thus Daniel 23. was purpoſed not to defile himſelf with the portion of Dan. 1. 8. the King's meat, though it coſt him his liberty or life. David could ſay, that the Princes ſpake againſt him; Pſal. 119. and the Princes perſecuted him, yet he was reſolved, 23. and his reſolution was as ſtrong as an Oath, I have 161, 106. ſworn, and will perform it, that I will keep thy righteous judgments. This is the nature of Chriſtian reſolution, that it chooſeth that which the Spirit reveals to be good, notwithſtanding all oppoſitions that come betwixt. When credit, and profit, and vain fears put in, and ſuggeſt that the witneſſing of ſuch truths may coſt us our life; Reſolution anſwers all, It matters not ſo I can retain Chriſt; tell me not of the difficulty of the way, only let me know which is the way, I am reſolved to follow the Lamb whitherſoever he calls me; I know there is no threatning ſo terrible as Chriſt's is, no promiſe ſo ſweet as Chriſt's is, no command ſo Holy as Chriſt's is; and therefore I am reſolved to expoſe my ſelf to drink that cup, how bitter ſoever, which my Father ſhall give to drink.

4. Endeavour after a diſpoſition or habit to lay down life for a good Conſcience. It is a true ſaying, that none are ſaved but Martyrs; I mean Martyrs either actually or habitually, having Faith enough to encourage, and love enough to conſtrain them to be Martyrs; if the Honour of their profeſſion ſhould require it. This takes away their objection, who ſay, it is harſh and unſeaſonable to trouble us now with any thorny diſcourſe of Martyrdom. 1. We muſt know that the habit of Martyrdom is included in the moſt fundamental Principles of Chriſtianity, and therefore they deſerve no anſwer, but ſilence, who think a diſcourſe of it at any time harſh and unſeaſonable. 2. The Church never enjoys ſuch a calm, but a terrible ſtorm may unexpectedly daſh it away, and therefore there is no man, though born in the moſt peaceable time of the Goſpel, but e're the glaſs of his life be run out, he may be overtaken with a Fiery Trial. There is no Profeſſor of the Goſpel though he live and die during the publick tranquelity of it, but he may privately be brought to that plunge, that either he muſt hazard his life, or elſe in ſome fearful horrible manner againſt his Conſcience diſhonour Chriſt; as ſuppoſe a Ruffian that had no Religion of his own ſhould pull any one of us into a corner, and with a naked blade, either make us forſwear our Religion, or loſe our Life. 4. As the Prophet Ezekiel forwarned the Jews, We have had miſchief upon miſchief, rumour upon rumour, and if miſchief and rumours continue and multiply upon as faſt as they have done of late, the days may be ſooner upon us than we Eze. 7. 26. are aware, when there may be too much occaſion to Practice this point of Self-denial, and not time to Preach it; howſoever let us ſeek of God for the habit or diſpoſition of it, for that is fundamental.

5. Maintain a godly jealouſie and fear of our own hearts; for want of this, all the Diſciples fainted (eſpecially Peter) and ſhamefully denied Chriſt. Memorable is that ſtory of Pendleton and Sanders; Sanders as fearful he ſhould not endure the fire; Pendleton ſeemed reſolute, Be not fearful (ſaith he to Sanders) for thou ſhalt ſee me and this fat fleſh of mine fry in the fire before I will yield. Yet he that was ſo ſtrong in his own ſtrength fell away, and the other ſo fearful was enabled by God to burn for his truth. To fear Martyrdom, and to pray againſt it with ſubmiſſion to God's Will, is warranted by our Saviour's own example, He prayed earneſtly that if it were poſſible the Cup might paſs away from him; but ſtill with ſubmiſſion to his Father's Pleaſure. That place concerning our Saviour is very remakable, Heb. 5. 7. Who in the days of his fleſh, when he had offered up prayers and ſupplication, with ſtrong cries and tears unto him that was able to ſave him from Death, and was heard in that he feared. Heard? How was he heard? Not in removing the cup from him; but in ſtrengthening him to drink it with victory. If we pray as Chriſt prayed, the cup ſhall be moved from us, or ſweetned unto us.

6. Reſiſt wherein we can fleſhly impediments; for the fleſh will be ready by all means to hinder us from offering this Sacrifice to God. As 1. By diſtinctions. Is a man reſolved to hold his Eſtate, Liberty, Life, come on what will? Such a one never wants a diſtinction to mock God withal: So Gal. 6. 12. the Teachers of Circumciſion at Galatia, as many as deſire to make a fair ſhew in the fleſh, theſe conſtrain you to be circumciſed, only leſt they ſhould ſuffer perſecution for the croſs of Chriſt. They did not ſee, but to avoid perſecution they might preach Circumciſion, being they did it pro abundanti cautela, not to overthrow the faith of Chriſt crucified, but for their ſecurity. Such diſtinctions many uſe at theſe times. 2. By Perſwaſions. Thus carnal reaſon pleads the caſe, give a little to the time, ſave thy ſelf and thine. Or thus: What, are you the only quickſighted men, wiſer than a Church, than a State? May there not, will there not a Law come out in a moment, whereby you may be defranchized or exiled, or baniſhed, Matt. 6. 23. or Burned? But to anſwer theſe reaſonings, remember Chriſt's anſwer to Peter, Get the behind me Satan, for thou ſavoureſt not the things of God, but of men. A certain perſon perſwading another to recant the truth, told him that he ſpake to him out of love, O yes (ſaid the Martyr) I confeſs it, but there is ſomething in you that is mine enemy, meaning the fleſh. And it is ſaid of Maſter Hooper, that when a Box was brought, and laid before him upon a Stool with his Pardon from the Queen in it, if he would recant; he being now at the Stake, at the very ſight of it cried out, If you love my Soul, away with it away with it. 3. By Terrours. Thus when the Spirit of God had ſuggeſted unto Spira to ſuffer, or if he doubted of the iſſue to go away, though never ſo far, rather than deny the Lord of life, preſently the fleſh begun in this manner, Be well adviſed fond man, conſider reaſons on both ſides, and then judge.——— Doſt thou not forſee what miſery this raſhneſs will bring upon thee? Thou ſhalt loſe thy ſubſtance, thou ſhalt undergo the moſt exquiſite torments that malice can deviſe, thou ſhalt be counted an Heretick of all, and thou ſhalt did ſhamefully. What thinkeſt thou of the ſtinking dungeon, the bloody axe, the burning faggot?———Wilt thou bring thy friends into danger? Thou haſt begotten Children, wilt thou now cut their throats? It concerns us in this caſe to outwit the fleſh if it tell us of Priſons, let us tell it how much more terrible is the Priſon of Hell; if it preſent to us the Condemnation of Tribunals, do we preſent to it that great Condemnation of the great Tribunals; if it threaten us with Diſpleaſure of Friends, preſent to it the Diſpleaſure of God, and of Glorified Spirits.

7. Conſider, and peruſe the Acts and Monuments of the Church in the caſe of Martyrdom. Others Sufferings cannot but beget ſome reſolutions in us. And herein if we begin with the beginning of the World; As ſoon as we hear of any work of Religion, we hear of the Perſecution of Abel. Noah's Ark on the waters was a type of the condition of the Church of Chriſt in afflictions; What hard things did Abraham, and the reſt of the Patriarahs endure in their Generations? Hiſtories tells us, that Iſaiah was ſawn aſunder with a wooden Saw; Jeremy was put into a dungeon, ſticking in the mire (as ſome ſtories ſay) even up to the ears, and afterwards was ſtoned to death; Ezekiel was ſlain in Babylon; Micah was thrown down from a ſteep place, and his neck broke; Amos was ſmitten with a club, and ſo brained. The Story of the Perſecutions of the Machabees, propheſied Dan. 11. 36. and recorded by the Dan. 11. 36. Apoſtle Heb. 11. 35. is exceeding lamentable; Heb. 11. 35. to the end. The text ſays that they were tortured, mocked, ſcourged, impriſoned, ſtoned, ſawen aſunder, ſlain with the Sword, wandred up and down in Sheep-skins, and Goat-skins, being deſtitue, afflicted, tormented, they wandred in Deſarts, and Mountains, and Dens, and Caves in the Earth. And for the Chriſtian Church, we know what Chriſt himſelf the great Leader of his people ſuffered: When Stephen, the firſt Chriſtian Martyr was ſtoned, Dorotheus witneſſeth that two thouſand of others which believed in Chriſt were put to Death the ſame day. That many ſuffered in thoſe very times, is plain to me from theſe very Texts, And Saul made havock of the Church.———And Herod Acts 8. 3. vexed the Church.——— Acts 12. 1. Elſe what ſhall they do which are 1 Cor. 15. 29. baptized for the dead, if the dead riſe not at all? Why then are they baptized for the dead? This place is difficult, and many interpretations are given of it; but this I prefer as moſt agreeable to the ſcope of the Apoſtle; Elſe what ſhall they do, (what ſhall become of them, in what miſerable condition were they?) who are baptized (with their own blood, not only ſuffering grievous torments, but even death it ſelf;) for the dead (for the cauſe and quarrels of the dead, for the faith of them that now are dead, and in ſpecial for maintaining this very Article of the Reſurrection of the Dead?) The force of this Argument is very evident, and it well agreeth with the Argument of the Apoſtle that enſueth, Why ſtand Verſe 30, 31, 32. we in jeopardy every hour? I proteſt by our rejoycing which I have in Chriſt, I die daily. And if I have fought with Beaſts of Epheſus after the manner of men, what advantageth it me, if the dead riſe not at all? As for the word baptizing, it is not only ſo taken moſt frequently by the Fathers and Schoolmen, who uſually diſtinguiſh Baptiſm into Baptiſma flaminis, fluminis, & ſanguinis; Of the Spirit, Water, and Blood; but alſo in ſundry places of Scripture, as Mat. 20. 22. Mar. 10. 38, 39. Luke 12. 50. Luke 12. 50. I have a Baptiſm to be baptized with, and how am I ſtraitned till it be accompliſhed? All the Apoſtles after many ſore and grievous afflictions, ſuffered many violent deaths, John only excepted, who yet was baniſhed into Patmos, and by Domitian thrown into a Tun of ſcalding Lead, though by a miracle delivered. Brightman ſpeaking of the Stories of thoſe times, ſays, that every page and leaf is as it were all read-coloured in blood: The Covenant of Grace is a bloody Covenant, both in regard of the blood of Chriſt firſt ſealing it, and the blood of the bleſſed Martyrs adding likewiſe their ſeals in confirming of it.

It is a moſt heart-breaking Meditation to conſider the ragings, madneſs, and fury of the Heathen againſt the Chriſtians in thoſe times. Hierom in an Epiſtle to Cromatius ſays, that there was no day in a whole year, unto which the number of five thouſand Martyrs cannot be aſcribed, except only the firſt day of January. All the policy, wit, ſtrength, and invention of Men and Devils were exerciſed and ſtretched out to the utmoſt, for deviſing the moſt miſerable torments, and exquiſite tortures; as Plates of Iron burning hot, laid upon their naked fleſh; Pincers red-hot pulling of the fleſh from the bones; Bodkins pricking and thruſting all over their bodies; caſting into Limekilnes, and into caldrons of ſcalding Lead; whipping, until almoſt all the fleſh was torn off their bodies and their bones and bowels appeared, and then laid flat upon ſharp ſhells and knives; their skins were flea'd off alive, and then their raw fleſh was rubbed with ſalt and vinegar, their bodies were beaten all over with clubs until their bones and joints were beaten aſunder; they were laid upon gridirons, roſted and and baſted with ſalt and vinegar; one member was pulled from another; by faſtning them to the boughs of trees, they rent their bodies aſunder; they were toſſed upon the horns of Bulls, with their Bowels hanging out; they were caſt among Dogs to be devoured; they were put under the Ice naked into Rivers: They were tortured on the Rack, on the Wheel, and on the Gibbet with flaming fire under them; they made it their ſports to ſee them devoured by wild Beaſts; and in the night inſtead of Torches they burnt the Bodies of the Saints to give them light for their Paſtimes.—— In after-times Antichriſt began to riſe, and to bring a fearful darkneſs over the Face of the Church; of which times the Holy Ghoſt propheſied, the Rev.8.12. Moon, and Sun, and Stars were ſmitten. Never will be forgotten thoſe lamentable extremities that God's poor people then endured, large Volumes are extent, the reading whereof might cauſe the hardeſt Heart that lives to break. O let us warm our Hearts at theſe fires! Let us peruſe and conſider thoſe Acts and Monuments of the Church in the caſe of Martyrdom.

Faith hath the principle work in this. By faith ye keeps from fainting in the time of trouble.

10. When ſufferings come, then ſtir up, and put forth the Grace of Faith in the exerciſe of it! Look up to God for ſtrength and aſſiſtance, commit our ſelves and cauſe wholly to him, plead the promiſe, plead our call that he hath called us to this, plead the cauſe that it is his. Mr. Tindal in a Letter of his to Mr. Fyth who was then in priſon, hath four expreſſions of the work of Faith in the time of ſuffering; If you give your ſelf, caſt your ſelf, yield your ſelf, commit your ſelf wholly and only to your loving Father, then ſhall his power be in you, and make you ſtrong, he ſhall ſet out his Truth by you wonderfully, and work for you above all your Heart can imagine. But becauſe Faith is the root, or principle of Self-denial is this caſe of ſufferings, I ſhall therefore propound two queſtions in the following Paragraphs.

Sect. 1. What are the differences betwixt Faith and Pride of the Heart in ſufferings.

I Anſwer ——

1. If Pride be the principle, a man is ready to put forth himſelf though he be not called: It is true that in ſome extraordinary caſes, a man may have an inward calling by ſome extraordinary motion of God's Spirit, as ſome of the Martyrs had; but in an ordinary way a gracious Heart fears it ſelf, and dares not venture till God calls, it depends more on God's call, than any ſtrength it hath to carry it through.

2. If Pride be the principle, a man cares not for God's name any further than he is intereſted in it; ſhould God uſe others to Honour his Name, and he no way come in, he regards it not.

3. If Pride be the principle, a man doth not ſo much ſtrengthen himſelf with the conſolations of God; or the ſweet of the promiſes, as he doth with his own ſelf-proud thoughts; the Heart is not ſo much taken up with the glorious reward of God in Heaven, as with ſome preſent ſelf-good here: Whereas Faith is altogether for ſpiritual and ſupernatural good, it carries the Soul beyond all preſent things.

4. If Pride be the principle, there is no good got by ſufferings, the Soul doth not thrive under them, it doth not grow in Grace by them, it grows not more Holy, more Heavenly, more Savoury in all the ways of it, the luſtre and beauty of Godlineſs does not encreaſe upon ſuch a one, he is not more Spiritual, he doth not cleave cloſer to God, he is not more frequent with God in ſecret, he doth not enjoy more inward Communion with God than formerly; but if Faith be our principle in ſuffering, there is never ſuch thriving in Grace as then; Then the Spirit of Glory, and of God uſeth to reſt upon God's Servants; a Godly man's Service prepares him for ſufferings, and his ſufferings prepare him for Service: The Church never ſhined brighter in Holineſs than when it was under the greateſt perſecution.

5. If Pride be the principle, there is not that Calmneſs, Meekneſs, Quietneſs, Sweetneſs of Spirit in the carriage of the Soul in ſufferings, as where Faith is; Pride cauſes the Heart to ſwell, to be boyſterous and diſquiet, to be fierce and vexing, becauſe it is croſſed: but Faith brings in the Spirit of Jeſus Chriſt, and that was a quiet and meek Spirit in ſufferings, as the ſheep before the ſhearer; When he was reviled, he reviled not again: Where is reviling and giving ill Language, there is Pride ſtirring in that Heart, Cyprian ſpeaking of the Martyrs contemning Death, ſaith, We ſee not that humble loftineſs, or that Humility is any, but in the Martyrs of Jeſus Chriſt.

Acts 8. 32. 1 Pet. 2. 23.

Cyprian de dup. Martyr.

6. If Pride be the principle, there is joined with that man's ſufferings a deſire of revenge, he would if he could return evil for evil, and doth as far as he dares; but thoſe who have Faith to be their principle, they commit their cauſe to God; though man curſe, they bleſs; they can heartily pray for their perſecutors, as Chriſt and Stephen did for theirs: The banner over a gracious Heart in all the troubles that befal it, is love; and therefore whatſoever the wrongs be that are offered to ſuch there is ſtill a Spirit of Love preſerved in them.

Sect. 2. Wherein lies the Power of Faith to carry us through ſuffering, and Death?

I Anſwer

1. Faith diſcovers the reality of the beauty and excellency of Spiritual things, which before were but looked upon as notions, conceits, and imaginary things; hence Faith is deſcribed to be the ſubſtance of things hoped for, and the evidence, or demonſtration of things not ſeen. The things of Chriſt, of Grace, of Heaven, what poor empty notions were they to the Soul? What uncertain things before Faith came in? But Faith makes them to be glorious things: Faith diſcovers ſuch real certain excellencies in them, and is ſo ſure, that it will venture Soul and Body, it will bear an hardſhip, yea it will venture the infinite loſs of eternity upon them.

Heb. 11. 1.

2. Faith makes the future good of Spiritual and eternal things to be as preſent to the Soul, and works them upon the Heart, as if they did now appear. This comes to paſs becauſe Faith ſees things as the word makes them known, it pitches upon the word in that way that it reveals the mind of God; Now the word ſpeaks often of mercies that are to come as preſent things. Break forth into joy, ſing together, ye waſte places, of Jeruſalem, for the Lord hath comforted his people, he hath redeemed Jeruſalem. Thus the Prophet ſpeaks of the deliverance of the Church from captivity as a thing already done, which was not fulfilled many years after. As ſoon as Jehoſhaphat had received the promiſe, he falls on praiſing the Lord, as if the mercy were already enjoyed, Praiſe ye the Lord, for his mercy endureth for ever. Chriſt ſaith of Abraham that he ſaw, and rejoiced, and was glad, Chriſt's day was unto him as if it had been then. And it is ſaid of the Godly who lived in former ages, that through the promiſes were a far off, to be fulfilled, yet they embraced them. The word in the Original ſignifies, they Saluted them. Now Salutations are not but betwixt friends when they meet together, Faith takes hold upon eternal Life; it takes preſent poſſeſſion of the Glorious things of the Kingdom of God; it makes the Soul to be in Heaven converſing with God, and Chriſt, his Saints, and Angels already: That which is promiſed, faith accounts it given, And the Land which I gave to Abraham, to thee will I give it. It was only promiſed to Abraham, but Abraham's Faith made it to him as given.

John 8. 56.

Heb. 11. 13.

1 Tim. 6. 19.

Gal. 35. 12.

3. Faith makes uſe of things paſt as if they were preſent. 1. It makes uſe of God's mercies to our fore-fathers; thus the Church makes uſe of the mercy of God to Jacob, when he wreſtled with him and prevailed, as if it were a preſent mercy to themſelves. He had power over the Angel and prevailed, he wept and made ſupplication unto him, he found him in Bethel, and there he ſpake with us; not only with Jacob, but with us, q. d. whatſoever mercy God ſhewed to him, we make it ours. God ſpake with us. Thus David and his people did when he ſaid, he turned the Sea into dry Land, they went through the flood on foot, there did we rejoice in him. The comfort of the mercies of God for many years paſt to their fore-fathers they make as theirs, there did we rejoice in him. 2. Faith makes uſe of all the promiſes that God hath made to any of his people though never ſo long ago, yet it fetches out the comfort of thoſe promiſes, as if they were made now to us, Compare Joſh. 1. 5. with Heb. 13. 5. God ſaith to Joſhua, I will be with thee, I will not fail thee, nor forſake thee. This Paul applies to the Believers in his time, as if it had been made to them. Be content (ſaith he) with ſuch things as you have, for he hath ſaid, I will not leave thee, nor forſake thee. Upon this one inſtance, whatſoever promiſe God ever made to any of his people, ſince the beginning of the world for any good, if our condition comes to be the ſame, faith will make it her own, as if God had but now made it to us in particular. 3. Faith makes uſe of God's former dealings with our ſelves. When all ſenſe of God's mercies fails, that God ſeems to be as an enemy, faith will fetch life from his former mercies, as if they were now preſent. I have conſidered the days of old (ſaith David) the years of ancient time, I call to remembrance my ſong in the Night. —— I ſaid, this is my infirmity, but I will remember the years of the right hand of the moſt High; He checks himſelf for doubting of God's mercies becauſe of his former mercies, and he recovers himſelf by bringing to mind the former dealings of God with him. Now in this work of Faith what abundance of ſtrength doth it bring in from former mercies, former promiſes, former dealings? O this muſt needs wonderfully ſtrengthen the Heart to any ſuffering whatſoever.

Pſal. 77. 5, 6, 10.

4. Faith carries the Soul on high, above ſenſe, above reaſon, above the world; when Faith is working, Oh how is the Soul raiſed above the fears and favours of men? I care not (ſaid Ignatius a little before his ſuffering) for any thing viſible or inviſible, ſo that I may get Chriſt; Let Fire, the Croſs, the letting out of Beaſts, breaking of my Bones, tearing of my Members, the grinding of my whole Body, and the Torments of the Devils come upon me, ſo that I may get Chriſt. Faith puts an holy magnanimity upon the Soul, to ſlight and to overlook with an holy contempt, whatſoever the world proffers or threatens: Faith raiſes the Soul to converſe with High and Glorious things, with the deep and eternal Counſels of God, with the Glorious myſteries of the Goſpel, with Communion with God and Jeſus Chriſt, with the great things of Heaven and eternal Life. Men, before faith comes into their Souls, have poor low Spirits, buſied about mean and contemptible things, and therefore every offer of the world prevails with them, and every little danger of ſuffering ſcares them; but when faith comes, there is another manner of Spirit in a man, a Princely Spirit (as Luther calls it) that dares to adventure loſs of life for the name of Chriſt. When Valens the Emperor ſent his officers to Baſil to turn him from the Faith, they firſt offered him great preferment; But Baſil rejected them with ſcorn; Offer theſe things (ſays he) to Children; then they threatned him moſt grievouſly; Heb. 11. 43, 44. Nay threaten ſaid Baſil) your Purple-gallants, that give themſelves to their Pleaſures. What great Spirits did Faith put into thoſe Worthies, who through faith ſubdued Kingdoms ſtopped the mouths of Lions,——— quenched the violence of the Fire, of weak were made ſtrong, &c. Certainly Faith is as Glorious a Grace now as ever it was, and if it be put forth, it will enable the Soul to do great things; the raiſing of the Soul above reaſon and Rom. 4. 18. ſenſe, is as great a thing as any of theſe. The Faith of Abraham was moſt Glorious, for which he is ſtiled the Father of the faithful, and yet the chief thing for which he was commended, is, that he believed againſt hope. When the Soul is in ſome ſtrait, it looks up for ſome help, and ſenſe ſays, it cannot be; reaſon ſays, it will not be; wicked men ſay, it ſhall not be; Yea, it may be God in the ways of his Providence ſeems to go ſo croſs, as if he would not have it to be; yet if Faith have a word for it, it ſays, it ſhall be: Yea, when God ſeems to be angry, when there appears nothing to ſenſe and reaſon but wrath, yet even then Faith hath hold on God's Heart, that his hand cannot ſtrike.

5. Faith gives the Soul an intereſt in God, in Chriſt, in all thoſe Glorious things in the Goſpel, and in the things of eternal Life: Faith is an appropriating, an applying, an uniting Grace; It is a bleſſed thing to have the ſight of God, there is much power in it, but to ſee God in his Glory, as my God; to ſee all the Majeſty, greatneſs and goodneſs of God, as theſe things that my Soul hath an intereſt in; to ſee how the eternal counſels of God wrought for me to make me happy; to ſee Chriſt in whom all fulneſs dwells, in whom the treaſures of all God's Riches are, and all theſe are mine; to ſee Chriſt coming from the Father for me, to be my Redeemer? O what a bleſſed powerful thing is this! What is all the World now to ſuch a Soul? Where is all the bravery of it, or the malice and oppoſition of it? The loſs of outward things, liberty or life are great evils to thoſe who have no intereſt in better, but to ſuch as have intereſt in higher things, there is no great matter though they loſe all theſe.

6. Faith ſets all God's attributes on work for the good and relief of a believer; It is one thing to have intereſt in God and Chriſt, and another thing to have God and Chriſt working for us. I will not deny but God and Chriſt are working ſtill, yet when Faith lies ſtill and is not active, although we do not loſe our intereſts in God, yet we cannot expect ſuch ſenſible manifeſtations of God's workings for us. We have a notable expreſſion of God's ſtirring up his ſtrength and wiſdom for thoſe whoſe 2 Chro. 16. 9. hearts are right with him. The eyes of the Lord run to an fro throughout the Earth to ſhow himſelf ſtrong for thoſe whoſe Heart is perfect towards him. Although we be in the dark and know not how to order our ſteps, yet there is an infinite wiſdom working for us; although we have but a little ſtrength, yet if we have Faith to ſet God's ſtrength on work, Rev. 3. 8. we ſhall (as the Church of Philadelphia) keep God's Word, and not deny his Name. Thus much for the denial of Natural-ſelf.

Sect. 19. Of the denial of religious, gracious, or renewed ſelf; and firſt of Cautions.

I Muſt now direct in the laſt place how we are to deny religious, gracious, or renewed ſelf; as a man's own duties, holineſs, righteouſneſs, the graces of the Spirit. In proſecution of which (as in the former) I ſhall give ſome { Cautions. Directions.

The Cautions are theſe———

Joh. 1. 16. 1. That graces, duties are the ſpecial gifts and Eph. 1. 3. bleſſings of God. It is of the fulneſs of Chriſt, that all we have received, even grace for grace. And the Apoſtle tells us, that God hath bleſſed us with all ſpiritual bleſſings in heavenly places in Chriſt. Methinks here I ſee the tranſcendent excellency of the Saints, the bitterneſs of their condition above all the men of the World; if God hath given a man grace he hath the beſt and chiefeſt of all that which God can give; God hath given us his Son, and God hath given us himſelf, and God hath given us his Spirit, and God hath given us the graces of his Spirit; theſe are the fineſt of the flower, and the honey out of the rock of mercy; they that have this gift need Eph. 1. 3. not to be diſcontented at their own, or envious at the condition of any other; they have the principal verb, the one neceſſary thing. O bleſſed be the God, and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt who hath thus bleſſed us: How? With all ſpiritual bleſſings in heavenly places.

2. Notwithſtanding they are God's ſpecial gifts, yet we muſt deny them comparatively, and in ſome reſpects, as in the Caſes.———

1. In point of Juſtification, in relation to righteouſneſs, in compariſon of Chriſt, in the notion of a Covenant of Life and Salvation. It is a dangerous thing to hang the weight of a Soul upon any thing which hath any mixture of weakneſs, imperfection, or corruption in it, as the pureſt and beſt of all our duties have; it is a dangerous thing to teach, that Jer. 23. 6. Faith, or any other Evangelical Grace, as it is a work done by us, doth juſtifie us: there is nothing to be called our righteouſneſs, but the Lord our righteouſneſs. Faith it ſelf doth not juſtifie habitually, as a thing fixed in us, but inſtrumentally, as that which receives and lets in the righteouſneſs of Chriſt ſhining through it upon us; as the window enlightens by the Sun-beams which it lets in, or as the Cup feeds by the Wine which it conveys. So then in point of juſtification we are to renounce all our duties and graces.

2. In point of Sanctification; For ſo we are to attribute the ſtrength, the power, and the glory of all our graces and duties unto Jeſus Chriſt, and nothing to our ſelves. And yet underſtand we aright, though every believer is thus to deny himſelf in ſpiritual things, even in the point of Sanctification, yet he is not to ſpeak evil of the grace of God within himſelf; he may not miſcall his duties and graces, ſaying, theſe are nothing but the fruits of Hypocriſie, for then he ſhould ſpeak evil of the Spirit, whoſe works they are; neither is he to trample or tread on theſe graces of God. A man tramples and treads upon the dirt, but he will not trample upon Gold or Silver; why? becauſe that is a precious Metal, and the Stamp or Image of the Prince is upon it; Now our duties and graces, our righteouſneſs and holineſs, as to the matter of juſtification, they are nothing worth, and ſo we trample upon all; but as to the matter of Sanctification, they are precious metal, and they have the Image of Chriſt upon them; and therefore for a man to ſay, all this is nothing but Hypocriſie, that is not Self-denial; properly Self-denial in ſpiritual things, as to the matter of Juſtification, it is to renounce all; and as to the matter of Sanctification, it is to attribute the ſtrength, the power, and the glory of all unto Jeſus Chriſt, and nothing to ones ſelf. This is true Self-denial.

Sect. 20. Of the manner of denying our religious, gracious, or renewed ſelf.

THe directions of Self-denial in reſpect of our religious, gracious, or renewed ſelf, are theſe.—

1. Be we ſenſible of, and humbled for our pride in Spiritual things. There is nothing that a Chriſtian is more apt to be proud of than ſpiritual things. Before he takes up profeſſion, poſſibly he is proud of his Clothes, or Friends, or Honours, or Poſſeſſions; but afterwards there is nothing that he is more apt to be proud of than of his Parts, and Gifts, and Graces, and Spiritual things; for look where a man's Excellency lies, there his Pride grows; now the excellency of a Chriſtian lies in Spiritual things, and therefore there is Pride grows, and there he is moſt apt to be Proud. O be we ſenſible of this, and mourn for this! It was Mr. Fox his Speech. As I get good by my Sins, ſo I get hurt by my Graces. It is a dangerous thing to be Proud of man's Duties and Spiritual Gifts, we had better to be Proud of Clothes, or Friends, or Honours; for this Pride of Spiritual things is directly oppoſite to a man's Juſtification. The firſt ſtep to Humility is to ſee ones Pride; the firſt ſtep of Self-Denial is to be convinced of ones inclination or deſire after Self exalting, Self-admiring, Self-advancing. Oh what a Proud Heart have I? what a Self-advancing Heart have I? There is no believer but he hath ſomething of Self; be he never ſo humble, yet he hath ſomething ſtill that taſtes of the Cask; there was never any that was ſo Transformed, Melted, or Changed into the Mould of the Goſpel, but there was ſtill ſome ſavour of Self remaining in him: We had need therefore to be jealous of our ſelves, and to watch over our ſelves; and if at any time Self break out, if at any time the Soul begins to be advanced in regard of Duty, or Spiritual things, let us fall down before God, and humble our Selves for the Pride of our Hearts.

2. Look up, and conſider the Glory, Purity, and Holineſs of God. This conſideration will humble a Soul, and cauſe it to deny it ſelf in Spiritual things. See this in Job; no ſooner had he a great proſpect of the Glory of God, but he denies himſelf concerning his own righteouſneſs, which before he ſtood much upon to his Friends. I know it is ſo of a truth; but how ſhould man be juſt with God? if he will contend with him, he cannot anſwer him one of a thouſand. God's fulneſs will convince us abundantly of our Emptineſs, his Purity will ſhew us our ſpots, his All-ſufficiency our nothingneſs. When Job was brought a little nearer to God, he was more humbled before God. I have heard of thee by the hearing of the Ear, but now mine Eye ſeeth thee. (i. e.) I have a Clearer and moſt Glorious manifeſtation of thee to my Soul than ever: I now perceive thy Power, thy Holineſs, thy Wiſdom, thy Faithfulneſs, thy Goodneſs, as if I ſaw them with my Eye, Wherefore I abhor my ſelf in duſt and aſhes. He could not go lower in his thoughts of himſelf than this expreſſion laid him; abhorrence is a perturbation of the mind ariſing from vehement diſlike, or extreameſt diſeſteem; abhorrence ſtrictly taken is hatred wound up to the height; and to abhor, repenting in duſt and aſhes, is the deepeſt act of abhorrence; Thus low Job goes, not only to a diſlike, but to the fartheſt degree of it; abhorrence of himſelf when he ſaw the Lord. See this in Iſaiah, when God came near him, and he ſaw much of God, then he cried out, Wo is me, for I am undone becauſe I am a man of unclean lips. How knows he that? Why mine eyes have ſeen the King, the Lord of Hoſts. What? Did not Iſaiah know he was a man of polluted lips till then? Yes, but he was never ſo ſenſible of it as then; He ſaw his pollution more than ever by the light of the Glory of God that ſhone round about him; he never ſaw himſelf ſo clearly as when the Majeſty of God dazel'd his Eyes. When the Sun ſhines bright in the Room, we may ſee the leaſt moat in the Air; ſo, when the Glory of God irradiates the Soul, we ſee all the moats and atoms of Sin, the leaſt ſpot, and unevenneſs of our Hearts and Lives.

Job 6.2,3.

Job 42. 5, 6.

Iſa. 6. 5.

3. Have Chriſt in eye. The more we ſee an humble Chriſt, a ſelf-denying Chriſt, the more ſhall we learn Humility and Self-denial. Now Chriſt was the moſt eminent, tranſcendent example of Self-denial that ever was. He thought it no Robbery to be equal with God, and he humbled himſelf and took upon him the form of a Servant. O what Self-denial is here! Was there ever ſuch a Self-denial as this! Chriſtians! Conſider your Chriſt, and the more will you learn to deny your ſelves even in Spiritual things.

Phil. 2. 6, 7.

4. Acknowledge we our ſelves Debtors to Chriſt for all our Gifts, and for all our Graces. Poſſibly a man may wear brave apparel, but he owes for them at ſuch a Shop; whiles he is abroad he Swaggers, and is Proud of his Cloathes; but when he comes into the Shop, and looks upon the Book, and conſiders what he hath to pay, he ſtrikes Sail then: Thus the Goſpel is the great Shop, and from Chriſt in the Goſpel we have all our Gifts and Graces, and though I may be proud in Spirit at another time, yet if I come into the Goſpel, and ſee what an infinite debter I am to Chriſt, and to free Grace for all that ever I have, then I think, What? Shall I be Proud? What? Shall I not deny my ſelf in Spiritual things?

5. Study the Goſpel, and the way of the Goſpel. Where ſhall we ſee an humble Chriſt, but in the Goſpel? Where ſhall we ſee the rich and free Grace of God in Chriſt, but in the Goſpel? Where ſhall we get Faith in Chriſt, but in the Preaching of the Goſpel, and in the ſtudying of the Goſpel? Surely this Grace of Self-denial in Spiritual things grows only in the Garden of the Goſpel; I deny not but there is a common Field Humility, or Self-denial, as I may ſo ſpeak; ſuch a Self-denial, I mean, as grows among the Heathen, and among moral Men; but betwixt that and this we may obſerve theſe differences.

1. Take a moral, civil man, and though he may ſeem to be humble and to deny himſelf, yet he is proud of his humility. A Philoſopher coming into Plato's Houſe, and ſeeing it very neat, I trample upon Plato*'s Pride*, ſaid he. But (ſaid Plato) not without your own Pride. Now a believer doth not only deny himſelf, but he is ſenſible of his own Pride in that very thing wherein he is humbled.

2. Take a moral, civil man, and though he may ſeem to deny himſelf, yet it is but in this or that particular thing; but a Believer denies himſelf in every thing. I count all things but dung and droſs (ſays the Apoſtle) for Jeſus Chriſt.

Phil. 3. 8.

3. Take a moral, civil man, and though he may ſeem to deny himſelf, yet it is but the artifice of his reaſon and reſolution; If I go on in ſuch and ſuch a way (ſays he) I am undone. Hence he denies this pleaſure, and that company. But now a believer denies himſelf in ſpiritual things by the beholding of Jeſus Chriſt.

4. Take a moral, civil man, and though he may ſeem to deny himſelf, yet there is no myſtery in it; but there is ever a great miſtery of Grace in a Believer's Self-denial. As thus, he ever cries, What ſhall I do to be ſaved? And yet he profeſſeth that he doth not expect to be ſaved by his doing, here's a miſtery. Again, he counts himſelf leſs than the leaſt of all God's Mercies, and yet he thinks God hath done more for him than if he had given him all the World; here's a myſtery. Again he looks upon himſelf as the greateſt Sinner, and thinks of every one better than himſelf, and yet when he looks upon a Drunkard, or a Swearer or the like, he profeſſeth that he would not change his condition with ſuch a man for all the World; what a miſtery is this!

5. Take a moral, civil man, and though he may ſeem to deny himſelf in Temporal things, which Devils themſelves may do, yet he cannot, as the Believer, deny himſelf in Spiritual things. One makes mention of a certain Godly Man that was ſore Tempted by Satan in his time, the Godly man was much in Duty, to whom Satan ſaid, Why takeſt thou this pains? Thou doſt Watch, and Faſt, and Pray and Abſtaineſt from the Sins of the times; but O man; what doſt thou more than I do? Art thou no Drunkard, no Adulterer, ſays Satan? No more am I. Doſt thou Watch, and Faſt, ſays Satan? I never Sleep, I never eat nor drank; what doſt thou more than I? I will tell thee, ſaid the Godly Man, I Pray, I ſerve the Lord, I walk Humbly, I deny my Self; Nay then, ſays Satan, thou goeſt beyond me, for I am Proud and I exalt my ſelf, and therefore thou goeſt beyond me. And thus we may difference betwixt true Self-denial and falſe.

6. Reſt not on any thing below Jeſus Chriſt. Neither Grace, nor Duties, nor Holineſs are to be truſted upon. We muſt hold them faſt in Point of Practice and Obedience, but it is our ſin and danger to hold them faſt in reliance and confidence. I deſire to be rightly underſtood in this Truth. Some, becauſe they need not to rely on Duties, they let go their Duties, they let prayer, and repentance, and ſorrow for Sin go; they ſay it is no matter for Duties, they need not to trouble themſelves, Chriſt hath done all. This is to turn the Grace of God into wantonneſs: We muſt let go both our Graces and Duties in point of Juſtification, but hold them we muſt as our lives in the tenour and converſation of our lives; Prayer, Hearing, Faſting, Repenting muſt not die whilſt we live; do them we muſt, but Glory in them we muſt not: We muſt not reſt in any thing whatſoever below Jeſus Chriſt. I ſhall inſtance in theſe particulars.

1. We muſt not reſt upon our own preparations for Duties. It is a commendable thing to prepare our Hearts; we muſt pray that we may pray; we muſt have ſecret Communion with our God, before we come to ſeek Communion with him in a Sermon; but we muſt not reſt upon our own preparation when we have prepared; if we advance that into the throne of Jeſus Chriſt, and reſt upon that when we ſhould only reſt upon him, it is the way to make all our preparations miſcarry.

2. We muſt not reſt upon our enlargements in Duties. It may be we have a Spring-tide of aſſiſtance comes in; a Miniſter preaches with great preſence of the Spirit of God, and a Saint prays (as we find it) in the Holy Ghoſt: (i.) he finds the Holy Spirit of God ſending him from petition to petition, melting him with brokenneſs when he is confeſſing Sin, filling him with rejoycing when he is remembring mercy, raiſing him with an high wing (as it were) of importunity, when he is begging of Favour (as it was an admirable temper in Holy Bradford, that he was not content till he found God coming into his Spirit with ſeveral diſpenſations according to the ſeveral parts of his prayer) and now as ſoon as the Duty is done, it may be he goes away, and ſtroaks himſelf. * Oh what an admirable prayer was here! ſurely I ſhall do well this day, I ſhall be able to wreſtle with all Temptations, this is the very way to miſcarry; thouſands have found it; ſo that when he comes to pray again, it may be he prays moſt dully and flatly, the Spirit is grieved and gone, and he can ſay little or nothing.

* In this caſe I may not only ſay, take heed of reſting in enlargements, but take heed of ſelf! What? are there any ſuch riſings within, Oh what an admirable prayer, &c. Take heed now of pride, ambition, ſelf-ſeeking! One obſerves, that many times the more excellent a Sermon is, the more carnal the heart of a Preacher may be; and the ſtronger invention a private Chriſtan hath in his prayers, the weaker his grace may be. And thoſe expreſſions which ſeem excellent to others, may come from a root very bitter to God; even as in a Meadow full of Graſs and pleaſant Flowers, if you dig to the bottom of them, there is nothing but noiſom earth; ſo if you go to the fountain from whence all theſe expreſſions, and vehement expoſtulations that are uſed in prayer do flow, you may ſee its a poiſoned fountain. As on the other ſide, an heart contrite, and full of grace before God, may not be ſo admirable in expreſſions; as they ſay, the ground full of mines of Gold is very barren for graſs.

3. We muſt not reſt upon the comforts we have in Duty, or after Duty. It may be when we have been at duty, and have had ſome Soul raviſhments, * O, now we think our Neſt is built very high, and our Rock is firm, and we ſhall go on vigorouſly; Chryſoſtom hath a Saying to this purpoſe, Methinks, (ſaith he) a Saint when he comes from a Sacrament, ſhould be able to fly in the face of a Devil, and though he walk in the midſt of ſnares, yet he ſhould be able to encounter with them all. Comforts are very ſweet things, and indeed ſtrengthening things; The joy of the Lord is our ſtrength, ſaith Nehemiah; nothing more animates Souls than joy; only here is the danger, if we reſt on theſe joys and comforts, and the Spirit of God is a moſt choice and tender thing, it dwells in none but a clean pure Temple moſt cleanly ſwept, if any Pride ſpring up in our Hearts, we loſe our comfort.

* Do not go away from a duty rejoycing, becauſe of thy affections or raviſhments meerly in duty; but conſider whether the ground upon which theſe are built be ſolid and enduring.

Neh. 1.10.
Mat. 26.33.
Joh. 21.15, 16, 17.

4. We muſt not reſt upon Graces. This was Peter's fault, he was full of conceit, and Self-confidence; he had Grace, and he wreſted on it, Lord, though all forſake thee, yet will not I; yet ſoon after Peter did forſake and deny his Maſter, and we do not find Peter ſo confident afterwards: When Chriſt ſaid to him, Simon Peter, Loveſt thou me more than theſe? No comparitive words now; no more than Lord, thou knoweſt I love thee. Peter was whipped with Self-confidence, and the woful Fruits of it, and now in a good degree it was purged out of him. Surely it was a leſſon well worth the Learning, though it coſt the whipping. We muſt not reſt on Graces, nor on any thing elſe on this ſide Jeſus Chriſt.

7. Be often putting forth new actings of Faith in Jeſus Chriſt. The more we believe, the more do we deny Religious ſelf. Hence it is that Self-denial in Spiritual things is not to be found in the Law, but in the Goſpel; the Law though it hath its uſe (and we dare not but make uſe of it) yet properly it will not make a man to deny himſelf; but rather to ſeek himſelf in Spiritual things; Obey and live, ſaith the Law, but if thou faileſt in any one point, thou art loſt for ever; in this caſe (if there were no other way) who would deny his own Righteouſneſs? Nay, who would not ſeek to ſave himſelf by his own Righteouſneſs? But now ſays the Goſpel, by works thou canſt not live, but if thou wilt throw down all thy own Righteouſneſs at the feet of Chriſt, and believe on him, and reſt only on him, thou ſhalt be ſaved. O this will make a man to deny his own Righteouſneſs, and to deny himſelf in Spiritual things. Go we therefore to Chriſt, let us maintain believing apprehenſions of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. He alone is the humble Self-denying Perſon that ſeeks Juſtification, not by Works, but by Faith only.

8. Let it be the joy of our Souls to exalt and ſet up Chriſt within our Souls. Though in order to juſtification we muſt deny our Graces, eye Chriſt without us; yet in order to Sanctification we muſt have a care to ſee and feel Chriſt's Kingdom within us, to ſet up Chriſt in our Hearts, and to diſcern him Ruling and Commanding there as a King in his 1 Sam. 11. 12. Throne. And there is true Self-denial in this, for wherever Chriſt Reigns, there Sin goes down. As the people would have all the men put to Death which would not have Saul to Reign over them; ſo doth a true believing Soul Mortifie whatſoever oppoſeth Chriſt's Kingdom, he removeth whatſoever may hinder Chriſt's Spiritual Dominion, he makes all vail and ſtoop for Chriſt's Exaltation within him. O then let Chriſt Reign over all within us, in our underſtandings as a Prophet inlightning us; in our wills as a King commanding us; in our affections as a Prieſt mortifying us; in our loves as a Husband marrying us; let the whole man be ſubject unto whole Chriſt. This is the Character of a true Self-denier; Chriſt Rules within him, he every way ſubjects himſelf to Chriſt, in his underſtanding to know Chriſt, in his will to chooſe and embrace Chriſt, in his thoughts to meditate upon Chriſt, in his fear to ſerve and honour Chriſt, in his Faith to truſt and depend upon Chriſt, in his love to affect Chriſt, in his joy to delight in Chriſt, in his deſire to long after Chriſt, in his endeavours to exalt Chriſt, in all his Duties, Graces, Gifts, Abilities, to make them ſerviceable unto Chriſt: Why this is to attribute the Glory of all our Duties and Graces to Jeſus Chriſt, and nothing to our ſelves. Now is Chriſt all in all; now we truly deny our ſelves, our Sinful-Selves, our Natural ſelves, our Religious-ſelves. Thus much of Self-denial.

CHAP. VI. SECT. I.

Of the Nature of Experiences.

E*Xperience* (ſays ſome) is a knowledge and diſcovery of ſomething by ſenſe not evident in it ſelf but manifeſted by ſome event or effect. This diſcription contains both Natural and Spiritual Experiences; but my purpoſe is to ſpeak only of the latter, and in that reſpect I look ſtrictly at Experiences, as *Real proofs of * Scripture-truths.* When I mark how true every part of God's Word is, how all the Doctrines, Threatnings and Promiſes contained therein; are daily verified in others, and in my own ſelf, and ſo improve or make uſe of them to my own Spiritual advantage, this I call Experience.

* Experience is a ſenſible evidence of God's truth Callings.

Sect. 2. Of the gathering of Experiences.

THat our Experiences may further us in the way to Heaven, we muſt learn, 1. To gather them: 2. To improve them.

1. For the gathering of them, the only way is,——

1. To mark things which fall out; To obſerve the beginnings and events of matters, to eye them every way, on every ſide, that they may ſtand us inſtead for the future: This obſervation and pondering of events, with the cauſes that went Iſa. 42. 23. Pſal. 107. 43. before, is the ripener of wit; Who among you will give ear to this? Who will hearken for the time to come? Whoſo is wiſe, and will obſerve thoſe things, even they ſhall underſtand the loving kindneſs of the Lord.

2. To treaſure up, and lay in theſe obſervations, to have ready in remembrance ſuch works of God as we have known and obſerved. The Philoſopher ſaith, that Experience is multiplex memoria, A multiplied memory, becauſe of the memory of the ſame thing often done, ariſeth Experience: I remem- Pſal. 143. 5. ber the days of old, ſaith David; I remember how thou didſt rebuke Abimelech, and overthrow Nimrod, and Pharaoh, and Ahitophel: And thus would we treaſure up Experiments, the former part of our life would come in to help the latter, and the longer we live, the richer in Faith we ſhould be; even as in Victories every former overthrow of an Enemy, helps to obtain a ſucceeding Victory. This is the uſe of a ſanctified memory, it will loſe nothing that may help in time of need, or in the evil day; it records all the breathings, movings, ſtirrings, workings of a Soul towards Chriſt, or of Chriſt towards a Soul.

3. To caſt theſe things thus marked and laid in under ſeveral Spiritual heads, of Promiſes, Threats, Deceits of the Heart, Subtilties of Satan, Allurements of the World, &c. I might enlarge the Heads into any thing that is good or evil: 1. Into any thing that is good, whether it be God, or the things given us by God; his Spirit, his Counſels, his Ordinances, his Work of Sanctification, and all the Fruits of the Spirit. 2. Into any thing that is evil, whether it be Sin or the Fruits of Sin; as Corruption, Inability to good, Vanity of all the Creatures, the Judgments of God.

Some have given us a Catalogue of the ſeveral ſorts of Experiences, thus; They are either,——

1. Experiences of God's anger and juſtice, and theſe are of notable uſe for inſtruction and caution: it was God's Command oft-times renewed in the Law, that when his wrath was executed upon Sinners, Deut. 13. 11. 17. 13. 19, 20. all Iſrael ſhould ſee, and fear, and do no more ſo wickedly.

2. Experiences of God's Goodneſs, and Love, and they are either,——

1. Experiences of God in a way of common Providence, evidencing what God is to his people in a way of bodily mercy, when they are in ſtraits, to deliver them, in afflictions, to help and ſuccour them, &c.

2. Experiences of God's ſpecial mercy in a way of ſaving Grace, or firſt Grace, evidencing how true God is in his Promiſes to poor, loſt, periſhing Creatures; how ready he is to Pardon ſcarlet Sins, &c.

3. Experiences of God's ſpecial mercies in a way of ſtrengthening Grace; evidencing what God is to poor Creatures labouring under, 1. Strong Corruptions, helping them to overcome them. 2. Strong Temptations, helping them to reſiſt them. 3. Hard and difficult Duties, helping them to go through with them.

4. Experiences of God's ſpecial mercy in a way of quickning Grace: 1. Shining upon the Soul in dark and low Conditions, and chearing it with the light of his Countenance. 2. Enlivening the Soul to ſerve him with alacrity and cheerfulneſs, &c. Thus we muſt ſort our Experiences, as the Apothecary ſorteth his Drugs.

Sect. 3. Of the Improving of Experiences.

2. For the improving of Experiences.

Pſal.116.1. ſtrength of affections: I love the Lord (ſaith David) and why ſo? Becauſe (of this Experience) he hath heard my voice, and my ſupplications.

2. We muſt endeavour to produce that fruit, that frame of Heart, which the Lord requires, directs and looks for in ſuch and ſuch caſes. Thus the Sanctification of Experiences is evidenced by the diſpoſitions anſwering God's mind, which are left upon the Heart, and brought forth in the life afterwards; namely, when Divine diſcoveries are the more ſtrongly believed; the Heart by threats more kindly awed; adherence to the Promiſes more ſtrongly confirmed; the deceitful Heart more narrowly watched; Satans ſuggeſtion more watchfully reſiſted; the bewitchings of the World kept at a greater diſtance from the Soul, in a word, when by this experimental application of God's Works to his Word, God is more advanced and Self more abaſed, the honour of the Lord is more ſtudied, and the edification of his people endeavoured, Holy love encreaſed, Service quickned, Faith ſtrengthned, Chriſt improved; then is this buſineſs Chriſtianly managed indeed. But of theſe more largely in the next Section.

Sect. 4. Of the Sanctification of Experiences in their ſeveral Uſes.

The Sanctification of Experiences is evidenced (as we ſaid) by ſuch Diſpoſitions as theſe: —

1. When Divine diſcoveries are more ſtrongly believed; this is one fruit of Experience, it wonderfully ſtrengthens our Faith: When the Iſraelites ſaw Exod. 14.
the Egyptians drowned, then they believed the Lord, 31.
and his Servant Moſes. When we find all things in the event to be as we believed, this confirms our Faith, as, David knew that God favoured him by his Pſal.41.11.
deliverances.

2. When the heart by threats is more kindly Pſal. 52.6.
awed: This is another Fruit of Experience, The righteous alſo ſhall ſee and fear; firſt ſee, and then fear: When the Primitive Chriſtians ſaw Ananias Acts 5. 5. fall down and give up the Ghoſt, then great fear came on them that heard thoſe things; this holy fear many a time poſſeſſeth the Saints: My fleſh trembled for fear Pſal. 119.
of thee (ſaith David) and I am afraid of thy judgements. 120.
—— When I heard, my belly trembled Hab. 3.16.
(ſaith Habakkuk) my lips quivered at the voice;
rottenneſs entred into my bones, and I trembled in my ſelf that I might reſt in the day of trouble: As the Child quaketh when he ſeeth his Father correct a Servant, ſo the Faithful tremble when they obſerve the ſeverity of God's wrath againſt impenitent Sinners.

3. When the deceitful Heart is more narrowly watched: Hath it cozened us once and again? Experience hereof will breed in us a Godly jealouſie and ſuſpition over our Hearts; we are now conſcious of our own weakneſs, and of the ſnare that is in every Creature, to take and entangle us; and this will make waking Believers circumſpect and careful, how they entertain evil motions, how they keep up holy thoughts, how they perform, holy Duties, how their affections move towards that which is above, leſt they ſhould miſcarry upon the ſands.

4. When Satan's ſuggeſtions are more watchfully reſiſted, this is the voice of Experience in ſuch a caſe, Doth Satan furiouſly aſſail us? Be not diſmayed;
Are his Temptations moſt fierce? Be we moſt diligent in the means of Grace, the Practice of Holineſs, the Labours of an honeſt Calling; Pray earneſtly, Exerciſe Faith, ſtick faſter to the word of Promiſe, ſtop our ears againſt ſcruples and doubtings, Draw nigh to God, for Satan will then ceaſe to vex thee with his Temptations any more: Reſiſt the Devil, and he will fly from you: Jam. 4.7.
It is true, the Believer is too weak of himſelf to withſtand the leaſt aſſault, but if we relie on the Lord, we may through his power be made victorious in the greateſt aſſaults whatſoever; and here is the comfort of Experience, That a Soul having once returned with victory, through the power of his might, He will abide in the ſecret place of the moſt high for ever.

5. When the bewitchings of the World are kept at a great diſtance from the Soul: This was Solomon's caſe and cure, after all his Travels and great Delights, he no ſooner returns as to himſelf, but he fills the World with this news; What news; Vanity. And what more; Vanity of vanities; Eccleſ.1.2. And what more? All is Vanity: Experience of its vanity weans him from the Love of this Earth, it takes him off the Creature, and lifts him unto the Lord his Creator; ſo ſhould we (if ever we were charmed with ſuch Syren Songs) be more careful, leſt we be drawn away with the pleaſing delights of things tranſitory, and keep them at a greater diſtance from us.

6. When the Lord Jeſus is more ſtudied and advanced: The man that feels Chriſt's gracious Power and Vertue will be ſure to exalt Chriſt, and ſet him up on high; when Iſrael ſaw the mighty work of David in the overthrowing Goliah, then David was much ſet by: The Believers experience of Chriſt's mighty and gracious working, makes Chriſt very precious to him, then he 2 Sam. 18. 3. cries as the Souldiers of David, Thou art worth ten Thouſands of us: Hence it is that God's people value him above all their profits, friends, eaſe, credit and lives. Matthew left the Recept of Cuſtom, James and John their Ships, and Nets, and Father, Rev.12.11. and followed him; Yea many for his ſake loved not their lives unto Death; no wonder, for they had many ſweet experiences of Chriſt: Chriſt to their apprehenſion was the faireſt of ten Thouſand; none but Chriſt, none but Chriſt.

7. When the peoples edification is endeavoured: Have we taſted of the goodneſs of God? Let us then provoke others to believe, and to ſerve the Lord together with us; this is one end of Experience, and that uſe we ſhould make of it towards others. When Gideon heard the telling of the dream, and the interpretation thereof, he worſhipped, and turned into the Hoſt of Iſrael; and ſaid, Judg.7.15. Ariſe, for the Lord hath delivered the Hoſt of Midian into your hands.

8. When a man's own ſelf is more abaſed: Do we live the life of Grace and true Holineſs? This Luk. 9.23. will teach us to deny our ſelves wholly: If any man (ſaith Chriſt) will come after me, let him deny himſelf; q. d. If any man will come after me in the knowledge of my Will, in the belief of my promiſes, in the love of my Truth, in the obedience of my Precepts, let him deny himſelf, let him lay aſide his own wiſdom, his own will, his own imagination, his own affections, his own ends, as baſe and unworthy marks to be aimed at: Let him deny himſelf; whatſoever is of himſelf, or belonging to himſelf, as a corrupt and carnal man; let him go out of himſelf, that he may come to me; let him empty himſelf of himſelf, that he may be capable of me, that I may rule and reign in him, and that he may wholly ſubject himſelf to me and my ſervice: This the Apoſtle ſtiles, A living not unto our ſelves, 2Cor.5.15. but unto him that died for us; he alone underſtands, and hath experience of the end of Chriſt's death, that makes Chriſt's Glory the end of his life, and lives not to himſelf, but to Chriſt.

9. When holy love is more encreaſed: I love the Lord becauſe he hath heard my voice and my ſup- Pſa.116.1. plication: We cannot taſte of the Lord, but we Pſa. 34. 8. muſt have an hearty love to the Lord: Will you Cant. 2. 5. hear the voice of Experience? 'Tis this, O taſte, and ſee how good the Lord is; and then, O ſtay me with flaggons, and comfort me with Apples, for I am ſick of Love, ſuch a one truly affects Chriſt and all that follow Chriſt; ſuch a one loves the perſon of Chriſt, without his Priviledges, a naked Chriſt, as well as a Chriſt cloathed with all his Robes, in all his Glory and reſplendent Beauty, Chriſt in a Priſon, as well as Chriſt in a Throne: Thus John (after all his Experiences of Chriſt's Love to him) could love Chriſt on the Croſs, when other forſook him, as well as in the Temple, when he was working miracles.

10. When hope is quickned, ſuch times may come, that death and darkneſs may ſurround us; and we may grovel in the duſt; But here is our comfort, That tribulation worketh patience, and patience experience, and experience hope: Rom. 5. 4. Have we any Experience of God's gracious dealings with us in former times? Have we ſometimes been refreſhed by his hand? Hath he ſometimes helped us? Was he found of us when we ſought him? Nay, often unſought for? Hath he come to our Souls, and renewed our ſtock, and filled our becalmed Spirits with freſh gales of Grace? How ſhould we then but hope: As it was in this reſpect, it is and ever ſhall be? If new Temptations ariſe, and new Luſts break in and ſpoil, it is the voyage of Experince. 2 Tim. 4. 17, 18. I was delivered out of the mouth of the Lion, and the Lord ſhall deliver me from every evil work, and will preſerve me unto his Heavenly Kingdom, to whom be Glory and Dominion for ever and ever—— and We had the 2 Cor. 1. 9, 20. ſentence of Death in our ſelves, that we ſhould not truſt in our ſelves but in God which raiſeth the Dead, who delivered us from ſo great a Death, and doth deliver us, in whom we truſt he will yet deliver us.

11. When joys of the Spirit are raiſed and ſtirred up: Who is he that hath not been delivered out of ſome miſerable exigents? And if we have, we may well ſay with David, Thou haſt ſhewed me Pſal. 71. 10, 21. great troubles and adverſities, but thou wilt return and receive me, and wilt come again and take me up from the depth of the Earth, and comfort me: Former comforts are as a bill obligatory under God's hand, to aſſure us that he will not forſake us: Whom God John13.1. loves, he loves unto the end. —— Becauſe thou haſt Pſal. 63.7. been my help, therefore in the ſhaddow of thy wings will I rejoice.

12. When Faith is more and more ſtrengthened, Experiences ſhould be turned into Confidences: Thus David improved his Experiences, The Lord that 1 Sam. 17. 36, 37. delivered me out of the paw of the Lion, and out of the paw of the Bear, he will deliver me out of the hand of this Philiſtine: In like manner ſhould we take notice of God's dealings, and after we have once tried him and his truth, let us truſt him for the future; Tried Truth, and tried Faith unto it, ſweetly agree, and anſwer one another. Hence it is that Experience of God's love, ſhould refreſh our Faith upon any freſh onſet; So let all thine enemies periſh (ſaid Deborah, the heart of that bleſſed woman was enlarged, Judg 5.31. as it were Prophetically) when one falls, they ſhall all fall; there is the like reaſon, So let all thine Enemies periſh, O Lord. Experience in our ſelves or others, will inlarge our Faith to look for greater matters ſtill from our gracious powerful God: Hath the Lord given us a victory over the Philiſtines? then Awake, awake Deborah, awake, and be enlarged, O my faith! Every new Experience is a new knowledge of God, and ſhould fit us for new encounters: I deny not but we ought to truſt God upon other grounds, though we had never tried him; but when he helps our Faith by former Experiences, this ſhould ſtrengthen our confidence and ſhore up our Spirits, and put us on to go more cheerfully to God, as to a tried Friend. It was the Speech of one eminent in holineſs, upon occaſion of the accompliſhment of a great requeſt made to God by him, I have tried God often, now I will truſt him indeed. If we were read in the Story of our own lives, we might have a Divinity of our own, drawn out of the obſervation of God's particular dealings towards us: 2 Tim. 1. 12. we might ſay, This and this truth I dare venture upon, I have found it true, I dare build all my happineſs upon it; as Paul, I know whom I have truſted, and I am perſwaded he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him againſt that day; q. d. I have tried him, he never yet failed me, I am now to ſeek how faithful he is to all thoſe that are his.

13. When ſcruples and doubts are removed, O (cries the ſoul) how may I know that my Experiences of God's goodneſs are true Experiences. 1. If thy Experiences be but the counterpares to promi- Pſal 48. 8. ſes, it is a ſign they are true Experiences. As we have heard, ſo have we ſeen in the City of our God. Experiences are falſe when they do not anſwer promiſes, as face anſwers face in a glaſs; whoſoever hath an Experience of God's goodneſs, hath alſo an Experience of God's truth: Experiences of this ſort, are but the fulfillings of promiſes; it is an ill thing, very ill hearing, to hear wretches talk of Experiences, how much of God they have found in this or that way, ſince they left ordinances, and gaped for revelations, &c. When as poſſibly the perſons are ſo notoriouſly vile and licentious, that they plainly evidence, never did any promiſe belong to them: and as promiſes were never made to ſuch perſons, ſo they were never made to ſuch ways; but now if thy Experiences anſwer thy promiſes; if thou haſt found, after long ſeeking and waiting, that God is good to thoſe that ſeek him, this now is a ſweet, and probably a true Experience, otherwiſe not.

2. Soul-Experiences manifeſted in inward diſpenſations, are rather to be truſted to, and builded upon for true Experiences, than outward Experiences manifeſted in external providences; the reaſon is plain, becauſe outward mercies may come, and ordinarily do come in a way of common providence, and there muſt muſt be many notable circumſtances to evince a ſpecial love in the diſpenſation of them. Solomon after a diligent obſervation of it, Eccl. 2,15. ſaw, that as it hapned to the fool, ſo it hapned to him in this life, and therefore determines that from outward events here, there could be no judgment made what the man was; therefore I ſay, inward Diſpenſations, and Soul-Experiences are more to be truſted to, than outward Providences, for Experiences of God's goodneſs; yet even in theſe there may be cheats; the Devil, and our own baſe hearts which are deceitful above all things, may cry peace, peace, when there is no peace, and ſo put off the ſoul with a cheat and deluſion, inſtead of a true peace. True Experiences of God's goodneſs are ſtrong foundations, they are rare things, and of very rare uſe, but they are rarely found: yet thou mayſt know further whether thy Experiences be true either by conſidering the way how thou gotteſt them, or by conſidering the fruit and effect of them.

For the firſt obſerve. 1. If by the application of ſome word to thy ſoul thou at any time procuredſt to thy ſelf peace, this was a true Experience, Pſal. 119. 18. Jerem. 15. 16. 2. If it hath been obtained after much prayer, this was a true Experience, 1 Sam. 1.

For the ſecond, obſerve. 1. If thy former Experiences have increaſed lively hope in thee, it is a ſign they have been true, Rom. 5. 4. 2. If thy Experiences have increaſed thy Faith and confidence in God, they were true Experiences, Pſal. 27. 2, 3. 4. If after an Experience of the goodneſs of God towards thee, thou feeleſt thy heart warmed with more love to God and thy ſelf more quickned to an holy and cloſe Converſation, this looks like a David's Experience, Pſalm 116. 1, 9, 12, 14, 18.

O but (cries the Soul) I have had, I ſuppoſe, many of theſe Experiences, but no comfort as yet. Thus David after the remembrance of his Songs in the Night, left his Soul ſtill in doubt; and he goes on to ſay, Will the Lord caſt off for ever? And will Pſal. 77.7. he be favourable no more? In this caſe it is the duty of Chriſtians, to call to mind their former Experiences of Faith and Joy again and again; for though they comfort not at one time, yet they may at another. Have we found a Promiſe (which is a breaſt of Conſolation) milkleſs? Yet again ſuck, Comfort may come in the end: If after we have impannell'd a Jury and Grand-Inqueſt to ſearch, and our firſt Verdict Condemns, or they bring in an Ignoramus; yet do, as wiſe Judges often do, ſend them about it again, they may find it the next time: Jonah Jonah 2.4. look'd once, it ſeems, and found no comfort, for he ſaid, I will look again towards thine Holy Temple: So ſome have look'd over their Hearts by ſigns at one time, and have to their thinking found nothing but Hypocriſie, Unbelief, Hardneſs, Self-ſeeking, &c. but not long after, examining their Hearts again by the ſame ſigns, they have eſpied the Image of God drawn fairly upon the Tables of their Hearts, and ſo found a world of comfort.

O but (cries the Soul!) I have toſſed and tumbled over my Heart; I have ſearched into the Regiſters and Records of God's dealings, and methinks, I can call nothing into remembrance betwixt God and me: What nothing? Look again: Did God never ſpeak peace to our Hearts? Did Chriſt never ſhed his love abroad into our Souls? Have we at no time found in our Heart pure ſtrains of Love to Chriſt; pure drops of Godly ſorrow for offending Chriſt? Have we never an old tried Evidence, which hath been acknowledged and confirmed again and again in open Court? What not one? Surely, if we can now call to mind but one, if in truth, it may ſupport us: If one promiſe do belong to us, all do: For every one conveys whole Chriſt, in whom all the promiſes are made, and who is the matter of them: As in the Sacrament, the Bread conveys whole Chriſt, and the Wine conveys whole Chriſt: So in the Word, every promiſe conveys whole Chriſt: If we can but ſay as the Church of Epheſus, Rev. 2. 3. This thing I have, that I hate ſin: We may plead this to God, yea though it be in leſſer degree, if in truth and ſincerity (ſee in the duty of Self trial) if it be true Gold, though never ſo little of it, it will paſs current with him: He will not quench the ſmoaking flax, Iſai. 42. 3. though it be but a ſmoak, not a flame; though it be but as a week in the ſocket, (as it is in the Original) likelier to die and go out than to continue, which we uſe to throw away, yet he will not quench it, but accept it. O let us comfort our ſelves with theſe words!

O but (cries the ſoul again!) I have ſearched all creviſes for light, but Alas, I cannot ſee the leaſt beam of it: What help now remains? If it be thus, poor Soul, Be not faithleſs, but believing. Chriſt helps ſome to live above Glorious Manifeſtations, ; ſometimes in abſence of theſe Manifeſtations Juſt ones may live and rejoice in the inviſible Eſſence of God: Chriſtians may live waiting on God, when his face is wholly hid from them; or Chriſtians may live depending on God, when all other ſubordinate ſtays or helps are loſt: In ſuch a Soul there may be this reſolution, Let God do what he will with me, I'le hang on him ſtill, Though he kill me, yet will I truſt in him, and there is comfort in this.

If ſo (ſaith the Soul) then what need of Experiences, ſo long as I have the Promiſes, and may live by Faith? O but for all this, be not careleſs of Experiences:

periences: For 1. It is the goodneſs of God, that beſides the Promiſes of good things to come, he is pleaſed to give us ſome preſent evidence and taſte of what we believe: This heightens his mercy, that beſides Faith, he ſhould train up his Children by daily renewed Experiences of his Fatherly care. 2. Though it be one thing to live by Faith, another thing to live by ſight, yet the more we ſee, and feel, and taſte of God, the more we ſhall be lead to relie on him, for that which as yet we neither ſee nor feel; This is the very meaning of God, that by that which we feel, we might be ſtrengthned in that we look for.

Sect. 5. The conſideration of Experiences in a practical courſe, or ſome practical Rules to be obſerved.

IT were good for Chriſtians, intending the practical part, to obſerve theſe or the like Rules.

{ Some Cautionary.
{ Some Directory.

1. The cautionary Rules may be theſe: ——

1. In gathering Experiences, Beware of miſpriſion of God's Providences. There are many miſtakes now adays, and therefore it is our beſt and only courſe, for our ſecurity, to interpret all God's works out of his Word: We muſt make the Scriptures [as we ſaid before] a conſtruing book to the Book of God's Providences: Judge neither better of proſperity, nor worſe of adverſity, than God's Word warrants us. This was the Pſalmiſt's cure, his Experience put a Probatum eſt to this preſcription, When I thought to know this, it was too painful for me, until I went into the Sanctuary of God, then underſtood I their end: God may proſper a wicked man, and he may conſtrue this as an Argument, and note it as an Experience of God's gracious dealing with him, and dear love unto him: O take heed! To the Law and to the Teſtimony, if they ſpeak not according to this Word, it is becauſe there is no light in them.

Pſal. 17. 16, 37.

Iſa. 8. 20.

2. In improving Experiences, obſerve theſe cautionary Rules. 1. Beware how we argue from one Experience to another; Judgments threatned, are not always inflicted after one and the ſame manner; God meets with the wicked ſometimes in this life, and ſometimes he reſerves their plagues for another. In like manner the gracious Providences of God are not always diſpenſed after one and the ſame manner; indeed David could ſay, The Lord that delivered me out of the paw of the Lyon, and out of the paw of the Bear, he will deliver me out of the hand of this Philiſtin; and Paul could ſay, I was delivered out of the mouth of the Lion, and the Lord ſhall deliver me from every evil work: And ſo we may ſay, that God many times hath delivered us, and doth deliver us, and therefore that he will deliver us ſtill: But this, manner of arguing, as it is demonſtrative, ſo he hath ſome limitations, which we muſt carefully take notice of; as ——

1 Sam. 17. 36, 37.

2 Tim. 4. 17, 18.

1. That beſides a meer Providence, we take notice of ſome Promiſe of God on which we build: Thus Paul, delivered from death at one time, argued that God would deliver him at another time; but in his arguing he eyes the Promiſe, he hangs on God, which (ſaith he) raiſeth the Dead.

2 Cor. 1. 9. 10.

2. That we conſider the manner of the Promiſe; becauſe,

1. Some Promiſes are disjunctive; as when God in his mercy conveys any thing to us either in particular, or in the equivalent, by way of Commutation and Compenſation with Spiritual things. Thus a Chriſtian's Experience works Hope, but not always of the ſelf-ſame outward iſſue, and manner of deliverance out of his trouble, which he hath before-time found; No, we muſt hope according to the word, or according to the quality of the Promiſe: Paul's hope (after Experience of many deliverances) was not expreſly or peremptorily, that the prick in his fleſh ſhould be removed, but that God's grace ſhould be ſufficient, and ſo he had the fruit of his former Experience, becauſe he obtained an equivalent ſupply, but not otherwiſe.

Rom. 5. 4.

2. Some Promiſes are conditional in reſpect of us; as when God promiſeth protection from Contagious Sickneſs, and from Trouble, and War: If my people, which are called by my Name ſhall humble themſelves, and pray, and ſeek my face, and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from Heaven, and will forgive their Sin, and will heal their Land. In theſe or the like promiſes, God may give us the Experience of his Word at one time, but deny it another; becauſe we fail in the condition of the Promiſe on our parts. Obſerve Chriſtians! Would we conclude a deliverance as formerly, be ſure then to look to the frame and diſpoſition of our Spirits: If we are in the way of the Promiſe, then we may conclude it for certain; if we meet God in the courſe of his Providence, or in the improvement of the means he hath appointed, then we may ſet it down, That God will do whatſoever he hath promiſed to give, in his own way, or otherwiſe not.

2 Chron. 7. 15.

3. Some Promiſes are indefinite; as (that in Jam. 5. 14, 15. Is any ſick among you? Let him call for the Elders of the Church, and let them pray over him: ——And the prayer of Faith ſhall ſave the Sick, and the Lord ſhall raiſe him up: In this caſe God may ſometimes, yet doth not always perform promiſe according to the letter, though a man may be truly qualified with the conditions ſpecified in that Promiſe, toties quoties, again and again. It only intends thus much; That God may, and ſometimes will ſave the Sick, and raiſe him up at the Churches prayers, but he will not ever do ſo. Now as God doth not always perform, ſo neither are we abſolutely, or infallibly, or univerſally to conclude! the Promiſe is not univerſal, but indefinite, and accordingly our Concluſions ſhould not be univerſal, but indefinite: We ſhould indeed, becauſe of the Promiſe, adventure our ſelves upon God in ſuch a condition, not knowing but in his outward diſpenſations he may make it good to us, yet with ſubmiſſion to his pleaſure, if otherwiſe he diſpoſe of us: And as this is all we muſt do, ſo this is all we can ſay, or conclude in ſuch a caſe as this is.

Jam. 5. 14. 15.

2. Beware how we receive comfort in an evil day from our own or others Experiences. No queſtion comfort is the iſſue of bleſſed Experiences which ariſe from God's love or goodneſs; but how far I may take comfort is a queſtion: And concerning the Latitude of the comfort of Experiences, we had need to enter a Caveat; For ——

1. If thou art not a Saint, thou canſt not take Comfort from a Saint's Experiences, there is no ſtrength in this Argument; God did thus once to his own Children, and therefore he will do thus to me that am a Child of the Devil. You cannot thus argue amongſt men, ſuch a Father gave his Children a Portion, therefore he will give mine a Portion; there is no reaſon for it.

2. If thou beeſt a Saint, one that fears the Lord, yet thou canſt not ſtretch ſuch Experiences, as were, 1. Miraculous: 2. Or, Such as the Servants of God have had upon particular engagements: Or, 3. Any other Experience in reſpect of circumſtances, to build up comfort to thy ſelf from the hope of the like: As, ſuppoſe thou wert condemned by Perſecutors to a Den of Lions, or to a fiery Furnace, here thou haſt Daniel's and the three Childrens Experience to Comfort thee, but thou canſt not comfort thy ſelf thus: Or, ſuppoſe thou art ſick unto the death, and a Phyſitian or a Prophet tells thee, ſet thy houſe in order for thou ſhall die and not live; here thou haſt Hezekiah's Experience to comfort thee, to whom a particular promiſe was made; but thou canſt not comfort thy ſelf thus: Or, ſuppoſe at ſuch a time thou waſt in affliction, and thou criedſt unto the Lord, and within ſo many days he delivered thee, or in ſuch a manner he delivered thee; Here is an Experience of ſuch and ſuch circumſtances to comfort thee, but thou canſt not comfort thy ſelf thus; The reaſon is plain, becauſe God is no where tied to circumſtances; God hath ſeveral wiſe ends why he delivers one Chriſtian this way, another that way; why ſome of his Saints have but an hour, others a year of Temptation; ſome but a nights Darkneſs, others many nights lie amongſt the pots.

In what manner then may I draw comfort from theſe bleſſed Experiences?

I anſwer thus, and thus far.———

1. Thou mayſt from theſe Experiences gather this knowledge, that in ſuch, or the like ſtraits, God taketh care for his people, God will not give thee up to an affliction; and for this thou haſt general promiſes, He careth for you. 1 Pet. 5.7.

2. Thou mayeſt from theſe Experiences learn this for thy comfort, that God will do good for his ſervants in an evil day; his care ſhall not be an idle care; he will not only caſt a providential eye upon them, but he will do good unto them, all things ſhall work together for the good of them that love God. Rom. 8.28.

3. Thou mayeſt from theſe Experiences take this comfort to thy ſelf, that the ſame God that before hath ſhewed thee, or others mercy in delivering thee, or them out of a trial of affliction, will alſo one way or other deliver thee, or them out of affliction, or from the evil of affliction, either by Life or by Death, and this is all we can ſay, or conclude in this caſe.

2. The Directory-rules may be theſe.———

1. Let us communicate our own Experiences to the good of others. David in his deliverances invites others to have recourſe unto him. Bring my Soul out of Priſon, that I may praiſe thy Name, then ſhall the Righteous compaſs me about when thou ſhalt deal bountifully with me. Conceal not within our boſoms thoſe things, the communicating whereof may tend to publick profit; ſurely it were a courſe much tending to the quickning of the Faith of all, if we would impart to one another our mutual Experiences.

2. Let us trade others Experiences to our own particular profit. Thus David in deſertion hath recourſe to God's gracious dealings with his forefathers, Our fathers truſted in thee; they truſted, and thou didſt deliver them; they cryed unto thee, and were delivered; they truſted in thee, and were not confounded. Pſal. 22.4, 5. What favour God ſhewed to any one, he will vouchſafe to every one that ſeeketh him diligently, if it may be for his good. Thus we find in Scripture that ſometimes a perſonal Experience was improved to an univerſal advantage, James 5. 11. Heb. 13. 5, 6.

Let us above all mind the Experiences of God's ſpecial Mercy in a way of Saving Grace; and from thence we may for our comfort fetch concluſions for the conferring of all Grace. If we can ſay, the Lord hath called us out of darkneſs into marvelous light, then we may conclude that the Lord will ſanctifie us, and ſtrengthen, and quicken, and eſtabliſh us, and keep us to the end: for this we have a warrant from the Apoſtle. But God commends his love to us-ward, in that while we were yet ſinners, Chriſt died for us, much more now being juſtified by his blood we ſhall be ſaved from wrath through him; for if when we were enemies we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more being reconciled we ſhall be ſaved by his Life, Rom. 5. 8, 9.

4. Let us caſt our Experiences under ſeveral heads, and make the word and works face one another, and anſwer one to another; or to make the work compleat, it were not amiſs to diſtribute the frame into three Columns; and in the firſt to ſet down Experiences, in the ſecond the Texts, in the third Diſpoſitions anſwering God's Mind, in ſuch and ſuch a caſe, to be left on the heart afterwards.

5. Let us pray with fervency (whenever we ſet a time apart to view over our Experiences) that thoſe Diſpoſitions anſwering God's mind in every particular Experiences may be written in our hearts, and brought forth in our life afterwards. This will be the chief uſe and choice comfort of the Soul in this duty. And this Method a poor Creature and Servant of Chriſt hath followed in his own particular practice; whereof I ſhall give you a taſte in the following Section.

SECT. VI.

The Experiences of a weak Chriſtian, caſt into the Method propounded.

SECT. 1. God's anger and juſtice againſt ſinners.

Experiences.	Texts.	Diſpoſitions required in this caſe, and to be prayed for.
1643. F*Eb.* 6. Preſton was taken by the Parliaments Forces, ſeveral Papiſts Slain in it, ſome naturally of a good diſpoſition; and therefore many mourned for their untimely death, but rejoyced in the accompliſhment of the Promiſe.	Rev. 16. 6, 7. They have ſhed the blood of Saints, and thou haſt given them blood to Drink. Even ſo Lord God Almighty, true and righteous are thy judgments. Rev. 19. 2. He hath judged the great Whore, which did corrupt the earth with her Fornication, &c.	Rev. 18. 4. Come out of her my People that ye be not partakers of her ſins, and that ye receive not of her plagues. Rev. 18. 20. Rejoyce over her thou Heaven, and ye holy Apoſtles and Prophets, for God hath avenged you on her.

1648.	Texts.	Diſpoſitions, &c.
Octo. 29. This day a Souldier was ſlain in Preſton, in the open Fair, and not long after, another Souldier was ſlain in the very act of drunkenneſs; it is reported that he was drunk the night before, and that he threatned that very Morning before Night, either to kill or to be killed.	Gal. 5. 19, 20, 21. Now the works of the fleſh are manifeſt, which are theſe; Hatred, Variance, Emulations, Wrath, Strife, Seditions, Hereſies, Envyings, Murthers, Drunkenneſs, Revellings, and ſuch like. Rom. 1. 29, 30. God gave them over to a reprobate mind, to do things which are not convenient.— Being full of Envy, Murther, Debate.	Gal. 5. 16. Walk in the Spirit, and ye ſhall not fulfill the luſts of fleſh. Gal. 5. 24. They that are Chriſts have crucified the fleſh, with the affections and luſts. 1 Cor. 6. 20. Ye are bought with a price, therefore glorifie God in your Body, and in your Spirit, which are Gods.

SECT. 2. God's love to the Saints.

Experiences. 1641.	Texts.	Diſpoſitions required in this caſe, and to be prayed for.
MAy 20. This day the Lord caſt one into a ſpiritual, heavenly, raviſhing love-trance; he taſted the goodneſs of God, the very ſweetneſs of Chriſt, and was filled with the joyes of the Spirit above meaſure. O it was a good day, a bleſſed foretaſte of Heaven, a love token of Chriſt to the Soul, a kiſs of his mouth whoſe love is better than Wine.	Cant. 2. 3. I ſat down under his ſhadow with great delight, and his fruit was ſweet to my taſte. 2 Cor. 7. 4. I am fill'd with comfort, I am exceeding joyful in all our tribulation. Acts 13. 52. And they were fill'd with joy, and with the Holy Ghoſt. Rev. 2. 17. I will give him to eat of the hidden Manna, and I will give him a white ſtone, and in the ſtone a new name written, which none knoweth but he that receiveth.	1 Pet. 1. 8. Whom having not ſeen, ye love; in whom, though now ye ſee him not, yet believing ye rejoyce with joy unſpeakable, and full of glory. Rev. 22. 17, 20. And the Spirit and the Bride ſay, come; and let him that heareth ſay, come; and let him that is a thirſt, come: —— He which teſtifieth theſe things ſaith, Surely I come quickly. Amen. Even ſo come Lord Jeſus.

1647.	Texts.	Diſpoſitions, &c.
July 1. This day R. M. lying on his deaths-bed was filled with the comforts of the Spirit, and ſweet aſſurance of faith; at laſt drawing nearer his end, he proclaimed God's goodneſs, and ſweetneſs, and mercy, which were his laſt words; and after in the midſt of our Prayers, he gave up the Ghoſt.	Pſal. 116. 15. Precious in the ſight of the Lord is the death of his Saints. Revel. 14. 13. And I heard a voice from Heaven, ſaying unto me, write, Bleſſed are the dead which dye in the Lord from henceforth, yea ſaith the Spirit, that they may reſt from their labours, and their works do follow them.	Deut. 32. 29. O that they were wiſe, that they underſtooſt this, that they would conſider their latter end. Job 14. 14. All the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come. Revel. 22. 20. Surely I come quickly, Amen. Even ſo come Lord Jeſus.

SECT. 3. Several Chaſtiſements or Afflictions on my Self and others.

Experiences. 1648.	Texts.	Diſpoſitions, &c.
JAn. 24. One had a grieved and troubled Heart, by reaſon of ſome oppoſition of wicked people: At night he read a feeling paſſage of Mr. Rogers on Judges 13. thus; ——I have often thought it God's mercy to keep the knowledge of ſuch diſcouragements from them that are to enter into the Miniſtry, leſt they ſhould be deterred wholly from it, till by Experience they be armed againſt it.	John 15. 20. Remember the word that I have ſaid unto you, The Servant is not greater than the Lord, if they have perſecuted me, they will alſo perſecute you. 1 Cor. 4. 13. We are made as the filth of the World, and are as the off ſcouring of all things unto this day. Pſal. 69. 20. Reproach hath broken my Heart, and I am full of Heavineſs, &c.	Mat. 5. 12. Rejoyce and be exceeding glad, for great is your reward in Heaven: For ſo perſecuted they the Prophets which were before you. Mat. 5. 44. Pray for them which deſpitefully uſe you, and perſecute you. Rom. 8. 35. Who ſhall ſeparate us from the love of Chriſt? Shall tribulation or diſtreſs, or perſecution? &c. Rom. 12. 14. Bleſs them which perſecute you: Bleſs and curſe not.

SECT. 4. Performances of gracious Promiſes to my ſelf and others.

Experiences.	Texts.	Diſpoſitions, &c.
1642. JAn. 6. This day a private Faſt being obſerved, the Lord gave ſome that Exerciſed, the very Spirit and power of Prayer, to the raviſhment of hearers: Surely it was the Spirit ſpake in them; Chriſt manifeſting his preſence in thoſe very inlargements; To him only be the Glory.	Zech. 12. 10. And I will pour upon the houſe of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jeruſalem the Spirit of Grace and of Supplications. Rom. 8. 26. Likewiſe the Spirit alſo helpeth our infirmities, — it maketh interceſſion for us, with groanings which cannot be uttered.	Jer. 29. 12, 13. Then ſhall ye call upon me, and ye ſhall go and pray unto me, and I will hearken unto you; and ye ſhall ſeek me, and find me, when ye ſhall ſearch for me with all your Heart. Jer. 31. 9. They ſhall come with weeping, and with ſupplications will I lead them.

Experiences.	Texts.	Diſpoſitions, &c.
1647. MArch 27. Ones heart was over-powered, and exceedingly troubled with the cares of this Life. O baſe world, how doſt thou vex them that intermeddle with thee?	Eccleſ. 1. 2, 14. Vanity of vanities, ſaith the Preacher, vanity of vanities, all is vanity; —— Behold, all is vanity and vexation of Spirit. Mat. 13. 22. The care of this World, and the deceitfulneſs of Riches choak the Word.	Luke 21. 34. Take heed to your ſelves, leſt at any time your Hearts be overcharged with — the cares of this Life. 1 John 5. 4. This is the victory that overcometh the World; even our Faith.

Experiences.	Texts.	Diſpoſitions, &c.
1648. April 4. and 17. A poor creature in the night was fearfully troubled in his dreams with Devils and Torments and Satan's power over his Soul; he apprehended ſtrongly that Satan was with him, and very buſie to enſnare him, which at his very firſt awaking ſtruck him with trembling and horror of heart.	2 Cor. 2. 11. We are not ignorant of his devices. Epheſ. 6. 11. — Of the wiles of the devil: —— Revel. 2. 14. Of the depths of Satan. —— 1 Theſ. 3. 5. By ſome means the tempter hath tempted you. 1 Pet. 5. 8. Your adverſary the Devil as a roaring Lyon, walketh about, ſeeking whom to devour.	Eph. 6. 11. Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to ſtand againſt the wiles of the Devil. Jam. 4. 7. Reſiſt the Devil, and he will flee from you. 1 Pet. 5. 9. Whom reſiſt ſtedfaſt in the faith. 2 Pet. 2. 9. The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations. Eph. 6. 16. Above all take the ſhield of Faith, wherewith ye ſhall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked.

Experiencies.	Texts.	Diſpoſitions, &c.
1647. MArch 27. A poor ſoul being mightily inſnared with the world, and finding by experience its vanity and vexation, he reſolved againſt it; deſiring thenceforth piouſly to make his ſoul to rejoyce in God's bleſſings and his own labours, and to give himſelf to the Lord wholly for the remainder of his days: This deſire he makes at the feet of Chriſt.	Eccleſ. 2. 14. & 3. 22. & 5. 19. There is nothing better, than that a man ſhould rejoyce in his own works, for that is his portion. Every man alſo to whom God hath given riches, and wealth, and hath given him power to eat thereof, and to take his portion, and to rejoyce in his labour, this is the gift of God. Surely he will not much remember the days of his life, becauſe God anſwereth the joy of his Heart.	Philip. 4. 11. I have learned in whatſoever ſtate I am, therewith to be content. 1 Tim. 6. 8. And having food and raiment, let us be therewith content. 1 Tim. 6. 17, 18, 19. Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not high-minded, nor truſt in uncertain riches, but in the living God, —— that they be rich in good works, ready to diſtribute.

Experencies.

Experiences.	Texts.	Diſpoſitions, &c.
1648. March 6. This night in his ſleep a troubled ſoul was by Satan tempted to ſin, but the Lord ſtood by him, put prayers into him though aſleep, whereby he overcame the temptation; then awaking, he deeply apprehended Satan's approach and buſie temptations; it ſtruck him into fears, but praſing God for his aſſiſtance he received boldneſs, and then ſlept again.	2 Cor. 12. 7, 8, 9. There was given to me a thorn in the fleſh:—— for this thing I beſought the Lord thrice that it might depart from me; and he ſaid unto me, my grace is ſufficient for thee, for my ſtrength is made perfect in weakneſs. Rom. 7. 24, 25. O wretched man that I am, who ſhall deliver me from the body of this death. I thank God through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord.	1 Cor. 15. 57. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the Victory through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. 2 Cor. 12. 9. Moſt gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Chriſt may reſt upon me. Jam. 4. 5, 6. The ſpirit that dwelleth in us luſteth to envy: but he giveth more grace.

SECT. 7. Obſervations of God's Providences.

Experiences.	Texts.	Diſpoſitions, &c.
1648. MArch 1. This day one muſing on God's Providences, he occaſionally took up a Book, and read in it, that the Recording of Providences is not the leaſt portion of God's Praiſe, of our Duty, of Poſterity's patrimony.	Job 5. 27. Lo, this we have ſearched, ſo it is, hear thou it, and know it for thy good. Job 42. 5. I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear, but now mine eye ſeeth thee. Iſai. 40. 28. Knoweſt thou not, or haſt thou not heard that the everlaſting God, the Lord hath created the ends of the earth? &c.	Pſal. 34. 8, 9. O taſte and ſee that the Lord is good; bleſſed is the man that truſteth in him: fear the Lord ye his Saints. Pſal. 48. 8, 9. As we have heard, ſo have we ſeen in the city of the Lord:—— we have thought of thy loving kindneſs, O God.

SECT. 8. The breathings of the Spirit in others and my own Soul.

Experiences.	Texts.	Diſpoſitions, &c.
1648. MAy 7. This day one felt many ſweet impreſſions of God's Spirit in his heart, ſometimes melting, and ſometimes chearing his ſoul in the publick Ordinances of the Word and Sacraments: This could not but be the breathings of Chriſt.	Cant. 1. 5. I am come into my garden, my ſiſter, my ſpouſe I have gathered my mirrhe with my ſpice; I have eaten my honey-comb with my honey, I have drunken my wine with my milk. Pſal. 19. 9, 10. The judgments of the Lord are truth —more to be deſired than gold, yea than fine gold, ſweeter alſo than honey and the honey-comb.	Pſal. 89. 12. Bleſſed is the people that know the joyful ſound, they ſhall walk, O Lord, in the light of thy countenance. Cant. 5. 1. Eat, O friends, drink, yea drink abundantly, O beloved. Jer. 15. 16. Thy word was unto me the joy, and rejoycing of my heart.

SECT. 9. The withdrawings of Chriſt from the Soul.

Experiences.	Texts.	Diſpoſitions, &c.
1648. JUly 1. or thereabouts. One gave me a Relation of her ſad deſertion, thus:——That one night as ſhe ſate by the fire, ſhe thought ſhe ſaw the ground open, and a gulf of fire appearing; whereupon ſhe cryed, I am damned, I am damned: If at any time ſhe ſaw any fire, ſhe ſuppoſed that ſhe muſt go into it, and that the devils would fetch her into it. Once wringing her hands, ſhe cried out, O what was I born into the World, for? one ſtanding by, anſwer'd to glorifie God; to whom ſhe reply'd, you ſay true, for God ſhall be glorified in my damnation: If any offered to pray, or to read, ſhe uſually cryed out, it was too late to pray for her; and they ſhould not read that pure Word of God by her, for it belonged not to her. At laſt God appeared and ſhe felt marvelous comforts.	Job. 13. 24, 26. Wherefore hideſt thou thy face, and holdeſt me for thy enemy? Thou writeſt bitter things againſt me. Pſal. 88. 14, 15, 16, 18. Lord, why caſteſt thou off my Soul? Why hideſt thou thy face from me? I am afflicted and ready to die.—While I ſuffer thy terrors I am diſtracted, thy fierce wrath goeth over me, thy terrors have cut me off.——Lover and friend haſt thou put far from me, and mine acquaintance into darkneſs. Prov. 11. 14. The Spirit of a man will ſuſtain his infirmity, but a wounded Spirit who can bear? Iſai. 54. 8. In a little wrath I hid my face from thee for a moment, but with everlaſting kindneſs will I have Mercy on thee, ſaith the Lord thy Redeemer.	Pſal. 77. 5, 6, 7, 10. I have conſidered the days of old, the years of ancient times: I call to remembrance my Song in the night, I commune with my own Heart, and my Spirit makes diligent ſearch; will the Lord caſt off for ever, and will he be favourable no more? And I ſaid, This is my Infirmity. Iſai. 50. 10. Who is among you that feareth the Lord, that obeyeth the voice of his Servant that walketh in darkneſs and hath no light? Let him truſt in the Name of the Lord and ſtay upon his God. 2 Cor. 12. 8, 9. For this thing I beſought the Lord thrice that it might depart from me, and he ſaid unto me, My Grace is ſufficient for thee.

SECT. 10. Deceits of the heart beguiling.

Experiences.	Texts.	Diſpoſitions, &c.
1648. Octob. 24. One thus took notice of the ſlipperineſs of his heart in the very act of performance: Sometimes it ſlily ſteals away after idle and wandring imaginations: ſometimes it lets in baſe thoughts of praiſe, vain-glory, &c. ſometimes it raiſeth up many good and holy motions, meditations, deſires and affections, which yet are nothing to the preſent performance; and therefore come not from the Spirit of Grace, but from Satan. O cheating cozening heart.	Jer. 17. 9. The heart is deceitful above all things, and deſperately wicked, who can know it? Rom. 7. 21, 22, 23. I find then a Law, that when I would do good evil is preſent with me: for I delight in the law of God after the inward man; but I ſee another law in my Members, warring againſt the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of ſin which is in my members.	Gen. 15. 11. And when the fowls came down upon the carkaſſes, Abraham drove them away. Mat. 26. 41. Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation; the Spirit indeed is willing but the fleſh is weak. Rom. 7. 24, 25. O wretched man that I am! who ſhall deliver me from the body of this death? I thank God through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord: So then, with my mind I my ſelf ſerve the Law of God, but with my fleſh the law of ſin. 1 Pet. 4. 7. Be ye therefore ſober and watch unto Prayer.

I had gathered many more Experiences, but that all offence (though but taken,) may be removed, let theſe ſuffice. Onely for his own private uſe let the Chriſtian Reader add theſe, which I look upon as the moſt conſiderable of all the reſt.

SECT. 11. Saving grace, or firſt grace to poor periſhing Creatures.

SECT. 12. Quickning grace, either ſhining on the Soul in a dark condition, or enlivening the ſoul to ſerve God cheerfully.

SECT. 13. Strengthning grace, either overcoming corruptions, or reſiſting temptations, or going through hard and difficult duties.

CHAP. VII. SECT. I.

Of the Nature of Evidences.

THE Scriptures ſet out the ways of diſcovering things Spiritual, by ſight and by taſte, By taſte, Experience is meant; and by ſight, Faith and aſſurance of faith is intended: Peter ſpeaks of taſting that the Lord is gracious; and Moſes by faith ſaw him which is inviſible: David joins both together, O taſte and ſee that the Lord is good: Bleſſed is the man that truſteth in him. (1 Pet. 2. 3. Heb. 11. 27. Pſal. 34. 8.) We have done with taſting, the next is ſeeing, which I call Aſſurance, or Evidence: Would we know what theſe Evidences are? (1 Joh. 2 3.) I look at them as inherent and habitual obſervations of the Spirits actings in the Soul; or as gracious acts within us, declaring our intereſts to pardon and life, and yet ſo as they manifeſt this only by the Light of the Spirit; of which the beloved Apoſtle ſpeaks ſo often, Hereby we know that we know him, if we keep his Commandments.——We know that we have paſſed from Death unto Life, becauſe we love the Brethren:—— By this we know that ye love the Children of God, when ye love God and keep his Commandments.—Theſe things have I written unto you that ye believe on the Name of the Son of God, that ye may know that ye have eternal life; (1 John 3. 14. and 5. 2. and 5. 13.) and the Apoſtle Paul, Now we have received not the Spirit of the World; but the Spirit which is of God, that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God. (1 Cor. 2. 12.)

Sect. II. Of the gathering of Evidences.

NOw for Evidences, it is our duty
- 1. To gather them.
- 2. To keep them.
- 3. To improve them.

1. For the gathering of them, obſerve we
- 1. A right ſeaſon.
- 2. The right way.

1. Seaſons muſt be obſerved; for when thick miſts ſurround us, and black clouds cover us, we cannot ſo well judge either of our ſelves, or of our own concernments. David in deſertion refuſed to be comforted; (Pſal. 77. 2.) he ſpilt all the cordials and phyſick that was brought him, he was not only void of comfort, but refuſeth it: What? Bring me promiſes (will a Soul then ſay) you may as well carry them to one in Hell; What? Are theſe the evidences of God's love? I ſee no ſuch thing, here's nothing but ſcruples, and doubts, add flaws: O how apt is ſuch a one at ſuch a * time, to forſake his own mercy, (Jonah 2. 8.) to take Satan's part, to plead againſt his own title, his own intereſt, in the beſt things he can have intereſt in: Now therefore, if we will draw a Book of Evidences, it is good to obſerve times, and ſuch precious opportunities of comforts and refreſhings as God vouchſafeth unto us.

* At ſuch a time the proper duty of a godly man is to throw himſelf boldly upon the promiſe, as in exigences Job ſaid, (though he kill me yet will I truſt in him,) David called upon his Soul to truſt in God, and to wait on God: It was no time for Evidences.

2. The right way muſt be obſerved, and that conſiſts.——

In eying
- 1. The precious promiſes of Chriſt.
- 2. The inward graces unto which thoſe promiſes are made.
- 3. The truth of thoſe graces written in our Hearts.
- 4. The teſtimony of the Spirit witneſſing with our ſpirits that we are the Children of God.

1. We muſt eye the precious Promiſes, and yet not ſo as that we muſt cloſe with them, or reſt on them alone, without ſeeking for, or cloſing with Chriſt in thoſe promiſes; the Promiſe is but the Casket, and Chriſt the Jewel in it; the Promiſe is but the field, and Chriſt the Pearl hid in it, and to be chiefly look'd at; the Promiſes are the means by which we are aſſured, not the things on which we are to reſt; it were folly for a man to think he hath an intereſt in an Heireſs Lands, becauſe by ſome means or other he hath got the writings of her Eſtate into his hands; all know that the intereſt of the Lands goes with her perſon, and with relation of marriage to her, otherwiſe without a title to her ſelf, all the writings may juſtly be fetched out of his hands again; ſo it is with the Promiſes, they hang all upon Chriſt, and without him there is no intereſt to be had in them.

2. We muſt eye the inward graces to which the promiſes are made, not that we muſt be too much carried away with the ſigns of Chriſt in our hearts, and not after Chriſt himſelf; as pleaſures that are lawful in themſelves may be unlawfully uſed, when our thoughts and intentions are too long, or too frequent, or to vehement in them, ſo as to dead the Heart either to the preſent delighting in God, or purſuing after him with the joint ſtrength of our Souls, as our only chiefeſt good; ſo an immoderate recourſe unto ſigns (barely conſidered as ſuch) is as unwarrantable, when thereby we are diverted, and taken off from a more conſtant actual exerciſe of daily thoughts of Faith towards Chriſt immediately, as he is ſet forth to be our Righteouſneſs and yet the minds of many are ſo wholly taken up with their own Hearts, that, as the Pſalmiſt ſays of God, Chriſt is ſcarce in all their thoughts: Let theſe conſider, what diſhonour this will be to Chriſt, that his train and favourites (our Graces) ſhould have a fuller court, and more frequent attendance for our Hearts than himſelf, who is the King of Glory: Now to rectifie this error, the way is not wholly to reject all uſes of ſuch Evidences, but to order them rightly, as thus, ———

1. Let not the uſe of Graces go before, but follow after an addreſs of Faith renewed, and acts of Faith firſt put forth upon Chriſt himſelf: Thus, whereſoever we would go down into our own Hearts, and take a view of our Graces, let us be ſure firſt to look wholly out of our ſelves unto Chriſt, as our Juſtification, and to cloſe with him immediately, as if we had no preſent or by paſt Grace to evidence our being in him; and if then (whiles Faith is thus immediately claſping about Chriſt) we find either preſent or fore-paſt Graces coming in, as handmaids, to attend and witneſs to the truth of this adherence unto Chriſt, this will derogate nothing from Chriſt's honour, or the Doctrine of Free-grace.

2. Let us in the cloſure of all, begin a freſh to act Faith upon Chriſt immediately, with redoubled ſtrength; as Faith ſhould give a leading to the uſe of Graces, ſo the ſight of our Graces ſhould be as a back-door to let Faith in again, to converſe with Chriſt: Even as at the Sacrament, the Elements of Bread and Wine, are but outward ſigns to bring Chriſt and the Heart together, and then Faith lets the outward Elements go, and cloſeth and treats immediately with Chriſt: So Grace is an inward ſign, and whiles men make uſe of it, only as of a bare ſign to let them come into Chriſt, and their rejoycing is not in it originally, but in Chriſt; There confidence is not upon it, but upon Chriſt; There is no danger at all in making ſuch uſe of ſigns, for thus we make our Graces ſubordinate and ſubſervient to Faith, whileſt it makes Chriſt its Alpha and Omega, The beginning and the end of all. I know it is ſtrongly objected againſt Chriſtians, That many forget, and ſeldom uſe an intire, immediate cloſe with Chriſt, whileſt in the mean time the ſtream of their moſt conſtant thoughts and deepeſt intentions are ever running upon their Graces, and the gracious workings thereof in Duties towards Chriſt: Others on the contrary run all on Chriſt, deſpiſing the Graces of the Spirit, becauſe (ſay they) Chriſt is all in all to them, ſo that if we ask ſuch, Have you any Grace, change of Heart, &c? Tuſh, what do you tell them of Repentance, Holineſs, &c? They have Chriſt, and that is ſufficient; they have the ſubſtance, and what ſhall they now do with ſhadows of Ordinances, Duties, Graces? They have all in Chriſt, what ſhould they look for Evidences, from any Graces inherent in themſelves? O let thoſe mourn over themſelves, that have with much affection been ſeeking after Chriſt's Benefits, peace of Conſcience, holineſs of Heart and Life, but have not ſought firſt and laſt to embrace, and have the perſon of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt himſelf; and let ſuch tremble, who in advancing Chriſt himſelf, and Free-grace, will needs aboliſh and deſpiſe thoſe Heavenly Graces which flow from him unto all the Elect; The Law of God is written on the Heart of Chriſt, Heb. 10. 7. and if ever he wraps us up in the Covenant of Grace, He will not write his Law in our Hearts alſo, Heb. 8. 10. The right way for both, is to order their Evidences aright, and by this courſe Graces will have their due, and the life of Faith will ſtill be actually maintained and kept upon wing, in it's full ure and exerciſe towards Chriſt alone for Juſtification.

Queſt. Why would not ſome men have Grace or Sanctification an Evidence?

Anſw. In ſome it ariſeth from their luſts, which they have a mind to live quietly in, deſirous to keep their peace, and yet unwilling to forſake their luſts; and hence they exclude this Witneſs of water or Sanctification, to teſtifie in the Court of Conſcience; in others, I think, it doth not ariſe for want of Grace, but becauſe the Spirit of Grace and Sanctification runs very low in them; it can ſpeak little, and that little very darkly and obſcurely for them, therefore they have no great mind that it ſhould be brought in as any witneſs for them; others I think may have much Grace, yet for a time they caſt it by, as an Evidence unto them, becauſe they have Experience how difficult and troubleſome it is to find this Evidence, and when 'tis found, how troubleſome to read it, and keep it fair, and thereby to have conſtant peace and quietneſs. And hence ariſe thoſe ſpeeches, Why do you look to your Sanctification? It is a blotted Evidence, you may have it to day, and loſe it to morrow, and then where is your peace? Theſe men, becauſe they feel not that meaſure of Sanctification they would, do therefore vilifie and deny that they have, becauſe they feel a Law of ſin in their members, leading them away captive, therefore they will not take notice of the Law of their minds, whereby that inner man delights in the Law of God, and mourns bitterly under the Body of Death; by which they might ſee with Paul, That there is no Condemnation to ſuch, Rom. 8. 1. But I ſhall propoſe one thing to Conſcience; Suppoſe thou wert now lying on thy Death-bed, comforting thy ſelf in thy elected and juſtified eſtate: Suppoſe the Spirit of God ſhould now grapple with thy Conſcience, and tell thee, If thou art juſtified, then art thou ſanctified, ſee thoſe Texts in the margent. Is it thus with thee? What wilt thou anſwer? If thou ſayeſt, Thou art not ſanctified, the Word and Spirit will bear witneſs againſt thee, and ſay, Thou art not then juſtified: If thou ſayeſt. Thou kneweſt not, thou lookeſt not to Sanctification, or the fruits of the Spirit; they will reply, How then canſt thou know or ſay thou art elected or juſtified? For it is a truth as clear as the Sun, None are juſtified, but they are ſanctified, and if they are not ſanctified, they are not juſtified: O bleſs God for any little meaſure of Sanctification, ſo it be in ſincerity: Do not ſcorn or ſecretly deſpiſe this Spirit of Grace, knowing that without it thou ſhalt periſh, but if thou haſt it, thou haſt an Evidence of thy part in Chriſt; ſurely Grace is the Image of Chriſt ſtamped upon the Soul, and they, who reflecting upon the Souls ſee the Image of Chriſt there, may be ſure that Chriſt is theirs, Chriſt hath given all himſelf to thoſe, to whom he hath given this part of himſelf; upon the view of thy Evidences ſay, all theſe great and Heavenly things could not be in my Soul were not Chriſt and his Spirit there: This rich and glorious furniture could not be in my Soul, were not the King of Glory there: The Flowers of this Garden would not ſmell ſo ſweetly, did not the wind blow upon them.

Acts 26.10.
Tit. 3.5,7.

3. We muſt eye the truth of thoſe Graces thus written in our Hearts: There is a great deal of counterfeit Grace in the World; a true Chriſtian can have nothing, as diſcernable to others, but an Hypocrite may have and do for the outward ſemblance as much as he; it is good therefore to try the truth of our Graces, and herein the riſe, manner, and end of our Motions carry much manifeſtation in them. But of this more largely in the Duties of Self-Examination, and Receiving of the Lord's Supper. —— Only in this place, I think it moſt ſuitable to add a little further, concerning this truth of Graces, As ——

1. There is, and may be truth of Grace, though not perfection of Grace; and hence it is that we may have infallible aſſurance, but for any perfect certainty in degree, it cannot be attained in this life, one arguing againſt univerſal obedience as an Evidence, becauſe no man could perform it, or if it ſhould be limited to purpoſe of Heart, yet none hath ſuch a conſtant purpoſe, becauſe of many corrupt ſuggeſtions and concuſſions within, by luſts; herein he ſhewed his error; for we look not for perfection of Grace, but only for truth; the leaſt Grace diſcovered in the Soul that is ſincere and upright, though it be not Grace to ſatisfie the deſire of a Chriſtian, yet it ought to be a ſure Evidence to confirm his judgment of his intereſt in Chriſt. It is obſerved, that many of God's Children make many ſad wounds for themſelves, in it diſtinguiſhing between the truth and Eſſence of Grace, and the degrees of Grace; whereas the Scripture makes them bleſſed that hunger and thirſt; yea, it doth often deſcribe the Godly by their deſires, and ſeeking of his face; now this error is the more faſtned upon them, becauſe when they read in Books of the nature and property of any Grace, they are not able to find it in ſuch a vigorous and powerful manner in themſelves, whereas they ought to know, it is one thing to ſpeak of Grace in Idea, in ſe, in it's own nature and definition, another thing to ſpeak of it as in ſubjecto, as the ſubject partakes of it; for ſo it is much debilitated. We do not argue aſſurance from perfection of Grace, from a full and perfect obedience unto God's Law; but only from the truth and ſincerity of Grace, with many defects that are waſhed away by Chriſt's Blood.

Dr. Criſp in his Sermon of inherent qualifications.

2. The Scripture attributes Bleſſedneſs and Salvation to ſeveral Graces; and we cannot deny, but that all the Graces to which thoſe Promiſes are annexed, are good and proper Evidences; Thus ſometimes fear of God, ſometimes poverty of Spirit, ſometimes hungering and thirſting after Righteouſneſs, ſometimes Repentance, ſometimes Love, ſometimes Patience, ſometimes Faith, is a ſign or Evidehce. And if a Godly man can find any one of theſe, or the like in himſelf in truth or ſincerity, he may conclude of his Salvation and Juſtification, though he cannot ſee all theſe in himſelf, and many times the people of God perceive one Evidence in themſelves, when they cannot ſee another; in this caſe ſuppoſe Doubts and Temptations ariſe about the truth of this or that Evidence, yet I may argue from that which is more known, to that which is leſs known; I may proceed from thoſe that are more facile, to thoſe that are more difficult: If I can but ſay, here is one Evidence in truth and ſincerity, I may aſſuredly gather all the reſt are there, becauſe of the harmony and connexion of Graces.

3. As Faith is the root of all other Graces, and ſo in ſome ſenſe more hidden than they are, as the root of the Tree is more hidden in the Earth than the Body or the Branches; yet if we conſider Faith as an inward Grace planted in our Hearts, as well as any other Sanctifying Grace which Springs therefrom; and as the condition of the Covenant expreſſed directly in the conditional promiſes, all other Graces being only brought in as accompanying Faith, and flowing from Faith, Faith ſhewing it ſelf by them; in theſe reſpects there cannot be a more direct, certain, and infallible Evidence than Faith. This is ſo ſure away of trial, that the Apoſtle himſelf directs us thereunto, prove your ſelves whether ye be in the Faith. If we would know our ſelves to be ſuch as are not ἀδόκιμοι, to be diſallowed or rejected, there is no better way to know it than by our Faith; a weak believer inquiring how he may know that he ſhall be ſaved, the Apoſtle anſwers his doubt, not by aſcending or deſcending hither or thither, but by looking to his Faith, for if thou believeſt with thine heart in the Lord Jeſus, thou ſhalt be ſaved.

2 Cor. 13. 5.
Rom. 10. 9.

Object. But the eſpecial Act of Faith is to look wholly out of our ſelves unto Chriſt, as if we had no Grace within us: And the reaſon why ſome miſlike Evidences is, becauſe Chriſt without us is no more looked upon.

Anſw. The Soul of Man hath two kinds of acts or workings; the former are direct acts, ſuch as go immediately to their object; as when by Faith I take Chriſt, and adhere to him; the latter are reflex acts, which are only in reaſonable Subjects; and this is when a man doth perceive or diſcern thoſe direct acts in him, as when I perceive that I do thus adhere to Chriſt; now our Evidence, Certainty, or aſſurance is properly in this latter way, when we know that we believe, and therefore this aſſurance is called by ſome ſenſus fidei, the feeling or perceiving of Faith.

Object. But what is this reflex act but an humane Teſtimony which is ſubject to falſhoods and deluſions? And how incongruous is that to witneſs the things of God?

Anſw. 1. An humane Teſtimony may be an introductory preparation to believe that which is Divine. 2. The feeling of Faith is efficiently from the Spirit of God, and ſo it is not a meer humane Senſe or diſcerning, but Divine and infallible, even as Faith is; in this reſpect we fear no deluſion: for as the Spirit of God cannot externally witneſs any thing that is falſe, ſo neither can it inwardly in the Soul of a man perſwade that which is falſe.

How

Object. How is it then that the Saints are uſually ſo full of Doubtings?

Anſw. Becauſe there is nothing in us perfect in this life; in all our Honey there is ſome Gall. Such an aſſurance as excludes all doubting is only proper to the glorified: Not, but that God is able to give us perfect Grace, and perfect Aſſurance, but he may do what he pleaſeth with his own, and accordingly he hath thought good in this life to exalt imputed Righteouſneſs, rather than inherent.

Object. To what purpoſe then is aſſurance by the Senſe and Evidence of imperfect Grace? Doth not this derogate from that relying Act of Faith, and from the Promiſe of Grace, as if they were not enough?

Anſw. No, in no wiſe; we prefer Faith of dependance, and adherence, and belief in the promiſe, as a more noble, and excellent way, and yet the Evidence of Graces in us, is not in vain; for it hath pleaſed God to multiply thoſe things which may confirm our Faith. Thus, although every Word of God hath immutable verity in it, yet he confirmed it alſo with an Oath, after the manner of men, to end all thoſe Controverſies, which diffidence and diſtruſt may raiſe between God and us, Heb. 6. 6. and although God hath given us his Promiſe, and nothing can be ſurer than that, yet he added Oaths to ſeal and confirm his Promiſe to us; ſo although we doe well, chiefly to depend and relie immediately on Chriſt; yet there is great uſefulneſs of the reflex Act of Faith, and of all other Evidences. For,

Rom.8.16. 4. We muſt eye the Teſtimony of the Spirit, witneſſing with our Spirit, that we are the Children of God: As God hath ſet up a frame of Holineſs in every 2 Cor.5.5. Believer, ſo he hath given unto us the earneſt of the Spirit: The Graces of the Spirit are a real earneſt of the Spirit, yet they are not always an Evidential earneſt; therefore an earneſt is often ſuperadded to our Graces.

There is a threefold work of this Spirit.

1. To convey and plant Grace in the Soul.
2. To act and help us to exerciſe the Graces which are planted there.
3. To ſhine upon and enlighten thoſe Graces, or to give an earneſt of thoſe Graces.

This laſt work the Spirit fulfils two ways:

1. By Arguments and Inferences, which is a mediate work.
2. By Preſence and Influence, which is an immediate work.

Theſe the Apoſtle calls Witneſs-bearing; the Spirit 1 Joh.5.8. brings in the witneſs of the Water, and of the Blood, which is his mediate work; but beſides and above theſe, he gives a diſtinct witneſs of his own, which is his immediate work, and is in a way of peculiarity and tranſcendency, called, The witneſs of the Spirit: Concerning both is that of the Apoſtle, We 1 Cor. 2. 12. have received, not the Spirit of the World, but the Spirit which is of God, that we may know the things that are freely given us of God. The things freely given us, may be received by us, and yet the receipt of them not known to us; therefore the Spirit for our farther Conſolation, doth (as it were) put his Hand and Seal to our receipts; whence he is ſaid, To Seal Eph.4.30. us up unto the day of Redemption.

Queſt. But how may a man diſcern between the Teſtimony of the Spirit, and the illuſion of Satan.

Anſw. I Anſwer, there is ever an harmony and ſweet accord between the inward and outward Teſtimony, between the Spirit of God, and the Word of God; and therefore we may diſcern the Teſtimony of the Spirit by the Word. Thus in the Old Teſtament, all Revelations were to be examined by the Word, Deut. 13. 1. Iſa. 8. 20. And in the New Teſtament our Saviour tells us, That the Spirit ſhall lead you into all Truth: How ſo? For he ſhall not ſpeak of himſelf, but what he ſhall hear, that ſhall he ſpeak: John 16. 13. And what is that which the Spirit heareth? Is it not that which is already contained in the Scriptures?

Object. Dr. Criſp's aſſurance of Faith. Nay then (ſay ſome) the credit of the voice of the Spirit muſt depend upon the Word, but this muſt not be allowed, that any thing ſhould be of ſuch credit, as to give credit to the Spirit.

Sol. I anſwer, why not? The Scripture we know is already known and received as the Word of God, and therefore what cometh after it, muſt needs borrow credit from it: Indeed, the truth of what the Spirit ſpeaketh doth not depend upon the Word, yet the credit of it doth.

Object. Dr. Criſp. ibid. But there is no more Evidences (ſay they) ſave only the revealing Evidence, the Spirit of Chriſt, and the receiving Evidence, which is Faith; the Spirit within thee ſaith, Thy Sin is forgiven thee, and Faith receiveth it, and ſits down ſatisfied; now here is thy Evidence, if thou haſt only theſe two, thou haſt thy Portion, thou needeſt no more.

Sol. I anſwer: 1. In this way, what profane perſon is there in this World, which may not conclude for himſelf, if he will but force upon himſelf this perſuaſion, That the Spirit ſaith it, and I believe it? 2. The revealing and receiving Evidence (i.) the Word of the Spirit, and the ſubſcription of Faith, do not lay the ground of perfect Peace, except there come in alſo the Evidence of inherent qualifications. For the better underſtanding of this, obſerve, That the Evidence of the Spirit is either mediate, when it enables the Soul to frame a Syllogiſm, wherein the minor, ſc. the dictate of the conſcience, ſo far maketh to this Evidence as our graces are witneſſed unto by the Spirit, 1 Cor. 2. 12. Or immediate, which is indeed without any ſuch diſcourſe of our conſcience, and wherein our Spirit is meerly paſſive or receptive: it is an act of irradiation or impreſſion of God's Love, or (as ſome call it) a tranſcript of the degree of God's Election ſet upon the Conſcience; the Scripture calls this eſpecially, A Seal of the Spirit, which imports the meer paſſiveneſs of the Heart to it, as of the Wax to the Seal; and this Evidence is Solitary, without reference to inherent Graces; yet howſoever, it excludes them not, nor cometh in till that mediate Evidence precede, Eph, 1. 13. Hence I infer, the mediate Teſtimony of the Spirit, that ordinarily concludes for hic & ille; doth not ſpeak according to the Word but where a Text of Scripture hath a Quicunque for the Propoſition, and a Work of the Sanctifying Spirit for the aſſumption; as thus; the Scripture ſaith, They that repent and believe: ——— They that are led by the Spirit of God, are the Sons of God, Mark 1. 15. Rom. 8. 14. Hereupon the Renewed and Sanctified Conſcience ſaith, I do repent and believe, I am led by the Spirit: Therefore I am a Child of God: Now this concluſion deduced, if afterwards the immediate Teſtimony of the Spirit (manifeſted by an Heavenly impreſſion and irradiation upon the Soul (comes in with his atteſtation to confirm it, we may not doubt either of this or of the former Teſtimony, becauſe now they both ſpeak according to the word and work of Grace in the Heart; the ground of all this is in the nature of this Teſtimony of the Spirit, which is rather an atteſtation, than a teſtimony, a ſecondary, not firſt deponent: Is not this rightly concluded (ſo far as it implies the immediate Teſtimony from

Rom.8.16. from that of * Rom. 8. 16. The Spirit witneſſeth with our Spirit ?] Where we have two witneſſes joining together their Teſtimonies to aſſert this truth, That we are the Sons of God; Two, I ſay, viz. our Spirit, and the Spirit of God: The witneſs of our Spirit (i.) of our renewed Conſcience, is the firſt, the Spirit of God is the ſecond: His Work is not μαρτυρεῖν but συμμαρτυρεῖν, to witneſs together with our Spirit; (i.) To confirm and ratifie what that hath aſſerted; ſo that indeed the evidencing of this Teſtimony of the Spirit, is after the Teſtimony of our own Conſcience; if this do not firſt ſpeak and conclude, that other of the Spirit ſpeaks not all: Now the Teſtimony of our Conſcience is the concluſion of the practical Syllogiſm, and the certainty of this concluſion depends upon the verity of the aſſumption which mentioneth the Work of Grace in the Heart: So then let it be the care of the Chriſtian, to make good the verity of the aſſumption, that he may truly ſay, I do repent, I do believe, I am led by the Spirit; and this ſhall not only ford him comfort by the Concluſion, but alſo (when the immediate Teſtimony of the Spirit comes in with his atteſtations to confirm it) it will aſſure him, that he is not miſled by the ſuggeſtion of Satan, but guided by the Spirit in this point of aſſurance: Surely (will he ſay) this is the Spirit of God, for now he ſpeaks according to the Word of God, and according to the Work of his own Grace within me.

Sect. 3. Of the keeping of Evidences.

IF, in eyeing the Promiſes, and Graces, and truth of thoſe Graces written in our Hearts, the Spirit ſhall come in, and ſhine upon our Graces, either mediately by way of Argument from Sanctification, or more immediately by way of Preſence, then labour to keep our Evidences clear and fair, maintain that which we have gotten, and keep it as the beſt Treaſure under Heaven. Chriſtians! We had need to preſerve our Evidences clear and bright, that they may be ſeen and read upon all occaſions.

Queſt. But how ſhould we keep thus our Evidences?

Anſw. 1. Hearken to the Word, and hearken to our own Conſciences, and hearken to the Spirit: What ſay all theſe to our ſouls? Ex. gr. The Word ſaith thus, Whoſoever loves the Brethren, he is tranſlated from Death to Life; 1 John 3. 14. now doth thy Conſcience tell thee, that ſo do I, in truth and ſincerity? Then here is the Word and thy Conſcience for thee; and doth the Spirit come in, and witneſs with thy Conſcience that it is ſo indeed? Then it is well with thy Soul, thou keepeſt thy Evidence to purpoſe.

2. Be daily renewing our Faith in Chriſt, eſpecially that act of Faith, by which our Souls knit, or tie themſelves to Chriſt for Salvation: Cauſe our Souls every day in ſolemn manner to act that Part: put forth this Primitive act of Faith in our Souls: The daily exerciſe of this will encreaſe and ſtrengthen the Divine habit of Faith in the Soul, and make the Soul ſenſible of every act of it. By frequent believing we ſhall feel at our very Heart's-root that we do believe, and ſo we ſhall have the witneſs in our ſelves, that we are in Chriſt, 1 Joh.5.10. we ſhall knowingly carry in our Hearts the Counterpart of all the Promiſes.

3. Perform all thoſe duties and exerciſes of Religion which God hath ordained for this very purpoſe: As 1. Reading the Word; Theſe things write we unto you, that your joy may be full. 1 Joh. 1. 4. 2. Hearing the Word; for therefore is the Miniſtry of Chriſt Luk. 1. 17. to give Knowledge of Salvation to his People by the remiſſion of their Sins. 3. The Sacraments; for they Rom. 4. 11. are the Seals of the Righteouſneſs of Faith. 4. Prayer; Joh. 16. 24. Ask and you ſhall receive that your joy may be full. To this is God's Promiſe, Eſay 56. 7. I will bring my people to my Holy mountain, and make them joyful in my houſe of Prayer.

4. Maintain Holineſs and purity of Life; The effect of Righteouſneſs is quietneſs and aſſurance for ever, Eſay 32. 17. and to him that ordereth his Converſation aright will I ſhew the Salvation of God. Pſal 50. 23. The Saints while they keep their ſincerity enjoy aſſurance, for the Spirit of God, which is in them, ſheds abroad the Love of God in their Hearts, inabling them to cry Abba father: And bears witneſs with their Spirits that they are the Children of God. Rom. 8. 15, 16. But when they fall into wilful tranſgreſſions, and grieve the Spirit of God, aſſurance is gone. This made David after his foul ſins, to cry out ſo vehemently, Make me to hear joy and gladneſs. Reſtore me to the joy of thy Salvation. O take heed of ſpotting our Evidences, of defiling our Evidences by any ſinful acts.

5. Take heed of yielding to any baſe doubts, or fears, or objections of Satan and our own Hearts; deny not the Work of Grace in us, leſt we grieve the Spirit of God; if any ſhall yield ſo ſlaviſhly to the miſgivings of their own Hearts, or to the Temptations of Satan, that they ſhall conclude againſt themſelves, they have no Faith, no Love, though all other Chriſtians can ſee theſe in them; what diſhonour is it to God, and to the Spirit of God? What! hath God Written thy name in Heaven, and wilt thou attempt to raiſe it out, and to write thy name on the doors of Hell? Fie upon theſe injurious (if not Blaſphemous) thoughts! What! ſhall a dark humour, a melancholy thought prevail on thy Soul more than the Word, and more than the Teſtimony of thy own Conſcience enlightened by the Spirit? Take heed of this as of a great Pride in thy Heart: What! to yield more to a ſturdy, dark, unſubdued humour, than to Evidence it ſelf. O take heed! O hearken not to what fear ſays, or to what humour ſays, or to what Satan ſays, or to what the World ſays, but hearken to what Truth it ſelf ſays, and hearken to what Conſcience ſays, when it is enlightned by the Spirit, as in good times, when we are at the beſt! * Hearken to theſe, and ſo get our Hearts and Wills over-powered with the Evidence, and yield and ſubject our ſelves to it.

6. Keep the Graces of the Spirit in continual exerciſe upon all occaſions: Habits are not felt immediately, but by the freeneſs and facility of their acts: The fire that lieth ſtill in the flint is neither ſeen nor felt; but when you ſmite it and force it into act, it is diſcerned: Many queſtion their Evidences; they know not whether they have Repentance, or Faith, or Love, or Joy; but if they were more in the acting of theſe, they would eaſily know: Chriſtians! Draw forth an object for Godly ſorrow, or Faith, or Love, or Joy, and lay your Hearts flat unto it, and take pains to provoke it into ſuitable action. Sometimes grief for ſin is in us when we think

* I know ſome by our Spirit underſtand the Gift of regeneration, and that God's Spirit by or in that Gift which he beſtowed on us, witneſſeth with or to our Spirits. q. d. the Spirit of God. Beareth witneſs unto us with theſe Gifts and Graces that are the fruit of the ſame Spirit: So that in this Senſe he ſpeaks not immediately, but mediately by and with our Spirits being inlightened and ſanctified: For my part I ſhall not contend againſt this expoſition: And the rather, becauſe I grant that the Teſtimony which is by the effects and fruits of God's Spirit, is the ordinary, ſafe and ſure way: Yet as I dare not deny the immediate Teſtimony, ſo neither dare I exclude it out of his Text.

Get alone, and queſtion with thy ſelf, bring thy heart to the bar of trial, force it to anſwer the interrogatories put to it: Set the conditions of the Goſpel and qualifications of the Saints on one ſide, and thy performance of thoſe conditions, and the qualifications of thy Soul on the other ſide, and then judge how near they reſemble. Baxter's Everlaſting Reſt.

there is none, it wants but ſtirring up by ſome quickning Word; the like we may ſay of Love, and of every Grace, how can we doubt whether we love God in the very act of Loving? Or whether we believe in the very act of believing? If we be not aſſured, whether this ſacred fire be kindled in our Hearts, blow it up, get it into a flame, and then we ſhall know: Believe till we feel that we believe, and Love tell we feel that we love, for Grace exerciſed, both brings and maintains certain comfort; it may be with a Chriſtian in his feelings, as with the worſt man living, but he may thank his own negligence, his own dulneſs, his not ſtirring up of the Graces of God's Spirit in him; O therefore it is, that he hangs the wing upon every petty Croſs, upon every petty Occaſion! Labour to have an Heart ready to exerciſe Grace ſuitable to every condition, for then Grace will reflect ſweetly, then we ſhall maintain and continue our Comforts. The ſoul that is beſt furniſhed with Grace, when it is not in action, is like a Lute well ſtringed and tuned, which while it lieth ſtill doth make no more muſick than a common piece of Wood, but when it is taken up and handled by a skilful Lutaniſt the Melody is moſt delightful.

Sect. 4. Of the improving of Evidences.

FOr the improving of Evidences, we muſt endeavour to produce that fruit, that frame, that diſpoſition of Heart which the Lord requires, directs and looks for in ſuch a caſe; as, the admiring of God's unſearchable Grace in Chriſt Jeſus; a ſober, moderate and Self-denying uſe of our Evidence-comforts; a fiducial pleading of all the precious Promiſes of the Goſpel; a cheerful bearing of Croſſes; a holy contempt of Creature-comforts; a bold approaching to the Throne of Grace upon all occaſions; a valiant adventuring for Chriſt; longings for the appearings of the Lord Jeſus; a confident conteſt with Sin; a courageous reſiſting of Temptations; I may add Humility, Love to God, fear of offending, zealous labours to advance Chriſt in the Power of Grace, &c. all which are the fruits of legible Evidences in true Chriſtian Hearts: And our Evidences thus improved, then is the whole buſineſs Chriſtianly managed indeed. But of theſe in the next Section.

THe Sanctification of Evidences is manifeſted (as we ſaid) by ſeveral Diſpoſitions: To inlarge my ſelf; No ſooner is the Soul ſetled in its Scripture-perſuaſions, and Spirit-perſuaſions, that God hath tranſlated it unto Chriſt, but immediately there follows.———

1. A deep admiring of God's unſearchable Grace in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt: Hath the Lord aſſured me that I am his? O my Soul! ſtand amazed at this endleſs boundleſs Love of the Lord; it is of his Grace that ever I did bethink my ſelf of the danger of my ſinful courſe I was formerly in; it is of his meer Grace that the Lord Chriſt died for my ſins, and roſe again for my Juſtification; it is of his ſpecial Grace, that the Spirit of Chriſt ſhould thus whiſper to my Spirit, Thy ſins are forgiven thee. O the Bountifulneſs and Love of God to Man! O I am ſwallowed up in this depth! It is a myſtery which may aſtoniſh Angels, and Orient Pearl which out ſhines all the Sparkling Jewels of the whole Creation. When the Jews heard of the Proclamation of King Cyrus, by which they were ſet free from their long and tedious Captivity, they were rapt with Joy, they were like to men that rather dreamed, than poſſeſſed the thing that their Souls longed after! Pſal. 126. 1. How much more will Aſſurance that we are ſet free from the perpetual bondage of Sin, and reſtored to the everlaſting freedom of Righteouſneſs and Life, make us wonder at the infinite Wiſdom, and unſpeakable goodneſs of our Heavenly Father? The Saints conſidering the goodneſs of God towards man in his Creation, break forth into Holy admiration, Lord, what is Pſal. 8, 4, 6. man, that thou art mindful of him? The Prophet calling to mind long after, what God had done for his Soul, cannot paſs it over without fervent praiſe, What ſhall I render to the Lord for all his benefits towards me? Pſal. 116. 12. How much more ought and will that man that is aſſured of God's Favour and Love towards him, for ever admire the mighty Power, unſpeakable Goodneſs, and rich Mercy of God, who hath delivered him from the Pit of Hell, from the Power of Satan, from the Curſe of the Law, and from the waiting for of all the Wicked Devils, and Damned Spirits; and withal, hath tranſlated him into the Kingdom of his deareſt Son? O, Needs muſt his Heart be inflamed with Love, and inlarged in Praiſes!

2. A ſober, moderate, and Self-denying uſe of Evidence comforts; I ſpeak not herein againſt the frequent actings of Graces, or againſt the ſimply looking on them, or comforting our ſelves in them, eſpecially under ſad hours, but againſt the exceſſive, over-flowing, over-loving way of Evidence-comforts, againſt the abuſes thereof: Which may be in theſe particulars; As, 1. When we pore more frequently upon the Comforts of our own gracious actings, than upon Jeſus Chriſt and his Death; when we live too much on the ſight of a New-created Birth in our ſelves, and the image of the ſecond Adam, though indeed we have Chriſt himſelf to live on. 2. When we wonder ſo much at what is done in our ſelves by the Grace of Chriſt, that we begin to make a mixture of ſelf therewith, and immediately we ſit down and write of our ſelves an hundred inſtead of fifty. 3. When we think Graces and comforts ſo rooted in our ſelves, that we neglect God and Chriſt for the upholding, encreaſe and exerciſe of them. 4. When we reſt upon, and too much confide in the power of inherent Grace, former revelations, and witneſſes of God's Spirit which are all but Creatures, acts of God upon us, and in us; and therefore in doing thus, we make an Idol of inherent Grace, and put that truſt in it, which we ſhould repoſe in the Lord alone; And ſo, as the Lord ſpeaketh, We Numb. 15. 39. go a whoring after our own Hearts. Now all theſe flow from the Corruption of our Nature, and not from the Nature of Aſſurance; the product of true Evidences, is a praiſing of God for them, and a comforting our ſelves in them, as in the Fruit of his eternal and unchangeable Love: Our rejoycing is this, 2 Cor. 1. 12. even the Teſtimony of our Conſcience, that in ſimplicity and Godly ſincerity, we have had our Converſation in the World; but not a making of them the only or chief grounds of our Hope and Comforts, for God in this caſe may leave us to our ſelves, That no fleſh 1 Cor. 1. 19. ſhould rejoyce in his preſence.

3. A fiducial pleading of all the precious promiſes of the Goſpel; And hath the Lord indeed given me a kiſs of his mouth, a ſure ſign of his love? Why then, O my Soul, ariſe, and lay hold on all the Promiſes, which God of his mercy in Chriſt doth offer in the Goſpel! Be not diſmaid by reaſon of thy unworthineſs, for the Promiſe is of Grace, freely offered, and freely given to them that be moſt unworthy in their own eyes: Thou art unworthy of the leaſt crum of Mercy, but of the Riches of his Grace God hath given thee the Promiſes of

Rom. 8.16. from that of * Rom. 8. 16. The Spirit witneſſeth with our Spirit?] Where we have two witneſſes joining together their Teſtimonies to aſſert this truth, That we are the Sons of God; Two, I ſay, viz. our Spirit, and the Spirit of God: The witneſs of our Spirit (i.) of our renewed Conſcience, is the firſt, the Spirit of God is the ſecond: His Work is not μαρτυρεῖν but συμμαρτυρεῖν, to witneſs together with our Spirit; (i.) To confirm and ratifie what that hath aſſerted; ſo that indeed the evidencing of this Teſtimony of the Spirit, is after the Teſtimony of our own Conſcience; if this do not firſt ſpeak and conclude, that other of the Spirit ſpeaks not all: Now the Teſtimony of our Conſcience is the concluſion of the practical Syllogiſm, and the certainty of this concluſion depends upon the verity of the aſſumption which mentioneth the Work of Grace in the Heart: So then let it be the care of the Chriſtian, to make good the verity of the aſſumption, that he may truly ſay, I do repent, I do believe, I am led by the Spirit; and this ſhall not only ford him comfort by the Concluſion, but alſo (when the immediate Teſtimony of the Spirit comes in with his atteſtations to confirm it) it will aſſure him, that he is not miſled by the ſuggeſtion of Satan, but guided by the Spirit in this point of aſſurance: Surely (will he ſay) this is the Spirit of God, for now he ſpeaks according to the Word of God, and according to the Work of his own Grace within me.

Sect. 3. Of the keeping of Evidences.

IF in eyeing the Promiſes, and Graces, and truth of thoſe Graces written in our Hearts, the Spirit ſhall come in, and ſhine upon our Graces, either mediately by way of Argument from Sanctification, or more immediately by way of Preſence, then labour to keep our Evidences clear and fair, maintain that which we have gotten, and keep it as the beſt Treaſure under Heaven. Chriſtians! We had need to preſerve our Evidences clear and bright, that they may be ſeen and read upon all occaſions.

Queſt. But how ſhould we keep thus our Evidences?

Anſw. 1. Hearken to the Word, and hearken to our own Conſciences, and hearken to the Spirit: What ſay all theſe to our ſouls? Ex. gr. The Word ſaith thus, Whoſoever loves the Brethren, he is tranſlated from Death to Life; (1 John 3. 14.) now doth thy Conſcience tell thee, that ſo do I, in truth and ſincerity? Then here is the Word and thy Conſcience for thee; and doth the Spirit come in, and witneſs with thy Conſcience that it is ſo indeed? Then it is well with thy Soul, thou keepeſt thy Evidence to purpoſe.

2. Be daily renewing our Faith in Chriſt, eſpecially that act of Faith, by which our Souls knit, or tie themſelves to Chriſt for Salvation: Cauſe our Souls every day in ſolemn manner to act that Part: put forth this Primitive act of Faith in our Souls: The daily exerciſe of this will encreaſe and ſtrengthen the Divine habit of Faith in the Soul, and make the Soul ſenſible of every act of it. By frequent believing we ſhall feel at our very Heart's-root that we do believe, and ſo we ſhall have the 1 Joh. 5.10. witneſs in our ſelves, that we are in Chriſt, we ſhall knowingly carry in our Hearts the Counterpart of all the Promiſes.

3. Perform all thoſe duties and exerciſes of Religion which God hath ordained for this very purpoſe: As 1. Reading the Word; Theſe things write we unto you, that your joy may be full. 1 Joh. 1.4. 2. Hearing the Word; Luk. 1.17. for therefore is the Miniſtry of Chriſt to give Knowledge of Salvation to his People by the remiſſion of their Sins. 3. The Sacraments; for they are the Seals of the Righteouſneſs of Faith. Rom. 4.11. 4. Prayer; Ask and you ſhall receive that your joy may be full. Joh. 16.24. To this is God's Promiſe, I will bring my people to my Holy mountain, and make them joyful in my houſe of Prayer. Eſay 56.7.

4. Maintain Holineſs and purity of Life; The effect of Righteouſneſs is quietneſs and aſſurance for ever, Eſay 32. 17. and to him that ordereth his Converſation aright will I ſhew the Salvation of God. Pſal 50.23. The Saints while they keep their ſincerity enjoy aſſurance, for the Spirit of God, which is in them, ſheds abroad the Love of God in their Hearts, inabling them to cry Abba father: And bears witneſs with their Spirits that they are the Children of God. Rom. 8.15, 16. But when they fall into wilful tranſgreſſions, and grieve the Spirit of God, aſſurance is gone. This made David after his foul ſins, to cry out ſo vehemently, Make me to hear joy and gladneſs. Reſtore me to the joy of thy Salvation. O take heed of ſpotting our Evidences, of defiling our Evidences by any ſinful acts.

5. Take heed of yielding to any baſe doubts, or fears, or objections of Satan and our own Hearts; deny not the Work of Grace in us, leſt we grieve the Spirit of God; if any ſhall yield ſo ſlaviſhly to the miſgivings of their own Hearts, or to the Temptations of Satan, that they ſhall conclude againſt themſelves, they have no Faith, no Love, though all other Chriſtians can ſee theſe in them; what diſhonour is it to God, and to the Spirit of God? What! hath God Written thy name in Heaven, and wilt thou attempt to raiſe it out, and to write thy name on the doors of Hell? Fie upon theſe injurious (if not Blaſphemous) thoughts! What! ſhall a dark humour, a melancholy thought prevail on thy Soul more than the Word, and more than the Teſtimony of thy own Conſcience enlightened by the Spirit? Take heed of this as of a great Pride in thy Heart: What! to yield more to a ſturdy, dark, unſubdued humour, than to Evidence it ſelf. O take heed! O hearken not to what fear ſays, or to what humour ſays, or to what Satan ſays, or to what the World ſays, but hearken to what Truth it ſelf ſays, and hearken to what Conſcience ſays, when it is enlightned by the Spirit, as in good times, when we are at the beſt! * Hearken to theſe, and ſo get our Hearts and Wills over-powered with the Evidence, and yield and ſubject our ſelves to it.

6. Keep the Graces of the Spirit in continual exerciſe upon all occaſions: Habits are not felt immediately, but by the freeneſs and facility of their acts: The fire that lieth ſtill in the flint is neither ſeen nor felt; but when you ſmite it and force it into act, it is diſcerned: Many queſtion their Evidences; they know not whether they have Repentance, or Faith, or Love, or Joy; but if they were more in the acting of theſe, they would eaſily know: Chriſtians! Draw forth an object for Godly ſorrow, or Faith, or Love, or Joy, and lay your Hearts flat unto it, and take pains to provoke it into ſuitable action. Sometimes grief for ſin is in us when we think

* I know ſome by our Spirit underſtand the Gift of regeneration, and that God's Spirit by or in that Gift which he beſtowed on us, witneſſeth with or to our Spirits. q. d. the Spirit of God. Beareth witneſs unto us with theſe Gifts and Graces that are the fruit of the ſame Spirit: So that in this Senſe he ſpeaks not immediately, but mediately by and with our Spirits being inlightened and ſanctified: For my part I ſhall not contend againſt this expoſition: And the rather, becauſe I grant that the Teſtimony which is by the effects and fruits of God's Spirit, is the ordinary, ſafe and ſure way: Yet as I dare not deny the immediate Teſtimony, ſo neither dare I exclude it out of his Text.

* Get alone, and queſtion with thy ſelf, bring thy heart to the bar of trial, force it to anſwer the interrogatories put to it: Set the conditions of the Goſpel and qualifications of the Saints on one ſide, and thy performance of thoſe conditions, and the qualifications of thy Soul on the other ſide, and then judge how near they reſemble. Baxter's Everlaſting Reſt.

there is none, it wants but ſtirring up by ſome quickning Word; the like we may ſay of Love, and of every Grace, how can we doubt whether we love God in the very act of Loving? Or whether we believe in the very act of believing? If we be not aſſured, whether this ſacred fire be kindled in our Hearts, blow it up, get it into a flame, and then we ſhall know: Believe till we feel that we believe, and Love tell we feel that we love, for Grace exerciſed, both brings and maintains certain comfort; it may be with a Chriſtian in his feelings, as with the worſt man living, but he may thank his own negligence, his own dulneſs, his not ſtirring up of the Graces of God's Spirit in him; O therefore it is, that he hangs the wing upon every petty Croſs, upon every petty Occaſion! Labour to have an Heart ready to exerciſe Grace ſuitable to every condition, for then Grace will reflect ſweetly, then we ſhall maintain and continue our Comforts. The ſoul that is beſt furniſhed with Grace, when it is not in action, is like a Lute well ſtringed and tuned, which while it lieth ſtill doth make no more muſick than a common piece of Wood, but when it is taken up and handled by a skilful Lutaniſt the Melody is moſt delightful.

higheſt advancement, if thou wilt but embrace them, I will be a Father unto you, and ye ſhall be my Sons and 2 Cor. 6. 28. Daughters, ſaith the Lord Almighty:— And it ſhall be in the place where it was ſaid unto them, Ye are not my people, that there they ſhall be called, The Children of the Rom 9.16. Living God:—He that overcometh ſhall inherit all things, Rev. 21. 7. and I will be his God, and he ſhall be my Son. Surely, Lord, I will lay hold on theſe Promiſes, I will yet draw nigher to thee, and put my truſt in thy Mercy; I will henceforth flie to the Throne of Grace, to get my Title made ſurer and ſurer unto my Conſcience. O Lord, I believe, help thou my unbelief. Thus the Soul pleads with God, and God is well-pleaſed with ſuch pleadings; the Soul is aſſured of Salvation, and yet prayeth in the midſt of aſſurance, 2 Sam. 7. 25. Who am I, Lord, that thou ſhouldeſt make ſuch ample and free Promiſes unto thy poor Servant? Of thy free Mercy, and according to thine own Heart haſt thou ſpoken all theſe great things, to make thy Servant know them; and now O Lord God, eſtabliſh, I beſeech thee, the word that thou haſt ſpoken concerning thy Servant.

4. A chearful bearing of Croſſes: Hence Paul eyeing that object of aſſurance, that weight of Glo- 2 Cor. 4. 17. ry, he counts all his affliction light, momentany; he ſung in the dungeon, and reckoned it a ſpecial favour to be a ſufferer for Chriſt: The fire of Divine Love ſo inflames Chriſtians in this condition, that much water of Perſecution cannot quench it; Yea, ſuch is the Nature of this fire, that it feeds on thoſe waters, and grows more fervent by that which ſhould quench it: No wonder: It is but a light affliction, but it cauſeth unto us a more excellent and eternal weight of Glory; and parts of this Glory, the Chriſtian now receiveth aforehand, as earneſts of the whole: This makes him to rejoyce (even in the midſt of Croſſes and Loſſes) with a joy unſpeakable and Glorious: And hence it is that a Chriſtian deſpiſeth the ſufferings for the joys, yea, the ſufferings are overcome by the joys, that the ſufferings do not turn his joys into ſadneſs; but this aſſurance turns the ſadneſs of his Phil. 2. 17. ſufferings into joys, for he rejoyceth in his ſufferings.

5. An holy contempt of Creature-comforts: This is another fruit of Aſſurance, it will make a man endeavour to rid himſelf from ſuch feculent matters here, to contemn them, to trample them under his feet, and out of the greatneſs and goodneſs of his Spirit, ambitiouſly to long after the preſence of the Lamb. Do I ſpeak or write to the denizons of Heaven? Tell me then you that carry the Evidences of Heaven in your hands and hearts, Is it not thus with you? Hath not God wrought your hearts to this frame divine Diſpoſition? If not, he will do it firſt or laſt; for Citizens of Heaven ſet not much by the beſt things on Earth, when they are themſelves, and act like their Saviour. It was a good Speech of an Emperor, whatſoever he himſelf was, You (ſaid he) gaze on my purple Robes, and Golden Crown, but did you know what cares are under them, you would not take them up from the ground for them; but ſuppoſe there had been no cares, but pleaſures in them; yet Moſes when he Heb. 24. 25, 26. had this aſſurance of Faith, He refuſed to be called the Son of Pharaoh, chooſing rather to ſuffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleaſures of Sin for a Seaſon; eſteeming the reproach of Chriſt greater Riches than the Treaſures of Ægypt, for he had reſpect unto the recompence of reward.

6. A bold approaching unto the throne of Grace upon all occaſions: Becauſe we are aſſured therefore we beg any thing of God with greater Joh. 10.28. and 17.11. affiance; Prayer is nothing elſe but the Stream and River of Faith, and an iſſue of the deſire of that which we joyfully believe. Our Saviour Chriſt knew that his Sheep ſhould never periſh, and yet he prayeth, Holy Father keep them in thy Name: Paul knew aſſuredly, that the Lord would deliver him from every evil work, yet without ceaſing he prayeth to be delivered from evil. 2 Tim. 4. 18. Aſſurance adds fervency to prayer; the firmer our Faith, the more free is our acceſs with boldneſs and confidence to the Throne of Grace; the more fervently and boldly can we pray, Abba Father: Aſſurance hearkeneth what the Lord ſpeaketh, and ſpeaketh back again in fervent groans and deſires; it hath the promiſe of God, and therefore is bold to pray, and will not keep ſilence, Thou, O Lord of Hoſts, God of Iſrael, haſt re- 2 Sam. 7. 27. vealed to thy Servant, ſaying, I will build thee an houſe, therefore hath thy Servant found in his Heart to pray this prayer unto thee: Nay aſſurance puts on the Soul to ask any thing it wants; theſe be the times when the Spirit moveth the Waters, therefore Now (ſaith Aſſurance) caſt in your petition, and whatſoever grief it hath in it, you ſhall be cured of it. Now the King holds out his Golden Scepter, and therefore (ſaith Aſſurance) let the Queen come in boldly with her requeſt, though it be for a Kingdom; Yea, this King likes it beſt, if firſt we ſeek a Kingdom, and the Mat. 6. 33. Righteouſneſs inſeparably annexed to it, for then we ſhall have all other things with it.

7. A valiant adventuring for Chriſt: Is a man aſſured of God's Love in Chriſt? Such a one fears not any troubles, he knows all comes through his Father's hands, and that Man and Devil cannot doe what they would, and therefore he goes on comfortably to day, to morrow, and to the end; he is like one of David's Worthies, or like David himſelf, that having got experience, fears nothing; he walks up and down the World like a Gyant, higher by head and ſhoulders than moſt men; he holds in his hand a ſtrong ſhield, that the Devil himſelf cannot pierce, but it quencheth his fiery Darts; he gets a victory againſt the World by his Faith, and, Samſon-like, breaks all bands of Temptations as ſtraw; he leaps over a wall, breaks a bow of ſteel, lays heaps upon heaps.

8. An earneſt longing for the appearing of the Lord Jeſus: As he Adventures and Conquers in life, ſo he can think of Death, without any prevailing fear; he can ſay with Paul, I deſire to be diſſolved, and to be with Chriſt; and with Stephen, Lord Jeſus receive my Spirit; and with the Spouſe in the Canticles, Come away, my beloved, and be thou like a Roe, or to young Hart upon the mountains of Spices. It is the voice of Aſſurance, My life is hid with thee, O Chriſt, and therefore appear quickly, my Life, my Jeſus, that I may quickly appear with thee in Glory; let the day of gladneſs quickly come, wherein both Soul and Body, even my whole ſelf, may eternally enjoy thee: I cannot be ſtill put off with theſe taſtes and earneſts, my love and longing is rather enflamed by them to the fruition of thee: The very voice of theſe earneſts is, Come; Yea, they ſcarce know any other Language but Come, therefore again and again they ſay, Come; Yea, after they have have ſaid, Come, as if that were not enough, they ſay, Come quickly; and now, what can the Soul ſay more to her Lord? Only as before ſhe ſtill ſaid, Come, ſo now will ſhe ſtill ſay, Amen, even ſo, Amen and Amen.

9. A loathing of Sin, indignation for Sin, conteſt with Sin, and a continual watch againſt the baits and allurements of Sin: How can it be conceived that a man ſhould be aſſured of the pardon and forgiveneſs of many Sins, but it will work a greater loathing and deteſtation of Sin, unfeigned abaſement for former weakneſs, and continual watchfulneſs, to keep himſelf pure for the future that he loſe not his comfort, nor diſhonour God, who hath done ſo great things for him? It is Satan's cavil againſt the Saints, That Aſſurance beget ſecurity: Aſſuredly, if it be true Aſſurance, it will through Chriſt mortifie our luſt, and quicken us to more ſincere, ſetled, and conſtant obedience; nor is it poſſible that a Chriſtian ſhould hold his aſſurance any longer, than while he follows, cheriſhes, and feeds in himſelf this Heavenly affection.

Object. But ſome may object, if we ſay we have no Sin, we deceive our ſelves: — Who can ſay his Heart is clean? — There is no man juſt, that ſinneth not: — And how can theſe two ſtand together, Sin and Aſſurance? 1 Joh. 1. 8. Prov. 20. 9. Eccl. 7. 20.

Sol. I anſwer: Groſs ſins, Grievous ſins, are not compatible with the Hope and Aſſurance of a Chriſtian, eſpecially reigning ſins committed with delight, or indulgence: And yet ſuch ſins, as we call infirmities, blemiſhes, remainders of Original Corruption, under which the Regenerate muſt labour ſo long as they live: Theſe are not altogether incompatible with aſſurance, nor do they hinder the lively workings of Faith, in receiving the Promiſes; it is good therefore to diſtinguiſh betwixt ſins, which adminiſter matter of Humiliation, and ſuch as may give occaſion to the Soul to queſtion its Regenerate eſtate: As, — 1. There are ſins of ſimple ignorance, unavoidable infirmity, ſins of forgetfulneſs, inconſideration, paſſion, pettiſhneſs, inordinate fear, whereto there is no adviſed conſent, and theſe may ſtand with Aſſurance. But, 2. There are foul ſins, enormous crimes (not to ſpeak of ſins wilfully committed with full conſent, delight, and contentment, to the utter extinguiſhing of the Spirit of Grace, which ſhall never befall them that are called according to the purpoſe of God) and thoſe ſins hinder aſſurance, ſo that the Sinner cannot for the preſent lay actual claim to any one Privilege of Grace formerly enjoyed: I deny not but he may ſtill retain his Right and Title to eternal Life, but he is in this condition ſuſpended from actual claim, until he riſe again by Repentance, and ſo recover, not a new Right and Title, but, a new claim by vertue of the old Title.

10. A couragious reſiſting of * Doubts, Scruples, Temptations; not but that Doubts will come after Aſſurance: We ſee the Sun is one day bright, and the next day is covered; Evidences may be loſt though intereſt be continued: Yet Aſſurance and Evidences rightly improved and ſanctified to us, may help us againſt all the ſhakings, and ſhiverings, and doubtings of the Soul, and of their own nature they do reſiſt them: Hence the beſt cure and remedy of doubtings, is to perfect and ſtrengthen our Aſſurance; the more purely the fire burns, the leſs ſmoak it hath; when the light and heat of the Sun are greateſt, then the Clouds and miſty Vapours are feweſt: Aſſurance and Doubting are like a pair of Scales, where the weight of the one bears away the other.

1. Queſt. But how ſhould Aſſurance be ſtrengthned?

Anſw. 1. Go we to God, for God who gave it can ſtrengthen it: Every Grace depends upon him, not only for Birth, but alſo for Complement; his ſtrength muſt lead us on from ſtrength to ſtrength, and therefore if we would have ſtrong Aſſurance, we muſt go to a ſtrong God, and beg of him for it: O Lord (ſay) my knowledge is dim; lighten that candle, open mine eyes yet more and more that I may ſee thy Truth; my aſſents many times ſhake, but do thou eſtabliſh and confirm my Heart in thy Truth; my embracings, applications, are very trembling, and broken, and interrupted; but do thou guide my eye to look upon my Saviour, and do thou guide my hand to lay hold on him, do thou enable my will and affections, to embrace all the goodneſs of thy ſelf, of thy Chriſt, of thy Word; my Faith is but weak, but Lord, I would have more Faith, even full Aſſurance of Faith, and thou canſt work it, O do it for thy weak Servant!

2. Be in the way of ſtrength: There are ways in which God doth reveal his arm (i. e) his Ordinances; he that is too good for the Ordinances, will ever be too weak in his Faith. One thing (could David ſay) have I deſired of the Lord, that I Pſal. 27. 4. may dwell in the houſe of the Lord all the days of my Life: And to what end? That I may behold the Beauty Pſal. 48. 9. of the Lord, and viſit his Temple: What this beauty is, he himſelf expounds, We thought of thy loving kindneſs in the midſt of thy Temple: The loving kindneſs of God, his Mercy and Countenance upon his own Servants, that is the Lord's beauty, that is it which makes him amiable in his own people.

3. Let Aſſurance know its Privileges, and then it will grow ſtronger. Ye are a choſen Generation, 1 Pet. 2. 3. a royal Prieſthood, an holy Nation, a peculiar People: They who deſcended from the Blood of Abraham had more privileges than others, and have not they greater, who come of the Blood of Chriſt? The Prieſts of the Law had ſingular exemptions, and Kings of all men are moſt highly privileged; and do believers come ſhort, who are not Prophane, Civil, Typical Prieſts, but Royal Prieſts? Who are not Prieſts only, nor Kings only, but both Kings and Prieſts: A Royal Prieſthood, an Holy Nation, a Peculiar People. If we did once throughly know our Privileges, the grants of Favour, the free Acceſs, the ſingular acceptance we have with God, in and through the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, how might we keep down our fears, and our doubtings, and with fulleſt eagerneſs embrace our God, our Chriſt, our Promiſes?

4. Obſerve, and call to mind our former Experiences of God's Favour and Love: I will re- Pſal. 77. 10. member (ſaith David) the years of the right hand of the moſt high (i. e.) the years and times of my life, wherein I had ſweet Experiences of God's Mercies and Love: Why, what of that? He tells you, Becauſe thou haſt been my help, therefore Pſal. 63. 7. in the ſhadow of thy wings will I Rejoyce. But of this point in the laſt Chap.

2. Queſt. But what if after all theſe means uſed, no Sun appears, our Evidences are quite loſt, God ſuſpends all comforts?

Anſw. In ſuch a caſe we muſt endeavour to live above Evidences, by working the Soul to cloſe with, and depend upon an abſolute Promiſe: To this purpoſe it pleaſeth the Father of Mercies, ſometimes to convince and perſuade the Soul that he will ſupply what is wanting, heal back-ſlidings freely, work both Will and Deed fully, whereby he ſuſtains the Soul in Life, and raiſeth it up, as it were, from the Grave of deſpair and diſmal diſtreſs. Thus David expected to receive his Aſſurance when he cryed, Pſal. 41. 5, 12. Why art thou caſt down, O my Soul? — Hope thou in God, for I ſhall yet praiſe him for the help of his Countenance: And if at our firſt Converſion, when we had nothing but the offer of Free-grace to look upon, we caſt our ſelves on God, why not now, when our Aſſurances wholly fail?

* It is a queſtion whether any Chriſtian in this Life, can attain to ſuch an Aſſurance, as excludeth all doubtings; Paul indeed ſpeaks of full Aſſurance, but that (ſay ſome) is in compariſon of lower degrees, and not becauſe it is perfect: But howſoever Aſſurance may be ſo great in ſome, that it may overcome all ſenſible doubting or ſenſible ſtirrings of unbelief, by reaſon of the ſweet and powerful acts and effects of that Aſſurance, which is all I contend for. Baxters Everlaſting Reſt. There may be an infallible certainty which hath many degrees, and yet not a perfect or undoubting certainty. While we are here we but know in part, and believe but in part, and yet as our Faith is prevailing, and our Aſſurance doth tread down and ſubdue our Doubtings, though not quite expel them, we may walk in Comfort, and maintain our Peace. Idem Ibidem.

Sect. 6. The Evidences of a weak unworthy Servant of Chriſt, laid down according to the Rules aforementioned.

THe Life of all we have ſaid, is Practice: Hence I make bold to lay down the Evidences of a poor Creature, not worthy to be named, much leſs to have his name written in the Book of Life.——He gives them thus:——Wherein howſoever he ſpeaks in the firſt perſon, as intending them for his own uſe; yet he deſires to correct himſelf therein as Paul did, nevertheleſs I live, yet not I, but Chriſt liveth in me. On every Evidence he deſires this to be written, and thus to be underſtood, I live, yet not I.] Gal. 1. 20.

CHAP. VIII. SECT. I.

Of the Nature and Kinds of Meditation.

MEdiation is a deep and earneſt muſing upon ſome point of Chriſtian inſtruction, to the ſtrengthening of us againſt the fleſh, world, and devil; and to the leading us forward toward the Kingdom of Heaven! Or, Meditation is a ſtedfaſt bending of the mind to ſome Spiritual matter, diſcourſing of it with our ſelves, till we bring the ſame to ſome profitable iſſue. Or, Meditation is a ſeparating of our thoughts and affections from the World; a drawing forth of all our Graces in their Order, and an exerciſing of each of them on its proper object, and holding them to this, till we perceive ſucceſs, and till the work doth thrive, and proſper in our hands.

Now this Meditation is either ſudden, or ſet; occaſional, or ſolemn; extemporal, or deliberate.

1. Sudden, Occaſional, or Extemporal Meditation, ariſeth from ſuch things as God by his Providence offers to our Eyes, Ears and Senſes. When I conſider the Heavens, the Work of thy fingers, the Moon and Stars which thou haſt ordained: What is man that thou art mindful of him, or the ſon of men, that thou viſiteſt him. This Meditation of David's was occaſional.

2. Deliberate, ſet, or ſolemn Meditation, ariſeth out of our own Hearts, when purpoſely we ſeparate our ſelves from all company, and go apart to perform this exerciſe more throughly, making choice of ſuch matter, time, and place, as are moſt requiſite thereunto: Now this Meditation is double, for it is either converſant about matters of knowledge for the finding out of ſome hidden truth, or about matters of affection, for the enkindling of our love unto God; or, if you will, for the acting of all the powers of our Soul on ſome Spiritual object. The former of theſe two we leave to the Schools and Prophets; the latter we ſhall ſearch after, which is both of larger uſe, and ſuch as no Chriſtian can reject, as either unneceſſary, or over difficult.

Sect. 2. The circumſtantials of Meditation.

THe circumſtantials of our Meditation, are time and place; I ſhall add to theſe, (though I cannot call them circumſtances) the ſubject matter, and the frame of our Spirit, which by way of preparation to the duty we may take notice of.

1. For the time: No time can be preſcribed to all men; for neither is God bound to hours, neither doth the contrary diſpoſition of men agree in one choice of opportunities; ſome find their hearts moſt in frame in the morning; others learn wiſdom of their reins in the night-ſeaſon; others find Iſaac's Gen. 24. 63. time the fitteſt time, who went out in the evening to meditate: No practice of others can preſcribe to us in this circumſtance; it is enough that we ſet apart that time wherein we are apteſt for that ſervice. Only I like not their opinion who ſay, that we ſhould then only meditate, or then only pray when we find the Spirit provoking us to it; if the Spirit in Scripture bid me meditate, I dare not forbear it, becauſe I find not the Spirit within me to ſecond the command; if I find not incitation to duty before, yet I may find aſſiſtance while I wait in performance? but I approve their advice who wiſh us to chooſe the moſt ſeaſonable time, and when we find our Spirits moſt active and fit for contemplation, then to pitch on that time. It is a choice part of a Chriſtian's skill to obſerve the temper of his own Spirit, and if beſides he do obſerve the gales of Grace, and the Spirit of Chriſt moving on his Spirit, it is good then to be doing, and the rather, becauſe at that time a little labour will ſet our Hearts a going.

2. For place: We judge ſolitarineſs and ſolitary places, fitteſt for Meditation, eſpecially for ſet and ſolitary Meditation: Thus we found Jeſus Meditating alone in the Mount, John Baptiſt in the deſert, David on his bed, Daniel in his houſe, Iſaac in the field. The Bridegroom of our Soul, The Lord Jeſus Cant. 7. 11, 12. Chriſt, is baſhful (ſaid Bernard) and never comes to his Meditating Bride in the preſence of a multitude: Hence was the Spouſes invitation, come my beloved, let us go forth into the Field, let us lodge in the Villages, let us go up early to the Vineyards, let us ſee if the Vine flouriſh, whether the tender Grapes appear, and the Pomgranates put forth, there will I give thee my Love: We muſt is this caſe abandon worldly ſociety, both outward and inward: Many ſequeſtre themſelves from the viſible company of men, which yet carry a World within them; Both theſe ſocieties are enemies to this Meditation.

3. For the Matter of our Meditation: It muſt be Divine and Spiritual; viz. God's Word, or ſome part thereof: It is woful to think how ſome meditate on Sin, contrary to God's Word, ſtudying to go to Hell with the leaſt noiſe of the World; others bend their thoughts only on the ſearch of natural things: As, The motion of the Heavens, the reaſon of the ebbing and flowing of the Seas, the kinds of Simples that grow out of the Earth, and the Creatures upon it, with all their qualities and operations; rations; but in the mean while, the God that made them, the vileneſs of their nature, the danger of their Sin, the multitude of their imperfections, the Saviour that bought them, the Heaven that he bought for them, &c. are as unregarded, as if they were not: The matter of our Meditation muſt be ſomething Divine; I remember thee on my bed, and meditate on thee: —— I will meditate of all thy Works, and talk of thy doings. Pſal. 63 6, and 77,12.

4. For the frame of our Spirit: The ſucceſs of the work doth much depend on this: Now then when thou ſetteſt on this Duty, 1. Get thy Heart as clear from the World as thou canſt, wholly lay by the thoughts of thy buſineſs, of thy troubles, of thy enjoyments, and of every other thing that may take up any room in thy Soul. 2. Set upon this work with the greateſt ſeriouſneſs that poſſibly thou canſt; labour to have the deepeſt apprehenſions of the preſence of God; if ſome Angel from Heaven ſhould but appoint to meet thee, how dreadfully, how apprehenſively wouldeſt thou go to meet him? Why, conſider then with what a Spirit thou ſhouldſt meet the Lord, and with what ſeriouſneſs and dread thou ſhouldſt converſe with him.

Sect. 3. Of occaſional Meditation.

OCcaſional Meditation ariſeth from ſuch things as God by his Providence offers to ours Eyes, Ears, or Senſe: Examples of this ſort are infinite; for a taſte take theſe few.

1. Upon our firſt awaking in the Morning, meditate how the Lord can at the laſt day as eaſily raiſe up our dead bodies from the duſt, as he hath now awaked us out of ſleep; and as now we riſe from the Grave our bed, ſo then we muſt ariſe from that bed our Grave.

2. Upon ſight of the Morning Sky, Meditate, That if one Sun make ſo bright a Morning, what a ſhining Morning will that be, when Chriſt (the Sun of Righteouſneſs) ſhall appear attended with all his Bright Angels, Arch-Angels, Cherubims, Seraphims, Bodies and Souls of Saints! When there ſhall be as many Suns on a day, as there are Stars on a bright Winter's Night! ——

3. Upon the view of Graſs, or Flowers in the Field or Garden, meditate: O here's a goodly ſhew or paintry! But, Alas! Theſe things are only for a ſeaſon, they will ſoon fade away of their own accord; but if the Sun ariſe with a burning heat, Jam. 1. 11. (or as it is in the Original, with a burn-wind) they will wither ſooner. By this Graſs and Flowers are reſembled earthly Riches, and by the Sun or burning Wind, the hand of Providence that ſometimes is ſtretched out againſt thoſe Riches: Certainly there is a time of publick deſolation; there is a time when God is overturning all; there is a time when God goes forth to blaſt all worldly Glory. And, O my Soul! if this be the time, if now the glowing burning Eaſt-wind be on all theſe things, O conſider now the vanity, the tranſitorineſs of earthly Riches? O Sin not againſt Providence in ſeeking great things for thy ſelf, Jer. 45. 4, 5. What! wouldſt thou have a proſperous condition in a time of publick deſolation? Why this is as if a man ſhould be planting Flowers, when there is a glowing burnin Eaſt-wind gone forth to blaſt them.

4. Upon the occaſions of the day, meditate, how the Lord ſeeth thee, and underſtandeth all thy thoughts, and is acquainted with all thy ways: The eyes of the Lord run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to ſhew himſelf ſtrong in behalf of them, whoſe heart is perfect towards him, and therefore thou ſhouldſt doe all things as in the awful preſence of thy God. 2 Chron. 16. 9.

5. Upon our particular callings we may accordingly meditate; as, ——

1. A Magiſtrate, thus: As I judge others, ſo will the Lord judge me; it will not be long e're Death arreſt, and I muſt go without bail: Methinks I hear that ſound in mine ears, I have ſaid ye are Gods; but ye ſhall die like men. Pſal. 82. 6.

2. A Miniſter, thus; The time I have to ſpend is uot mine, but the peoples; Methinks while I idle it away, I hear them crying after me, to your Cloſet, and there pray for us that we periſh not; ſtudy for us, that we may learn of you how to walk in his paths; for if we periſh, and you will not give warning, then muſt our blood, be required at your hands. Ezek. 3. 18.

3. A Tradeſman, thus; What is that balance in my ſhop, but a memento of diſtributive and commutative Juſtice? If my dealings be not juſt to a point or pin, I ſhall then be weighed in God's Balance and be found too light: A falſe Balance is an Abomination to the Lord, and ſo is a true Balance, without true dealing with all men. Prov. 11. 1.

4. An Husbandman, thus; As I ſow in Spring, ſo I reap in Harveſt, and God hath ſaid, He that ſoweth Iniquity, ſhall reap Vanity: But they that ſow in Tears, ſhall reap in Joy: Lord, while I ſow in Tears, give me April-ſhowers of Repentance, that when the Harveſt comes, and the Angels muſt reap, they may gather me into thy Barn of Heaven. Prov. 22. 8. Pſal. 126. 5.

5. A Soldier, thus: What trade is this I follow? What devices are theſe I carry about me to murther a far off? Whoſe Image do I bear in this killing diſpoſition, but his whoſe true Title is, The Deſtroyer? I had need look about me that I be in a Righteous cauſe; I am ſure, all the Titles of God ſound of mercy and gracious Reſpects to man; God the Father is his Maker and Preſerver, God the Son his Saviour and Redeemer, God the Holy Ghoſt his Sanctifier and Comforter: O Lord, that my Enemies may be thy Enemies, and my Cauſe thy Cauſe, or that I may leave this calling!

6. Upon Night approaching, meditate, That ſeeing our days are determined, and the number of our months, are with the Lord, and our bounds are appointed which we cannot paſs; that one day more of our limited time is gone and paſt, and we are now nearer to our end by a day than we were in the Morning. Job. 14. 1.

7. Upon occaſion of Lights brought in, meditate; If the Light of a poor candle be ſo comfortable, which is nothing but a little enflamed Air, gathered about a moiſtened Snuff, What is the Light of that Glorious Sun, the great Lamp of Heaven? But much more, what is the Light of that infinitely reſplendent Sun of Righteouſneſs, who gave that Light to the Sun, and that Sun to the World?

8. Upon the ſight of a bright Sky full of Stars, meditate; How worthy a Science it is to ſee and obſerve thoſe goodly ſpangles of Light above our heads, their places, qualities, motions! But the imployment of a Chriſtian is far more Noble; Heaven is open unto him, and he can look beyond the veil, aud ſee farther above thoſe ſtars, than it is thither, and there diſcern thoſe Glories, that may anſwer to ſo rich a pavement, I ſee indeed thoſe glittering glorious Stars, with my bodily eyes; but I ſee withal by the Eyes of my Faith, that this is but the floor of that goodly fabrick, the outward curtain of that glorious Tabernacle: I ſee within that incomprehenſible Light, which none can ſee and not be bleſſed: How many are theſe Stars before my eyes! But Oh! What millions of pure and Mageſtical Angels! What millions of happy and glorified Souls! How many manſions of my Father (one of them being my own) do I ſee by Faith! Come down no more (O my Soul) after thou haſt once pitched upon this Heavenly Glory; or if this fleſh force thy deſcent, be unquiet till thou art let looſe to immortality.

Thus from our up-riſing to our down-lying, we may upon every object preſented to our Senſes, frame a ſudden or occaſional Meditation.

Sect. 4. Of deliberate Meditation, and the parts thereof.

DEliberate Meditations ariſe, and are wrought out of our own Hearts: Now every ſuch Meditation conſiſts of theſe parts.

The { Entrance.
Proceedings.
Concluſions.

1. The entrance is either { Common.
Proper.

1. The common entrance in ſome ſhort, yet pithy prayer, that God may guide and direct us therein, by the gracious aſſiſtance of his Holy Spirit.

2. The proper and particular entrance, is the choice of ſome theme or matter, and a ſetling of our ſelves on that which we have choſen.

2. The proceedings of our Meditation are in this * Method:

 Cōtemplationis aceſſus duo ſunt; unus in intellectu, alter in affectu; unus in lumine, alter in fervore. Bernard. in Cant. 5.46.*

1. To begin in the Underſtanding.
2. To end in the Affections.

1. Concerning that part which is in the Underſtanding: It is good to keep that courſe which the common places of Natural and Artificial reaſon do lead us unto: As to conſider the matter of our Meditation, 1. In its deſcription: 2. In its diſtribution: 3. In its cauſes: 4. In its effect: 5. In its ubi: 6. In its properties: 7. In its oppoſites: 8. In its comparates: 9. In its Scriptural Teſtimonies, only in theſe heads obſerve theſe Cautions.

1. That we be not too curious in proſecution of theſe Logical places; the end of this Duty is not to practiſe Logick, but to exerciſe Religion, and to kindle Piety and Devotion: Beſides, every theme will not afford all theſe places; as when we meditate of God, there is no room for Cauſes and Compariſons: It will therefore be ſufficient, if we take the moſt pregnant and voluntary places.

2. That if we ſtick in the diſpoſition of any of theſe places (as, if meditating of Sin, we cannot readily meet with material and formal cauſes) we rack not our minds too much with the inquiry thereof, but quietly paſs over to the next.

2. Concerning that part which is in the affection, it is good to follow that courſe which the common places of Rhetorick do lead us unto: Theſe are ſix.

 This reliſh is the acting of our affections, as of our love, hope, joy, deſire, &c. or of hatred of ſin filial fear, godly ſhame, holy indignation, unfeigned repentance, &c.*

viz. {
1. * A reliſh of what we have meditated on.
2. A complaint, bewailing our wants of this reliſh.
3. A wiſh of the Soul for what it complaineth to want.
4. A confeſſion of our inabilities, to effect what we wiſh.
5. A petition for the ſupply of our inabilities.
6. A confidence of obtaining what we petition for.

3. The concluſion of the work contains theſe parts.

1. A thankſgiving.
2. A recommendation of our Souls and ways to God.

I ſhall add no more, but only wiſh the Soul thus concluding, to lift up the Heart and Voice to God, in ſinging a Pſalm anſwerable to its diſpoſition, and matter meditated on; and by this means ſhall the Soul cloſe up it ſelf with much ſweetneſs and ſpiritual contentment.

Sect. 5. An Example of the Soul's love to Chriſt.

AFter entrance by Prayer, and choice of this theme, the Soul may proceed thus:

1. Deſcription.

O my Soul! what is this Soul's love to Chriſt, whereof thou ſtudieſt? It is a ſpiritual fire kindled from above in the Hearts of his darlings, towards their Bridegroom the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Or, it is a ſparkle of that fire of the Holy Ghoſt, ſtruck into the tinder of our Souls, which immediately ſmoaks, and ſends up the flame thitherward, whence it firſt had its riſe: Or, it is the Soul's reſt or repoſal of it ſelf in the boſome of Chriſt, with content unſpeakable and glorious, being perſuaded of her intereſt in that Song of the Spouſe, I am my well-beloved's, and my well-beloved is mine. Cant. 6.3. This, O my Soul is the nature of thy love to Chriſt.

2. Diſtribution.

There is a twofold love, one of deſire, which is an earneſt longing after that which we believe would doe us much good, if we could attain to it; another of complacency, when having attained that which we deſire, we hug and embrace it, and ſolace our ſelves in the fruition of it: Now the firſt of theſe loves is an Introduction to the ſecond, and both of them (in relation to Chriſt) iſſue from a proportionable act of Faith precedent: 1. That affectionate longing and thirſty love, wherewith we pant and gaſp after Chriſt, proceeds from the firſt acts of Faith whereby we aſſent to all Goſpel-promiſes, as true and good in themſelves, and better unto us than any thing in the World, could we but once be aſſured that they belong unto us. 2. That other love of complacency, when (with the Pſalmiſt) we return unto our reſt, becauſe the Lord hath dealt bountifully with us, Pſal. 116.7. when ſweetly we repoſe our ſelves in the lap of our Saviour with content unſpeakable, and full of Glory, it proceeds from the laſt act of Faith; whereby we are actually perſuaded by thoſe welcome whiſpers of the Spirit of Adoption, that certainly Chriſt is our Saviour, and that our debts are cancelled to the very laſt mite; only obſerve (O my Soul!) theſe two things of this love: 1. That 'tis ſubject to all variations or changes, ebbings and flowings of that perſuaſion; ſometimes in a violent Temptation, or in a ſenſible deſertion, our perſuaſion fails, and ſo this love of complacency is either ſtupified, or it falls back into that thirſty anxious love of deſire. 2. That this love of complacency admits of degrees, proportionable to the degrees of our perſuaſions; if that be clear and ſtrong, this love is more chearful and pleaſant; if that be weak and obſcure, this love is more cold, with many fears and jealouſies,—— Whence this love of complacency may not unfitly be ſubdivided into an Ordinary and Heroical love; ordinary love proceeds from a weak degree of that laſt act of Faith; heroical love ſpringeth from a more eminent and tranſcendent pitch of perſuaſion, concerning our own reconciliation in particular: It is called Ordinary, becauſe moſt Chriſtians (though effectually called) do ordinarily feel but ſuch a timerous love in themſelves; it is called Heroical becauſe it is conſtantly only in ſuch as either beſides the Evidence of the Word and Spirit, have had ſome ſpecial Revelation to put them out of all doubt concerning their eſtate to God-ward; or in ſuch as by a certain cloſe walking with God, have been long exerciſed in a Chriſtian courſe, have often entertained Chriſt Jeſus at Supper in their Hearts, and habituated themſelves into a more familiar acquaintance with that Holy Spirit, which brings all the good news from Heaven, to thoſe diligent Souls which carefully wait for it.

3. Cauſes.

But whence is this love, O my Soul? The Apostle Joh. 4.13. is plain, We love him, becauſe he firſt loved us; When the Spirit of God in the Promiſes lets in ſome intimations of God's Love into the Soul, then ſhe loves him again: That expreſſion of the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 42. 8. The Lord will command his loving kindneſſes in the day-time, is pertinent to this; it is a phraſe taken from Kings and Princes, and great Commanders in the Field, whoſe words of Command ſtand for Laws; ſo the Lord ſends out his loving kindneſs, ſaying, Go out my Everlaſting Love and Kindneſs, take a Commiſſion from me, go to that humble, thirſty, hungry Soul; go and proſper, and prevail, and ſettle my love effectually upon him; I command thee doe it: It may be at the firſt viſit, the poor Soul cries out, What! I love? What! I mercy? Will Chriſt Jeſus accept of me? Oh, I am the worſt of Sinners! could I Pray, or perform Duties as ſome others do, I might have ſome hopes of Mercy; but what! Is it poſſible that the Lord of Heaven ſhould love me? Yes, thee, even thee, ſaith the Lord: Go out my Loving kindneſs to that poor Soul: break open the doors of that weary weltring Heart; knock off thoſe bolts of carnal reaſon, and all baſe arguments, and clear and warm that broken, bruiſed, humbled Soul; and tell him from me, That his Sins are pardoned, his ſighs and prayers are heard, and he ſhall be ſaved; I charge thee doe all the work before thou comeſt in again. Here, O my Soul! is the immediate cauſe, God's Love thus affecting the Heart, Hoſea 1.4. it breeds a love in the Heart to God again: I drew them (ſaith God) with the cords of a man, even with the bands of love.

4. Effects.

And what are the Effects (O my ſoul!) of this love? O this love hath many holy gracious effects! it will make the ſoul to rejoice in Chriſt's preſence, to grieve in his abſence, to pleaſe Chriſt in all things, to deſire Union with Chriſt, though it never ſee good day, though it have no other wages, to beſtow readily and freely any thing it hath on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, to deny it ſelf, or any thing that may come in competition with Chriſt, to part Phil. 3. 8. with her Iſaac's, her deareſt things, To account all things as dung and loſs, that ſhe may win Chriſt; to be content with nothing, but love again from the party beloved; to be ever and anon thinking and muſing on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; to be ordinarily and frequently ſpeaking of Chriſt: Love is full of eloquence in the praiſes of her beloved, ſo is the ſoul's love to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. O how that Spouſe of Chriſt runs on in a deſcription of his rarities and tranſcendencies! My beloved is white and ruddy, the chiefeſt among ten thouſand (or as it is more elegantly in the Original, He is an Enſign-bearer among Cant. 5.10, 16. ten thouſand) ——— He is altogether lovely, or he is all entire, he is all compoſed of loves: Betwixt thoſe verſes [10. and 16.] there's a deſcription of Chriſt, ſo ſtuffed with choiceſt delicacies of expreſſion, that thou canſt not match it (O my ſoul! out of any of thoſe Poets which have flown higheſt in amorous inventions: at laſt ſhe concludes with a triumphant Epiphonema; This is my beloved, and this is my friend, O daughters of Jeruſalem! Nay, love will make the ſoul not only ſpeak, but doe any thing for the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, O then ſhe cries, How may I pleaſe Chriſt better? What duty muſt I doe? And what ſins muſt I avoid? If there be any of the bed-chamber of the Bridegroom, tell me I beſeech you, how many I hear, and pray and walk, and approve my heart to my Chriſt and King, that nothing may diſpleaſe him? Laſtly, love will make the ſoul ſuffer for Chriſt, and to rejoyce in ſuch ſufferings; Acts 5.41. it is a fire that much water of perſecution cannot quench; nay, it feeds on thoſe waters, and grows hotter by them: As oppoſition riſeth againſt it, ſo it riſeth againſt oppoſition; yea, it riſeth by it, until it riſe above it.

5. Oppoſites.

Now what are the contraries to this love of Chriſt, but an hatred of Chriſt? One would wonder there ſhould be ſuch a thing in the world, as hatred of Chriſt: But why then ſhould the Apoſtle threaten, If any man love not the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, 1 Cor. 16. let him be Anathema, Maranatha; (i.) If any man 22. hate Chriſt, let him be accurſed with all manner of Execrations or Curſes in the moſt deſperate manner, expecting due vengeance from the Lord, when he cometh with his holy millions, to execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly: Jude 5.14. No queſtion there is a world of wicked men, that 15. are under this Curſe; I ſpeak not of poor Indians, and other Savages of the unchriſtian World, whoſe Souls are over-clouded with the blackeſt miſts of Irreligion, that the Prince of Darkneſs can poſſibly inwrap them in; who come into the World, not knowing wherefore, and go out of the World, not knowing whither; an heavy caſe, which cannot ſufficiently be bewailed with an Ocean of Tears and Blood; but of thoſe that live within the Paradiſe of the Chriſtian Church, that have nothing to diſtinguiſh them from thoſe Indian Miſcreants, but an outward conformity, outward formalities, the charity of other men, and their own ſlight imaginations: As, 1. All open enemies, groſs, hainous and grievous ſinners, ſwearers, blaſphemers, drunkards, railers againſt God, his Miniſters, his People; theſe and the like love ſin more than Chriſt, they love the Devil more than Chriſt. 2. All fawning Hypocrites, that profeſs (it may be) a marvellous affectionate love unto the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, but they are inward haters of Chriſt.

6. Compariſons.

But to inflame thy love (O my ſoul!) upon Chriſt, conſider whereunto it is like, or to what it may be compared: The Scripture hath deſcribed the out-goings of ſuch a ſoul: 1. By the parched ground: My ſoul thirſteth for thee, my fleſh longeth for Pſal. 63.1. thee in a dry and thirſty Land, where no water is. 2. By the pantings of a chaſed Hart: As the Hart panteth Pſal. 42 1, 2. after the water-brooks, ſo panteth my ſoul after thee, O God. 3. By the longings of a teeming Woman: I have longed for thy ſalvation, O Lord, and thy Law is my delight. Pſal. 119. 4. By the fainting and 174. ſwouning of one that is in good earneſt ſick of love: I charge you, O daughters of Jeruſalem, if you find my Beloved, that ye tell him I am ſick of love: Cant. 5. 8. Such ſouls are commonly caſt into an agony, into pangs of love, that love Chriſt indeed.

7. Teſtimony.

And doth not the Scriptures expreſs theſe loves of the ſoul to the Lord Jeſus? If God be your Father John 8.42. (ſaid Chriſt to the Jews) then will ye love me: ——— Cant. 1.3. and, Thy name is as an ointment poured forth, there- Cant. 1.4. fore do the Virgins love thee: ——— and, We will re- 1 John 4. member thy love more than wine; the upright love thee: We

We love him (ſaith the Apoſtle) becauſe he loved us Pſal. 18. 1. firſt: I will love thee (ſaith David) O Lord my Prov. 8. 21. ſtrength:—I will cauſe thoſe that love me (ſaith Wiſ- Joh. 14. 21. dom) to inherit ſubſtance:—He that hath my Com- Pſal. 119. 132. mandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me, and he that loveth me, ſhall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and I will manifeſt my love unto him:———Look upon me (ſaith David) and be merciful unto me, as thou uſeſt to do unto thoſe that love thy name.

Thus for information of Judgment; now for the ſtirring up (O my ſoul!) of thy Affections.

1. Reliſh.

And herein, O my ſoul! 1. Think on the act. 2. On the Object. 1. The act is love: O divine love! O the pleaſures, O the joys of this love! O honey and ſweetneſs it ſelf! it is love that ſets a price on all other Duties; the leaſt ſervice (even a cup of cold water, or a widow's mite if it have but a grain of this love in it, is a moſt acceptable ſacrifice to God; it is love that hath the Promiſes Prov. 8. 21. of this life, and that which is to come: I will cauſe thoſe that love me, to inherit ſubſtance, and I Jam. 1. 12. will fill their treaſures,——yea, there is a crown of life, which the Lord hath promiſed to them that love him; it is love that by Chriſt aſſures to us all the glorious privileges flowing from Chriſt, as Reconciliation, Adoption, Forgiveneſs of Sins, Juſtification, Righteouſneſs, Wiſdom, Sanctification, Redemp- 1 Cor. 3. 22, 23. tion, Poſſeſſion of all things. All things are yours, whether Paul, or Apollo, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things preſent, or things to come, all are yours, and you are Chriſt's, and Chriſt is God's. 2. The Object is Chriſt: and oh who can think of this love of Chriſt, and not be raviſhed therewith! Had I a thouſand hearts to beſtow on Chriſt, they were all too little, they were never able to love him ſufficiently; it is the Lord Jeſus, that is all ſtrength, and all wiſdom, and all honour, and all beauty; the fountain of all graces, and vertues, and qualities in men: whatſoever grace or vertue, or quality is in us, they are but ſo many rayes that come Pſal. 45. 2. from this Sun of Righteouſneſs; he is fairer than the Cant. 5. 10. children of men, and grace eminently is poured into his 11, 12, 13. lips.——He is white and ruddy, the chiefeſt among ten thouſands, his head is as the moſt fine gold, his locks are buſhy, and black as a raven; his eyes are as the eyes of doves by the rivers of waters, waſhed with milk and fitly ſet; his cheeks are as a bed of ſpices, as ſweet flowers, his lips like lilies dropping down ſweet ſmelling 14, 15, 16. mirrh;—— his hands are as gold-rings ſet with beril; his belly is as bright Ivory, overlaid with Saphires; his legs are as pillars of marble, ſet upon ſockets of fine gold; his countenance is as Lebanon, excellent as the Cedars; his mouth is moſt ſweet, yea he is altogether lovely.

Here! O here is an object (my ſoul) well worthy of thy love! here thou mayſt be ſure thou canſt not love too much; come and ſee, this is he whoſe name is wonderful, counſeller, the mighty God, Iſa. 66. the everlaſting Father, the Prince of peace, this is he; who is the firſt and the laſt, who is, and was, and is to Rev. 1. 17, 18, come; who liveth, and was dead, and behold he liveth for evermore: this is he who hath made thy peace; his voice now to thee is the voice of peace: draw near, and behold him; doſt thou not hear his voice? he that called Thomas to come near, and to ſee the print of the Nails, and to put his finger in- Joh. 7. 27. to his wounds, he it is that calls thee; come near and view the Lord thy Saviour, and be not faithleſs, but believing; peace be unto thee, fear not, it is I: Iſa. 59. 1. he that calleth, Behold me, behold me, to a rebellious people that calleth not on his name, doth call out to thee a believer to behold him; he that calls to them to behold his ſorrow in a day of humiliation, doth call now to thee to behold his glory in the day of his exaltation: look well upon him, O my ſoul! doſt thou not know him? why! it is he that brought thee up from the pit of hell; it is he that reverſed the ſentence of thy damnation, that bore the curſe which thou ſhouldſt have born, and reſtored thee to the bleſſing which thou hadſt forfeited and loſt, and purchaſed the advancement which thou muſt inherit for ever; and yet doſt thou not know him? why, his hands were pierced, his head was pierced, his ſides were pierced, his heart was pierced with the ſting of thy ſins, that by theſe marks thou mighteſt always know him: doſt thou not remember when he found thee Ezek. 16. 6, 7, 8, 9. lying in thy blood, and took pity on thee, and dreſſed thy wounds, and brought thee home, and ſaid unto thee, live? haſt thou forgotten ſince he wounded himſelf to cure thy wounds, and let out his own blood to ſtop thy bleeding? is not the paſſage to his heart, yet ſtanding open? if thou know him not by the face, the voice, the hands; if thou know him not by the tears, and bloody ſweat, yet look nearer, thou mayſt know him by the heart; that broken-healed heart is his, that dead revived heart is his, that ſoul-pitying, melting heart is his, doubtleſs it can be none's but his; love and compaſſion are its certain ſignature; this is he, even this is he, who would rather dye than thou ſhouldſt dye, who choſe thy life before his own, who pleads this blood before his father, and makes continual interceſſion for thee; if he had not ſuffered, oh what hadſt thou ſuffered! what hadſt thou been if he had not redeemed thee! there was but a ſtep between thee and hell, when he ſtept in, and bore the ſtroak; he ſlew the bear, and reſcued the prey, he delivered thy ſoul from the roaring lion. And is not here yet fuel enough for love to feed on? doth not this loadſtone ſnatch thy heart unto it, and almoſt draw it forth of thy breaſt? canſt thou read the Hiſtory of love any farther at once? doth not thy throbbing heart here ſtop to eaſe it ſelf? and doſt thou not as Joſeph, ſeek for a place to weep in? or do not the tears of thy love bedew theſe lines? go on then, for the field of love is large, it will yield thee freſh contents for ever, and be thine eternal work for behold, and love; thou needeſt not to want work for thy preſent meditation, hadſt thou forgotten the time, nay the many, very many times, when he found thee in ſecret all in tears, when he heard thy dolourous ſighs and groans, and left all to come and comfort thee? when he came in upon thee, and took thee up, as it were in his arms, and asked thee, poor ſoul, what doth ail thee? doſt thou weep, when I have wept ſo much? be of good chear, thy wounds are ſaving, and not dearly; it is I that have made them who mean thee no hurt: though I let out thy blood, I will not let out thy life? O me thinks I remember yet his voice, and feel thoſe embracing armes, that took me up! how gently did he handle me! how carefully did he dreſs my wounds, and bind them up! me thinks I hear him ſtill ſaying to me, poor ſinner, though thou haſt dealt unkindly with me, and caſt me off, yet will not I do ſo by thee, thou haſt ſet light by me and all my mercies, yet both I, and all are thine; what wouldſt thou have that I can give thee? wouldſt thou have my ſelf? why, behold I am thine, thy friend, thy Lord, thy brother, thy husband, and thy head; wouldſt thou have the Father? why, I will bring thee to him, and thou ſhalt have him in me, and by me.——Theſe, O theſe were the bleſſed words, which his Spirit from his Goſpel ſpake unto me, till he made me caſt my ſelf at his feet, yea, into his armes, and to cry out, my Saviour and my Lord! And now, O my ſoul rouze up! can thy heart be cold when thou thinkeſt of this? what! art thou not yet tranſported, and raviſhed with love? is it poſſible that thy heart ſhould hold, when it remembers thoſe boundleſs compaſſions? O my ſoul! if this will not reliſh, what can I ſay? Come ſtudy, ſtudy yet more Chriſt's excellencies; ſtudy yet more Chriſt's mercies to thy ſelf, both ſpecial and common; ſtudy yet more, how often Chriſt hath met thee in publick and in private, in the Congregation, and in thy houſe, and in the chamber, and in the field, and in thy waking nights, and in thy deepeſt dangers; ſtudy yet more all his ſweet, and near relations to thee; and ſtudy (if thou wilt) whither he is gone, and how thou ſhalt follow him, and what ſhall be the happineſs of thy perpetual abode with him hereafter.

2. Complaint.

But alas, where is my ſoul? how dull is my underſtanding, my affection! how careleſs, how peeviſh is my ſoul, in a buſineſs which concerns it ſo much! how prejudicate is my opinion! how vain are my conceits! O my ſoul! how ignorant art thou of the incomparable worth, and delightful ſweetneſs that is in the Lord Jeſus! how ſecure, and ſleepy, and ſenſeleſs art thou! O this hard heart of mine! Thou canſt mourn for loſſes and croſſes of this life, but for the loſs of Chriſt, thou canſt not mourn one jot: Didſt thou, O my Soul! truly affect Chriſt, the pillow would be waſhed with thy tears for thy want of Chriſt, and for thy want of Aſſurance: Woe, and alas, that my mind is taken up with a confluence of worldly luſts, worldly cares, and worldly deſires! O it is this that quencheth the Conjugal love of my Soul to her Bridegroom! my loves are now become very Adulterous loves! Woe, and alas, 1 John 2. 15. That I have loved the World, and the things that are in this World; that I have followed my baſe luſts, and adulteries, and abominations; that inſtead of loving Chriſt, I have loathed him, and Whipt him, and Scourged him, and Crucified him, and preferred the vileſt luſt (any ſin whatſoever) before the Lord Jeſus! And now I am muſing of this love of Chriſt; Alas! I feel it not, or if I feel a little, little love of deſire, yet I have no ſenſe, no taſte, no reliſh of that love of complacency; there is no ſuch fire, no flames in my breaſt towards the Lord Jeſus.

3. Wiſhing.

And yet, O that I could love the Lord Jeſus! O that he had my Heart! O that now I could bid adieu to all other Lovers! O that the Father of love and the Spirit of love would ſtrike one ſpark of love from the Promiſe, to kindle it in the Heart of his poor Creature! O that I felt a dilatation of my deſires after Chriſt! That God would ſtretch them, and widen them to the utmoſt, that I might love Chriſt with all my Heart, Soul and Might! O that I were even ſick of love! O that I were caſt into the melting pangs of a Divine Chriſtian love! O that I could feelingly ſay I love thee, even as I feel I love my ſelf. O my Soul, conſider the want of Chriſt, and the worth of Chriſt! O conſider the benefits of Chriſt's Death, the ſweetneſs of Chriſt's Promiſes, the pleaſantneſs of his Commands, the pretiouſneſs of his Graces, and above all the infiniteneſs of his Love, and thou canſt not but love him! Conſider that Soul-raviſhing Text, Eph. 2. 4, 5, 6. God who is Rich in Mercy for his great Love wherewith he loved us, even when we were dead in Sins, hath quickened us together with Chriſt, and hath raiſed us up together, and made us ſit together in heavenly places in Chriſt Jeſus; that in ages to come he might ſhew the exceeding Riches of his Grace, in his kindneſs towards us through Chriſt Jeſus: And thou canſt not but cry out with the ardency of affection, with the ſtrength, the zeal of love, O! To him, unto Rev. 1. 5, 6. him that loved and waſhed us from our ſins in his own Bloud, and hath made us Kings and Prieſts unto God, and his Father, To him be Glory and Dominion for ever and ever, Amen.

4. Confeſſion.

O my Soul! theſe are ſweet motives: But Alas, how dull is thy underſtanding! How dead thy affections! I clearly ſee there is no ſtrength at all in thee. O how cold, and weak, and faint, and heartleſs are theſe thy wiſhes! O Chriſt! I would love thee, but I cannot; I find no ability in my ſelf to love thee; I am no more able to love thee, than cold water is able to heat it ſelf. O where be thoſe ſcalding affections to Chriſt Jeſus, which holy men have felt in all ages, and ſtriven to expreſs in their Soliloquies! O where is this holy, conſtant, conjugal Love! O where are thoſe ſwellings, and throwings, and wreſtlings, which others have felt in their Bowels! O where be thoſe holy fits, thoſe pangs of love, thoſe love-trances, thoſe Seraphical flames of conjugal affection, which made the Spouſe cry out, I am ſick of love! Alas! I feel a diſtemper in Cant. 2. 5. my affections; I find it not ſo eaſie to love Chriſt, as many men think; ſurely it is a very hard and difficult thing to love the Lord Jeſus.

5. Petition.

Come then bleſſed Lord, and ſhew thy own ſelf to me, I beſeech thee if I have found Grace in thy Exod. 33. 13. 18. ſight, ſhew me the way that I may know thee: —— I beſeech thee ſhew me thy Glory; ——— give me the Spirit of wiſdom and revelation in the knowledge of Chriſt; let me ſee thy beauties and glorious excellencies, and by this means blow my love into a pure flame; yea, advance it to a degree of Angelical ſublimity. Surely, Lord, I cannot love what Eph. 1. 17. I ſee not, and therefore anoint mine eyes with thy eye-ſalve, that I may ſee thy lovelineſs, and love thee with my beſt loves: O kindle, inflame, and inlarge my love, that it may reſt largely in thee; inlarge the crany which the Spirit hath bored through the fleſh into my Spirit, that I may largely ſee thee, and ſo largely love thee; inlarge the arteries and conduit-pipes, by which thou the head and fountain of love floweſt into thy members, that being abundantly quickened and watered with the Spirit of Love, I may abundantly love thee: And do not only come much, but come often into me, and let my Spirit often be one Spirit with thee, in communicative and fruitive unions, for ſuch often unions with thy Spirit, will make my Spirit more Spiritual, and the more Spiritual ſhe is, the more will ſhe love thee, the God of all Spirits. Bleſſed Lord! wilt thou love the image, and ſhall not the image much more love the pattern? O that I were ſick of love! that my underſtanding, will and affections were all over-flown, overcome and amazed, that my faintings were inflamed towards thee, and even melted into thee! O ſweet Jeſu, touch my Soul with thy Spirit, that vertue may go out of thee into me, and draw me unto thee; let the Savour of thy Ointments (whoſe very breath is Love) be ever in my noſtrils: Give me the flaggons of the new Wine of the Kingdom, which may lift up my Soul above my ſelf in my loves; give me to forget the low and baſe loves of this World, and by an Heavenly exceſs, tranſport me into an Heavenly love, that I may embrace Chriſt, who is the Lord from Heaven, with a love like himſelf: O give me to believe, for Faith and Love grow together, and the ſtronger my Faith, the greater will be my Love!

6. Confidence.

And this (ſweet Jeſu) I am fully perſuaded Cant. 1.4. thou wilt do: I believe, Lord help my unbelief; ſurely thou art God, who canſt not lie, and thou haſt promiſed, that the upright ſhall love thee. O how ſhould I but believe thee! And now thou haſt in ſome ſweet meaſure convinc'd me, now thou beginn'ſt to warm my Heart, and to caſt me into a Love-trance; now that my Spirit is ſomewhat raiſed, my Heart in ſome ſort inlarged, my mind in ſome meaſure fixed upon thee: I make bold (Lord) to conclude with this Spiritual Epithalamium; Bleſſed Lord, I am thine, only thine, ever thine, all that I am is at thy Command, and all that I have is at thy Diſpoſing; be pleaſed to command both it and me: I know whatſoever I adventure or loſe for thy ſake, I ſhall receive with infinite advantage in thy bleſſed Self. I dare truſt my Lord with the beſt thing that ever he gave me, my precious Soul. O my bleeding Heart and broken Spirit doth languiſh in a thirſty love, panting and gaſping after thee, my bleſſed Saviour: O let me taſte how gracious thou art, by ſome real experiments in my own Heart; ſmile upon me from Heaven; anſwer me with ſome aſſuring Cant. 1. 1. whiſpers of the Spirit of Adoption; Kiſs me with the kiſſes of thy mouth, for thy Love is better than Wine. O let me bath my Soul in the delicious intimacies of a Spiritual Communion with thee, my God, that I may for ever adhere unto thee, with a ſincere conſtancy, and reſt in thee with a love of complacency! For I feel, I find my Soul caſt into a longing ſweat for thee, and nothing can ſatisfie the importunate longing of my perplexed Soul; and thou art altogether lovely, O my dear Jeſu! O my deareſt Husband! O theſe holy fits! O theſe ſweet pangs of love grow upon me a pace! Upon a ſudden my King, my Saviour, I am even ſick of love!

Concluſion.

And now, O my Soul! return unto thy reſt, for the Lord hath been beneficial unto thee; The reaſon of thy love is Chriſt's Love; Thou loveſt him, becauſe Pſal,116.7. he firſt loved thee. Is it thus, O my Soul? Hath the Lord Chriſt indeed diſcovered his Will, to take thee for his Spouſe? What! he that is ſo holy to marry ſuch an impure wretch as thou art? O how ſhould this but melt thee into a flame of love! What ſtirrings of love ſhouldſt thou now feel in thy Bowels! How ſhouldſt thou now value him, and prize him, and praiſe him! How ſhould thy Glory now ſing praiſes to him, and not be ſilent! How ſhouldſt thou admire and wonder, that thou couldſt endure to be without Chriſt ſo long! That thou could'ſt ſo ſlightly think of Chriſt heretofore! O my Soul! henceforward cling to thy Saviour, go out of thy ſelf, and creep to him, and affect not only union, but very unity with him; bath thy ſelf hereafter again and again, many and many a time in thoſe delicious intimacies of thy Spiritual marriage: And to that purpoſe (O my Soul!) if ſometimes thy love to thy Saviour ſhall cool, O then ſweet Saviour look upon me in Mercy! one look of thine will awaken my love, and make me weep bitterly, that I have loved thee ſo little, whom to love ſufficiently, my beſt and mightieſt loves are moſt inſufficient: Prevent my ſeeking with thy ſeeking; be thou preſent with me in thy Providence and Power, when thou ſeemeſt to be far off me, in the taſte of thy ſweetneſs and fruition of thy loves; and then when I have regained thee I will hold more hardly, and keep more faſtly, and love thee more vehemently, by thy power aſſiſting: and Provide a ſtock of love in the ſummer, againſt winter, if it return any more: Come Lord Jeſus, and be as the Roe on the Mountains; my life is hid with thee, O appear quickly, that I may quickly appear with thee in Glory, and in the happineſs of a conſummate Marriage! Even ſo, come Lord Jeſus, come quickly, Amen, Amen, Rev. 22. 20. Pſal. 18. to verſe 7.

Sect. 6. Another Example of the Eternity of Hell.

1. Deſcription.

O my Soul! what is this Eternity of hell, whereof thou ſtudieſt? It is the entire and perfect poſſeſſion of a Life in Death, and Death in Life miſerable ever. It is a circle of pain running back into it ſelf, whoſe centre is always, and circumference without all end; it is a duration of Torment always preſent; it is one perpetual night of utter darkneſs, which is not divided into hours or watches, time paſt or time to come: It is an age of living in death's pangs, never expiring, or giving up the Ghoſt; it is a beginning of Torment, never ending, but after a Thouſand, Thouſand years, inſtead of ending, ſtill beginning. Why this, O my Soul! is the Eternity of Hell.

2. Diſtribution.

There is a twofold Eternity of hell, A parte ante, and à parte poſt; In reſpect of beginning, if we look on hell in God's decree, it was from eternity; when a queſtion was propounded by one to an antient author, what God was a doing before he made the World; He returned anſwer, that God was preparing Hell for ſuch curious queſtioniſts. Indeed the actual Creation of Hell, was not from all eternity; for Hell is a Creature, and there was no Creature before the World was; yet probably Hell was one of the firſt Creatures that God after Heaven did make: Tophet is ordained of old, ſaith Iſaiah, and Hell probably Iſa. 30.33. was Created the firſt day, becauſe the Angels fell the firſt day: When God made Heaven, he made the Angels in Heaven; now God made Heaven the firſt day, and the Angels fell the firſt day: It is clear enough that on the ſixth day there was a Devil to Tempt Adam, and Devils could not be without an Hell. But O my Soul! ſtay not too long on this Curioſity; in reſpect of ending, Hell is indeed and really to all eternity: The worm ſhall not die, the fire never ſhall be quenched. Iſa. 66.24. After a thouſand thouſand millions of years, there are ſtill as many more to come, and when thoſe many more are come and gone, the Torments are yet as far from the laſt as they were at the firſt; It is now almoſt ſix thouſand years ſince Lucifer, ſon of the Morning, fell from Heaven to Hell: Iſa. 14. 12. It is now above four Thouſand years ſince Eſau, who hated Jacob, was caſt into this pit of Hell, and yet the number of their years, of Torments, are as many ſtill, as they were the firſt day of their entrance into Hell: Eternity is of that nature, that no time can meaſure it, or diminiſh it; take from it what you will, it is ſtill the ſame; it is neither increaſed by addition, nor leſſened by ſubtraction. And of this eternity of Hell without any end, is that more eſpecially, of which, O my Soul! thou art now to meditate.

3. Cauſes.

The cauſes of this Eternity of Hell, are 1. The Greg. eternity of ſin, Men ſin in their eternity, and therefore God will puniſh them in his eternity. Man ſins as long as he can, and therefore God will puniſh as long as he can: Again, men would ſin eternally in this World, if God would but leave them to themſelves; and therefore God hath proportioned this eternity of ſuffering to the eternities of men's deſires and delights in ſinning. Again, when wicked men come to Hell, they will ſin there to all eternity, and therefore their Torments muſt be eternal: As long as there is ſin in a man, the Lord will Torment that man, for ſin and puniſhment cannot be ſevered; Sin is like Oil, and God's Wrath like Fire, as long as you caſt Oil upon Fire, the fire cannot ceaſe burning; as long as ſin is in a man's nature, a man cannot be free from ſuffering; we read that in Hell there is Revel. 16. 9, 11, 21. great Blaſphemy of God, becauſe of their plagues; They Blaſpheme his Juſtice, becauſe he judged them, they Blaſpheme his Mercy, becauſe he forſook them; they Blaſpheme the Blood of Chriſt, becauſe that Blood which ſaveth Thouſands, ſaved not them: Hell is made up of nothing but of Sins, and Blaſphemies, and Torments. 1. Being curſed of God, they curſe God; and their ſin conti- Revel. 14. 11. nuing to all eternity, therefore the ſmoak of their Torments, aſcendeth up for ever and ever. 2. The Juſtice of God that ſtill remains unſatiſfied as for their ſin. There is a ſtory of Tiberius Cæſar, that being incenſed againſt an offender in his Court, the offender petitioned the Emperor, that his death and puniſhment might be haſtened, but the Emperor returns his anſwer; O man, I am not yet friends: wicked men they wrong God's juſtice, and they expect their torments ſhould ſoon be at an end, no, ſaith God, as Tiberius anſwered Mark 12. 59. his malefactor, you and I are not yet friends; you have not yet ſatiſfied my juſtice for all your treſpaſſes, and you ſhall not depart thence till you have paid the very laſt mite. Why alas! this can never be done by a man's own ſufferings. God is infinite, and juſtice is infinite, and there is no infinity in a reprobates ſuffering, but onely in reſpect of durance; and therefore as long as God is God, and as God is a juſt God, ſo long muſt there be an Hell for the damned to ſuffer in. Oh who can ſtand before theſe Iſaiah 33. 14. everlaſting burnings! who can dwell with the devouring fire! who amongſt us can dwell with the everlaſting burning!

4. Effects.

What are the effects, O my ſoul! of this Eternity of hell? ſurely many ſad and miſerable effects: as ſhrieking, howling, weeping, wailing, and gnaſhing of teeth for evermore. The Apoſtle tells us of thoughts between themſelves accuſing them- Romans 2. 15. ſelves. Inſiſt, O my ſoul! on that one effect, when the damned ſhall conſider their dooms, go ye into everlaſting fire, then ſhall they caſt their deep thoughts on { time paſt: eternity to come.

5. Oppoſites.

Why then, O my ſoul! doſt thou ſet up thy reſt on this ſide Jordan? what are thoſe few ſhort pleaſures thou here enjoyeſt? what is this brittle life, on which depends eternal woe? what is earth to hell? what a minute to this eternity of hell. If any thing be contrary to this eternity, what is it but this punctilio of time we have here to ſpend? this little brittle life, what is it but an ell, a ſpan, an inch, a point? O dear penny-worth, to buy the merry madneſs of one hour, with ages of pangs, infinite and eternal! O deareſt bargain that ever was, to ſell away heaven (our everlaſting inheritance) with Eſau, for a ſip of momentary pleaſure; I ſee this world and the other are mere oppoſites; my life is ſo little, and this eternity ſo long, that I cannot tell what is more contrary than theſe two: My life is nothing but a Now, this inſtant is properly my own, I cannot promiſe to my ſelf any thing future, and therefore my life and this eternity are as contrary as may be.

6. Compariſons.

But to what ſhall I compare this Eternity? as a drop of water is unto the ſea, and a gravel ſtone in compariſon of the ſand, ſo are a thouſand years to the day of eternity: Nay, if we multiply a thouſand Eccleſ. 1 years a thouſand times, it would not amount to the leaſt fraction of the numberleſs number of eternity. They ſay, that the eighth cœleſtial Orb or Sphere, is moved wonderful leiſurely, for though it be daily wheeled about by the rapid motion of the primum mobile, yet it finiſheth not its own proper circuit but once in thirty ſix thouſand years; and this ſpace of time they call the great year, or Plato's year: but compare this with eternity, and it will appear but as a moment, a very nothing at all; to what then mayſt thou compare this eternity? O my ſoul it is like an Orb, every way round, and like it ſelf, or like a wheel of fire, that ſo long as it hath fire turns, and turns, doth never ceaſe turning; but alas! there is no compariſon apt for this; there is nothing miſerable, and eternally miſerable but hell it-ſelf, and the things and perſons contained in hell.

7. Teſtimonies.

Is not the Scripture (O my ſoul!) frequent in the mention of this Eternity? much of it we read not in the Old-Teſtament, but how often in the New? how then is this called legal preaching? were the Evangeliſts and Apoſtles legal Preachers? was Jeſus Chriſt himſelf a legal preacher? ſurely 'tis the great policy of Satan to muzzle men in their ſecurity to have all ſoul-ſearching, and ſin-reproving, and conſcience-awaking, and duty-preſſing preaching, called legal preaching: Oh! it is a great policy of the devil to put ſo bad a name upon ſo good a work. Come! leave theſe trifles, and look about thee, To Iſaiah 8. 20. the Law, and to the teſtimonies, if they ſpeak not according to this Word, it is becauſe there is no light in them. John the Prodromus deſcribes Chriſt thus; His fan is in his hand, he will throughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat into the garner, but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire; it is Mat. 3. 12. fire, and fire unquenchable, both in an active and paſſive ſenſe; for neither of it ſelf ſhall it ever be quenched, nor ſhall the bodies that are in it be extinguiſhed. And Chriſt himſelf adviſeth thus, if thy hand or foot offend thee cut them off, and caſt Mat. 18. 8. them from thee, it is better for thee to enter into life halt or maimed, rather than having two hands, or two feet to be caſt into everlaſting fire. This everlaſting fire is the hell of hells; call any miſery, everlaſting, and there is miſery in perfection. O the fearful ſentence, depart from me ye curſed into everlaſting fire! and oh that direful execution, theſe ſhall go Matth. 25. 31. v. 26. away into everlaſting puniſhment! Chriſt elſewhere tells us, that the fire never ſhall be quenched, and he repeats it three times over in one chapter, that their worm dyeth not, and the fire is not quenched, Mar. 9. 43, 44, 46, 48. Mark. 9. 44, 46, 48. The Apoſtle ſpeaks the ſame doctrine, and tells us that they that know not God, 2 Theſ. 1. 8, 9. God, and that obey not the Goſpel of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, ſhall be puniſhed with everlaſting deſtruction from the preſence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power. 2 Pet. 2. 17. Jude 13. Peter tells us of a miſt of darkneſs reſerved for the wicked for ever: And Jude tells us of the blackneſs of darkneſs reſerved for the wicked for ever: Rev. 14. 11. 19. 3. And John tells us of a dark ſmoak, which aſcends up out of that pit of fire for ever and ever. A ſtrange fire it is, that hath no light, but is all dark, yea, darkneſs it ſelf, yea blackneſs of darkneſs; ſuch a darkneſs both fire and ſmoak, that it may be felt; as being a thouſand times thicker than the darkneſs of Egypt: indeed that darkneſs was but for three days, but this darkneſs is for ever and ever: that darkneſs had ſome liberty, for even then Pharoah could ſend for Moſes, but this darkneſs is a very chain; 2 Pet. 2. 4. Jude 6. they are reſerved in chains of darkneſs; in everlaſting chains under darkneſs: it is called chains to ſhew that a man ſhall be as unable to get out of hell, if once he be there, as a man fettered with chains in darkneſs is unable to free himſelf, or to find the way out of that dark place. Nay a ſtrange Rev. 19. 20. fire it is in an other reſpect; the Apoſtle calls it a lake of fire, or a pool of fire, or if thou wilt, a river of fire; to note the abundance of torments that are in hell; that as in rivers and lakes the water is plentiful; ſo plentiful torments ſhall be for them, that ſhall be caſt into this direful place: Revel. 20. 10. it is not onely fire; but a lake of fire, nor onely a lake of fire; but a lake of fire and brimſtone too; where the Beaſt and the falſe Prophet ſhall be tormented day and night for ever and ever. O here is a new Acheldama, and vale of Hinnom, places no leſſor of terror than of torment, where the fury of the great Judge burns in a fiery brimſtone, and his revenge boils in a fiery torrent, limitleſs and unquenchable. In all theſe texts conſider the horrible threatenings of the Goſpel, the ſevere intermination of eternal pains. This is not legal preaching, the law never threatened thus; Some maintain ſtrongly, that the terrors of the law did end in a temporal death, for they could affright no farther; but in the Goſpel heaven and hell were opened, and laid before the ſons of men. In ſome reſpects the law is indeed more terrible than the Goſpel, becauſe it allowed no mercy to the repenting ſinner in greater inſtances, as the Goſpel does: But then if we compare the ſtate of thoſe men who fell under the evils of the law, with thoſe who fall under the evils threatened in the goſpel, we ſhall find theſe to be in a far worſe condition than thoſe were, as much as hell is worſe then being ſtoned to death, or being thruſt through with a ſword: to which purpoſe, ſaith the Heb. 10. 28, 29. Apoſtle, He that deſpiſed Moſes*'s law dyed without mercy under two or three witneſſes; of how much ſorer puniſhment ſuppoſe ye, ſhall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the Covenant, wherewith he was ſanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done deſpight unto the Spirit of grace?* they were puniſhed by death that ——tranſgreſſed Moſes's law; but of how much ſorer puniſhments are they worthy, who tranſgreſs the Goſpel of Jeſus Chriſt? Oh let none miſtake the mercies of the new Covenant, nor turn the grace of God into wantonneſs; for the mercies of the Goſpel neither allow us to ſin, nor inflict an eaſier puniſhment for ſin, but rather they oblige us to more holineſs under a greater penalty! Thus far O my ſoul! for the information of thy judgment, now for the ſtirring up of thy affections.

1. Reliſh.

O Eternity of hell! O that thou wert ever in my mind when pleaſure fawneth, when luſt provoketh, when the fleſh rebelleth, when the Spirit faileth! the very thoughts of this Eternity, if ſanctified to me, might be to my ſoul's eternal advantage; thoughts of hell driving me to Jeſus Chriſt are queſtionleſs to be cheriſhed, and to be kept alive. And therefore, O my ſoul! go on, conſider of this Eternity of hell; till thou feeleſt ſome reliſh of it's bitterneſs, and beginneſt to fear and tremble, to deteſt thy ſin, to grieve and to be aſhamed for thy ſin, to maintain an holy jealouſie, anger and indignation againſt thy ſelf for ſin; to pity thoſe that by their ſin are in danger of this Eternity, and to love thy Jeſus with a ſincere love, who by his death, hath delivered thy ſoul from the nethermoſt hell. And to that purpoſe.——

1. Conſider the Eternity of that which divines call the pain of loſs: O that ſad word, depart ye curſed into everlaſting fire! that word depart comprehends Matth. 25. 41. in it the loſs of all: as 1. The loſs of God: this is the great torment of a damned man, that he is without God; the preſence of God makes heaven to be heaven, and the abſence of God makes hell more hell; If Abſolon counted it ſo great miſery, that he was weary of his life, becauſe he might not ſee his father for a while, what a wearineſs will it be to be damned, that they ſhall not ſee God to be their father, not only for a while, but for ever and ever! It is our complaint uſually in damps, dejections, deſertions, God is gone: but oh what complaints are thoſe of the damned in hell, that God is gone for ever! they are not baniſhed out of God's preſence only for a day, or a month, or a year, or during the time of this life, but for ever and ever; they muſt never ſee his face again: 2. This Depart comprehends the loſs of Chriſt: though they may own him at the laſt day as an huſband, and him as their own, and come and ſpeak good words to him in a complemental way, we have eat and drank in thy preſence, we have been baptized in thy name, we have been often at thy table, we have been kind to our Miniſters, and we have done theſe things for the publick: O! but ſaith Chriſt, I know ye not, depart from me ye that work iniquity; Oh what a loſs is this, to be forced even to turn the back upon Jeſus Chriſt, to be out of all hopes, or poſſibility of God's Mercy in Chriſt, and to be ſent packing into Hell, and there chained up! 3. This depart, comprehends the loſs of that Glorious company of Saints and Angels for ever: whilſt they were on Earth, they enjoyed the company of the Saints of God, but the time of their being in Hell, is the time of their Separation, Mat. 13. 30. let both grow together until the harveſt, but in the time of harveſt I will ſay to the Reaper, gather ye together firſt the Tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them, but gather the Wheat into my barn. 4. This depart comprehends the loſs of Heaven, the place of Bleſſedneſs; there is a great gulf (ſaith Abraham) between us and you, Luke 16. 26. ſo that they which would paſs from hence to you cannot, neither can they paſs to us that would come from thence. If Tully did ſo bewail his baniſhment, that every time he looked towards Italy he fell a weeping; and if Demoſthenes did ſo bewail his baniſhment, that every time he looked towards Athens he fell a weeping; how will the thoughts of this loſs of Heaven grieve the Damned? And eſpecially if this be conſidered, that all this loſs is without all hope of any recovery at all: We ſay uſually, if it were not for hope the heart would break; but here is no hope; and yet the heart muſt hold.

O loſs never to be redeemed! Never to be reſtored, or recovered!

2. Conſider the Eternity of that which Divines call the pain of ſenſe; not that thou canſt conſider it fully, but that in ſome brief diſcovery thou mayſt think over the greatneſs of thoſe fiery Torments that are in Hell. As 1. there is variety of Torments; on Earth thou mayſt be ſick of a ſtone, or gout, or plague, or feavour; but in Hell there is not one of theſe kinds, but variety of Torments, there is fire to burn, and Brimſtone to choke, and chains to bind; and darkneſs to affright; all the diſeaſes under Heaven are in Hell; there is the ſtone, and the cholick, and ſtrangury, and toothache, and pangs of Travail: Who knows what to call thoſe Torments, we may give them ſuch names as theſe, as being things moſt Terrible and Tormenting in this World, but certainly all theſe are nothing to thoſe Helliſh Tortures, which the Bodies and Souls of the damned do endure. 2. There is not only variety, but univerſality of Torments: (i. e.) In reſpect of the ſubjects that muſt endure; all the parts of the Body, and all the powers of the Soul ſhall be Tormented at once: And this makes the Torments of Hell more dreadful; the eye ſhall be Tormented with the ſight of Devils; the ears with the hideous yellings and outcries of the Damned in flames, the noſtrils ſhall be ſmothered (as it were with Brimſtone; the hand, the foot, the tongue, and every part ſhalt fry in flames of fire: Not only the Body, but the Soul ſhall be tormented: Yea, the Soul-torments ſhall exceed all the Torments of the Body; it was chief in ſinning, and therefore muſt be chief in ſuffering; it is of a more ſpiritual and excellent nature than the Body, and therefore it is capable of more ſpiritual and more exquiſite torments; as the joys of the Soul do far ſurpaſs all ſenſual pleaſures, and corporal contentments, ſo the pains of the Soul do ſo far ſurpaſs thoſe corporal pains, which either we have named, or poſſibly can name. 3. There is not only variety, and univerſality, but extremity of Torments; the fire of Hell burns ſo violently, that all the waters of the Sea are not able to quench it. Suppoſe a man had a diſtemper upon all the parts of his Body, and powers of his Soul, yet if his pain were not extreme, he would better endure it: But ſhould a man have his Body afflicted, and his Mind troubled, and all this is the higheſt extremity that may be, to this man Death is far better. Certainly Hell-torments are to the utmoſt extremity; the fire is an hundred times hotter than the fire of Nebuchadnezzar; that was heat ſeven times hotter than at uſual times; the damned lie under as heavy a weight of God's wrath as their natures can bear. O the fierceneſs of this fire! O my Soul! if lying under the guilt of thy ſin but for an hour or two, was ſo extreme to Chriſt, that it made him ſweat drops, even great drops of Blood; what will the extremity of thoſe Torments in Hell make the reprobates doe? 4. There is not only variety, and univerſality, and extremity, but a continuity of Torments; Hell-torments are without any intermiſſion; when the Damned have drunken down whole draughts of Brimſtone one Day, they muſt do ſo another day; when they have lain under the fury of an incenſed God one day, they muſt lie again under the ſame weight of his Divine and Almighty wrath another day; in Hell there is not ſo much as one minute's eaſe: They ſhall have no reſt day nor night: It is comfort to a ſick man though he cannot ſleep in the night, if he may have eaſe in the Morning; but in Hell there is no reſt, night, nor morning: In the Morning they ſhall ſay, would God it were evening, and at evening they ſay, would God it were morning. Deut. 28. 67. And the reaſon of their continual ſuffering, is becauſe of their continual ſinning; the very Language of Hell is Curſing, Swearing, Blaſpheming, and therefore there is no ceſſation of Pain, nor intermiſſion of Torment, nor permiſſion of Comfort; the Wrath of God abides on them, ſaith Chriſt; Joh. 3.36. it doth not light on them for a turn, but it abides on them for ever.

3. Conſider the eternity of that worm of Conſcience within the Damned; not only pain without, but a flaming Conſcience is within: There is a worm (as Chriſt inculcates) which never dies; Mar. 9.44, 46, 48. when Caligula heard but the voice of thunder, he was ſo terrified within, that he ran under a bed: as the Damned are in Hell, ſo there is an Hell in them: And this is that worm Chriſt ſpeaks of which will gnaw them, and feed on them to all eternity. The gnawings of this worm are thoſe ſeveral conſiderations, that their underſtandings, conſciences, memories ſhall bring into them: As for Example. 1. They ſhall conſider of the greatneſs of that Glory which they have loſt; What! 'Tis not a piece of Earth, a Crown, a Diademe of Gold, but an exceeding eternal weight of Glory: Oh they have loſt God and Chriſt, they have loſt Heaven, and all the Inhabitants of Heaven! Oh they have loſt God, the Viſions of God, and fruitions of God to all eternity! And at this conſideration the worm gives one deadly bite. 2. They ſhall conſider of the poſſibility that once they were in of obtaining Heaven; is not this their Language: Once I lived under ſuch a Miniſter, and many a time he ſet before me Life and Death; many a time he called on me, return, return, O Shulamite*! return, return; many a time he prayed over me, wept over me; beſought me with tears to conſider whither I was a going, and had I but embraced the tenders, offers, and motions of Grace he made, now I might have had poſſeſſion of the inheritance, I might have been amongſt yond bleſſed Saints, who am now Tormented with thoſe Damned fiends*: And at this conſideration the worm gives him another deadly bite. 3. They ſhall conſider of the great probability that once they were in of obtaining Heaven; and this is more: Oh I had once the gales of the Spirit to aſſiſt me; I was ſometimes full purpoſed to have been another man, to have cleaved to Chriſt, and to have forſook the World; I was almoſt reſolved to have been wholly for God; I was once even turning from my baſe ſeducing luſts, and I was purpoſed never to take them up again: I had even caſt off my old companions, and was reſolved to have aſſociated my ſelf with the dear people of God; and yet I returned back, and loſt my hold, and broke my promiſes, and ſlacked my purpoſes, and now where am I! O woe is me, that once I was ſo fair for Heaven, and am now in Hell! If I had followed on to ſeek the Lord, and brought thoſe beginnings to maturity, I might now have been ſinging with the Saints, inſtead of houling with theſe reprobates. And at this conſideration the worm gives him another deadly bite. 4. They ſhall conſider of the Golden time and opportunity for Heaven which God afforded them whilſt they were living, and now is gone. Oh, will they ſay, I had once time enough to have wrought out my Salvation with fear and trembling, yea I had ſo much time that I knew not what to doe with it; I was fain to deviſe mirths, fooleries, paſtimes, to paſs away the time; O the Golden hours I did enjoy! Oh the bleſſed ſeaſons of Grace I ſometimes had! but now it's gone, it's gone, it's gone; Oh my days are cut off, my glaſs is run, my ſun is ſet, and it will never, never, never riſe again! Time was that God himſelf held me the candle that I might doe his work, but Alas! Alas! I loytered till all was burnt out: Oh that I had but one of thoſe years to live over again! Oh that I had but one week, one day, one hour of that precious time I once enjoyed! Oh that God would turn me into the World, and try me once again, how I would ſpend my life on Earth! how would I repent and faſt, and pray, and watch, and hear, and read, and doe all Duties! But Oh! Oh! Oh! It's now too late: The pits mouth wherein I am, is ſealed up, and there is no Redemption hence; here I am, and here I muſt lie in theſe ſcorching flames for ever, and ever, and ever. And at this conſideration the worm bites again: Oh who can tell the many conſiderations, and conſequently the many deadly bites of this worm of Conſcience of Damned Souls in Hell!

4. Conſider the Eternity of that ſpace and duration through which the damned muſt endure all thoſe loſſes, torments, ſtings of conſcience, why this is Eternity it ſelf, this is that Eternity indeed which we call the Eternity of Hell; Nay, this is Hell in Hell. O the roarings in Hell at the very conſideration; If I might but endure all the pains of Hell ſo many millions of years as there are ſands on the Sea-ſhore, or graſs-piles on the Earth, or motes in the Air, or ſtars in the Firmament, or Creatures both in Heaven and Earth: I ſhould comfort my ſelf incredibly with this thought, my miſery will at laſt have an end! But oh, this Word Eternity even rends my Heart in pieces with much rage, and hideous roaring! this word Eternity gives ſtill new Life to thoſe unſufferable ſorrows, which infinitely exceed all expreſſion, or imagination. Oh my Soul doſt thou not now begin to reliſh the bitterneſs of Sin, and bitterneſs of Hell! Conſider it throughly: Thoſe Damned Souls that are in Hell muſt not be there only for a day, month, a year, an age, no, no; when a thouſand millions of ages are gone and paſt, their Torments are as freſh to begin as at the firſt day: They were never weary of ſinning, nor ever would have been, if they had lived Eternally upon Earth, and now God will never be weary of plaguing; they never heartily repented of their ſin, and God will never repent him of their ſuffering: They broke the Law of the Eternal God and therefore they muſt ſuffer eternal puniſhment: They knew it was an Everlaſting Kingdom which they refuſed when it was offered them, and therefore what wonder if they be everlaſtingly ſhut out of the ſame; their Souls are immortal, and therefore Hell is immortal. O Eternity of Hell! How ſhould I apprehend thee? O my Soul! Where art thou? Where is thy ſtanding? Which way doſt thou caſt thine eyes? If on the Earth, thou ſeeſt (eſpecially in ſummer time) many graſs piles grow thereon; ſuppoſe at the end of every thouſand years a Damned Soul might have the liberty to pluck up one graſs, and then to Hell and to ſufferings again; and at the end of another thouſand years he might pluck up another graſs, and ſo on till every graſs pile on the Earth were gone, how many thouſands thouſands of thouſands of years would be before this work were done? Or, if thou art on the Sea, and travelleſt on the Ocean, thou ſeeſt many drops of Water therein, ſuppoſe at the end of every thouſand years a Damned Soul might have the liberty to put his little finger into the Sea, and to let one drop fall off into Hell, where that fire might dry it up; how many thouſands, thouſands of thouſands of years would be before all the Ocean were removed and took away by one drop only in one thouſand years? Here I know thou art at a ſtand, if thou wert the beſt Arithmetician in the world, thou wouldſt never reckon up the numberleſs number of thoſe multiplied thouſands; and yet, woe and alas! When the Damned have been ſo many years in that fiery lake, as all thoſe thouſands would amount unto, they are no nearer coming out, than the very firſt hour they entred in. O my Soul, thou art afraid of Death, and of thy departure from the Body, but now think with thy ſelf, what a mercy would it be for the Damned Souls if they might Die? How do they call and cry out for it: O death whither art thou gone? O come, come, come, and cut off this doleful life of mine! O that theſe pains would quite break my Heart and end my being! O that I might die at laſt: Theſe groans will the thoughts of Eternity wring from their Hearts; They were wont to think Sermons long, and prayers long, but how long now will they think thoſe endleſs Torments? O the bitterneſs of this Eternity! Methinks I ſee into Hell; there's a man in the fire, and a worm at his Heart; the fire burns him, and the worm bites him, yet neither of theſe make an end of him; there he roars, and yells, and houls, and cries; O woe is me for ever! A man ſaid I! Alas! Broad is the way, and many there are that walk Hell-ward: It were enough indeed to make all tremble, though there were but one amongſt all the Sons of Adam to ſuffer Eternally, but that Hell ſhould enlarge her ſelf, and open her mouth without meaſure, and their Glory, and their Multitude, and their Pomp ſhould deſcend into it! Iſa. 5. That there ſhould be millions of men of the ſame fleſh and blood that I am chained together in Hell, when one roars, and another anſwers, and all bear the burthen, woe and alaſs for ever, in one nook of Hell there's a lamentable ſhriek, woe for ever! in another corner far remote, there's another fearful ſhriek; woe for ever; in all the corners of thoſe ſmoaky vaults there's a cry, or an eccho of this cry, for ever! for ever, for ever, for ever, O my Soul how is it thou canſt ſleep in the Night, or be merry in the Day, whilſt thou thinkeſt attentively, or conſidereſt throughly of this Meditation? Leſs matters have ſometimes beſtraught men of their wits, and bereaved them of their lives. But O what hatred deteſtation of ſin? What grief for ſin? What Godly ſhame? What unfeigned Repentance? What holy anger and indignation againſt thy ſelf for thy miſcarriages? What zeal, and jealouſie over thy Heart? What pitty in thee towards thoſe who are ignorantly walking on towards this Eternity, ſhould this Meditation work? And withal, O what pangs of Love ſhould this work in thee to thy Saviour! Conſider O my Soul! Hell was thy native right, this damnable Eternity thy deſerved Portion, thoſe ſhould have been (if free Grace had not been) thy hideous cries, thy doleful groans, thy eaſeleſs pains, thy endleſs Torments; thoſe unquenchable flames ſhould'ſt thou have lain in; that never-dying worm ſhould have fed upon thee; ſay, didſt thou not ſlight thy Redeemer a long, a very long time? Didſt thou not for many days, and months, and years forget thy God, and ſelf, as well as yonder damned ſuffering Souls? And oh who made thee to differ! Was thy Heart naturally any readier for Chriſt than theirs? Would'ſt thou ever have begun to love, if God and Chriſt had not begun to love thee? Would'ſt thou ever have been willing, if he had not made thee willing? Nay had thou not now been in thoſe flames, if thou hadſt had thine one way and will? Didſt thou not reſiſt as powerful means, and loſe as fair advantages as thoſe that are now in Hell? And would'ſt thou not have lingred in Sodom till the flames had ſeized on thee, if God had not in Mercy carried thee out? Oh how free was all this Love! And oh what pangs of Love ſhould this beget in thee!

2. Complaint.

But alas! Where is my reliſh of theſe things? Oh where is my Spiritual Senſe and taſte? If I put gall into my mouth, I ſpit it out again; it is ſo very bitter that I cannot endure to take a taſte; but is not Sin and Hell a thouſand times better? Oh then where is my hatred, grief and ſhame? Where is my zeal, angry and holy jealouſie? Where is my repentance not to be repented of? Where is Dan. 5.41. my pity? Where is my love? Where is my fear? When Belſhazzar ſaw but the hand-writing upon the wall, his joints trembled, and his knees ſmote one upon Pſal. 119. 120. the other. When holy David conſidered of God's Judgments, he ſaid, My fleſh trembleth for fear of thee, Matt. 10. 28. I am afraid of thy Judgments: It is Chriſt's own precept, fear not them which kill the Body, but are not able to kill the Soul, but rather fear him which is able to deſtroy both Soul and Body in Hell. When little Children ſee their Fathers angry, and go like a Lyon about the houſe in Puniſhing their Servants, or bond-ſlaves, the Children tremble and are exceedingly afraid; O my Soul! If thou art a Child of God, and knoweſt theſe things though for thine own part thou art freed from Hell, for there is no condemnation to them which are in Chriſt Jeſus, who walk not af- Rom. 8.1. ter the fleſh, but after the Spirit, yet in this caſe how is it that thou doſt not tremble? How is it that the Judgments of God upon the damned do not make thee fear, But eſpecially how is that thou art not afraid of ſin, which if truly underſtood, is a thouſand times worſe than very Hell? It is a more woe- Chry. hom. 27. in Mat. ful thing (ſaith Chryſoſtom) to diſhonour Jeſus Chriſt, than to be vexed with the Torments of the damned. And if ſin were on the one hand (ſaith Anſelme) and hell on the other, I had rather go into Hell than run into ſin, Anſel. de ſimilit. c. 190. in marg. yea, I would rather leap into the fiery lake (ſaith Edmund his ſucceſſour) than knowingly to commit any ſin againſt the Lord, O the fiery zealous ſentences that could come from theſe ancient holy men! But alas! Such a dulneſs, drowzineſs, ſenſleſneſs, benumbedneſs of Spirit hath ſeized on my Spirit, that I feel not ſuch fire, my affections are not in ſuch a flame, either of hatred of ſin, or fear of God, or love of Chriſt, or trembling at God's Judgments.

3. Wiſh.

And yet, O that I could reliſh ſavingly the bitterneſs of this eternity of hell! It is a ſavory ſpeech of Bernard, let us go down to hell while we are alive, that we may not go down to hell when we are dead. O that in this meditation I may ſo go down to hell, as that I may feel my bowels ſtir within me, both to compaſſionate the wicked, and to be careful and fearful of my own poor ſoul! O that I may for ever take heed that I run not the hazards of eternal torments! I cannot but expect while I am upon earth, that Satan will tempt, and ſet before me this and that ſnare of ſin: But O that a thought of hell may even then check my heart! and that I may tell Satan, I intend not to buy pleaſure at ſo dear a rate; I intend not to ſuffer eternally for a momentary ſin; O that I may put off temptations, with reſolutions! O that whilſt I am on this ſide death, I may make conſcience of every duty, and of every opportunity to gain heaven's eternity, and to eſcape this eternal wrath to come! O that I may throughly conſider the evil and abominable nature of ſin! ſurely if it were not an abominable evil, It would never have ſuch an intolerable eternal puniſhment! O that I may never look upon ſin with ſlight thoughts! O that I may really and feelingly underſtand that ſin is worſe than Hell; becauſe it made hell to be hell! O that I may ſee ſin rather in a multiplying, than a diminiſhing glaſs; that I may ſee it attended with that variety, univerſality, extremity, and perpetuity of torments? that I may ſee it with deteſtation, grief, and ſhame; that I may ſee it with zeal, anger, and holy jealouſie; that I may ſee it with loathing, and with a repentance not to be repented of! O my God, how fain would I ſhake hands with ſin and Hell, and bid adieu for ever! Surely thou madeſt me for thy ſelf; O let me never undo my ſelf eternally by my own miſcarriages?

4. Confeſſion.

Thus I wiſh; but did not Balaam wiſh as well as I? It is not a cold, faint wiſh, that will keep a ſoul out of eternal flames; if wiſhes would deliver them that now are in priſon, I believe there would be no want of wiſhes; it is uſually ſaid, hell is full of good wiſhes, and heaven is full of good works; if I wiſh to purpoſe, I muſt put to endeavours, I muſt watch, and pray, and labour, and love the Lord with all my ſoul and ſtrength. But alas Lord! without thee I cannot doe this; O I find it an hard work to climb up the hill! but the deſcent of hell is very eaſie, and ſuitable to nature: in every puddle of ſin I am ready to ſink, why, Lord ſave me, or I periſh.

5. Petition.

O my God! the price of my ſoul is in this Petition; and therefore whilſt I live I beg, and I will beg at thy hands, O ſave me that I periſh not. Is not my ſoul thy darling? was not a great price laid down for the purchaſe of it? did not the eternal ſon of God come down from heaven, and die that curſed death of the Croſs, to deliver my ſoul from eternal flames? Is not my Jeſus now interceeding for me in heaven, that I may not ſuffer eternally in hell? O let the blood of Chriſt, the merits of Chriſt, and interceſſions of Chriſt be effectual for me! O ſave my ſoul from this eternity; O deliver my ſoul from the nethermoſt hell! And not only from hell, but Lord ſave me from my ſins; it is ſaid of Chriſt, that his name is Jeſus, for he ſhall ſave his people from Matth. 1. 21. their ſins; Surely ſin is the worſt of evils, there is no hell, but for ſin; ſin firſt kindled the fire of hell, ſin fuels it; take away ſin, and that tormenting flame goes out; O then deliver me as from hell, ſo from ſin! good Lord I pray as Chriſt hath taught me, O lead me not into temptation, but deliver me from evil, from the evil of ſin, and from the evil of eternal ſufferings!

6. Confidence.

And this, O my God! I am perſuaded thou wilt doe; for thou haſt given me a ſhare in the blood of Chriſt. Pliny tells us, that nothing in the world will ſo ſoon quench fire as ſalt and blood; and therefore in many Countries where they can get blood, they uſe it rather than water, to quench their. O my Lord! what if eternal fire be in hell; yet the blood of Chriſt will quench thoſe flames, that none of them ſhall ſcorch my ſoul; and haſt thou not ſaid, that the blood of Chriſt was ſhed for me, and for the remiſſion of my ſins? haſt thou not aſſured me of it in the Sacrament? And have I not received that blood, and drunk that blood, and bathed my ſoul in that bloody fountain, that takes away all ſin, and all uncleanneſs? Why Lord I believe, help thou my unbelief. Some evidences thou haſt given me of thy Spirit, and of holineſs, and of the graces of thy Spirit: is there not a light in my mind? is there not ſome meaſure of life in my will and affections? have I not ſometimes ſeen the loathſomneſs of ſin, and the excellency of grace? have I not ſometimes felt the burthen of my own corruption, and thirſted after more and more grace, that I might be enabled in every thing to pleaſe my God? and haſt thou not ſaid, there is no con- Rom. 8. 1. demnation to them that are in Chriſt Jeſus, that walk not after the fleſh, but after the Spirit? I have read of a godly miniſter, who having been under a ſpirit of bondage for many years, and now even ready to dye in that condition; when the eighth chapter of the Romans was read a little before his laſt gaſp, ſtopping at the firſt verſe, now there is no condemnation to them that are in Chriſt Jeſus, &c. Stay (ſaid he) I never ſaw ſo much in thoſe words, in my days as now, though I read them often. Methinks I am of his mind, upon a ſerious review, I would not part with this one text of Scripture for a world of gold: Methinks after all my tremblings in this meditation of the eternity of hell, I can now with an holy comfort, and humble triumph think upon death, judgment, hell, and thoſe endleſs torments; and why? if I am but in Chriſt, and am guided by the Spirit of grace and ſanctification, there is no condemnation can ſeize on me; I have the witneſs both of blood and water, and therefore I ſhall not be damned.

Concluſion.

Pſal. 116. 7. In this confidence, return O my ſoul unto thy reſt, for the Lord hath been beneficial unto thee! But for ever hereafter hate ſin more than hell it ſelf: when all comes to all, ſin is a greater ill than the eternal damnation of a man, nay than the deſtruction of all the creatures in the world. Although many doe think that hell is the chiefeſt and the greateſt Chryſ. in Mar. hom. 37. v. 233. of all evils, yet I think (ſaith Chriſoſtom) that it is much bitterer to offend Chriſt, than to be tormented eternally in hell; and I would rather have hell, being in- De vita Anſel. l. 2. in op. Anſelm. nocent and free from ſin (ſaith Anſelme) than polluted with the filth thereof to poſſeſs the kingdom of heaven. I know theſe were extraordinary elevations of holy, divine, and heroical ſpirits; yet imitate them, O my ſoul! and hate ſin, as knowing ſin to be the only object of God's extreme hatred: ——and as knowing ſin to be the only meritorious cauſe of this eternity of hell. And now in the cloſe of all remember Jeſus Chriſt: it was his ſufferings that prevents thy ſufferings of hell-flames! ſo dear was his love to thee, that he underwent God's heavy wrath that thou might'ſt eſcape it: Remember that text, 1 Theſ. 1. 10. it was Jeſus, even Jeſus who delivered thee from the wrath to come. O mind thy Jeſus, and love thy Jeſus, and live to thy Jeſus; and whil'ſt thou liveſt, ſing praiſes to thy redemption! Say as the Pſalmiſt in this caſe, I will praiſe thee O Lord my God with all my heart, and I will glorifie thy name for evermore, for great is thy mercy toward me, and thou haſt delivered my ſoul from the loweſt hell. Pſal. 86. 12. ad finem.

Sect. 7. Another Example of the Eternity of heaven.

O My ſoul! what is this Eternity of heaven whereof thou ſtudieſt? It is the entire and perfect poſſeſſion of a life, together, and at once, that never ſhall have end; it is a circle of joy running back into it, ſelf whoſe center is always, and circumference without all end; it is a duration of pleaſure always pre- Pſal. 116. 1, 2. ſent; in thy preſence there is fulneſs of joy, and at thy right hand are pleaſures evermore; it is one perpetual day, which is not divided into that which is paſt, and that which is to come; it is an age of ages, ever flouriſhing, never expiring; it is a beginning of glory, never ending, always beginning; why this, O my ſoul! is the eternity of heaven.

2. Diſtribution.

There is a twofold Eternity of heaven, à parte ante, and à parte poſt. In reſpect of beginning, if we look on heaven in God's decree, it was from eternity; or if in reſpect of exiſtence, it was not till the creation; onely it was the firſt creature that ever God made. In the beginning God created Gen. 1. 1. heaven and earth: By heaven; ſome underſtand the Empyreal heaven, excluding all inferiour Orbs, though others otherwiſe: howſoever this heaven which is the place of God's Glory; and of the Angels habitation, who were created together with it, was the firſt in order of the firſt day's work; but let that go; in reſpect of ending, heaven is indeed eternal, and without all end. In heaven is no corruption, nor old age; but ſolemn glory, and continual ſolemnity; there is an everlaſting ſpring, there is always the flower and grace of youth, and perfect health, with thee is the fountain of life; and Pſal. 36. 9. in thy light ſhall we ſee light.

3. Cauſes.

The Cauſe of this Eternity is God's reſolution from eternity: it is reſolved from eternity that heaven it ſelf ſhould be eternal without all end; or elſe, why hath God given us immortal ſouls? if the Lord intended not eternal proviſions for his Saints, to what purpoſe ſhould they have ſouls capable of eternity? God and nature (ſaith the Philoſopher) never dce any thing in vain. Surely God, and grace, and his infinite wiſdom cannot work in vain. Again, Jeſus Chriſt hath purchaſed an eternal manſion for us: So he calls the purchaſed inheritance; In my father's houſe are many manſions: now Joh. 14. 2. manſions are not tabernacles, but durable houſes: 2 Cor. 5. 1. We know that if our earthly houſe of this tabernacle were diſſolved, we have a building of God, an houſe, not made with hands, eternal in the heaven.

4. Effects.

And what are the Effects, O my Soul! of this Eternity? O many Glorious, Bleſſed, Comfortable effects! I ſhall inſtance only in thoſe rouzing, raiſing, and moſt raviſhing thoughts; when the bleſſed ſhall conſider their doom, Come ye Bleſſed of my Father, inherit the Kingdom: Then ſhall they caſt their thoughts on { Time paſt.

Eternity to come.

1. For time paſt; they ſhall remember, that ſometimes they were in troubles, in ſorrows, in ſickneſſes, in contempt of others, in dangers by Sea and Land; that ſometimes they were ready to periſh, and to caſt away their Souls by this or that ſin, but that God ſtill held his ſpecial hand over them, and gave them Grace, and now hath brought them into the Port and Haven of ſecurity, where is no ſhadow of miſeries: O what raviſhing of Spirit will the Souls of the juſt be caſt into, at this recalling of time paſt! And that the memory of things here below, remains ſtill with all the Spirits of the juſt made perfect, is manifeſt: Remember me when Luke 23. 42. thou comeſt into thy Kingdom, ſaid the good thief to Chriſt.

2. For Eternity to come, they ſhall conſider, that the joy they enjoy, they ſhall enjoy for ever: They that be wiſe ſhall ſhine as the brightneſs of the fir- Dan. 12. 3. mament; and they that turn many to Righteouſneſs, as the ſtars for ever and ever, they ſhall ſhine, how? As Mat. 13. 45. the firmament, as the ſtars, or as the ſun, ſaith our Saviour: Not ſo (ſaith Chryſoſtom) as that they ſhould not ſurpaſs the brightneſs of the Sun, but the Sun being the moſt glittering thing in the World, he takes a reſemblance towards the expreſſing of their incomparable Glory: But to heighten this Glory, obſerve the auxeſes, it ſhall be for ever (i.e.) for eternity, or for ever and ever (i.e.) for eternity and eternity; or as the latins, in perpetuas æternitates, for perpetual eternities. If one eternity be without end, what are two? what are ten? what are an hundred? what are infinite? O what a life is this that knoweth no end! What a Glory is this that never fadeth! What a love is this that never cooleth! What a joy is this that never ceaſeth!

5. Oppoſites, and Compariſons.

As to that Eternity of Hell, ſo to this Eternity of Heaven, thou mayſt conſider the ſame oppoſites, and compariſons; nothing is more oppoſite to Heaven than this brittle little life we live on Earth: And for compariſon we know nothing at all points fit to be compared with it: It is a fountain of living water ever running, whither the waters after many turnings flow back again, that they may always flow.

6. Teſtimonies.

For a farther conformation of this Eternity, ſearch the Scriptures, for they teſtifie of this:
Dan. 12.3. They that be wiſe ſhall ſhine as the brightneſs of the firmament, and that turn many to righteouſneſs as the ſtars

Thus far, O my Soul, for the information of thy Judgment; now for the ſtirring up of thy Affections.

1. Reliſh.

Job. 19.23. 14. O Eternity of Joys! O that thou wert written in a book, that thou wert graven with an Iron Pen and Lead in the Rock for ever! O that my heart were the Book! That my Meditation were the Iron Pen and Lead! And that this word Eternity were imprinted and engraven in me! O my Soul, be Pſal. 37.7. eſtabliſhed, and ſay with David, my Heart is fixed, O God, my heart is fixed: Set thy ſelf in a ſure place, and ſtand a while; and ſtanding admire at this Eternity, which always ſtands, and never paſſeth away; and that thou mayſt taſte and reliſh, that thou mayſt be affected and moved with this Eternity, go up into Heaven and ſee thoſe inviſible ſights of Glory. Oh what happineſs is here of Saints! I ſhall reduce all to theſe heads, their { Duty.

Glory.
Eternity.

1. They are exerciſed in the higheſt imployments that any Creature can be exerciſed in; Hearken! The high praiſes of God are in their mouths: Behold the high Contemplations of God and of the Trinity are in their minds: They are always ſinging praiſes to God and to him that ſits upon the Throne. Surely this is the higheſt employment, for this is the higheſt Glory that God hath, not only from his works here, but from all the Counſels of his wiſdom about the great myſtery of Redemption, from all his works in Heaven, and from all the Communications of himſelf to the Saints in Heaven; the end of all that Gods does in the World is for his Glory, and the end of all that God does in Heaven, is for the actual working of the Souls of his Saints upon himſelf. Pſal. 1.9,6.

2. The Hearts of Saints are always up and fit for theſe high praiſes of God, they are not ſometimes enlarged and ſometimes ſtraitned; no, no, their Souls are always up, always upon the higheſt pin, inflamed with heat continually.

3. There is no intermiſſion of theſe high praiſes of God; the Saints continue day and night; they go not to duty, and break off again; and go again, and break off again; no, no, there is no other employment here, there is nothing elſe in Heaven to ſpend one moment of time into all Eternity.

4 There is no wearineſs in theſe Saints, though they are praiſing of God millions of years, yet they are as freſh at the end of them as at the firſt moment; O Eternity! O Eternal duty!

2. The Glory of theſe Saints is both in their Souls and Bodies, but becauſe their Bodies are not yet in Heaven, let paſs O my Soul that Glory, and conſider the Glory of theſe Souls of Saints; in each Soul there is the underſtanding, will, and affections: For the affections conſider only their joy, for the underſtanding and will, conſider their object they ſee, which is the Viſion of God; and the object they enjoy, which is the fruition of God: That relates to the underſtanding, this to the will.

1. For the joy of Saints, it is a pure joy without any mixture of ſorrow or ſin; it is a ſpiritual joy, flowing eſpecially from this, that God is their portion; it is a full joy, for they joy in God, they joy in the Glory of God, they joy in the Communication of God to them, they joy in the Glory of one another; look, how many Saints are in Heaven, ſo many joys have the Saints; for they rejoyce in every ones happineſs as in their own; this doubles and trebles, and multiplies their joys; O it is a full joy! But that which is more than all the reſt, it is a Divine joy, for it comes from God; and it is in God; and it is with God; it is the ſame joy that God himſelf hath; Carnal hearts rejoyce in ſenſual things, but God rejoyceth not in theſe things they rejoyce in; now the Saints in Heaven are exerciſed in the ſame joy that God himſelf hath; the beams of their joy are mingled with the beams of God's Joy. O Glorious joy! And yet the happineſs of Saints conſiſts not in this joy, for the enjoyment of God is above the joy of this enjoyment; proceed then O my Soul, wade farther and bathe thy ſelf in theſe delicious Rivers of their Heavenly Paradiſe.

2. For the Viſion of God, the underſtanding or the mind of Saints ſee God; in this happineſs of Heaven are incloſed theſe particulars.

1. The Saints know God, for ſeeing is put for knowing; Now we ſee through a Glaſs darkly, but then face to face; now we know in part, but then ſhall we know as we are known. Every Saint in Heaven underſtands all things, and knows all perſons ſo far as it may any way conduce to his happineſs: There 1 Cor. 13. 11.

is no ſimplicity, no ſhallowneſs in Heaven, all the Saints there have ſharpneſs of wit, conformity with God in knowledge, which is indeed the very image of God.

2. The Saints underſtand ſo clearly as that they need no help of Faith, no help of means to ſee thoſe Glorious things of Heaven, except that means we call the light of Glory. Indeed there is a light in Heaven above all the brightneſs of this World, a light that would dazle the eye of man and dim it; hence in this frail condition no man can ſee God and live; when God, or but an Angel appeared, how were men affrighted? But in Heaven the Souls of the juſt are elevated, and inabled to ſee with joy thoſe things that there are manifeſted; Pſal. 36. 9. In thy light ſhall we ſee light: It is called Col. 1. 12. the Inheritance of the Saints in light.

3. The Saints in this light ſee not only the attributes of God, his Mercy, Juſtice, Truth, and Wiſdom; but the very ſimple pure eſſence of God (which yet is not ſeparated from his attributes) there is a clear viſion on their part, and a clear Manifeſtation on God's part; both are from God, to make them able to ſee him, and to be willing to be ſeen of them! And thus God ſhews himſelf not darkly as to the Patriarchs of old, not terrible as on Mount Sinai, not a far off as to Balaam, not for a ſhort time as in the transfiguration; the Saints now dwell upon the contemplation of him, they have time enough to take a full view of him, even Eternity it ſelf.

3. For the Fruition of God, the will of the Saints enjoys God; In this happineſs of Heaven are envolved theſe things.

1. The Saints have God, and they know they have God by a reflex act.

2. As they know they have God, ſo they make what uſe they will of all the attributes of God, and of all that is in God; they have as much uſe as they will of the wiſdom of God, and of the power of God, and of the Mercy in God, as one friend uſually ſays to another, make uſe of all I have as your own; ſo God bids the Saints make uſe of all his riches, and glory and excellency, as they will.

3. As they make uſe of God, ſo they have the ſweet and comfort of what they uſe; hence God 2 Tim. 6. 17. is ſaid to give us all things richly to enjoy: He gives the things, and he gives the comfort with it; He gives himſelf to the Saints in glory, the uſe of himſelf, and the comfort of himſelf in the uſe thereof.

4. As they enjoy God, ſo they enjoy themſelves in God, they live in God continually, the fiſh doth not more truly live in the water, and move in the water, than the Souls of Saints do Col. 3. 3. live in God, and move in God: your life is hid with Chriſt in God. The life of Saints upon earth is an hidden life, and it is hid in God, but in Heaven it is a revealed life, and revealed in God, and enjoyed in God. Such a ſpeech is that of Mat. 25. 23. Chriſt, enter into your Maſter's joy; it enters not into you, but you muſt enter into it; and what is it? Your Maſter's joy: not only that joy that your Maſter gives, but the ſame joy that your Maſter has; it is your Maſter's own joy that you muſt Rev. 1, 20. enter into, and that you ſhall live in. So I was in the ſpirit on the Lord's day, ſaith John, it is not ſaid, the ſpirit was in him, but he was in the ſpirit; ſurely that was a beginning of the glorious condition of the Saints of God; they are in the Spirit of God, not only God in them, but they in God. ——And this, O my ſoul is the ſpiritual part of Heaven! doth it not reliſh? O taſte and ſee that the Lord is good! O here is the pure, ſpiritual, quinteſſential joys of Heaven! the Saints are ſo ſwallowed up in God, as that they cannot any farther mind themſelves, but altogether God; nay their minds, and wills, and affections, are all ſet on God, and nothing elſe. 1. Their minds are ſo immediately ſet on God, as if they were wholly emptied of the Creature, and had nothing to doe but with an uncreated good, even God himſelf. 2. They will not any thing to themſelves nor to any Creature, but all to God; O! their will is wholly taken up with God. 3. Their affections Pſa'. 4. 4; Mat. 22. 37. are wholly ſet on God, they rejoyce in the Lord always, and again rejoyce in the Lord; they love the Lord with all their heart, and with all their ſoul, and with all their mind; and though they love themſelves; yet ſo, as that they love themſelves for God; in this world we love God for our ſelves, which is but a natural love, or for himſelf, which is a gracious love; but in Heaven the Saints love themſelves for God, which is a glorious love. And in this kind of love of God, and enjoyment of themſelves in God, the Saints are raviſhed with God and are in a kind of ecſtaſie eternally.

3. The Eternity of Saints remains, and this Eternity is the crown of their crown, the glory of their glory: Without this Eternity all the former were comparatively little or nothing; the very thought of once leaving it, would even imbitter all the joys of Saints; yea the more would it pierce them, becauſe of the ſingular excellencies which they muſt forſake; it would be an hell in heaven, to think of once loſing heaven; but O bleſſed Eternity! where the lives of Saints are perplexed with no ſuch thoughts, nor their joys interrupted with any ſuch fears! where they are pillars in God's temple, and ſhall go out no more! O Eternity! O my ſoul! what is this, to be ſo bleſſed, and to be Eternally bleſſed? Why, ſurely this, if any thing, is the reſemblance of God. Eternity is a piece of infiniteneſs. Now, O death where is thy ſting? O grave where is thy victory? days, and nights, and years, and time, and end, and death, are words which there have no ſignification, nor are uſed, except perhaps to extol Eternity, as the mention of hell to extol heaven. No more uſe of our Calenders, or Chronologies all the years of our Lord, and the years of our Lives are loſt and ſwallowed up in this Eternity: while we are Servants, we hold by leaſe, and that but for the term of a tranſitory life, but the Son abideth in the houſe for ever. Gal. 6. 8. O then my Soul, let go thy dreams of pleaſant pleaſures, fear not to enter that eſtate, where thou ſhalt ever after ceaſe thy fears. Sit down, and ſadly once a day bethink thy ſelf of this Eternity: Amongſt all thy Arithmetical numbers, ſtudy the value of this infinite Cypher, which though it ſtand for nothing in the vulgar account, doth yet contain all our millions; O fix thine eye on this Eternity? Study throughly, ſtudy this one word Eternity; but to ſtudy it only is not enough; Come, roul up thy affections; awake, awake, be enlarged, love, joy, deſire; What? O my Soul, live and never die! Rejoyce and ever rejoyce? O what ſweet words are thoſe, never and ever? O this word Everlaſting contains the accompliſhed perfections of Heavens Glory. O my Soul that thou would'ſt believingly weigh this word Everlaſting! Methinks it ſhould revive thee in the deepeſt agony; Why, muſt I Lord, thus live for ever, then will I alſo love for ever; muſt my joys be immortal; then ſhall my thanks alſo be immortal; ſurely if I ſhall never loſe my Glory, I will alſo never ceaſe thy praiſes. O this ſweetneſs of this Eternity! How ſhould I but reliſh the ſweetneſs of it? O bleſſed Eternity! O bleſſed eſtate of Saints in the Kingdom of Heaven! O Glory not to be expreſſed; even by thoſe who are glorified! There is that perpetual ſpring, which through the freſh and ſweet breathings of the Spirit of God, ſhall flouriſh ever; there is time (if it be time always after one ſort, not diſtinguiſhed into Evening and Morning but continued with a ſimple Eternity. O Eternity of joys, worthy of continual ſongs of Saints and Angels to celebrate thy praiſe! O Eternity of joys! How ſhould I extol thee, deſire thee, love thee, and hate all this World for thee? O Eternity of joys! how ſhould my Graces be acted, my affections be raiſed, my thoughts be refreſhed with the Delights and Meditations of thee? O my Soul, bring forth thy ſtrongeſt burning Love: Here's matter for it to work upon, here's ſomething truly worth thy loving; O my Soul bring forth thy deſire, hope, reſolution, joy; here's matter for them all to work upon; O my Soul look upwards! Yonder far above yonder, ſhalt thou be encircled with Eternity, and come forth no more; yonder thou ſhalt live, and ever live, and praiſe the Lord, and ever, ever, ever praiſe him: When this Mortal ſhall put on Immortality, and this Corruptible Incorruption, the date of thy Leaſe ſhall no more expire, nor ſhalt thou trouble thy ſelf with thoughts of Death, nor loſe thy joys for fear of loſing them: When millions of ages are paſt, it is no nearer ending: Every day is all noontide: And every month is May, or harveſt: And every year is there a Jubilee: and all this is one Eternity. O bleſſed Eternity! The Glory of my Glory; the Perfection of my Perfection.

2. Complaint.

But alas! where is my love, my longing after this Eternity? What little taſte and ſavour have I of this ſweetneſs? My Soul! what dulneſs and heavineſs is this that hangs upon thee? My judgment, O alas! is confounded, how then ſhould my affections be enlarged? It is the abundance and exceſs of light hath ſtruck me blind; now my thoughts are in Heaven, which way ſoever I look, I loſe my ſight, in ſeeing an infinity round about me; Oh here's length without points, breadth without lines, depth without any ſurface; all content, all pleaſure, all reſt, all delight, all an Ecſtaſie of fruitions; who can ſtrengthen my eyes to endure Eagle-wiſe this glorious and reſplendent Sun? But O my Soul! lay not all the fault on the weakneſs of thy Judgment: Say, is there not ſome other cauſe? O how hath the World bewitched thee, that thou art become ſo Carnal, ſo Corporal, ſo Senſeleſs of Spiritual things! Thy thoughts run after Riches, and they are uncertain; thou art ambitious after Honours, and they are ſlippery; thou art in love with pleaſures, and their end is ſudden; and there is bitterneſs in the end; thou art daily converſing with men, but death ſhall diſſolve all knots of Friendſhip with others. O prepoſterous care! What, all on the World! And now that Eternity is thy Meditation (on which thou ſhouldſt taſte largely, and be affected deeply) art thou now all Amort; O what dulneſs, what drowſineſs, what ſecurity is this! If thou haſt in thee any ſparks of that Heavenly fire, firſt breathed into thee by the Spirit of God; awake, awak, O my Soul! away, away with this dull ſenſleſs ſecurity, and conſider there's but a ſtep betwixt thee and Eternity of joys! What! haſt thou not ſeen? Haſt thou not heard? And when all is done, art thou ſo careleſs of thy home, ſo ſenſleſs of Spiritual delights? A Gracious heart takes not the things of Heaven as gueſſes and imaginary things, but looks upon them as certain ſubſtantial realities, and this is a ſign of Grace (O my Soul!) if thou art able to look at the things of Heaven as the only real, ſubſtantial excellent things, and ſo as to darken all the things of the World. Carnal men look upon theſe Heavenly things as conceits and imaginations, they have not faith, nor do they know within themſelves that there are ſuch things, but the Saints know within themſelves, that they have a better and an enduring ſubſtance, Heb. 10. 34. the Kingdom of Heaven is within them, Luke 17. 21. and therefore they are uſually quick, and active, and lively, and chearful in their ſervices or ſufferings. O my Soul! how ſhould I bewail thy wants? Doſt thou doubt whether there be an Heaven, or whether thou haſt a God and a Saviour there? Oh far be from thee this Atheiſm, woe to thee if thou believeſt not; but O thou of little Faith, doſt thou believe there is ſuch an happineſs, and an happineſs for thee, and yet thou deſireſt it not, and yet thou delighteſt not in it? Alas! how weak, and unbelieving is thy belief? How cold and faint are thy deſires? Tell me, what ſuch goodly entertainment haſt thou met withal here on Earth, that was worthy to withdraw thee from theſe Heavenly Joys? Or what cauſe of diſlike findeſt thou above? Oh none! My Soul, it is only thy miſerable drowſineſs, only thy ſecurity. Oh what ſhall I ſay? What ails thee O my Soul? As Jonathan ſaid to Amnon, 2 Sam. 13. 4. why art thou lean from day to day being the King's Son? So why art thou heavy O my Soul, and why walkeſt thou ſo dumpiſhly in the ways of God being the King of Heaven's Son?

3. Wiſh.

O that I could mind this Eternity! that I could taſte or reliſh this Eternity! that I were fitted and prepared for Eternity! O that I were wiſe, that I underſtood this, that I conſidered my latter end! Deut. 32. 29. O that now while it is called to day, while it is the accepted time, and the day of Salvation, 2 Cor. 6.2. I had a diligent and intent eye upon this Eternity! O that I could ſtill reaſon thus, What if I endure hunger and thirſt, emptineſs an injuries, ſickneſs and poverty? What if I were beaten with Rods, or ſuffered Shipwrack? What if I were ſtoned to Death? 2 Cor. 11. 23, 25. All theſe are nothing to that Eternity of woes; on the contrary, What if I had Creſus's Riches, Solomon's Wardrope, Belſhazzar's Cup-board, Sampſon's Strength, Abſolom's Beauty? What if an Angel ſhould take take me up into an exceeding high Mountain, and ſhew me all the Kingdoms of the World, and the Glory of them, and ſay unto me, All theſe will I give thee? All theſe are nothing to Eternity of Glory: O Lord, that I could wait and long for thy Salvation! O that I could mind the things above! O that my eyes, like the eyes of thy firſt Martyr, could by the light of Faith ſee but a glimpſe of Heaven! O that my Heart could be rapt up thither in deſire! O that I could ſee Heaven with a diſcerning, experimental, ſpiritual, fixed believing eye! O that my mind were raiſed to look after that Communication of God that I ſhall have hereafter! O that my Converſation were in Heaven! O that I were drowned in this preſent thought of Eternity, and that I might never wake again, but into the injoying of it! O that my Soul were opened at this very time and moment, to receive the influence of Heavens Joy into it! How then ſhould I trample upon theſe poor Vanities of the Earth! How willingly ſhould I endure all Sorrows, all Torments! How ſcornfully ſhould I paſs by all Pleaſures, all Pomps! How ſhould I be in travail of my diſſolution! O when ſhall this day come, that I ſhall perform that Duty, and partake of the Glory of the Saints? When ſhall this day come, that I ſhall poſſeſs that Pure, and Spiritual, and Full, and Divine joy which comes from God, and is in God, and is with God? When ſhall this day come that I ſhall have the Viſion of God, and the Fruition of God, when I ſhall ſee God, and enjoy God, and enjoy my ſelf in God? O when ſhall this day come, that I ſhall enter into theſe confines of Eternity, and ſolace my ſelf in my God? Pſal. 42.1, 2. As the Hart panteth after the water-brooks, ſo panteth my Soul after thee, O God: My Soul thirſteth for God, for the living God: O when ſhall I come and appear before God?

4. Confeſſion.

I deſire Lord, but alas! how weakly, how dully, how heartleſly? 2 Cor. 3.5. I am not able, Not ſufficient of my ſelf to think any thing as of my ſelf, but my ſufficiency is of God: It is nature that pulls me from this holy Meditation; nature favours it ſelf, loves the world, abhors Death and Eternity in another world: It is my miſery that I dote on nothing, or on ſin that's worſe than nothing; Jer. 4.14. How long ſhall theſe Vanities thus beſot me? How long ſhall theſe vain thoughts lodge within me? Why Lord? There is no ſtrength in me, I can neither will nor doe; Phil. 2.13. It is thou only muſt work in me both to will and to doe (both to meditate on, and to prepare for, both to deſire after, and to love, and hope, and joy in this Eternity) of thy good Will and Pleaſure.

5. Petition.

To thee, Lord, I make my moan, to thee I tender my humble Petition, and pour out my ſoul: O give me a taſte and reliſh of this Eternity! O give me this water, that I need thirſt no more! O give me ſuch a taſte or reliſh of this water, that it may be in me a well of water ſpringing up into eternal life! O inflame my ſoul with a love of theſe thoughts, with a longing deſire after this Eternity of joys! O let me not always be thus dull and brutiſh, but thou that haſt prepared Eternity for me, prepare my ſoul for Eternity! teach me ſo to carry on this earth, that I be not ſhut out of thoſe Eternal Manſions in Heaven; open mine eyes that I may ſee; draw aſide this veil that I may know what Eternity is; give me ſo to live as one that labours for Eternity, contends for Eternity, ſuffers for Eternity; let me never be ſo fooliſh as to ſettle my ſelf on vanity, and to neglect this Eternity that never ſhall have end.— Eph. 2.17. 18. Oh Father of glory, give me the ſpirit of Wiſdom and Revelation in the knowledge of Chriſt, that the eyes of my underſtanding being illightned, I may know what is the hope of thy calling, and what the Riches of the glory of thy inheritance is the Saints; Lord here is the ſummary of my ſuit, that I may know, not only the inheritance of the Saints, but the inheritance in the Saints, and the glory of the inheritance, and the riches of the Glory; nor would I have a common underſtanding to know this, but I deſire that the eyes of my underſtanding may be illightned; and let this come from the Knowledge of Chriſt, from the Spirit of Wiſdom and Revelation, and from the Father of Glory. O Lord, my meaning is and my prayer is, that I may find ſome experimental, ſweet and Spiritual good in my ſelf, as the beginning of that Eternal good which I expect; others may know what this Eternity is in Sermons, in Books in the written Word; but the Saints only Heb. 10. 34. know in themſelves that they have a better and enduring ſubſtance. O Lord that I may know in my ſelf what this Eternity is, that I may know it by that experimental ſweetneſs of the beginning of Glory, that I find in my ſelf, and what is Glory begun but Grace and Holineſs? Thou ſeeſt, Lord, that it is no ſtrange favour that I beg of thee, it is no other than that which thou haſt richly beſtowed upon all thy valiant Martyrs, Confeſſors, Servants, from the beginning, who never could ſo chearfully have embraced Death and Torments, if through the midſt of their flames, and pains they had not ſeen their Crown of Glory. 2 Cor. 4. 16. We faint not in Sufferings, becauſe we look at things that are not ſeen. Why Lord, one drop of Heaven within me would darken all the Glory of the World without me; O let me ſee Heaven in the reality of it with a clear, ſpiritual, fixed eye; let into my Heart one ſweet and ſaving thought of Eternity, and then when thou wilt, Lord, let thy Servant depart in Peace. My times are in thy hand, I am no better than my Father; my life is a bubble, a ſmoak, a ſhadow, a thought, I know there is no abiding in this through-fare; Oh ſuffer me not to be ſo mad, as while I paſs on the way, to forget the end; it is that other life that I muſt look after; with thee it is that I muſt continue; Oh let me never be ſo ſpiritually fooliſh as to ſettle my ſelf on what I muſt leave, and to neglect Eternity. I have ſeen enough of this Earth, and yet I love it too much, Oh let me ſee Heaven another while, and love it ſo much more than the Earth, by how much the things there are more worthy to be beloved. Oh God look down on me, and teach me to look up to thee, and to ſee thy goodneſs in the Land of the Living; thou that boughteſt Heaven for me, guide me thither; and for thy mercies ſake, in ſpight of all Temptations, enlighten thou my Soul direct it, crown it, that ſo at laſt I may doe that Duty and receive that Glory of thy Saints, in joying, ſeeing, and enjoying God to all Eternity.

6. Confidence.

Behold, O my ſoul! and do not meerly crave, but challenge this favour of God, as that which he owes thee; he owes it, becauſe he hath promiſed it, and by his mercy he hath made his gifts his debt: Is there not a promiſe made? Pſal. 89.15. Bleſſed is the people that know the joyful ſound, they ſhall walk in the light of thy countenance, O Lord: ——— 1 Joh. 2.25. this is the promiſe that he hath promiſed us, even eternal life.——— 1 Jo. 5.13. Theſe things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God, that ye may know that ye have eternal life: and is it not an experience tryed? Cant. 2.3. I ſate down under his ſhadow with great delight, and his fruit was ſweet to my taſte: O what is this but the taſte of eternity? What is this but a glimpſe of unſpeakable joy? O Lord, let me taſte this ſweetneſs by ſome real experiments in my own heart! give me Lord: what wilt thou give? give me a ſpiritual eye, that I may look at this Eternity as a ſpiritual thing; a carnal heart looks at it carnally, Oh the flaſhes of joy to have a Crown and a Kingdom! but a ſpiritual heart looks at Eternity ſpiritually: O give me to look to heaven with a right eye, and in a right manner, to look at the ſpiritual part, and ſpiritual excellency in heaven, which conſiſts in the viſion of God, and fruition of God, in the Image of God, and Communion with God: O give me thus to ſee, and to know the reality of this Eternity! Give me Lord, what wilt thou give? Give me an heavenly principle that will carry me heaven-ward: Cant. 3.6. the Church is compared to pillars of ſmoke that aſcend upwards to Heaven: though the Church be black and dark in regard of her infirmities, yet ſhe hath a principle to carry her upward to Heaven: and the Saints are compared to Eagles that flie aloft towards heaven, though their bodies are not there, yet their hearts and ſouls are there: Why Lord, my treaſure is in heaven, O let my heart be there! Oh, where ſhould it be but there? is not heaven the place and center of my heart? and have not all things in nature a principle to carry them to their proper place? experience tells me that as the place of fire is on high, ſo fire hath a principle to carry it on high; and as the place of earth is below, ſo earth hath a principle to carry it below: and if the place and center of my heart be in heaven, muſt it not have a principle to move naturally thither? O the conſciences of many tell them their ſouls work downward to vanity and ſenſuality! but O Lord! let my ſoul work heaven-ward: O Chriſt! let my ſoul move towards thee; though I have weights of corruption that would weigh me down; yet give me, and aſſure me of that principle that doth work to heaven. Give me Lord, what wilt thou give? give me ſome beginnings of eternal life wrought in me here, Rom.8.30. give me the firſt fruits of heaven. The ſcripture ſaith, that whom he hath juſtified, them he hath glorified. (i.) they have the glory of heaven begun in them: why Lord, give me this earneſt; give me an heart enlarged with God's image; now is the image of God begun, and in heaven the image of Eph. 4.24. God ſhall be renewed: Oh give me this image! give me righteouſneſs and holineſs, for that is the image of God; give me thy preſence; give me the viſions of God, and fruitions of God; ſuch things are in heaven; and as the earneſt of my inheritance give me the firſt-fruits, give me ſome acquaintance of thy bleſſed ſelf in every ordinance, let there be a ſtronger union betwixt God and my ſoul: let me enjoy God in the creature, and God in the ordinances, and God in all things; yea, let me enjoy God in my ſelf, and my ſelf in God: O let the Sabbaths be my delight, as a beginning of that Eternal Sabbath that I ſhall keep in heaven! and thus before I go into heaven, let heaven come into me; let me taſte of Eternity by theſe real experiments in my own ſoul. And now Lord, that thou haſt in ſome ſweet meaſure aſſured me, in that thou beginneſt to warm my heart, and to perſuade my ſoul that I have a right and intereſt to this Eternity; what elſe means this, he that believeth on the Son of God, hath 1 Joh.5.10. 11. the witneſs in himſelf —— and this is the record that God hath Given to us eternal life? O then how ſhould I but grow bold and confident! chear up O my ſoul, chear up my love, Chriſt's fair one, for loe the winter is almoſt paſt, and the time of the ſinging of birds is almoſt come. It is but a while, and I ſhall be free from the body of ſin and of death; it is but a while, and the image of God ſhall be made perfect in me: it is but a while and I ſhall behold the bleſſed face of God; and ſhall live to the praiſe of that bleſſed God without any intermiſſion; and ſhall joyn with thoſe bleſſed creatures, that are eternally bleſſing and praiſing God; thoſe taſtes I have formerly had aſſure me of this. Believe it, believe on the Son, believe the promiſes; be content to venture all thoſe great things of Eternity, upon that bare word of God, Pſal. 89. 15. 1 Joh. 2. 25. 1 Joh. 5. 13. Cant. 2. 3.——3. 6. Rom. 8: 30. Eph. 4. 24. 1 Joh. 6. 10, 11. What? doſt thou believe? ſurely this one work of God, to make thee cloſe with the Promiſe, and to venture all on the Promiſe, doth of it ſelf intereſt thee in this Eternity; for this is a work of the Spirit, it is from a Divine principle to be able to doe this: O believe! and do not only believe a taſte, but a hearty draught of Eternity: theſe taſtes are but earneſts, but there John.3.16. Heb. 9.15. Dan. 9.24. 1 Pet. 1.4. is a Promiſe of everlaſting fruition: Hath he not given thee his word for Eternal life, for an Eternal inheritance, for everlaſting righteouſneſs, for an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away? Awake, ariſe, O my ſoul, and lay hold on the promiſes of this bleſſed Eternity; be not diſmay'd by reaſon of thy unworthineſs, for the Promiſe is of Grace, freely offered, and freely given to them that be unworthy in their own eyes: Chriſt hath purchaſed righteouſneſs and everlaſting life, believe in him, and live to all Eternity, O my ſoul! why art thou dull and ſluggiſh, wherefore doſt thou not put forth thy ſelf to embrace and receive this promiſe of Eternity? God's promiſes are ever certain, never leſs, but rather more in accompliſhment than in tender; why doſt thou not caſt thy ſelf upon this bleſſed iſſue, If God be merciful, I am eternally happy? It is the ſure promiſe of God, John.3.36. that he that believeth hath eternal life; therefore if I believe, I am already a free denizion in the new Jeruſalem; Eternity of joys is already reſerved for me: Why Lord? I believe, come glory, come Eternity, come and welcome glorious Eternity, eternal glory.

Concluſion.

Pſal.116.7. Return unto thy reſt, O my ſoul, for the Lord hath been beneficial unto thee: And yet before thy reſt, ſtay a little, one word more; what? can a proſpect of heaven be too tedious? can a diſcourſe of Eternity be too long? Oh no. 1. Dwell a little in admiring at the goodneſs of God, at the infinite treaſures of the riches of the glory of the grace of God towards the children of men. Rom.8.30. 31. After the Apoſtle had ſpoken of glorification he cries out, What ſhall we ſay to theſe things? And now, O my ſoul! thou haſt been diſcourſing of Eternity, What doſt thou ſay to theſe things? O the height and depth, and length, and breadth of the loving kindneſs of the Lord! Pſal.31.19. How unſearchable are his mercies! and his grace paſt finding out! Oh how great is thy goodneſs which thou haſt laid up for them that fear thee, which thou haſt wrought before the ſons of men! If ever God wrought about any thing, it was about the Communication of his goodneſs to man: this was the work of God, and great deſign of God from all Eternity; Nay the chief of the deep, infinite counſels of God, and the works of the wiſdom of God have been, and yet are exerciſed about this O my ſoul admire, admire, if in any part of this Meditation, thou haſt had a true ſpiritual ſight of the riches of the goodneſs of God, in the way of his Communication of happineſs and glory to the children of men; if thou haſt ſeen into the great deſign of God, into the deep counſels of the wiſdom of God, if the Lord hath in ſome ſweet meaſure laid open his heart to thee, and brought thee into the treaſure of his riches, and given thee a view of them, admire at this! 2. Break forth into praiſes; join with thoſe bleſſed Elders that fell down before the Lamb, having all harps in their hands and golden Vials full of odours, and who ſung, Rev.6.8,9. worthy art thou, who waſt ſlain, and haſt redeemed us unto God by thy blood, to receive honour, and bleſſing, and glory; make melody with all thoſe creatures in heaven, and on earth, and under the earth, and in the ſea; who ſay, bleſſing, honour, glory, and power be unto him that ſitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever; Rev. 5.13. be raiſed, be enlarged, O my ſoul! is there not cauſe? why, Chriſt was the Lamb ſlain for thee, and Chriſt by his blood hath redeemed thee unto God. O the incomparable love and favours of the Lord! was it ever found that any King or Potentate ſhould adopt the blind, the lame, the deaf, the dumb, to ſucceed him in his inheritance? And ſhall ſuch a one as I (the vileſt, the worſt of Sinners) inherit Everlaſting verlaſting life, a Crown that never withereth, a durable treaſure, which can never fade? O what ſhall I give unto the Lord for this Eternity? My Soul, Rejoyce thou in the Lord, and bleſs his holy Name: Now begin that Hallelujah on Earth, which in Heaven thou ſhalt ſing more ſwettly to all Eternity, Hallelujah! And again Hallelujah! Amen Hallelujah?

And now (O my Soul!) give up thy ſelf to God, and repoſe thy ſelf wholly on thy Maker and Redeemer; be abundant in Service, there ſhall not be one tear, nor one ſigh, nor one prayer loſt. Wait patiently on God, for the full poſſeſſion of this Eternity, and walk chearfully in the way that he leads thee thereunto: Say at the parting of this Meditation, O Lord! O Eternity it ſelf! O thou Firſt and Laſt, Alpha and Omega! without beginning, and without all end, I recommend my Soul, my ways to thee; take me to thy keeping, and prepare me for this Eternity, through Chriſt thy only Son, my only Saviour. Pſal. 16. beginning at Verſe 7. ad finem.

CHAP. IX. SECT. I.

Of the Nature of the Life of Faith.

To live by Faith, is by Faith in Chriſt to aſſent and adhere unto, and to poſſeſs the whole Word of God as our own in all ſtates and conditions, reſting quietly upon his gracious and faithful promiſe, and yielding our ſelves unto his good pleaſure, in ſincere, univerſal and conſtant obedience: Or, to live by Faith, is to feed upon the ſeveral Promiſes of God made in his Word, and to apply them to our own ſelves, according to our needs, and ſo to uphold, comfort and incourage our ſelves againſt all Temptations, and unto every good Duty. This Life of Faith is a very Heaven upon Earth, a ſweet Sanctuary to any hunted Soul; hereby our Hearts will be cheared, our life will be ſweet to us, God will be glorified, and the Glory of his truth will be mightily advanced. O bleſſed duty!

Sect. 2. Of the manner of this Life of Faith in general.

Our Directions for this life of Faith are { General. Particular.

In general, that we may live by Faith, we muſt endeavour two things.

1. To get matter for our Faith to work upon.
2. To order our Faith aright in the work.

1. That we may provide matter for our Faith to work upon, we muſt obſerve three things: 1, That we ſtore up all the good * Promiſes of God, and our own experiences ſeaſonably: It is good to lay up in a good time aforehand.

* Are not theſe the ſtars in the firmament of the Scripture? The moſt golden lines in that Book of God? of all the Bible methinks, we ſhould not part with one of thoſe promiſes, no, not for a World.

2. That we lay in Promiſes of all kinds! We had better leave than lack; it is the wiſdom of a man, that he may not live feebly and poorly, but to have ſomewhat to ſpare.

3. That we ſo lay them up, that we may have them at hand: It is a folly to ſay; I have as good Proviſion as can be, but I have it not here: Let the Word of God dwell in you plentiouſly and richly in all Wiſdom. Col. 3. 16.

2. That we may order our Faith aright in the work, obſerve theſe Directions:

1. Take poſſeſſion of the Promiſes, and value them as our own. The Prophet recording a Promiſe in Eſay 54. 17. adds thus, This is the Heritage of the Servants of the Lord.] So that there's no Godly man or woman but is a great heir. Whenſoever they look into God's Book, and find there any Promiſe, they make it their own: Juſt as an heir that rides over divers fields and meadows, he ſaith, this meadow is my Heritage, and this Corn field is my Heritage: And then he ſees a fair houſe, and ſaith, this fair houſe is my Heritage: And he looks upon them with another manner of eye then a ſtranger that ſhall ride over thoſe fields: So a Carnal Heart reads thoſe Promiſes, but merely as ſtories, not as having any intereſt in them; but a Godly man every time he reads the Scriptures (remember this note when you are reading the Scriptures) and there meets with a Promiſe, he ought to lay his hand upon it, and ſay, this is a part of my Heritage; it's mine, and I am to live upon it.

2. Expect nothing from the Promiſe, but that which is ſuitable to the nature of it: To this purpoſe ſome Promiſes are abſolute, which God hath ſimply determined to accompliſh, as the Promiſe of the Meſſiah, Iſa. 7. 14. and of the calling of the Gentiles, Rom. 11. 26. Some Promiſes are conditional, which God will accompliſh in his own order, in his own time, and in his own manner and meaſure; in a word, they are no farther promiſed, than God ſeeth in wiſdom to be moſt meet for his Glory, and our good; as, all temporal bleſſings, leſs principal Graces, and the meaſure of all ſanctifying Graces: Now in all theſe expect nothing from them, but that which is ſuitable to the nature thereof.

3. That done, then eye that particular good in the Promiſe which we ſtand in need of, and ſet God's Power, and Faithfulneſs, and Wiſdom a work, to bring it about; for inſtance, thou art in Perſecution, and either thou would'ſt have deliverance out of it, or comfort and refreſhment in it: In this caſe ſee all this in the Promiſe (referring the order, and time, and manner to God) and then ſet God's power and faithfulneſs a work that can doe it, and his wiſdom a work to contrive it, which way he knows beſt: This is the meaning of that Text, Commit thy ways unto the Lord, truſt in him, and he ſhall bring it to paſs; and hurl your care upon the Lord, for he careth for you. Pſal. 37. 5. 1 Pet. 5. 7.

4. By Faith wait upon God, in that way he hath appointed; it is true, God will work that good for us, yet we muſt uſe the means, and meet God in the courſe of his Providence, otherwiſe we live not by Faith, but tempt God, and throw away his promiſes and all.

5. Set it down and conclude, that God will doe whatſoever he hath promiſed, and we ſhall receive it in the ways of his Providence: This is the very ry work of Faith it ſelf, thus it draws ſap and vertue from the promiſe, when it concludes, That according to the good in the promiſe, it is ſure to be done.

6. But imagine the Lord delays and doth not ſuddenly accompliſh, then muſt faith take up its Iſa. 28.16. ſtand, and ſtay till it come: He that believeth, maketh not haſt, the Viſion is for an appointed time, and Pſal.133.2. therefore wait for it. So the Pſalmiſt, As the eyes of a Servant look to the hands of his Maſter, and the eyes of a Maiden to her Miſtriſs, ſo our eyes wait upon the Lord our God, until he have mercy upon us: Not until we will, or until we ſee it fit, but until he will have mercy upon us.

7. Imagine the Lord not only delays, but ſeems to frown, and to ſay, He will not hear: In this caſe, labour with an holy humility to contend with our God, and by ſtrong hand to overcome him, for the Gen. 32. 26. Lord loves to be overcome thus. When Jacob wreſtled with God, Let me go, ſaith the Lord; I will not let thee go, ſaith Jacob: So do we catch the Lord Jeſus, and ſtrive with him, and leave him not, till we have thoſe comforts he hath promiſed, and which we have begged: Surely this is the Glory, and Victory, and Triumph of Faith, when the Lord is fain to lay down his weapons, and to yield himſelf as Conquered: Thy Name ſhall be no more called Jacob, 28. but Iſrael: becauſe thou haſt prevailed with God.

Two Cautions concerning promiſes, and the life of Faith, are mainly to be obſerved in the general.

1. That not barely the promiſes, but the perſon of Chriſt, is the object of Faith: We are not to reſt on the promiſes alone, but to cloſe with Chriſt in thoſe promiſes; promiſes are the Pillars of the Soul, Chriſt is the ſubſtantial Pillar of the Soul; the promiſes are declarative Pillars, and therefore in receiving of, or having recourſe unto a promiſe, we are firſt to ſeek out for Chriſt in it, as being the foundation of it, and ſo to take hold of the promiſe in him: Thus Philip directs the Eunuch, Believe on the Lord Jeſus: The promiſe is but the Caſket, and Chriſt the Jewel in it; the promiſe but the Field, Chriſt is the Pearl hid in it, and to be chiefly look'd Acts 8.31. at: Thus it is ſaid, that promiſes of Pardon, are not as Pardons of a Prince, which meerly contain an expreſſion of his Royal word for Pardon; but God's promiſes are made in his Son, and are as if a Prince ſhould offer to Pardon a Traytor, upon Marriage with his Child, whom in and with that Pardon he tenders: The reaſon hereof is, becauſe Chriſt is the grand promiſe, in whom all the pro- 2Cor.1.29. miſes are Yea, and Amen.

2. That promiſes in things Temporal and Spiritual (not abſolutely neceſſary to Salvation) are not univerſal, but indefinite, (i. e.) he makes ſuch promiſes, becauſe ſometimes (though not always) he grants Jam.5.15. accordingly. For inſtance, that promiſe of healing the Sick cannot be univerſal, for it might then be ſuppoſed that ſick men ſhould never die, ſeeing the Elders may at all ſuch times of danger of Death, ſtill come and pray with them, but we all know it is ap- Heb. 9.17. pointed for all men once to die; the meaning thereof is, that prayer is an Ordinance to which God hath made ſuch a gracious promiſe, and he often doth reſtore the ſick at their Prayers; and therefore upon every ſuch particular occaſion, we are to relie upon God for the performance of it by an act of recumbency, though we cannot with an act of full aſſurance, the promiſe not being univerſal, but indefinite: Of like nature are all other promiſes of things Temporal or things Spiritual, not abſolutely neceſſary to Salvation; as long Life, Riches, Honour, Aſſurance of Evideuce to them that fear him, the tenor and purport of which promiſe, is not as if abſolutely, infallibly, and univerſally; God doth always perform theſe to thoſe that are truly qualified, with the conditions ſpecified in thoſe promiſes; the contrary both Scripture, Inſtances, and common Experience ſhews; they are therefore indefinitely meant, and ſo to be underſtood by us; becauſe when ever God doth diſpence any ſuch mercies to any of his he would do it by promiſe: And he requires anſwerably an act of Faith, ſuitable to that his meaning in the promiſe; that as he intended not in ſuch promiſes; an abſolute, infallible, univerſal obligation of himſelf, to the performance of them to all that fear him; ſo the act of Faith which a man is to put forth toward this promiſe, in the application of it for his own particular, is not required to be an abſolute, infallible perſuaſion and aſſurance, that God will beſtow theſe outward things upon him, having theſe qualifications in him, but only an indefinite act (as I may call it) of recumbency and ſubmiſſion, caſting and adventuring our ſelves upon him for the performance of it to us, not knowing but he may in his outward diſpenſations make it good to us; yet with ſubmiſſion to his good pleaſure, if otherwiſe he diſpoſe it; and if he grant, to conſider then, That whatſoever we have, it is not by a mere Providence, but by virtue of a Promiſe.

Sect. 3. Of the manner of this Life of Faith in particular, as in Temporal evils.

IN particular that we may live by faith, obſerve we,——

1. The Promiſes.

2. The exerciſe of faith concerning the Promiſes.

And both theſe are conſiderable, either in regard of { Our ſelves. / Others.

1. In regard of our ſelves; and therein we ſhall conſider matters { Temporal. / Spiritual. / Eternal.

Things temporal are either { Evil. / Good.

We ſhall begin firſt with Temporal Evils; and concerning them, firſt give you the Promiſes; and ſecondly, the exerciſe of faith in the reſpect of thoſe Promiſes.

1. The Promiſes that concern Temporal Evils have reference to thoſe evils, in { General. / Special.

1. Evils general, are afflictions and dangers, concerning which we have Promiſes.

ſome to { Prevent, / Qualifie, / Remove thoſe afflictions,

1. The Promiſes to prevent Afflictions, you may read in the Word, and they are theſe and the like: Pſal. 91. 10. Pſal. 121. 7. Job. 5. 19. Zech. 2. 5. where the Lord promiſeth to be a wall of fire to his people; (not of ſtone, or braſs, ſaith Theodoret) that it may both fray a far off, and keep off too at hand; protect them, and deſtroy their enemies.

2. The Promiſes to qualifie Evils, are theſe and the like. Pſal. 103, 13, 14. Iſa. 49. 13, 14, 15. Hoſ. 11. 8, 9. In this laſt promiſe, God imitates Parents (ſaith Theodoret) when any miſery is upon their Child, their Bowels yern more; never ſits the Child ſo much on the Mother's lap, never lies ſo much in her boſome, as when he is ſick: So the Spouſe being ſick of Love (i. e.) in ſome miſery, Chriſt ſtayeth her with flaggons, comforts her with apples; his left hand is under her head, and his right hand doth Cant. 2. 5, 6. embrace her: Pſal. 56. 8. where we may read God's Compaſſion to his Children in their Calamities, that he narrowly obſerves every one of them; Thou telleſt my wandrings] yea, he makes ſo precious a reckoning of their griefs and ſorrows, that not a tear falls to the ground, but he keeps it, preſerves it as precious liquor) in his bottle; Put my tears into thy bottle] yea he keeps them in memory, he notes them and writes them in his Book, as if he would chronicle our tears for everlaſting remembrance; Are they not in thy book?] 2 Cor. 4. 17. Is there or can there be any richer or fuller expreſſion of Tully than there is in the Greek, where there is both an elegant Antitheſis, and double Hyperbole, beyond Engliſhing, Καθ' ὑπερβολὴν εἰς ὑπερβολὴν, for affliction, glory, for light affliction, heavy, maſſie, ſubſtantial glory, a weight of glory, for momentary affliction, eternal glory: Nay, the Apoſtle adds degrees of compariſon, yea goes beyond all degrees, calling it more excellent, far more excellent, an Hyperbole, Hyperbole, exceeding, exceſſive, eternal weight of glory?

3. The Promiſes to bear them, or in due time to remove them, are theſe and the like: Pſal. 37. 24. Jer. 29. 11. Mic. 7. 8, 9. Pſal. 97. 11. as ſure as harveſt follows a ſeeding, ſo to the righteous comfort follows mourning, Job 16. 20. 1 Cor. 10. 13.

2. Evils ſpecial, are Sickneſs, Poverty, Famine, War, Captivity, Witchcraft, Poſſeſſion, Oppreſſion.

1. For ſickneſs, we have Promiſes ſome to { Prevent,
Qualifie,
Remove ſickneſs.

1. The Promiſes to prevent, are theſe and the like: Exod. 15. 26. Deut. 7. 15. Pſal. 91. 10.

2. Promiſes to qualifie ſickneſs, are theſe and the like: Pſal. 41. 3. Heb. 12. 6, 7, 8.

3. Promiſes to remove ſickneſs are theſe and the like: Exod. 23. 25. Deut. 7. 15. Iſa. 40. 31.

2. For Poverty, we may ſtore up theſe promiſes, Pſal. 23. throughout, Pſal. 34. 9, 10. Pſal. 37. 25. Heb. 13. 15. The wicked indeed may have more abundance than the Chriſtian, but here's the difference, the wicked hath all by a Providence, the Chriſtian hath all by a promiſe: And this diſtinction the poor Chriſtian would not part with for a world of Gold.

3. For Famine, we may ſtore up theſe promiſes, Job 5. 19, 20. Pſal. 33. 18, 19. Prov. 10. 2, 3. Pſal. 37. 18, 19. Iſa 41. 17, 18. Some Martyrs being caſt into Priſon, and denyed neceſſary food, they had faith to return this anſwer, If men will give us no meat, we believe God will give us no ſtomach. When Chriſt was an hungred, and Satan tempts him to command ſtones to be made bread, he anſwered, Man ſhall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds out of the mouth of God; q. d. a man may feed on a promiſe, he muſt depend on God's Allowance, and when proviſion fails, then not to diſtruſt the Proviſion of God, is a notable trial of Faith.

Mat. 4. 4.

4. For War, we may gather up theſe promiſes, and the like, Job 5. 20. Prov. 3. 24, 25, 26. Jer. 39. 17, 18.

5. For Captivity, gather in theſe promiſes and the like, Deut. 30. 3, 4. which very promiſe Nehemiah ſueth out, Neh. 1. 9. Pſal. 106. 46. Ezek. 11. 16.

6. For Witchcraft or poſſeſſion, conſider that promiſe, Numb. 23. 23.

7. For Oppreſſion, we have theſe promiſes, Pſal. 12. 5. Pſal. 68. 5. Pſal. 146. 7, 8, 9.

2. For the exerciſe of Faith, concerning theſe promiſes, that we may live by them, to go { Meditation,

Prayer.

1. For Meditation, and the matter of it, conſider theſe things, and let your Faith chew on them.

1. That all affliction comes from God: Shall there be evil in a City, and the Lord hath not done it? I form the light, and I create darkneſs; I make peace, and create evil: I the Lord doe all theſe things. I know, O Lord, (ſaith David) that thy judgments are right, and that thou in thy faithfulneſs haſt afflicted me.

Amos 3. 6.
Iſa. 45. 7.
Pſal. 119. 75.

2. That as God ſends it, ſo none can deliver us out of it but God alone: O our God, wilt thou not judge them? We have no might againſt this great company that cometh againſt us, neither know we what to doe, but our eyes are upon thee. This Meditation draws the heart from carnal repoſe, in means or friends; it expels vexations and diſtracting cares, and eſtrangeth from the uſe of unlawful means of deliverance: The horſe is prepared againſt the day of Battel, but ſafety is of the Lord.

2Cron. 20. 12.

3. The cauſe of all miſeries and ſorrow is ſin, and therefore it's time for us to examine our ways, to humble our ſelves, and to ſet upon Reformation: I thought on my ways (ſaid David) and turned my feet unto thy Teſtimonies: When Manaſſes was in affliction, He beſought the Lord his God, and humbled himſelf greatly before the God of his Fathers: Surely it is meet to be ſaid unto God, I have born chaſtiſement I will not offend any more: That which I ſee not teach thou me; if I have done iniquity, I will doe no more: The end of chaſtiſement is amendent of life, whence it receives the name of Correction, which ſignifieth, to ſet aright or ſtreight.

Pſal. 119. 59.
2 Cron. 33. 12.

4. That now God trieth our Faith, Patience, Contentation, and meekneſs of Spirit, He hath ſaid unto Croſſes, Go ye to ſuch a man, not to weaken his Faith, or to waſte any Grace of the Spirit, but to purge him, refine him, try him, exerciſe him, to breed the quiet fruits of Righteouſneſs, to confirm his Patience, ſupport his hope, &c. —— Hence God's Servants by their Faith have been enabled to ſay, I will bear the indignation of the Lord, becauſe I have ſinned againſt him, until he plead my cauſe, and execute judgment for me: And if he ſays thus, I have no pleaſure in thee: Behold, here am I, let him doe to me as ſeemeth good to him. This Meditation makes the Heart willingly, freely, and conſtantly to reſign it ſelf to the good pleaſure of God in all things.

Micah. 7. 9.
2 Sam. 5. 1. 25.

5. That 'tis God's Will, after we have gone to the promiſe, to uſe all lawful means of help which God in his Providence affords; but in point of dependance, that we ſolely reſt on God's promiſes: Faith coupleth the means and the end, but looketh to the promiſer (whoſe truth, and wiſdom, and power, and mercy, never fails) and not to the probability of the thing promiſed: Abraham againſt hope, believed in hope, —— That what God hath promiſed, he was able to perform.

Rom. 4. 18, 21.

6. That the Promiſes are in Chriſt, Yea and Amen, and therefore ſet it down and conclude, that God will doe whatſoever he hath promiſed, and we ſhall receive it in the ways of his Providence; it may be not yet, what then? He that believes will not make haſt, Daniel waited ſeventy years for deliverance out of captivity in Babylon, and may not we wait ſeventy weeks, ſeventy days.

Iſa. 28. 26.

2. For prayer, and the parts and manner of it, obſerve this method:

1. Lay open our ſorrow before the Lord, pour out our complaints into his boſome; I am the man that have ſeen affliction by the rod of thine anger, thou haſt brought me into darkneſs but not into light: —— Lord how am I beſet with miſeries? how do my ſorrows encreaſe daily? how are they encreaſed that trouble me?

Lam 3. 2.
Pſal. 3. 1.
Pſal. 38. 18.

2. Confeſs our ſins with hatred and godly Sorrow: I will declare my iniquity; I will be ſorry for my Sins: For want of this God threatened the Iſraelites, Hoſ. 5. 15. I will go and return to my place, till they acknowledge their offences, and ſeek my face, in their affliction they will ſeek me early.

3. Importune the Lord, and direct we our ſupplications to our God: Lord, how long wilt thou look on? Pſal. 35. 17. O reſcue my Soul from their deſtruction, my darling from the Lyons; look upon mine affliction and my tears, for I am brought very low!

4. Then preſs we the Lord with his promiſes: Pſal. 125. 3. Lord, thou haſt ſaid, The rod of the wicked ſhall not reſt upon the lot of the Righteous: Thou haſt ſaid, Iſa. 10. 25. Yet a little while, and the indignation ſhall ceaſe: Thou Iſa. 54. 8. haſt ſaid, In a little wrath I hid my face from thee for a moment, but with everlaſting kindneſs will I have mercy on thee, ſaith the Lord thy Redeemer: O theſe are thy promiſes, Lord, make them effectual to my poor Soul.

5. For concluſion, tell we the Lord, whatever Job 13. 18. becomes of us we will truſt in him: Though thou Pſal. 56. 2. ſhouldſt ſlay me, yet will I truſt in thee: —— For what time I am afraid, I will truſt in thee.

Theſe are the acts of Faith by which it puts forth, and exerciſeth it ſelf in time of affliction.

Sect. 4. Of the manner of this Life of Faith in temporal Bleſſings.

CONcerning temporal Bleſſings, or good things, conſider we.

1. The Promiſes.

2. The exerciſe of Faith in thoſe promiſes.

1. Promiſes that concern temporal Bleſſings have reference to thoſe Bleſſings, in { General.

  { Special.

1. The general promiſes are theſe, and the like, 1 Tim. 4. 8. Pſal. 34. 8, 9. Pſal. 84. 11. Phil. 4. 19. 1 Cor. 3. 21. all things are yours, we are heirs of all the World.

2. The ſpecial promiſes have a relation, ſome to our name, ſome to our bodies, ſome to our eſtates, ſome to our callings.

1. Thoſe Promiſes that have a relation to our good name; are ſuch as theſe, 1 Sam. 2. 30. Prov. 3. 16. Prov. 4. 8. Prov. 14. 19. Iſa. 56. 3, 4, 5.

2. Thoſe promiſes that have a relation to our bodies, are either for long life, concerning which, Deut. 5. 16, 33. Prov. 3. 1, 2. or for health, concerning which, Prov. 3. 8. Pſal. 103. 3, 4, 5. or for ſafety, concerning which, Prov. 1. 33. Job 11. 18. Hoſ. 2. 18. Job 5. 23. or for peace, concerning which, Lev. 26. 6. Pſal. 29. 11. Pſal. 37. 11. Prov. 16. 16. or for ſleep, concerning which, Job 11. 19. Prov. 3. 24. or for food, concerning which, Pſal. 37. 3. Pſal. 111. 5. Joel 2. 26. or for raiment, concerning which, Deut. 10. 18. Mat. 6. 25, 30, 32. or for Poſterity, the fruit of the body, concerning which, Deut. 7. 12, 13, 14.

3. Thoſe promiſes that have relation to our eſtates, are theſe, Job 22. 24, 25. Prov. 8. 18, 19. Pſal. 37. 5.

4. Thoſe promiſes that have a relation to our calling, are either for plenty, concerning which, Prov. 10. 4. and 12. 11. and 13. 4. and 28. 19. —— or for protection, concerning which, Pſal. 91. 11. —— or for promotion, concerning which, Prov. 12. 24. and 22. 29. —— or for good ſucceſs, concerning which, Prov. 12. 14. Iſa. 65. 21, 23. I deny not but the wicked may enjoy all theſe Temporal bleſſings by a general Providence, but only the juſt may have a ſpiritual right to them; they only have them as rewards of their righteouſneſs, as teſtimonies of God's love and care over them, and by vertue of a Promiſe. ——

2. For the exerciſe of Faith concerning theſe promiſes, obſerve that we may live by them, either in the { want } of theſe Temporal mercies.

  { enjoyment }

1. In the want of them, go we to { Meditation.
  { Prayer.

1. For Meditation, and the matter of it, conſider theſe things.

1. That faith in this caſe doth ranſack, and fan the ſoul narrowly to find out and remove whatſoever doth offend: If thou return to the Almighty thou ſhalt be built up, thou ſhalt put iniquity far Job 22. 23, 25. from thy Tabernacles: then ſhalt thou lay up gold as duſt, and the Gold of Ophir as the ſtones of the brooks. This advice faith digeſts, and labours the reformation of what is amiſs, and whatſoever hinders the promiſes.

2. That faith is painful, provident, and frugal; it ſhakes of idleneſs, takes the opportunity, husbands thriftily, and obſerves God's providence in all affairs, otherwiſe we live not by faith, but tempt God, and throw away his promiſes, and all.

3. That faith preſerves from the uſe of all unlawful means: The believer conſults ever what is juſt; not what is gainful, or what may be compaſſed by honeſt courſes, not what may be gained by fraud, deceit, couzenage, or the like carnal Prov. 16. 8. dealings: Better is a little with righteouſneſs, than great revenues without right.

4. That faith leans upon the providence of God, who will keep back nothing from us but what is hurtful and pernicious: Here's a ſweet act of faith, it ſubmits to God's wiſdom, and reſts on his Providence, after the uſe of all lawful means; and this maintains a Chriſtian in ſome meaſure of contentment.

2. For Prayer, and the parts or manner of it, obſerve this method.

1. Confeſs our ſins, eſpecially thoſe ſins which upon ſearch we are perſuaded hinders proſperity; O Lord I have thought on my ways, and I find (this or that) ſin in my boſome, this or that Corruption hath gotten head, and hinders thy bleſſings: O Lord how ſhould I expect needful things? What have I to do with thy promiſes, that have committed ſuch and ſuch ſins.

2. Importune the Lord for his Temporal bleſſings, at leaſt, ſo far as he ſeeth them to be for our good, and for the Glory of his great name: Thus Bildad tells Job, If thou wouldſt ſeek unto God Job 8. 5, 6, 7. betimes, and make thy ſupplication to the Almighty, ſurely now he would awake for the, and make the habitation of thy Righteouſneſs proſperous: Though thy beginning was ſmall, yet thy latter end ſhould greatly encreaſe. Thus Jabez prayed, O that thou wouldſt bleſs me indeed, and enlarge my coaſts, &c. And God granted 1 Chron. 4. 13. him that which he requeſted. In like manner was Jacob's Prayer, If God will be with me, and will Gen. 28. 20, 21. keep me in this way that I go, and will give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on, ſo that I come again to my Fathers houſe in peace, Then ſhall the Lord be my God: And thus may we importune the Lord, and and make our ſupplication to the Almighty.

3. Then preſs the Lord with his promiſes, as with ſo many Arguments: Lord, thou haſt ſaid, Godlineſs hath the promiſe of the life that now is, as well as that which is to come: Thou haſt ſaid, Fear the Lord, ye his Saints, for there is no want to them that fear him, &c. O theſe are thy promiſes, make them good to us as it ſtands beſt with thy Wiſdom.

2. In the enjoyment of theſe Temporal bleſſings, go we to — { Meditation. / Prayer.

1. For Meditation, and the matter of it, conſider theſe things,

1. Faith in proſperity, keeps the Heart in a holy temper and diſpoſition (i. e.) in humility, meekneſs, tenderneſs and compaſſion towards others, in thankfulneſs, obedience, and in the fear of the Job 1. 10. Lord: Satan himſelf could reply to the Lord, Doth Job fear God for nought? Haſt thou not made a hedge about him? In this caſe Faith will remember man of his Duty, and perſuade him to be ſo much the more ſerviceable, as God's Mercies are more plentiful upon him.

2. That Faith makes a man Heavenly-minded in the uſe and poſſeſſion of a proſperous eſtate; as it receives all earthly bleſſings from God, ſo it winds and pulls up the Soul to God again: And if it be rightly conſidered, proſperity is the fitteſt ſeaſon for Heavenly contemplation; the leſs trouble lies upon our eſtate, the more liberty we have to think of Heavenly things: Howſoever, Faith conſiders theſe things as pledges of God's Love, as parts of our Child's Portion, and ſo it makes us look at the better part, thoſe never-fading Riches which God hath reſerved in Heaven for all that fear him.

3. That Faith breeds a Godly jealouſie and ſuſpition, leſt the Heart ſhould be drawn away with the pleaſing delights of things tranſitory; for by Grace it is that we are made conſcious of our own weakneſs, and of the ſnare that is in every creature, to take and entangle us: Proſperity is pleaſing, but dangerous; as man may quickly ſurfeit of ſweet meats. This makes the waking believer circumſpect an watchfull, and jealous; and ſuſpitious of his own Heart, leſt he miſcarry in proſperity, conſidering there is a ſnare in it.

4. That faith minds a change even when our Job. 3.25. mountains ſeems ſtrongeſt: The thing I greatly feared (ſaid Job) is come upon me, and that which I was afraid of, is come unto me; by this it appears, that Job Prov.23.5. always thought upon a change; There is no wind (ſaith the Proverb) which may not blow rain, if God ſo pleaſe. Riches have their wings, and take their flight like an Eagle: Now faith minds this, and pre- Prov. 27. 12. pares for this; The prudent man foreſeeth evil, and hideth himſelf.

2. For prayer, and the manner of it, obſerve this method:

1. Confeſs and acknowledge God's Mercy both in his Promiſes and Performances; ſay, Lord, thou haſt promiſed, That no good thing wilt thou withhold from them that walk uprightly; and ſurely thou art true in thy ſayings, I believe by vertue of thy promiſe I enjoy this land, and thoſe goods, &c. I have nothing, Lord, but merely of Free-grace, and by virtue of a promiſe.

2. Pray, importune the Lord for ſanctification of proſperity, and for God's Bleſſings upon the means: The more we proſper, the more earneſt ſhould the Prayers of Faith be; for of our ſelves we have no power to wield a good eſtate well, no ability to preſerve or keep it: In greateſt wealth we lie open to many Temptations, and if we pray not earneſtly that God may ſanctifie all his Temporal bleſſings to us, we ſhall cool in Grace.

3. Praiſe God for his Mercies, and dovote our ſelves unto him from whom we have received all: Pſal. 116. 12, 13. What ſhall I render unto the Lord (ſaith David) for all his mercies towards me? I will take the cup of Pſal.103,1. Salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord. Men look for thanks for a ſmall kindneſs, and ſhall not we magnifie God for all his favours and loving kindneſs toward us? O praiſe the Lord, bleſs the Lord, O my Soul!

Sect. 5. Of the manner of this Life of Faith in Spiritual evils.

THings Spiritual, are { Evil. / Good.

We ſhall begin with Spiritual evils: and concerning them, firſt give you the promiſes, and ſecondly the exerciſe of faith in reſpect of thoſe promiſes.

Evils Spiritual ariſe either from the Devil, or the Fleſh, or the World, or from Man, or God, or from our own ſelves.

1. Thoſe evils that ariſe from the Devil, are temptations of ſeveral ſorts; and the man whoſe heart is upright, ſhall find ſtrength enough againſt every temptation: To that purpoſe conſider theſe Promiſes, Matth. 16. 18. 1 Cor. 10. 13. 1 Joh. 5. 18.

2. Thoſe evils that ariſe from the fleſh, are luſts or temptations of Uncleanneſs; and for ſtrength and ability againſt ſuch a temptation, conſider theſe Promiſes, Prov. 2. 10, 11, 16. Eccleſ. 7. 26. 1 Theſ. 5. 23, 24.

3. Thoſe evils that ariſe from the World, are covetouſneſs, cares, evil company, &c. and for ſtrength againſt ſuch, conſider theſe Promiſes, 2 Cor. 6. 14, 17, 18. Gal. 1. 4. 1 John 5. 4. Heb. 13. 5. ȣ μή σε ἀνῶ, ȣ̓δ' ȣ μή σε ἐγκαταλίπω. there are five Negatives together in the Original that ſtrongly affirm; q. d. I tell thee, I will never, never, never, never, never forſake thee.

4. Thoſe evils that ariſe from men, are either oppoſitions againſt truth, concerning which, Matth. 10. 19. Acts 18. 9, 10. or oppoſitions againſt goodneſs, Matth. 5. 10. 1 Pet. 3. 14. —— or oppoſitions againſt both, and ſo they fall either on our good name, concerning which, Pſal. 37. 6. where howſoever thy innocency be at ſome times covered (as it were) with a thick and dark miſt of ſlander and oppreſſion, yet the Lord will in his good time ſcatter and diſſolve the miſt, and ſo make thy innocency apparent to the world; yea, he will make thy righteouſneſs as evident as the Sun when it ariſeth; yea, as noon day, when it is at higheſt, and ſhines brighteſt, Pſal. 68. 13. Mat. 5. 11, 12. 1 Pet. 4. 14. &c. — or they may fall on us in reſpect of our liberty, concerning which, Pſal. 69. 32, 33. and 102. 19, 20. Rev. 2. 10. — or they may deprive us of our goods, concerning which, 2 Chron. 25. 9. Mat. 19. 29. Hab. 3. 17, 18. —— or they may take away life, concerning which, Matth. 10. 39. John 12. 25. Rev. 14. 13.

5. Thoſe evils which ariſe from God, are deſertions: and for comforts againſt them, conſider theſe promiſes, Iſa. 49. 14, 15, 16. and 54. 7, 8. and 50. 10.

6. Thoſe evils that ariſe from our ſelves are ſins and infirmities, and they are either ſpiritual blindneſs, concerning which, Luke 4. 18. 1 John 2. 27. Iſa. 35. 4, 5. — or ſpiritual lameneſs, concerning which, Iſa. 35. 6. and 40. 31. — or heavineſs of mind, concerning which, Iſa. 35. 1, 2. Jer. 66. 12, 13, 14. —— or weakneſs of memory, concerning which, Joh. 14. 26, or fears of loſing God's love, concerning which, Iſa. 49. 15. and 54. 10. Jer. 33. 20. Pſal. 89. 33, 34, 35. John 13. 1. Rom. 11. 29. —— or fear of falling away from God, concerning which ſee the impoſſibility in regard of God, 2 Tim. 2. 19. in regard of Chriſt, Luke 22. 32. in regard of the Holy Ghoſt, John 14. 16. Eph. 4. 30. in regard of the promiſes, Pſal. 94. 14. 1 Cor. 1. 8, 9. —— or indiſpoſition, diſtraction, defects in our beſt performances, concerning which, Numb. 23. 21. Cant. 2. 14.—— or particular falls, daily frailties and infirmities, concerning which, Iſa. 55. 7. Jer. 3. 1. Pſal. 37. 24. and 145. 14. Hoſea 14. 4. 1 John 1. 9.

2. For the exerciſing of faith, concerning theſe promiſes that we may live by them, go we to { Meditation.

Prayer.

1. For Meditation, and the matter of it, conſider theſe things.

1. That of our ſelves we cannot reſiſt theſe ſpiritual evils; all our comfort is, that neither the Devil, nor the world, nor the fleſh, nor ſin, can oppoſe any farther than God will give them leave; not the Devil himſelf can tempt who he will, nor when he will, nor how he will, nor how long he will, but in all theſe he is confined by the providence of God. A legion of Devils could not enter into a Gadarene Hog, till Chriſt had given them leave: Satan could not touch one bleat pertaining to Job, till he had obtained liberty; nor after lay a finger on his body, till his liberty was renewed: O meditate on God on his power, who hath all our enemies in a chain; as for our ſelves we have no ability to reſiſt any of theſe evils.

2. That faith fortifies the ſoul againſt all oppoſitions, the more they rage, the more faith heartens the ſoul to believe, and to keep cloſe under the ſhadow of the Lord's wings: as the child affrighted, clings faſter to the mother; ſo the poor ſoul purſued by the Devil, or World, or Fleſh, or Man, or God, or our own Corruptions, it runs to Chriſt, the everlaſting Rock, and in his name reſiſts all theſe evils, and in his name gets the victory.

3. That in the moſt forcible tempeſt, which God, Devil, or Man raiſeth againſt us (when to preſent ſenſe and feeling all ſight and hope of the grace and goodneſs in Chriſt Jeſus is loſt) then faith tells the heart, that a calm is at hand. The laſt temptation wherewith Satan ſet upon Chriſt was the moſt furious, and when he could not prevail thereby, he departed for a ſeaſon: The Lord will not ſuffer us to be tempted above meaſure. This faith aſſures us of, and perſuades us quietly to wait for the iſſue.

2. For Prayer, and the manner of it, obſerve this method:

1. Confeſs our ſins of former ignorance, vanity of mind, ſelf-confidence, ſolitary muſings on the temptations of Satan, miſ-interpreting of the Lord's doings, &c. which ſet open the ſoul to all other ſpiritual evils —— O my God! I have diſ-eſteemed thy mercy, diſtruſted thy promiſes, harboured thoughts of unbelief, &c. and ſo have expoſed my ſoul to the moſt violent, horrible and fiery temptations of the world, fleſh, Devil, and my own luſts: my ſoul, which ſhould have been raviſhed with the joys of Heaven, and with the kiſſes of Chriſt, is continually peſtered and aſſailed with the black and helliſh thoughts of Atheiſm, Blaſphemy, and ſoul-vexing fears; my heart trembleth, my ſtrength faileth, my life is ſpent with grief, my ſpirit within me is over-whelmed, and prevailing fears ſo tyrannize over me, that I cannot ſpeak, I am ſore wounded and broken, I go mourning and deſolate all the day long.

2. Importune the Lord for pardon of ſin, and for help againſt all oppoſitions: Pardon, O Lord, my yielding to the temptations of the Devil, or Fleſh, or World, or Man, or Sin: Pardon, O Lord, the infidelity, doubtings, dejectedneſs, infirmities, and carnal exceſſive fears of thy poor ſervant; and for the future deliver my ſoul from the ſnares: ſtrengthen me in the Combate againſt all my enemies: Ariſe, O Lord, diſappoint Satan, caſt him down, deliver my ſoul from the wicked one; O be thou my ſtrength in my trouble, for I flee unto thee for help and for ſuccour.

3. Then preſs the Lord with his Promiſes, as with ſo many arguments: Lord, thou haſt ſaid, That the gates of hell ſhall not prevail againſt us: That who ſo pleaſeth God, ſhall eſcape the ſtrange woman: That whoſoever is born of God overcometh the world: That if we ſuffer for righteouſneſs ſake, happy are we: That in a little wrath I hid my face from thee for a moment, but with everlaſting kindneſs will I have mercy upon thee: That a good man though he fall, he ſhall not be utterly caſt down, for the Lord upholdeth him with his hand. O theſe are thy golden ſweet precious Promiſes! now Lord make them good to my ſoul, let me draw the ſweet, and juice, and virtue from every of theſe promiſes; let not a word of theſe promiſes fall to the ground; let me have a ſhare, and part, and portion in theſe comfortable promiſes, through the Lord Jeſus.

Sect. An Appendix of the manner of this Life of Faith, in oppoſition againſt truth and goodneſs, and more particularly againſt our good Name, whereby an unworthy ſervant of Chriſt ſometimes found abundance of Spiritual comfort.

HIs Innocency being ſometimes overſhadowed with a thick and dark miſt of Slanders, Reproaches and defamations, he endeavoured, 1. to review the promiſes; and, 2. to act his faith on them.

2. The promiſes were theſe: Pſal. 37. 5, 6. Mat. 5. 10, 11, 12. 1 Pet. 3. 14. 1 Pet. 4. 14. Pſal. 68. 13. Though you have lain among the pots, yet ſhall ye be as the wings of a dove covered with ſilver, and her feathers with yellow gold; q. d. though hitherto you have been as ſo many abjects, caſt into the ends of the earth, as thrown amongſt black and ſmoaky pots, oppreſſed with mighty calamities, yet the time is at hand that ye ſhall be made white as doves; your innocency and happineſs ſhall apppear, and your white ſhall be intermixt with the colour of pure and yellow gold, (i. e.) you ſhall come to the top of the higheſt felicity, and be freed from ſlanders, and obtain illuſtrious glory.

2. In the acting of his faith, he endeavoured; 1. To meditate; 2. To pray.

1. His Meditations were theſe:——

1. That we know not how to prevent it. Men may ſlander, and men will ſlander, ſo long as the world laſts; onely we have theſe Promiſes for comforts, and it is the Lord who promiſeth, and if he pleaſe, he can hide us from the ſcourge of tongues; or if he pleaſe, he is able to reſtore us double to our ſhame. Job. 5. 21. Iſa. 10. 7.

2. That true faith will fortifie the ſoul againſt all Reproaches: There is an encouraging voice of the Lord to this end, Hearken unto me, ye that know righteouſneſs, the people in whoſe heart is my law: fear ye not the reproach of men, neither be ye afraid of their revilings. Iſa. 51. 7.

3. That if the wicked reproach more and more, yet it is the duty of Chriſtians to exerciſe patience. Experience of their vanities, and God's gracious dealings with us, will fortifie our hearts: Fear not thou worm (thou poor deſpicable thing) I will help thee, ſaith the Lord thy Redeemer; and as for thy reproachers, their doom is before, Behold, all they that are incenſed againſt thee ſhall be aſhamed and confounded; they ſhall be as nothing, and they that ſtrive with thee ſhall periſh. Iſa. 41. 14. 11.

4. That faith makes the ſoul circumſpect, and in this caſe doth ranſack and fan the ſoul narrowly, to find out what is the matter and riſe of thoſe ſlanders and reproaches: If ye ſuffer for righteouſneſs ſake, 1 Pet. 3. 14.

ſake, happy are ye; it muſt be for righteouſneſs ſake or there is no bleſſing upon it: And ſo the Apoſtle adds, 16. You muſt have a good conſcience, that whereas they ſpeak evil of you as of evil doers, they may be aſhamed that falſely accuſe your good converſation in Chriſt: 17. for it is better if the will of God be ſo, that, ye ſuffer for well-doing, than for evil-doing. We are ordinarily more impatient at undeſerved than deſerved ſufferings; but it is better (ſaith the Apoſtle) ſo to ſuffer, than otherwiſe. Let none of you ſuffer as a 1 Pet. 4.15, 16. murtherer, a thief, and evil doer, but if a man ſuffer as a Chriſtian, let him not be aſhamed, but let him glorifie God on this behalf.

5. That true faith eſteems all ſuch ſlanders as the moſt honourable badges of innocency that poſſibly can be. If mine adverſary ſhould write a book againſt Job 31.35, 36. me, ſurely I would take it upon my ſhoulder, and bind it as a crown to me. I rejoice (ſaid Luther) that Satan ſo rages and blaſphemes, it is likely that I doe him and his Kingdom the more miſchief. And they that reproach me (ſaid Auſtin) doe agai[illegible] there wills increaſe mine honour both with God and g[illegible]d men. The more the dirty feet of men tread and rub on the figure graven in gold, the more luſtre they give it: ſo the more cauſeleſs aſperſions the wicked caſt on the godly, the more bright do they rub their glory. And Heb. 11. 25, 26. hence was that choice of Moſes, rather to ſuffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleaſures of ſin for a ſeaſon: eſteeming the reproach of Chriſt greater riches than the treaſures of Egypt.

2. For Prayer, his method was,

1. To complain to the Lord, as ſometimes David did, Pſal. 69. 19, 20. Thou O Lord, haſt known my reproach, and my ſhame, and my diſhonour: mine adverſaries are all before thee. Reproach hath broken my heart, and I am full of heavineſs: and I looked for ſome to take pity, but there was none; and for comforters, but I found none.

2. To petition to the Lord as other whiles David did, Pſal. 31. 17. Let me not be aſhamed, O Lord, for I have called upon thee, let the wicked be aſhamed, let them be 18, ſilent in the grave; let the lying lips be put to ſilence, 19. which ſpeak grievous things proudly and contemptuouſly againſt the righteous. O how great is thy goodneſs, which thou haſt laid up for them that truſt in thee before the ſons of men! Thou ſhalt hide them in the ſecret of thy preſence, from the pride of men, thou ſhalt keep them 20. ſecretly in a pavilion from the ſtrife of tongues. Thus 2 Sam. 16. 11, 12. Lord I beg at thy hands, or if otherwiſe, thou knoweſt it beſt in thy wiſdom: Let them alone, and let them curſe, it may be the Lord will look on my affliction, and thou Lord wilt requite good for their curſing this day.

3. To preſs the Lord with his gracious Promiſes: Mat. 5.11. as thus, Thou haſt ſaid, Bleſſed are ye when men ſhall revile you, and perſecute you, and ſhall ſay all manner of evil againſt you falſly for my names ſake: And if 1 Pet. 3.14. & 4. 14. ye ſuffer for righteouſneſs ſake, happy are ye: And if ye be reproached for the name of Chriſt, happy are ye: Theſe are thy golden promiſes, now Lord make them good to my ſoul, let me draw the juice, and ſweet, and virtue from every of theſe promiſes; let not a word of theſe promiſes fall to the ground, but let me have my part, and ſhare, and portion in them.

4. To pray to the Lord to forgive all his Enemies Mat. 6.12. Mark 23. 34. that treſpaſſed againſt him, as ſometimes Chriſt did, Father forgive them, for they know not what they doe: Surely in theſe two things there is much matter of comfort: 1. That our hearts are well, and not ill-affected to any man. 2. That going alone we can humble our ſelves, and pray for the authors of all the reproaches and ſlanders that are unjuſtly caſt on us.

Sect. 6. Of the manner of this life of faith in ſpiritual bleſſings, as derived to us from God and Chriſt, and the Spirit of Chriſt.

Concerning ſpiritual bleſſings, or good things, conſider we ——
- 1. The Promiſes.
- 2. The exerciſe of faith in reſpect of thoſe Promiſes.

1. The Promiſes are of ſuch bleſſings as ariſe from
- God.
- Chriſt.
- The Spirit of Chriſt.

1 From God proceeds his
- Love of us.
- Preſence with us.
- Providence over us.

1. Concerning his love of us, we have theſe promiſes, Deut. 7. 7, 8, 13. Iſa. 54. 8. Jer. 31. 3. Hoſea 2. 19. and 14. 4. John 3. 16. Eph. 2. 4. 1 John 4. 19.

2. Concerning his preſence with us, we have theſe promiſes, Gen. 26. 24. and 28. 15. Exod. 3. 12. Joſhuah 1. 5. Jer. 1. 8. 1 Chron. 28. 20. Iſaiah 41. 10. Matth. 28. 20. Rev. 2. 1.

3. Concerning his providence over us, we have theſe promiſes, Pſal. 34. 7. and 91. 11, 12. Job 36. 7. Zach. 2. 8. whence (He that toucheth you, toucheth the apple of mine eye) obſerve, That the Lord to expreſs the tenderneſs of his love, names the tendereſt part of the body; nay the tendereſt piece of the tendereſt part, the Chryſtal humour, as the Philoſophers call it.

2. From Chriſt we have promiſes,
- 1. Of the perſon of Chriſt.
- 2. Of the benefits that flow from Chriſt.

1. Of the perſon of Chriſt, in Geneſis. 3. 15. where was the firſt promiſe, and the foundation of all other promiſes, becauſe God intended to make good every promiſe in Chriſt.

2. Of the benefits that flow from Chriſt, whether
- Redemption.
- Vocation.
- Juſtification.
- Reconciliation.
- Adoption.

1. Concerning Redemption, we have theſe promiſes, Tit. 2. 14. Eph. 1. 7. Gal. 3. 13. Heb. 9. 12.

2. Concerning Vocation, we have theſe promiſes, Acts 2. 39. Rom. 8. 30.

3. Concerning Juſtification, we have theſe promiſes, Iſaiah 53. 11. Acts 13. 39. Rom. 8. 33.

Now this Juſtification conſiſts of two parts, in
- 1. Not imputing ſin.
- 2. Imputing righteouſneſs.

1. For Not imputing (or forgiving) ſin, we have theſe promiſes, Pſal. 32. 2. Jer. 31. 34. Iſaiah 55. 7. Jer. 33. 8. hither tend all thoſe Metaphors, Iſaiah 43. 25. and 44. 22. and 38. 17. Micah. 7. 19.

2. For Imputing Righteouſneſs, we have theſe promiſes, Rom. 5. 19. 1 Cor. 1. 30. Rom. 10. 4. Iſaiah 16. 10. Gal. 3. 6. this phraſe is uſed ten times in one Chapter, Rom. 4. 3, 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 23, 24.

4. Concerning Reconciliation, we have theſe promiſes, 2 Cor. 5. 18, 19. Eph. 2. 14, 16. Col. 1. 21, 22.

5. Concerning Adoption, we have theſe promiſes, Gal. 3. 26. John 1. 12. Rom. 9. 26. Gal. 4. 4, 5, 7.

3. From the Spirit of Chriſt, we have promiſes,
- 1. Of the Spirit himſelf.
- 2. Of the operation of the Spirit.

1. Of the Spirit himſelf, in Joel 2. 28, 29. Acts 2. 17, 18. John 14. 16, 17. Eph. 1. 13. Gal. 3. 14.

2. Of the operation of the Spirit, and that
- 1. In general, as Sanctification.
- 2. In ſpecial, as
  - Spiritual Graces.
  - Spiritual Duties.

1. Concerning Sanctification, we have theſe promiſes, Micah 7. 19. Jer. 31. 33, 34. Heb. 8. 10. and 10. 16. 1 Theſ. 5. 23. 1 John 1. 7. Rev. 1. 5. ———

Concerning Graces and Duties, we ſhall handle them anon.

2. For the exerciſe of Faith concerning the promiſes, that we may live by them, go we to
- Meditation.
- Prayer.

1. For Meditation, and the matter of it, conſider theſe things:

1. That faith (conſidering the privileges of God's Pſal. 31. 19. children) admires, and adores, O how great is thy goodneſs which thou haſt laid up for them that fear thee, which thou haſt wrought for them that truſt in Pſal. 36. 7. thee, before the ſons of men! ——— How excellent is thy loving kindneſs, O Lord! therefore the children of men put their truſt under the ſhadow of my wings.

2. That faith (in conſideration hereof) reſts upon God, and Chriſt, and the Spirit of Chriſt, to receive whatſoever may be good and profitable to Pſal. 23. 1. the Soul: The Lord is my Shepherd, I ſhall not want:
Iſa. 40. 11. ——— He ſhall lead his flock like a ſhepherd, he ſhall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his boſome, and ſhall gently lead thoſe that are with young. What can they want, who have God for their Father, Chriſt for their Saviour, the Spirit for their Sanctifier? Thou Iſrael, art my Servant, Jacob whom Pſal. 41. 8, I have choſen, the ſeed of Abraham my friend: Thou whom I have taken from the ends of the earth, and cal-
9, led thee from the chief men thereof, and ſaid unto thee, Thou art my Servant, I have choſen thee, and not caſt
10. thee away: Fear thou not, for I am with thee; be not diſmayed, for I am thy God, I will ſtrengthen thee, yea I will help thee, yea I will uphold thee with the right hand of my Righteouſneſs.

3. That faith hereupon ſets an high price upon Chriſt, upon God in Chriſt, upon the Spirit of Chriſt! Theſe promiſes are more worth than Kingdoms, Empires, the whole World, which made holy David ſay, In the multitude of my thoughts with-
Pſal. 94. 19. in me, thy comforts delight my ſoul; q. d. I have multitudes of thoughts, ſome running this way, ſome running that way; ſome on this pleaſure, ſome on that profit: but my ſoul is onely comforted in the thoughts of thee: Pleaſures, profits, honours, all are vain and empty, and nothing is to be wreſted on, to be delighted in, but Jeſus Chriſt; yea there's a full content in Jeſus Chriſt; let the world be filled with trouble and ſorrow, even now faith carries a merry heart.

4. Faith in theſe promiſes doth greatly inlarge the heart towards God, and ſtirreth up to earneſt ſtudy of holineſs; if a Chriſtian be much in the Meditation of God's ſingular goodneſs in Chriſt, it will Pſal. 26. 2, 3. even conſtrain him to yield up himſelf wholly to God, in all manner of godly converſation: Examine, O Lord, and prove me, try my reins and my heart, for thy loving kindneſs is before mine eyes, and I have walked in thy truth.

5. Faith ever runs to theſe promiſes in all ſtraits, Prov. 30. 26. and here it finds comforts: Nature teacheth man and beaſt in troubles and ſtorms to make to a ſhelter; the child runs to the armes of the mother, the birds to their neſts, the conies to the rock, ſo muſt the ſoul have a ſanctuary, an hiding place, when danger and trouble comes; now where can it take up a ſurer and ſafer refuge than with God and Chriſt, and the Spirit of Chriſt? indeed God it dares not look at, but in Chriſt; and the Spirit proceeds not but from Chriſt, to Chriſt therefore it runs immediately; it is Chriſt, who of God is made unto us wiſdom, and righteouſneſs, and ſanctification, and re- demption. 1 Cor. 3. 30. Come (ſaith Faith) let us out to Chriſt, and if he receive us not preſently, let us ſtay a little; he is full of bowels and tenderneſs towards poor ſinners, he keeps open houſe for all comers, he invites all, entertains all, old ſinners, young ſinners, great ſinners, leſs ſinners; his promiſe is ſure too: him that cometh unto me, I will in no wiſe caſt out. John 7. 37. Thus faith takes the believer off from ſelf, civil life, eſtate, friends, and hangs the ſoul alone upon that true friend, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who hath manifeſted the greatneſs of his love to poor ſinners by dying for them, and ſending his Spirit to ſanctifie and comfort them. John 15. 13.

2. For Prayer, and the manner of it, obſerve this Method:

1. Confeſs and acknowledge God's mercies both in his promiſes and performances: Say, Lord thou haſt ſaid, I will love thee freely; ——— And I will be with thee, even to the end of the World: ——— He that Hoſea 14. 4. toucheth you, toucheth the apple of mine eye: ——— And all is yours, and ye are Chriſt's, and Chriſt is God's: Mat. 28. 20.
——— And I will pray the Father, and he ſhall give you 1 Cor. 3. 22, 23.
another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever, &c. Surely, Lord, thou art true in thy ſayings; I be- John 14. 16.
lieve by virtue of this and that promiſe, I have the love, and promiſe, and providence of God; I am redeemed, called, juſtified, reconciled, adopted by Chriſt; I have the Spirit of Chriſt, I am ſanctified in ſome meaſure by that Spirit; I have all this of free grace, and by virtue of a promiſe.

2. Pray for this encreaſe of Faith, and for a farther and farther ſight of this belief; Give me, gracious Father, to believe as thou haſt promiſed; create in me the hand of faith, and make it ſtronger and ſtronger, that I may effectuall receive what in mercy thou reacheſt forth; and then give me the ſpirit of revelation, that I may diſcern truly what thou haſt given me, that my lips may ſing of thy praiſe all the day long.

3. Praiſe God for his mercies, and quietly reſt in the promiſes; O Lord, thou haſt freely loved, and redeemed, and ſanctified my ſoul; O how ſhould I praiſe thee, how ſhould I advance and ſet thee up on high! Salvation, and Glory, and Honour, and Praiſe be given to thy name, &c. I praiſe thee for my Election, Vocation, Juſtification, Sanctification, &c. but above all, for the fountain of all, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt: It is my Chriſt juſtifies, and my Chriſt ſanctifies: Lord, thou haſt given Chriſt for my Wiſdom and Sanctification, as well as for Righteouſneſs and Redemption: Lord, thou haſt appointed Chriſt to be the beginner and finiſher of my holineſs, and ſurely he will not leave that work imperfect, whereunto he is ordained of the Father; were the progreſs of this building committed to my care and overſight, there might be cauſe of fear; but ſince thou haſt laid all upon Chriſt my only and all-ſufficient Redeemer; Lord, encreaſe my faith, that I may hold him faſt and be ſafe, and ſo at laſt I my ſing Hallelujahs to thee in Heaven for ever and ever.

Sect. 7. Of the manner of this Life of Faith in Spiritual Graces.

THE operation of the Spirit in general, we told you was Sanctification; now the operation of the Spirit in ſpecial appears in
- Spiritual graces.
- Spiritual duties.

1. Spiritual graces we ſhall conſider in their
- kinds.
- degrees.

And of them both give
1. The Promiſes.
2. The exerciſe of Faith in reſpect of thoſe promiſes.

1. The kinds of graces are theſe, Knowledge, and Faith, and Hope, and Joy, and Love, and Fear, and Obedience, and Repentance, and Humility, and Meekneſs, and Patience, and Righteouſneſs, and Vprightneſs, and Peace of Conſcience, and Zeal, and Perſeverance; ſixteen graces in number: concerning which the Lord hath made gracious promiſes.

1. Of them, to give them.

2. To them, to reward them.

The firſt Grace is Knowledge, and we find ſome promiſes, 1. Of it, Pſal, 25. 14. Jer. 31. 34. Iſa. 2. 2, 3. Micah 4. 1, 2. Eph. 3. 5. Rev. 21. 23. ——— 2. To it, as Prov. 3. 14. Pſal. 91. 14. 2 Pet. 1. 2. Prov. 3. 18.

The ſecond grace is Faith, and we find ſome promiſes, 1. Of it, as Eph. 2. 8. Job. 6. 37. obſerve here theſe promiſes of aſſurance, the higheſt meaſure of faith, Pſal. 50. 23. Ezek. 34. 30. Iſa. 60. 16. Pſal. 97. 11. ——— 2 To it, as 2 Chron. 11. 20. Prov. 29. 25. Iſa. 26. 3. Acts 10. 43. Rom. 18. 4. Acts 13. 39. John 1. 12. and 7. 38. and 3. 16, 36. and 5. 24. and 6. 47.

The third grace is Hope, and we find ſome promiſes, 1. Of it, as Pſal. 65. 4. Prov. 14. 32. Job 13. 15. ——— 2. To it, as Pſal. 40. 4. Rom. 4. 18, 22. Rom. 8. 24.

The fourth grace is Joy, and we find ſome promiſes, 1. Of it, Pſal. 36. 8, 9. and 64. 10. and 68. 3. and 97. 11. and 118. 15. Iſa. 12. 2, 3. Iſa. 35. throughot, Iſa. 56. 7. and 66. 13, 14. John 16. 22. Rom. 14. 17. — 2. To it, Pſal. 89. 15, 16.

The fifth grace is Love, eſpecially of God, and we may find ſome promiſes, 1. Of it, as Cant. 1. 4. Deut. 30. 6. ——— 2. To it, as Pſal. 91. 14. and 145. 20. Prov. 8. 21. Deut. 7. 9. 1 Cor. 8. 3. and 2. 9, 10. Jam. 1. 12. and 2. 5.

The ſixth grace is Fear, and we find ſome promiſes, 1. Of it, as Jer. 32. 39, 40. Hoſ. 3. 5. —— 2. To it, as Pſal. 103. 11. and 31. 19. and 147. 11. Mal. 3. 16, 17.

The ſeventh grace is Obedience, and we find ſome promiſes, 1. Of it, as Ezek. 11. 19, 20. and 36. 26, 27. — 2. To it, as Deut. 28. 1, 2. to 14.

The eighth grace is Repentance, and we find ſome promiſes, 1. Of it, as Acts 5. 30, 31. Ezek. 11. 19. and 20. 43. and 36. 31. — 2. To it, as Mal. 3. 7. Iſa. 55. 7. 2 Chron. 7. 14. Iſa. 1. 16, 17, 18. Job. 3. 27, 28. Jer. 4. 14.

The ninth grace is Humility, and we find ſome promiſes, 1. Of it, as 2 Cor. 10. 4, 5. Gal. 5. 22. — 2. To it, as Prov. 15. 33. and 22. 4 James 4. 6. 1 Peter 5. 5. Iſa. 57. 15. Matthew 5. 3.

The tenth grace is Meekneſs, and we find ſome promiſes, 1. Of it, as Iſa. 11. 6, 7, 8. Gal. 5. 22, 23. ——— 2. To it, as Pſal. 37. 11. and 147. 6. Iſa. 29. 9. Pſal, 25. 9. Zeph. 2. 3. Matt. 5. 5. and 11. 29. Pſal. 149. 4.

The Eleventh grace is Patience, and we find ſome promiſes, 2. Of it, as James 1. 5. —— 2. To it, as Heb. 10. 36. Jam. 5. 11.

The twelfth grace is Righteouſneſs, and we find ſome promiſes, 1. Of it, as Rev. 19. 7, 8. ——— 2. To it, as Pſal. 11. 7. Iſa. 32. 17, 18. Prov. 14. 32. Pſal 112. 2, 6. Mat. 25. 46.

The thirteenth grace is, Vprightneſs or Sincerity of heart, and we find ſome promiſes, 1. Of it, as Jer. 31. 33. Jer. 50. 5. ——— 2. To it, as Pſal. 84. 11. Prov. 14. 11. Pſal. 112. 2. 2 Chron. 16. 9. Pſal. 112. 4. and 84. 11. Gen. 17. 1, 2. 1 Chron. 29. 17. Proverbs 12. 22. Pſal 37. 37. Prov. 28. 18. Pſal. 15. 1, 2.

The fourteenth grace is Peace of Conſcience, and we find ſome promiſes, 1. Of it, as John 14. 27. Gal. 6. 16. Iſa. 57. 19. Iſa. 54. 10. ——— 2. To it, as Phil. 4. 7.

The fifteenth grace is Zeal, and we find ſome promiſes, 1. Of it, as Jer. 20. 9. 2 Cor. 7. 11. ——— 2. To it, as Numb. 25. 12, 13. Rev. 3. 19, 20.

The ſixteenth grace is Perſeverance; and we find ſome promiſes, 1. Of it, as Pſal. 89. 28. Prov. 12. 3. Iſa. 46. 4. —— 2. To it, as Mat. 10. 22. Rev. 2. 26.

The degrees of Graces follow; and we find ſome promiſes, 1. Thereof, as Iſa. 44. 3, 4. Mal. 4. 2. Pſal. 84. 7. Prov. 4. 18. —— 2. Thereto, as Rom. 13. 11. 2 Pet. 1. 8.

2. For the exerciſe of faith concerning theſe promiſes, that we may live by them, go we

to Meditation.
Prayer.

1. For Meditation, and the matter of it, conſider theſe things:

1. That of our ſelves we have no ability to attain any of theſe Graces: Every one can ſay, I purpoſe well, but the queſtion is, whether they build not on their own ſtrength: Many a man (eſpecially in time of this ſickneſs, danger, diſgrace) will make fair Promiſes of amendment, but when the rod is removed, all is forgotten: What may be the reaſon? He ſtands on his own feet, he preſumes to go alone of himſelf, and by his own ſtrength, and then no marvel if he falls and catcheth many a knock: If we will have any of theſe Graces, then deny we our ſelves: I will keep thy ſtatutes ſaid David) but immediately upon this reſolution he cries, O forſake me not utterly: Purpoſes thus grounded, bring forth holy performances, but of our ſelves we can expect nothing. Pſal. 119. 8.

2. That God's Spirit will infuſe theſe Graces, and the encreaſe of theſe Graces into them that believe: Many would fain have Knowlege, and Faith, and Hope, and Joy, &c. but they exerciſe not their Faith to believe God and his Promiſes: I know a man in Chriſt (could Paul ſay) concerning his Revelation: So, I knew a man in Chriſt off and on, unſtayed, diſmayed at his manifold ſlips, ſtrong corruptions, little prevailings againſt them, and (when all came to all) he could find no help till he went to a promiſe, and by faith believed that God would aid and aſſiſt, and doe the whole work for him; it is good to believe that (according to his promiſe) God will ſanctifie our natures, enable us to Holineſs, and beſtow all his graces on us. 2Cor. 12.

3. That for the degrees of theſe graces, it is neceſſary to improve them; Graces improved, are the ready way to have them encreaſed: God ever beſtows the greateſt meaſure, where he finds a care to put them forth to advantage: Whoſoever hath, to him ſhall be given, and he ſhall have more abundance; as men encreaſe their ſubſtance by labour, and learning by diligence, ſo he that improves Graces, ſhall more and more abound in them. Mat. 13. 12.

2. For Prayer, and the parts of it, obſerve this method:

1. Confeſs and acknowledge our inabilities: O Lord, I have no Grace by nature, I have no power to cleanſe my own Heart: O Lord, I have defaced thine Image, but I cannot repair it; I may ſay with the Apoſtle, when I would doe well, evil is preſent with me, but I find no means to perfect what I deſire; I am not able to crawl about the doing of that which is good: O when ſhall I be ſet at liberty, that I might doe the Rom. 7. 21.

work of God, and run the race of his Commandments; O that I had Knowledge, and Faith, and Hope, and Joy, and Love!

2. Look we up to the Power, and Grace, and Truth of God, and preſs him therewith: Lord, I have heard of thy power, thou art God Almighty, who calleſt the things that are not, as if they were; thou canſt if thou wilt, work in me theſe Graces, and create them in me, as thou didſt Glorioușly create them in Adam, the firſt man: Lord, I have heard alſo of thy Grace and Truth, thou art as faithful to keep, as free to make theſe ſweet precious promiſes; Thy Grace is unſearcheable, thy Word purer than Silver ſeven times refined; O then make good thy promiſes! I preſs thee with thy Power, Grace and Truth; O repleniſh me with thy Graces! give me Knowledge, and Faith, and Hope, &c.

3. Look we on the promiſes, and pray by them or turn them into prayer! Faith hearkeneth what the Lord ſpeaketh, and ſpeaketh back again in fervent groans and deſires to whatſoever it hearkeneth: Hence we can make no prayer in boldneſs, Gen. 32. 9. faith, or comfort, but for things promiſed, and 2 Sam. 7. 27, 28, 29. in that manner as they are promiſed. Thus Jacob (Gen. 32. 9.) and David (2 Sam. 7. 27, 28, 29.) prayed by a promiſe, and thus ſhould we pray by a promiſe, and then we may be ſure we pray according to his Will. In want of other Rhetorick and Oratory, let us urge God with this repetition: Pſal. 25. 14. Lord, thou haſt promiſed, Lord, thou haſt promiſed, thou haſt made many ſweet precious promiſes of graces, John 6. 37. and of degrees of graces: Thou haſt ſaid, The ſecret of the Lord is with them that fear him; and, All Prov. 14. 32. that the Father giveth me ſhall come unto me; and, the righteous hath hope in his Death; and, the righteous ſhall be glad in the Lord, and ſhall truſt in him; Pſal. 84. 7. and, They ſhall go from ſtrength every one of them in Zion, appearing before God: O make theſe promiſes effectual to me, blow on my Garden, that the ſpices (theſe graces may flow out.

Sect. 8. Of the manner of this Life of Faith in Spiritual Duties.

As Spiritual Graces, ſo Spiritual Duties, are of the operation of God's Spirit: Now the Duties are twenty, concerning which we ſhall give,

1. The Promiſes.
2. The exerciſes of Faith in reſpect of the Promiſes.

The firſt duty is Prayer, to which are affixed theſe Promiſes, Pſal. 5. 3. and 10. 17. and 65. 2. Prov. 15. 29. Pſal. 50. 15. and 12. 17, 18, 19, 20. Zech. 13. 8, 9. Rom. 8. 13. Jam. 5. 15.

The ſecond duty is Praiſes, to which are affixed theſe promiſes, 1 Sam. 2. 30. Pſal. 50. 23. and 67. 5, 6.

The third duty is Preaching, to which Mat. 28. 20. John 5. 25.

The fourth duty is Reading the Word, to which Pſal. 19. 8. Prov. 1. 4.

The fifth duty is Loving the Word, to which Pſal. 119. 165. and 112. 1.

The ſixth duty is Waiting on the Word, to which Proverbs 8. 34, 35.

The ſeventh duty is Hearkening to the Word, to which Iſa. 55. 2, 3. Acts. 5. 20. —— 20. 32. —— 13. 26.

The eighth duty is Sacraments of
- Baptiſm. to which Acts 2. 3, 8. and 22. 16. 1 Pet. 3. 21.
- Lord's Supper, to which Iſa. 25. 6. Prov. 9. 5, 6. Mat. 26. 26.

The ninth duty is A lawful Oath, to which Jer. 12. 16. Pſal. 15. 4.

The tenth duty is Faſting, to which James 4. 9, 10. Mat. 6. 18.

The eleventh duty is Meditation, to which Pſal. 1. 2. Prov. 14. 22. Phil. 4. 8, 9.

The twelfth duty is Examination, to which 1 Cor. 11. 31. Gal. 6. 4.

The thirteenth duty is Sanctification of the Lord's Day, to which Iſa. 58. 13, 14. and 56. 2. Jer. 17. 26.

The fourteenth duty is Watchfulneſs, to which, Mat. 24. 46, 47. Luke 12. 37, 38, 43. Rev. 16. 15.

The fifteenth duty is Conference, to which Prov. 12. 14. and 16. 13. Mal. 3. 16. Luke 24. 32.

The ſixteenth duty is Reproof, to which Prov. 24. 25. and 28. 23.

The ſeventeenth duty is Almſgiving, to which Pſal. 41. 1, 2, 3. Luke 14. 13, 14.

The eighteenth duty is Seeking of God, to which Pſal. 34. 10. Ezra. 8. 22.

The nineteenth duty is Waiting on God, to which Iſa. 40. 31. and 64. 4. and 49. 23.

The twentieth duty is Delighting in God, to which Pſal. 37. 4.

2. For the exerciſe of Faith concerning theſe promiſes, that we may live by them, go we

- Meditation.
- Prayer.

1. For Meditation, and the matter of it, conſider theſe things.

1. That God deals graciouſly with his people, he might out of his abſolute ſovereignty over us, command only, and we were bound then to obey in every of theſe Duties; but he is pleaſed (the better to quicken us to obedience) to annex theſe gracious promiſes.

2. That as he is gracious to us, ſo we ſhould be chearful in our Duties to him: This chearfulneſs of Service is the very fruit of Faith; By faith Abel Gen. 4. 4. brought of the firſtlings of his flock, and of the fat thereof, an offering to the Lord. Pſal. 42 4. By Faith David went with the multitude unto the houſe of God, with the voice of joy and of praiſe. It is the voice, of Faith, I will ſing and give praiſe with the beſt member I have.

3. That to make us chearful, we ſhould rouze our ſelves to awaken to the work of our God; Ariſe, O my Soul, why ſleepeſt thou! Stir up thy ſelf with readineſs to obey the charge of God in the duties preſcribed; look on the Saints who have gone before thee, they endured impriſonment, loſs of liberty, ſpoiling of their goods, hazard of life; Thou art not yet called to ſuffer, but to obey, why doſt thou delay, or goeſt forth unwillingly? Wouldſt thou reign with them, and not labour with them? Receive the prize, and not run the race? Divide the ſpoil, and not fight the battel? Iſa. 41. 19. Look on the promiſe annexed to the duty: I ſaid not unto the ſeed of Jacob, Seek me in vain, ſaith God: O my Soul, ariſe, contend forward towards the mark, Heaven is worth all my labour.

4. That to remove all remora's the Lord hath promiſed to aſſiſt us in theſe duties by his own ſpirit: Beſides the promiſes of Duties, we have promiſes to Duties, God deals with us (as we do by way of commerce one with another) propounding mercy by covenant and condition; yet his Covenant of Grace is always a gracious Covenant; for he not only gives the good things, but helps us in performing the condition by his own Spirit; he works our hearts to believe and repent, &c. and he gives what he requires: For inſtance, in one place he commands, Ezek. 18. 31. Caſt away from you all your tranſgreſſions, and make you a new heart, and a new Spirit; and in another place he promiſeth, Ezek. 36. 25, 26. I will ſprinkle clean water upon you, and you ſhall be clean from all your filthineſs: A new heart alſo will I give you, and a new ſpirit I will put within you: In one place he commands them, Deut. 10. 16. Circumciſe the foreskin of your Hearts: and in another place he promiſeth, That he will circumciſe their hearts:

Deut. 30. 6. in one place he commands us, To keep his Command-
Eccle. 12. 13. ments; in another place he promiſeth to cauſe us,
To walk in his ſtatutes: In one place he commands
Ezek. 36. 27. us, To fear him; and in another place he promiſeth, Eccleſ. 12. 13. To put his fear into our hearts: In one place he commands us, To pray, to ask, ſeek and knock; and in Jer. 31. 41. another place he promiſeth, To pour upon us the Spirit
Mat. 7. 7. of Grace and Supplication: Theſe promiſes of duties are
Zec. 12. 10. the foundation of all our performances, and thoſe promiſes to duties are the rewards of his Free-Grace and Good-Pleaſure; we do not by working cauſe him to fulfill his promiſes, but he by promiſing doth enable us to perform our works, and ſo he rewards us accordingly.

2. For prayer and the parts of it, obſerve this method:

1. Acknowledge the goodneſs and Free-grace of God in theſe promiſes: O Lord, why ſhouldſt thou allure me to that which I am every way bound to? If I had none of theſe Promiſes, I have already in hand a world of mercies, which do infinitely bind me to duty; and wilt thou yet add this and that Promiſe, to this and that duty? O miracle of mercies! O the goodneſs of God!

2. Bewail our own dulneſs and ſloth to the duty: And yet (O Lord) how dull, and remiſs, and
Jer. 40. 10. ſlighty am I in the practice of this or that duty? Thou
Mal. 1. 14. haſt ſaid, Curſed is the man that doth the work of the Lord negligently; and, Curſed be the deceiver, that hath in his flock a male, and voweth and ſacrificeth unto the Lord a corrupt thing: O then what is my portion, who have ſacrificed that which is torn and ſick unto the great King and Lord of Hoſts, whoſe name is dreadful among the Heathens? No marvel if I feel no power, no ſweet in the Ordinances of Grace, whileſt I deal partially, hear perſunctorily, pray coldly, labour not to freed on the Promiſe, and to ſuck vigor out of it: O Lord, thou loveſt a chearful giver, but my ſervices are maimed and corrupt, and dead, and ſuperficial, and very unchearful.

3. Importune the Lord to revive and quicken our dead hearts to the duty; ſo prays David,
Pſal. 143. 10. Teach me to doe thy will, thy Spirit is good, lead me in the Land of uprightneſs; ſo prays the Church, Draw me,
Cant. 1. 4. and we will run after thee; and ſo let us pray,
Pſal. 119. 36. Give me a chearful heart in thy Service, animate and enliven my heart by thy bleſſed Spirit, give me to doe what thou requireſt, encline my heart to thy ſtatutes, and not to covetouſneſs.

4. Implore the aſſiſtance of God's Spirit to every good duty, beg acceptance of our perſons and performances in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, preſs him with his promiſes to ſet on duties, and to reward duties; and what ever duty we doe, preſs him with that eſpecial Promiſe belonging unto it: Thus if we meditate and pray, and pray and meditate, we may live by Faith, in reference to Spiritual duties.

Sect. 9. Of the manner of this Life of Faith in things Eternal.

THings Eternal are { Evil, as Damnation.
{ Good, as Salvation.

Concerning both, we ſhall firſt give you the promiſes, and ſecondly, the exerciſe of faith in reſpect of theſe Promiſes.

1. Concerning Damnation, or eternal confuſion, we have theſe promiſes againſt it, Iſa. 45. 17. Rom. 8. 1.

2. Concerning Salvation, we have theſe Promiſes for it, Rom. 6. 23. 1 Theſ. 4. 17. God hath Promiſed us a Kingdom, Mat. 25. 34. An heavenly Kingdom, Mat. 7. 21. An eternal Kingdom, 2 Pet. 1. 11. A Crown of life, James 1. 12. A Crown of Righteouſneſs, 2 Tim 4. 8. An unacceſſible Crown of glory, 1 Pet. 5. 4.

2. For the exerciſe of Faith concerning theſe Promiſes, that we may live by them, go we to { Meditation.

{ Prayer.

1. For Meditation, and the matter of it, conſider theſe things:

1. That faith in the precious Promiſes of eternal life, quiets and chears the heart in the midſt of diſcouragements: This we ſee in the lives and death's of God's faithful ſervants, who took joy- Heb. 10. 34.
fully the ſpoiling of their goods, knowing in themſelves, that they had in Heaven a better and an induring ſubſtance.

2. That Faith ſtrives to enter into the poſſeſſion of this Kingdom by degrees: Men that purchaſe an inheritance to come in hereafter, they are glad if any part fall into their hands for the preſent: Fulneſs of glory is reſerved for the life to come, but the beginnings of glory (as peace of Conſcience, joy in the Holy Ghoſt, Sanctification of the Spirit) are vouchſafed here; grace is the beginning of glory, and glory is the perfection of grace; now as grace grows, ſo we enter upon the poſſeſſion of our inheritance: Hence lively grace covets grace more and more, that we may get Heaven by degrees, and by parcels.

3. Faith earneſtly deſires and longs after the full accompliſhment of glory: Our ſelves alſo which Rom. 8. 23.
have the firſt-fruits of the Spirit, even we our ſelves groan within our ſelves, waiting for the adoption, to wit, the Redemption of the body: I am in a full ſtrait (ſaid Phil. 1. 23.
Paul) betwixt two, having a deſire to depart, and to be with Chriſt, which is far better: Salvation is the end of Faith, Heaven is the home of Believers: Now all would be at home, all things deſire perfection in their kind; this makes the Believer to long after glory.

2. For Prayer, and the parts of it, obſerve this method:

1. Confeſs we our former careleſneſs to enter upon this inheritance: O Lord, I have ſlighted thy promiſes, I have neglected the motions of thy Holy Spirit, I have not carefully improved the gifts received, I have not laboured more and more to be ſealed with the promiſed Spirit: Ah Lord! what a dwarf am I in Holineſs and Sanctification? by reaſon of my ſloath, the powers of grace are ſo enfeebled, that I can ſcarce breath or ſigh, craul in the way to Heaven: O that I have not ſo earneſtly ſought (as I might) to make Heaven ſure to my ſelf, that I have not entred poſſeſſion thereof, ſo far as in this life I have given me of Grace.

2. Pray that the Lord would encreaſe our Faith, ſeal us by his Spirit, lead us in the way of peace, cauſe us to grow up in holineſs, make us wiſe to prize and value, to taſte and reliſh the very joys of heaven; and above all, that he would aſſure our conſciences of our right and title thereto: O it is God that ſealeth, and makes us to read the ſealing; it is God that promiſeth Heaven, and affects the heart with the goodneſs and worth of the thing promiſed; it is God (by the pledges of his favour, and earneſts of his Spirit) doth teſtifie our adoption, and cauſeth us certainly to apprehend what he doth teſtifie: pray then, who am 2 Sam. 7. 25.
I Lord, that thou ſhouldeſt make ſuch ample, and free promiſes to thy poor ſervant? it is of thy free mercy, and according to thine own heart: And now, O God, eſtabliſh I beſeech thee, the word that thou haſt ſpoken concerning thy ſervant: O ſeal unto me the promiſed inheritance, and make me aſſuredly know what thoſe hopes are which thou haſt reſerved for me in Heaven: Of thy Free grace thou calledſt me to this hope, therefore is thy ſervant bold to entreat the ſenſe of thy love, the knowledge of this hope, the encreaſe of grace, the aſſurance of thy mercy.

3. Praiſe God for his promiſes of eternal life: O Lord, thou haſt looked on my baſe eſtate, and viſited me with mercy from on high; of a ſtranger and foreigner, thou haſt made me a free denizen of the New Jeruſalem: Now I ſee, I read it in thy precious promiſes, that my name is regiſtred in heaven; an eternal weight of glory is reſerved for me; Heaven is my home, my hope, my inheritance: O where ſhould my heart be, but where my treaſure is? where ſhould my thoughts be, but where my hope is? now all glory, and honour, and praiſe be given to my God! O the incomprehenſible love and favour of my dear Lord! what a mercy is this? What promiſes are theſe? my ſoul rejoyceth in thee my God, my ſpirit ſhall bleſs thy name for ever and ever.

Sect. 10. Of the manner of this life of Faith in regard of others.

WE have done with the promiſes that concern our ſelves: Now follow ſuch ſpecial promiſes as we find in Holy Writ concerning others, and they have reference.

to
- Our own Family.
- Godly Society farther enlarged.
- The Church of Chriſt
  - Particular.
  - General.

1. The members of our Family are
- Husband and Wife.
- Parent and Child.
- Maſter and Servant.

1. For the Husband and Wife, is godly, they have Promiſes from the Lord, Pſal. 128. Prov. 31. 28. and 11. 16. Job 5. 25.

2. For Parent and Child, God hath made a gracious Covenant with them, Gen. 17. 7, 9. Acts 2. 39. Jer. 32. 39. Prov. 20. 7. Good Parents (though poor). leave their Children a good patrimony, for they have laid up many prayers for them in heaven, and they leave God's favour for their poſſeſſion, and his promiſes for a ſure inheritance, Pſal 37. 25, 26. Prov. 11. 21. Pſal. 112. 2 and 25. 13. and 37. 29. Prov. 13. 22. Iſa. 44. 3, 4. and 54. 13. and Children obeying their Parents have theſe promiſes, Exod. 20. 12. Eph. 6. 2. Jer. 35. 18, 19. Prov. 1. 8, 9. and 6. 20.

3. For Maſter and Servant, they have ſweet promiſes, Prov. 3. 33. Job. 8. 16. Prov. 14. 11. eſpecially the ſervant that is truly obedient, Col. 3. 23, 24. 1 Pet. 2. 19.

Here conſider,
- Magiſtrates, Deut. 17. 19, 20. Pſal. 132. 18.
- Miniſters, Pſal. 105. 15. Rev. 2. 1. Iſa. 49. 4.

2. Godly Society (out of our own Families) hath precious promiſes, as Prov. 13. 20. Mal. 3. 16, 17. Mat. 18. 20.

3. The Church of Chriſt, whether particular (as publick aſſemblies) hath bleſſed promiſes, Iſa. 33. 20, 21. and 59. 21. Mat. 18. 20. 1 Cor. 5. 4. Rev. 2. 1. Pſal. 26. 8. and 133. 3. Micha. 4. 4, 11, 12. or whether general and univerſal, it hath glorious promiſes, as Mat. 16. 8. Iſa. 27. 3. Pſal. 125. 2. Zech. 9. 16. Here come in all the Promiſes; Firſt, of calling the Jews, as Iſa. 59. 20. Rom. 11. 23, 26. Hoſ. 13. 14. and 14. 2, 3, 4. 5, 6, 7, 8. Secondly, of bringing in the Gentiles, as Iſa. 49. 22, 23. Rev. 21. 24. John 10. 16. Iſa. 60. 3, 5, 8. Acts 10. 14. Eph. 2. 12, 19. Thirdly, of the deſtruction of Antichriſt, as 2 Theſ. 2. 8. Rev. 17. 16. and 18. 21. where each word hath almoſt a gradation, in that an Angel, a mighty Angel taketh a ſtone, and a great ſtone, even a milſtone, which he letteth not barely fall, but caſteth into the ſea, whence nothing ordinarily is recovered, much leſs a milſtone, thruſt from ſuch a hand, and with ſuch force.

Now for the exerciſing of faith concerning theſe Promiſes, that we may live by them, go

we to
- Meditation.
- Prayer.

1. For Meditation, and the matter of it, conſider theſe things.

1. That we have had the performance of many of theſe promiſes in hand; and this may perſuade us that the reſidue (eſpecially of the Churches flouriſhing, and of Antichriſt's downfall) is as ſure as that part already accompliſhed, which we ſee with our eyes; experience ſhould ſtrengthen faith, and breed an aſſured hope in God's people, of the Lord's moſt glorious appearing, and this hope ſhall not make us Rom. 5. 5. aſhamed.

2. That the time is now for the Churches reſtoring, and for bringing in more Kingdoms from Antichriſt to Chriſt; what elſe mean all the ſhakings in all the Kingdoms of the world at this time? therefore ſtudy we this time of God, and in our places and callings, work with providence, now we have a ſeaſon to help up the Church, God's holy Mountain.

2. For Prayer, and the parts of it, obſerve this method:

1. Confeſs our former neglect in our ſeveral relations: O Lord, I have not done my duty in my own family, among Chriſtians in the Churches of Chriſt, I have not performed my vows, ſerved my generation, helped onward the building of Zion. And now, Lord, what ſhall I ſay, but confeſs to thy glory and my own ſhame, my diſreſpect of others good, or of the communion of Saints.

2. Pray for a bleſſing on others, as on our own ſelves; forget not our relations to others in our beſt Prayers; be importunate with God more eſpecially for Zion, O look upon Zion, the city of our ſolem- Iſa. 33. 20. nities, let thine eye ſee Jeruſalem a quiet habitation, a tabernacle that ſhall not be taken down; let not one of the ſtakes thereof be removed, nor any of the cords be broken.

3. Preſs we the Lord with all his precious promiſes, either to our Families, or Chriſtian Societies, or to the Churches of Chriſt: We have a promiſe, that the Lord will create upon every dwelling place of mount Iſa. 4. 5. Zion, and upon the aſſemblies, a cloud and ſmoke by day, and the ſhining of a flaming fire by night, for upon all the glory ſhall be a defence: Now Lord, make good thy word, &c.

Conclude with, I believe, that whatſoever God hath ſaid in any of theſe reſpects, he will fulfill it in his own time: Heaven and earth ſhall paſs away, but not Matt. 5. 18. one jot, one tittle of God's word ſhall fail. It may be for the preſent things ſeem contrary, yet God hath ſaid it, (ſhould a ſoul ſay) and that's enough for me: If I can but really acknowledge and believe, that God is Mat. 9. 28, 29. able to doe it, he will then ſpeak from heaven, as he did once on earth, According to your faith be it unto you. Thus much of The Life of Faith.

OF

Looking unto Jeſus.

THere is one duty more of this kind, which I look upon as the duty of duties, and that is a looking unto Jeſus: a view of the everlaſting Goſpel of Jeſus; or the ſoul's eying of Jeſus, as carrying on the great work of man's ſalvation from firſt to laſt. This duty is the Saint's ſolace, we are never more chearfull than when Chriſt Jeſus is in view: This duty is the very Angels delight, they are ſaid to look into theſe things. The Apoſtle alludes to the manner of the Cherubims looking down into the mercy-ſeat; this is the ſtudy, the deſire, the delight and recreation of the elect Angels to look into the ſeveral ſcopes of our ſalvation by Jeſus Chriſt, to behold the whole frame and fabrick of it, to obſerve all the parts of it from the beginning to the end, to conſider all the glorious attributes of God, his wiſedom, his power, his juſtice, his mercy, all ſhining and glittering in it like bright ſtars in the firmament. Oh that ſuch a duty as this ſhould lie dormant, neglected of moſt, I had almoſt ſaid unknown unto moſt of the Saints themſelves! but the diſcovery of this duty will be a great work, and require much pains, and therefore I ſhall reſerve it for a tract by it ſelf; and if the Lord will, I ſhall in time bring it forth to light, and to the view of all. In the mean time let this paſs as no diſtinct Chapter.

CHAP. X. SECT. I.

Of the Nature of Family-Duties.

HItherto of the Duties which concern every man in his own particular; next to them ſucceed Family-Duties: And they are ſuch Duties as ought to be joyntly or reſpectively obſerved by the Families and Houſes of the People of God. This is implyed by that threat, Pour out thy fury upon the heathen that know thee not, and upon the families that call not on thy Name and by that example of Jaſhua, But as for me and my houſe, we will ſerve the Lord, and by that promiſe of God, At the ſame time, ſaith the Lord, will I be the God of all the Families of Iſrael, and they ſhall be my people.

Jer. 10.25. Joſh. 24. 15. Jer. 31.1.

Sect. 2. Of the Preparatives to Family-duties.

NOW that we may comfortably carry on theſe Family-duties, obſerve we ——
1. Our entrance into them.
2. Our proceedings in them.

1. For entrance we muſt lay a good foundation for tractableneſs unto Religion in thoſe that belong to this family: As
1. In the governour.
2. In the governed.

1. In the governour, whoſe duty it is,

1. To endeavour in a ſpecial manner for knowledge in God's Word, and for holineſs of converſation in a Chriſtian walking: this would tend much to the preſervation of his authority, who otherwiſe will be ſlighted and diſregarded, through an aptneſs in inferiours to take occaſion there from.

2. To marry in the Lord, and then to live chaſtely in wedlock, that there may be an holy ſeed: Now that he may marry in the Lord, 1. Let piety be the mover of his affection, and perſonage parentage and portion be onely as a comfortable acceſſary, conſiderable in a ſecond place: Chriſtianity and grace is the chief golden link and noble tye, which hath the power and privilege to make marriage a lovely and everlaſting bond. 2. Let him ply the throne of Grace with fervency of prayer; a good wife is a more immediate gift of God: whence Solomon could ſay, Houſes and riches are the inheritance of fathers, but a prudent wife is from the Lord: ſuch a rare and precious Jewel is to be ſued and ſought for at God's mercy-ſeat with extraordinary importunity and zeal; and if ſhe be procured at God's hand by prayer, he ſhall find a thouſand times more ſweetneſs and comfort, than if ſhe be caſt on him by an ordinary providence. 3. Let him obſerve and mark theſe ſix points in his choice; as, 1. The report: 2. The looks: 3. The ſpeech: 4. The apparel: 5. The companions: 6. The education: Theſe are like the pulſes, that ſhew the fitneſs and godlineſs of any party with whom he ought to marry.

1 Cor. 7. 39. Mal. 2.15. Prov. 19. 14.

3. To beware whom he admits to dwell with him, that they be tractable unto religious courſes: See David's reſolution herein, Mine eyes ſhall be upon the faithfull of the land, that they may dwell with me: he that walketh in a perfect way ſhall ſerve me, he that worketh deceit ſhall not dwell within my houſe, he that telleth lies ſhall not tarry in my ſight.

Pſal. 101. 6, 7.

2. In the governed, whoſe duty it is both to joyn together in the performance of Family-duties with their governour, and to ſubmit to his government: My ſon, hear the inſtruction of thy Father, and forſake not the law of thy Mother, for they ſhall be an ornament of grace unto thy head, and chains about thy neck.

Prov. 1. 8, 9.

Theſe Preparatives I pin upon the front or porch of this Family: Now to the Family-duties themſelves, and how they muſt be exerciſed.

Sect. 3. Of the Duties of Governours in general.

IN the proceedings of theſe Family-duties, we are to conſider the Duties, 1. Of the governours. 2. Of the governed.

1. The governours, if (as it is in marriage) there be more than one, as firſt, the chief governour, to wit, the Husband: ſecondly, the helper, to wit, the Wife; both theſe owe duties to their Families, and Duties to one another.

1. The Duties they owe to their Families, are —— {
In general to the whole.
In particular, according to their ſeveral relations.

1. That which in general they owe to the whole Family, is to their { Bodies.
Souls.

1 Tim. 5. 8.
1. To their Bodies; concerning which, ſaith the Apoſtle, He that provideth not for his own, and eſpecially for thoſe of his own houſe, he hath denied the faith, and is worſe than an infidel. Now as the ſpirit of God chargeth us with this duty, ſo he ſetteth us about ſuch things whereby this may be compaſſed; as, 1. That every one ſhould have ſome honeſt and good calling, and walk diligently in it; Let him that ſtole, ſteal no more, (ſaith the Apoſtle) but rather let him labour, working with his hands the thing which is good. 2. That he bear a low ſail, and keep within compaſs, remembring the ſaying of Solomon, He that is deſpiſed and hath a ſervant, is better than he that honoureth himſelf and lacketh bread.

Eph. 4. 28.
Prov. 11. 9.

2. To their Souls; concerning which, ſome duties they are to { Perform to the Family.
Require of the Family.

1. The Duties they muſt perform to them, are ——

1. To provide that they may live under the publick Miniſtery, for otherwiſe how ſhould they be brought into the ſheepfold of Chriſt, if they hear not the voice of the chief Shepherd ſpeaking unto them by thoſe whom he hath ſent.

2. To overſee the ways of their Families, that they ſerve God; and as in all other duties, ſo eſpecially in ſanctifying the Sabbaths: To this the very words in the fourth Commandment, do bind all Maſters of Families: Remember, thou and thy ſon, and thy daughter, thy man-ſervant, and thy maid; —— Where the Lord ſpeaks by name to the Governours, as if he would make them overſeers of this work of ſanctifying his Sabbaths.

1 Theſ. 5. 17.
3. To ſet their houſe in order for the ſervice of God, to offer prayers and praiſes to the Lord morning and evening. To this purpoſe, Pray continually (ſaith the Apoſtle) 1 Theſ. 5. 17. which we muſt not underſtand of uninterrupted and inceſſant pouring out of prayers, as the Maſſalians or Euchitæ did; but of morning and evening prayers; the Apoſtle here ſpeaking in reference and in analogy to the continual or daily ſacrifices. This was David's practice, Evening and morning, and at noon will I pray, and cry aloud, and he ſhall hear my voice; and this was Job's practice, who ſent for, and ſanctified his Sons and daughters, and roſe up early in the morning, and offered burnt offerings according to the number of them all —— Thus did Job continually; And this was Abraham's practice whereſoever he came, to build an Altar to God, where God ſhould be worſhipped joyntly of him and his family: And And this was Chriſt's practice for himſelf and his family, Mat. 14. 19. and 26. 30. Joh. 17. 1.

Pſal. 55. 17.
Job 1. 5.
Gen. 12. 7. & 13. 4. & 21. 33.

4. To inſtruct their families privately in matters of Religion, that they may not only profeſs, but feel the power of Religion in their lives and converſations: This duty hath theſe ſpecials belonging to it.

Deut. 6. 7. Prov. 22. 6.
1. A familiar catechiſing of them in the principles of Religion: Thus were Parents commanded of old, Thou ſhalt teach theſe words diligently unto thy children, and ſhalt talk of them when thou ſitteſt in thine houſe, and when thou walkeſt by the way, and when thou lyeſt down, and when thou riſeſt up.

2 Tim. 3. 15.
2. A daily reading of Scriptures, in their hearing, directing them to mark and to make uſe of them: So Timothy was trained up by his parents, and that from his childhood.

Mark 4. 13.
3. A carefull endeavouring that they profit by the publick Miniſtery: to this end, they muſt prepare them to hear the word, by conſidering God's Ordinances, Promiſes and their own Neceſſities. 2. They muſt remember them to look into the Word for a Chriſt, and for communion with Chriſt. 3. They muſt examine them after the Ordinances, what they have learned, and what uſe they can make of it; thus Chriſt after he had preached a parable to his Diſciples, he ſaid unto them, know ye not this parable, and how then will you know all parables? and then he expounds the parable to them.

2. The duties they are to require of the family, are both carefully to frequent the publick Miniſtery, and diligently to be converſant in the private worſhip of God, and conſtantly to practiſe all holy and Chriſtian duties, compriſed briefly in the Commandments of God; and they are to require theſe things, not onely by telling them, calling on them, catechiſing them, admoniſhing them, but if they be negligent, by correcting them.

Now this correction muſt be miniſtred in { Wiſedom.
Patience.

1. In Wiſedom, whoſe property it is to find out the right party that committed the fault, to conſider of what ſort and nature the fault is, to weigh circumſtances of age, diſcretion and occaſions; and to look to the mind of the doer, whether negligence or mere ſimplicity brought him to it.

1. In Patience, whoſe property it is to make the fault manifeſt to the offender, that his conſcience may be touched therewith; to hear what the offender can ſay in his own defence, and accordingly to allow or diſallow; to avoid bitterneſs which ſooner will hearden the heart, than reform the manners of the offender: Theſe Rules being obſerved, and the heart lifted up in prayer to God for direction and bleſſing; this Correction is neceſſary, as is evident in Gen. 30. 2. Prov. 13. 24. and 19. 18.

Theſe are the duties that Governours owe to their Families in reſpect of their ſouls; to correct them, catechize them, admoniſh them, call on them, read to them, pray for them, &c. only with theſe limitations:

Heb. 5. 4.
1. That they preſume not above their callings: This was Paul's Exhortation, That no man take this honour to himſelf, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron: The honour here, is the honour of the publick Miniſtery; except that, and I know not but that every Governour of a family, who hath ſpecial abilities, abilities, utterance, memory, may read Scriptures, repeat Sermons, pray, teach and inſtruct out of Scriptures, 1 Pet. 4. 10. Thus Jacob ſaid to his houſhold, put away the ſtrange Gods that are among you: And without all contradiction (ſaith the Apoſtle)

Gen.35.2. the leſs is bleſſed of the better: And if the Women

25. in Chriſtian families; and Auguſtin ſaith, That

2. That they preſume not above their gifts:
This was Paul's Exhortation to every man, Not to to think ſoberly, according as God hath dealt to every Sect. 4. Of the Duties of Parents to their Children.

The Duties in particular which Governours owe to the Family, according to their Relations, are { As Parents to their Children.

As Maſters to their Servants.

The duties of Parents to their children are { To their Bodies.
To their Souls.

1. The Duties of Parents to the Bodies of their Children, are in many particulars, but may be all Compriſed under this one head, A provident care for their Temporal good; and this extendeth it ſelf to all times; as,

1. To their infancy.
2. To their youth.
3. To the time of Parents departure out of this world.

1. The firſt age of a Child is his infancy, and the firſt part of its infancy is while it remaineth in the Mothers womb: Here the Duty lies principally upon the mother, to have a ſpecial care of it, that it may be ſafely brought forth. Why was the charge of abſtaining from wine, ſtrong drink, and unclean Judg.13.4. things, given to Manoah's wife, but becauſe of the Child which ſhe had conceived?

The next degree of a Child's infancy, is while it is in the ſwadling-band, and remains a ſucking Child; in this alſo the care more eſpecially lies on the Mother, whoſe duty it is to take all pains ſhe poſſibly may, for the education of her Child; and eſpecially to give her Child ſuck, if ſhe be able thereto: This not only Nature, but Scripture ſets forth;

1. By Conſequence, Gen. 49. 25. Hoſ. 9. 14. 1 Tim. 5. 10.

2. By Example, Gen 21. 7. 1 Sam. 1. 23. Pſal. 22. 9.

3. By Grant, the Word giving as a ruled caſe not to be denied, Gen. 21. 7. Cant. 8. 1. Luk. 11. 27.

2. The ſecond age of a Child is its youth, from the time it begins to be of any diſcretion, till it be fit to be placed forth; Now the duty of Parents at this time is.

1. To nouriſh.
2. To nurture their Children.

Under nouriſhment, are compriſed Food, Apparel, Recreation, means for recovery of health when they are ſick; in which if Parents provide not for their Children, they are worſe than Infidels; And under nurture, are compriſed good manners, a good calling, frequent admonition, reprehenſion, correction, the laſt remedy, which may doe good when nothing elſe can, Prov. 19. 18.—23. 13, 14.—29. 17.

3. The laſt time to which Parents provident care extendeth it ſelf, is the time of their departure out of the world, and then they are to ſet their houſe in order, and to leave their eſtates to their Children.

2. The duty of Parents to the Souls of their Children extends it ſelf alſo to all times; as,

1. To their Infancy.
2. To their Youth.
3. To the time of Parents departure out of this World.

1. The firſt age of a Child, is his infancy, and the firſt part of its infancy, is while it remaineth in the Mothers womb. Now the duty of Parents at Gen. 25. that time are theſe: 1. That they pray for their 22.
Children: Thus did Rebekah, while the Children were quick in her womb. Thoſe Parents that neglect this duty to their Children, conſider not rightly that they are conceived in ſin.

2. That they make ſure (ſo much as in them lies) that their children be born under the Promiſe, or under the Covenant, in reſpect of the Spiritual part of it: How? by making ſure that they be under the Gen. 17.7.
Promiſe or Covenant themſelves: If God in Chriſt be their God, they may have a comfortable hope, that God will be the God of their ſeed, according to the promiſe, I will be thy God, and the God of thy ſeed.

The next degree of a child's infancy is when it is born; and the duty of Parents then is, to give up their children unto God, caſting them into the hands of his providence, into the armes of his Mercy, begging for them a gracious acceptation with God; and to tender them to the Ordinance, The Sacrament of Baptiſm, to get the Seal of the Covenant ſet upon them, to get them mark'd out for ſalvation.

2. The ſecond age of a child, is its youth: Now the Duty of Parents to their children at this time, is to train them up in true piety, To bring them up Eph. 6. 4. in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. To this end:

1. When children begin to read, let them read the holy Scriptures: ſo was Timothy trained up from a child; and thus will children ſuck in Religion with 2 Tim. 3. learning. 15.

2. Let children be Catechized conſtantly from day to day; only with this caveat, that Parents deal with their children, as skilful Nurſes and Mothers do in feeding their children, (i. e.) not to give them to much at once; over much dulls a child's underſtanding, and breads weariſomneſs to it; it is moſt ſuitable to give them precept upon precept, precept upon precept, Line upon line, Line upon line, here a little, and there a little: Thus ſhall they learn with eaſe and delight, and in time a great meaſure of Iſa. 28. 10. knowledge will be gained thereby.

3. Let Parents declare to their children, the admirable works that God in former times hath done for his Church, eſpecially ſuch works as he hath done in their time: outward ſenſible things do beſt work upon Children, and therefore this direction
John 4. 6. 21. was given under the law, Joſh. 4. 6. 21.

4. Let Parents be to their children a good pattern in piety, leading them to Chriſt by their examples: This will take place with children, more than all precepts or paternal inſtructions: But as for me (ſaid Joſhua) and my houſe, we will ſerve the Lord;
Joſh. 24. 15. he ſets himſelf firſt, as a guide to the reſt.

5. Let Parents reprove and correct their children for ſin; and that the Lord may ſanctifie this Correction unto them, Conſider this, O ye Parents! Do you obſerve ſuch and ſuch ſins in your children? enter into your own hearts, examine your ſelves, whether they come not from you: Conſider how juſtly the hand of God may be upon you, and when you are angry with your children have an holy anger with your own ſelves, and uſe this or the like Meditation with your own ſouls, Lord, ſhall I thus puniſh my own ſin in my own child? ſhall I thus perſecute the corruptions of mine own anceſtors? how then mayeſt thou be diſpleaſed with me for the too carnal conception of my own child; It may be, I then lay in ſome ſin, or I asked it not of thee by prayer: Be merciful to me, O Lord, and in thy good time, ſhew thou pity on me and my child?

6. As children grow in years, and in the knowledge of Chriſt, and of juſtification by Chriſt, let Parents train them up in the exerciſe of all Duties, as Prayer, Meditation, Self-Examination, Watchfulneſs, and all means publick and private: if this be done, the world to come may reap the benefit of their education, ſuch children as you bring up, ſuch parents will they be (when you are gone) to their children; and ſuch children ſhall they have, who are parents in the next generation, &c. You then are the very making or marring of the world: but on the contray, if this be neglected, the rich man ſhall riſe up againſt you in the day of Judgment, and condemn you; for he being in Hell, had a care of his Father's houſe, that they might be forewarn'd, he deſired Abraham to ſend Lazarus to his brethren, to teſtifie unto them that they came not to that place of torment; but you will not admoniſh your children, you will not teach them Moſes and the Prophets; you will not ſhew them the danger of God's heavy diſpleaſure hanging over their heads; you will not, whileſt you live, lead a good example before them: O you may fear that your children ſhall be furies of hell to torment you! Now the Lord open your eyes to foreſee, and to fly theſe judgments to come.

3. The laſt time to which the Duty of Parents extends its ſelf, is the time of their departure out of the world, and then they owe to their children {
Good direction.
Faithful prayer.

1. For direction: when Parents obſerve their time to draw near, it is their duty then eſpecially, to commend ſome wiſe and wholeſome preceps unto their children, the better to direct them in their Chriſtian courſe; ſo did Iſaac, and Jacob, and David: The
Gen. 49. 1, &c. 1 Kings 2. 2, 3. 1 Chron. 28. 9. words of a dying Parent are eſpecially regarded, reſemble and make a deeper impreſſion.

2. For prayer: then is the moſt proper time for Parents to pray and to bleſs all their children. As they commend their own ſouls unto God's hands, ſo let them commend their children unto God's grace: God's providence and promiſes are the beſt inheritance in the world, and if Parents (in their prayers) leave theſe to their Children, they can never want any thing that is good. O the faithful prayers of Parents for their children (eſpecially when they are leaving their Children and going to God) muſt needs, in, for, and through Chriſt, prevail mightily with God.

Sect. 5. Of the Duties of Maſters to Servants

THe Duty of Maſters to their Servants, is { To their Bodies.
To their Souls.

1. The Duty of Maſters to the Bodies of their Servants, conſiſts in theſe particulars; viz. In a due proviſion of food for them, Prov. 31. 51. & 27. 27. In a wiſe care for their cloathing, Prov. 31. 21. In a well-ordering of their labour, ſo as they may be able to undergo it: In their eaſe, reſt, and intermiſſion from labour at ſeaſonable times: In paying them ſufficient wages, Deut. 24. 14, 15. In a careful preſerving of their health, and uſing means for their recovery in caſe of ſickneſs, Mat. 8. 6. and that not of the Servant's wages, but of the Maſter's own charge, otherwiſe they undue not the heavy burthen, but rather lay burthen upon burthen. Iſa. 58. 6.

2. The Duty of Maſters to the Souls of their Lervants, conſiſts in theſe particulars; viz. In teaching them the Principles of Religion, and all duties of Piety; In cauſing them to go to the publick Miniſtery of the Word and Worſhip of God; In taking account of their profiting by the publick and private means of Edification; In praying for them, and as they obſerve any grace wrought in them, in praiſing God for it, and praying for the encreaſe of it: Nothing ſo much wins a Servant's heart, or the affections of any gracious heart, as the edifying of it in grace.

Sect. 6. Of the Duties of the Husband and Wiſe.

THe Duties which the chief governour and his helper owe to one another, are {

Common and mutual.
Proper and peculiar to each ſeverally. Mat. 19. 6. Tit. 2. 5. Mal. 2. 15.

1. The common mutual Duties betwixt Man and Wiſe.

are {
Of neceſſity to the being of marriage, as { Matrimonial Unity.
Matrimonial Chaſtity.
Of honeſty to the well-being of marriage; as a {
Loving affection of one another.
Provident care of one for another.

The former Duties preſuppoſed; there ought to be———.

1. A ſweet, loving, and tender-hearted pouring out of their hearts, with much affectionate dearneſs into each other's boſoms. This mutual-melting-heartedneſs, being preſerved freſh and fruitful, will infinitely ſweeten and beautifie the marriage ſtate. Now for the preſervation of this love, let them conſider,

1. The compaſſionate and melting compellations which Chriſt and his Spouſe exchange in the Canticles: My fair one, my love, my dove, my undefiled, my well-beloved, the chief of ten thouſand: ſuch a fervent and chaſte love as this, all married couples ſhould and imitate.

2. The command of God to this purpoſe, Husbands love your wives, Epheſ. 5. 25. and Wives (or young women) love your husbands, Tit. 2. 4. Methinks Eph. 5. 25. Tit. 2. 4.

this charge oft remembred, ſhould ever beat back all heart-riſing and bitterneſs, all wicked wiſhes that they had never met together, that they had never ſeen one another's faces : when the knot is tied, every man ſhould think his wife the fitteſt for him, and every wife ſhould think her husband the fitteſt for her of any other in the world.

2. A provident care of one for another ; which extends to the body: No man hateth his own fleſh, Eph. 5. 29. but nouriſheth and cheriſheth it : and to the good name ; Mat. 1. 19. Joſeph was not willing to make Mary a publick example : and to the goods of this world ; in which if there fall out any croſs providence, they are both Job 1. 21. to join with Job's ſpirit, The Lord hath given, and the Lord hath taken, &c. But eſpecicially to the ſoul ; in praying together, for, and with one another : in taking notice of the beginning and leaſt meaſure of grace, and approving the ſame ; in conferring about ſuch things as concern the ſame, mutually propounding queſtions, and giving anſwers one to another ; in maintaining holy and religious exerciſes in the Family, and betwixt their own ſelves, in ſtirring up one another to hear the Word, to receive the Sacraments and conſcionably to perform all the parts of God's publick Worſhip ! In caſe the one prove unconverted, let the other wait, and pray, and expect God's good time : or in caſe the one be a babe in Chriſt, or weak in Chriſtianity, let the other deal farely, lovingly, meekly, and let our Lord Jeſus in his tender-heartedneſs to Spiritual younglings, teach us mercy this way, who Iſa. 40. 11. is ſaid to gather the lambs with his armes, and to carry them in his boſome, and gently to lead thoſe that are with young.

2. The proper and peculiar duties to each ſeverally, are ———

1. Of the husband, whose Duty it is
1. That he dearly love his Wife.
2. That he wiſely maintain and manage his authority over her.

For the former, conſider,
1. The matter.
2. The manner of his love.

1. The matter of it is a dear love, a ſpecial love, and a more ſpecial than that common mutual love to one another : No queſtion the Wife is to love her Husband, and a brother to love his brother, and a Friend is to love his Friend, but more eſpecially, or with a more ſpecial love, is the Husband to love his Wife. To this purpoſe ſhe is called, The Wife of his boſome, to ſhew that ſhe ought to be as his heart in his boſome. He muſt love her at all times, he muſt love her in all things : love muſt ſeaſon and ſweeten his ſpeech, carriage, actions towards her : love muſt ſhew it ſelf in his commands, reproofs, admonitions, inſtructions, authority, familiarity with her ; the riſe of which love muſt not be from her beauty, nobility, or becauſe ſhe contends and pleaſeth her husband ; but eſpecially becauſe ſhe is his ſiſter in the profeſſion of Chriſtian Religion ; and an inheritor with him of the Kingdom of heaven ; becauſe of her graces, and vertues, as modeſty, chaſtity, diligence, patience, temperance, faithfulneſs, ſecrecy, obedience, &c. becauſe ſhe bears and brings him forth children, the heirs of his Name and Subſtance, and the upholder of his family ; and becauſe of the union and conjunction of marriage. Love growing on beauty, riches, luſt, or any other ſlight grounds, is but a blaze, and ſoon vaniſheth, but if grounded on theſe conſiderations, and eſpecially on this union of marriage, it is laſting and true : The want hereof is the fountain of ſtriſe, quarrelling, debate, which converts the paradiſe of marriage into an hell.

2. For the manner of this love, the Apoſtle gives Eph. 5. 25. it thus, Husbands, love your own wives, even as Chriſt alſo loved the Church. Now the love of Chriſt to his Church, is commended to us in theſe particulars : ——

1. In the caſe of his love, which is his love : He Deut. 7. 7, 8. ſet his love on you, because he loved you ; his love aroſe wholly and ſolely from himſelf, and was every way free : ſo ſhould husbands love their wives, though there be nothing in wives to move them, but merely becauſe they are their wives.

2. In the order of his love ! Chriſt began it to the Church, before the Church could love him : and as a wall is firſt ſmitten on by the Sun-beams, before it give a reflection of her heat back again : ſo the Church is firſt heated and warmed at heart by the ſenſe of Chriſt's love, before ſhe love him again : We love him, becauſe he loved us firſt : ——— 1 John 4. 19 Becauſe of the ſavour of thy ointments, therefore do the Virgins Cant. 1. 2. love thee ; ſo ſhould husbands begin to love their own wives : I know ſome wives prevent their husbands herein, and there may be reaſon for it ; but the greater is their glory. This pattern of Chriſt ſhould rather ſtir up the husbands to go before them.

3. In the truth of Chriſt's love : This was mani- Eph. 5. 25, 26, 27. feſted by the fruits thereof to his Church ; He gave himſelf for it, that he might ſanctifie it, and cleanſe it, and preſent it to himſelf a glorious Church, not having ſpot or wrinkle : So muſt husbands love their wives in truth and indeed, by guiding them in the way of life, and path that is called Holy ; for this is the trueſt character of a ſincere love.

4. In the quality of his love ; Chriſt's love is an holy, pure and chaſte love ; as he himſelf is, ſo is his love ; ſuch muſt be the love of husbands, an holy, pure and chaſte love. Away with all intemperate, exceſſive, or any ways exorbitant pollutions of the marriage bed ; from which, if the fear of God, imitation of Chriſt, love of purity, awfulneſs of God's all-ſeeing eye cannot draw ; yet that ſlaviſh horror, leſt God ſhould puniſh ſuch a couple with no children, or with miſ-ſhapen children, or with Idiots, or with prodigiouſly wicked children, or with ſome other heavy croſs, one would think ſhould be able affright them.

5. In the continuance of Chriſt's love : Having loved John 13. 1. his own, he loved them unto the end. His love is a conſtant love, an everlaſting love : no provocation or tranſgreſſions could ever make him forget his love ; Jer. 3. 1. Thou haſt played the harlot with many lovers, yet return unto me. Such muſt be the love of husbands, a firm love : an inviolable love : the ground of it muſt be God's Ordinances, and the ſupport of it muſt be an inviolable reſolution, that no provocation ſhall ever change it, or alter it. Husbands muſt paſs by all infirmities, endeavouring in love to redreſs them, if poſſibly they can, or if not, to bear with them.

2. Duty of an Husband, is, Wiſely to maintain and manage his authority : Now the managing of it conſiſts in two things :

1. That he tenderly reſpect her.
2. That he carefully provide for her.

1. He muſt tenderly reſpect her, as his wife, companion, yoke-fellow, as his very delight, and the Ezek. 24. 16. deſire of his eyes, and never be bitter againſt her. This Cor. 3. 19. bitterneſs ordinarily turneth the edge of his authority : if therefore any matter of unkindneſs ariſe (as ſometimes certainly it will) then muſt he carefully with all lenity, gentleneſs and patience quiet all ; and never ſuffer himſelf nor his wife to ſleep in diſpleaſure ; Let not the Sun go down upon your wrath ; Eph. 4. 26. or if he ſhall have occaſion to reprove her, he muſt keep his words until a convenient time, and not do it in preſence of others, and then utter them in the ſpirit of meekneſs and love. Surely if ſhe be not corrected by a word of wiſdom and diſcretion, ſhe will never amend by threats, or any haſty rigorous carriage: and if ſhe once begin to loſe her ſhamefac'dneſs in the preſence of her husband, it is likely there will be often brawlings and quarrels betwixt them, and the houſe will be full of diſquietneſs: it is beſt therefore to deal wiſely with her, to admoniſh her often, to reprehend her ſeldom, never to lay violent hands on her; and if ſhe be dutiful, to cheriſh her, that ſhe may ſo continue; if way-ward, mildly to ſuffer her, that ſhe wax not worſe.

2. He muſt carefully provide for her; To this pur-
Eph. 5.23. poſe he is called her Head, and Saviour, as Chriſt is the head of the Church, and the Saviour of the body: The Head (you know) is the fountain of motion, quickening, life, ſenſe, and lightſomneſs to the body; ſo ſhould the husband be as the well-ſpring of livelineſs, lightſomeneſs, lightheartedneſs to his wife: ſhe hath forſook all for him, and therefore ſhe ſhould receive from him a continual influence of chearful walking, and comfortable enjoying of her ſelf. And a Saviour (you know) both provides for, and protects the ſaved: Chriſt thus ſaved his Church, he is every way a ſufficient Saviour, able perfectly to ſave, even to the very uttermoſt; he ſaves
Heb. 7. 25. ſoul and body, he ſaves from all manner of miſery, from the wrath of God, the curſe of the Law, the venome of all outward croſſes, the tyranny of Satan, the ſting of death, the power of the grave, the torments of hell; or if ſin be the greateſt evil,
Mat. 1.21. (as indeed it is) he will ſave his people from their ſins: I cannot ſay thus of the husband; yet an husband carrieth a reſemblance of Chriſt, and is after a manner a Saviour to his wife, to protect her, and provide for her. David compares her to a vine, inti-Pſal. 128.3. mating that as a vine is underpropped and raiſed by ſome tree or frame near to which it is planted, ſo is the wife raiſed to the height of honour by virtue of her relation to her husband; by his wealth is ſhe enriched, by his honour is ſhe dignified: he is under God and Chriſt, all in all to her. In the Family he is a King, to govern and aid her; a Prieſt, to pray with her and for her; a Prophet, to teach and inſtruct her; a Saviour, to provide for, and protect her to his utmoſt, if not to the utmoſt, which indeed is proper and peculiar to the Lord Chriſt.

2. The Duties proper to the wife, are theſe,
1. That ſhe be in ſubmiſſion to her husband.
2. That ſhe be an helper to him all her days.

2. Wives muſt be in ſubjection to their own husbands:
Gen. 3.16. Sarah obeyed Abraham, and called him Lord: But here is a caſe of Conſcience:

Eph. 5.22. 1. What if her husband be a ſon of Belial, an en enemy to Chriſt, muſt ſhe then yield ſubjection?
1 Pet. 3.16. ——Yes: becauſe in his office her husband is as in Chriſt's ſtead: The Church is compared to a lilly
Cant. 2. 2. among thorns, ſhe remains lilly-like; white, ſoft, pleaſant, and amiable, though ſhe be joined with thorns, which are prickly and ſharp: So a wife muſt be meek, mild, gentle, obedient, though ſhe be matched with a crooked, perverſe, profane and wicked husband: She muſt in this caſe remove her eyes from the diſpoſition of her husband's perſon to the condition of his place, and by virtue thereof (ſeeing he beareth Chriſt's image) be ſubject unto him as unto Chriſt.

2. What if her husband command things contra-
Eph. 5.22. ry to Chriſt, muſt ſhe therein be ſubject? —— No: Submit, &c. How? as unto the Lord: if ſhe ſubmits to things contrary to Chriſt, ſhe ſubmits not as to the Lord. Conſciencious wives muſt remember they have an husband in heaven, as well as on earth, betwixt whom there is a greater difference, than betwixt heaven and earth: and therefore in caſe they bid contrary things, they muſt prefer God before man, Chriſt before all men.

1. Wives muſt be helpers to their husbands. Now Gen. .2.8. 10.
this helpfulneſs conſiſts in theſe things:

1. That ſhe be careful to preſerve his perſon, in ſickneſs or health, in adverſity or proſperity, in youth or old age.

A moſt memorable and famous pattern for this purpoſe, is recorded by * Vives: A young, tender, and beautiful Maid was matched (as he reports) to a man ſtricken in years, whom, after marriage, ſhe found to have a very fulſome and diſeaſed body, full of many loathſome and contagious diſeaſes: yet notwithſtanding, out of ſenſe and conſcience, that by God's providence ſhe was become his wife, ſhe moſt worthily digeſted all with incredible patience: friends and Phyſicians adviſed her by no means to come near him, and for their parts they utterly forſook him; but ſhe (paſſing by with a loving diſdain thoſe unkind diſſuaſions) becomes to him in their ſtead, Friend, Phyſician, Nurſe, Mother, Siſter, Daughter, Servant, every thing, any thing to doe him good any manner of way. At laſt by extraordinary expence, and exceſſive charges about him ſhe came to ſome want of ſome neceſſaries, whereupon ſhe ſold her Ring, Chains richeſt Attire, Plate, and choiceſt Jewels; and when he was dead, and friends came about her, rather to congratulate her happy riddance, than to bewail her widow-hood, ſhe not only abhorred all ſpeeches tending that way, but proteſted, if it were poſſible, ſhe would willingly redeem her husband's life with the loſs of her five deareſt Children. Whence it appears that this worthy woman was wedded to her husband's ſoul, not to his body, ſeeing no infirmity or deformity thereof could cool or weaken the fervency of her love.

* Lib 2. de Chriſtiana fam. pag. 360.

2. That ſhe learn and labour to fore-caſt, contrive and manage houſhold affairs, and buſineſs within doors, as they ſay; for which ſee a right noble glorious pattern in Prov. 31.

3. That ſhe help her husband, in ſetting forward the rich and royal trade of Grace, in erecting and eſtabliſhing Chriſt's glorious Kingdom in their houſe, and eſpecially in their own hearts. This is that one neceſſary thing, without which their Family is but Satan's Seminary, and a Nurſery for hell: This will marvelouſly ſweeten all reproaches caſt upon them by envenomed tongues: This will ſweetly ſeal unto them their aſſurance of meeting together hereafter in heaven, —— Where the husband and wife perform theſe and the like Duties, there's an happy Family, there's a college of quietneſs; where theſe are neglected, we may term it an Hell.

Thus much of the Duties of Governours, we now come to the Governed.

Sect. 7. Of the Duties of Children to Parents.

Duties of Children to parents, are either inward, as Love and Fear. or outward, as Reverence.
Obedience.
Recompence.

1. The inward Duties which children owe to their Parents, are Love and Fear: Love, like Sugar, ſweetens Fear, and Fear, like Salt, ſeaſons Love; there muſt be a loving-fear, and a fearing love. Hence the fear of a child, is oppoſed to the fear of a ſlave, for a child's fear being mixt with love, hath reſpect to the offence which a Parent may take: but a ſlave's fear, which is ordinarily mixed with hatred, hath reſpect to nothing but the puniſhment which his Maſter may inflict upon him. This love-like-fear is ſo proper to children, as that the awfull reſpect which the Saints bear to God, is called a filial-fear: Children have received their ſubſtance from the very ſubſtance of their Parents, and therefore they are to perform this Duty of Love and Fear to them.

2. The outward Duties, or the manifeſtation of this Love and Fear in children, appears,

Gen. 48. 12. 1 King 2. 19. Prov. 13. 17.

1. In their Reverence, in ſpeech and carriage: They muſt give to their Parents reverent and honourable titles, meek and humble ſpeeches, obeyſance as becomes their age and ſex: Thus Joſeph and Solomon bowed, the one to his father, and the other to his mother. Contrary hereto is mocking and deſpiſing father and mother: of which ſaid Solomon, The eye that mocketh at his Father, and deſpiſeth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley ſhall pick it out: a phraſe that ſets forth the end of a notorious malefactor, that is hanged in the air till the ravens pick out his eyes.

Eph. 6. 1.

2. In their obedience to their Commands, Inſtructions, Reproofs and Corrections of their Parents, Eph. 6. 1. Prov. 1. 8, 9. the reaſon is, becauſe of God, whom the father repreſents: Children muſt remember, that whatſoever they doe to their Parents, they doe it to God; when they diſobey them, they diſobey God; when they pleaſe them, they pleaſe God; when their Parents are juſtly angry with them, God is angry with them; nor can they recover God's favour (though all the Saints of heaven ſhould intreat for them) till they have ſubmitted themſelves to their own Parents; onely with this limitation, that they ſubmit or obey them in the Lord; Epheſ. 6. 1.

1 Tim. 4. 5. Gen. 48. 1. and 31. 35. and 42. 3. 1 Sam. 22. 3, 4. Joh. 19. 27.

3. In their Recompence: This is a Duty whereby children endeavour (as much as in them lies) to repay what they can for their parents kindneſs, care and coſt towards them, in way of thankfulneſs: If any widow have children, or nephews, let them learn firſt to ſhew kindneſs at home, and to requite their parents; in ſickneſs, they muſt viſit them; in time of mourning, they muſt comfort them; in want, they muſt provide for them; as the children of Jacob, who viſited, comforted and went to buy food for their father: In time of danger, they muſt endeavour their protection; as David did, Let my father and mother (ſaith he to the King of Moab) I pray thee, come forth and be with you, till I know what God will doe for me. And he brought them before the King of Moab, and they dwelt with him all the while that David was in the hold. If God pleaſe to take children out of this world before their parents, and their parents be ſuccourleſs they muſt (as they can) provide for their well-being after their deaths: Thus Chriſt commended his Mother to his Diſciple John, a little before he gave up the Ghoſt. It is recorded of the Stork, that when the dams are old the young ones feed them; and when through age they are ready to faint in their flying, the young ones help them; and when they are paſt flying the young ones carry them on their weak backs. Thus nature teacheth children their Duty, how much more ſhould grace?

Sect. 8. Of the Duties of Servants to their Maſters.

Duties of Servants to their Maſters, are { inward, as Fear.
outward, as { Reverence.
Obedience.

1 Pet. 2. 18. 1 Tim. 6. 2. Mal. 1. 6. Matt. 25. 24, 25.

1. The inward Duty is Fear: Servants, be ſubject to your Maſters with all fear, and account them worthy of all honour: So proper is this fear to a Servant, as where it is wanting, there is a plain denial of his Maſters place and power: If I be a Maſter, where is my fear, ſaid God: obſerve, I mean not an exceſſive ſlaviſh fear, as when a ſervant fears nothing but the revenging power of his Maſter; ſuch was the fear of that unprofitable ſervant, who could ſay to his Maſter, I know that thou wert an hard man, —— and I was afraid,) but I mean an awful fear of provoking his Maſter's wrath, ſo as it makes him caſt every way how he may pleaſe his Maſter, and ſuch a fear draws him on chearfully to perform his Duty.

2. Outward Duties which iſſue from this fear, are { Reverence.
Obedience.

2 King. 2. 15.

1. Reverence, which is manifeſted in ſpeech and carriage. Thus ſervants muſt give reverend titles to their Maſters, as Father, Lord and Maſter, &c. They muſt yield obeiſance to them; as The children of the Prophets, when they ſaw that the Spirit of Elijah reſted on Eliſha, they came to meet him, and bowed themſelves to the ground before him.

2. Obedience, which hath reſpect to the Commands, Inſtructions, Reproofs and Corrections of their Maſters, 1 Pet. 2. 18, 19, 20. But here's a caſe or two of Conſcience.

Cor. 3. 22. 2 Sam. 24. 2, &c. Luke 5. 4, 5.

1. How far they muſt obey; or what is the extent of ſervants obedience to Maſters.—— The Apoſtle anſwers, Servants, obey in all things your maſters according to the fleſh. It is not ſufficient that ſervants perform well their Duties in ſome things; they muſt doe it in all things, yea in things that may be againſt their own mind and liking, if their Maſters will have it ſo: This is clear in the example of Joab, the King commands him to number the people; Joab declares himſelf, that he thinks it a very unmeet thing, Why doth my Lord the King delight (ſaith he) in this thing? yet againſt his judgment he yields unto the Kings peremptory command, The King's word prevailed againſt Joab. Like as Peter, when Chriſt bid him lanch out into the deep, and let down his net for a draught, He anſwered and ſaid, Maſter we have toiled all the night, and have taken nothing; nevertheleſs, at thy word I will let down the net. So muſt ſervants ſay, when they have a peremptory command, though contrary to their own judgments, this or that in all humility I ſuppoſe, or I propound to you, Nevertheleſs, at your word I will let down the net, I will doe as you pleaſe.

Eph. 6. 5, 6, 7. Exod. 1. 17. Acts 5. 29.

2. But what if God and Maſter ſhould command contrary things? —— In ſuch a caſe the Apoſtle ſets down an excellent limitation in theſe four phraſes, [1. As unto Chriſt: 2. As the ſervants of Chriſt: 3. Doing the will of God: 4. As to the Lord:] All theſe imply, That if Maſters command their ſervants any thing contrary to Chriſt, they may not yield to it: Upon this ground the Midwives of the Hebrew women would not kill the Hebrew children, They feared God (ſaith the Text) and did not as the King commanded them. In this caſe Joſeph is commended in not harkening to his Miſtriſs; and the ſervants of Saul are commended for refuſing to ſlay the Lord's Prieſts at their Maſter's command. When Maſters command or forbid any thing againſt God and Chriſt, they go therein beyond their commiſſion, and their authority ceaſeth; ſo that ſervants may ſay, We ought to obey God rather than man.

Obj. 1 Cor. 7. 23. Sol.

3. But ſome Anabaptiſts object, That all men are alike, and that there is no ſuch difference as betwixt Maſters and Servants, nay, it is expreſly forbidden to be ſervants of men. I anſwer, to be a ſervant, in that place, is not ſimply to be in ſubjection under another, but to be ſo obſequious to man, as to prefer him before God: Hence the Apoſtle elſewhere in the Duties of ſervants, lays down this Antitheſis, Not as men-pleaſers, but as the ſervants of Chriſt; again, doing ſervice as to the Lord, and not to men. Eph. 6. 6, 7. The meaning is, that we muſt doe Duty to a Maſter, not as merely to a man, but as to one in Chriſt's ſtead; Maſters by virtue of their office and place bear the image of Chriſt; Chriſt communicates his authority unto them, and ſo in performing Duty to Maſters, we perform Duty to Chriſt, and in denying Duty to Maſters, we deny Duty to Chriſt: Thus the Lord ſaid to Samuel, when the people rejected his Government, They have not rejected thee, but they have rejected me, that I ſhould not reign over them. 1 Sam. 8. 7. Conſider this, all ye that are Servants, though Maſters ſhould neither reward your good ſervice, nor revenge your ill ſervice, yet Chriſt will doe both. This is your prerogative that fear God above all other ſervants; others may ſerve their Maſters with fear and trembling, in ſingleneſs of heart, and with good will; but only Chriſtians and Saints doe ſervice as to Chriſt, and this makes them not content themſelves with doing the thing, but to endeavour to doe it after the beſt manner they can, ſo as God and Chriſt may accept of it.

I have now run through the Family, and informed you of the Duties both of Governours and Governed. Chriſtians, look within you, look about you, that man is not a good man that is not good in all his relations. The ſame God that requires us to ſerve him as private perſons, requires us to ſerve him in our relations: And therefore though you be never ſo careful of your Duty in the former reſpect, yet you may go to hell for neglecting your Duties, as Maſters, Servants, Husbands, Wives, Parents or Children; nay, I'll ſay a little more, that though you would be good in one relation, yet if you endeavour not to be good in every relation, you ſhall never go to Heaven: For the ſame God that commands you to ſerve him as a Maſter, commands you to ſerve him as a Father, as an Husband, &c. And he that keeps the whole Law, and offends in one point, is guilty of all. Jam. 2. 10.

CHAP. XI. SECT. I.

Of Preparatives to Chriſtian Society.

Hitherto of ſecret Duties, and private Duties, ſo far as they concern every man in his own particular, and in his own family: Now as of many particulars conſiſts a family, ſo of many families may conſiſt this Chriſtian-Society we are ready to treat of; and the rather do we fall upon it, becauſe we hold it a Duty, to keep a conſtant, indeared and loving correſpondence with the Saints, to communicate with experimental Chriſtians, in their Experiences of Chriſt working and dwelling in them, To exhort one another, and ſo much the more as we ſee the day approaching. Heb. 10. 24, 25. Now that we may jointly and comfortably carry on this Duty,

obſerve we {
- 1. Our entrance into it.
- 2. Our proceedings in it.

1. For entrance, we muſt {
- 1. Renounce all ſinful and wicked Society.
- 2. Entertain ſuch Graces as will fitly prepare us for this Society.

1. We muſt renounce and diſcharge all wicked ſociety: 2 Cor. 6. 14. For what fellowſhip hath righteouſneſs with unrighteouſneſs? And what communion hath light with darkneſs? And what concord hath Chriſt with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel? what agreement hath the Temple of God with Idols? as melted gold will unite it ſelf with the ſubſtance of gold, but not incorporate it ſelf with droſs; ſo if God by his Spirit melts the heart, and fits it for union with believers, then he ſeparates it from that which is heterogeneous and diſagreeing to it: Lord, who ſhall dwell in thy holy hill? faith David; the anſwer is given, Pſal. 15. 4. In whoſe eyes a vile perſon is contemned, but he honoureth them that fear the Lord: Underſtand the Text ſoberly concerning Contempt of a vile perſon. David would not have us to deny him courteſies and civil behaviour: We may eat, and drink, and buy, and ſell, and ſhew kindneſs, and pity him, and pray for him, and carry our ſelves with all wiſdom towards him, though he be without; but as for holy communion, we muſt ſay to him as Peter to Simon, Thou haſt neither part nor fellowſhip in this body; Acts 8. 21. or as Nehemiah to Sanballat, Tobiah and Geſhem, You have no Portion, nor right, nor memorial in Jeruſalem. Neh. 2. 10.

2. We muſt entertain ſuch Graces as will fitly prepare us for this Chriſtian Society, and they are ſuch as theſe:——

1. Humility. Humble men contend not, cenſure not, quarrel not, diſdain not: They can meet with unequal reſpects of age, ſex, ſtate and parts; they can diſcern even in women what is to be honoured, and if there be not always ſo profound a judgment, yet many times there is more holy, and more ſweet affections: They have not the faith of Chriſt in reſpect of perſons; but can ſay to the poor man (if he be of the poor whom God hath choſen, rich in Grace, and heir of the Kingdom) Sit thou here in a good place; they can prefer Grace before parts, and delight in the ſweet ſcent of creeping Violets: They can make uſe of and improve all other mens gifts, For in honour they prefer one another, and ſo they come to be kindly affectioned one to another in brotherly love; Rom. 12. 10. they can ſpy out Graces of all ſorts, in all ſorts and ranks of people: They obſerve the ſweet affability and courteſie of ſome great ones, the honeſt diligence and patience of ſome poor ones, the bluſhing modeſty and humility of ſome ſolidly learned, the chearfull activity in God's worſhip of ſome illeterate, that love Chriſt in ſincerity, though they cannot diſpute for him: Several ſorts of men hath ſeveral luſtres; now the humble learn of all, and ſo receive much benefit in communion from all: This Grace then gives him a fitneſs for this Society.

2. Acknow-

Acts 18. 24, 25 26. 2. Acknowledgment, and the prizing of others gifts: It is ſaid of Apollos, that though he were an eloquent man, and mighty in the Scriptures, yet he ſo far acknowledged and honoured the Graces of God, and the gifts that were in Aquila and Priſcilla, (a plain couple, an handy-crafts man and his wife) that he was content to learn of them: O let not Brethren envy and grudge at one another, but acknowledge and prize the gifts of others as their own gifts.

3. Self denial? Let nothing be done through ſtrife or vain glory, but in lowlineſs of mind, let each eſteem others Phil. 2. 4. better than themſelves: Look not every man on his own things, but every man alſo on the things of others: How goodly is it to ſee a man who hath parts, and gifts, and graces to deny himſelf, and all for the edifying of the body? Paul could endeavour to pleaſe all men in all things, Not ſeeking his own profit, but the 1 Cor. 10. 33. profit of many: he hath a true publick ſpirit that prefers the body of Chriſt before his own private, that can deny himſelf, ſo that God may be glorified.

4. Love: A grace of ſuch uſe and influence, that without love there can be no Chriſtian Society; it is love that joins hands and hearts: So the Soul 1 Sam. 18. 1. of Jonathan was knit to the Soul of David, For Jonathan loved him as his own Soul. Love diſpoſeth men to all ſpiritual offices, to pray together, ſing together, talk or confer together; on the contrary, all the gifts in the World, how excellent ſoever, are nothing worth without love, Though I ſpake with the 1 Cor. 12. 1, 2. Tongues of men and Angels; Though I had the gifts of all prophecy, and underſtood all myſteries, and all knowledge, and have not love, I am nothing.

5. Amiableneſs, Facility or Condeſcenſion: Rugged ſtones, unhewn and unſquared, cannot fitly lie and join together in one building; ſowre, harſh and ſullen Spirits, are not fit for ſociety: If there be a Nabal, who is ſuch a ſon of Belial, that no man can ſpeak to him, he may not be entertained: I know there are ſome good men of an harſh and rigid diſpoſition, who make many a poor Chriſtian to ſtartle back, though he came with a reſolution to conſult and learn ſomething of them: But there is in ſome others (whom I always prefer) an alluring facility, that doth call in the modeſt and bluſhing, who would otherwiſe ſtep back: Now this ſweet diſpoſition of gaining of Souls? into the liking and reliſhing of the good ways of God, is a commendable Grace.

6. Sobriety of Spirit, in the ſuſpending of all raſhneſs of cenſures, and a patient bearing with ſome errors and offences, which unavoidably will ſometimes fall out: The Apoſtle had reſpect unto this, when he admoniſhed the Coloſſians; to forbear one Col. 3.13. another, and to forgive one another, if any man have a quarrel againſt any, or a matter of complaint (as the word ſignifieth) even as Chriſt forgave you: How quarrellous are ſome men? How loud and ſhrill, and thunder-ſtormy in their complaints? On the contrary, Heavenly ſouls reſolve to doe good, and to ſuffer evil: Such was David's carriage towards Shimei, when Shimei curſed him: Come out thou 2 Sam. 16. 17. bloody man, thou man of Belial: David ſaid no more, but, Let him curſe, becauſe the Lord hath ſaid unto him, Curſe David.

7. Innocency, harmleſneſs, or inoffenſiveneſs of converſation: Nothing more deſtroys Chriſtian Society, than frequent lies, flatteries, whiſpering, ſcoffs, calumnies, and invented ſlanders: Hence James calls the Jam. 3. 8. 1, 26. tongue, An unruly evil, full of deadly poiſon; —— And if this member be not tamed, all Religion is in vain; and conſequently all Religious Society.

8. An holy coveting of excellent gifts: Emulation ordinarily engenders ſtrife and overthrows Chriſtian Society; but this holy contention, this ſpiritual Emulation, this zeal after more perfection of gifts and graces, the Apoſtle enjoineth, Covet earneſtly the 1 Cor. 12. 31. beſt gifts: q. d. affect, emulate, be zealous after a farther growth or improvement.

9. Wiſdom: Both to diſcern where the rich treaſure lies, and to be able to draw it forth: There lies many times a great deal of ſpiritual wealth, in ſome obſcure and neglected Chriſtians, which many ſupercilious and conceited profeſſors do paſs by and neglect: One would not think what dexterity in Scriptures, what judgment in controverſies, what fervency and expreſſions in Prayer, what acquaintance with God and his Providence, what ſtrength of Faith, what Patience, Meekneſs, Moderation, Contentedneſs, Heavenly-mindedneſs, may be now and then found out and diſcovered in plain people, that have plain carriage and plain ſpeech: Here then is the neceſſary uſe of Wiſdom; to diſcover thoſe gifts and graces; and when we find ſuch a vein to dig it, and draw it forth: Do you obſerve one of great dexterity in Scriptures? Propound to him ſome difficult place where you were fain to make a ſtand: Do you obſerve one well ſtudied in controverſies? Deſire him to untie a knot, where you have been a great while looking for an end: Do you obſerve one acquainted with caſes of deſertion and Soul-clouds? Learn of him what experiments he hath collected, and which was his way out of the miſt: Do you obſerve one powerful in Prayer? Get him to commend your ſuits with you unto God: All men would be dealt with in the proper way wherein they are verſed, and wherein they excel.

Sect. 2. Of a mutual exchange of gifts and graces.

After the Preparatives, we come to the Duties themſelves, which conſiſt,

1. In a mutual exchange and imparting of Gifts and Graces.

2. In a mutual ſerviceableneſs to the bodies and ſouls of one another.

3. In a mutual walking together, and holding of hands in the ordinances of Chriſt.

1. There muſt be in Chriſtian Society, a mutual exchange and imparting of Gifts and Graces: God hath diſpenſed variety of gifts unto his people; as Job was exemplary for patience and uprightneſs; Moſes for faithfulneſs and meekneſs, Joſiah for tenderneſs and activity in the cauſe of Reformation, Timothy for Miniſterial diligence and care of the flock: The gift of Chriſt is Grace, according to meaſure: He meaſures to one ſuch Gifts, to another ſuch, to another ſuch and ſuch, as he pleaſeth: Unto every Eph. 5. 7. one of us is given Grace, according to the meaſure of the gift of Chriſt: God gave the Spirit without meaſure unto Chriſt, but we have it according to our ſcantling, and as he pleaſeth to honour and entruſt us: To one is given the word of Knowledge, to another 1 Cor. 12. 8, 9, 10. Faith, to another Prophecy, to another the diſcerning of Spirits, to another divers kinds of Tongues: Thus every man hath his proper gift of God, One after this man- 1 Cor. 7. 7. ner, and another after that: One hath quickneſs of parts, but not ſo ſolid a judgment; another is ſolid, but not ſo ready and preſential; one hath a good wit, another a good memory, a third a good utterance; one is zealous, but ungrounded, another well principled, but timerous; one is wary and prudent, another open and plain-hearted; one is trembling and melting, another chearfull and full of joy: Now thus God freely gives, and moſt wiſely diſpoſeth, that we may be engaged to uſe his bounty to each other's help: The knowing Chriſtian is to impart to him that is weak in gifts, and the zealous Chriſtian that hath fewer notions, is to impart his warmth and heat to his knowing friend: The Chriſtian that hath collected experiences, or found out methods for the advancement of Holineſs, muſt not deny ſuch knowledge to the body; Chriſtians muſt drive and open a free trade, they muſt teach one another the myſtery of Godlineſs: Tell your experiences, and tell your conflicts, and tell your comforts, make all that you have, the bodies, and all the body hath yours. Some ſay, The Art of Medicine was thus perfected, as any one met with an herb, and diſcovered the virtue of it by any accident, he would poſt it up in ſome publick place, and ſo the Phyſicians skill was perfected by a collection of thoſe experiments and receipts: We muſt one day account how we have laid out our Knowledge, our Utterance, our ſpirit of Prayer, our Ability of diſcerning, our experience of God, our taſte of the Promiſes, our enlargements after Prayer, our improvements by Conference, our comforts after private Humiliation, our ſtrengthening by Sacraments, or what elſe may be inſtanc'd in for the uſe of others; how we got rid of ſuch a luſt, how we maſtered ſuch a Temptation, how we attained to ſuch a facility in this or that duty; and there muſt be this commerce among them that are in this Heavenly partnerſhip.

Sect. 3. Of a mutual ſerviceableneſs to the Bodies and Souls of one another.

THere muſt be in this Chriſtian Society, a mutual ſerviceableneſs.

1. To the Bodies.
2. To the Souls of one another.

Acts 4.32, 34, 35. 1. To the Bodies of one another: The primitive Chriſtians excelled in this care; they put their eſtates (by reaſon of the perſecution) into a common ſtock, that all, even the pooreſt ſort, that in thoſe hard and uncertain times, gave their names to Chriſtianity, might be tended and looked on with equal care and reſpect: I know ſome have ſtretched this too far, to make it a leading caſe and binding example; but thus far it holds, that if the neceſſity of the faithful call for it, even all that we have muſt be ſerviceable in order and in due reſpects; The Catologue runs thus; 1. The publick ſtate wherein we live, we muſt provide for. 2. Our ſelves. 3. Our wives. 4. Our parents. 5. Our children and family. 6. The houſhold of faith. 7. Our kindred. 8. Our neareſt neighbours and common friends. 9. Our country-men. 10. Strangers. 11. Enemies. It is truly an acceptable ſervice to God, and a glorious Miniſtery, to tend the Lord's poor and ſick; therefore Paul ſometimes took upon him the fellowſhip of the Miniſtering to the Saints, as he was deſired by the Churches of Macedonia, whom he commends for their charity, and whoſe example he wills the Corinthians to follow. 2 Cor. 8.4, 7.

2. To the Souls of one another, and this ſeveral ways:

1. In watching over one another: I know we have Enemies that maliciouſly watch over us for our haltings, but it is the part of a friend, to watch over his companion for good; we are apt enough to neglect our own watch, we had need to have either prying enemies, or faithful friends, to make us know our ſelves.

2. In admoniſhing and reproving thoſe that fall: This is a great Duty, but much neglected. Reverend Mr. Bolton, ſpeaking of that grave and religious Judge Nichols, (who deſired him ſometimes to deal plainly with him) confeſſed after the Judges death, that he was grieved at his heart that he had done no more in that kind. O count not admonition an unneceſſary medling, we may, through a fooliſh humour to be eſteemed peaceable and quiet, ſuffer many to miſcarry and be loſt. Bolton's Quatuor noviſſima, pag. 163.

3. In recovering thoſe that are fallen, through a Spirit of meekneſs: Brethren, if any man be overtaken with a fault, ye which are ſpiritual, reſtore ſuch a one in the Spirit of Meekneſs, conſidering thy ſelf, leſt thou alſo be tempted. Chriſtians ſhould not triumph over them that are on the ground, and thrown down by a Temptation, but rather they ſhould ſit by them on the ſame flat, and mourn with them and for them, and feel ſome of their weight. Gal. 6.1,2.

4. In inſtructing the ignorant, dull, and leſs capable: To this purpoſe we ſhould rather keep a ſlow pace, than willingly out-go the young and tender Lambs: O deſpiſe them not here, with whom we ſhall have eternal company in Heaven, it may be, they can reach no higher than the very principles of Religion, without which they could not be ſafe: Yet if they know and can ſay any thing of God in Chriſt Jeſus, or if they would fain hear of him, be not too high for their Society; neglect not the rear of the Chriſtian Army, but ſtrive with their infirmity or unfitneſs, whatſoever it be.

5. In incouraging weak beginners: Bid them welcome that ſtand upon the threſhold, that linger in the porch of this Society, and would be glad to ſit down among the Diſciples of Chriſt, It was Propheſied of Chriſt, A bruiſed reed ſhall he not break, and the ſmoaking flax ſhall he not quench: It ſhould be thus with Chriſtians, they ſhould not quench, but rather encourage the ſmoaking flax into a flame: Do you perceive a poor ſoul to liſten after Chriſt and to hearken if ſome word of comfort may be let fall? Open your ſelves to him, and let him in to the pleaſures and raviſhments of the King's Chambers: Take heed of making any one go back, or grow out of Love with the order and government of Chriſt's Family. Isa. 42. 3.

6. In ſtirring up the Spirits and Gifts of one another: Conſider one another (ſaith the Apoſtle) to provoke unto Love and to good Works; not forſaking the aſſembling of our ſelves together, but exhorting one another. A mean perſon by asking a queſtion, may lay the firſt ſtone, whereupon a goodly frame of excellent and rich diſcourſe may be reared: Chriſtians muſt quicken one another in the ways of Godlineſs; as the iron ſharpneth iron, as rubbing of the hands makes both warm, and as live-coals make the reſt to burn, ſo let the fruit of Society be mutual, ſharpening, warming and inflaming. Heb. 10. 24, 25.

7. In raiſing, chearing, comforting the dejected and diſmayed Spirit: How did the Martyrs in their Priſons ſet one another at liberty from the bondage of fears? How did holy Bradford's ſweet and chearful company make the very dungeons lightſome, and Pallace like to his fellow-priſoners? An unbelieving heart, oppreſſed many times with fooliſh cares and fears, doth ſometimes (by a word duely ſpoken, or by a Promiſe applied in the ſeaſon of it) feel the load quite taken away.

Sect. 4. Of a mutual walking together, and holding hands in the Ordinances of Chriſt.

THere muſt be in Chriſtian Society, A mutual walking together in the Ordinances of Chriſt, as

1. In hearing the Word, by quickning one another unto it, by helping the negligent to apply it, by taking forth the ſeveral portions belonging to the ſeveral conditions and neceſſities of each, by praying for one another, that it might be uſeful and ſeaſonable to all.

Col. 2. 5. 2. In the Sacraments, joying in one another, beholding their order and ſtedfaſtneſs of Faith in Chriſt: How ſhould they but rejoyce together in the love of God, feeding at the ſame table, as thoſe that ſhall meet and ſit down with Chriſt in his Kingdom of Glory? How ſhould they but behold their order and ſtedfaſtneſs of faith, now renewing their Covenant of Love among themſelves, and laying down all grudges, rancour, prejudice, uncharitableneſs, ſurmiſes, for Chriſt's ſake, and giving the right hand of fellowſhip, cordially and unfeignedly to one another, as thoſe that find themſelves to be all retainers to the ſame Maſter, and provided for with the ſame care, and purchaſed by the price of the ſame Blood?

3. In prayer for and with each other: In primitive times they uſed to tranſact one another's affairs in Eph. 16. 18, 19. the court of Heaven by Prayer: Pray always (ſaith Paul) with all prayer and ſupplication, for all Saints, and for me: ——— And, James 5. 16. Pray one for another (ſaid James) that ye may be healed; q. d. If the heart wrangles, or if there be any fallings out, any differences and jarrings among Chriſtians, let them meet together, and humbly acknowledge where the fault lies, and make up the matter before God, who is both a witneſs of their mutual ſincerity, and is only able to ſearch the bottom of the wound, and to cure it: Sometimes Chriſtians have known bleſſed experiments of this, and can tell when a Probatum eſt was written upon it.

4. In faſting, for the afflicting and humbling of the Soul; ſo Ezra and his men, and Eſther and her maids, maintained communion together: Such faſting-days are Soul-feeding-days, and Soul-curing-dayes; ſome diſeaſes, ſome luſts will go out no other ways.

5. In mutual bemoanings, confeſſions, and opening of our ſores and wounds; it may be, when the Apoſtle ſaith, Confeſs your faults one to another, he means more than an acknowledgment of offences, whereby a man hath ſinned againſt his brother; viz. that Chriſtians ſhould alſo bewail their failings, infirmities, deadneſs, unſavourineſs, coldneſs, narrowneſs, unfruitfulneſs to one another, to ſee whether others have been in the ſame caſe, and what courſe they took, and what remedy they procured? Many Souls may periſh through too much reſervedneſs and modeſty.

6. In holy conference: This indeed is it that might much improve the meeting of Chriſtians. In the Prophet's time, when proud ſcorners, and profane ſpirited men talked vainly, and did even Mal. 3.16. what they liſt, then they that feared the Lord met, and ſpake often one to another; no doubt they ſpake of God, and his Councils, of his Works and Ways, of his Providence and Goodneſs, of the baſeneſs of Atheiſtical thoughts concerning God: 1 Theſ. 5. 11. Luk. 24.32. Act. 28.15. Would Chriſtians thus meet and exchange words and notions, they might build up one another, they might heat and inflame one another, they might ſtrengthen and encourage one another, as the brethren did Paul: And have we not an expreſs command for this Duty of Conference? Jer. 23.35. Thus ſhall ye ſay, every one to his Brother, and every one to his Neighbour, What hath the Lord anſwered? And what hath he ſpoken?

And now I am fallen on this Duty, give me leave to lay down ſome experiments and proceedings of ſome Chriſtians, as willingly joyned themſelves in a Chriſtian Society, and by God's Bleſſing thereby ſweetly improved themſelves.

Sect. 5. Of ſome Orders to which ſome Chriſtians ſubſcribed before Conference.

IN this Conference of Chriſtians,
- 1. Some Orders were made, to which all ſubſcribed.
- 2. Some queſtions were propounded, to which all anſwered.

1. The Orders were theſe: ———

1. That every Wedneſday (eſpecially during winter) we will meet for Conference about Soul-affairs.

2. That if any difference in opinion ſhall ariſe amongſt us, we will fully debate, and then ſubmit to the judgment of the Society, as it ſhall be made good out of the Word.

3. If we obſerve any of the Society to fall into any ſin or ſcandal, he that obſerves it ſhall firſt warn the party thereof; and if he offend again in the ſame kind, the obſerver then ſhall joyn with himſelf one or two more to warn the ſame party; and if he will not hear them, the obſerver or any other ſhall then acquaint the Society at our next meeting: And if he will not hear them, that then he be excluded till he repent, and be voted for his admiſſion again.

4. That whatſoever is ſpoken amongſt us (the telling whereof may tend to the prejudice of any one of us) ſhall be kept ſecret, upon pain of undergoing ſuch cenſure as the major part of the company ſhall think fit.

5. That for admiſſion of any into our Society we will not be too ſtrict nor too large; not too ſtrict in excluding any, in whom we have any good hopes of ſincerity, and real deſire to encreaſe their Knowledge, and mutual Love, though they may be but weak in Gifts; nor too large in admitting ſuch, who may be either heretical in opinion, or inordinate in life: And by this Rule, thoſe, that are Rom. 14. 1. 2 Theſ. 36. 14. Tit. 3. 10. to be admitted ſhall be voted by the major part of us.

6. That for better regulating of this Society, we will have a Moderator. And what farther Orders we or any of us ſhall hereafter think upon, we ſhall propound the ſame to the Society at our next meeting; and the ſame ſhall be confirmed or annulled, as it ſhall be agreed by the major vote of our Society.

7. That the Moderator ſhall propound the queſtion and matter of our Diſcourſe the week before it be diſcuſſed; and at every meeting begin with Prayer, and end with Thankſgiving.

Sect. 6. Of ſome Queſtions of Practical Divinity, which at the Conference were propounded and anſwered.

THE Queſtions propounded were of ſeveral ſorts:

1. Choice Heads of Practical Divinity.
2. Wholeſome Caſes of Conſcience.
3. Some Controverted Points.

The Queſtions of the firſt ſort, were theſe and the like.

Sect. 1. What was the happineſs of Man's condition in the ſtate of innocency?

1. GOd made man in his own Image, Gen. 1. 26, 27. and 9. 6. Eccleſ. 7. 29. Eph. 4. 24.

2. Man was wonderfully and fearfully made, Pſal. 139. 14.

3. Man was made Lord of all the Creatures Gen. 1. 26, 28. Pſal. 8. 6.

4. Man had a perfect Knowledg of { God, Rom. 1. 19, 20.
The Creatures, Gen. 2. 19.

5. Man had ſweet and immediate communion and conference with God, Gen. 1. 28. 29, 30, and 3. 8.

6. Man was placed in Paradiſe, Gen. 2. 15.

7. Man was made little lower than the Angels, Pſal. 8. 5.

8. Man laboured without pain, Gen. 3. 17.

24. Chriſt is our all in all, Col. 3. 11.

SECT. VII.

Of ſome Queſtions or Caſes of Conſcience, which at the Conference were propounded and anſwered.

THe Queſtions concerning caſes of conſcience, were theſe and the like.

Sect. 1. Whether a Believer may profit more, or be more intent in publick, or in ſecret Prayer.

IT was anſwered, That this Caſe might better be reſolved by experience than Scripture; and accordingly ſome preferred publick Prayer for theſe Reaſons:

1. Becauſe in publick they are ſtirred up by others; but in private, or ſecret Prayer, they had none others to join with them.

2. Becauſe in publick, they that exerciſed had more excellent gifts, which exceedingly tend to their edification; but in ſecret, they found themſelves weak, and dull, and dead-hearted ordinarily.

Others anſwered otherwiſe, and preferred ſecret Prayer on theſe grounds:——

1. Becauſe in ſecret they could confeſs more enlargedly and feelingly their own ſins than others could do it for them in publick, to whom they were not particularly known.
2. Becauſe in ſecret they had fewer occaſions of diſtraction, than in publick, and conſequently they kept cloſer to God in the Duty.
3. Becauſe they found by experience, that in ſecret their hearts were more up; and when they themſelves were to perform in publick, the Society, whom they joined with, did ordinarily more ſtraiten them.
4. Becauſe in ſecret they could take more pains with their hearts: as in midſt of Prayer, to proſtrate, or by breaking off, to meditate, &c. which conveniently they could not doe in publick.

In concluſion, this Caſe was reſolved, That ſome Believers may profit more, or be more intent in publick, others in private: yea, the ſame Chriſtian may ſometimes be more intent in publick, and ſometimes in private: And the reaſon rendred, was, Becauſe the Spirit that helps us to pray, is a free agent, and works diverſly in the hearts of his people, to ſhew the diverſity of his gifts, and his diverſe manner of working. And yet withal, this is obſervable, that the comforts in duties, which have leaſt of man, and are moſt immediate from the Spirit of God, are uſually the ſweeteſt comforts.

Sect. 2. Whether a Chriſtian in his own apprehenſion, decaying in Grace, may not yet grow in Grace? and if ſo, What are the reaſons of his wrong apprehenſions?

TO the firſt Queſtion it was anſwered affimatively; as in caſe of temptation, Pſal. 73. 21, 22, 23. or in a ſpiritual deſertion, Pſal. 51. 12. Pſalm 88. Iſa. 49. 14.

To the ſecond queſtion theſe reaſons were given in:——

1. The neglect of Self-examination.
2. The want of God's lively Ordinances.
3. A too much eying of afflictions.
4. A too much poring upon ſin, without any thoughts of Chriſt or Free-grace.
5. The want of the light of God's amiable countenance.
6. The inſenſibleneſs of grace, which is of a ſpiritual nature, and not ſo eaſily to be perceived.
7. A preſent deadneſs or dulneſs of Spirit.
8. A miſapplying of ſome one or more places of Scripture, as Heb. 6. 6, &c.
9. Weakneſs of knowledge or want of judgment in ſuch experimental paſſages, eſpecially in the beginning of Chriſtianity.
10. The diſtemper of the ſoul (eſpecially in deſertion) when as in the diſtemper of the body, a man thinking or ſpeaking idely, we ſay it is not he, but his ſickneſs; ſo it is in this caſe.

In concluſion, theſe reaſons were approved; but we agreed, That all the ſucceeding Anſwers or Reſolutions ſhould be proved out of God's holy word.

Sect. 3. Whether is a Chriſtian always bound to reprehend an offender? or in in what caſes may be forbear.

IT is anſwered, That a Chriſtian is bound ever to reprove, but he may forbear in ſuch caſes as theſe:——

1. When the party offending is a ſcorner, and we percieve he will but ſcoff at it, Prov. 9. 8. ——23. 9. Mat. 7. 8.
2. When the offender ſins of infirmity, Gal. 6. 12.
3. When the offended is not able to convince the offender that it is ſin, Job 6. 25. Tit. 1. 9.
4. When there is no hopes to prevail in reſpect of the evil times, Amos 5. 13.
5. When the offence is ſmall, and but little, Proverbs 19. 11. 20. 3.
6. When we know not certainly whether the ſuppoſed offence be a ſin, or not, Joſh. 20. 16, &c.
7. When the reprehender is faulty in the ſame thing, Matthew 7. 3, 4, 5.
8. When the party offending is not capable of reproof, as in caſe a man be an idiot, or drunk, or in the height of his paſſion, 1 Samuel 25. 36, 37.
9. When our reproof may breed ſome diſſention, or imminent and dangerous diſturbance; as in caſe it be amongſt rude, boiſterous and deſperate company, Matthew 7. 6.
10. When the offender is obſtinately and wilfully bent to go on in his ſin, Mark 14. 60, 61. 15. 4, 5.

Sect. 4. How may we know whether we profit by afflictions.

WE may know by theſe ſigns,

1. If by affliction we come to be ſenſible of God's heavy diſpleaſure, Deut. 31. 17. Ruth 1. 13. Micah 6. 9. 1 Cor. 11. 37.
2. If by affliction we are drawn to ſearch our ways, 1 Kings 8. 38. Ezra 9. 14. Pſalm 32. 4, 5. Lam. 1. 5. 3. 39, 40.
3. If by afflictions we are ſoundly and ſincerely humbled, 2 Kings 22. 19, 20. Job 1. 20. 1 Pet. 5. 6.
4. If our afflictions work on us to make our peace with our God, Iſaiah 27. 5. Hoſ. 5. 15.
5. If by afflictions we be drawn to make and pay vows of better obedience, Pſalm 66. 13, 14.
6. If in our greateſt afflictions we reſt upon God, 2 Chron. 14. 11. and wait on God, Pſalm 37. 7, 34. Micah 7. 9.
7. If in our afflictions we mind the promiſes, and roll our ſelves on them, 1 Sam. 30. 6. Pſalm 119. 49, 50, 92.
8. If in our afflictions we clear God when he is judged, Pſalm 119. 75.
9. If for afflictions we bleſs God, and his afflicting hand, Job 1. 21.
10. If by our afflictions our graces are ſtirred up and exerciſed, Job 13. 15. Pſalm 42. 5. Jer. 31. 18. Romans 5. 3. 2 Cor. 1. 10. Hebrews 10. 34. James 1. 3.
11. If by our afflictions our prayers are more fervent, Nehemiah 1. 3, 4. Pſalm 77. 2. 116. 3. 142. 4, 5.
12. If in our afflictions we gather in ſome experiences of God's love and help, Pſalm 34. 46. 66. 16, 17.
13. If in our afflictions we ſubmit willingly and chearfully to God's good will and pleaſure, Levit. 26. 11. 1 Samuel 3. 18.
14. If in afflictions we look more at the hand of God that ſtrikes, than at the inſtrument, 1 Samuel 3. 18. 2 Samuel 16. 11.
15. If in afflictions we reject all worldly ſinful hopes, and unlawful means of deliverance, and reſt only on God, 1 Cor. 1. 8, 9. Hebrews 11. 25, 26.
16. If in preſent afflictions we gather aſſurance of deliverance from former experience, 1 Sam. 17. 37. Pſalm 77. 9, 10, 11. 2 Tim. 3. 11.
17. If by afflictions we find corruptions to weaken, and to be mortified, Iſaiah 21. 9.
18. If our afflictions beget aſſurance of our adoption, Heb. 12. 8. ſanctification, Heb. 12. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11. glorification, Mat. 5. 12. 2 Cor. 4. 17. 2 Peter 2. 8.

Sect. 5.

Sect. 5. How ſhould a Chriſtian fortifie himſelf againſt the reproaches of wicked men?

1. Let him conſider the command of God in this caſe, Mat. 5. 44. Rom. 12. 19. 1 Pet. 3. 9.

14. A readineſs to forgive, as Chriſt forgave us, Mat. 18. 33. Eph. 4. 32.

15. A ſpirit of wiſdom and diſcretion, Prov. 19. 11. Eccleſ. 7. 9.

16. A mortifying of luſts, and ſubduing of paſſions, 1 Cor. 3. 3. James 4. 1.

17. A loving carriage and deportment of the outward man. Peter 15. 1. 25. 23.

18. A chearful admiſſion of the weak into Chriſtian-Society, and bearing with their infirmities, Rom. 14. 1. 15. 1. 1 Theſ. 5. 14.

19. An avoiding of ſuch as cauſe diviſions amongſt Chriſtians, Rom. 16. 17.

20. An avoiding of ill ſpeeches one againſt another, 1 Pet. 2. 1.

21. A not thinking to highly of our ſelves, but ſoberly, according to the meaſure of faith God hath given us, Rom. 12. 3, 4. 1 Cor. 4. 6.

22. A deſire to doe to others, as we wiſh others to doe to us, Mat. 7. 12.

23. A ſtudy to be quiet, and not to meddle with another man's buſineſs, 1 Theſ. 4. 11.

24. A ſolemn entring into Covenant with God, and with one another, Jer. 50. 5.

25. A conſideration of the command, Be of the ſame mind one towards another, Rom. 12. 16.

26. A conſideration that we all know but in part, and therefore that we ſhould bear with one another's infirmities, 1 Cor. 13. 9.

27. A conſideration that a paſſionate, peeviſh and froward profeſſour, is ſeldom acquainted with the truth as it is in Jeſus, Pſalm 25. 9. Prov. 11. 2. 27. 20. Iſaiah 28. 9. Romans 16. 17. James 1. 21, 26.

28. A conſideration that unity in judgment is the promiſe and bleſſing of another life, and that unity in affection is our preſent duty, Eph. 4. 13. Phil. 3. 15, 16.

SECT. VIII.

Of ſome Queſtions or controverted Points, which at the Conference were propounded, and anſwered.

THe Queſtions of controverted points were theſe, and the like:

Sect. 1. Whether doth God ſee ſin in Believers, ſo as to be offended at it? and how may it appear?

1. IT is anſwered affirmatively, that God doth ſee ſin in his Saints, as appears by theſe Texts, Exod. 4. 14. 1 Sam. 3. 12, 13. 2 Sam. 12. 9, 10. Pſalm 135. 14. Jer. 16. 17, 18. Rev. 2. 4, 13, 14. though not in reference to their juſtification, yet in reference to their converſation and ſanctification, which is but in part.

2. This appeareth, ——

1. From the Lord's complaining againſt believers for ſin, Iſaiah 1. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9. Jer. 2. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13.

2. From his threats, if they do not repent, 2 Sam. 7. 14. Pſalm 89 30, 31, 32. Iſaiah 1. 20. Rev. 2. 5, 16. 3. 8.

3. From his chaſtiſements of them for ſin, 2 Samuel 12. 15. Pſalm. 74. 1. 99. 8. Amos 3. 2. Jer. 30. 15. Luke 1. 22.

4. From God's withdrawing the comforts of his Spirit for ſin Pſalm 51. 12.

5. From the prayers of Believers to God, for the hiding of his face from their ſins, and removing of his anger for their ſins, Pſalm 6. 16. 32. 5, 6. 51. 9.

6. From the Lord's reproving of his people for their ſins, 2 Sam. 12. 7, 8, 9. Mat. 16. 23.

Sect. 2. Whether are Believers to repent for their ſins? and upon what grounds?

1. ANſwered, that they are to repent, as appears, Job 42. 6. Jer. 31. 49. Rev. 2. 5. 3. 3.

2. The grounds or reaſons are theſe following, ——

1. Becauſe God looks for repentance from them, Zech. 6. 6.

2. Becauſe God commands them to repent, Rev. 2. 5, 16. 3. 3, 19.

3. Becauſe it is God's pleaſure that we ſhould feel the Bitterneſs of ſin as well as the ſweet of ſin, Jer. 2. 9.

4. Becauſe believers ſin as well as others, 1 Kings 8. 46. 1 John 1. 10.

5. Becauſe in believers there is a proclivity and diſpoſition to all ſin, Pſalm 51. 5. Romans 7. 24.

6. Becauſe repentance is a means for the diverting of judgments from a Land, or a perſon, 2 Chron. 7. 14. Joel. 2. 13.

7. Becauſe repentance is a means for obtaining mercies, Judges 20. 26. Nehemiah 1. 9.

8. Becauſe repentance is a means, way, or qualification to { Pardon, 1 Chr. 7. 14.
Salvation, 2 Co. 7. 10.

9. Becauſe repentance is a neceſſary fruit of faith, Zech. 12. 10. Acts 19. 18.

10. Becauſe after repentance we may expect comfort, Pſalm 126. 5, 6. Mat. 5. 4. 2 Cor. 7. 9, 13.

11. Becauſe that therein we ſhall give God the glory of his Juſtice, Pſalm 51. 4. Rev. 16. 9.

Sect. 3. Whether are Believers to pray for pardon of ſin? and what are the reaſons?

1. ANſwered, that believers are to pray for pardon, as may appear from theſe Scriptures, Numb. 14. 19. 2 Sam. 24. 10. Dan. 9. 19. Pſal. 25. 11. Matthew 6. 12.

2. The reaſons are theſe and the like:—

1. Becauſe Chriſt taught his Diſciples ſo to pray, Matthew 6. 12.

2. Becauſe believers have renewed infirmities, Numbers 14. 11, 19.

3. Becauſe God is ready to pardon them that pray for it, Pſalm 86. 5.

4. Becauſe God hath promiſed to pardon the ſins of his Saints, 2 Chron. 7. 14. Jer. 33. 3,8.

5. Becauſe whatſoever we read in Scripture of pardon, it is always in reference to ſins paſt, Iſaiah 43. 25. Jer. 33. 8. Pſalm 79. 8, &c.

6. Becauſe yet the Judge hath not ſolemnly pronounced the ſentence of pardon, neither will he till the laſt day, Acts 3. 19.

Sect. 4. Whether is it the Duty of Chriſtians to obſerve the Lord's-day (now being the firſt day of the week) as a Chriſtian Sabbath? and what grounds for it?

1. ANſwered, That it is their duty; and proved from Mark 16. 2. John 20. 19, 26. Acts 1. 1, 2, 3. 20. 7. 1 Cor. 16. 1, 2. Rev. 1. 10.

2. The grounds are theſe and the like:—

1. Becauſe Chriſt at that day did perfect the work of Redemption for our eternal reſt, Mat. 28. 1, 2.

2. Becauſe Chriſt did appear to his diſciples after his reſurrection upon that day more eſpecially, John 20. 19, 26.

3. Becauſe (as it is obſerved generally) the Holy Ghoſt at that day did fall upon the Apoſtles, being met together in one place, Acts 2. 1.

4. Becauſe upon the ſame day the Apoſtles ordinarily diſpenſed the Word, Sacraments and other Ordinances, Acts 20. 7. 1 Cor. 6. 1, 2.

5. Becauſe ſuch things as are named the Lord's in Scripture, are ever of the Lord's inſtitution, as, The Word of the Lord, 1 Tim. 6. 3. The Cup of the Lord, 1 Cor. 11. 27. The Supper of the Lord, 1 Cor. 11. 20. and ſo The Lord's day, Rev. 1. 10.

6. Becauſe God doth ſeem to honour the firſt day of the week above any other day, as appears by his great works done upon that day; viz. In the Creation, he made that day the firſt fruits of time; and in it he Created the higheſt heavens, the place of the eternal Sabbath; and in it he brought forth the light of the world, anſwerable to which is the day of Chriſt's reſurrection; wherein the Sun of Righteouſneſs, the true light of the World roſe up, and became the firſt fruits of them that ſleep, and by virtue thereof will bring all his Saints into eternal reſt, Gen. 1. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. compared with Mal. 4. 2. John 1. 9. 1 Cor. 15. 20. Heb. 4. 9, 10, 11.

Sect. 5. Whether may not Chriſtians lawfully ſing David's or Moſes's Pſalms? and how may it appear?

1. ANſwered affirmatively: Eph. 5. 19. where, under thoſe three heads, of Pſalms, and Hymns, and Spiritual ſongs, David's Pſalms are contained.

2. This is proved by Precepts, Patterns and Reaſons.

1. By Precepts, Epheſ. 5. 19. Col. 3. 16. James 5. 13.

2. By Patterns:

1. Of Chriſt himſelf and his Apoſtles, Matthew 26. 30.

2. Of Paul and Silas, Acts 16. 25.

3. Of the Church, Revelations 15. 3.

3. By Reaſons; as,—

1. Becauſe the people of God have uſed the very ſame words, of David's Pſalms in ſinging, 2 Chron. 15. 13. compared with Pſalm 136. and Ezra 3. 11. compared with Pſalm 118. and Revelations 15, 4. compared with Pſalm 86. 9. and Exodus 15. 2. compared with Pſalm 118. 14.

2. Becauſe Paul directing to ſing Pſalms, gives the very ſame word or title as David gives in his Pſalms, James 5. 13. compared with Pſalm. 95. 2.

3. Becauſe David's Pſalms are indicted by the Spirit of God, as well as any others that confeſſedly may be ſung, 2 Samuel 23. 2.

Sect. 6. Whether admitting of, or joyning with, ſcandalous perſons in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and not endeavouring to keep them back (while ſuch) be not ſin in the admitters and joyners? and how it may appear?

1. ANſweredaffirmatively, That it is ſin,
1. In the admitters, Matthew 7. 6.
2. In the joyners, 1 Cor. 5. 11. 2 Theſ. 3. 6.

2. This appeareth to be ſin,—

1. In the admitters, by theſe grounds:—

1. Becauſe it is againſt the command of keeping unclean perſons from ſuch like holy things, Numb. 9. 6, 7. 2 Chronicles 23. 19.

2. Becauſe Chriſt caſt out the man that came without his wedding garment, Matthew 22. 11.

3. Becauſe this was the practice of the Apoſtles, 1 Corinthians 5. 3, 4, 5. 1 Timothy 1. 20.

2. In the joyners by theſe grounds:—

1. Becauſe they are forbidden expreſly to joyn with ſuch, 2 Theſſalonians 3. 14.

2. Becauſe ſcandalous perſons ought to be cenſured, and ſo to be eſteemed of the joyners, as Heathens, and Publicans, Matthew 18. 17.

3. In both admitters and joyners, by theſe grounds:—

1. Becauſe God hath forbidden us to eat with ſuch, 1 Cor. 5. 11. 2 Theſſalonians 3. 6.

2. Becauſe by this means their ſins would become ours, 1 Cor. 5. 6, 7. Gal. 5. 9, 10.

3. Becauſe the Ordinance of the Lord's Supper is defiled thereby; which is not to be underſtood ſimply in it ſelf, but in ſome ſort (i. e.) to them who are ſcandalous, and to them who joyn with ſuch as they know to be ſcandalous: and this appears,—

1. In that the temple, which had a ſacramental ſignification of Chriſt, was polluted by the coming of prophane perſons into it, Ezekiel 23. 38, 39.

2. In that the ſacrifices of old were defiled by prophane perſons, Hag. 2. 11, 12, 13, 14.

3. In that the profane are as Swine, which trample the pearls under their feet, Matthew 7. 6.

See theſe Proofs inlarged in Gelaſpi, Aaron's Rod bloſſoming, l. 3. ch. 15.

Sect. 7. In ſuch a caſe, what is the duty of admitters and joyners, to keep themſelves blameleſs, and the Ordinance undefiled?

1. IT is the duty of admitters,—

1. To eye and obſerve the flock, over which God hath given them charge, Acts 20. 17, 28.

2. If any be obſerved, or brought in as offenders, it is their duty,—

1. To admoniſh them once or twice, Tit. 3. 10. 3 Theſ. 3. 15.

2. If that prevail not, to ſuſpend them, 1 Cor. 5. 11. 2 Theſ. 3. 6, 14, 15.

3. If that prevail not, then to excommunicate them by the leſſer Excommunication, Mat. 18. 17. 1 Cor. 5. 4, 5. 2 Cor. 2. 6.

4. If that prevail not, then (in ſome caſes) to excommunicate them by the greater Excommunication, 1 Cor. 16. 22. Gal. 1. 8, 9. 1 John 5. 16. This is onely when a man is viſibly irrecoverable, or or hath committed the ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt; the caſe of Julian the Apoſtate, whom the Church would not pray for, but prayed againſt.

2. It is the duty of joyners,——

1. To eye and obſerve one another's converſation, ſo much as they may, Heb. 10. 24. and 3. 12, 13.

2. If upon obſervation they find any faulty, then,——

1. The ſcandale being private it is the joyner's duty,——

1. To admoniſh privately betwix him and the offender alone, Mat. 18, 15.

2. If that be not effectual, than to take one or two more with him, Mat. 18. 16.

3. If that be not effectual, then to tell it to the Church, Mat. 18. 17.

4. If the Church be corrupt, and neglect its duty, he is then to mourn for it, 1 Cor. 5. 2.

2. The ſcandal being publick, it is the joyner's duty immediately to bring it to the Church, 1 Cor. 5. 1. 2 Theſ. 3. 14.

It was the deſire of ſome precious men, That I ſhould reviſe this Queſtion about joyning with the wicked in the Supper of the Lord. For my own part, I am fully ſatisfied, that the mind of God is clearly delivered in it; and yet leſt any may think that I am ſingle in this, I have lately conſulted with thoſe Divines, to whom high (if not higheſt) reſpect is given in the Controverſies of this nature; viz. Mr. Rutherford, and Mr. Gelaſpi, to whom I may joyn the late Aſſembly of Divines convened at Weſtminſter; and if you would known their opinions, conſult but the Authors, as I have cited them, where you may find them at large. The Queſtion is, Whether admitting of, or joining with ſcandalous perſons in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and not endeavouring to keep them back whilſt ſuch, be ſin in the admitters and joyners? And how may it appear? It is anſwered affirmatively: —— 1. That it is ſin: ——

1. In the admitters, Mat. 7. 6. See Rutherford, Divine right of Church-Government, page 254. and ſee Gelaſpi, Aaron's rod bloſſoming, page 548, 549, 550, 551.

2. In the joyners, 1 Cor. 5. 11. 2 Theſ. 3. 6. See Rutherford, Divine right of Church-Government, page 238, 240, 250, 268, 256, 357. and ſee Gelaſpi, Aaron's rod bloſſoming, page 424, 427. 428, 429, 539. 2. This appears to be ſin: ——

1. In the admitters by theſe grounds:

1. Becauſe of the command to keep unclean perſons from holy things, Numb. 5. 2.—9. 6, 7. 2 Chron. 23. 19. See Ruth. Divine right of Church-Government, page 241, 242. See Gelaſpi, Aaron's rod bloſſoming, page 96, 97, 98.

2. Becauſe of Chriſt's caſting out the man that came without his wedding Garment, Mat. 22. 11. See Gelaſpi, Aaron's rod bloſſoming, page 510.

3. Becauſe of the practice of the Apoſtles, who caſt out the ſcandalous from the Lord's Supper, 1 Cor. 5. 3, 4, 5. See Ruth. Divine right of Church-Government, page 238, 240, 268, 346. Gelaſpi, Aaron's rod bloſſoming, page 236. and for 1 Tim. 1. 20. See Rutherford, Divine right of Church-Government, page 354, 355. Gelaſpi, Aaron's rod bloſſoming, page 189.

2. In the joyners, by theſe grounds:

1. Becauſe they are forbidden expreſly to joyn with ſuch, 2 Theſ. 3. 14. Ruth. p. 250, 260. Gelaſpi p. 281, 282.

2. Becauſe ſcandalous perſons ought to be cenſured, and ſo to be eſteemed of the joyners as heathens and publicans, Mat. 18. 17. Ruth. p. 303, 306, 223, 233. Gelaſpi p. 295, 296, 351, 361, 364.

3. In both admitterts and joyners, by theſe grounds:

1. Becauſe God hath forbiden us to eat with ſuch, 1 Cor. 5. 11. 2 Theſ. 3. 6. Ruth. p. 238, 240, 250, 268, 356, 357. Gelaſpi, p. 424, 427, 428, 429, 439.

2. Becauſe by joyning with ſuch in the Lord's Supper, their ſin would become ours, 1 Cor. 5. 6, 7. Gal. 5. 9, 10. Ruth. p. 238, 239, 240, 339, 345, 349, 373. Gelaſpi, p. 116, 117, 286.

3. Becauſe the Ordinance of the Lord's Supper is defiled thereby, which we underſtand not ſimply in it ſelf, but in ſome ſort; (i. e.) It is defiled to them who are ſcandalous, and to them who joyn with ſuch whom they know to be ſcandalous: And this appears: ——

1. In that the Temple, which had a Sacramental ſignification of Chriſt, was polluted by the coming of profane perſons into it, Ezek. 23. 38, 39. Ruth. p. 452, 453, 496. Gelaſpi, p. 546. 547.

2. In that the ſacrifices of old were defiled by profane perſons, Hag. 2. 11, 12, 13, 14. Ruth. p. 272, 347, 348. Gelaſpi, p. 547.

3. In that the profane are as ſwine which trample the pearls under their feet, Mat. 7. 6. Ruth. p. 254, 255, 638. Gelaſp. p. 548, 549. It is confeſſed that the word is a pearl, and yet the profane may hear the Word, and inſtead of defiling it (if the Lord ſee good) be converted by it, Iſa. 2. 3, 4.—11. 4. 5, 6, 7. but the Lord's Supper is ſuch a pearl, as they can make no uſe of it, but pollute it to their own deſtruction; no more than dogs and ſwine can make uſe of pearls to feed, but only to trample on them: The Lord's Supper is ſuch a thing as is ordained only for thoſe that have ſaving grace, and not for dogs, or ſwine.

I hope theſe two witneſſes (if they be thoroughly peruſed) will ſatisfie the ſcrupulous: But beſides thoſe two worthy Pillars, our own Aſſembly of Divines affirm this truth; who grounding the ſuſpenſion of ſcandalous ſinners from the Sacrament, though not yet caſt out of the Church, they gave in theſe proofs: 1. Becauſe the Ordinance it ſelf muſt not be profaned. 2. Becauſe we are charged to withdraw from thoſe who walk diſorderly: 3. Becauſe of the great ſin and danger both to him that comes unworthily, and alſo to the whole Church: The Scriptures from which the Aſſembly did prove all this, were Mat. 7. 6. 2 Theſ. 3. 6, 14, 15, 1 Cor. 11. 27. to the end, compared with Jude v. 23. 1 Tim. 5. 22. ſee Gelaſpi, Aaron's rod bloſſoming, page. 339. I have no more to ſay, but the Lord lead us all into his truth, and give us grace to walk humbly and obediently to every truth revealed: And as many as be perfect, Phil. 3. 15, 16. let them be thus minded; and if any be otherwiſe minded, God ſhall reveal it in his due time: Nevertheleſs, whereto we have already attained, let us walk by the ſame rule, let us mind the ſame thing.

CHAP. XII. SECT. I.

Of the Neceſſity of Preparation to the Hearing of the Word.

HItherto of Duties in reference to our ſpiritual Ethicks and Oeconomicks: Now follow our Divine Politicks; viz. ſuch Duties as have reference to publick or Church Aſſemblies, and they are either,

{ Hearing the Word Preached. Or,
{ Receiving the Sacraments.

1. For our right, holy and concionable importment in and about the Hearing of the Word we muſt look to { Our Preparation before we hear.

{ Our carriage in hearing.
{ Our behaviour afterwards.

1. For preparation, it is of ſuch neceſſity, that the want and neglect of it, is the cauſe that the Word to many becomes the ſavour of death unto death, and to ſome profeſſors, even of good hearts and affections, but a dead letter, without any life or power in it. Is it not a general complaint of the beſt Chriſtians, that they are ordinarily poſſeſſed with much deadneſs of Heart, and dulneſs of ſpirit at theſe holy exerciſes? Alaſs! their zeal and fervency which ſhould be quickned and inflamed at every Sermon, is dull and benumb'd with ſenſleſneſs and ſatiety; they do not tremble at Divine comminations, and denouncements of God's Judgments againſt ſin; they are not ſo refreſhed with the gracious Promiſes of Life and Salvation, as they ought to be; they do not enjoy and reap the thouſandth part of that delight, comfort and benefit as they well might, by the Miniſtery of the Word; they do not with that cheerfulneſs receive, with that ſweetneſs taſte or reliſh, with that life and vigour digeſt the food of life; they do not ſo clearly ſee and diſcern the infinite beauty of the ſacred Majeſty repreſented unto them, or that glorious grace, ſhining unto them in the face of Chriſt Jeſus: their hand of faith doth not with that feeling and faſtneſs lay hold upon and claſp about the rich treaſures revealed in the Goſpel: And why? Becauſe their Hearts are not purged and prepared for hearing. This duty then is of great neceſſity, and ſpecial uſe, for all thoſe which look for benefit or bleſſing by the Preaching of Luke 8. 18. the Word: Take heed how ye hear (ſaith Chriſt,) and Ecclef. 5. 1. Take heed to thy foot (ſaith the Preacher) when thou goeſt to the houſe of God; and be more ready to hear, than to offer the ſacrifice of fools, for they conſider not that they doe evil.

But underſtand we aright: God would not have us make an Idol of preparation, as if therefore, God draws nigh to us, becauſe we are prepared; No, no: Though preparation in ordinary courſe is a means to find God, yet doth God ſometimes hide himſelf when his people are prepared, he would have us know, that if he be found of us at all, it is of mere mercy: He is not bound in Juſtice (ſetting aſide his Promiſe) to reward this preparation: It's but our duty, and he can eſpy in it matter enough of diſpleaſure, but ordinarily the Godly find God according to their preparation, and hereto the current of the Scripture bears witneſs, They that ſeek the Lord, ſhall praiſe Pſal. 22. 26.
him: Open your gates, and the King of Glory ſhall come Pſal. 24. 7.
in: —— If any man open to me, I will come in to Rev. 3. 29.
him: ——— If thou prepare thine Heart, and ſtretch Job 11. 13, out thy hands towards him, ——— then ſhalt thou lift 14, 15.
up thy face without ſpot.

Sect. 2. Of the Manner of preparation to hear the Word.

THe Manner of this preparation conſiſts in theſe particulars: 1. In Prayer. 2. In Meditation. 3. In examination. 4. In the purging or cleanſing our hearts. 5. In a right diſpoſition of our hearts.

1. In Prayer: If thou crieſt after Knowledge, and lifteſt up thy voice for underſtanding, —— then ſhalt Prov. 2. 3, thou underſtand the fear of the Lord, and find out the 5.
Knowledge of God. Chriſt bids us pray for our daily bread, and a bleſſing upon it; much more ſhould we pray for a bleſſing upon our Spiritual food, for Man doth not live by bread only, but by every word that Deut. 8. 3. proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord, doth man live. Mat. 4. 4.
Now the particulars we are to pray for, are theſe:

1. For the Miniſter, that God would open unto him a door of utterance, to ſpeak the myſteries of Col. 4. 3, 4.
Chriſt; —— and that he may make it manifeſt as he ought to ſpeak: Direct him, Lord (ſhould every Soul ſay) that he may ſpeak fitly to me, ſomewhat for my underſtanding, ſomewhat for my affections, ſomewhat to help me againſt ſuch or ſuch a temptation.

2. For the Congregation, that Chriſt may ride with triumph in the midſt of them, that ſome may be converted, others may be confirmed and ſtrengthened in their moſt holy faith.

3. For our ſelves, that through God's aſſiſtance we may hear profitably, and be bleſſed in the hearing; that God would help us in our Preparation, Meditation, Examination, in the purging of our hearts, and putting them into a right diſpoſition and frame: Open thou mine eyes (ſaid David) Pſal. 119.
that I may ſee the wonderful things contained in thy Law. 18.

2. In Meditation: I thought on my ways (ſaith Da- vid) and turned my feet unto thy Teſtimonies, he firſt Pſal. 119.
looked over his own ways, before he would ſet 59.
his feet into God's Ways. —— Now the matter of our Meditation is, 1. Who we are, to hear God's Word: Alaſs! poor handfulls of duſt and aſhes, baſe and vile; thus Abraham and Job in their converſes with God, confeſs: And this conſideration will ſtir up our humility and repentance in us. 2. Into whoſe preſence we come: Is it not into the preſence of an high, and holy, and powerful God? Is it not the Lord, a perſon both of greateſt place, and ſupreme authority? This conſideration, will further our reverence and reſpect of God. When Jacob's eye did ſee God, he ab- Job 41. 16.
horred himſelf in duſt and aſhes. 3. By whoſe aſſiſtance we come; we have no ſtrength of our own to do any good, nor is there any thing in us, that can procure any favour and acceptance with God: we muſt therefore by faith depend upon Chriſt for aſſiſtance and acceptance: This conſideration will ſtir up our humility and faith. 4. With what affections we come: If we come to purpoſe, we muſt come with inward Spiritual affections, with willingneſs, chearfulneſs, reverence, repentance, love humility and faith. 5. To what end we come; whether it be to God's Glory, and our own Souls good.

3. In Examination, let us ſearch and try our Lam 3.40. ways:—— Commune with your own hearts;—— and Phil.4.4.5. then offer to God the ſacrifice of righteouſneſs. —— Now the matter of Examination is, 1. The general frame and temper of our hearts, whether they be in a better or worſe temper than formerly. 2. The ſpecial occaſions, for which our Souls at ſuch or ſuch a time deſire to meet God: It is the complaint of ſome, I am weak in Knowledge; of others, I want ſuch and ſuch graces; of others, I am like to encounter ſuch and ſuch Temptations: Of all theſe we are to examine our ſelves that we may accordingly receive ſupply. 3. Our ſins, that we might have them ſlain by the ſword of the Spirit in the Miniſtery of the Word. 4. Our graces, that we may have them ſtrengthened and nouriſhed by the Spiritual food of our Souls. But the handling of theſe at large, I ſhall leave to the Receiving of the Lord's Supper.

4. In the purging or cleanſing of our hearts: 1. From Jam.1,21. ſin; Lay apart all filthineſs and ſuperfluity of naughtineſs, and receive with meekneſs the engrafted word, which is able to ſave your Souls: With which agrees 1 Pet.2. 1, 2. that parallel place, Wherefore putting away all malice, as new born babes deſire the ſincere milk of the word; as it is with the body, when the ſtomach is foul and clogged with bad humors: We ſhould firſt purge it before we feed it, otherwiſe whatſoever we eat, will but nouriſh and encreaſe the corrupt humores; ſo when the Soul is ſtuffed or clogged with ſin, whatſoever is heard in the Miniſtery of the word, will but be abuſed by it, and wreſted to the deſtruction of it. 2. From worldly cares and thoughts, and may draw away the Mat.14.22. heart: The cares of the world (ſaith Chriſt) do choke the ſeed of the Word. When Abraham went up to the Mount to ſacrifice, he left his ſervants in the valley; and when we go up to the Mount where God appears, we ſhould leave all our ſervil affections, and worldly thoughts in the valley; or if any enter, we ſhould doe by them as Abraham did by the birds that would have eaten up his ſacrifice, chaſe them away. It is ſaid, that in the Temple, though there was much fleſh for ſacrifice, yet there was not one flie appeared ſtirring. O that it might be ſo with us! that not one thought might ariſe upon our hearts, unſuitable to the place or work at hand: But this is the miſery, we have not Spiritual hearts in Temporal employments, and therefore we have carnal hearts in ſpiritual employments; the leſs of the Sabbath in the week, the more of the week we find in the Sabbath.

5. In in a right diſpoſition of hearts: We muſt have hearts ſeaſoned, 1. With ſoftneſs: For if the heart be not ſoft and flexible, the power of the Word will not make any print of deep impreſſion upon it; all holy admonitions, reproofs and instructions will be but as arrows ſhot againſt a ſtone wall. Pſal. 25.9. 2. With humility: For them that be meek will he guide in judgment, and teach the humble his ways: The proud heart is ſo ſwelled with the wind of vanity and vain-glory, of ſelf-love and over-winning conceit, that there is left no room in it for the precious treaſures of ſaving Grace to enter. 3. With honeſty: For honeſt hearts are the profitable and fruitful hearers, reſembled by the good ground; Luk.8. 15. hearts that have no manner of purpoſe to live and continue in any one known ſin; hearts ready and reſolved to ſerve and pleaſe God in all the ways of his Commandments, and that ſincerely and continually. 4. With faith: For this makes the work ſink and ſoke into the Soul with power and profit. The old Jews heard the Word, but it profited them Heb. 4. 2. not, becauſe it was not mixed with faith in them that heard it: Faith animates and inſpires the promiſes of the Goſpel, with ſuch a ſovereign ſweetneſs, that they are able to raiſe us from the depth of fears, yea, to put us into a Paradiſe of ſpiritual pleaſures, and poſſeſſion of Heaven, as it were al- Pſal. 40.6. ready. 5. With teachableneſs: Sacrifice and burnt-offerings thou wouldſt not (ſaith David) but mine ears haſt thou prepared; q. d. Thou haſt bored new ears in my heart that I can now reverently attend unto, rightly conceive, and with an holy greedineſs devour (as it were) the myſteries of Grace. Act.17.11. 6. With openneſs, or readineſs to receive every truth that God ſhall teach us: It is ſaid of the Bereans, That they received the Word with all readineſs of mind: When there is ſuch an holy diſpoſition in us as to receive both in judgment and practice whatſoever God ſhall reveal to us out of his holy Word, this is a precious diſpoſition.

Thus much of preparation, before we hear: What follows, but that we open our hearts and hands? Surely the windows of Heaven will be ſet wide open, that all manner of Spiritual comforts, all the bleſſings of peace and happineſs, may in abundance be ſhowred down upon us: the rich treaſury of everlaſting Glory and Immortality ſhall be now unlocked to us, and we may roll and tumble our ſelves amidſt the mountains of Heavenly Pearls, and Golden Pleaſures, joys that no heart can comprehend, but that which is weaned from all worldly pleaſures, and ſet apart, and ſanctified for all holy ſervices and buſineſſes of Heaven.

Sect. 3. The Duties of the Soul in hearing the Word.

OUR Duties in hearing conſiſt in theſe particulars:——

1. That we ſet our ſelves in God's Preſence whilſt we are hearing the Word, and that we conſider it is God we have to deal withal in this buſineſs, and not man, and that it is God's Word, and not man's: This was the great commendation of the Theſſalonians, that they received the Word as the 1 Theſ. 2. 13. Word of God, and it is the expreſs ſaying of our Saviour, He that heareth you, heareth me: The Lord Luke 10. 16. himſelf is preſent in a ſpecial manner, where his Word is preached; Surely the Lord is in that place, Gen.28. 6. as Jacob ſaid of Bethel: Now this apprehenſion of God's preſence in the aſſemblies of his people, will preſerve our hearts from roving and wandering thoughts: I hate vain thoughts, but thy law do Pſal. 119. 113. I love; yea, it will keep us in that awful and reverent diſpoſition that is meet for the Majeſty of Heaven.

2. That we diligently attend to that we hear; thus all the people were very attentive to hear Chriſt; or Luke. 19. 48. (as it is in the Original) They hanged upon him to hear him; they ſo carried themſelves, as if their ears and minds had been tied to his very tongue: Look, as a Priſoner will hearken to the ſentence of a Prince, every word he ſpeaks being life or death; or as the ſervants of Benhadad, when they were in their enemies power, obſerved diligently if any word of comfort would come from the King of Iſrael, and they did haſtily catch at it, ſo ſhould we with all diligence and attention hearken to the good Word of God.

3. The

3. That we labour to underſtand what we hear; Mat. 15. 10. to this purpoſe Chriſt called to the multitude, and ſaid, Hear and underſtand: Now the means to underſtand the Word are theſe: 1. Come to the Word with a willing mind to learn; though the Eunuch underſtand not what we read, yet becauſe he had a mind to learn, the Lord provided for him; and we know what a comfortable ſucceſs Philip's Sermon had with him: Men love to teach willing Scholars, ſo doth God when we come with willing and ready minds to be taught of him. 2. Be well acquainted with the Grounds and Principles of Chriſtianity: it is the want of this that makes men dull in underſtanding; they that are not firſt well nouriſhed with milk, will not be fit to receive and digeſt ſtronger meat, if the foundation be not well laid, it is in vain to build. 3. Walk according to the light revealed; Pſal. 111. 10. A good underſtanding have all they that doe his Commandments: If we imploy well the little Knowledge we have, there is a promiſe to give us more.

4. That we hear the word with all Spiritual ſubjection, as that Word which hath power to command the Soul and Conſcience: God to this purpoſe looks into a Congregation, to ſee what hearts will yield to his Word; the Spirit of God hovers over the Congregation, and here it waits and there it expects; to this man it comes, and knocks at the door of his heart; to that man and the other man it goes, ſaying, Open your hearts, you Everlaſting doors, that the King of Glory may come in: Surely now ſhould we ſay, Theſe are God's Teſtimonies, this is the Word, the Miniſter of God ſpeaks to me in God's ſtead, I muſt give account of it, and therefore I will ſubmit my ſelf to it.

5. That we hear the Word, with application of it to our own hearts and lives; Job 5. 27. Hear this, and know it for thy ſelf: So did Chriſt's Diſciples when our Saviour told them, that one of them ſhould betray him, Mat. 26. 21, 22. They were exceeding ſorrowful, and began every one of them to ſay, Lord is it I? As no plaſter can doe the Patient any good, unleſs it be applied; and as no meat is able to doe us good, unleſs it be eaten and digeſted, no more can the word Preached profit us, unleſs it be mixed with Faith, one principal work whereof is to apply thoſe things that are delivered in the word; and this is the meaning of the Prophet, Iſa. 55. 2. Hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good.

6. That in hearing, we look to our affections, that they be rightly exerciſed: Thus Joſiah his heart is ſaid to melt at the Reading of the Law: 2 Chron. 34. 27. Thus the Jews at Peter's Sermon were pricked in their hearts, and ſaid, Men and Brethren what ſhall we doe? Act. 2. 37. Thus the hearts of the two Diſciples that went to Emmaus, burned within them, when Chriſt opened to them the Scriptures: Luke 24. 32. Now the means to ſtir up theſe affections, are, 1. A belief of the word, as that which is undoubtedly true: God cannot lye, Tit. 1. 2. Nor will he change his mind, Numbers 23. 19. 2. A love of the Word, for its purity, perfection, uſefulneſs, and wonderful benefits to us. 3. An appropriation of the Word unto our ſelves; for that which affects us, is that which moſt nearly concerns us; without this means of quickening our hearts, they remain dead and ſenſleſs, and the Word becomes utterly unprofitable. 4. A conſideration of the nature of the Word, which ever requires and calls for ſuitable hearts and affections; Pſal. 119. 140. it is a pure Word, and therefore we muſt cleanſe and purifie our hearts for the receiving of it; it is Spiritual and Heavenly, and therefore we Rom. 7. 14. muſt labour for ſpiritual and heavenly minds to entertain it; Jam. 3. 17. it is a word of power and authority, the very voice of Chriſt, and therefore our hearts muſt ſubmit and ſtoop to receive it with meekneſs and trembling of heart: Jam. 1. 21. Iſa. 66. 2. It is a ſure word, 2 Pet 1. 19. A faithful word, Tit. 1. 9. A viſion that will not lye, Heb. 2. 3. and therefore we muſt embrace it with faithful and believing hearts, without which the Word cannot profit us at all, Heb. 4. 2.

7. That above all other affections, we make ſure to delight in the Word, it is ſaid of Chriſt's hearers, that they heard him gladly, Mark 12. 37. and it is noted by ſome for an eſpecial ſign of Grace to hear the Word with delight: I rejoyced at thy Word (ſaid David) as one that findeth great ſpoils. Pſal. 119. 162.

Queſt. 1. But whether may not unregenerate men have a delight in God's Ordinances?

Anſw. 1. I anſwer, 1. Moſt of them have no delight at all in God's Ordinances: Jer. 6. 10. To whom ſhall I ſpeak and give warning, that they may hear? behold, thine ear is uncircumciſed, and they cannot hearken; behold, the Word of the Lord is to them a reproach, they have no delight in it; and if this be our caſe, if we can hear ſweet Goſpel-preaching, the free offer of Jeſus Chriſt, with all his glories and excellencies to poor ſinners, to vile, loſt, undone ſouls, and are no whit taken therewith, woe to our ſouls; can we ſleep away ſuch a Sermon? can we ſlight or neglect ſuch Goſpel-offers? nay, do we attend them coldly? have we not heart riſings? no ſtirrings and workings? no longings and deſires? and thus we paſs Sermon after Sermon, and Sabbath after Sabbath; O then we are wholly dead unto the life of grace; Jeſus Chriſt as yet hath not given us his true light, no work of Converſion doth at all appear in us: The end which Jeſus Chriſt had in ſending out Preachers, was to diſcover his love to poor periſhing ſinners, that ſo they might be affected with him, and long after him; and if we have no ſuch reliſh, our condition is ſad.

2. Some unregenerate men may have ſome delight in the word: Iſa. 58. 2. They ſeek me daily (ſaid God) and delight to know my ways, as a nation that did righteouſneſs, and forſook not the Ordinances of their God: they ask of me the Ordinances of Juſtice, they take delight in approaching to God. The ſecond ground received the word with joy; Matt. 13. 20. And Herod heard John Baptiſt gladly. Mark 6. 20. Ungodly men may delight in God's Word, as in theſe caſes:——

1. When the Ordinances are a leading way unto ſome end that ſuits with corrupt nature: Thus Jehu ſhewed abundance of zeal in deſtroying the houſe of Ahab, and the Idolatry of Baal, that thereby he might eſtabliſh the kingdom to his poſterity, and get himſelf a great name; 2 King. 10. 16. Come with me, and ſee my zeal for the Lord: he was ſo full of vain glory, that he could not hold in, but was forced to burſt out.

2. When the manner of diſpenſation of the Ordinances doth ſuit their diſpoſition: An underſtanding judicious man may love preaching, that is judicious and underſtanding; a man of meekneſs may delight in a Sermon of Peace, peace; a temperate man may like a Sermon that is tart and bitter againſt drunkenneſs, uncleanneſs; the liberal man may delight in ſevere preaching againſt covetouſneſs; as a man muſically affected, may delight in ſinging of Pſalms, becauſe theſe things ſuit with their diſpoſitions: The gifts of Miniſters may have an effecting pleaſingneſs; they may expreſs their minds in ſuch fit terms, or ſo pathetically, or they may have ſuch a grace in utterance, as may affect: Ezek. 33. 32. Lo, thou art unto them as a very lovely ſong, of one that hath a pleaſant voice, and can play well on an inſtrument, for they hear thy words, but doe them not.

3. When there is a common work of the Spirit of God upon them for a time : Heb.6.4 5. They may taſte of the heavenly gifts, and be made partakers of the Holy Ghoſt ; they may taſte the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come, and yet fall away; but this work is rather a * work upon them, than in them ; a forced work, not natural ; rather a flaſh, than a fire of affection ; the affections are lifted up, they cannot be altered and changed, acted onely by an outward principle, not by an outward and inward principle alſo, both by the Spirit of God, and ſuitableneſs of affection to that which is good : It was otherwiſe with David, I delight to doe thy will, O God ; yea, thy law is within my heart : and otherwiſe with Paul, I delight in the law of God after the inward man ; till the law of God be within us, we cannot from within taſte the ſweetneſs of God's Ordinances : in true and ſolid delight, there muſt be a ſuitableneſs betwixt the heart and the Ordinances ; therefore, ſaith the wiſe man, It is joy to the juſt to doe judgment : The Juſtice that is in him, is ſuitable to the judgment to be done by him, and this makes the joy. Hence it follows that ſo much grace, ſo much delight : where we more holy, ſpiritual, heavenly, as the Ordinances are, we ſhould be more affected therewith. Thus it is not in the wicked, they have no ſuch delight.

* The Spirit of God may work on them as an outward efficient cauſe, breathing upon them, though he do not dwell in them, becauſe they are not members of the body of Chriſt ; or the Spirit of God may work in them, ut in Organo, as in an inſtrument, which he uſeth for the good of his Church, but not ut in domicilio, as in an houſe that he inhabits and dwells in, to the ſaving of the ſoul. Burges of grace. Pſal. 40. 8. Rom. 7. 22. Prov. 21. 15.

Queſt. 2. Why is the word ſo brim-ful of comfort to the dear Saints of God?

Anſw. Becauſe in the word they have communion with God, who is the God of all Conſolation ; and with the Spirit of God, who is called the Comforter. Now as a man that walks amongſt Perfumes, muſt needs ſmell of the Perfume, ſo they that converſe with the God of all joy, muſt needs be filled with all joy ; and therefore David calls God his exceeding joy. Pſal. 43.4. The Saints go to the word, as one that goes to here news of a friend ; they look upon the Ordinances, as that whereby they have to doe with God, and therefore it is precious and ſweet to them. No wonder, can a man who is cold, come to the fire and not to be warmed ? Can he that is in the dark, come into open air and not be enlightned ? God is the ſpring of all comfort, and therefore ſure their hearts muſt needs be comforted, that meet with God in the Ordinances ; on the contrary, if they meet not with God, if they miſs of their communion with the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, then is comfort afar off : But we muſt not argue againſt a general truth from a particular temptation. The Poſition will ſtand, That God's Word is brim-full of comfort to God's people, though every experiment come not up to it.

8. That we hear the Lord ſpeak in the Word ; many hear the Word of God ſpoken, but they never hear the Lord ſpeaking that Word. O this is the main Duty, hear the Lord's voice in the Word ! It is a wonder to conſider what alteration the Saints find in themſelves when they come to hear, as ſometimes their hearts are quickned, fed, cheriſhed, healed and comforted ; and ſometimes again they are dead and ſenſeleſs, heavy and hardened ; nay, which is more, the very ſame truth which they hear at one time it may be affects them, and at another time it doth not ; the reaſon is, they heard the Word of God ſpoken at one time, and they heard the Lord is ſpeaking that ſame Word at another time ; the Lord is in his word at one time, and the Word goes alone at another time.

Queſt. But how ſhall we diſcern and know the effectual voice of God in the Word?

Anſw. We may diſcern it by theſe three degrees, which we muſt take jointly : As,

1. The voice of God in the Word ſingles a man out, and (though it be generally written, or ſpoken by the Miniſter, it ſpeaks particularly to the very heart of a man, with a marvelous kind of majeſty, and glory of God ſtampt upon it, and ſhining in it ; hence it is that one man is wrought on in a ſermon, another is not ; God hath ſingled out one man, but not another that day. Take a man unhumbled, he hears many things, and it may be underſtands not, or if he underſtand, yet they concern him not, or if they do, and conſcience is ſtirred, yet he thinks the Miniſter ſpeaks them by hap, and others are as bad as he, and his trouble 1 Cor. 14. 25. is not much ; at laſt God ſpeaks, and then he hears his ſecret thoughts and ſins diſcovered, all his life is made known, yea the ſecrets of his heart are made manifeſt : ſo, take a man humbled, he hears of the free offer of grace, he refuſeth the offers, he hears of the promiſes of Chriſt, and caſts all by, as things generally ſpoken, and applied by man ; but when the Lord comes, he doth ſo meet with his objections, that he thinks, this is the Lord, and this is to me.

2. The voice of the Lord carries unto, and centers in Chriſt : Thus ſaith Chriſt ; they ſhall be all taught of God : every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me : Joh. 6.45. If the Law humbles them, it is ſuch an humbling as drives them to Chriſt ; if the Word gives peace to them, it is ſuch a peace, which at the laſt they find only in Chriſt ; if they live holily, they live unto Chriſt : we judge, that if we were dead, and Chriſt died for us, we ſhould then live unto him : Eph. 2.14. if Chriſt be not mentioned, yet it is ſtrange to ſee how the ſoul looks at Chriſt ; let the Word ſpeak what it will, if terror, 2 Cor. 5. 14, 15. Oh my need of Chriſt ! If mercy and grace, Oh the love of Chriſt ! Oh the blood of Chriſt ! If command, Oh that I may live to honour Chriſt ! if duties, Oh the eaſie yoke of Chriſt ! they look upon the whole Word rightly diſpenſed as the bride-groom's voice, and truly his words are ſweet.

3. The voice of the Lord comes with a certain everlaſting efficacy and power upon the ſoul thus, Doth the Lord once ſpeak by the Word, and humble the heart ? it never lifts up its head more : doth he reveal the glory of Chriſt ? that light never Iſa 6. 19. goes out more : doth he give life ? you ſhall never dye more : John 11. 26. doth he give peace and joy ? no man ſhall take their joy from them : doth he give the ſpirit of all theſe ? John 14. 17. it ſhall abide for ever. Another man though wonderfully raviſhed for a time, yet dies, moſt commonly outwardly in external profeſſion, Joh. 5.35. but ever in inward favour. John is a burning light (ſaid Chriſt to the Jews) and you rejoyced therein, but 'tis but for a ſeaſon, the evil ſpirit comes on ſome men, and David plays on his harp, and Miniſters preach ſweet things, but as ſoon as the muſick is done, the evil ſpirit returns. O this is not to hear the Lord's voice ! The peace and joy of the Lord enters into eternity ; a gracious heart can ſay, this peace ſhall go to heaven ; this joy, and love, and fear, its part of eternal glory.

Object. But may not many of the Saints hear, and hear the Lord ſpeak, and yet not feel this everlaſting power and efficacy?

Anſw. I would not lay a foundation of unthankfulneſs, nor diſcourage any, and therefore, note for anſwer theſe particulars : ——

1. There may be an eternal efficacy of the Word, and yet lie hid, and not felt for a time as ſeed that is caſt under the clod in winter time, is hid and comes not to blade of a good while after; ſo the Lord may caſt the ſeed of the Word into the heart, but it may be hidden for a time, and not be felt, yet there it is, and at laſt it ſhall ſpring up; as many a father ſpeaks to the child, and applies the Word home to it, but the child regards it not, onely ſtay ſome time, till the Lord bring the child into ſome ſad affliction, and then he cries, I remember now, what my father once ſpake unto me.

2. After a Chriſtian hath had the feeling of the efficacy of the Word, he may loſe the feeling of it again, and yet the being of it may remain; for inſtance, a Chriſtian may have by the Word a marvelous deal of aſſurance of God's love, but he loſes his aſſurance again, his ſun does ſet, and it is midnight with him within twenty four hours, and he is as much in the dark as before; now the being of this aſſurance is there, but he hath not the feeling of it.

3. The eternal Efficacy of the Word and Voice of God, may be preſerved in an internal Spirit of Pſal. 63. 3. prayer and longing. Thus, my Soul ſtirreth after thee (ſaith David) that I may ſee thy Glory and thy Power, as I have ſeen thee in thy Sanctuary. He found a want of ſeeing him as he had done, yet the virtue of it did remain in a ſpirit of thirſting and deſire: A Chriſtian may have at ſome time ſuch a glimpſe of God's grace, and God's love to him, that he may be in a little heaven at that time, yet God is gone again and the Soul loſes it; now the Soul thinks, I have loſt the Efficacy of God's Word; but it is not ſo, for thus it may be preſerved. O that I may ſee this God as I have done!

4. A Chriſtian may have the everlaſting Efficacy of the Word and Voice of God preſerved in a ſpirit of thankfulneſs and love to the Lord, for thoſe joys and good that it finds by the Word ſometimes: when it feels that the ſweet and ſavour of the Word is gone, a ſpirit of thankfulneſs and love to the Word doth there remain, and by this means the Lord doth preſerve the efficacy of the Word. Pſal. 119. 7. I ſhall praiſe thee (ſaith David) with uprightneſs of heart, when I ſhall have learned thy righteous judgements. A man having heard the Word, the Lord thereby works effectually on his Soul, and changeth his heart, and draws him to himſelf, it may be afterwards he doth loſe thoſe ſorrows, and humiliations, and the remembrance of thoſe things; yet there remaineth to his dying day this Spirit, he bleſſeth God, and wondreth at God, that ever he ſhould make the Word effectual; that he ſhould leave ſo many thouſands in the world, and caſt his skirt over him, and ſay to him, live; this does remain ſtill.

5. The eternal efficacy of the Word may be preſerved in a power of conflict againſt the power of ſin: and herein the Lord's power of the Word doth principally appear in this life: As thus; the Word ſingles a man out, and ſpeaks to his heart, and ſets him at variance with his ſin, and with himſelf for his ſin, and he joyns ſide with God in the uſe of all means, that his unbelieving heart and proud ſpirit may be ſubdued; now there is many a Chriſtian thinks there is no power of the Word. Oh my unbelief continues ſtill, and I can find little ſtrength! Why, you muſt not look for a power of compleat victory, but for a power of conflict; God ſets the ſoul at an everlaſting diſtance with his ſin, never to be reconciled again. Surely in this caſe there is an everlaſting power gone forth.

Sect. 4. The Duties required after Hearing.

THe Duties required after hearing the Word, are theſe: ——

1. That we carefully remember, and keep that which we have heard: My ſon, let thine heart retain Prov. 4 2. my words, —— keep them in the midſt of thine heart. As a man that hath a Jewel will be careful to lock it up in his ſafeſt Cheſt, ſo ſhould we keep the word in our hearts, in the midſt of our hearts. Many hear the Word deſirouſly, but (as we ſay) it goes in at one ear, and out at the other; it ſtays not for any after uſe, but a little preſent admiration; others hear, and the Word ſmites them a little on their Conſciences, and wounds them, and one would think ſome good thing would be wrought on them, but they go away, and the motion dies; like unto metals which are ſoft and plyable, whilſt they are in the fire, but ſhortly after they become harder than before. Take earneſt heed to the things which we have heard, leſt at any time we ſhould let Heb. 2. 1. them ſlip; or let them run out as a leaking veſſel: for ſo the Original bears it.

2. That we meditate, and ſeriouſly think of that we have heard: Meditate upon theſe things (ſaid Paul to Timothy.) Give thy ſelf wholly to them, that thy 2 Tim. 4. 15. profiting may appear to all: Thus Mary pondered the words of the Angel in her heart, and David meditated Luke 2. 19. Pſal. 119. 97. all the day on God's law: Meditation is as the bellows of the ſoul, that doth kindle and enflame holy affections: Meditation is of a ſeparating and ſetling nature, it ſeparates heavenly thoughts from earthly, for it often goes over with thoughts, and at laſt ſettles the heart on ſuch thoughts as theſe, O, this is the Word of God, this is the Law, the proclamation of the great King, whereby I muſt be judged! This may be the laſt Sermon that ever I ſhall hear whilſt I live, ſuch a gale of God's Spirit may never be offered to me again! I will be wiſe therefore, and give way to the Spirit of God, I will not beat it back again, but yield to the bleſſed motions of God's Spirit, that this day have been made.

3. That we repeat what we have heard, and confer of it, and examine the Scriptures about the truth of it: My tongue (ſaith David) ſhall ſpeak of Pſal. 119. 172. thy word, for all thy Commandments are righteouſneſs: Deut. 11. 18, 19. and, You ſhall lay up theſe my words in your Hearts, (ſaith God) and you ſhall teach them your children, ſpeaking of them when thou ſitteſt in thy houſe. This is it for which the noble Bereans are commended to us, They ſearched the Scriptures daily, concerning the things that were delivered by Paul: Act. 17. 11. 12. A man that comes into a pleaſant garden, will not content himſelf with the preſent ſcent onely, but will carry ſome of the flowers away with him: So after we have been in the Garden of ſpices, and have felt the ſavour of Chriſt's Ointments in Church-Aſſemblies, let us take ſome of the flowers * away with us and ſmell of them again and again. Repeating, conferring, examining the word, is as the pounding of ſpices, that will make them ſmell more.

* If we indeed have communion with Chriſt in hearing the word, we ſhall go away with an ordinance-tincture, a Goſpel-impreſſion upon our ſpirits, Dr. Hill, Chriſt our ſtrength.

4. That we put in practice whatſoever we hear: Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers onely, James 1: 22. deceiving your own ſouls; we muſt doe it, we muſt bring it nearer to us that it may be an engrafted word in our underſtanding and affections; that it may be written in our ſouls, and on the tables of our hearts; that it may be incorporated and naturalized into our inward man, that ſo we may ſpeak and think, and doe nothing but that which is divine: and in doing, obſerve we this frame of Spirit, to be quick and ſpeedy about it: I made haſt, and prolonged not the time to keep thy Commandments; This ſpeedy, this immediate putting of the Word into practice, is much advantage to the hearer; the affections of the heart are then lively and quick, which with delays die and decay ſuddenly. Pſal. 119. 69.

5. That when the word is heard, and (we are returned home) we pray again for a bleſſing on that we have heard; and as our memories will bear, let us turn the word into prayer, eſpecially the heads of principal parts of it: Prayer muſt be the Alpha and Omega, the beginning and ending of this ſpiritual duty; we muſt pray in preparation, and pray in concluſion, and pray always. And thus much concerning our Duties before, in, and after the Hearing the Word. Luke 21. 39.

CHAP. XIII. SECT. I.

OF THE

Two Sacraments

OF THE

New Teſtament.

THE next duty of a Chriſtian, as it hath reference onely to the publick or Church Aſſemblies, is a right receiving of the Sacraments, which are two, Baptiſm, and the Lord's Supper: Baptiſm is the Sacrament of our incorporation into Chriſt, of our initiation or inveſting into the glorious ſtate of Chriſtianity: The Lord's Supper is the Sacrament of our continuance in Chriſt, of our confirmation in ſpiritual life, and the power of Grace already planted within us: By Baptiſm we are waſhed, we are ſanctified, we are juſtified, in the name of the Lord Jeſus, and by the ſpirit of our God: By the Lord's Supper we grow in ſpiritual ſtrength, we lay better hold by the hand of Faith, upon the merits and mercies of Chriſt; we feel more ſoundly and ſenſibly the power and virtue of his blood; we ſee more clearly, and are more fully and feelingly aſcertained of the forgiveneſs of our ſins: Concerning the former, it is to little purpoſe to give any directions, becauſe infants (who only are in our days baptized) are meerly ſubjects receptive, not active, and ſo far as concern the Parents in relation to their infants, we have diſpatch'd elſewhere.

Sect. 2. Of the duties in general, before we receive the Lord's Supper.

I Shall now therefore proceed to the ſecond Sacrament, and for the right receiving of the Lord's Supper, there are duties of neceſſity required { before / in / after } the Sacrament.

My meaning is not to ſpeak of the habitual diſpoſitions, but of the actual diſpoſitions of the heart, in reference to which——

1 Cor. 11. 28. Before Sacrament, the duty is Self-Examination: Let a man examine himſelf, and ſo let him eat of this bread, and drink of this cup: Of this Self-examination, or Self-tryal, we have ſpoken before; but in reference to this Sacrament, we ſhall handle it more fully, and ſo conſider of it { 1. In its ſubject. / 2. In its object.

1. For the ſubject matter, or the nature of this Self-examination: Self-examination is a holy work of the ſoul, whereby it caſts its eye, and reflects upon it ſelf, and ſo looks through it ſelf, and takes a true ſcantling and eſtimate of its ſpiritual eſtate; for inſtance, I find ſuch and ſuch ſins forbidden in the Word, and ſuch and ſuch graces required in the Word; whereupon, comparing my preſent condition with the Scriptures, I examine, Am not I guilty of theſe ſins? do I practiſe theſe duties? or am I poſſeſt of theſe graces? The conſcience being thus cloſely and ſincerely examined, it will return a true anſwer to every queſtion, whence it will be eaſie to give a true cenſure of our ſpiritual eſtate or condition.

2. For the object of our Examination, it is generally { Our Sins. / Our Graces.

Of which in order.

Sect. 3. Of the Manner of examining our ſins before the Lord's Supper.

FOr the right examining of our ſins, obſerve we theſe rules:——

1. Procure we a double catalogue of our ſins the one before, and the other ſince our converſion: Let us ſearch and try our ways (ſaith Jeremy) and then turn again to the Lord: If we will not, we may be ſure God will: Thou enquireſt after mine iniquity (ſaith Job) and ſearcheſt after my ſin. Jer. 3. 40. Job 10. 6.

2. Confeſs we our ſins: Bring we them out, as they brought the veſſels of the Temple by number and weight: Aaron confeſſing for the people, he was to confeſs all the iniquities of the children of Iſrael, and all their tranſgreſſions in all their ſins. As three make All, ſo here's three Alls to make up a wright confeſſion; not only muſt be confeſſed All their iniquities, and All their ſins, but All their tranſgreſſions in all their ſins. q. d. Aaron muſt number, and Aaron muſt aggravate their ſins, by laying out how many tranſgreſſions were wrapped up in their ſeveral ſins. Ezra. 8. 34. Levit. 16. 21.

3. Labour we for grief and ſorrow of heart for ſin, otherwiſe all is to no purpoſe; I will declare mine iniquity (ſaith David) I will be ſorry for my ſin: His confeſſions were dolorous confeſſions; he felt ſin, Pſal. 38, 18. 38. 4.

and this wrought upon him, as an heavy burthen, they are too heavy for me; there's nothing in the world can make an heart more heavy, than when it feels the weight and heavineſs of ſin.

4. Judge we and condemn our ſelves for our ſin: 1 Cor. 11. 31. This is that duty inſtanc'd in by the Apoſtle, If we would judge our ſelves, we ſhould not be judged: O Lord, I am not worthy (could the Centurion ſay) that thou ſhouldſt come under my roof; But, O Lord, I am not worthy (ſhould every one of us ſay) that I ſhall come to thy table.

5. Pray for mercy, pardon and acceptance, in, for and through the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

Sect. 4. Of Examination of the wants of Graces, that ſhould be feelingly in us.

For the right examining of our Graces, obſerve we this threefold ſearch or ſcrutiny of——

1. The wants
2. The truth } of our Graces.
3. The growth

1. That we may rightly examine the wants of our Graces, practice we theſe particulars:——

1. Procure we a catalogue of Graces, ſuch as Gal. 5. 22, 23. that in Gal. 5. 22, 23. Love, joy, peace, long-ſuffering, gentleneſs, goodneſs, faith, meekneſs, temperance; or ſuch 2 Pet. 1. 5, 6, 7, 8. as that in 2 Pet. 1. 5, 6, 7, 8. Add to your faith, vertue; and to vertue, knowledge; and to knowledge, temperance; and to temperance, patience; and to patience, godlineſs; and to godlineſs, brotherly kindneſs; and to brotherly kindneſs, charity; if theſe things be in you, and abound, they will make you, that you ſhall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

2. This catalogue procured, ſet we the ſame before us, and conſider which of theſe graces we have, and which of theſe graces we want. I know it is a queſtion, whether all graces are not ſo connex'd and chain'd together, that one of them cannot be ſevered from another. But howſoever we may diſtinguiſh quantum ad habitum & actum; in reſpect of habit, we grant they are always connexed and chained together, but not in reſpect of act or exerciſe: Add grace to grace (ſaith the Apoſtle) q. d. a Chriſtian at firſt doth not exerciſe all graces; but as a man lives firſt the life of a plant, then of ſenſe, then of reaſon, though all were radically there at firſt: ſo it is in graces; there are many forms that Chriſtians go through as Scholars at School do: The firſt form is to teach them their ſins and miſeries, and ſo they go to ſchool to the Law, and are ſet to ſtudy it; and then after they have learn'd that Leſſon throughly, they are led up higher, to have their faith drawn out, and to be exerciſed about Free-grace, and about Chriſt his perſon, and union with him, and about the art and way of drawing vertue from him, and doing all in him: nay after this, though a Believer in his converſion hath the ſubſtance of all theſe taught him, yet he goes over them again throughout his whole life; and ſometimes his thoughts dwell more about the emptineſs of his own righteouſneſs, ſometimes about that fulneſs that is in Chriſt, ſometimes about the Spiritual ſtrictneſs he ought to walk in; and this is to add grace unto grace:——Nay, there may be addition concerning one and the ſame grace, as when a man's grace and the fruits thereof grow bigger, and more plentiful, when there are new degrees of the ſame; ex. gr. for faith, when from a man's caſting himſelf on Chriſt, he comes to find ſweetneſs in Chriſt, and from that grows up to an aſſurance of Faith: So for prayer, when we find our prayers to grow better; when more ſpiritual corruptions are put into our confeſſions, and ſtronger grounds of faith are put into our deprecations or petitions for pardon; when we have more enlargedneſs to thankfulneſs, more zeal to pray for the Churches; when we go to pray with all prayer and ſupplication in the Spirit: Eph. 6. 18. So for obedience, when we abound more and more in the work of the Lord, as it is ſaid of the Church of Rev. 2. 19. Thyatira, that their laſt works were more than their firſt; when as the boughs are laden, and we are Phil. 1. 11. filled with the fruits of righteouſneſs: this is to add grace unto grace, or one degree of grace unto another. Now if in this ſenſe there be an addition of graces, or an addition of degrees, examine what is the grace, or what is the degree of any grace that we want.

3. Pray we fervently for a ſupply of thoſe wants in this Ordinance: Imagine we ſaw Chriſt compaſſed with all his privileges, and promiſes and pardons, and mercies, and merits; imagine we heard him ſay, Come hither, poor ſouls, you that are ſenſible of your wants, and of your ſpiritual poverty, there is in me bowels of compaſſions, and pardons in ſtore; it is I that am your Wiſdom, Righteouſneſs, Sanctification and Redemption; what is it you want? what is it you would have me doe for you? ſhall not theſe ſugared words of our Saviour melt your hearts, and bring you low on your knees? O Lord, (ſhould the ſoul ſay) I beg of thee ſaving Knowledge, juſtifying Faith, ſincere Repentance, fervent Love: O Lord, I would fain have aſſurance of pardon, ſtrength of faith, power againſt ſome ſpecial luſt, healing vertues, to ſtanch my bloody iſſues: O Lord, that thou wouldſt beſtow on me meekneſs, or patience, or obedience, or quicknings in thy Spirit: Lord, that a pardon might be ſealed for all my ſins, that I might receive the vertue of thy death, the comforts of thy Spirit, the mortifying of ſuch and ſuch a luſt: Lord, that my unclean heart may be ſanctified, that I may be enabled with more ſtrength to perform ſuch a duty:—— O Lord, upon this very errant, and for this very end, do I now come to thee for help, in this or that particular do I now come to thy Ordinances: And, O Chriſt, I beſeech thee, ſupply all my wants, and let me draw vertue from thee: If thus we would pray, and come to Chriſt, then would Chriſt out of his bowels and mercies, anſwer our ſouls: Receive (would he ſay) the grace you feel want of; receive my Spirit, receive power againſt luſts, receive ſtrength to obedience, receive all the graces of my ſpirit, for I am all in all to you.

4. Raiſe and rouze we up our ſouls, and go we to the Ordinances with ſtrong expectations to receive the benefits and graces we have prayed for; never any came to Chriſt to be healed, but they came with a ſtrong expectation to receive health; if a leper came, he came with expectation of cleanſing; if a blind man came, he came with expectation of ſeeing; if a lame man came, he came with expectation of walking; and we never read that any coming with ſuch expectation, was turned empty away. The Cripple asking an alms of Peter and John, they ſaid to him, Look on Acts 3. 4. us, and then (ſaith the Text) he gave heed unto them, expecting to receive ſomething of them: If we would come to the Sacrament, with our eyes on Chriſt, to his Graces and Promiſes, Of his fulneſs Joh. 1. 16. (for he is full of Grace, a fountain ever-flowing and over-flowing) we ſhould receive grace for grace; ſay then, Chriſt hath promiſed to give in the Sacrament his body and blood, the benefits of his death and precious bloodſhed; he hath promiſed to ſeal pardons, to manifeſt himſelf, to give power againſt luſt: I will now therefore go to this Sacrament, crament, with a particular expectation of ſuch and ſuch a bleſſing as my ſoul ſtands in need of.

Sect. 5. Examination of the truth of our Graces, and firſt of our Converſion.

OUr ſins and want of Graces thus examined, the ſoul is in good meaſure prepared; yet becauſe the Lord Jeſus abhors to be food to nouriſh, where he was not ſeed to beget, it concerns all who deſire to taſte of the ſealing power of the ſecond Sacrament, firſt to prove the ſealing power of the former Sacrament, before they come to be nouriſhed as Saints, let them know whether they are begot and made Saints: and to that end they muſt examine farther:

1. The truth of their Graces.
2. The growth of their Graces.

1. For the truth of their Graces, it is good to begin with the beginning; and firſt to examine their converſion, and ſecondly, the individual companions of their converſion, as their Knowledge and Faith, and Love, and Obedience, and deſires after this Ordinance.

1. For Converſion: A man may by ſuch marks as theſe try and conſider whether he be truly and ſoundly converted or no.

1. If he have turned from Satan in all ſins, and turned unto God in all duties; if he have left all Ezek. 18. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9. groſs ſins, as Lying, Swearing, Uſury, Drunkenneſs, Uncleanneſs, &c. in practice and action, and all frailties and infirmities, at leaſt in allowance and affection, ſo that with watchful reſiſtance, and earneſt groanings of ſpirit, he ſtrive and pray againſt them, and be humbled and kept in awe by them, and that he perform obedience to all God's Commandments, though not in perfection and height of degree, yet, in truth and ſincerity of heart.

2. If he be willing in all his purpoſes, deſires, endeavours and actions, to ſet himſelf in the pre- Gal. 6. 16. Pſal. 16. 8. ſence of God, and in them to be wholly, unreſervedly and entirely guided by his word.

1 John 4. 17, 18. 3. If he can with an holy comfort, and humble triumph, think upon death, the Law, that great judgment, hell, and thoſe endleſs torments.

1 Pet. 2. 2. 4. If he lovingly hunger and thirſt after ſpiritual nouriſhment, the growth in grace by the Word, Sacraments, Chriſtian conference, ſanctifying the Sabbath, and all other godly exerciſes, both publick and private.

Tit. 2. 13. 1 John 3. 14. 5. If truly and heartily he love and long after the coming of Chriſt; and love ſuch as are true Chriſtians, and that becauſe they make conſcience of ſin, and ſerve God with ſingleneſs and ſincerity of heart.

Pſal. 1. 2. 19. 10. 6. If his chief delight and beſt comfort be in holy duties and heavenly things, and that he infinitely prefer them before gold, honours, pleaſure, yea the whole world.

7. If he would not change his preſent ſtation, though never ſo baſe, poor and neglected in the world (yet accompanied with the ſtate of Grace and Heb. 11. 25, 26. Chriſtianity) for the moſt rich and glorious eſtate of the greateſt man upon earth, where there is nothing but profaneneſs and unregeneration; if all this whole great world about were turned into gold, honour and pleaſures, yet in reſpect of the comfort of grace, it were to him but as dung, vanity, nothing.

Phil. 3. 7, 8, 9. 8. If he would not be in the ſtate and caſe he was before (though he then thought that good enough) for any worldly good, for ten thouſand worlds.

Jer. 13. 19. 9. If he be truly humbled with conſideration of the long time of his profaneneſs, and impenitency, and very ſorry he began no ſooner, nor made greater haſte into the royal and glorious ſtate of Chriſtianity.

10. If thoſe ſinful pleaſures and vanities be moſt Rom. 6. 21. tedious, irkſome, and diſtaſteful unto him, which formerly he purſued with greedineſs and delight.

11. If he mourn for the abomination of the Pſal. 119. 136. times: Grieved at the wicked courſes of others, and be 2 Pet. 2. 7 very glad and heartily joyful, when godlineſs and ſincerity gets the upper hand, and when any one is converted.

12. If to the power of his gifts at all occaſions, Ezek. 18. 30, 32. he be ſtill plotting, working and labouring the converſion of others with zeal and ſincerity, eſpecially thoſe that are neareſt about him, any ways depend upon him, and belong to his charge.

13. If he believe in God, and in Chriſt; and if he love God and Chriſt above all: this indeed is the very grace, riſe, point or mark, to which all the reſt are reducible: Faith and Love (ſaith Dr. Preſton) are the great radical graces, all elſe are but branches ſpringing out of them. See theſe in the Duty of Self-trial.

Sect. 6. Examination of Knowledge.

NOw for the individual companions of ſound converſion: We muſt enquire within our ſelves, for theſe Graces of Knowledge, Faith, Repentance, &c.

The firſt of theſe Graces, which every worthy and fit receiver muſt neceſſarily find in himſelf, is Knowledge; and by ſuch marks as theſe he may try and conſider, whether his Knowledge be a ſaving and ſanctifying Knowledge or no.

1. If it beget humility and lowlineſs of mind; if the ſight of God's Purity, Majeſty, juſt Indignation and Vengeance againſt Sin, if the ſenſe of his own Blindneſs, Vanity, inward Filthineſs, and natural Corruption, makes him willingly entertain humility, and a lowly conceit of his own ſelf.

2. If it be drawn into practice, and joyned with Deut. 4. 6. Pſal. 111. 10. Joh. 8. 55. converſion of the Heart from ſin unto God, and with reformation of life from evil to good, otherwiſe knowledge without practice will encreaſe the guilt of Conſcience, and the damnation in Hell.

3. If it be edged and eneagred with a longing deſire and inſatiable thirſt after more of thoſe rich and ſaving treaſures: There iſſues from out of the ſanctuary Waters of Life, (ſee their encreaſe) Ezek. 47. firſt to the ancles, then to the knees, then to the loins, afterwards a river that no man could paſs: If 1 Pet. 2. 2, 3. we have once taſted how ſweet the Lord is, there will be a deſire to encreaſe more and more.

4. If it be diffuſive and communicative of it ſelf, if it ſhine round about, and work all the good it can in all places: The lips of the righteous feed ma- Prov. 10. 12. & 15. 7. ny:——The lips of the wiſe diſperſe Knowledge, but the heart of the fooliſh doth not ſo: It is as new wine in veſſels, deſirous to vent, not to purchaſe a little vain-glory, or prophane praiſes, but to work ſpiritual good, and for the converſion of others.

5. If it beget a reverence of that great Majeſty, Jer. 9. 24. and love to that holy truth it knows and apprehends Pſal. 119. 97, 98. in the Word, and an holy eſtimation of it above all Phil. 3. 8. poſſeſſions, Counting all things but loſs, for the excellency of the Knowledge of Chriſt Jeſus our Lord. Joh. 17. 8.

6. If by it the Soul knows God in Chriſt, and knows Chriſt as his own Saviour, and knows the Phil. 3. 10. power of his Reſurrection, and the fellowſhip of his Sufferings, being made conformable unto his Death.

7. If by it the Soul knows the things given it of Joh. 14. 17. 2 Cor. 23. 5. God, and eſpecially the inhabitation of the Spirit of Chriſt.

8. If it extinguiſh or greatly dull the ſavour of earthly things, and makes the Soul Heavenly-minded, ſavouring of ſpiritual things. 2 Cor. 2. 24.

Sect. 7. Examination of Faith.

A Second Grace which every worthy receiver muſt find in himſelf, is Faith; and by ſuch marks as theſe, he may try whether his faith be a true and juſtifying faith.

Rom. 10. 14.
Gal. 3. 24.

1. If it ſprung in the heart by the * Miniſtery of God's Holy Word; if the heart was broken, and bruiſed, and brought to an holy deſperation, whereby it wholly renounced, diſclaimed, and diſavowed it ſelf, as unworthy of life, or breath, or being: If then it began to lift up its eyes upon the precious promiſes of Salvation, revealed in the Goſpel, and ſhining glorioſly in the face of Chriſt: And if laſtly it peceived ſome glimpſes of comfort, hopes of Pardon in the Blood of Chriſt, whence aroſe an hungring deſire, and longing thirſt after the Mercies of God and Merits of Chriſt Jeſus; and ſo it caſt it ſelf with ſtrong cries an prayers into the armes of Chriſt his bleſſed Redeemer.

* Either at the firſt, or ſecond rebound.

Rom. 8. 18.

2. If it grow, and dayly ſpring up towards the height of aſſurance, and fulneſs of perſuaſion. Ordinarily faith is weak at firſt, full of many doubts and diſtractions, fears and tremblings, but after long experience of our own ſincerity, godly life, and good conſcience, it grows up in time, and by leaſure to be a ſtrong faith.

Rom. 4. 20, 21.
Acts 15. 9.

3. If it purifie the heart: Formaliſts may watch over their open outward actions, but true believers ſet themſelves with ſpecial care, and all good conſcience, to bridle and bring under all wicked ſtirrings of the heart. The deſire of the righteous is only good (i. e.) the main ſtreams of his deſires, the courſe and current of his heart, is to godlineſs and goodneſs, though ſometimes his corrupt Nature, and Satan's boiſterous Temptations, do unawares and violently carry his thoughts another way, for which he ſends out many a prayer for pardon and purging.

Prov. 11. 23.

4. If it bring forth a true and thorough Evangelical Repentance: Where God's comfortable Favour ſhines, and is ſhed into the heart, it immediately melts and reſolves into tears of ſorrow and grief for former rebellions, and makes unfeigned and reſolute vows for ever after by God's grace, to throw out of his heart and life thoſe ſins which have grieved ſo good a God.

2 Cor. 1. 12.

5. If it beget in him whom it poſſeſſeth, a Sanctification of all parts, both in ſoul and body, though not in perfection; if the underſtanding be enlightened with knowledge in the great myſteries of godlineſs; if the will be bent with the beſt things; if the memory be a ſtore-houſe of Heavenly treaſures; if the ſtream of our affections be turned from the world towards God's Glory and good cauſes; if the heart be weaned from luſts, and fallen in love with eternal pleaſures and heavenly things; if the conſcience be watchful to diſcover, and ſenſible to feel the approach and prickings of the leaſt ſin, &c.

Gal. 5. 6.
Pſal. 16. 3.
1 John 3. 14.
Mat. 5. 44.

6. If it work by love, firſt towards God and Chriſt, in that all his ſins are remitted, and he is eternally beloved of God in Chriſt: Secondly, towards Chriſtians, in that the ſaving graces of God's Spirit ſhine in them: Thirdly towards himſelf, with relation unto God, and reſervation of his Glory: Fourthly, towards kindreds, friends, not ſo much becauſe they are of the ſame blood, as becauſe of the mutual intereſt they have in the blood of Chriſt: Fifthly, towards enemies, becauſe of the precious Command of Chriſt.

Heb. 11. 24.
1 Joh. 5. 4, 5.

7. If it cauſe a forſaking of the World: No man can doe this (if it be his ſweet ſin) until his Soul have received by the hand of Faith from the Spirit of God, an aſſurance of an immortal Crown in the Heavens, ſealed unto him by the blood of Chriſt: But then how willingly doth he bid the world farewell? how reſolutely doth he caſt out of his affections all greedy thoughts, and exceſſive deſires of earth and earthly treaſures?

8. If it ſpeak comfort in diſtreſs, joy in tribulation, glorying in affliction: Faith teacheth that God caſts us in the fire, not to burn us, but to refine us, and make us more orient in his ſight: This is the beaten path to Heaven (cries Faith) which all the glorious Saints have trodden before us.

Rom. 5. 1.
Act. 5. 41.
2 Tim. 1. 12.
Rom. 8. 18.
1 Pet. 1. 7.

9. If it will maintain a Chriſtian in ſome meaſure of ſufficiency and contentment in all eſtates: The juſt ſhall live by Faith, not by friends, money earthly hopes, or helps, &c. if it makes a man lay hold on God's Promiſes, and work an inward truſt in God's never failing Providence, ſo as he will leave the ſucceſs of all his labours to the Lord.

Gal. 2. 20.

Sect. 8. Examination of Repentance.

A Third grace which every worthy Receiver muſt find in himſelf, is Repentance; and by ſuch marks as theſe he may try whether his Reptance be a ſound and ſincere Repentance.

1. If it be aſhamed of ſin: Not as a Thief is aſhamed, which ſhame ariſeth from the effect of ſin, as puniſhment or diſgrace; but as a Son is aſhamed (when it is called a filial-ſhame) out of a ſight of the filth and loathſomeneſs of ſin: the impenitent glory in their ſhame, but the truly penitent are aſhamed of ſuch glorying, as of every ſin.

Jer. 31. 19.
Ezek. 16. 61, 63.
Ezra. 9. 6.
Zeph. 3. 5.
Jer. 6. 15.-8, 12.

2. If it mourn for ſin: Thus David mourned (not for the puniſhment, he is willing to bear it, but) for ſin, as it was ſin. I deny not but ſorrow may be godly, even for Judgments, and then our tryal will be, if we can mourn rather for Spiritual Judgments than for Temporal; and eſpecially if we can feel and bewail hardneſs of heart mourning, becauſe we cannot mourn as we ought.

2 Sam. 24. 10. 17.
Pſal. 42. 3.
Iſa. 63. 17.

3. If it cauſe a great mourning, at leaſt, ſo great as our mourning would be for outward loſſes: Thus Zechary inſtanceth, the Spirit of God ſhould cauſe them to mourn, as in the family one would mourn for the loſs of their onely Son; or as in the Common-wealth the Subjects would mourn for the loſs of a moſt worthy Prince.

Zech. 12. 10, 11.

4. If it reſt not without cleanneſs: True Repentance is not water, but waſhing, not every waſhing, but ſuch as maketh clean; could a man weep his eyes out, yet if he weep not his ſins out, what is he better? Sorrowing after a Godly ſort, what carefulneſs, what clearing hath it wrought? If I have done iniquity, I will doe it no more.

Iſa. 1. 16.
Job 34. 32.
2 Cor. 7. 11.

5. If it bring forth fruits meet for Repentance: This was the ſum, as of John's, ſo of Paul's preaching, that Jew and Gentile ſhould repent, and turn to God, and doe works worthy amendment of Life: Nay it is the very ſumme of the Goſpel, To mourn, to be comforted, that they may be called Trees of Righteouſneſs, the planting of the Lord, that he might be glorified.

Mat. 3. 8.
Act. 26. 20.
Iſa. 61. 3.

6. If it be ſtirred up by the ſenſe of God's Goodneſs: So that nothing more fires a man to abaſe himſelf in the ſenſe of his own vileneſs, than to feel and find the gracious goodneſs and readineſs of God in Chriſt, to ſhew him Mercy; He feareth the Lord and his goodneſs.

Hoſea 3. 5.

7. If the ſame Spiritual means aſſwage it that firſt raiſed it in the heart: Repentance that can be healed by ſports, merry company, &c. was never ſound; it is the voice of the Church, Hoſea 6.1, 2. Come and let us return unto the Lord, for he hath torn, and he will heal us, he hath ſmitten and he will bind us up.

8. If it be joyned with a ſecret truſt in the acceptation of God in Chriſt: If no miſery can beat thy Soul from inward affiance, or hope of mercy; Pſal. 38.9. if in the very diſquietneſs of the heart, the deſire of the Soul be to the Lord; if he be never ſo much Pſal. 42.5. 11. caſt down, yet he waits upon God for the help of his Countenance, and in ſome meaſure condemns the unbelief of his own heart, and ſupports himſelf with the hope of the never-failing compaſſions of God in Chriſt, wherein it differs from the Repentance of Cain and Judas.

Sect. 9. Examination of Love to Chriſt.

A Fourth Grace which every worthy Receiver muſt find in himſelf, is Love of Chriſt; and by ſuch Marks as theſe he may try whether his Love to Chriſt be a true Love.

1. If it be ready to do for Chriſt whatſoever he commands; Joh.14.15. If ye love me (ſaith Chriſt) keep my Commandments: Again, Joh.14.21. He that hath my Commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: And again, Joh.15.14. Ye are my friends, if ye do whatſoever I command you: What Child can truly love his Father, what Servant his Maſter, but he will be obedient to him? What Chriſtian can truly love Chriſt, but he will chearfully and univerſally obey Chriſt? 2 Cor. 5. 14. The Love of Chriſt conſtrains us, ſaith the Apoſtle; both Chriſt's Love to us, and our Love of Chriſt compel us with a ſweet force to obey him, Joh.14.23. that we cannot chuſe but obey him. If any man loves me, he will keep my Commandments, and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him.

2. If it cares not what it ſuffers for Chriſt; if it glory in his Sufferings; Phil. 1.29. unto you it is given in the behalf of Chriſt, not only to believe on him, but alſo to ſuffer for his ſake; we ſee how far a humane Love either of their Country, or of vain-glory hath tranſported ſome heathen men to the devoting and caſting away their very lives; how much more will a ſpiritual Love of Chriſt put courage Rom.8.38. into the Souls of Saints to bear all things, to endure all things? I am perſwaded (ſaith the Apoſtle) that neither Death, nor Life, nor Principalities, nor Powers, nor things preſent, nor things to come, nor Height, nor Depth, nor any other Creature ſhall be able to ſeparate us from the Love of God which is in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord. Nothing is able to turn away Chriſt's Love from us, and therefore nothing ſhould be able to quench our Love to Chriſt; Cant. 8.6. Many Waters (i. e.) many afflictions, Perſecutions, Temptations cannot quench Love, neither can the Floods drown it.

3. If it loves Chriſt above all, the Love of Father, Mother, Wife, Son, Daughter, Brother, Siſter, yea and of a man's own Life, gives place to this Love to Chriſt; yea ſomething further; as Chriſt is loved above all, ſo all muſt be hated in Mat.10.37. 38. compariſon of Chriſt: He that loveth Father or Mother more than me, is not worthy of me; and he that loveth Son or Daughter more than me, is not worthy of me; and he that taketh not his croſs and Luke 14. 26. followeth after me, is not worthy of me. Again, If any man come to me, and hate not his Father, and Mother, and Wife, and Children, and Brethren, and Siſters, yea and his own Life alſo, he cannot be my Diſciple: not that we muſt properly hate our Allies and Life; but comparatively, if they are compared with Chriſt, we muſt love them leſs than Chriſt: Chriſt muſt ſit in the Throne of all Hearts and Affections, and all theſe muſt ſit below at his Footſtool; hence were the Martyrs commended, that for the love of Jeſus they loved not their lives unto the death. Rev. 12. 11. Excellently Ignatius; Ignatius Epiſt. ad Rom. pag. 86. Now begin I to be a Diſciple, I zealouſly affect nothing of viſibles or inviſibles, that I may obtain Jeſus Chriſt; let Fire and the Croſs and the joint riſing up of wild Beaſts, the diſſections, ſeparations, diſſipations of my Bones, cutting in pieces of my Members, diſſolution of my whole Body, and the puniſhment of the Devil come upon me, only that I may win Jeſus Chriſt.

4. If it breath after more and more aſſurance and evidence of Chriſt's Love to the Soul; the more the Saints love Chriſt, the more they deſire to be loved of Chriſt. Love is a greedy Affection, ſtill coveting after more Love; Cant. 8.6. Set me as a Seal upon thine heart, as a Seal upon thine Arm; for Love is ſtrong as Death, Jealouſie is cruel as the Grave, the Coals thereof are Coals of Fire which hath a moſt vehement Flame. Sealing is for ratification, confirmation, or ſure making of any thing; now the Church would be confirmed and eſtabliſhed in Chriſt's Love, or her own Love would conſume her as a burning flame; either Chriſt muſt manifeſt his Love to her, or ſhe ſhould die and periſh through her Love to him.

5. If it loves every thing wherein Chriſt is preſent to his Church. As, 1. If it love and cheriſh the Spirit of Chriſt; if it entertain with deareſt embraces, as worthy of all acceptation, the motions and dictates and ſecret illapſes of the Spirit into the Soul; if it be careful to hear his voice behind, prompting and directing the Soul in the way wherein it ſhould walk; if it endeavour with all readineſs and pliableneſs of heart to receive the impreſſion of his Seal, and the Teſtimony which the Spirit gives in the inner man unto all God's promiſes; if it fear and ſuſpect nothing more than the frowardneſs of ſinful nature, which daily endeavours to quench, grieve, reſiſt and to rebel againſt this holy Spirit.—— 2. If it love the Ordinances of Chriſt, in which by his Spirit he is ſtill walking in the midſt of the Churches: if it receive the Word in the Power, Majeſty and Authority of it, ſuffering it like thunder to diſcover the Foreſt, and to drive out all thoſe ſecret corruptions which ſheltered themſelves in the corners or deceits of the heart.—— 3. If it love every member of Chriſt; the Love of Chriſt, and love of the members of Chriſt, do infallibly accompany one another; 1 John 4. 23. He that loveth not his Brother whom he hath ſeen, how can he love God whom he hath not ſeen? He that loves not a member of Chriſt, he loves not Chriſt; but on the contrary, he that grows in his Love to the Brethren, he grows likewiſe in his Love to Jeſus Chriſt. Look how the motion of the ſhadow upon the Dial anſwers exactly to that proportion of motion and diſtance which the Sun hath in the Firmament, though the Sun goeth many millions of miles, when the ſhadow, it may be, moveth not the breadth of an hand: ſo though our Love to Chriſt ought to be a far more abundant Love than to any of his members, yet certain it is that the meaſure of our progreſs in Brotherly Love is punctually anſwerable to the growth of our Love to Jeſus Chriſt.

6. If it long after Chriſt's Preſence and Appearing; if it deſire to be with Chriſt, which is beſt of all; if it ſeek after him, and grieve for him, when for any while he departs from the Soul: if it wait for his Salvation; if it delight in his communion and ſpiritual refreſhments. Oh how ſweet is that communion which the Spouſe hath with him in his ſecret chambers, in his houſes of Wine, and in his Galleries of Love! This is that abiding and ſupping with Chriſt; this is that feaſting of the Soul with the manifeſtations of Chriſt and of his Graces; and hence the Love-ſick Spouſe cries out, Can. 8.14. Make haſte my beloved, and be thou like to a Roe, or to a young Hart upon the Mountains of Spices: make all haſte upon the heavenly Mountains, to come and fetch me home to thy ſelf, that I may ever be with the Lord. To this purpoſe Rev. 22. 17, 20. the Spirit and the Bride ſay, Come: the Spirit in the Bride, and the Bride by the Spirit: Chriſt ſaith, Surely I come quickly, and every true Chriſtian anſwers in the deſires of his Soul, Amen, even ſo come Lord Jeſus.

Sect. 10. Examination of Love to the Brethren.

A Fifth Grace which every worthy Receiver muſt find in himſelf, is Love to the Brethren: and by ſuch marks as theſe he may try whether his Love be a true Love.

1. If it be to the Saints as Saints; not becauſe they are rich, Learned, wiſe, but merely becauſe they have God's Image upon them: 1 Pet. 1.22. Love one another with a pure heart; Love muſt be pure, not mixt; and then it is pure, when it ſprings from no other Fountain but Grace and Holineſs, and Love of God in Chriſt.

1 Pet. 2. 17. Rom. 12. 10. 2. If it be to the Saints above others: Others may have Love and Honour, according to their Relations, Qualities, Worth, but true Love beſtows its Benjamin's Portion (the ſpecialty and choice of its Affections) upon the Saints.

Philem. 5. 3. If it be to all the Saints; if it love Grace in rags, as well as in robes; if it love the abſent as well as the preſent; if it love for the Truth's ſake thoſe he never ſaw; yet this hinders not the difference of degrees of Love, which by the ſpecial providence of God ſome Chriſtians may have to others, in ſome ſpecial eminency of reſpects.

4. If it extends as to all Saints, ſo to all Times, as well in adverſity, diſgrace, temptation, ſickneſs, &c. as in proſperity, health, good eſtimation, &c.

Pſal. 16. 3. Pſ. 119.63. 5. If it delight in the fellowſhip of Saints: Such as find no need of, nor delight in the ſociety of Saints, may doubt their condition, and be humbled for it.

Gal. 3. 13. 14. 6. If it cauſe forbearance of one another, forgiveneſs of one another; if in caſe the perſon injuring deſires no reconciliation, yet the perſon injured is willing to let fall all wrath, malice, or deſire of revenge.

Pſal. 15. 4. 7. If it make a Soul to honour them that fear the Lord: This Honour hath in it;

Pſal. 16.3. 1. an eſtimation of them, as the only excellent people in the world.

3 John 6. 2. A free acknowledgment of their juſt praiſes in all places for their Grace.

1 Theſ. 1. 7, 8. 3. A willing propoſing of them as examples to imitate.

1 Pet. 4.8. 4. An holy endeavour to cover their infirmities, taking things in the beſt part and ſence.

5. An Apology for them, againſt the reproaches and ſcorns of the world.

8. If it be a prevalent Love (i. e.) if it come to ſuch a degree, as if that a man were called to it, he would part with his profits or pleaſures for their very ſakes: it is in this prevalent degree that true Love conſiſts, not that every man that loves the Saints, is bound to give them all he hath in their neceſſity; for God hath directed us in what order to beſtow and lay out our Eſtates, and we muſt begin at our ſelves, and ſo to our Families; but he that doth not ſo love the Saints, as that he can find in his heart to beſtow all his worldly ſubſtance for their relief, if God did require him, this man hath no ſaving Love to the Saints.

Sect. 11. Examination of Obedience.

A Sixth Grace which every worthy Receiver muſt find in himſelf, is Obedience: and by ſuch marks as theſe, he may try whether his Obedience be true.

1. If it ariſe out of Love to God in Chriſt Jeſus; Joh. 14.15. if it be voluntary, and not conſtrained; if the heart be enflamed with the ſenſe of God's Love in Chriſt, and if it be humbled when it hath done its beſt, that it can bring no more Glory to God. Joh. 22.5.

2. If it be in all things, with all reſpect to all God's Commandments; if, as Noah, we walk with God, (i. e.) if in a ſettled even courſe of Obedience we keep cloſe to him all the days of our life. Pſ. 119.12. John 15. 14. Gen. 6. 9.

3. If it ſubmit againſt Profit, Pleaſure, Credit, Liberty, Eaſe, &c. if it prefer God's Commandments above all things, yea above Life it ſelf. Heb. 11. 8. Act. 5. 19. Mat. 16 25.

4. If it obey the Commandments of Faith, as well as Life, ſubmitting to the Lord by believing, as by doing, yielding to the Goſpel as to the Law. Rom. 16. 26. Rom. 10. 16.

Sect. 12. Examination of our deſires after this Ordinance.

A Seventh Grace which every worthy Receiver muſt find in himſelf, is, holy Deſires after this holy Ordinance; and by ſuch marks as theſe he may try whether his Deſires be holy.

1. If they carry the Soul after Chriſt, Fellowſhip with Chriſt, Communion with Chriſt, a Fruition of Chriſt and his Benefits. Pſ. 42. 1, 2. John 7. 37. 38.

2. If they ſpring from any ſenſe of the want of Chriſt, or from ſenſe of former ſweetneſs or goodneſs in Chriſt, found in the uſe of the Ordinances.

3. If there accompany them a holy kind of impatience in the want of the Ordinance; When ſhall I come and appear before God? Pſal. 41.2.

4. If nothing but Chriſt will content the Soul: if Chriſt be deſired for himſelf, and not for any baſe ends; if the Soul be content with Chriſt, though he be caſt into Priſon and Baniſhment.

5. If there follow a great and ſweet contentment in the uſe of the Ordinances; if (as it was with Sampſon, drinking of the Water that God ſent him out of the hollow of the Jaw) our ſpirits come again and revive upon it; ſo that ſometimes the heart is filled with ſtrange extaſies, with exceſs of ſpiritual pleaſures, with an heavenly kind of ſatisfaction, contention and delight. Jud. 15.19. Pſal. 63.5. Jer. 31.25.

6. If there follow after the Ordinance holy Vows and Wiſhes of infinite and eternal thankfulneſs; as alſo a growth and ſpringing up as Pſ. 63.4, 5. Iſa. 44. 3. 1 Pet. 2.2.

among the graſs, or as willows by the water-courſes.

Sect. 13. Examination of the growth of Grace.

Mark 4.27. THE Truth of Graces thus found out, in the laſt place examine we the growth of Graces: True Grace is * growing Grace: and if a man grow, it will appear by ſome of theſe Signs:

* I know a Christian may have his Winter of Affliction, Temptation, Spiritual Deſertion; and in this Winter he may rather decline than grow; but if he do not for the preſent actually grow, yet he keepeth a Principle of germination in him, a diſpoſition and inclination to grow; which upon the return of the Spirit, puts forth it ſelf: even as the Graſs, though in Winter it do not grow, yet it hath a germinating Principle in it; which upon the return of the Sun, and the riſing of the Sap; ſhews forth it ſelf.

1. By his outward appearance; not that he can ſee himſelf grow, but that he may diſcern it (as the Corn that ſprings and grows up) after ſome time, when he is grown in Knowledge and Faith, &c. or if he cannot find a growth upward in Joy, Peace, Triumph of Spirit; yet let him ſee if he grow not downward in Humility, Hungring, Mourning, Zeal; and let him ſee if all Grace be not more and more radicated and confirmed in him.

2 Pet. 2. 1, 2. 2. By his Appetite to his ſpiritual Food: Young men have better ſtomachs than old men, becauſe they are growing; and a gracious Spirit hath ever an appetite or deſire after ſpiritual Dainties.

3. By his growth of Aims; what doth he propoſe to himſelf? will not ſmall things content him? then his Appetite is grown: the more manly we grow, the more manly our aims are. See how the Apoſtle call this growth of Aims Perfection, Phil. 3. 15.

Rom. 14. 1. Eph. 6, 12. 4. By his ſpiritual ſtrength; a Christian is at firſt weak; but if he grow, he is ſtronger and ſtronger, till at laſt he can wreſtle with a ſpiritual Enemy, with Luſts and Corruptions, Powers and Principalities, and get the Maſtery over them.

5. By the reality and conſtancy of his Affections and Endeavours; a Chriſtian is not always to judge of himſelf by his preſent proficiency, but by his deſires and endeavours after it; thus God judgeth, not according to what he is, but would be: Deſires after growth, if real and conſtant, putting forth themſelves in anſwerable endeavours, may yet evidence to the Soul the truth of growth, in want of better performances.

To this Duty of Examination, others add Excitation, as thus; There muſt be a new exciting of Faith, and Repentance, and Love, and of Deſires after the Ordinances; but of that more fully in the Ordinance it ſelf.

Sect. 14. Of the Duties in Sacrament; Of the Exerciſe of Repentance.

THus far of the Duties before Sacrament: now follow the Duties in the time of the Sacrament; viz. The exerciſe of our Graces, I mean ſuch Graces as are ſuetable to the quality and nature of the Sacrament; as, Repentance, and Faith, and Thankſgiving, and Love, and Charity.

The firſt of theſe Graces, which muſt be ſtirred up or exerciſed, is Repentance: and this will be actuated if we conſider God's Love in Chriſt, and Chriſt's ſorrows and ſufferings for Sin: There are many things in the Ordinance, which if but looked upon with the eye of Faith, will open all the Springs of true ſpiritual Sorrow or Repentance in the Soul; but we name only theſe two Particulars.

John 3. 16. 1. Here is a diſcovery of the Love and Sweetneſs of God in giving his Son to die for us: So God loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, &c. Enough to cauſe us to mourn that ever we offended; Oh that God ſhould be more tender to us than to his Son, not ſparing his Son, that he might ſpare us; give him to die that we might live; pour the Curſe upon him, that the Bleſſing might be poured upon us! Who can think on this, and withhold from Tears?

2. Here is preſented to us the ſufferings and breakings of Chriſt, enough to break our hardeſt hearts.——Conſider them——

1. In themſelves: What breakings, woundings, ſcourges, crownings, piercings, did he endure in his Body? What conflicts, ſtruglings with the wrath of God, terrors of hell? What weight, burden, wrath did he undergo, when his Soul was heavy unto death, when he drank that bitter cup, that cup mingled with curſes, which if man or Angel had but ſipt of, it would have ſunk them into Hell? Nay, it made him who was God as well as Man, ſanctified with the Spirit, ſupported with the Deity, comforted by Angels, ſweat ſuch a ſweat as never man ſweat, drops, very clods of Blood.

Dan. 9. 26. Iſa. 53. 5, 8. 2. In the meriting cauſe of all our good, the procurers of all our peace, Salvation; He was wounded that we might be healed; ſcourged that we might be ſolaced; he was ſlain, but not for himſelf: —— He was wounded for our tranſgreſſions, broken for our iniquities, the chaſtiſement of our peace was upon him, and with his ſtripes we are healed.

Zec. 12. 10. 3. As the effects of our ſins, as thoſe things our ſins brought upon him, and needs muſt this melt and thaw our icy, ſtony hearts: It was I (ſhould the Soul ſay) who was the Traytor, Murtherer, Judas, Herod, Pilate, they were my ſins which were the bloody inſtruments to ſlay the Lord of Glory; Lord, I have ſinned, and thou haſt ſuffered; 'twas I that eat the ſower Grapes, and thy teeth were ſet on edge: This conſideration muſt needs fill the heart with ſorrow; They ſhall look upon him whom they have pierced; and how then? They ſhall mourn and be in bitterneſs of ſoul, as one in bitterneſs for their firſt-born. O how ſhould we look upon Chriſt as wounded, ſcourged, pierced for us, and not be affected with, afflicted for our ſins, the cauſe of it? "If thou wilt be conformable to "Chriſt (ſaith Bernard) as thou beholdeſt here a "broken, bleeding Chriſt, ſo labour to behold him "with a broken, bleeding Heart: O who can with the Eye of Faith look upon a broken Chriſt but with a broken Heart? a wounded Chriſt, but with a wounded Spirit? a bleeding Chriſt, but with a bleeding Soul? God hath made in Nature the ſame Organ for ſeeing and weeping; and in Grace, he who ſees clearly, weeps throughly.

Lam. 3. 51. The Eye will affect the Heart: "O Chriſt, that "my Eye would affect my Heart! that whilſt I "behold Chriſt ſhedding his Blood for my ſins, "my heart would melt out at my eyes, and ſhed "tears for thoſe ſins for which I ſee Chriſt ſhed "his blood; that I could turn the Sacrament of "the Supper into a Baptiſm of Tears, that I could "waſh and Baptiſe my ſelf with tears of Repen"tance! Of all Motives to repentance, none ſo powerful as continually in all places and employments, to bear about with us in our Hearts and Meditations, the dying of the Lord Jeſus.

Sect. 15. Of the Exerciſe of Faith.

THE ſecond Grace which in time of Sacrament, muſt be actuated and exerciſed, is Faith; then ſhould a Communicant ſpeak to his Jud. 5.12. Faith, as Deborah to her Soul; Awake, awake, Deborah, awake, awake, utter a ſong: ſo, awake, awake, O my Faith, beſtir and rowze up thy ſelf, to receive Chriſt in this Sacrament.

But how or in what manner is Faith to be actuated and ſet on work in the uſe of the Sacrament?

In the Sacrament we muſt conſider three things: 1. Sacramental Repreſentations. 2. Sacramental Offers. 3. Sacramental Promiſes; all which are in the words of Inſtitution. In the night that he Mat.26.25. Mark 14. 22. Luk. 22. 19. 1 Cor. 11. 23, 24. was betrayed, he took bread and brake it: ———He took the cup, and gave it, ſaying,———Take, eat, this is my body which is given for you: ———And drink ye all of this, for this is my blood of the New Teſtament, which is ſhed for you, and for many, for the Remiſſion of ſins. 1. He took the bread and brake it, and cup, and gave it.] there is the Repreſentation, 2. He bade, Take, and eat, drink of this.] There is the Offer. 3. He ſaid, This is my body, which is given for you: This is my blood, which is ſhed for many for the Remiſſion of ſins.] There are the Promiſes: Now, upon every of theſe muſt our Faith be buſied and ſet on work; as thus in order.———

For Sacramental Repreſentations:

1. In the breaking of Bread and pouring out of the Wine, there is a repreſentation of Chriſt's Death and Paſſion, both of his body broken and wounded, and his blood poured and ſhed.

1. Of his body broken and wounded: Iſa. 53. 5. He was wounded for our Tranſgreſſions; ———And with his ſtripes we are healed: What ſweet comfort may Faith fetch hence? Look now upon the Wounds of Chriſt as healing wounds, as a City of Refuge, whither thy purſued Soul by the avenger of Blood, may fly for Safety and Sanctuary: “Indeed I am “a grievous ſinner, I have wounded my Conſci- “ence with my Tranſgreſſions; but behold my “Saviour here wounded for my Tranſgreſſions; “I may well have a troubled Conſcience for the “wounds my Tranſgreſſions have made therein: “yet my Conſcience needs not ſink in a diſponden- “cy of Spirit, whilſt I look at the wounds of “Chriſt: Here are Wounds for Wounds, healing Wounds for ſtabbing Wounds, curing Wounds for killing Wounds. O what comfort is here for Faith in the Wounds of Chriſt crucified! the Nails, the Spear, the Wounds, all preach unto Faith a reconciled God, that God in Chriſt reconciling the World to himſelf. The Lord's Bowels are laid open by theſe Wounds, ſo as through them we may ſee the tender Bowels of his Mercy, and ſo as through them, Mercy flows from thoſe Bowels Can. 2.14. unto us: ———O my dove, that art in the Clefts or Holes of the Rock! Some of the Ancients underſtood by theſe Clefts of the Rock, the Wounds of Chriſt, in which the Dove, the Church, lies and ſhelters her ſelf. This is one Work of Faith in the Sacrament; when it ſees theſe Clefts of the Rock opened, like a Dove, to betake her ſelf thereunto for ſhelter, ſecurity againſt all fears that Wrath and Guilt may put their Conſcience to. Do any fears of Wrath trouble thee? Doth any Guilt of Conſcience diſquiet thee? Why, now for thy comfort, behold the holes in the Rock, where thou maiſt ſhel- Jer.48.28. ter: Dwell now in the Rock, and be like the Dove that makes her neſt in the ſides of the holes mouth; ſee, and fully believe thy peace to be with God through Chriſt, and look upon him broken and wounded for thy Tranſgreſſions. Faith thus actuated, cannot but ſend the ſoul from the Sacrament with much comfort.

2. Of the blood poured and ſhed: and what is to be done now when I ſee this blood in the Sacrament, but to actuate my Faith, and apply this blood to my ſelf? Chriſt's blood is a reconciling blood, Rom. 3. 25. A juſtifying blood, Rom. 5. 9. A pacifying blood, Col. 1. 20. A pardoning blood, Eph. 1. 7. A ſanctifying blood, Heb. 13. 12. A purging blood from dead works, Heb. 9. 14. A cleanſing blood, 1 John 1. 7. A mortifying, crucifying blood, Gal. 6. 14. A blood that ſets Priſoners free, Zech. 9. 11. A blood that makes Men Kings and Prieſts, Rev. 1. 5, 6. A ſoftning, mollifying blood that makes the heart tender, a fleſhly heart, Zech. 12. 10. Goats blood (ſome ſay) breaks the Adament, which neither Iron nor Fire can do; but ſurely the Blood of this Lamb breaks the Adament-heart of a man, which nothing elſe can break: It is a quickning Blood, that brings life and ſtrength with it; it is Life-blood, Blood full of ſpirit, that fills the ſoul with excellent vigour to holy performances, Heb. 13. 20, 21.———Now what a deal of comfort may Faith draw from all this? “True, my perſon “is unrighteous, but, O Chriſt, thy Blood is ju- “ſtifying Blood; my heart is unclean, but thy “Blood is ſanctifying Blood; my Luſts are many “and mighty, but thy Blood is mortifying Blood; “my heart is wondrous hard, but thy Blood is “ſoftning Blood; my heart is exceeding dead, “but thy Blood is quickning Blood; In this Blood “of thine I believe, this Blood of thine I thirſtily “drink down, this Blood of thine I heartily apply, “with a comfortable expectation of all theſe bleſ- “ſed Benefits: Be of good chear, O my ſoul, here “is pardoning Blood againſt thy guilt, ſanctifying “Blood againſt the pollutions of thy nature, cru- “cifying Blood againſt thy Luſts, ſoftning Blood “againſt thy hardneſs, quickning Blood to help thee “againſt thy deadneſs.

2. For Sacramental Offers, in the words, Take, eat, drink.] Chriſt himſelf is offered with all his Benefits: Here then muſt Faith actuate it ſelf and ſet it ſelf on work, ſtriving with all its might to take Chriſt, to eat and drink Chriſt offered: When Chriſt is offered to us, the Act of Faith then is that of the Pſalmiſt, Lift up your heads, O ye Gates, and be lift up, ye everlaſting doors; and why muſt theſe gates and doors be lift up? Pſal. 24. 7. that the King of Glory may come in: Chriſt makes offer to come into our hearts, and therefore we muſt open the gates, we muſt lift them up, even from off the hooks, that fair and foul way be made for ready entrance. If a great man, eſpecially a King, comes to a man's Houſe, he will not only open the ſmall Wicket, his little door, but he ſets open his great gates, he throws them wide open, to make ſpacious way for his entrance; ſo if thus it be, that Chriſt in the Sacrament offers himſelf to come to us, let our Faith buſily beſtir it ſelf in widening the paſſage, and opening our hearts to make Chriſt way, let us ſtrive with might and main to ſtretch open our hearts to ſuch a breadth and largeneſs, as a fit way be made for the King of Glory to come in, let us haſten, open, claſp, embrace, welcome and receive Chriſt offered to us.

3. For Sacramental Promiſes: This is my body which is given for you; This is my blood which is ſhed for you, for remiſſion of ſins.] Here's a precious Promiſe of Chriſt's Body and Blood, which may abundantly ſet Faith on work: For underſtanding whereof, I ſhall propound ſome Queſtions: As,

1. Queſt. 1. What is meant by body and blood?

1. By the body of Chriſt, and by the blood of Chriſt, we mean whole Chriſt, God and Man, as he is Mediator, Chriſt himſelf crucified, with all the Benefits and Graces flowing from him. In all which obſerve theſe four things;

1. The Perſon of Chriſt, God and Man, in which Perſon are two Natures,——

The Godhead, which makes his Manhood meritorious.
The Manhood aſſumed into the Godhead, and Hypoſtatically united thereto.

2. His Merit, which is λύτρον, the price, and worthineſs and excellency of his Perſon and Sufferings. Chriſt's Death was it that merited man's ſalvation, that there might be an infinite ſatisfaction for an infinite debt.

3. His Virtue, which is the power and efficacy of his Godhead, by which he freed both himſelf and all Believers from Death and imputations of Sin.

4. His Benefits both of Grace and Glory.

All theſe are incloſed in the body of Chriſt, and in the blood of Chriſt, viz. The whole Perſon of Chriſt, God and Man, with his Merits and Virtue, and Benefits, into which we are incorporated, and and made conſorts and joynt-fellows with him in his Divine nature; yet mention is made eſpecially of the 2 Pet. 1. 1. Manhood and Body of Chriſt.

1. Becauſe we could not be partakers of his Divine Nature but by means of his Manhood; for the Fleſh of Chriſt is the Conduit that conveys the Graces of the Godhead and the Graces of the Spirit of Chriſt into our ſouls; they were given by the Spirit of Chriſt's Manhood, without meaſure, that ſo they might be derived to us in meaſure by the ſame Spirit, which otherwiſe than by this Body we could not receive.

2. Becauſe Chriſt performed thoſe parts of the work of Man's Redemption in his Body or Humane Nature, which were not compatiable to the Deity or Divine Nature; and therefore mention is made more eſpecially of Chriſt's Body, which is ſymbolically in the Sacrament, and really in the Soul.

Queſt. 2. 2. And this begets another Queſtion; How ſhould the Body or blood of Chriſt (thus underſtood) be in the Soul of a man?

We anſwer, In the Soul there is a double Nature: 1. An humane Nature, as it is natural, defiled with ſin. 2. A Chriſtian inward Nature, animated by the Spirit of Chriſt, which we call the inward man, the new man, which is ſanctified by Regeneration. For the firſt, the humane Nature as it is natural, it is not in Chriſt, nor is Chriſt in it; it hath no being nor exiſtence in Grace, or in Chriſt, but is altogether void and deſtitute of ſpiritual Life; and hence it is called the natural man, the old man, the fleſhly, carnal man. For the ſecond, the Chriſtian, inward Nature, it is upholden in the Children of God by things anſwerable to its Nature; and to this inward ſpiritual Nature indeed the Lord offers in his Sacrament, Chriſt's body and blood, as its own proper food; Chriſt therefore is in the ſoul † ſpiritually, in the ſpiritual part of it; it is the inner man, the ſpiritual Nature that receives Chriſt's body and blood.

† His Body and Blood are not eſſentially and ſubſtantially in us, Chriſt corporally is only in Heaven; but he is really and ſpiritually in the ſpiritual part of us.

Queſt. 3. 3. Our next Queſtion follows; How is Faith here to be exerciſed, for the drawing down of Chriſt's body and blood into our Souls?

For anſwer of which,——

1. Faith looks upon Chriſt as the treaſury and common ſtock of Grace, in whom dwells all fulneſs, all our fulneſs: Faith looks on him as the univerſal Principle of Life, and Root of Holineſs: God gave not him the Spirit in meaſure; No, It pleaſed the Father that in him all fulneſs ſhould dwell, Col. 1. 16. There is in him fulneſs, and all fulneſs; whatſoever is to be required in a Mediator, is fully in him; yea, in him all fulneſs doth dwell: He is not like a full Veſſel, that now is full, and anon is emptied, it dwells in him, it is an Inhabitant, a Reſident, and a permanent Fulneſs; ſo that Chriſt is full, and ever ſhall be full to the brim; there is in him a fulneſs of Merit, for our juſtification, and a fulneſs of Spirit and habitual Graces, for our ſanctification. In him are hid all the treaſures of wiſdom and knowledge, Col. 2. 3. (i. e.) vaſt heaps; for ſome pieces of Silver and Gold are not treaſures: all the treaſures, all the heaps of knowledge and wiſdom that are in the world, all are in him; he is all in all.

2. Faith caſts its eye on the Promiſe, for the conveyance of Chriſt, and of grace from Chriſt. Faith works by virtue of the Promiſe; where there is no Promiſe, there can be no Faith; and therefore Faith diſcovers the Promiſe, That of his fulneſs John 1. 26. we ſhall receive Grace for Grace; That his body is given for us; That his blood is ſhed for us and for many, for the remiſſion of ſins. Hence the Schools admit of a double fulneſs, (i. e.) of abundance and redundance: The Promiſe ſpeaks not only of the fulneſs of abundance in Chriſt, whereby he is ſufficiently full in himſelf, but alſo of a fulneſs of redundance, by which he overflows and fills all his Saints: He is the Well head, or Fountain, which is not only full it ſelf, but ſprings and flows over to the filling of the Streams below it.

3. Faith looks upon this Ordinance as an Inſtrument, a Means which God hath ſet up for the conveying of Chriſt, and nouriſhment from Chriſt: In Zechary we find mention of two Olive Branches, Zec. 4. 12. which through two Golden Pipes emptied the Golden Oyl out of themſelves. We may thus interpret, Chriſt is the Olive-Branch, and the Olive-Tree, and from whom comes all the golden Oyl of Grace and ſpiritual Comfort, and he it is that empties it out of himſelf into our hearts; but how? It is by his Ordinances, they be the golden Pipes by which this golden Oyl is conveyed unto us: Chriſt doth not immediately empty the Oyl into our hearts, but firſt into the golden Pipes of his Ordinances, and ſo through them into us.

4. Faith being ſteeled by ſuch conſiderations as theſe, it goes over to Chriſt, and by virtue of the Promiſe, draws down his body and blood into the Soul; this therefore is the main work, to awaken and to actuate our Faith, to ſet it on work upon Chriſt, and ſo to draw forth the efficacy of Chriſt in the Sacrament: "Lord, I believe that thy body "was given for me, thy blood ſhed for me, and "for the remiſſion of my ſins: Lord, I chearfully "and gladly believe, that I am now partaker of thy "body and blood, and that my ſins are pardoned "in thy blood: I believe that Chriſt is mine, his "death is mine, his reſurrection is mine, re"miſſion of ſins is mine, pardon and heaven are "mine: Lord I accept, I believe this ſealed pardon "of my ſin; Lord, I believe that all Chriſt, whole "Chriſt is mine, from top to toe; Lord, I be"lieve his Perſon is mine, his Godhead is mine, "his Manhood is mine; Lord, I believe his Merit "is mine, his Virtue is mine, his Benefits both of "Grace and Glory are mine: Lord, I believe that "in Chriſt all fulneſs dwells, and that of his ful-

“ neſs I ſhall receive Grace for Grace. Lord, I be- “ lieve that through this golden Pipe of the Lord's “ Supper, I ſhall receive the golden Oyl of Grace “ from Chriſt; now be it to me according to my “ Faith: Lord, I believe, help thou my unbelief: “ O come down into my Soul, and fill it full of “ the Lord Chriſt, of the body and blood of Chriſt. In this manner, as one ſaid of the Tree of Chriſt's Aſcenſion, though the Fruit were high, and above our reach, yet if we touch him by the hand of Faith and tongue of Prayer, all will fall down upon us: So here, if we can but touch him with the hand of Faith, though a Palſie hand, though a weak and trembling hand, if we can but go to him with a praying heart, Chriſt can withhold nothing from us.

By the way, this may diſcover to us where the fault is; when we return home, our Faith never the more ſtrengthened, our Hearts never the more warmed, our Graces never the more nouriſhed, our corruptions never the more weakned, our aſſurance never the more heightned, it is a ſhrewd ſign Faith did not play its part in the Mount: Faith was entruſted in this employment, to go over to Chriſt for theſe and the like Benefits; but thy Faith did fail in the undertaking; therefore God ſuſpends the beſtowing of theſe Benefits, becauſe thou ſuſpendeſt the Faith.——Well then, if thou ſee not the Fruit and Benefit thou expecteſt to come into thy Soul, in the uſe of this Ordinance, charge thy Faith with it, and bewail the weakneſs of it; and for the future, put it to its burthen, let it have its full and perfect work, and then wilt thou find the comfort and fruit of it: Never did Faith touch Chriſt in any Ordinance, but Virtue came from him.

Sect. 16. Of the Exerciſe of Thankſgiving.

THE Heart being warmed, and growing hot with the ſenſe of God's Goodneſs, a man ſhould then break out and give vent to his Heart, in magnifying the Mercy of God for the Death of Chriſt, and the Fruit thereof communicated to us. Now this Duty of Praiſe and Thankſgiving is actuated——

Pſal. 103. 1, 2. 1. By our private Ejaculations. Our Souls ſhould praiſe him, and all that is within us ſhould praiſe his holy name; eſpecially our Affections of Joy and Love ſhould taſte largely of God. We ſhould to this purpoſe now and then caſt up ſuch a Dart as this to Heaven, We praiſe thee, O God, we acknowledge thee to be thee Lord, &c.

2. By our publick and joynt Praiſes. Miniſter and People ſhould both lift up their voices, with Glory to God on high, on Earth Peace, good will toward Men.

3. By our ſinging of Pſalms. Thus Chriſt and his Apoſtles, after the celebration of the Lord's Supper, they ſung a Hymn or Pſalm; and ſome ſay, it was one of David's Pſalms, which was to preſent purpoſe; (the Jews at their Paſſover uſed theſe Pſalms, Pſalm 113. to 119. which they called The great Allelujah) but others ſay, it was a Pſalm compoſed by Chriſt himſelf, containing the Myſtery of his Paſſion: howſoever, learn we our Duty, as at other times, ſo at this eſpecially, to ſing unto God a great Allelujah.

4. By our Obedience; by devoting and giving up our ſelves to Chriſt, to be at the will of him, who is our Sovereign Lord. The Proof and Life of Thankſgiving is Thanksdoing; the Life of Thankfulneſs is the good Life of the thankful: Do we praiſe God for his Excellency? That ſtrictly is the Object of Praiſe: Or do we thank God for his Goodneſs? That ſtrictly is the Object of Thankſgiving: O then let it appear that we acknowledge God in Chriſt to be ſuch a one as we ſay in our Praiſes; and that we ſtand bound and beholden to him indeed, as we ſay in our Thanks. Let us carry our ſelves in our Life toward him, as to God, who only is excellent, who only is God, our God, the God of our Life and Salvation.

Sect. 17. Of the Exerciſe of Mercy and Love.

1. OUR Mercy muſt be exerciſed to the poor according to their neceſſities and our abilities; only with this Caveat, that we give in Faith, and Cheatfulneſs, and ſpiritual Diſcretion in preferring the Saints

2. Our Love muſt be actuated,——

1. In reſpect of all Men, not only by doing them good, as we have opportunity, but if they be wicked, by pitying their Souls, and by unfeignedly deſiring (even at this Sacrament) the Converſion of them.

2. In reſpect of our Enemies, by forgiving, and forgetting all Injuries, by praying for them, as Chriſt hath commanded. Col. 3. 13. Mat. 5. 44.

3. In reſpect of the Saints; by delighting in them, as the moſt excellent of the Earth, the only true Worthies of the world; worthy for ever of the flower, and fervency, and dearneſs of our moſt melting Affections and intimate Love, by ſympathizing with them in their Felicities and Miſeries: Rejoyce with them that rejoyce, and mourn with them that mourn. Rom. 2. 5.

4. In reſpect of Chriſt; by having a communion with him, and a fuller enjoyment of him; to this purpoſe conſider the greatneſs of the benefit we have by his Death, the ſmalneſs of our deſert of ſo great a Benefit, and the Glorïouſneſs of the Perſon of Jeſus Chriſt; for all are here in this Sacrament in a ſingular degree; and for them Chriſt deſerves our Love in the higheſt degree that we can ſhew it in. Hence the Church in Canticles, can find no Names ſo fit whereby to call Chriſt, as theſe, Him whom her Soul loveth, her beloved, and her well-beloved; it is admirable what pleaſure ſhe takes in deſcribing and talking of his rare Excellencies; here is her full contentment and the height of her joy and peace, that ſhe is able to ſay, My well-beloved is mine, and I am his. Certainly were our hearts truly ſpiritual, did our Souls but taſte how good the Lord is, were our eyes opened to ſee him at the right hand of God, cloathed with all Beauties of Holineſs, Glory and Majeſty, it could not be but that our ſins would be moſt vile and deſpicable in our eſteem, and nothing but Chriſt would appear worthy of our Love, Delight and Admiration. Cant. 3 2, 5. Can. 2. 16.

Sect. 18. Of Examination after Sacrament, and the Reſult, if not a good Day.

THus far of the Duties both before and at the time of the Lord's Supper; now follows the Duties after Sacrament; and they are theſe,— Examination.

Thankfulneſs.
Obedience.

1. A man is ſeriouſly and faithfully to conſider, after he hath been at the Lord's Supper, what Entertainment and Welcome God hath given him? what comfort? what Encreaſing of Faith and Grace? what quickning? what Refreſhment? what Aſſurance? what Friendſhip, and what Communion with Chriſt? what Virtue he hath found to flow out of Chriſt into his Soul?

Now if upon ſuch Examination, a man have found no Joy, no Comfort, no Enlargement, no Communion with, nor Anſwer from Chriſt; but on the contrary, his Heart full of Deadneſs, Hardneſs, Dulneſs, Unfruitfulneſs, then two things are to be done.

1. Let ſuch a one ſuſpect himſelf, that ſome Miſcarriage hath been in him, either in his Preparation to, or in his Performance of the Duty; and let him labour to find out where the Fail was; what it was that hindred the efficacy of that Bleſſed Sacrament: and having found out what hindred, let him judge himſelf for it, and be ſeriouſly humbled therefore: If he can but do thus, he needs not be overmuch diſmayed, becauſe this is one Fruit of the Death of Chriſt, which was undoubtedly received in the Sacrament; if he have not that which he would have, yet he hath that which was worth the going for: Let him conſtrue this Humiliation as a Fruit of going to the Sacrament, and be thankful for that.

2. Let him endeavour by after-pains in Prayer and Humiliation, to quicken and awaken the efficacy of the Sacrament: Sacraments do not always work for the preſent, but the efficacy may come afterwards; the actions of God are of eternal efficacy, though he put forth that efficacy in ſuch times and ſeaſons as he ſees good. Phyſick doth not always work when it is taken, but ſometimes afterward. Thus alſo it may be with the Sacrament, when a Communicant humbled for his unprofitableneſs in the Duty, endeavours by after-diligence and humiliation, to quicken and put life into it, it may work then. What hinders but it may be in the caſe of the Lord's Supper, as in the Sacrament of Baptiſm? the efficacy and force of Baptiſm doth not preſently appear, no not preſently upon the years of diſcretion; many a one lives viciouſly in a ſinful courſe, a Swearer, Adulterer, &c. yet afterwards, when God gives a man the heart to be touched with the ſenſe of ſin, and he begins to beſtir himſelf, to ſeek God by Faith and Repentance, the Lord then quickens his Baptiſm, and makes it as powerful and efficacious as if it had been adminiſtred that very day; ſo in this caſe, poſſibly a man hath been at the Lord's Table, and hath more than once been an unworthy Receiver, yet if he ſhall once come to be humbled for that unworthineſs, God will make Sacraments ſo often received unprofitably, to become efficacious unto him: If then we have miſcarried in our Preparations and Diſpoſitions, ſo as we have found no Benefit, no Comfort, yet here is a Remedy and Help. Take this courſe by after-diligence and after-humiliation, to fetch life into the Ordinance in which we were dead, and which was dead unto us.

Sect. 19. Of Thankfulneſs, if a good day.

IF upon Examination, we find that we were refreſhed, Had our Hearts enlarged, had virtue from, and communion with Chriſt, then muſt follow

{ Obedience.

1. Thankfulneſs. Return home now, as with thy Heart full of Benefits of the Lord, ſo with thy Heart full of Praiſes to the Lord. Angels Employments are moſt ſuitable to Angels food. Shall we bleſs God for a Crumb, and not for a Chriſt? Other Mercies are but Crumbs in compariſon of this rich Mercy; and ſhall our Hearts ſavour them ſo much, and not reliſh theſe? What's Corn and Wine to this? That is a Mercy in which all other Mercies are folded up: Chriſt doth eminently contain all other Mercies, and in the want of all, Chriſt enjoyed is exceeding great Reward: Nay, all Mercies are not only folded up in and entailed to him, but he ſweetens and ſanctifies every Mercy; let us then return home, as full of the Bleſſing from on high, ſo full of Praiſes to the moſt High. Thankfulneſs is the great Grace to be exerciſed in, and Thankfulneſs is the great Grace to be exerciſed after; and therefore while the preſent ſenſe of this Mercy warms our Hearts, let the heat of it burſt forth into Thankfulneſs toward God; it is the moſt ſuitable Service, and the moſt ſuitable time to return it.

Sect. 20. Of Obedience and Faithfulneſs in our Lives.

THE Second Thing required in ſuch a Caſe, is Obedience. 1. Get we our hearts now further ſet againſt ſin; let our Souls ſay, "Hath God been ſo gracious to renew and confirm my Pardon, and ſhall I again diſhonour him? Hath he wiped off my former Scores, and ſhall I run on afreſh to offend him? Hath he taken off my former Burden, and caſt it on the Back of his dear Son, and ſhall I again lay more Load on him? Hath he ſpoken peace to me in his Ordinance, and ſhall I again return to Folly! No, far be it from me: I waſhed my Feet, how ſhall I again defile them? I have put off my Coat, how ſhall I again put it on?

2. Get we our Hearts further ſtrengthened to Service: In this Ordinance is a mutual ſealing of Covenants between God and us; he ſeals to the firſt part of the Covenant, Pardon, Mercy, Grace, and we muſt ſeal to the ſecond part of it, Service, Subjection, Obedience. God gives Chriſt to us, and we are to give our ſelves back again to Chriſt. As there is matter of Bounty from God to us, ſo there is matter of Duty from us to God: There was never any Soul, to whom God ſaith in this Ordinance, I am thine, whoſe Heart did not eccho again to the ſame God, Lord I am thine. Let us then Labour to get our hearts further ſtrengthened to Service. And thus much concerning our Duties before, in, and after the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

CHAP. XIV. SECT. I.

OF
Preparatives to Prayer.

Hitherto of all the Duties in reference only to ſecret, private or publick Ordinances; now follow ſuch Duties, as have reference joyntly to all three, and they are either

- ordinary, as
  - Praying.
  - Reading the Word.
  - Suffering.
- extraordinary, as
  - Faſting,
  - Feaſting.

The firſt of theſe Duties is Prayer, in which (as in the former) there is required ſome things,

1. Antecedent.
2. Concomitant.
3. Subſequent.

1. There is ſomething required before, viz, Preparation; now this Preparation conſiſts partly,

in
- Removing Impediments.
- Uſing the Means.

1. The Impediments to be removed, are theſe;

1. We muſt lay aſide all carnal thoughts and worldly cares, which might diſtract our Minds: Keep thy foot when thou goeſt to God's Houſe, ſaith Solomon, q. d. look with what affection and diſpoſition thou comeſt to God in Prayer. Eccle.5.1.

2. We muſt put off our ſhoes (i. e.) remove our Pollutions and corrupt Affections, as carnal Luſts, Anger and Doubting: I will that men pray every where, lifting up holy hands, without wrath and doubting. 1Tim.2.8.

3. We muſt avoid Surfeiting and Drunkenneſs, which makes the heart dull and heavy: Take heed to your ſelves, leſt at any time your hearts be overcharged with ſurfeiting and drunkenneſs, and cares of this world; with ordinary Prayer we muſt joyn a moderate, Diet, and with extraordinary, Faſting. Luke 21. 34, 35.

4. We muſt caſt off our Sins: I will waſh my hands in innocency, and ſo will I compaſs thine Altar, O Lord. Pſal. 26.6.

5. We muſt draw off from Prayer, from reſting in it, or truſting upon it; a man may pray much, and inſtead of drawing nigh to God, or enjoying ſweet Communion with Chriſt, he may draw nigh to Prayer, his Thoughts may be more upon his Prayer than upon God to whom he prays, and he may live more upon his Cuſhion than upon Chriſt; but when a man indeed draws nigh to God in Prayer, he forgets Prayer, and remembers God, and Prayer goes for nothing, but Chriſt is all.

2. The Means to be uſed, are
- Prayer.
- Meditation.

1. Prayer; A little eating prepareth a weak Stomach, and ſetteth an edge upon the Appetite to eat more: To this purpoſe David prayed before Prayer; Let my prayer be ſet before thee as Incenſe, and the lifting up of my hands as an Evening-Sacrifice: Set a Watch, O Lord, before my Mouth, keep the door of my Lips. Pſal. 141. 2, 3.

2. Meditation; 1. On our own unworthineſs, that ſo we may pray in humility: I am leſs than the leaſt of all thy Mercies, ſaid Jacob: O my God, I am aſhamed and confounded to lift up mine eyes, ſaid Ezra. 2. On the glorious Majeſty of God our Father. He that ſpeaks to God, muſt remember that God is in Heaven; nay, what is Prayer, but a coming before God, an approaching to God, a meeting of God? In Prayer we have to do with God, and this will teach us to ſpeak to him in reverence. 3. On the Mediation and Interceſſion of our Saviour Chriſt, which is the very ground of our Faith in Prayer: Whatſoever ye ſhall ask in my Name, that will I do. 4. On the Promiſes of God in Chriſt, made to our Prayers: Thou, O Lord of Hoſts, God of Iſrael, haſt revealed to thy Servant, ſaying, I will build thee an houſe, therefore hath thy Servant found in his heart to pray this Prayer unto thee: ——— And deliver me, I pray thee (ſaith Jacob from the hands of my Brother Eſau; Thou ſaidſt, I will ſurely do thee good: Such promiſes have we all, Ask, and ye ſhall have; ſeek, and ye ſhall find; knock, and it ſhall be opened unto you. Gen. 32. 10. Ezra. 9.6. Eccle.5.2. Joh.14.13. 2 Sam. 2. 27, 28,29. Gen. 32. 11, 12. Mat. 6. 6.

Sect. 2. The General Duties of the Soul in Prayer.

2. THE Duties in Prayer, are either internal or external: The former are the Duties of the Soul; the latter are the Duties of the Body.

2. The Duties of the Soul we ſhall conſider
- in general.
- in particular.

The Duty in general is to pray
- In Truth.
- By the Spirit.
- In the Name of Chriſt.

1. In truth (i. e.) in ſincerity and uprightneſs of heart. The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him in ſincerity and in truth: Hence two Faults are to be avoided. Pſ.145.18.

1. Praying with feigned Lips, this is to pray with an heart and an heart, as all Hypocrites do; but it's otherwiſe with the Saints. Hear the right, O Lord, attend unto my cry, give ear to my Prayer, that goeth not out of feigned lips. Pſal. 17.1.

2. Praying with wandring thoughts, ariſing partly from the fleſh, and partly from the ſuggeſtions of Satan: The Speech of the mouth muſt not go before, but always follow after the conceit of the mind: Many times as a Muſician's fingers will run over a Song which he hath been uſed to play; although his mind be otherwiſe occupied; ſo many in Prayer will run over that form of words they have been uſed to utter, though their minds be roving about other matter; ſuch a Prayer is called Lip-labour. O let the abſurdity of the fault breed in us a loathing of it; Do our minds wander in Prayer? endeavour we to joyn into one ſpeech the prayer of the mouth, and the ſpeech of the heart, both which ſound in God's ears, and then conſider whether we Mal. 1. 8. would make ſuch a ſpeech (I ſay not with Malachi, to our Prince, but) to any man whom we regard, which yet we are not aſhamed to offer unto the Lord: I will not deny in ſuch a caſe, if we be grieved for, and ſtrive and pray againſt ſuch wanderings; this infirmity through God's mercy and the interceſſion of Chriſt ſhall not be imputed unto us. It is good to diſtinguiſh of the cauſe whence theſe wandring thoughts may ariſe; if they come from weakneſs in our ſelves, or from the temptations of Satan, the Lord will conſider this, and deal mercifully with us; but if they ariſe from mere negligence, or voluntary admitting of looſe thoughts, that is our ſin, and we had need to repent and mourn for it.

Rom. 8. 16. 2. By the help of the Spirit: It is the Spirit that helps our Infirmities (ſaith Paul) for we know not what we ſhould pray for as we ought, but the Spirit it ſelf maketh interceſſion for us, with groanings which cannot be uttered; q. d. when we put forth the Graces of the Spirit in us, then the Spirit comes and helps; and what comes from us now, it comes from the breathings of the Spirit. [This helping of the Spirit] is very emphatical in the Original; as a man taking up an heavy piece of Timber by the one end, cannot alone get it up, till ſome other man takes it up at the other end, and ſo helps him: So the poor Soul that is a pulling and tugging with his own Heart, he finds it heavy and dull, Like a Log in a Ditch, and he can do no good with it, till at laſt the Spirit of God comes at the other end, and takes the heavieſt end of the Burden, and ſo helps the Soul to lift it up. In our Prayers we ſhould eye the Spirit of God, we ſhould caſt our ſouls upon the aſſiſtance of the Spirit, we ſhould preſs the Lord with this Promiſe, "Lord, "thou haſt ſaid, that thy Spirit helps our in"firmities, when we know not what we pray "for, nor how to pray for any thing as we "ought. Now make good this word of thine "to my Soul at this time, let me have the "breathings of the Spirit of God in me; alas, "the breathings of man, if it come from Gifts "and Parts, thou wilt never regard, except "there be the breathings of the Holy Ghoſt in "me.

Queſt. But how ſhould we know whether the Spirit of God come in or no.

Anſw. We may know it by this: The Spirit of God carries unto God, and it makes the Prayer ſweet and delightful, it leaves a ſavour behind it. O the breath of the Spirit of God is a ſweet breath, and it makes ſweet Prayers; it never comes into the Soul, but after it hath done any work it came for, it leaves a ſweet ſcent behind: as Civet that is put into a little Box, though you ſhould take out the Civet, yet there will be a ſweet ſavour left behind; ſo though the Spirit of God, in reſpect of the preſent aſſiſtance, withdraws it ſelf, yet it leaves a ſweet ſavour behind it.

Jo. 14. 13. 3. In the Name of Chriſt; for, Whatſoever you ask the Father in my Name, that I will do. There is a neceſſity of praying in Chriſt's Name,

1. In regard of Admiſſion.
2. In regard of Aſſiſtance.
3. In regard of Acceptance.

1. In regard of Admiſſion: God is a conſuming Fire, and we are dried ſtubble, there is no approaching to him but in Chriſt, in whom we have acceſs with boldneſs to the Throne of Grace. God will not look pleaſingly on us if we come without Chriſt, he is no Throne of Grace without him; it is Chriſt who makes that which was a Bar of Juſtice, a Bench of Mercy; in him we have admiſſion: Do ye fall upon the Duty of Prayer? do it not in the ſtrength of Man, but in the ſtrength of Chriſt: ſay, "Lord, I come alone in "the Merits of Chriſt, to partake of the Merits "of the Lord Jeſus: I have endeavoured to pre"pare my ſelf through thy Grace, but I look not "for admiſſion through my preparations or diſpoſi"tions, but through the blood and mediation of Jeſus Chriſt.

2. In regard of Aſſiſtance: We pray, but we have no ſtrength to do it without Chriſt; we might as well be ſet to move Mountains, as to pray without the ſtrength of Chriſt; Without me (ſaith Chriſt) you can do nothing; without Union with Chriſt, without communion with Chriſt, we can do nothing; from Chriſt we muſt have both operating and co-operating ſtrength, both inherent and aſſiſtant ſtrength; otherwiſe, though we have Grace, we ſhall not be able to perform any Work, nor exerciſe our own Graces: it is he that muſt work all our Works in us and for us, the inherent Work of Grace, within us, and the required Works of Duty for us: And bleſſed be that God, who hath given to us what he requireth of us, and hath not only made Precepts Promiſes, but Promiſes Performances. Joh. 15. 5.

3. In regard of Acceptance: Our Works, they are not only impotent, but impure too, as they come from us: It is Chriſt that muſt put validity to them, it is Chriſt that muſt put his own Odours to them, it is Chriſt that muſt put both Spirit and Merit to them, his Grace to work, and his Blood to own them; for whatever comes from his Spirit, it is preſented through his Merit: Here is great Comfort: Do we look over Performances, and wonder that ever God ſhould accept them? ſo much Deadneſs, ſo little Life, ſo much Coldneſs? Conſider then, that God looks upon them not as ours, but as Chriſt's in whom not only our Perſons, but our Performances are accepted: Chriſt gives us his Spirit, and Chriſt is willing to own what we preſent by his Spirit, and God is willing to own whatever is preſented to him by Chriſt his Son. To this purpoſe there was given to Chriſt much Incenſe that he ſhould offer it with the Prayers of all Saints upon the Golden Altar, which was before the Throne, and the ſmoke of the Incenſe which came with the Prayers of the Saints, aſcended up before God out of the Angels hand, Revelations 8. 3, 4. This Rev. 8. 3, 4. Angel is Chriſt, this Incenſe his Merits, the mingling of the Prayers of the Saints with this Incenſe, is the ſupplying or covering of the defects of their Prayers with the Merits of Chriſt, and the aſcending of this Incenſe and their Prayers before God, is his acceptance of them thus covered with Chriſt's Merits; and the reaſon why the prayers aſcended, was, becauſe the Incenſe aſcended; that was their Vehiculum, the Pillar of Smoke in which they mounted up to Heaven. This rightly conſidered, it will cauſe us in every Petition put up, to think our ſelves ſo much beholden to Chriſt, that we ſhall be ready to ſay in our hearts, when any Petition is granted, I may thank Jeſus Chriſt for this.

But what is it to pray in Chriſt's Name ?

I anſwer, 1. To pray in Chriſt's Name, is to pray with reliance upon the Grace, Favour and Worthineſs of the Merits of Chriſt, in whom we have believed, and have acceſs with confidence, by the Eph. 3. 12. Faith of him : Chriſt's ſatisfaction is the ground of our interceſſion, becauſe Chriſt's blood hath purchaſed this (we pray) therefore, O Lord, grant this.

2. To pray in Chriſt's Name is to pray from his Command, and according to his will ; as when Hoſe. 14. 3. we ſend another in our name, we wiſh him to ſay thus ; Tell him, I ſent you, and that I deſire ſuch a thing of him ; ſo when we take thoſe words which the Lord puts in our mouths, and deſire thoſe things only that the Lord commands us to ſeek, whether abſolutely, or conditionally, this is to pray in his Name.

3. To pray in Chriſt's Name, is to pray for his Ends, for the ſake and uſe of Chriſt ; Thus the Mat. 10. 41. Phraſe is uſed, To receive a Prophet in the name of a Prophet, (i. e.) for this end and reaſon, becauſe he is a Prophet. Now let Chriſtians obſerve, when they would have any thing of God, to what uſe James 4. 3. and end, and for whoſe ſake it is : You ask, and have not, becauſe you ask amiſs, to ſpend it on your Luſts. A luſt is properly ſuch a Deſire (though for lawful things) wherein a man muſt have a thing, becauſe it pleaſeth him : Give us water, that we may Exo. 17. 2. drink (was the brutiſh Cry of Iſrael) not that we may live to him that gives it ; holy Deſires or Prayers (oppoſed unto Luſts) are ſuch deſires of the Soul left with God, with ſubmiſſion to his will, as may beſt pleaſe him for his Glory.

Sect. 3. The particular Duties of the Soul in Prayer.

THE Duties of the Soul in particular are to pray in
- Knowledge.
- Faith.
- Humility.
- Reverence.
- Ardency of Spirit.

1. In Knowledge
- of God to whom we pray.
- of that for which we pray.

1. We muſt know and acknowledge God and Jeſus Chriſt whom he hath ſent : Chriſt told the Sa- John 4. 22. maritans, Ye worſhip ye know not what : Far be it from Chriſtians thus to do : Without this Knowledge we ſhall wander into Will-worſhip and ſu- 1 Chr. 28. perſtitious Inventions : And therefore know thou the God of thy Fathers (ſaid Solomon) and ſerve him with a perfect heart.

2. We muſt know and underſtand what we pray, otherwiſe we are ſubject to our Saviour's Re- Mat. 20. 22. proof, You ask you know not what. Two ſorts of Men are here condemned. 1. Thoſe that pray in an unknown Tongue. 2. Thoſe who pray in a known Tongue, but underſtand not what they pray.

2. In Faith,
- more general.
- more ſpecial.

1. Faith more general is ſuch a Faith as apprehends the main Promiſe of the Goſpel concerning Salvation by Chriſt.

2. Faith more ſpecial is ſuch a Faith as apprehends the precious Promiſes made to our Prayers, whereby we are perſwaded that our perticular Requeſts ſhall be granted unto us, only with this diſtinction ——— in matters ſpiritual, neceſſary to Salvation, we are to ask abſolutely, as being perſwaded that God hath ſubordinated our ſalvation to his own Glory ; and we are to believe abſolutely, that the Lord will grant them unto us ; yea it is a good ſign, if we deſire any ſaving Grace, that the ſame Grace is begun in us ; but in Matters temporal or ſpiritual, not neceſſary to ſalvation, we are to ask them conditionally, ſo far forth as they may ſtand with God's Glory, and the Good of our ſelves and our Brethren ; and we are to believe that he will ſo far forth grant them : Thus our Saviour prayed in the like caſe : O my Father, if it Mat. 26. 39. be poſſible let this Cup paſs from me, nevertheleſs, not as I will, but as thou wilt.

3. In Humility ; which is derived ab humo, from the ground ; intimating, that when we pray, we ſhould humble our ſelves, as it were to the ground. Thus the Chriſtians in the Eaſtern Churches were wont to caſt themſelves down to the ground, when they called upon God : Thus Abraham acknowledged himſelf but Duſt and Aſhes ; Thus Jacob Ge. 18. 27. confeſſed himſelf leſs than the leaſt of all God's mercies : and 32. 10. Thus David profeſſed, that he would be vile before 2 Sam. 6. the Lord : Thus Iſaiah cried out, I am a man of un- 22. clean Lips, and I dwell in the midſt of a People of un- Iſa. 6. 5. clean Lips : Thus Ezra prayed, O my God, I am aſha- Ezra 9. 6. med, and bluſh to lift up my Face to thee, my God, for our iniquities are encreaſed over our head, and our treſpaſs is grown up unto the Heavens : Thus the Cen- Mat. 8. 8. turion, Lord, I am not worthy that thou ſhouldſt come under my Roof : Thus the Woman of Syrophœnicia, confeſſed her ſelf a Dog in compariſon of the Iſraelites, and thus the Prodigal received to Favour, confeſſeth himſelf unworthy to be called a Son : Here's a Cloud of Witneſſes, concluding that Humility in the heart is requiſite in Prayer.

4. In Reverence of the Majeſty of God : Serve Pſal. 2. 11. the Lord with reverence, and rejoyce with trembling. The bleſſed Angels being in God's preſence, and ſounding forth his Praiſe, are deſcribed as having Iſa. 6. 2. ſix Wings, whereof two pair ſerve to cover their faces and their feet ; hereby betokening their wonderful Reverence of God : How much more ſhould we, who inhabit theſe houſes of Clay (ſubject to infirmities, and corrupted with ſin) be ſtricken with an awful Reverence of Almighty God ? Did we, conſider our ſelves to be in the midſt of Angels, before the God of Angels, performing the like exerciſe as the Angels, how would this ſtrike us with a Reverence of this great King of Heaven ?

5. In Ardency or Fervency of Spirit ; this gives Wings to our Prayers, and cauſeth them to aſcend before God ; this ſets on work all the Graces of God's Spirit, and the more fervent the Prayer is, the more they are intended, actuated, increaſed : I mean not thus of every fervency ; there is a fervency of Faith, and a fervency of meer natural deſires, in this latter there is no Holineſs, no Fire of the Spirit ; but in the former there is : When Chriſt lived upon Earth, many came to him, and ſome were exceedingly importunate to be healed, or to have Devils caſt out, &c. Now if he anſwered their Requeſts, his uſual Phraſe was, Be it unto thee (not according to the importunity and fervency, but) according to thy Faith, q. d. I heed not, I regard not this Clamour and Earneſtneſs, if it be only out of meer natural deſires ; but if it be out of Faith ; if beſides ſenſe of need, you have in you a true hope of Mercy, then be it unto thee according to that : This fervency is ſet out in the Word by divers ſignificant phraſes ; ſometimes it is called a Crying unto the Lord ; thus Moſes cried unto the Exo 8. 12. Lord, and Samuel cried unto the Lord, and Elijah 1 Sam. 7. 9. cried unto the Lord ; and Iſaiah cried unto the 1 Kin. 17. 20, 21.

2 Kin. 20. 11. Lord; ſometimes a crying mightily: Let man and Jonah 3.8. beaſt be covered with Sackcloth, and cry mightily unto God; ſometimes a lifting up of our Prayers; Wherefore lift up thy Prayer for the Remnant that is left, Iſa. 37. 4. ſaid Hezekiah to Iſaiah: ſometimes a Pouring forth our Souls before the Lord like water; O Wall of Lam.2.19. the daughter of Zion——pour out thy heart like water before the face of the Lord: Thus the Iſraelites drew 1Sam.7.6. water, and poured it out before the Lord, and faſted on that day, and ſaid there, We have ſinned againſt the Lord: ſometimes a gaoaning in ſpirit, or groans of Rom.8.26. the Spirit; The Spirit it ſelf maketh interceſſion for us 1 Theſ. 3. 10. with groanings which cannot be uttered: ſometimes a praying exceedingly: ſometimes a Praying fervent- Col. 4.12. ly: ſometimes a ſtriving with God; Now I beſeech Rom. 15. 30. you brethren, for the Lord Jeſus Chriſt's ſake, and for the Love of the Spirit, that you ſtrive together with me in your prayers to God for me: ſometimes a wreſtling Gen. 32. 24. with God; Thus Jacob wreſtled with a man, i. e. with God in form of a man, until the breaking of the day: ——All theſe Phraſes do ſet forth the excellency, the neceſſity of this Ardency, Fervency of Prayer, required in the Duty.

Sect. 4. The duties of the Body in Prayer.

THus far of the duties of the Soul in Prayer; as for bodily exerciſe (of it ſelf) it profiteth lit- 1Tim.4.8. tle: but if joyned with the Soul, it is of great importance; Therefore glorifie God in your Body and in your 1 Cor. 6. ſpirit, for both are God's.

The Duties of the Body may be reduced to theſe two Heads:

{ The Geſture of the Body.
{ The Speech of the Mouth.

Concerning the firſt; in publick Prayer we are to follow the Cuſtom of the Church wherein we live, if it be without ſcandal and ſuperſtition: In private Prayer we may take our liberty, ſo that our Geſture be correſpondent to the Affections and Diſpoſitions of the Soul.——In Scripture we read of theſe ſeveral Geſtures: 1. Standing, which is a token of Reverence, and Service, 2 Kings 5. 25. 1 Sam. 16. 21. 1 Kings 10. 8. Job 29. 7, 8. Gen. 18. 22. 2 Chron. 20. 5. Pſalm 134. 1. Luke 18. 13. Mark 11. 26. 2. Kneeling, which is a token of our humility and earneſtneſs in Prayer, Pſalm 95. 6. 2 Chron. 6. 13. Dan. 6. 10. Acts 7. and 9. 40. 60. and 20. 36. Luke 22. 41. 3. Proſtration, or falling on the ground, or falling on the face, a geſture of the greateſt humiliation, though not uſed among us in theſe parts of the world, Numb. 16. 22. Joſh. 5. 14. Ezek. 9. 8. and 11. 13. Mat. 26. 39. 4. Sitting, lying, walking, riding, journeying, in ſome caſes, 2 Sam. 7. 18. 1 Kin. 19. 4. Iſa. 38. 2. Pſal. 6. 6. Gen. 24. 26. 2 Chron. 18. 31. 5. Uncovering of the Head in Men, covering of the Head, in Women, which is a token of ſubjection, 1 Cor. 11. 7, 10. Rev. 4. 10. 6. Lifting up and caſting down of the Eyes, the former being a token of Faith, the latter of dejection and humiliation, Pſal. 123. 1. Mat. 14. 19. John 11. 41. and 17. 1. Luke 18. 13. 7. Lifting up, or ſtretching forth of the hands; expreſſing humility and earneſt affection: and knocking them on the breaſt, which betokens guilt and earneſt deſire of pardon, Exod. 9. 33. Pſalm 143. 6. 1 Kings 8. 22. Pſalm 143. 2. Lam. 3. 41. Luke 18. 13. Luke 23. 48.

Concerning the ſecond, viz. The voyce or ſpeech of the Mouth; it is neceſſary in Church or Family, and moſt convenient in private: Now the Voyee uſed in Prayer is either.

{ Articulate.

1. The inarticulate is that which is uttered in ſighing, groaning and weeping: Lord, all my de- Pſal. 38.9. ſire is before thee, and my groaning is not hid from thee, ſaith David; and Hezekiah profeſſeth, That he did Iſa. 38.14. chatter like a Crane or a Swallow, and did mourn like a dove: And the Spirit himſelf maketh interceſſion for us Rom.8.16. with groanings which cannot be uttered.

2. The articulate Voice is the external ſpeech it ſelf, whereby the Prayer is expreſſed; wherein three things are conſiderable.

{ Form.

1. For Quantity, we muſt not effect prolixity, as if for multitude of words we looked to be heard When Mat. 6. 7. ye pray, uſe not vain repetition, as the Heathen do. The Heathen thought, that their Gods did not always hear, as being otherwiſe employed (ſo Eliah told Baal's Prieſts) and therefore they uſed to repeat the ſame things often, that if they did not hear them at one time, they might hear them at another time; thus Chriſtians muſt not pray, they muſt not lengthen their Prayers, as conceiving that either God hears not, or that he will hear for the lengths ſake; but on the other ſide, where is variety of good matter, uttered with the attention of mind, and vigour of affection, there the longer we continue in prayer, the better it is.

2. For Quality, we need not be curious in reſpect of the ſtile, God looking to the Heart, rather than the Speech! As it is not the loudneſs of a Preacher's Voyce, but the weight and holineſs of the Matter, and Spirit of the Preacher, that moves a wiſe and intelligent Hearer; ſo not Gifts, but Graces in Prayers, are they that move the Lord: The Reaſon, Prayer moves not God as an Orator, but as a Child moves his Father: two Words of a Child humbled, and crying at his Fathers feet, will prevail more than penn'd Orations: It is the meaning of the Spirit that God looks unto, more than the expreſſions; for the Groans are ſaid to be unutterable, Rom. 8. 26. yet muſt we not be more careleſs and negligent for the manner of Speech, than we would be, if we were to ſpeak to a mortal man: If ye offer the blind for Sacrifice, is it not Mal. 1.8. evil? and if ye offer the lame and ſick, is it not evil? Offer it now unto thy Governor; will he be pleaſed with thee, or accept thy perſon? ſaith the Lord of Hoſts, Mal. 1. 8.

3. For the Form: We are not tied to any ſet form, nor are we ſo tied to conceived Prayer, as that it muſt be without all ſtudy or meditation, either againſt the inſtant, or in former times: A man may conceive a Prayer ex tempore, and yet without Enthuſiaſms, or extraordinary Revelations, viz. by the help of his former Studies and Meditations; and that I may afford ſome help that way, I ſhall in concluſion of this Chapter lay down a Directory for Prayer, together with a Form of Prayer (though broken) in Scripture-phraſes.

Sect. 5. Duties after Prayer.

3. THE Duties ſubſequent, which follow after Prayer, are theſe:——

1. Quietly to reſt in the good will and pleaſure of God, not doubting but the Lord hath heard our Prayers, and in good time ſhall grant that which ſhall be moſt for his Glory and our Good; and this is the meaning of the Word Amen, wherewith we ſeal up our Prayers.

2. Diligently to uſe all good means for the obtaining of our Suits; as if I pray for Faith, or any other ſpiritual Grace, I muſt beſides Prayer, uſe all good means carefully, which the Lord hath ordained for the begetting and encreaſing of thoſe Graces in us, as hearing the Word preached, receiving the Sacrament, reading the Word, and meditating on it, otherwiſe, our Prayers are a tempting of God, as if he muſt grant, not by Means, but by Miracles.

3. Carefully to look after our Prayers, and to caſt up our comings in at gainings by Prayers, otherwiſe we are like fooliſh Venturers, who have a great Stock a going, but look not after their Returns. In the Morning I will direct my Prayers, and Pſal. 5. 3. look up.] There are two military Words in the Verſe, David would not only pray, but Marſhal up his Prayers, put them in array; and when he had done ſo, he would be as a Spy upon a Tower, to ſee whether he prevailed, whether he got the day. For the better unfolding this Myſtery of Grace, I ſhall propound and give Anſwer to ſome Queries or Caſes of conſcience, as,——

1. Suppoſe I have prayed, how ſhall I aſſuredly know that God hears, and will anſwer in his own time?

2. Suppoſe the thing I deſired ſhall not be anſwered, how may I aſſuredly know that God notwithſtanding doth hear my Prayers?

3. Suppoſe after Prayer I obſerve all I can, and I can by no means diſcern that either God will anſwer, or doth hear my Prayers, what ſhall I do then?

4. Suppoſe the thing I deſire is anſwered, how may I aſſuredly know it was at my Prayers, or out of common Providence?

5. Suppoſe that others joyned with me in thoſe Prayers now anſwered, how ſhould I know that my Prayers had an hand in obtaining thoſe Anſwers, as well as any others?

6. Suppoſe I am aſſured upon former Obſervations, that God hath heard and anſwered my Prayers in their Particulars, what muſt I do then?

Sect. 6. The Firſt Caſe. Suppoſe I have prayed, how may I aſſuredly know that God hears, and will anſwer in his own time.

WE may reſolve this Caſe by ſome Obſervations before Prayer, in Prayer, and after Prayer.

1. Before Prayer: When God prepares the Heart to pray, when he pours upon a man a Spirit of Grace and Supplication, a praying diſpoſition; when he puts in Motives, ſuggeſts Arguments and Pleas unto God, as Materials for Prayer; all which you ſhall find to come in readily and of themſelves; and that likewiſe with a quickning heat, and enlargement of Affections, with a lingring, and longing, and reſtleſneſs of Spirit, to pour out the Soul unto God; this is a ſign that God lends his ear, and will return Anſwers: Thou wilt prepare
Pſ. 10.17. their heart; thou wilt cauſe thine ear to hear; q.d. Thou faſhioneſt the heart, and compoſeſt it into a praying frame, and that is a ſign, Lord, that thou meaneſt to hear.

2. In Prayer: As, 1. When God draws nigh, and reveals himſelf to thy Soul, in and upon ſuch or ſuch a particular Petition, when God ſmiles upon thee, welcomes thee, falls about thy neck and kiſſeth thee; when no ſooner thou comeſt into his preſence to enquire of him, but he ſays, Here I am, Iſa. 58. 9. as the promiſe is, Iſaiah 58. This thou art to obſerve as a ſign that he hears thy Prayer, and accepts both thee and it: Here me ſpeedily (ſaith David) Pſ.69.17.
and that I may know thou heareſt me, draw nigh unto 18.
my Soul, Pſalm 69. 17. 2. When God doth put a reſtleſs importunity into the heart, maugre all diſcouragements for this or that Mercy, and when this Importunity is joyned with a ſubjection to God's Will, and runs along with it, then hath God ſtirred it up, and then look for ſomething to come: You know the Parable, how the unjuſt Judge heard the Widow, for her importunities ſake: So Luk. 18.5.
when God puts this Importunity into the heart, it is a ſign God means then to hear and anſwer.

3. After Prayer. This will appear in ſeveral Particulars; as,——

1. When God quiets and calms the Heart after Prayer, by ſpeaking ſomething to the heart, though what is ſpoken be not always diſcerned; as when you ſee an earneſt or importunate Suitor going in to a great Man, exceeding anxious, but coming out very chearful, contented, and quiet in Spirit, you would conceive that certainly ſomething hath been ſaid to him, which gave him encouragement: So when thou goeſt to God, and hath been importunate in a Buſineſs, and thy Deſires were exceedingly up for it, and then thou riſeſt up with thy Mind calmed and ſatisfied, and thou feeleſt the anxiouſneſs, the ſolicitude of thy heart about the thing taken off and diſpelled, this is a good ſign that God hath heard, and will return Anſwer to the full: When Hannah out of much bitterneſs and with ſtrong deſires, had poured her Soul out unto the Lord, it is ſaid, That ſhe looked no more ſad; 1 Sam. 1.
and then God gave her a Son, a Son of her De- 18.
ſire.

2. When God gives an obedient, dependent heart, in walking before him, when that conſideration ſtill comes in as a curb unto Sin: If I regard iniquity in my heart, God will not hear me. When Pſal.66.18.
God doth ſtill after praying, keep the Soul in a more obedient frame of Spirit, when he keeps thee from uſing ill means, &c. it is a ſign that God hath heard thy Prayers, and thou ſhalt have Returns: David praying for his Life, Hear my Prayer, Pſ. 143. 1.
O Lord, give ear to my ſupplications; in thy faithfulneſs anſwer me, and in thy Righteouſneſs: —— Preſently after he prays for holineſs, knowing that Sin would enervate and ſpoil all his Prayers, Cauſe me to know thy way, wherein I ſhould walk: —— Teach 8, 10.
me to do thy Will.

3. When God after Prayer, ſtrengthneth the Heart to wait and expect for the Mercy deſired; when a man after Prayer, begins to wait rather than pray (though he prays ſtill) becauſe he looks now God ſhould perform; in this caſe, and at this time he may look for ſome good Anſwer from God. David having prayed, ſays to his Soul, Wait on the Lord, be of good courage, and he will ſtrengthen thy heart; wait, I ſay, on the Lord. Pſa.27.14.

Sect. 7. The Second Caſe. Suppoſe the thing I deſire ſhall not be anſwered, how may I aſſuredly know that God notwithſtanding doth hear my Prayers?

WE may reſolve this Caſe, if, 1. we obſerve theſe Particulars:

1. Whether thy Prayer was framed in a right manner? Didſt thou not pray abſolutely for ſuch Bleſſings as were never abſolutely promiſed? If ſo, no wonder thy Prayer is denied; or didſt thou pray conditionally? (as Chriſt prayed, If it be poſſible, &c.) then thy Prayer may be heard, and yet the things denied. For otherwiſe Chriſt had

Heb. 5.7. not been heard; when yet the Text ſays, He was heard in that he feared.

2. Whether there be not a reſervation in that Denial, for ſome greater Mercy, whereof that Denial was the foundation? If we had many of our deſires, we ſhould be undone: If the Child had lived for which David ſo earneſtly prayed, he would but have been a living Monument of his own ſhame; God therefore denied his Prayer, but after he gave him a Solomon.

3. Whether God doth not anſwer thee ſtill according to the ground of thy Prayer? Now the ground and intent of thy Prayer is after God's Glory, the Churches Good, thy own particular Comfort; it may be God denies the particular Mercy thou deſireſt, and yet he anſwers the ground of thy Prayer, his Glory ſhall be advanced, his Church preſerved, thy Comfort made up (even for that Prayer of thine) ſome other way.

4. Whether God yields not far to give thee ſatisfaction, as if he were tender of denying thee? So the Lord anſwered Abraham, when praying for Gen. 27. 8, 10. Iſhmael; O let Iſhmael live in thy ſight! God went as far in anſwering his Requeſt as might be; I have heard thee (ſaid God) and I have bleſſed him, and I will make him fruitful, and multiply him exceedingly, and he ſhall beget twelve Princes; but my Covenant I will eſtabliſh with Iſaac.

5. What effects that Denial hath upon the Heart? as,——

1. Whether thy Heart be enlarged to acknowledge God to be holy and righteous in his dealings with thee, and thy own unworthineſs the cauſe of his denying thee? I cry in the day-time (ſaith David) Pſ. 22. 2, 3. but thou heareſt not;——Yet thou art holy, O thou that inhabiteſt the Praiſes of Iſrael.

2. Whether God fills thy Heart with holy contentment in the Denial?

3. Whether thou canſt be thankful to God out of Faith, that God hath ordered all for the beſt, though he hath denied thee?

4. Whether thy Heart be not diſcouraged, but thou canſt pray ſtill, at leaſt for other things? It moves ingenuous natures to ſee men take Repulſes and Denials well, and ſo it moves God. Now if the Caſe be thus, if upon obſervation, thou canſt ſay, That thy Prayers, though denied, were conditional [if God will] that thou perceiveſt a reſervation in God's Denial, for ſome greater Mercy; that God anſwered thee, at leaſt, according to the ground of thy Prayers, that God yielded ſo far to thee, as if he were loth to deny thy Prayers; that thou feeleſt ſuch effects of Denial upon thy Heart as theſe;—— 1. An Enlargement to acknowledge God holy and righteous. 2. An holy contentment in the Denial. 3. A thankful Heart. 4. An Heart not diſcouraged howſoever. Surely then God hears, or God hath heard thy Prayers, although the particulars Suits are not accompliſhed.

Sect. 8. The Third Caſe. Suppoſe after Prayer, I obſerve all I can, and can by no means diſcover that either God will anſwer or hear my Prayers, what ſhall I do then?

WE may reſolve this Caſe by laying open the Duties appertaining to ſuch a Soul: Canſt thou not diſcern God's dealings, ſpy no returns of thy Prayers? it is then thy Duty—

1. To examine what is the Cauſe; and if the fault be in our Prayer, becauſe we did ask Jam. 4. 3. amiſs, we muſt endeavour by God's Grace to amend; or if the fault be in our ſelves, becauſe we are impenitent, we muſt firſt repent, and then renew our Prayers unto God.

2. To perſiſt and perſevere in our Prayers, without fainting, Continue inſtant in Prayer, as Hannah, and David, and Daniel, and Bartimæus, and that importunate Widow. Luk. 18. 1. Rom. 12. 12.

3. To expect the Lord's Leiſure: I waited patiently for the Lord (ſaith David) and he enclined unto me and heard my cry. Pſal. 40. 1.

4. To reſt in the good will and pleaſure of God: Let him do what ſeemeth him good: Who can tell but God in time may give thee a ſign of his good will towards thee, and that he hath heard thy Prayers? howſoever, it is the Lord that gives or denies, let him do what he pleaſe.

Sect. 9. The Fourth Caſe. Suppoſe the thing I deſire is anſwered, how may I aſſuredly know it was by my Prayers, and not out of common Providence.

WE may reſolve this Caſe by giving theſe Directions to the Soul, whereby it may be enabled to diſcern when and how things prayed for, come in by Prayer; As,

1. From the manner of God's performance: When God gives any thing in anſwer to prayers, he often diſcovers a more than ordinary hand of Providence in it: As,

1. By bringing it to paſs through many difficulties: Thus Peter was delivered out of Priſon at Act. 12. 6. 10. the Prayers of the Church; and we find, 1. He was ſleeping between two Souldiers; if they had wakened, he had been diſcovered. 2. He was in Chains, but they fell off. 3. The Keepers ſtood before the door, but they minded him not. 4. When one Watch is paſt, he paſſeth quietly through another. 5. When both thoſe were paſt, an Iron Gate flies open of its own accord: Now ſuch difficulties are there in many buſineſſes, which yet in the end are accompliſhed by Prayer; Iron Chains fall off, Iron Gates, Enemies Hearts fly open of their own accord, and though not in that miraculous manner, by the means of an Angel; yet no leſs wonderful.

2. By facilitating all Means, and cauſing them to conſpire to accompliſh the thing prayed for; thou haſt wind and tide, and a fair day, and all the way paved and plain before thee; there falls out a great conjunction and meeting of many Circumſtances together to effect it, which had influence into it, whereof if any one had been wanting, haply the thing had not been done: Thus, when Iſrael went out of Egypt (which was the accompliſhment of their Prayers) their Cry came up unto God, (ſaith Ex. 2. 32. the Text) how were all things facilitated? the Egyptians that detained them, then came and intreated them to go out; Riſe up, and get you forth Ex. 12. 13. from amongſt my People, ſaid Pharoah; yea, they were urgent upon the People, that they might ſend them 33. out of the Land; yea, they hired them to go out with 35. their Jewels of Silver, and Jewels of Gold and Rayment, and Pharaoh parts himſelf lovingly and fairly with them, and deſires their Prayers, Bleſs me 32. alſo; yea, to ſhew there was no reſiſtance, the Ex. 11. 7. Text ſaith, A dog did not move his tongue; the brute creatures did not diſturb them, though at midnight, when theſe Creatures uſe to be moſt obſtreperous through noiſes, eſpecially at Travellers.

3. By bringing it to paſs ſuddenly and unexpectedly: as the return of the Captivity of Babylon, which was the concluſion of many Prayers, was done in a trice; they were as men in a dream, they could ſcarce Pſ. 126. 1. believe it was ſo when it was done.

4. By doing above what was deſired, with addition of other Mercies; ſo Solomon asked Wiſdom, 1 King. 3. 12, 13. and God gave him more than he asked, Peace, Riches and Honour: When Prayers are anſwered, uſually Mercies come thick; the thing we prayed for, comes not alone.

5. By adding ſome ſpecial Circumſtance, as a token of God's ſpecial hand in it; ſuch a token as a man Pſa.86.17. himſelf often takes notice of, yea, and others alſo often take notice of it: Shew me a token for good (ſaith David) that others that hate me may ſee it, and be aſhamed. So when Abraham and Iſaac, and Abraham's Servant had prayed for a Wife for Iſaac, ſee by what a token God ſhewed that he had Ge.24.14. heard their Prayers; Rebekah was the firſt that came out, and if ſhe be the Woman appointed for Iſaac, (prays the Servant) let her offer me drink, and my Camels alſo, and thereby ſhall I know thou haſt ſhewed kindneſs to my Maſter; and God gave him the v. 26. token, and therefore the Servant bowed at it, and worſhipped the Lord: If we take notice of the Sign, it was ſuch as argued in her a kind, courteous diſpoſition, which therefore (it may be) he ſingled out as a token of a meet Wife, eſpecially to be looked at in the Marriage-choice.

2. From the Time, wherein the thing prayed for is accompliſhed: God who doth all things in weight and meaſure, ſhews his Wiſdom and Love as much in the ſeaſon, as in giving the thing it ſelf; God conſidereth all times of thy Life, and Iſa. 49.8. ſtill chuſeth the beſt and fitteſt to anſwer thy Prayers in: In an acceptable time have I heard thee, (ſaith God) As,——

Iſa. 65.24. 1. It may be at the very time when thou art moſt inſtant and earneſt in Prayer: Whilſt they are yet ſpeaking (ſaith God) I will hear; a time cull'd out on purpoſe, that they might reſt aſſured it was an anſwer to their Prayers.

2. At that time when thou haſt moſt need, and when thy heart is moſt fitted for Mercy, (i. e.) when thy heart is moſt ſubdued, and thy Luſts mortified; for then thou art fitteſt to reliſh his goodneſs alone, and not to be drawn away with Pſ. 10. 17. the carnal ſweetneſs that is in the thing, Thou wilt prepare their heart, thou wilt cauſe thine ear to hear; thou wilt prepare their heart in taking it off from the thing deſired, in making it quieted and contented with God in the thing, and then thou wilt hear] this is the fitteſt time.

3. From the Effects upon thy heart that prayeſt: As,——

1. If the thing granted by thy Prayers, draw thy heart more near unto God: Things granted out of ordinary Providence only, do increaſe our Luſts, and are Snares to us; but if thou findeſt God's dealing with thee, to be a kindly Motive to cauſe thee to mourn for ſin, and to be a reſtraint Pſal. 6. 8. againſt ſin, it is a ſign it was a fruit of thy Prayer: Away from me ye workers of Iniquity (ſaith David) God hath heard the voice of my weeping: Or,

2. If thou findeſt God's dealings with thee, to be a kindly Motive to cauſe thee to rejoyce in God more than in the thing obtained, it is a ſign it was a Fruit of thy Prayer. Hannah bleſſing 1Sam. 2.2. God for her Child, My heart rejoyceth in the Lord, ſaith ſhe, She rejoyceth not ſo much in the Gift, as in the Giver; not ſo much in her Child, as in his Favour that anſwered her Prayer.

3. If the Mercy obtained by thy Prayer enlarge thy heart with thankfulneſs: Self-love makes us more forward to pray than to give thanks, for Nature is all of the craving and taking hand; but where Grace is, there will be no eminent Mercy gotten with much ſtrugling, but there will be a continual, particular thankful remembrance of it a long while after, with much enlargement: Great Bleſſings won with Prayer, are worn with thankfulneſs; ſuch a man will not aſk new, but withal, he will give thanks for old: Thankfulneſs, of all Duties proceeds from pure Grace, therefore if thy Spirit ſtirs thee to it, it is a ſign he made the Prayer: See Hannah's Song when ſhe had her deſire, 1 Sam. 2. 1.

4. If the Mercy gotten by Prayer, doth encourage thee to go to God another time, to pray again more confidently and fervently, it is a ſign thou haſt gotten the former Mercy that way: The Lord hath heard me (ſaith David) and I will call Pſ.116. 2. upon him as long as I live.

5. If the thing obtained by thy Prayer, doth make thee careful to perform thy Vows made in Prayer: I will pay thee my Vows (ſaith David) which Pſ. 66.13, my lips have uttered, and my mouth hath ſpoken, when 14. I was in my trouble: and the reaſon follows, becauſe that verily God hath heard me when I cried to him: And ſo Eliphaz in Job, doth connect and hang theſe together; Thou ſhalt make thy Prayer to him, Job 22.27. and he ſhall hear thee, and thou ſhalt pay thy vows.

6. If the thing granted by thy Prayer, prove a real and ſtable Mercy; if the Curſe be taken out, and it have few thorns and vexations in it: When the Bleſſing of God maketh rich, he addeth no Pro.10 22. ſorrow with it. It may be the heart was put to ſome trouble in the deferring, but it is recompenced by the more ſetled, conſtant, unmixt ſweetneſs in the enjoying.

7. If the Mercy obtained brings with it aſſurance of God's Love, and an evidence of his Favour: I need not make that a Sign, for when this comes with a Mercy, it carries its own evidence; you will then know well enough that it is the fruit of Prayer.

Sect. 10. The Fifth Caſe. Suppoſe that others join with me in thoſe Prayers now anſwered, how ſhould I know that my Prayers had an hand in obtaining thoſe Anſwers as well as any others?

WE may reſolve this Caſe by theſe obſervations: As,——

1. If thy heart did ſympathize and accord in the ſame holy affection with thoſe others in praying, then it is certain thy voice hath helped to carry it: If two of you ſhould agree on earth (ſaith Mat.18.19 Chriſt) as touching any thing that they ſhall aſk, it ſhall be done for them of my Father which is in heaven: If two of you ſhall agree (the Word is συμφωνήσωσι) q. d. If you harmonially agree to play the ſame Tune, for Prayers are Muſick in God's Ears, and ſo called, Melody to God) if you Eph.2.29. agree not only in the thing prayed for, but in your Affections, for it is the Affections that makes the Conſort and Melody: If the ſame holy Affections were touched and ſtruck by God's Spirit in thy heart, that was in others, then didſt thou help to make up the Conſort; and without thee it had been imperfect; yea, without thee the thing might not have been done; for God ſometimes ſtands upon ſuch a number of Voices (as when he named ten perſons in Sodom) and ſo one Voice may caſt it.

2. If thy heart be filled with joy in the accompliſhment of what was prayed for, it is an evident argument that thy Prayers did move the Lord to effect it, as well as the Prayers of others. When good old Simeon ſaw his Prayers anſwered in ſending the Meſſiah into the world, he was even willing to die through Joy, and thought he could never die in a better time: Lord now letteſt Luk. 2.29. thou thy Servant depart in peace, according to thy Word.

3. If the thing concern others, and thy heart be thankful for a Bleſſing on others, prayed for by thee with others, it is a ſign thy Prayers had ſome hand in it: Thus Paul prayed for the Theſſalonians, and when Timothy came and brought him 1 Theſ. 3. 6, 7, 8. good Tidings of their Faith and Charity, he was not only comforted, but in his raviſhment he cries, What thanks can we render again to God for you?

4. If the thing concern thy ſelf which was prayed for by others, helping thee in their Prayers, what cauſe haſt thou but to think it was granted for thy own Prayers, and not for theirs only? It may be indeed that God heard thee the ſooner through the help of their Prayers: I know this ſhall turn to my ſalvation through your Prayers, ſaid Paul: Phil. 1.19. but if God ſtirs up thy heart to pray for thy ſelf, as well as others pray for thee: then God that gave the an heart to Pray, hath heard thy Prayers alſo, and hath had a reſpect to thee as well (if not more than to others; becauſe it concerneth thy ſelf eſpecially, as being a more ſpecial Mercy to thee than to others.

Sect. 11. The Sixth Caſe. Suppoſe I am aſſured upon former Obſervation, that God hath heard and anſwered my Prayers in their Particulars, what muſt I do then?

WE may reſolve this Caſe, by laying open the Duties appertaining to ſuch a Soul.

Art thou now aſſured of Anſwer and Return of thy Prayers, it is thy Duty then——

1. To be thankful to God for his Goodneſs, Bleſſed be the Lord (ſaith David) becauſe he hath heard the voice of my Supplications. Pſal. 28.6.

2. To love God the more, and to reſolve with confidence to call upon him ſo much the more: I love the Lord, becauſe he hath heard the voice of my Supplication; becauſe he hath enclined his Ear to me, therefore will I call upon him as long as I live. Pſal. 116. 1, 2.

3. To have ſuch a deportment and demeanor ever after, as is ſuitable to ſuch who have commerce and entercourſe with God; as, to depart from Sin, Pſal. 6. 8. to apply our hearts to obedience, and to pay all our vows: Away from me ye workers of iniquity, God hath heard the voice of my weeping:——And I will pay thee my Pſal. 66. vows which my Lips have uttered:——For God hath 13, 14, 19. heard me.

SECT. 13.

Sect. 1. A Form of Prayer in Scripture-phraſe.

IN this Form obſerve——

1. A Deſcription of God.

O God, the God of the ſpirits of all fleſh——
Num. 16. 22. Who haſt created the heavens, and ſtretched them out, who haſt ſpred forth the earth and that which Iſa. 42. 5. cometh out of it, who giveſt breath unto the people upon it, and ſpirit to them that walk therein.—
Amo.4.13. Who haſt formed the Mountains, and created the Wind, and declareſt unto man what is his thought, who makeſt the morning darkneſs, and treadeſt Pſa.104.1. 2, 3. upon the higheſt places of the earth.——Who art cloathed with Honour and Majeſty.——Who covereſt thy ſelf with light as with a garment, who layeſt the beams of thy Chambers in the waters, who makeſt the clouds thy Charriots; who Iſa. 40.12. walkeſt upon the wings of the wind.—— Who haſt meaſured the waters in the hollow of thy hand, and meted our heaven with thy ſpan, who comprehendeſt the duſt of the earth in a meaſure, and weigheſt the mountains in ſcales, and the hills in a balance.——Who giveſt the Sun for a light by Jer.31.35. day, and the Ordinances of the Moon and of the Stars for a light by night, who divideſt the Sea
Amos 5.8. when the waves thereof roar.——Who madeſt the ſeven Stars and Orion, and turneſt the ſhadow of death into the morning, and makeſt the day Amos 9.6. dark with night.——Who hath built thy ſtories in the heaven, and haſt founded thy troop in the earth, who calleſt for the Waters of the Sea, and poureſt them out upon the face of the earth.——

2. A begging of Audience.

De. 26.15. Look down from heaven thy holy habitation.—
1 King. 8. 28. Have thou reſpect unto the prayer of thy ſervants, to hearken to the cry and to the prayer which thy Pſa.141.2. ſervants pray before thee this day.——Let our prayer be ſet forth before thee as incenſe, and the lifting up of our hands as a morning Sacrifice.——

3. A Confeſſion of the ſins of our firſt Parents, and of our original pollution.

Gen. 1.26. We confeſs, O Lord, thou createſt our firſt Parents in thine own Image, and breathedſt into their noſtrils the breath of Life; but the Serpent beguiled
Gen. 3. 6. them, and they did eat of the forbidden fruit, whereby all Mankind (being then in their loyns) alſo ſinned, and now come ſhort of the Rom. 3. 23. Glory of God. ——And beſides that Sin which is imputed to us, we find in us inherent a proclive diſpoſition to all manner of evil; we are riſen up Num. 32. 24.
in our Fathers ſtead an increaſe of ſinful men, to augment yet the fierce anger of the Lord towards us.——We know, Lord, that in us, that is, in Rom.5.18. our fleſh dwelleth no good thing; for though to will be preſent with us, yet how to perform that which is good we find not.——We ſee another Rom.7.23. 24.
Law in our members warring againſt the Law of our minds, and bringing us into captivity to the Law of ſin which is in our members. O wretched men that we are, who ſhall deliver us from the body of this death?

4. A Confeſſion of actual Tranſgreſſions in thought, word and deed.

And yet, O Lord, to fill up the meaſure of our condemnation, to this ſin original we have added ſins actual: who can ſay I have made my heart clean; I am pure from my ſin? Sinners we are by imputation, having the ſin of our firſt Parents charged upon us, Sinners by real communication, Pro. 20.9.
being heirs to our forefathers corruption, and ſinners by actual commiſſion.——We have ſinned in thought; our ſouls, which ſhould have been ſeaſoned with ſweet Meditations on thy Goodneſs, and Mercy, and Grace, and Heavenly things, they are and have been peſtered and aſſailed with the black and helliſh thoughts of Atheiſm, Deſpair, diſcontent, blaſphemy, and ſoul-vexing fears. O what a world of ignorance; vanity of mind, diſeſteem of thy mercy, timorouſneſs, diſcontent, unbelief, miſ-interpreting the Lord's doings, ſelf-confidence, and ſolitary muſings on the temptations of Satan, have neſtled into our hearts?
Thou, Lord, ſeeſt that the wickedneſs of man is great upon earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart is only evil continually.—— Gen. 6. 5.
We confeſs, Lord, we have ſinned in word; our Tongues, which ſhould have been as Trumpets to have ſounded thy Praiſe, they have been deeply guilty of blaſphemy, murmuring, ſwearing, forſwearing, lying, ſlandering, rayling, reviling, brawling, ſcoffing, boaſting, diſcovering of ſecrets, defence of ſin, flattery, giving ill counſel, ſowing ſeeds of diſcord amongſt neighbours, fooliſh jeſting, idle words, ſinful ſilence, raſh cenſurings, behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth, the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity.—— It hath Jam. 3.5,6 defiled our whole bodies, and hath ſet on fire the Mat.12.36.
courſe of Nature, and it is ſet on fire of Hell, O
Lord, if of every ſinful Word, and of every idle Job 9. 13.
word we muſt one day give account, what a fearful account have we to make? If we juſtifie our ſelves, our own mouths will condemn us,—the Job 20.27.

heaven ſhall reveal our iniquity, and the earth ſhall riſe up againſt us.——We confeſs, Lord, we have ſinned in deed: witneſs our worldlineſs, and covetouſneſs, and pride, and malice, and luſts, and lukewarmneſs, and impatiency, and diſcontentedneſs, and vain-glory, and ſelf-love: O the wrongs we have done, O the goods we have ill gotten, and the time we have miſpent, and the Sabbaths we have prophaned! O the pollutions, diſtempers, eſtrangedneſs from God in our Souls! O the villanies, vanities, and rebellions of our whole Life! O Lord, we may as well number the ſtars as our ſins; but thou knoweſt them all, thou Pſal. 90.8. haſt ſet our iniquities before thee, our ſecret ſins in the light of thy countenance.

5. A Confeſſion of Sins before and ſince Converſion.

And however thou haſt been pleaſed of thy rich Mercy in Chriſt, to tranſlate ſome of us from darkneſs to light, yet Lord, how infinitely did we ſin before our converſion? O our omiſſions of good Duties in that graceleſs time, which were as large as the duties enjoyned in all thy Commandments: O the actual ſins and groſs iniquities, and heinous, crying crimes we then committed with all Job 15.16. manner of greedineſs! O we cannot but ſay out of our own experiences, abominable and filthy is man, which drinketh iniquity like water!—— Pſal. 38.4. For our iniquities are gone over our head, and as an heavy burden they are too heavy for us to bear. ——But that which infinitely adds to our ſins, how have we ſinned ſince converſion, by our many relapſes, and frailties, and falls? Alas Lord, our profitable and pleaſing ſins in former times have broken in upon us again and again; and notwithſtanding we have confeſſed, and prayed, and promiſed, yet ſtill we have relapſed and backſliden; in our holy things we have been peſtered with wandrings and diſtractions of heart, with coldneſs, and dulneſs, and unprofitableneſs, to this day innumerable ſins paſs by us that we take no notice of, ſo that we cannot but with holy David complain, who can underſtand his Errors? Lord, cleanſe Pſa.19.12. us from our ſecret faults.

6. A Confeſſion of ſins againſt light of knowledge, checks of Conſcience, Vows, Promiſes, Law, Goſpel, &c.

But O the aggravation, that we ſhould ſin againſt knowledge; that we ſhould abuſe the Jude 4. good Gifts of God, and turn his Grace into wantonneſs, that we ſhould ſin againſt our Covenant many a time renewed; that we ſhould grieve that good Spirit of God whereby we are Eph. 4.30. ſealed unto the day of Redemption: That we ſhould wrong the bleſſed Name of God, his Word, Religion, and Profeſſion of Godlineſs; that in the Land of uprightneſs we ſhould deal Iſa. 26.10. unjuſtly, and not behold the Majeſty of the Lord: this makes our ſins becoming exceeding ſinful. ——We confeſs, Lord, we have Ezra.9.10. ſinned againſt the Law, we have broke all the Commandments, from the firſt to the laſt; and now O our God, what ſhall we ſay after this? ——We confeſs, Lord, we have ſin- Rom.1.16. ned againſt the Goſpel; we are aſhamed of the Goſpel of Chriſt, though it be the power of God unto Salvation to every one that believeth. Pſal. 42.1. ——We have not thirſted after Chriſt, our Souls have not panted after him, as the Hart that pants after the Water-Brooks.——We have not loved the Lord Jeſus in ſincerity, we Eph.6.24. have not conſidered him as the ſweetneſs of our Hearts, and life of our Souls.——We have not counted all things loſs and dung for Phil. 3. 8. the excellency of the knowledge of Chriſt Jeſus our Lord.——We take no pains to know v. 10. him, and the power of his Reſurrection, and the Fellowſhip of his Sufferings, or to be made conformable to his Death.——We hide as it Iſa. 53. 3. were our faces from him, and will not have him reign over us.——We have not believed the Promiſes of Salvation, nor relied upon Chriſt for Juſtification, Sanctification and Salvation: O Chriſt, there is none of us that ſtirreth up himſelf Iſa. 64. 7. to take hold of thee.——And howſoever, Lord, thou haſt given us ſpace to repent of Rev.2.21. all our abominations that we have committed, yet we have not repented.——We confeſs Pſal. 32.5. not our tranſgreſſions unto the Lord, that thou mighteſt forgive the iniquity of our ſin.—— Thou haſt indeed ſtricken us, but we have not Jer. 5. 3. grieved; thou haſt conſumed us, but we have refuſed to receive correction; we have made our faces harder than a Rock, and have refuſed to return.——But above all, O the inſolencies, and outrages, and acceſſes, and tyrannies of our Boſom-Sins, of our Darling-Delights! Theſe are they that rage and tyrannize it over us more than any of the reſt—— Theſe are as our right hands, and right eyes, and we are loth to cut them off, or pluck them Mat. 5.29. 30. out.——

7. An Accuſing, Judging, and Condemning our ſelves.

And for all theſe ſins, thou our God haſt puniſhed Ez. 9. 13. us leſs than our iniquities deſerve.——It is of the Lord's Mercy that we are not conſumed, Lam.3.22. and becauſe his compaſſions fail not.——If thou ſhouldeſt lay Judgment to the Line, and Iſa. 28.17. Righteouſneſs to the Plummet,——thou mighteſt make thy anger and jealouſie to ſmoke againſt us, Deut. 29. 20. and all the Curſes that are written in thy Book, thou mighteſt lay upon us, and blot out our Name from under Heaven.——Thou mighteſt make Deut. 32. 42. thy Arrows drunk with Blood, and thy Sword might devour Fleſh from the beginning of Revenges;——thou mighteſt give us our Portion Pſal. 9.17. with the wicked that are turned into Hell, and all the Nations that forget God.——

8. Humiliation, or Mourning for Sin.

But Lord, thou haſt ſaid, if we confeſs our ſins, thou art faithful and juſt to forgive us our ſins, 1 Joh. 1.9. and to cleanſe us from all our unrighteouſneſs.—— Thou haſt promiſed he that covereth his ſins ſhall Prov. 28. 13. not proſper, but he that confeſſeth and forſaketh his ſins ſhall have mercy.——Thou haſt pro- Jer. 3. 12. claimed, Return thou, backſliding Iſrael, ſaith the Lord, and I will not cauſe mine anger to fall upon you, for I am merciful, ſaith the Lord, and I will not keep anger for ever; only acknowledge thy iniquity, that thou haſt tranſgreſſed againſt the Lord thy God.——Thou haſt threatned, I Hoſ. 5.25. will go and return to my place till they acknowledge their offence; in their affliction they will ſeek me early.——Thou haſt ſweetly encoura- Job 33. 27, 28. ged, he looketh upon men, and if any ſay I have ſinned, and perverted that which was right, and it profited me not, he will deliver his Soul from going into the pit, and his life ſhall ſee the light. ——And, O Lord, in reference to theſe thy

Jer. 14. 20. Sayings, and Promiſes, and Proclamations, and Threats, and Incouragements, we embolden our ſelves to acknowledge our wickedneſs, and the Jer. 3. 25. iniquities of our Fathers. ——Lord, we lye down in our ſhame, and our confuſion covereth us, we cannot but ſay, we have ſinned againſt the Lord our God, we and our Fathers from our youth even unto this Day, and we have not obeyed the voice of the Lord our God.———And O that now we could go and ſeek the Lord, as the Children of Iſrael and Judah together, going and weeping, Je. 50. 4, 5. ———asking the way to Zion with our Faces thitherward. ——— This is a time of mourning, and our ſins have given us occaſion of ſorrow.—— Ezek 7. 17. O that we were on the mountains likes doves of the valleys, all of us mourning, every one for Ezek. 36. 26. our iniquity.———Why Lord, it is thy Promiſe, a new heart will I give you, and a new ſpirit will I put within you, and I will take away the ſtony heart out of your fleſh, and I will give you an heart of fleſh.——— O make all our men like Pſ. 102. 9. Davids this day; let them eat aſhes like bread, and and mingle their drink with very weeping.—— Nahum. 2. 7. O make all our women like Maries and Marahs this day, and let their maids lead them as with the voice of doves, tabring upon their breaſts.—
O let us take to us words, and turn to the Lord, Hoſea 14. 2, 3. and, ſay to him, Take away all iniquity, and receive us graciouſly, ſo will we render the calves of our lips! Aſhur ſhall not ſave us, we will not ride upon Horſes, neither will we ſay any more to the works of our hands, ye are our Gods.——
It is true Lord, we have many a time idolized the Creature, and abaſed the Creator; we have many a time crucified Chriſt, and trod under foot the Blood of the Lamb; but if Chriſt would but look on us as he did on Peter, then ſhould we look upon Chriſt whom we have pierced, and Zach. 12. 10. mourn for him as one that mourneth for his only Son, and be in bitterneſs for him, as one that is in bitterneſs for his firſt-born: then ſhould we make a great mourning as the mourning of Hadadrimmon, in the valley of Magiddon.———Why Lord, help us to mourn for our ſins, and when thou haſt caſt us down and humbled us to purpoſe, then Pſa. 34. 18. lift us up again.———Surely, thou art nigh unto them that are of a broken heart, and ſaveſt ſuch as be of a contrite Spirit.——When men are Job 22. 29. caſt down, then ſhalt thou ſay, There is lifting up, and thou ſhalt ſave the humble perſon.———To Pſal. 126. 5, 6. this purpoſe thou haſt promiſed, They that ſow in tears ſhall reap in joy; he that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious ſeed, ſhall doubtleſs come again with rejoycing, bringing his ſheaves with him ———And to this purpoſe was Chriſt anointed to preach good tidings unto the meek, Iſa. 61. 1, 2, 3. to bind up the broken-hearted, to proclaim liberty to the Captives, and the opening of the priſon to them that are bound;———to comfort all that mourn, to appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them beauty for aſhes, the oyl of joy for mourning, and the garment of praiſe for the ſpirit of heavineſs.——— And is it not thine own Iſa. 57. 15. ſaying, I dwell in the high and holy place, with him alſo that is of a contrite and humble ſpirit, to revive the ſpirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones?———O for a dram of this reviving to our poor drooping Souls!

Sect. 2. The Second Part of Prayer is Petition for { Our ſelves.
Others.

1. WE petition for pardon of ſin for his { Names ſake.
Chriſts ſake.
Promiſe ſake.
Mercies ſake.

O that we might have our requeſt, and that Job 6. 8.
God would grant us the thing that we long for.—— Even that it would pleaſe him to cover Nehe. 4. 5.
our iniquities, and cauſe our ſins to be blotted out from before him.——Dear Father, we are ſure nothing can hinder mercy from us but ſin:
O pardon our ſins for thy names ſake, O pardon Pſal. 25. 11.
our iniquity, for it is great.———And to this end, O look on Chriſt, that Lamb that takes away John 1. 29.
the ſins of the world. It is he that bears our iniquities.—— It is he that once appeared to Iſa. 53. 11.
put away ſin by the ſacrifice of himſelf.——It is Heb. 9. 26.
he that by himſelf purged our ſins.——It is he Heb. 1. 3.
that bare our ſins on the tree in his own body. 1 Pet. 2. 24.
——— It is he that loved us, and waſhed us from our ſins in his own blood.———It is he that is the Rev. 1. 5.
propitiation for our ſins, and not for ours only, 1 Joh. 2. 2.
but alſo for the ſins of the whole world.———
It is he that was wounded for our tranſgreſſions, that was bruiſed for our iniquities; the chaſtiſement of our peace was upon him, and with his Eſa. 53. 5.
ſtripes are we healed.———O then for his ſake, and in his blood waſh us throughly from our Pſal. 51. 2.
iniquities, and cleanſe us from our ſin.———
And to this end remember thy promiſes.——Thou haſt ſaid, I will cleanſe you from all your iniquity whereby ye have ſinned againſt me; I will Jer. 33. 8.
pardon all your iniquities whereby ye have ſinned, and whereby ye have tranſgreſſed againſt me.———Thou haſt ſaid, I, even I am he that Iſa. 43. 25.
blotteth out thy tranſgreſſions for my own ſake, and will not remember thy ſins.———Thou haſt ſaid, I have blotted out as a thick cloud thy Iſa. 44. 22.
tranſgreſſions, and as a cloud thy ſins. ———
Thou haſt ſaid, I will forgive their iniquity, Jer. 31. 34.
and I will remember their ſin no more.——Thou haſt ſaid, Come now, and let us reaſon together; Iſa. 1. 18.
though your ſins be as ſcarlet, they ſhall be as white as ſnow; though they be red like crimſon, they ſhall be as wool. ——— And thy Prophets have ſaid, Who is a God like unto thee, Mich. 7. 18.
that pardoneſt iniquity, and paſſeſt by the tranſgreſſion of the remnant of thy heritage? Thou retaineſt not thy anger for ever, becauſe thou delighteſt in mercy.———We preſs thee (Lord) with thy own precious promiſes; have we nothing of our own to bring thee but ſin? Why thou haſt a Son that thou lookeſt upon, whom thou haſt ſet forth for our propitiation: would Rom. 3. 25.
we have a pledge of thy undeſerved favour?
Why thou haſt given thy only begotten Son, that whoſoever believeth on him ſhould not John 3. 16.
periſh, but have everlaſting life: do we require further aſſurance of thy unſpeakable kindneſs?
Why thou haſt made large Promiſes, and entred into Covenant with us, that ſhall never fail on thy part. Dear Father, thou waſt pleaſed to wait long for our converſion, when we went aſtray, and wilt thou not much more have mercy upon us now we pray unto thee? Thou haſt commanded us to forgive our Brethren till ſeventy times Luke 17. 34.
ſeven times, if they ſin and repent; and ſhall our God require ſo much of us (whoſe compaſſions are not as the drop of a Bucket to the Ocean, if compared with thy mercies) and wilt thou not much more deal tenderly with us, who have ſinned indeed often, and many a time, but now deſire to repent us? When we excuſed our Diſobedience, and charged our Faults upon thee, thou ſet'ſt thy love on us; but how much more now Lord, when we accuſe our ſelves, and pray for thy mercy? Good Lord, miſery is the object of mercy; the greater our diſtreſs, the more glorious will be the grace of God in our deliverance; if thou wilt be merciful to our ſins, then ſhall thy glory appear, Nehem. 5. 9. and our hearts ſhall be enflamed with thy love, we ſhall walk in thy fear, and our tongue ſhall ſing of Pſa. 51. 14. thy goodneſs. —— Yea, our tongues ſhall ſing aloud of thy righteouſneſs.

2. For ſealing of this Pardon in our Conſciences.

And for aſſurance hereof to our poor Souls, O Pſa. 50. 23. ſhew us the ſalvation of God. —— Seal up the aſſurance of pardon in our hearts and conſciences by the gracious teſtimony of thy holy Spirit; O let thy ſpirit teſtify it to us, and perſuade us, 2Cor. 1. 22 hereof, and confirm it unto us by his ſeal and earneſt. —— It is thy ſpirit that bears witneſs Rom. 8. 16. with our ſpirits, that we are the children of God. —— We deſire thy ſpirit both to teſtify it to us, and with us; O give us the teſtimony of a renewed conſcience enlightned by the ſpirit, and directed by thy word, whereby we may come 1Cor. 2. 12. to know what God hath wrought in us. Give Rom. 8. 15. unto us the ſpirit of Adoption, whereby we may Rom. 14. with confidence and comfort cry Abba Father. 17. Give us joy in the Holy Ghoſt, —— and the 1Pet. 3. 21. anſwer of a good Conſcience towards God. ——

3. For juſtifying and lively Faith.

Eph. 2. 8. Give us even that gift of God, a ſoul-ſaving, and a juſtifying Faith. O that we could roll our ſelves upon the Lord, and ſtick faſt unto his mercy! we have found a rich treaſure of Promiſes in thy word for the pardon of our ſin, only create in us the hand of Faith, that we may effectually receive what in mercy thou reacheſt forth: O we Mat. 6. 39. are of little Faith. —— Encreaſe it Lord, though it be but as a grain of muſtard-ſeed. Work in us Mat. 7. 20. not a dead faith, but that which may be rich in Jam. 2. 20. good works, —— following after peace with all Heb. 12. 14. men, and holineſs, without which none ſhall ſee God. —— And becauſe our Righteouſneſs is ſo impure, even as menſtrous rags, O cloath us with the robes of Chriſts righteouſneſs, that we may be Phil. 3. 9. found in him, not having our own righteouſneſs, which is of the law, but that which is through the Faith of Chriſt, the righteouſneſs which is of God by Faith. ——

4. For Repentance unto Life.

Give us Repentance; it is thine own word, Acts. 3. 36. that unto us hath God raiſed up his Son Jeſus, and ſent him to bleſs us in turning away every one of us from our iniquities. —— O that we could draw Jer. 9. 1. this vertue from Chriſt! Oh that our heads were waters, and our eyes fountains of tears, that we might Pſal. 6. 6. weep day & night for our ſins! Oh that all the night we could make our beds to ſwim, that we could Mat. 1. 21. water our couches with our tears! —— That we could repent in ſack-cloath and aſhes.—Oh that there were ſuch hearts in us that we might repent, and 2Tim. 2. 26 recover our ſelves out of the ſnare of the Devil! Jer. 8. 6. —— Oh that we could lay our ſin to our hearts, that we could repent us of our wickedneſs! ſaying, Jer. 31. 18, What have we done? Oh that we could 19. as Ephraim bemoan our ſelves thus, Thou haſt chaſtiſed us, and we were chaſtiſed; as a bullock unaccuſtomed to the yoak, turn thou us, and we ſhall be turned, thou art the Lord our God. Surely after we are turned we ſhall repent, and after we are inſtructed we ſhall ſmite upon our thigh; we ſhall be aſhamed, yea, even confounded, becauſe we bear the reproach of our youth. —— Oh that remembring our ways, and all our doings wherein we have been defiled, we could loath our ſelves in our own ſight for our iniquities, and for our abominations. —— Ezek. 20. 43.

5. For Saving Knowledge.

Give us ſaving Knowledge; give us thy Spirit of Truth, who will guide us into all truth. —— Incline Joh. 16. 13 our Ears to Wiſdom, and our Hearts to Underſtanding, Prov. 22. —— that we may cry after Knowledge, and lift up our voice for Underſtanding; that we may underſtand the Fear of the Lord, and find the 3. Knowledge of God; that we may be enabled to cry 5. unto thee, our God, we know thee. Haſt thou not promiſed, ſaying, after thoſe days I will put my Law in their inward Parts, and write it in their Jer. 31. Hearts, and will be their God and they ſhall be my 33, 34. People? And they ſhall teach no more every man his Neighbour, and every man his Brother, ſaying, Know the Lord, for they ſhall all know me from the leaſt of them unto the greateſt of them. — Oh! that thou would'ſt give us this Knowledge; that thou would'ſt fill us with this Knowledge as the Hab. 2. 14. Waters cover the Sea. —— That thou would'ſt Eph. 1. 17. give unto us the ſpirit of Wiſdom and Revelation 18. in the knowledge of Chriſt, that the Eyes of our Underſtanding being enlightned, we may know what is the Hope of his Calling, and what the Riches of the Glory of his Inheritance is in the Saints. —— Dear Father, is not thy Secret with the Righteous? Is not the Secret of the Lord Pſal. 25. 14 revealed to them that fear him? —— O then give us 1 John. 2. this Unction from the Holy One, that we may know 20. all things.

6. For love to God, Chriſt, Saints, Enemies.

Give us a love of God, and of Chriſt, and of all things that belong to him; thou haſt ſaid, Thou Deut. 30. wilt circumciſe our Hearts, and the Hearts of our 6. Seed, to love the Lord our God with all our Heart, and with all our Soul, that we may live. —— Set us on fire, burn us; make us new, and transform us, that nothing beſides thee may live in us: O wound very deeply our hearts with the dart of thy love, —— and that (becauſe our ſins, which are many, are forgiven us) we may love thee not Luke 7. 47. a little, but much. —— Wilt thou (Lord) love the Image, and ſhall not the Image much Cant. 5. 8. more love the Pattern? O that we were ſick of love, —— That our Underſtandings, Wills and Affections, were all overflown, overcome and amazed, that our Faintings were inflamed towards thee, and even melted into thee! O ſweet Jeſu, touch Luke 8. 45. our Souls with thy Spirit, that vertue may go out of thee into us, and draw us unto thee: Let the Cant. 1. 3. ſavour of thy Oyntments (whoſe very breath is love) be ever in our Noſtrils; —— give us the Flagons Hoſ. 3. 1. of the new Wine of the Kingdom, which may lift up our Souls above our ſelves in our loves, that we may forget the low and baſe Loves of this World, and by an heavenly Exceſs may be tranſported into an heavenly Love, that we may imbrace Chriſt, who is the Lord from Heaven, John 6. 38. with a love like himſelf. —— Nor do we deſire only the pleaſures of Love and joys of thy Union, but that we may become Generative and Fruitful; far be it from us to love thee like an Gen.30.1. Harlot, and not like a Wife: O let us deſire Union with thee, and to bring forth Fruit unto thee; we will not ceaſe to cry unto thee, Give us Children or elſe we die: ——— give us even Fruits of thy Spirit which may reſemble thee, and be Pledges to us of thy Union with us.———And that we may bring forth Fruits wholly thine, and not anothers beſides thee, O burn and conſume whatſoever would grow one with our Souls beſides thee; O let the fire of thy Spirit ſo wholly turn our Souls into a ſpiritual Fire, that the droſs of the Fleſh and the World being wholly conſumed, we may be ſpiritual, and ſo bring forth Fruits only Rom. 7. 4. to the Spirit.———But alaſs! ſometimes it is, that the oyntments of Love are not ſeen or felt, and then our Love cools; and if ſo, O then ſweet Saviour look upon us in mercy; one look of thine will awaken our loves, and make us weep bitterly, Luke 22. 60, 61. that we loved thee ſo little, whom to love ſufficiently, our beſt and mightieſt loves are moſt Iſa. 65, 1. inſufficient.——— Prevent our ſeeking with thy ſeeking; be thou preſent with us in thy Providence and Power, when thou ſeemeſt to be far off Cant. 2.3. us in the taſte of thy Sweetneſs and fruition of Cant. 3.4. thy Loves: and then when we have regained thee, we will hold more hardly, and keep more faſtly, and love thee more vehemently, and provide a ſtock of Loves in the Summer againſt the Winter, if it return any more.———And give Joh.13.34. us alſo to love one another, as Chriſt hath loved us.———Make our love to abound yet more and Phil. 1. 9. more towards all Men, eſpecially them that are of Gal. 6.10. the Houſhold of Faith.———Yea, Lord, cauſe us Mat.5.44. to love our very Enemies, to bleſs them that curſe us, to do good unto them that hate us, and to pray for them that deſpightfully uſe us, and perſecute us.———

7. For ardent Zeal, Patience, Perſeverance, and all all Graces.

Give us a zeal after God and his Truth, good Cauſes and good Men.——— Let us not reſt Rev. 3.16. contented with a luke-warm Profeſſion, being neither Pſ.119.20. cold nor hot,——— but make our Souls to break for the longing that they have to thy Judgment Ro.12.11. at all times.———O that we were fervent in Spirit, zealouſly affected always in every good thing! John 2.17. ———O that the zeal of thy Houſe might even 2 Cor.9.2. eat us up,———and that our zeal might provoke Jer. 20. 9. very many!———O that thy word were in our hearts as a burning fire,———that we were weary with forbearing, and that we could not ſtay!——

Give us the grace of Patience; thou haſt foretold us, Joh.16.33 that in the world we ſhall have tribulation, Act.14.22.———and through much tribulation we muſt Heb. 12.1, 2, 3. enter into the Kingdom of God.———Make us therefore run with patience the race that is ſet before us, looking unto Jeſus the author and finiſher of our Faith, who for the joy that was ſet before him endured the Croſs, deſpiſing the Shame, and is ſet down at the right hand of the Throne of God, O help us to conſider him, that hath endured ſuch contradiction of ſinners againſt himſelf, leſt we be wearied and faint in our Minds.— 1 Pet. 4. 12, 13. Let us not think it ſtrange concerning the fiery Tryal,——— but rather rejoyce inaſmuch as we are partakers of Chriſts Sufferings, that when his glory ſhall be revealed, we may be glad alſo with exceeding joy!———O teach us to reckon Rom.8.18. with our ſelves, that the Sufferings of this preſent time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which ſhall be revealed in us!———Haſt thou not ſaid, that if we be reproached for the name of Chriſt, happy are we? O therefore that 1Pet 4.14. it may be given to us in the behalf of Chriſt, Phil.1.29. not only to believe on him, but alſo to ſuffer for his ſake!———Help us to deny our ſelves, and Luke9.23. to take up our Croſs daily, and follow our Saviour.———

Give us Perſeverance; and to this end make us to build on thy Promiſes; thou haſt ſaid, The Pſal.37.23. ſteps of a good man are ordered by the Lord.— 24. Though he fall, he ſhall not utterly be caſt down, for the Lord upholdeth him with his hand.——— Thou haſt ſaid, To your old age I am he, and Iſa. 46.4. even to hoary hairs will I carry you; I have made, and I will bear, even I will carry, and I will deliver you;——— for this God is our God for ever, he will be our guide unto death.——— Pſ.48. 14. O give us one heart, and one way, that we may Jer.32.39. 40. fear thee for ever, and make thou an everlaſting Covenant with us, that thou wilt not turn away from us to do us good: and put thy fear in our hearts, that we may not depart from thee.——Help us (Lord) to hold faſt the Profeſſion of our Faith Heb.10.23 without wavering.—Confirm us unto the end, that Rom. 11. 29. we may be blameleſs in the day of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.———

Give us all other ſaving Graces:———A lively Rom.8.24 Hope that may ſave us.———Yea, in theſe times let us with Abraham againſt hope believe in hope.—— Rom.4.18. A Joy in the Holy Ghoſt, thou haſt ſaid, Light Pſa.97.11. is ſown for the righteous, and gladneſs for the upright Pſ.147.11. in heart.———A filial Fear, becauſe thou takeſt pleaſure in thoſe that fear thee.——— In Mal. 3.17. that day when thou makeſt up thy Jewels, they ſhall be thine, and thou wilt ſpare them as a Man ſpareth his Son that ſerveth him.———Humility, and lowlineſs in Spirit, caſting down Imaginations, 2 Cor. 10. 4. and every high thing that exalteth it ſelf againſt the Knowledge of God.———Meekneſs of Mind, that the Wolf may dwell with thee Lamb, and Iſa.11.6,7. the Leopard may lye down with the Kid, the Calf, and the young Lyon, and the Fatling together, whilſt a little Child may lead them.——Peace of Conſcience, and Peace of God, that may keep Phil. 4. 7. our Hearts and Minds, that may guard or garriſon our whole Souls.———

8. For growth in Grace.

And for our further aſſurance, O give an increaſe and growth to all theſe Graces! O do thou guide us continually, and ſatisfie our Souls in drought! O make fat our Bones, that we may be Iſa. 58.11. like a watred Garden, and like a Spring of Water, whoſe Waters fail not!———O let the Sun of Righteouſneſs ariſe with healing in his wings, Mal. 4. 2. that we may go forth, and grow up as the calves of the ſtall!———O that thou wouldſt make our Prov.4.18. path as the path of the Juſt, even as the ſhining Light, that ſhineth more and more unto the perfect day!—— O that thou wouldſt be to us as dew Hoſea14. 5, 6. unto Iſrael, that we might grow as the Lilly, and caſt forth our Roots as Lebanon, that our Branches might ſpread, and our Beauty be as the Olive-tree, and our Smell as Lebanon!———Haſt thou not ſaid, I will pour water upon him that is thirſty, Iſa.44.3,4. and floods upon the dry ground; I will pour my ſpirit upon thy ſeed, and my bleſſing upon thy off-ſpring, and they ſhall ſpring up as among the graſs, as the willows by the water-courſes?——O put into our hearts their ways, who go from ſtrength to ſtrength, every one of them in Zion appearing before God!

9. For Purifying, and power againſt Sin.

Nor pray we only for remiſſion, but cleanſing;
not only for pardon and ſenſe of pardon, but for purifying and power againſt ſin, and deliverance from ſin.—Holy God, thou haſt promiſed, That Iſa. 4. 3, 4. he that is left in Zion, and he that remaineth in Jeruſalem, ſhall be called holy, even every one that is written among the living in Jeruſalem, when the Lord ſhall have waſhed away the filth of the Daughters of Zion, and ſhall have purged the Blood of Jeruſalem from the midſt hereof, by the ſpirit of Judgment and by the ſpirit of Burning.
——Holy God, thou haſt promiſed, That Jer. 31. 33. thou wilt put thy Law in our inward Parts, and write it in our Hearts.——Holy God, it is thy Promiſe, the firſt Promiſe, and the Foundation of all other Promiſes, That the ſeed of the woman ſhould bruiſe the ſerpents head; that Chriſt
Gen. 3. 15. ſhould break the power and dominion of Satan.
Heb. 10. 38 —O that having theſe Promiſes, we could live by Faith, that we could reſt upon God, and believe, that God of his free grace in Chriſt will purge us from the filthy remainders of ſin, and Eph. 4. 24. renew us more and more after his own Image, in righteouſneſs and holineſs: Surely Lord, thou haſt ſaid it, and therefore it is no preſumption, but true obedience to aſſure our ſelves of whatſoever thou haſt promiſed, and entred into bond and covenant freely to give. He that believeth Joh. 7. 38. on thee, as the Scripture ſaith, out of his belly ſhall flow rivers of living water.——Chriſt is Joh 1. 16. a Fountain of Grace, ever flowing, and ever full;
and of his fulneſs we receive grace for grace;
there is no Grace but from Chriſt, and no Communion with Chriſt but by Faith: O therefore that we could imbrace him by Faith for our Sanctification, that ſo we might be filled with the Gifts of his Grace in our meaſure!——It is Chriſt is 1 Cor. 1. 30 our Wiſdom and Sanctification, as well as Righteouſneſs and Redemption.——It is Chriſt who took upon him our Nature, and ſanctified it by his holy Spirit, that we being made one with him, might receive the ſelf ſame Spirit, (though in meaſure) to ſanctifie us.——O that our Jeſus would juſtify our Perſons, and ſanctify our Natures, and enable us to thoſe Duties of Holineſs that he requires!
that he would make us unto him a Kingdom

10. Againſt all evil of ſin, the World, Fleſh, and Devil.

O Lord, we have many potent Enemies that daily war againſt us, the World, Fleſh and Devil; and our Strength is too weak to vanquiſh
the Allurements of this World, to repreſs the Luſts of our rebellious Hearts, to defeat the Policies of Satan,——much more to change and cleanſe our own Hearts; but Lord thou haſt promiſed, O help us to believe, that God will aid, aſſiſt, and bleſs us in our Endeavours, yea, and do the whole 1 Joh. 2. 15. work for us.——Grant (Lord) that we may not love the World, nor the things of the World,— that our Hearts may not be over-charged with Luke 21. Surfeiting and Drunkenneſs, and the Cares of this ſin to reign in our mortal Bodies, that we ſhould

Rom. 6. 12. obey it in the Luſts thereof; neither ſuffer us to 13. yield our Members as Inſtruments of Unrighteouſneſs unto ſin, but unto God as thoſe that are alive from the dead,——that being now made
22. free from ſin, and become the Servants of God, we may have our Fruit unto Holineſs, and the end everlaſting Life.——Grant Lord, that we may be ſober and vigilant, becauſe our adverſary the 1 Pet. 5. 8.

CHAP. XV. SECT. I.

OF THE Nature of Reading
THE SCRIPTURES,
What it is.

THE ſecond Duty, in reference both to ſecret, private and publick Ordinances, is Reading the Holy Scriptures, which is nothing elſe but a kind of holy Conference with God, wherein we enquire after, and he reveals unto us himſelf and his will; when we take in hand therefore the Book of Scriptures, we cannot otherwiſe conceive of our ſelves then as ſtanding in Gods Preſence, to hear what he will ſay unto us: So much the Prophet ſeems to imply, when he expreſſeth his conſulting with Gods Word, by that phraſe of going into the ſanctuary of God (i. e.) in going in unto God; Pſa.73.17. as going into the Sanctuary is termed, 2 Sam. 7. 18. 2 Sam. 7. 18. So by reading the word, we come in unto God, we ſtand in the preſence of God, to enquire at his mouth.

Sect. 2. Of fit times and ſeaſons for reading the Scriptures.

Eccle. 3. 11. THere is a ſeaſon to every purpoſe under the Sun, ſaith Solomon: The obſervation whereof not only adds grace to every good Action, but many times facilitates the work it ſelf we have in hand: Now the times and ſeaſons moſt convenient to this Duty of reading the Scriptures, are (beſides the Sabbath) left to Christian Wiſdom; only we have general commands to be frequent and diligent in meditation of the Word, Joſh. 1. 8. Pſ. 119. 97. and the particular times may be either uncertain and occaſional, or conſtant and ſet.

For the firſt, we may have occaſions to read the Scriptures, to reſolve us in doubts, Pſal. 73. 17. to comfort us in afflictions, Pſal. 119. 50. to direct us in matter of advice, Pſal. 119. 24. to guide us in our way, Pſal. 119. 105. to aſſiſt us in temptations, Eph. 6. 17. Such or the like occaſions may make us to have recourſe to the Word extraordinarily.

For the ſecond, reſpect muſt be had both to order and proportion; for the former, viz. Order, godly men have accuſtomed to begin the day with religious Exerciſes, as with Prayer, Pſal. 5. 3.—— 55. 17.——88. 13. Now although Prayer and the Reading of the Word be two diſtinct Exerciſes, yet they mutually help one another, and conſequently are fit to be joyned together: And as we muſt thus begin the day, ſo it is very fit to cloſe up the day with the ſame Duties:——The Evening was David's time, Pſal. 55, 17. and Iſaac's time, Gen. 24. 63. For the latter, viz. Proportion of Time to be allotted for this Exerciſe, it muſt indifferently reſpect both the Duty, that we read all Scripture: And the Perſon that undertakes it, for more time is required of Husbands, Parents, Magiſtrates, Miniſters, than of others; though all muſt ſet apart ſome time for this Duty; but that I may in general commend the practice of this Order and Proportion to all, I ſhall compoſe a Calender, to ſhew how we may read all the Scriptures over in a year.

Sect. 3. Of the manner of preparation before the Reading of the Scriptures.

THere is a double Preparation needful, as firſt to the undertaking, ſecondly to the performance of the Duty: 1. For the undertaking of the work, we had need to be prepared with a firm and conſtant reſolution before we go about it, partly becauſe of the ſluggiſhneſs of our carnal Natures to holy Duties, and of our unconſtancy and unſtedfaſtneſs in perſiſting and going through with them to the end; and partly, becauſe we know how dangerous it is Luk. 9. 62. to put one hand to the plough and look back. Now the grounds upon which our Hearts muſt be ſetled in the firmneſs of ſuch Reſolutions, muſt be drawn,——

1. From the ſenſe of our own blindneſs and Prov. 30. 3. ignorance, who of our ſelves have not the knowledge nor underſtanding of a Man, as Agur acknowledgeth.

2. From aſſurance that this is the means ordained by God to help us out of ignorance: We have a more ſure word of prophecy, whereunto ye do well 2 Pet. 1. 19. that ye take heed, as unto a light that ſhineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day-ſtar ariſe in our hearts.

3. From the delight which we may find in the uſe of it: This delight drew holy David to the continual meditation of it; the ſweetneſs of the word Pſal. 119. 96, 97. ariſing out of its ſuitableneſs to his ſanctified Nature, overcame David.

4. A Mans Heart (being thus confirmed with a full purpoſe and ſetled reſolution to undertake and continue conſtantly in the ſtudy of the holy Scriptures) muſt be more particularly prepared to the work it ſelf.

1. By cleanſing the Heart of all Superfluity and Jam. 1. 21. Nautineſs; of all wordly Thoughts and Cares, of all unquiet Paſſions of Anger, Fear, Joy, Sorrow, &c.

2. By awing the Heart with due reverence of God before whom we ſtand, becauſe he can find us out in all our Failings, as knowing our Pſal. 139. 2. very Thoughts afar off, much more having all our & 119. 168 Ways before him, and being one who will not forgive our wilful tranſgreſſions: Such Conſiderations will cauſe us to receive the Word with that Iſa. 66. 2. trembling of Heart which God ſo much reſpects.

3. By ſtirring up in our ſelves a ſpiritual Appetite to the Word, ſuch as Job found in himſelf who eſteemed the words of his Mouth more than his neceſſary Food; and David in himſelf, who opened his mouth Pſal. 119. 131. and panted, and longed for his Commandments; which Pro. 27. 7. Appetite ariſeth both from the ſenſe of our Emptineſs (for the full Soul loaths the honey-comb) and from the fitneſs of the word to ſupply unto us whatſoever we want and hunger after, as being the Food of our Souls.

4. By awaking our Faith; and to this purpoſe we muſt conſider, that it is the word of him that Iſa. 45. 19. ſpeaketh Righteouſneſs, whoſe Faithfulneſs is to all Pſ. 119. 90. Generations; and that God hath made it his Power Rom. 1. 16. to Salvation, mighty through him to caſt down ſtrong 2 Cor. 10. 5. holds, and hath promiſed, that it ſhall not return Iſa. 55. 10, 11. empty, but ſhall ſurely execute that for which it was ſent.

5. By ſoftning the heart and making it plyable; and to this purpoſe we muſt caſt aſide our own Wills and Wiſdoms, which ſtiffen our Hearts againſt Gods Counſels, and ſeek after the Spirit of Tenderneſs, which is called, The opening of the heart, Acts 16. 14.

6. By lifting up the Heart unto God in Prayer; to open our eyes, to enlarge our hearts, to incline our heart to his teſtimonies, to keep them to the end, and (according to his promiſe) to ſend his Spirit, Pſ. 119. 18. and to lead us into all truth: Some ſhort effectual & 119. 32. Prayer to this purpoſe, to cloſe up our Medita- & 119. 36. tions in this preparation of our ſelves to the & 119. 112 reading of the Word, repreſenting unto God our Joh. 14. 16, 30. dependance on him alone, to proſper us in the uſe of his own Ordinance, ſeldom returns without a gracious anſwer.

Sect. 4. Of the neceſſary Duties in Reading of the Scriptures.

THe Duty now Fallen upon, it is good for our profiting to obſerve theſe Particulars:——

1 That (in the beginning of our reading in the Bible, or of each Book in the Bible) we view and read over ſome Analitical Table, that ſo we may better mark the drift and ſcope of the Holy Ghoſt, and that we may with ſingular eaſe and delight remember the ſame: To that purpoſe I have added ſuch a Table in the end of this Chapter, which may well ſerve for the propoſed Ends.

2. That we attend diligently to what we read: Now there is good reaſon for this Attention; 1. Becauſe of the Authority and Wiſdom of him
Prov. 4. 1. that ſpeaks; A Child muſt hear his Father, Prov. 4. 1. and a Subject muſt attend reverently to the Job 29. 21. Words of a Ruler, Job 29. 21. yet none of
Iſa. 63. 4. them is our Potter, as God is, Iſa. 63. 4. nor made us as he did, Pſal. 100. 3. nor conſequently, Pſ. 100. 3. can challenge ſuch reſpect from us as he may. 2. 3. That we keep ſtill Jeſus Chriſt in our eye, in the peruſal of the Scripture, as the end, ſcope and ſubſtance thereof: What are the whole Scriptures, but as it were the ſpiritual Swadling-cloaths of the holy Child Jeſus? 1. Chriſt is the Truth and Subſtance of all the Types and Shadows. 2. Chriſt is the Subſtance and Matter of the Covenant of Grace, under all Adminiſtrations thereof; under the Old Teſtament Chriſt is vailed, under the New Covenant revealed. 3. Chriſt is the Centre and Meeting-place of all the Promiſes; for in him all the

Yet there are ſome things in Scripture more important than others, and ſome more uſeful than others, for ſome perſons, times and occaſions: And to this purpoſe, I have towards the end of this Chapter, compoſed ſome Heads or common Places, for obſervation of ſuch profitable things.

5. That we approve and aſſent to that we read, both becauſe it is the truth of God, and becauſe till our Judgment approve it, we cannot believe it, nor poſſibly bring our hearts to yield to it true and ſincere obedience: It is true, that every godly man at all times gives his aſſent to every truth of God revealed unto him; yet that aſſent is not alike firm at all times, becauſe the Evidence by which he acknowledgeth it, is not alike clear at all times: but when it ſhines to us clearly, when men clearly diſcern the glory and beauty of thoſe heavenly Myſteries, and taſte of the goodneſs of them, they cannot but raviſh Readers with admiration, yea tranſport them with ſtrong and heavenly Affections of Love, Joy and Deſire, Pſal. 119. v. 97, 111, 131, 162. —— Obſerve, that it happens ſometimes ſuch ſpiritual Raptures may ſeize on a man even while he is reading the Scriptures; as the Diſciples Hearts burned within them, whilſt Luke 24. 32.
our Saviour talked with them going to Emmaus; and if ſo, then the heart opens it ſelf to cloſe with, and draw in that raviſhing Object, which will neceſſarily inforce the Soul to make a pauſe: —— And theſe pauſes rather further than hinder us in our work; for a godly ſpirit quicked by ſuch ſweet refreſhings, receives increaſe of alacrity, and is thereby ſtrengthened to go on with much greater life, to the end of this holy exerciſe.

Sect. 5. Of Duties after Reading the Scriptures?

THE End of ſtudying the Scriptures, is not only Knowledge, but Practice; wherefore after we have read any part of the Scriptures, our ſpecial care muſt be, ——

1. To recount and revolve in our minds thoſe things we have read, and ſeriouſly to meditate on them.

2. To ſearch out the true ſenſe and meaning of the words, together with the ſcope unto which they are directed, and if our own underſtanding be too weak, we may do well to make uſe of other mens Writings or Conference.

3. To ſingle out and apply what is of more ſpecial uſe to our ſelves in ſuch ſort, as if we were ſpecially named in any Precept, Reproof, Promiſe, Commination, Conſolation, or the like, which is the moſt effectual means to awaken and ſtir up Affections, and to ſet on our Endeavours, as manifeſtly appears in good Joſiah his example, 2 Chron. 34. 20, 21.

4. To work thoſe things upon our hearts, till they warm our Affections: This is beſt done ——

1. By appropriating them unto our ſelves; for that which affects us, is that which moſt nearly concerns us.

2. By believing what we read, as undoubtedly true: Thus David believed, Pſal. 119. 138, —— 151, —— 160.

3. By loving thoſe Counſels of God which we embrace by Faith, for their purity, perfection, righteouſneſs, and eſpecially for the uſefulneſs and wonderful benefit of them to our ſelves, in quick- Pſ. 119. 93. & 119. 98, 99. & 19. 7.
ning the Spirit, in giving Wiſdom, in converting the Soul; theſe eminent Excellencies of the Word cannot chuſe but make theſe heavenly Counſels precious in our eyes, and bring the Soul to delight in them exceedingly.

5. To adviſe about, and to reſolve upon the Means to bring all into Practice, eſpecially for thoſe Duties which are laid before us in reading the Word, or ſome part of the Word, at ſuch a particular time.

6. To examine our Ways, how near they come up to the Rule, or come ſhort of it; that on the one ſide we may be encouraged in conforming our practice to the Law, and withal rejoyce in the Grace of God, working in us with thankfulneſs; and on the other ſide, that we may be humbled and grieved for our failings, and driven to ſeek unto Chriſt, to make up our peace, and then look better to our ways for time to come, as David doth, Pſal. 119. 131, 132, 133, 176.

Sect. 6. A Calender purpoſed to ſhew how we might read over the Scripture ſeveral ways once in a year.

IN reading the Scripture, we ſpake of a proportion of time to be allotted for this Exerciſe; and that we may ſo proportion our reading with the time, that we read all the Bible or Scriptures over in a year, I had compoſed a Calender, ſhewing how we might read it over ſeveral ways.

1. By reading every day three Chapters or more in the Old Teſtament, and two or more in the New. 2. By reading three Chapters a day, and ſome more of the Pſalms. 3. By reading ſtrictly three Chapters a day of thoſe that edifie moſt. 4. By reading two Chapters a day, moſt of the Old Teſtament, and all of the New. 5. By reading only one Chapter a day out of ſuch Books as are principal, and a Rule for the reſt: But every private Chriſtian may with a little induſtry find out this, or ſome other Calender more beneficial to him; only with this, note, that after all theſe Forms, it were not unprofitable, if he read at leaſt every Morning a Pſalm, and every Evening a Chapter of thoſe that edifie moſt in their order, which is now the conſtant uſe of a weak Chriſtian in his Family-Duties.

Of late I am deſired to ſet down theſe Calenders before mentioned, eſpecially in reference to the fourth and fifth way. Indeed for the firſt three ways, they are common, and Chriſtians I ſuppoſe will need no Inſtructions, only for the two laſt; I ſhall direct; as thus: For the fourth way, read all Geneſis, excepting the tenth and thirty ſixth Chapters: and of Exodus, read the firſt twenty Chapters; read alſo all the Pſalms, dividing the 119th. Pſalm into three parts; and all the Prophets, and all the Chapters of the New Teſtament; and they will in all amount to ſeven hundred and thirty, which is two Chapters a day for the whole year round. And for the fifth way, read all Geneſis, excepting the tenth, and thirty ſixth Chapters; and all Iſaiah, excepting the 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, and 23 Chapters; and adding thereto all the Chapters of the New Teſtament (which are two hundred and ſixty) the whole ſum will amount to three hundred ſixty five, which is the number of the Days of the Year: or rather thus; read all Geneſis, excepting the tenth, and thirty ſixth Chapters; and all Iſaiah, excepting the 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23 Chapters; and all the Pſalms, dividing the hundred and nineteenth Pſalm into four parts; and all Matthew, Acts, Romans, Hebrews, Revelation, (all which I look upon as principal Books, and Rules for the reſt) and they will amount in all to 365 Chapters; which alſo is the number of the days of the Year.

Sect. 7. Of Heads or common Places of Obſervations for profitable things.

I Declared before (Sect. 4.) that in reading of the Scripture, it were good for our profiting to obſerve ſome ſpecial Paſſages, where we find things repreſented unto us, either more weighty in themſelves, or more proper to our ſelves, for our particular uſe and occaſions; and to that purpoſe I ſhall now compoſe ſome Heads or common Places for Obſervation of ſuch profitable things: Some I know herein adviſe theſe four Points; 1. That every Chriſtian following this Direction, ſhould make a little Paper-Book of a Sheet or two, and write on the top of every Leaf the Title that he would obſerve in his reading. 2. That he would obſerve ſuch Places as ſtare him in the face that are ſo evident, that the Heart cannot look off them. 3. That he ſet down under each Title only the Book, Chapter and Verſe, and not the Words; for that would tire him in the end; only when he hath done his Quarter-task, or years task, then he may write out the choiceſt things, as he thinks good. 4. That he look not at the profit of this courſe the firſt Week or Month; but let him conſider how rich it will make him at the years end: ſurely after he hath gathered them, he would not ſell his Collections for a great price, if it were but for the good they may do him in the evil day, when it ſhall come upon him. Of theſe I ſhall give you the experience of a weak Chriſtian, the unworthieſt Servant of Chriſt, in the following Section and Paragraphs.

Sect. 8. Common Places obſerv'd by one in his private Reading of the Scriptures.

1. PLaces that in reading, he found rebuke of Corruption in his Nature and Practice.

Num. 14. 11. 2 Chron. 32. 26. Iſa. 56, 11.—— 57. 17. Jer. 6. 13. Ezek. 34. 2, 3, 4. Hoſ. 7. 10. Mark 7. 21, 22, 23. Luk. 12. 15. Rom. 7. 23; 24. Epheſ. 5. 4. 1 Pet. 2. 1. Rev. 2. 5. —— 3, 15, 16, 17.

2. Places that hold forth Comforts againſt the burthen of his daily infirmities, inward temptations and afflictions of Spirit.

Gen. 15. 1. Exod. 34. 6, 7. Pſal. 18. 6 —— 23. 4, 5, 6. —— 34. 18 —— 42. 5, 11. Hoſ. 6. 1, 2. Mic. 7. 18, 19. Luke 7. 4. Job. 17. 19. Rom. 6. 14. —— 16. 20. 1 Cor. 10. 13. 2 Theſ. 3. 3. 1 Tim. 1. 15. Heb. 4. 15, 16. 1 Pet. 5. 10. 1 John 1. 9. —— 2. 1, 2, 12. — 5. 18.

3. Places that eſtabliſh his Heart againſt the fear of falling away.

1 Kings 6. 13. Job 8. 20. Pſal. 15. 5. —— 16. 8. —— 37. 24, 27, 28, 31. 89. 33, 34, 35. —— 94. 14. Iſa. 54. 10. Jer. 31. 3. —— 33. 20. 21, 25, 26. —— 37. 39, 40. Hoſea 2. 19, 20, Luke 22. 32. John. 6. 39. —— 13. 1. —— 14. 16. —— 17. 22, 23, 26, Rom. 8. 35, 39. —— 11. 29. 1 Cor. 1. 8, 9. Eph. 1. 13, 14. —— 4. 30. Phil. 1. 6. 1 Theſ. 5. 23, 24. 2 Theſ. 3. 3. Heb. 13. 5. 1 Pet. 2. 6. 1 John. 3. 9. — 5. 4

4. Places that directed him in his particular Calling.

Job 33. 23, 24. Iſa. 49. 4, 5. —— 50. 4. — 52. 11. — 58. 1. — 62. 1, 6, 7. Jer. 15. 19, 20, 21. —— 23. 22. —— 48. 10. Ezek. 3. 1, 18, 19, 20, 21. —— 33. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9. Mal. 2. 7. Mat. 10. 16, 17, 18, 19, 20. Acts 20. 20, 21, 23. 1 Cor. 1, 5. —— 14. 1, 12. 2 Cor. 4. 5, 6, 7. —— 6. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10. —— 12. 15. Phil. 2. 3. 1 Theſ. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 17. 1 Tim. 1. 4. — 4. 12.

5. Pro

8. Places that in reading the Scriptures, he found ſenſible comfort in.

Exod. 14. 13.——19. 4, 5, 6.——24. 10. 11, 17.——34. 6, 7, 8. Numb. 14. 18. Deut. 5. 29.——10. 15. 1 Sam. 30. 6. 2 Sam. 12. 13. 2 King. 20. 5. 2 Chron. 12. 12.——15. 4.——20. 21, 22, 27, 28. Job 5. 11, 17, 18, 19.——33. 25, 26. Prov. 3. 12. Pſal. 27. 13, 14.——31. 7.——37. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 32, 33, 34.——57. throughout.——119. 103,——138. 7, 8,——139. 17. Iſa. 29. 19.——30. 8, 19. 40. 1, 2.——42. 3.——48. 18.——49. 2. 13, 14, 15, 16.——52. 9.——54. 7, 8, 9, 10.——55. 7.——57. 15, 16, 18. Jer. 1. 9.——31. 3, 9, 20. Hoſ. 6. 1, 2.——11. 8. Mic. 7. 18, 19, 20. Mat. 5. 11, 12.——10. 26, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32. Mark 2. 17. Luke 6. 22, 23. Rom 8. 18, 31, 32. 2 Cor. 7. 6. Eph. 5. 1. Col. 1. 13. 2 Tim. 3. 11. Heb. 10. 35, 36, 37, 38.——12. 5, 6, 7, 8. James 5. 20. 1 John 3. 12, 13, 14.

9. Places hard to be underſtood, of which he deſired and endeavoured after reſolution, as (amongſt the reſt) all the Titles of the Pſalms; eſpecially of theſe Pſalms,——

3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 16. 22, 30, 34, 38, 39, 42, 45, 46. 50, 53. 56, 57, 60, 72, 88, 90, 92, 11, 120.

10. Other ſeveral Heads hath he noted in his private little Book, which only I ſhall ſet down for others imitation: As,——

1. Places that hold forth Experiences (or the Word written in our hearts) as the beſt Commentary.
2. Places that hold forth divers Points of Religion, that a Chriſtian may infallibly reſt on, and live and die in the aſſurance of them.
3. Places that juſtifie a preciſe reſpect of the leaſt ſin.
4. Places that ſhew the godly have ſuffered all ſorts of Croſſes, reproaches and ſlanders.
5. Choice Sentences, or memorable Sayings.
6. Promiſes of the Churches flouriſhing in the laſt times.

But above all, thoſe which concern our own particular, I eſteem moſt precious, and of ſingular uſe.

Sect. 9. Of the Uſe of theſe Collections.

THE firſt Head was; Places that in reading, he found rebuke of Corruption in his Nature or Practice: The uſe hereof, is to open his eyes, and to let him ſee the Anatomy of his Corruptions, and plainly to perceive what things are in his Nature, that God hath a quarrel againſt; ſo that now it is time, that as ſuch a one is guided by the finger of God, to know his Corruptions, ſo, he ſhould go to the Spirit of God for mortification.

The Second Head was, Places that hold forth Comforts againſt the Brethren of his daily infirmities inward Temptations, and Afflictions of Spirit: The Uſe hereof, is (when ſuch a particular Temptation comes) to eye the Promiſes, and to betake the ſoul unto the Lord for ſuccour promiſed. This is the Voice of Faith, “Be of good courage, here “is a Word of comfort, and there is help enough “in Heaven; the Devil may thruſt ſore at thee, “but he ſhall not get the victory, for God is with “thee; no queſtion, but for theſe ſins the Lord “beſtows on thee a pardon; only be vigilant and “watchful at all times, in all places, upon all “occaſions, againſt all ſins, with all the degrees “thereof, eſpecially againſt ſin of Conſtitution, “Calling, Company, corrupt Education: Indeed, this is the property of Faith, both to reſt on the Promiſes, and to keep waking; for nothing is more wiſely fearful than Faith, nor more cautious and circumſpect than holy Fear.

The Third Head was, Places that eſtabliſh his Heart againſt the fear of falling away: The Uſe hereof is, in caſe of any ſuch Doubt, to learn and think upon theſe precious Places that we may be ſettled in believing our perſeverance. This will encourage and quicken us in our Chriſtian Courſe, ſtabliſh us in well-doing, and hearten us againſt the greateſt Difficulties: Their Objection, who ſay, the Doctrine of aſſurance of not falling away, doth ſet open a door to all licentiouſneſs, is moſt falſe; for the more aſſurance of Salvation in a man's Soul, the more fear and trembling in a man's Courſe; he who is beſt aſſured, hath the moſt power of God's Spirit, and the ſtronger the Spirit of God is within, the more Holineſs and Fruits of Grace are without.

The Fourth Head was, Places that directed him in his particular Calling: The uſe hereof, is to conſider the ſeveral Texts, as the crowing of Cocks, which ring in his ears. When wilt thou ariſe? Why tarrieſt thou ſo long? Why ſtirreſt thou ſo ſlowly? See how the Sun rejoyceth as a Giant to run his Race; why then doſt not thou ſharpen thy ſelf to the work which God hath laid on thee? It may be thou meeteſt with many Troubles, Diſgraces, Oppoſitions; but what then? Is not this God's Command? Is not this a Service to the Lord Jeſus? Doth not the Lord aſſiſt? and is not he a Pay-maſter ſufficient? It may be thy Labour is in vain, thy Work is without fruit, and what then? Is not Labour thy Duty, and good Succeſs God's Work? What haſt thou to do with thoughts about the Bleſſing and ſucceſs of thy Labours? Look thou to thy Duty, view the Texts well, and obey them, and leave the Bleſſing of thy Endeavours to the good will and Pleaſure of God; lay aſide all care of the Event, and roll thy Burthen upon the Lord, who will ſuſtain thee: Thus Pſal. 55. 22. theſe Texts cry upon him to ſubmit to God's direction, and to depend therein upon his help and aſſiſtance. This is the double duty we all owe; Firſt, To ask counſel at the Word, and to follow the determination of it: for a true heart is ever obediential, ſubjecting it ſelf to the will of God, as the rule of Holineſs, acknowledging his Sovereignty, ſubſcribing to his Wiſdom, as moſt abſolute, and to his Ways, as moſt true, juſt and merciful. Secondly, to put over all our Buſineſs into God's hands, and in a manner out of our own, truſting in him for ability to the work, and for good ſucceſs to come by them.

The Fifth Head is, Promiſes that comforted him againſt outward Croſſes: The uſe hereof is to live by Faith in afflictions; for then is Faith in theſe Promiſes the only ſtay and ſupport of the Pſa. 27. 13. heart: I had fainted unleſs I had believed to ſee the Pſal. 119. 49, 50. goodneſs of the Lord in the Land of the living: —— This is my comfort in my affliction, for thy Word hath quickned me. In daily and lighter Trials, a man of mild and patient temper, may hold up the head; but when one deep calleth unto another, and the waves flow over our head, when Nature yieldeth, and the Heart fainteth, then to ſtand faſt, and be of good courage, is the only property of Faith, which is grounded upon the rich mercy of God, made over to us in theſe precious Promiſes. I cannot deny but Diſtruſt many times wrings from a Chriſtian ſuch Voices as theſe; Were it any thing but this I could bear it; but now if in conſcience of his impotency he will ſeek to Chriſt to make him able; and he will faſten himſelf upon him by a true and lively Faith in theſe Promiſes he may find ſtrength enough through his might, whereby to bear that comfortably, which otherwiſe he may find moſt intolerable. Faith drives a man out of himſelf, as not able to bear the leaſt croſs as he ought, and through the power of God, it enableth him to bear that beſt with which God is pleaſed to try him.

The Sixth Head is, Places that hold forth his Priviledges in Chriſt, above all the wicked in the world. The uſe hereof, is, 1. To believe and to rejoyce in them: All theſe Priviledges are mine, will a Soul ſay; the Lord hath given them for my portion, how then ſhould I glory in God, triumph over Death, Sin and Hell, through my Saviour? 2. To live unto him who haſt beſtowed them on the Soul: And now, O Iſrael (after all his kindneſs) what doth the Lord re- Deut. 10. 12, 13. quire of thee, but to fear the Lord thy God, and to love him and ſerve him with all thy heart, and to keep his Commandments? Oh (ſaith the Soul) how ſhould I now think much of Chriſt, and ſpeak much of Chriſt, and converſe much with Chriſt, and do much for Chriſt, and ſuffer much for Chriſt? And if I cannot do much, how ſhould I deſire and will to do much? which is accepted as if I did it: how ſhould I continually go to him, to enable me to do more than of my ſelf I can do? Nay, how ſhould I mourn and lament for what I have not done, either 2 Cor. 8. 12. through want of Ability or Will? This is the uſe of ſuch glorious Priviledges, to believe in Chriſt, and to live unto Chriſt.

The Seventh Head was, Places containing Paſſages that even melted his Heart: The uſe hereof, is, to call ſuch paſſages to remembrance in times of Mourning, only be ſure that our Affections prove ſpiritual, and not meerly natural. I make no queſtion but David's longing after God, Pſal. 42. 1, 2. his panting after the Word, Pſal. 119. 140. his delight in the ſweetneſs of it; Pſal. 119. 103. his trembling at God's Preſence, Pſal. 119. 120. his grief for the breach of his Law, Pſal. 119. 136. were ſpiritual Affections; for they were raiſed by ſpiritual Objects; ſo it is good for us to ſee to our Affections, that they be raiſed by ſpiritual objects; and then they will prove ſingularly uſeful; it may be indeed that when a Chriſtian peruſeth over again the ſame Texts, he ſhall not have the like operation as before: all the godly find by their own experience, that thoſe Inſtructions, Reproofs and Conſolations, which at ſometimes awaken, wound and revive their Spirits, at another time move them nothing at all; ſometimes the ſpiritual ſenſe is benumm'd, and they hear only by the hearing of the ear; but at other times, when thoſe ſenſes are awakened, they taſte, and ſee, and feel the ſame, and conſequently are affected, as Job was in that place, Job 42. 5. ſo if at any time we Job 42. 5. find theſe Meltings ſtirred in us by a ſpiritual Object, and that they are anſwerable to God's dealings with us, and that we can rejoyce or mourn ſeaſonably when God calls us to either, Eccleſ. 7. 14. I take this to be an holy and happy uſe made of thoſe Places.

The Eighth Head was, Places that in reading, he found ſenſible comfort and raviſhing of heart in. The uſe hereof is not only for preſent, but whilſt he lives in any diſtreſs; for then he may have recourſe to theſe Places, as to ſo many Wells of Joy; and if in his grief, one, or two, or ten will not comfort him, yet it may pleaſe God that ſome of them will have ſpirit and life in them; beſides, it cannot but marvellouſly eſtabliſh his Faith, when he remembers in how many diſtinct places of Scripture the Lord was pleaſed to comfort his Soul.

The Ninth Head is, Places hard to be underſtood, of which he deſired and endeavoured after reſolution: The uſe hereof is ſpecified in the very Title it ſelf; and the reſolution of the hard Texts cited (viz. thoſe Titles of ſeveral Pſalms) was by induſtry found out thus;

PSAL. 3. The Title is, A Pſalm of David when he fled from Abſolom his Son.

In which three things are contained; 1. The Author thereof, David King of Iſrael, who compoſed it. 2. The kind of the Pſalm; which word [Pſalm] is a word generally applicable to all thoſe ſpiritual Hymns, without particular application to the Ceremonies of perſons, time or manner of ſinging, as many others are; it was uſually delivered to the whole Quire, on the Sabbaths and Feſtival days, to be ſung by voice, and to be fitted to the Inſtruments uſed to be plaid upon in the Temple. 3. The expreſſion of the time, and occaſion of the compoſing thereof (i. e.) when he fled from Abſolom; the Story is ſet down 2 Sam. 15. Many were the Troubles wherewith this good King was afflicted, eſpecially after his Sin in the matter of Vriah, but never any ſo grievous, as to be driven out of his own Kingdom by his own Son, and his Subjects, to fall away from him, and to follow his Enemy, that ſought his Life and Throne.

Hereupon he makes his ſorrowful complaint unto God in this Pſalm, and appoints it to be ſung in the Church for his own comfort, and inſtruction to himſelf and the whole Church in ſuch times of Calamities.

And to this his pathetical Moan, he joyns this word [Selah] as a Note of the Attention of the Mind, and Stop or Pauſe in the Song.

For underſtanding the meaning and uſe of the word [Selah] note, that Selah is an Hebrew Word, and ſignifies as much as Amen, for ever, ſemper, in ſempiternum, in ſecula, &c. εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα, in æternum.

Hierom obſerves, that the Jews uſed one of theſe three Words in the end or concluſion of their writings or ſentences, or in the end of their Prayers, Amen, Selah or Salem, which ſignifies Peace; and it is noted to be a Word to expreſs an affirmation, or giving aſſent to that which is prayed or ſaid, as Amen is, or elſe it imports a Wiſh, Vow or Deſire, that the thing ſpoken be certain or may be for ever, (i.e.) that it may be performed: And it is to be noted, that it is uſually placed when ſome ſpecial thing worthy Attention or Obſervation is ſpoken or delivered, or ſome Deſire to be performed, whether it be in the End, or in any Sentence of the Pſalm, Prayer, &c. that by a little ſtop or pauſe of the Breath, the Matter, Worth or Excellency of the Thing may better be conſidered. And you ſhall not find it in any part of the Scripture, ſaving in the Pſalms, and in the Prayer of the Prophet Habakkuk, Hab. 3. 3. whereupon its obſerv'd by Druſius and others, to be a Word of note uſed in thoſe Ditties and Muſick, to make a ſtop or ſtay, that the Matter uttered may be better minded of the Hearers, either to affirm it by their aſſent, or to deſire the performance of what is ſung by that Intermiſſion, which ſeems to be moſt probable, becauſe the Greek Tranſlators of the Hebrew Bible expreſs the word Selah, by the Greek word διάστημα, which ſignifies a Stop or Intermiſſion, and ſo comes to be uſed in the Pſalmodie, and is rythmi Commutatio, a change of the Note, or viciſſitudo canendi, or as ſome ſay, alterius ſenſus exordium.

PSAL. 4. To the chief Muſician on Neginoth, a Pſalm of David.

The meaning is this, The Kingly Prophet David compoſed this Pſalm, and delivered it to be ſung and played in the Congregation, to him that was the chief Overſeer, Maſter, and ſet over the reſt of that Muſick or Conſort, upon the Inſtrument called Neginoth, which ſounded by playing on with the hand: To underſtand this the better, we may obſerve, that ſome Inſtruments uſed in the Jewiſh Temple, were πνευματικὰ, windy, ſuch as ſounded by Breath, and motion of the Fingers; as Organs that are blown with Bellows, and all hollow Inſtruments, as Trumpets, Rams-horns, Cornets, &c. ſuch as the Prieſts and Levites uſed in the holy Ordinances, from the Hebrew word Nechileth, which ſignifieth bored through or hollow.

Others were Pulſatilia, ſuch as were played upon with the fingers only, either by a Quill or otherwiſe; as the Harp, Dulcimer, &c. and had Strings; and of this ſort was the Inſtrument in the Title of this Pſalm, called Neginoth; now to every one of theſe ſeveral kinds of Inſtruments, there was one who excelled therein appointed Overſeer, or chief of the Conſort, and to direct thoſe under him in the Song, as there was of ſuch as were the Singers alſo for the Song: Hence it is, that the Pſalm being committed to be ſung to the Maſter of that Order, its ſaid, To the chief Muſitian, or to him that excelleth: A Pſalm of David.

PSAL. 5. To the chief Muſitian upon Nehiloth, a Pſalm of David.

The Title of this Pſalm may be underſtood by that which is ſaid in the Title of the Fourth Pſalm, differing in nothing but in the name of the Inſtrument, which was one of thoſe that were hollow, and ſounded by Breath, as the Hebrew word ſhews, as afore, &c. Some of the Hebrew writers ſay, it was a Muſical Inſtrument, whoſe Sound was like the Buzzing of Bees, or in regard of the Multitude of them, which are like an Army for number; and for that the Maſter of that Quire was appointed to pray for all Iſrael, as for all the Armies of the Iſraelites againſt the Armies of the Enemies that came againſt them in multitude and noiſe like a ſwarm of Bees; thereupon he gives the Title, Super exercitus Pſalmus David, &c. but unproperly, the Title having no conformity with the ſubſtance of the Pſalm; nor is it approved by our Interpreters, &c. but the firſt followed.

PSAL. 6. To the chief Muſician on Neginoth upon Sheminith, a Pſalm of David.

The meaning of this Title may be underſtood by that which is ſaid afore in the fourth Pſalm, ſaving that here is added [upon Sheminith] that is, it was played with the eighth Tune, Note or Strain, and ſung with a very clear and high Voice; we may better underſtand it by what is ſaid, 1 Chron. 15. 21. Mattithiah Eliphaleh, and others were ſet over the Baſe and Tenor; which is the Sheminith, or the Eight, or Diapaſon, as Muſicians call it; the meaning is, this Pſalm was to be ordered by the chief Muſician of that Conſort, to be ſung and played upon the Inſtrument Neginoth, with the higheſt and utmoſt ſtrain of Sound and Voice, or Inſtrument of ten ſtrings.

PSAL. 7. Shiggaion of David, which he ſung unto the Lord, concerning the words of Cuſh the Benjamite.

This was a Pſalm of David, ſung according to an ordinary Song, the beginning whereof was Shiggaion; for it is uſual with us alſo to make Songs to be ſung according to the Tune of ſome others that were made before.

Tremelius and ſome others, from the Hebrew Word, which ſignifies errare, &c. titles it Ode erratica, a wandring Sonnet, becauſe it is mixt, and conſiſts of divers Forms and Diſtinctions of Voice and Sound in playing artificially, joyned to compleat the Muſick, as we ſee reſembled in Prickſong.

And where it is ſaid, Concerning the words of Cuſh, it ſhews the occaſion of the Pſalm, namely, That when David was moſt unjuſtly ſlandered by his Enemies, and eſpecially by Cuſh, &c. he makes his Complaint unto God in this Pſalm, deſiring him to revenge his Innocency, &c. and to be delivered from the Perſecution of Saul and his Flatterers, ſuch as this Cuſh was [Words] (i. e.) Accuſations, &c. Who this Cuſh was is doubtful; Hierom affirms it to be Saul, and gives his Reaſon for it: Others (which I think is more probable) think it to be ſome Courtier of Ethiopia, whom Saul entertained in his Court, and was his ſpecial Favourite, as if he had been of his Family or Stock (for Cuſh is the Name of, and taken for Ethiopia) &c. this man for hatred againſt David, and flattery towards Saul, and falſly accuſed him to Saul, and practiſed all the Miſchief he could againſt him.

PSAL. 8. To the chief Muſician upon Gittith, A Pſalm of David.

The Title of this Pſalm is diverſly given; ſome thus, To the chief Muſician, pro torcularibus, for Wine-preſſes; as if it was a Prayer for fruitfulneſs of that Fruit, &c. Others, that it was compoſed by David in the City of Gath, when he was baniſhed; Others, that that kind of Inſtrument was invented and uſed there: That which is moſt probable and agreable with the Scripture is, That Gittith was an Inſtrument which Jeduthun and his poſterity, being Chief of the Third Claſſis, or Order of Muſicians, uſed to play upon, the Cuſtody whereof was committed to Obed-Edom the Gittite, and his Family, that was of the poſterity of Jeduthun, who for himſelf and his Brethren, for his time, miniſtred and uſed them in the holy Service, 1 Chron. 16. 37, 38.

PSAL. 9. To the chief Muſician on Muth-Labben, a Pſalm of David.

Muth-Labben was the beginning of a Tune, after which this Pſalm was to be ſung by the Quire, which contains a Thankſgiving for his Victory, and for the Death of Goliah, the Champion of the Philiſtins againſt Iſrael: therefore ſome read the Title thus: Magiſtro Symphoniæ de morte illius Bellatoris (i. e.) Goliah, &c. Which typically is applied to Chriſt, as a Song of Joy of the Church and Saints of God, for Chriſt's triumphant Victory over the Tyranny of Satan and his Kingdom of Sin and Death: Some divide the words, and make Muth-Labben two diſtinct words, and make the ſence to be this, Victori, ſuper mortem Filii, Pſalmus David, as if David had made it for the Death of his Son, as Selden; which ſence Auſtin miſlikes, and yields his Reaſons for the former, arguing from the ſubſtance of the Pſalm, in that he mourned, and rejoyced not for his Son's Death; therefore the firſt ſence is beſt.

PSAL. 16. The Title is, Michtam of David (i. e.) A Golden or excellent Pſalm.

The Meaning is, it is a Pſalm made by David, to be ſung after a certain Tune, named Michtam, well known among the Jews, which for the excellency, is compared to Gold, the beginning of which Tune was Michtam; or elſe it is taken for a Muſical Inſtrument of ſpecial eſteem amongſt them.

PSAL. 22. To the chief Muſician on Aijeleth Shahar (i. e.) The Hind of the Morning.

Some take Aijeleth Shahar, to be the name of ſome common Song, or to be the beginning of ſome ordinary Tune, according to which this Pſalm was ſung; that's the Geneva Note; which may be ſo: But Tremelius, Lyra, and divers take it to be otherwiſe, and better (as I think) who interpret thoſe Hebrew words, in, or at the dawning of the day, as you would ſay, between break of the day and Sun riſing; becauſe at that time the comfortable light or ſhine of the Day begins to break forth.

The meaning of the Title being this, David made this Pſalm, and appointed it to be ſung in the Church by the Prieſts and Levites every morning, ſo ſoon as the day brake out; at which time it was by the Law and Cuſtom their Duty to exerciſe their Miniſtry in the Quire, and to ſing Pſalms, 1 Chron. 9. 33. Which Service the Lord would have to be done by the Church, that their Faith and Expectation of Chriſt might daily be renewed and had in memory, the Prophecy of whoſe Kingdoms and Sufferings are repreſented in this Pſalm, looking (as the Day ſprings from on high) that Chriſt ſhould viſit them.

PSAL. 30. Title, A Pſalm or Song of David at the Dedication of the Houſe of David, which he compoſed to be ſung at the Dedication of his Houſe.

Which Title ſheweth the occaſion of this Song, and time when it was uſed, which was at ſuch time as he had built and finiſhed his Houſe of Cedar upon Mount Sion, which many good Authors think probable, and follow.

Or elſe when he was returned to his Houſe again in ſafety, after Abſolom in his Rebellion had prophaned it, and defiled it by his inceſtuous wickedneſs with his Father's Concubines, and ſo to purge it from all uncleanneſs, he dedicates it to the Lord, praying him to ſanctifie and make it holy again, that it might be bleſſed and acceptable to himſelf; 2 Sam. 16. 22. Which is the Opinion of learned Tremelius, and the matter of the Pſalm ſerves to imply as much; for it was a Cuſtom preſcribed by the Law, Deut. 20. 5. that whoſoever had built a new Houſe, he ſhould dedicate it unto the Lord, preſerve it from wickedneſs and ſinful abuſe, or (as you would ſay) make God the Landlord thereof.

And this Dedication imports three things:

1. That the Builder ſhould devote it unto God, to teſtifie that he would uſe it to Holineſs, and not to prophane or ſinful uſes.
2. To teſtifie his thankfulneſs for the work finiſhed:
3. To offer Prayers and Sacrifices, that God might continue and confer his Bleſſings upon them in it.

PSAL. 34. A Pſalm of David, when he changed his behaviour before Abimelech, and he departed.

This Title ſhews the occaſion of the Pſalm, rather than the Ceremony thereof; the Story is ſet down, 1 Sam. 21. 13. The Sum is, David flying from Saul to Achiſh, King of Gath, who is here called Abimelech, for his ſafety; but being diſcovered by thoſe about the King, and thereby in ſome danger, he changed his Behaviour; mutavit guſtum ſuum, ſome vultum; meaning, that out of Policy to free himſelf, he feigned a Diſtemper, as if he had been mad, before Abimelech, who after ſent him away, and ſo eſcaped the danger he feared, and thereupon makes this Pſalm of Thankſgiving for his deliverance. And it is to be noted, touching the Name of the King, that here he is called Abimelech, which was a common Name to all the Kings of that Country, as Pharaoh was to the Egyptians, Cæſar to the Romans; and in Samuel he is called Achiſh King of Gath, which was his more proper Name.

PSAL. 38. Title, A Pſalm of David to bring to remembrance.

A Pſalm which David made to be ſung by the Quire upon the Sabbath, after the Lord had afflicted him with ſickneſs and grievious chaſtiſements, to put himſelf (and others of God's Children in like caſe) in remembrance of his ſin, which cauſed them (which ſome think was the matter of Urias) and to admoniſh him of God's goodneſs, who had delivered him from thoſe puniſhments, and pardoned his ſin.

Some apply this to the Agonies of Chriſt; and his powerful victory over ſin, Death, &c.

PSAL. 39. Title, To the chief Muſician even to Jeduthun, a Pſalm of David, [Magiſtro Symphoniæ Jeduthun.]

This Pſalm was compoſed by David, and appointed to be ſung and played on Inſtruments to Jeduthun, even to Jeduthun (i. e.) To that excellent Muſician, who for the excellency of his skill, was the chief of his Order, and Father to thoſe of his Stock, which propheſied with a Harp, to give thanks and to praiſe the Lord, as 1 Chron. 25. 3.

PSAL. 42. Title, To the chief Muſician, Maſchil for the Sons of Corah.

A Pſalm committed to the Sons (i. e.) poſterity of Corah, of whom it ſeems Heman was chief for the third Claſſis, or Order of thoſe Muſicians, to whom the holy Service belonged, 1 Chron. 25. 5. All theſe were under the hand of the Father, viz. Heman, who ſung in the Houſe of the Lord with Cymbals, Pſalteries and Harps, &c. that it might not only be kept, but ſung by them in the Tune beginning with the Word Maſchil, that both the Singers and Hearers might be inſtructed in the Matter thereof, according to the ſignification of the Word.

Some think the Pſalm was made by the Sons of Corah, after his Rebellion againſt Moſes; to whom, after their Repentance, &c. God gave the Spirit of Prophecy, whereby they made divers Pſalms, whereof this was one, and therein foretold things to come of Chriſt, &c. Which Conceit Auguſtine miſlikes; neither doth it agree with the Matter of the Pſalm; beſides the Hebrew Letter Lamed, being prefixed to note the Dative Caſe, ſhews it was made by David, for them to act by their Muſick, and not of them; and that David in his Baniſhment, to ſhew his grief and zeal for the Houſe and Temple, and to quicken his Faith and Confidence in God for his comfort, made this Pſalm for his own and the Churches inſtruction in the like calamity, and delivered it to Heman and his Sons, to be uſed in the Song.

PSAL. 45. Title, To the chief Muſician, Shoſhannim, for the Sons of Corah, Maſchil, a Song of Loves.

Shoſhannim was an Inſtrument amongſt the Jews, that had ſix ſtrings, according to the Lilly that hath ſix Leaves or Stems, thereby called Hexacorda, upon which Inſtrument this Pſalm was delivered by David to be ſung to, and played to by Corah and his Poſterity: It begins with the word Maſchil (as afore) (i. e.) to give inſtruction to God's People, touching the ſpiritual Marriage and Love between Chriſt and his Church, whereof Solomon's Marriage with Pharoah's Daughter was a Figure and Type; and likewiſe to ſhew the perfect Love that ought to be between the Husband and the Wife; hence called, A Song of Loves, not unlike to Solomon's Canticles: And ſome put this difference between a Song and a Pſalm; that, where no Inſtrument, but the Voice only is, this, the contrary: Others ſay, the Song is, when the Inſtrument begins, and the Voice follows; a Pſalm, when the Voice or Ditty begins, and the Inſtrument follows.

PSAL. 46. Title, To him that excelleth upon Lamoth, or the chief Muſician for the Sons of Corah upon Alamoth.

Some underſtand this Alamoth to be the Tune of a Song; I take it otherwiſe (after the beſt Expoſitions) to be meant of an Inſtrument, not of a Tune; the meaning being thus much, A Pſalm committed by David to be ſung, and to him that was Chief of the Sons of Corah, to be played upon the Inſtrument called Alamoth; for 1 Chron. 15. 10. it is expreſly ſaid, that Zechariah played with Pſalteries upon Alamoth, and then they played upon that Inſtrument, and ſo then ſung the Pſalm or Ditty.

PSAL. 50. Title, A Pſalm of Aſaph.

Some think it is ſo called, for that Aſaph was the Author of it, having the Gift of Prophecy, which is but a weak reaſon, becauſe all the reſt were endued with a Prophetical Spirit as well as he. Auguſtine, and other learned Divines take it to be ſo called, not for that Aſaph made it, but becauſe it was committed to him and his Poſterity to be the Singers thereof, 1 Chron. 25. 2.

PSAL. 53. Title, To the Chief Muſician, upon Mahalath Maſchil.

Hierom thinks Mahalath to ſignifie a Tune of the whole Quire, or Company of Singers, and that David committed it to be ſung by the whole Company of Levites, &c. But others better take it to be an Inſtrument, ſuch as was made to ſound by breath and blowing, by reaſon of the hallowneſs thereof; the reſt is expounded before.

PSAL. 56. Title, To the Chief Muſician upon Jonath, Elem, Rechochim, Michtam of David, when the Philiſtims took him in Gath.

The Words of this Title in the Original, have a double ſignification, and may be interpreted either Metaphorically, a dumb Dove; for ſo Jonah ſignifieth, in a ſtrange or far Countrey; ſo Hierom: or more properly, for a Soul ſuffering violence in a far Country; for howſoever uſually the firſt word is interpreted Columba a Dove; yet it is taken alſo in the other ſenſe properly, and in its natural ſignification, for Soul-ſuffering violence; in both ſences David applieth this Title to himſelf in his great diſtreſs: for David by a Metaphor compares himſelf to dumb Doves in a far Country; becauſe when he was driven out of Judea, his own Countrey, by Saul, that ſought his Life, and from the Worſhip of God, and forced to fly to Gath amongſt the Philiſtims, yet with patience, meekneſs and ſilence, eſcaping, he neither ſought revenge, though it was in in his power, nor ſhewed any impatience, but betook himſelf in ſilence unto God, as if he had been dumb and Mourning like a Dove; and we may apply this Pſalm to Chriſt, of whom he was Type.

Or, which is better approved by Junius, he referreth it (which ſence the word likewiſe bears) to the ſoul-ſuffering violence, encloſed by a Band or Multitude of Philiſtims, enemies both to him and his God. Some read the Words, To the Maſter of the Harmony, which is all one in ſence, as To him that excelleth, or chief Muſician, Michtam of David (i. e.) the Excellency of this Pſalm is as precious as Gold.

PSAL. 57. Title, To the chief Muſician Altaſchith Michtam of David, when he fled from Saul in the Cave, or into the Cave.

The general Notes on this Title, intimate, that the Words are either the beginning of the Song, Deſtroy not; or elſe Words uttered by David in his extremity, ſtaying and bridling his Paſſion, &c. Michtam of David] as if he ſhould ſay, This was the Golden or Excellent Sonnet which David compoſed and delivered to the Levites to be ſung, and after the Tune of the Pſalm beginning with Altaſchith, when he was in ſome wonderfull fear and danger of death in the Cave of Adullum, or En-gedi, whither he was driven by Saul, and ſo compaſſed about by his Guard, that he ſaw nothing but Death in the Cave, or Deſtruction if he came out, and thereupon prayeth, that he would not deſtroy (i. e.) ſuffer him to be deſtroyed, which was the occaſion of this Song: See the Story, 1 Sam. 22. and 24.

PSAL. 60. To the Chief Muſician upon Shuſhan-Eduth, Michtam of David, to teach when he ſtrove with Aram Naharaim, and Aram Zobah, when Joab returned and ſmote of Edom in the Valley of Salt, twelve thouſand.

Shuſhan-Eduth is either the Name of ſome Inſtrument to be played upon in ſinging this Pſalm, or the beginning of ſome Song, ſo called according to the Tune wherewith David would have this Pſalm ſung; or Michtam (i. e.) an excellent Song which may be ſung either upon the Inſtrument or Tune Shuſhan-Eduth, or that of Michtam.

Some Titles have it, Magiſtro Symphoniæ in Hexachorda, and then it ſignifies an Inſtrument of ſix ſtrings, upon which David would have this Pſalm played, to teſtifie unto the whole Church his Faith, and the Benefit of his Victory given him by God againſt the Aramites of Meſopotamia, and the other Aramites that inhabited Zobah; for which cauſe the Word in teſtimonium is put in that Title: For further explication of the Words, declaring the Time and Occaſion of the making this, ſee the Story, 2 Sam. 8. and 1 Chron. 18.

PSAL. 72. Title, A Pſalm for Solomon; or of Solomon.

Not that Solomon made it, or was the Writer thereof, but that it concerned him, or was compoſed on his behalf by his Father David, when being ready to die, he commends his Son Solomon, created King, to God, &c.

PSAL. 88. Title, A Pſalm or Song for the Sons of Corah, to the chief Muſician upon Mahalath-Leannoth, Maſchil of Heman the Ezrahite.

Heman and Ethan were Brothers, endued with an excellent Spirit of Prophecy and Wiſdom, wherein they were compared with Solomon, 1 King. 4. 13. Heman was the Author that compoſed and made this Pſalm, and Ethan the next Pſalm, and committed them to be ſung and played to the Sons of Corah, to the Chief of that Company, upon Mahalath-Leannoth, which was the beginning of a Song, after which he would have the Pſalm ſung, as ſome think, or elſe ſome Inſtrument to which he would have the Tune of it played and ſung; and for the excellency of the Matter contained therein, would have them preſerved for a form of Complaint unto the Church in any private or ſingular Diſtreſs (as in this Pſalm) or in the time of affliction, or in the Perſecution of the Church or Common-wealth (as in the next.)

And it is to be noted, that ſome ſkilful in the holy Tongue, affirm the Hebrew word Mahalath to be of divers ſignifications, ſignifying both a Muſical Inſtrument, or a Quire and Company of Muſicians, or Infirmity; according to every of which Acceptions it may be taken in this place, and applied to the Inſtrument ſo called, to be ſung by the whole Company of the Levites, as well by voice, as playing, in times of affliction of that People or others.

PSAL. 90. Title, A Prayer of Moſes the Man of God (i. e.) A Pſalm of Prayer made by Moſes.

It is thought this Pſalm or Prayer was made by Moſes for himſelf and the People, at ſuch time as the Spies came back from viewing the Land of Canaan, murmuring and bringing an ill report thereof, for which the Lord threatned that they ſhould not enter into the Land of Promiſe.

PSAL. 92. Title, A Pſalm or Song for the Sabbath-day.

This Pſalm was made to be ſung and uſed in the Service of God in the Aſſembly, upon the Sabbath-day, when the People met for the publick Exerciſes of the Church.

Some Hebrew Writers ſay, it was made by Moſes, in celebration of the memory of the Creation; there is no Author thereof expreſſed in the Title.

This Pſalm for the Sabbath, and 113, 114, 115, 116, 117 Pſalms, which the Jews call their Hallelujah, or Praiſes of God, were ſung at the Paſſover, and are the Pſalms or Hymns which are mentioned in the Goſpel, which were ſung during the celebration.

PSAL. 119.

In this 119th Pſalm, we find no leſs than ten ſeveral Names or Appellations, whereby David expreſſeth God's revealed Will; ſometimes he calls it God's Law, ſometimes his Way, ſometimes his Word, ſometimes his Precepts, ſometimes his Commandments, ſometimes his Judgments, ſometimes his Statutes, ſometimes his Promiſes, ſometimes his Righteouſneſs, ſometimes his Teſtimonies; but above all, notable it is, that there is not one Verſe, (excepting one, viz. 122.) in this long Pſalm (containing according to the Hebrew Alphabet two and twenty Octonaries) where we may not find one or more of theſe ten words or Names: Hence we may gather, if David were ſo exact throughout the Pſalm, that in every Diviſion (according to the Letters 22.) and in every Subdiviſion (every Verſe beginning with the ſelf ſame Letter) he ſtill makes mention of ſome one or more of theſe ſo many Appellations: O then, how were his Affections enkindled, how was his Love inflamed towards God's holy Word!

PSAL. 120. The Title, A Song of Degrees.

The Title of this Pſalm hath more relation to the Ceremony and manner of ſinging, than to the Matter and Contents of the Pſalm, and I do not find ſo many different Opinions touching the reaſon of the Title in any other, as in this.

Some ſuppoſe this and the fourteen others next following to be ſo called, for that they were ſung in ſome high and eminent place: Some refer it to the extenſion or lifting up of the voice in ſinging, or raiſing of the tune, that they might be better heard of the people; ſo Calvin: Some, that they were ſung by the Prieſts and Levites, after the form and melody of ſome known and eſteemed ſong, beginning with this Title: Some latter Expoſitors conceive nothing to be meant hereby, but the excellency of the Pſalms above the reſt, becauſe thoſe places are accounted chiefeſt, whereunto we do aſcend by degrees; therefore the word is uſued in the plural number [degrees] as being choice Epigrams, as one would ſay, Moſt excellent Sonnets; becauſe the Hebrews uſe to expreſs the ſuperlative degree or excellency of a thing, by ſubſtantives of the plural number as here, A Song of degrees (i. e.) an excellent Song; ſo the Canticles of Solomon, called A Song of Songs (i. e.) excellent; ſo the Lord is called, The God of Gods, Deut. 10. 17. Lord of Lords, Apoc. 19. 16. (i. e.) without all compariſon, above all other gods or lords: Daniel called him a Man of deſires, Dan. 9. 23. (i. e.) to be eſteemed or deſired above others; in this ſenſe Junius takes it: Others think they were compoſed for Pſalms of Thanſgiving, at the return of the Jews from their captivity in Babylon; and in that Jeruſalem was ſcituated amongſt hills, whence ſoever they came, they muſt riſe or aſcend to come to it, as they do that climb up an hill; theſe ſongs therefore were appointed to be ſung at every aſcent and cleft, as the places they went up did ariſe, and for this cauſe called Pſalms of Degrees.

Deut. 10. 17.
Apoc. 19. 16.
Dan. 9. 23.

Carolus Siggonius de rep. Hebræorum (whoſe Judgment is more to be approved, as more agreeable to the truth) underſtands them to be ſo called, for that they were ſung by the Prieſts and Levites, upon the ſeveral ſtairs that went out of the great Court or Porch where the People were, into the higher or inner part of the Temple, whither none but the Prieſts might come; and in Nehemiah 9. 4. mention is made of the ſtairs whereon the Levites ſtood in the ſolemn feaſts, crying unto God, &c.

Neh. 9. 4.

For Solomon in building the Temple of Jeruſalem made certain Terreſies, Stairs or Steps riſing one above another, 2 Chron. 9. 11. by which the Prieſts and Levites went up from that outward and great open Court or Room adjoyning to the Temple, 2 Chron. 4. 9. (where the people prayed, brought and attended the Sacrifice, called, John 10. 29. Solomons Porch, or the Court of the People, becauſe it was open to all the people) into an higher room or place in the Temple, called The inner Court, or Lords Houſe, 2 Chron. 24. 21. or Atrium Sacerdotale, becauſe none but the Prieſts muſt enter thither: Now upon every Feaſt Day, the Levites, or they of them appointed for the ſong, ſung theſe fifteen Pſalms, upon each ſtair one, being in number five; as they went up into that Court of the Temple, making a pauſe upon each Stair, from whence they had the Title of Pſalms of degrees.

2 Chron. 9. 11.
c. 4. v. 9.
John 10. 29.
2 Chron. 24. 21.

This Ceremony was uſed then as an outward means of preparation to the worſhiping of God, to admoniſh all people to do it with chearful hearts, renewed and lifted up to him by faith, from whence Cyprian obſerves, That in the Church-Liturgy of his time, the Deacon called upon the people to lift up their hearts unto God, uſing this Speech, Surſum corda.

Obſervations.

It may be obſerved, that in Titles many things ſeem ſtrange and hard unto us, becauſe we know not (nor do the latter Jews of theſe times themſelves) the particular Inſtrument, Form of Singing, or the Tunes uſed in ſpecie, whether they be the ſame that we uſe in theſe days; or ſome reſemblance of ours, in reſpect of the playing by the hand, or by breath; as Decem-chorda, an Inſtrument of ten ſtrings, is a reſemblance of the Lute we uſe, &c. Cymbals, of our Cornets, &c. otherwiſe we know no more of theirs, than our Songs, Tunes or Inſtruments, are known to other ſtrange Nations and Tongues, to whom we and our Language is unknown and unheard of.

Again, where in ſome Titles it is ſaid to be ſung after ſuch a Tune, it is no more but as in our Pſalms it is ſaid, This is to be ſung after, or according to ſuch a Pſalm, becauſe neither their nor our Pſalms have for every ſeveral Pſalm a ſeveral Tune, but the Tune of one is or may be referred to another.

Thus much of ſuch hard places in the Pſalms, as the weak Chriſtian ſpoken of, deſired and endeavoured after a Reſolution in: For other difficult places of Scripture, becauſe they would too much inlarge this Book, I purpoſely omit them.

Sect. 10. Of the Analyſis of the whole Bible, and eſpecially (as in the firſt place) of the Old Teſtament.

IN reading of the Scripture (Section 4.) we ſpake of an Analytical Table, that ſo we might better mark the drift and ſcope of the Holy Ghoſt, and that we might with ſingular eaſe and delight remember the ſame: To this purpoſe I have annexed this Analyſis, 1. of the whole Bible, 2. of the ſeveral Parts.

The whole is divided into two Testaments: { Old. / New.

1. The Old Teſtament Chriſt divides into { the Law. / the Prophets.

1. The Law is in the Pentateuch of Moſes, comprehended in this verſe, —— Geneſis, Exod. Levit. Numerorum, Deuteronomi.

Wherein is {
  1. The Object of the Law, to whom it was to be delivered, viz. To the Church in its Original, in —— Geneſis.
  2. The promulgation of the Law, which was delivered.
    either {
      Joyntly, the Law Eccleſiaſtical and Civil in —— Exodus.
      Severally, the Law { Eccleſiaſtical in —— } Leviticus. / Political, in —— Numbers.
    }
  3. The repetition of the Law after once delivered in —— } Deuteronomy.
}

2. The Prophets are {
  1. Hiſtorical, declaring Time paſt, comprehended in this verſe:
  —— Joſhuæ, Judicum, Ruth, Regum, Paralip. —— Ez. Neb. Eſther.
  2. Dogmatical, inſtructing for Faith and Life preſent, as —— Job, David, Proverb: Ecclesia: Cantic.
  3. Prophetical, foretelling things to come, as —— Iſaiah, Jeremi. Thren. Ezekiel. Danielque, Hoſe. Jocl, Amos, Obedi. Jona. Micha. Naúmque. Habakkuk, Zephani. Haggai, Zachari: Malachia.
  As for { Eſdra: Tobit, Judith, pars Eſth: Sapit, —— Eccleſiaſtic. Baruch, tres Pueri; Suſanna, Bel, Machabæi. —— Non ſunt de Canone libri.

CHAP.

CHAP. XVI. SECT. I.

OF THE SUFFERING OF SAINTS.

Hitherto of doing, one Chapter I would add of Suffering, and the rather becauſe of the Times into which we are caſt; or howſoever, be the Times what they will, we cannot expect but that God will ſometimes be honoured by the Sufferings and Afflictions of Saints. There is a ſtrict and near dependance and connexion betwixt Chriſtianity and the Croſs, and that from the Pleaſure and Providence of God, and diſpenſation of Things under the Goſpel: Chriſt hath ſo ordered it, that we ſhould not ſerve the Lord our God of that which coſts us nothing, but that true Chriſtian Piety ſhould bring Sufferings upon us. This courſe of divine Oeconomy is ſo general and without exception, Heb. 12.6. 7, 8. that the Apoſtle is clear, Whom God loveth he chaſteneth, and ſcourgeth every ſon whom he receiveth, if you endure chaſtening, God dealeth with you as with ſons; for what ſon is he whom the Father chaſteneth not? but if ye be without chaſtiſement whereof all are partakers, then are you baſtards and not ſons. Words of a large unlimited Latitude, which I cannot diſcern any way in the World to ſoften, ſo as they may be ſupportable to him that hath no Changes, that hath enjoyed an Age of uninterrupted continued Proſperity, without ever having the Croſs on his Shoulders. When this Text is ſet down as an Aphoriſm of divine Obſervation under the Kingdom of Chriſt as an Axiom of Goſpel Providence, there will be no ſafety in diſputing or labouring to avoid the litteral importance of it. It's true indeed, under the Old Teſtament we find not any ſuch Oeconomy, but Promiſes of a long and happy life in a temporal Canaan to Gods Servants; but under the Goſpel 'tis quite contrary, Acts. 14. 22. through much tribulation we muſt enter into the Kingdom of God: Pſa. 84. 6. Our way to Zion is through the valley of Baca; Mat. 16.24 we cannot follow Chriſt and be his Diſciples, but upon theſe terms. 2 Tim. 3. 12. All that will live godly in Chriſt Jeſus muſt ſuffer Perſecution. And therefore we have learn'd what to do; let us now learn how to Suffer; it is not our duty only that we ſhould ſeek Gods Honour, but that we ſhould ſeek it in his own way; while God is pleaſed to offer us opportunities of doing, while we ſee his Mind in improving us thus, let us follow it on with all our might, let no opportunity ſlip, do to the utmoſt that we can for God; but when we ſee his mind to lay us aſide, and to uſe us in another way, although it be in a way of Affliction and grievous Sufferings, let us now be as willing to yield to God in this, as in the former way. And for our help therein I ſhall direct: 1. How to prepare for Sufferings before they come. 2. How to carry in Sufferings when they are come. 3. What to do, and how to carry when Sufferings and Afflictions are gone.

Sect. 2. Of the manner of Preparation for Sufferings before they come.

What! Are we now at eaſe? Are theſe Sunſhine days of Peace? Surely, we ſhould conſider of the days of Darkneſs, which may be many. Oft-times we are thinking of and ſeeking after great things, when we ſhould be preparing for ſuffering hard things. Be not deceived, the Clouds ſeem to gather, and it's time for us to prepare. Now this Preparation conſiſts in theſe particulars:——

1. Make we account of Afflictions: Do not ſay, I ſhall never be removed; although we know not what particular Afflictions ſhall befall us, yet make an account that an afflicting Condition will be our Portion. Thus did the Apoſtle: Acts 20. 22, 23. And now I go bound in the Spirit unto Jeruſalem, not knowing the things that ſhall befall me there, ſave that the Holy Ghoſt witneſſeth in every City, ſaying, That Bonds and Afflictions abide me. It is our wiſdom thus to make account of Afflictions, that when they come they may be no other than were expected before. As it is reported of Anaxagoras, that when News came to him of the death of his Son, and it was thought he would have been much troubled at it, he anſwered only thus, I knew that I begat one mortal. So when any troubles befall us, we ſhould entertain them with theſe Thoughts, "I knew my "Condition was to be an afflicted Condition: I "entred upon the ways of godlineſs upon theſe "terms, to be willing to be in an afflicted Condi- "tion; this is Gods ordinary way towards his Peo- "ple, it is Gods mercy that it is no worſe, I ex- "pect yet greater Tryals than theſe.

2. Let us deny our ſelves, and ſo take up the Croſs: Where Self is renounced, the Croſs is eaſily born; it is Self that makes the Croſs pinch. Now there is a ſixfold Self that in this caſe muſt be denied: 1. Self-Opinion; we muſt be willing to lye quietly under the truth, to be convinced and to be guided by it. 2. Self-Counſels and Self-Reaſonings; we muſt take heed of conferring with Fleſh and Blood, as it was the care of Paul, immediately Gal. 1.35. I conferred not with Fleſh and Blood; ſurely if he had, he would have been in danger. 3. Self-Excellencies; our Parts, our Priviledges, our Credits, and all thoſe things that are great in our own Eyes, and that make us great in the Eyes of the World. 4. Self-Will; we muſt not think it ſo grievous a thing to have our Wills croſſed, we muſt not expect to have our Conditions brought to our Wills, and therefore it is our wiſdom whatſoever our Conditions be, that we bring our Wills unto them. 5. Self Comforts; thoſe who give liberty to themſelves to ſatisfie themſelves to the utmoſt, although in lawful Comforts they will be unfit to ſuffer Hardſhip when God ſhall call them thereunto. “I fear that Neck “(ſaith Tertulian) that is uſed to Pearl-Chains, that “it will not give it ſelf to the Sword. 6. Self-“Ends; we muſt aim at God, and not at our ſelves in all our ways; and then how eaſie will it be for us to bear Croſſes, conſidering that Gods Ends do go on, though our Ends be croſſed?

3. Be we ſure to lay a good Foundation in a thorow work of Humiliation? The Seed that fell upon the ſtony ground withered; and although for a while it was received with joy, yet when Tribula-
Mat.13.21 tion and Perſecution aroſe, by and by he was offended: Mark the Expreſſion, by and by, he was preſently offended, and all becauſe there was no depth of Earth, there was not a thorow work of Humiliation. Some think the Burthens of Afflictions great, becauſe they never felt what the weight and burthen of ſin meant; but that Soul which conſtantly exerciſeth it ſelf in the work of Humiliation for ſin, which burthens it ſelf with the weight of its ſins, and is willing to lye under ſin for further breaking of Spirit; that Soul (I ſay) will be able to endure Croſſes, and to ſtand under ſore Afflictions.

4. Be we careful to preſerve our inward Peace with God and our own Conſciences? If Vapours be not got into the Earth, and ſtir there, all the Storms and Tempeſts abroad can never make an Earthquake; ſo where there is Peace within, all troubles and oppoſitions without cannot ſhake the
Rom. 5. 1 Heart. Having Peace with God. ——— we glory in
3. tribulations. We are not only patient under them, but we glory in them. O then let that time that God gives us yet any reſpite from Afflictions, be ſpent in making up our Peace with God, let us now labour to get clearer Evidences, and deeper ſenſe of his Love; then ſhall we ſuffer any thing for God, O then we ſhall go through fire and water, then ſhall we triumph with the Apoſtle, Rom.8.38. I am perſuaded that neither life, nor death, nor princi-
39. palities, nor powers, nor things preſent, nor things to come ſhall ever be able to ſeparate me from the love of God in Chriſt Jeſus.

5. Labour we to ſee more into the fulneſs of all Good in God. The Lord told Abraham that Gen.17.1. he was God all-ſufficient, as the only means to ſtrengthen him againſt whatſoever Evils he was like to meet withal, in God is all the Excellency, Beauty, Comfort, and good of the Creature in a moſt eminent and glorious manner, and God takes infinite delight in communicating himſelf, in letting out his goodneſs to his Creature: And if ſo, what is the loſs of any thing to me, when I ſee where I can have it made up; What is any bitterneſs when I ſee ſuch infinite ſweetneſs to ſweeten all? When Tempeſts come upon Mariners, and they be in narrow Seas where they want Sea-room, there is danger, but if they have Sea-room enough there is no fear; thus if we are acquainted with the infinite Fulneſs of Good in God we ſhould ſee our ſelves ſafe in the midſt of all Tempeſts, we ſhould feel our Spirits quiet under the ſoreſt Afflictions.

6. Do we humbly and cheerfully ſubmit to our preſent Condition whatſoever it is? Many caſt about in their Thoughts what they ſhall do hereafter, if troubles ſhould befall them, and yet in the mean time they neglect the Duties of their preſent condition; Surely, if we would go on humbly and patiently in the performance of the Duties that God now calls for, they would prepare us for whatſoever Duties ſhould be required hereafter. Maſter Bilney the Martyr, uſed to put his Finger in the Candle, to prepare him for the burning of his whole Body; a Patient bearing of leſs troubles for the preſent, will prepare the Heart for the bearing of greater afterwards.

7. Be we often renewing our Reſignations of all unto the Lord. Let us renew our Covenant with him to be at his diſpoſe, that ſo when any trouble comes at any time, this reſignation of Heart and renewal of Covenant may be freſh upon our Spirits. Experience tells us that ſometimes immediately after a day of ſolemn Humiliation, the Soul thinks it could then do or ſuffer any thing, but in a little time after (except this be renewed again) the Heart grows droſſy, and cleaves to preſent things, and mingles it ſelf with them again; the often renewing of this keeps the Heart very looſe from the Creature.

8. Lay we up Proviſion againſt an evil Day? There is a threefold Proviſion we ſhould treaſure up to prepare us for Afflictions. 1. We ſhould treaſure up the Conſolations of God that he affords upon occaſion, that at any time we feel in the performance of Duties, in the exerciſe of Graces, in the uſe of Ordinances. 2. We ſhould treaſure up the Experiences of Gods ways towards us, and his gracious Dealings with us in former ſtraights. 3. We ſhould treaſure up Soul-ſupporting, Soul-quickning, Soul-reviving, Soul-comforting Promiſes, and that of ſeveral kinds, ſuitable to ſeveral Afflictions, for we know not what kind of Afflictions we may meet withal.

9. Labour we much to ſtrengthen every grace; it is ſtrong grace that is ſuffering grace; a ſtrong wing will fly againſt the wind, but ſo will not every wing. It is true, a Candle will hold light in the Houſe, but if we go abroad in the Air there is need of a Torch, there muſt be a ſtronger Light there; weak Grace may ſerve our turn to uphold us now, but in time of Afflictions it had need be ſtrong; a little grace will be ſoon ſpent then, as a Candle is ſoon ſpent when it ſtands in the wind.

10. Set we much before us the Example of Jeſus Chriſt and Gods People, who have endured very hard things. In the Example of Chriſt, conſider, 1. Who it was that ſuffered, he was the Son of God, the glory of the Father, God, bleſſed for ever; when we ſuffer, nothing but baſe worms trodden under foot do ſuffer. 2. What he ſuffered; even the wrath of God, and curſe of the Law; he was made a curſe in the Abſtract, as the Scripture ſpeaks, which was another manner of thing than any of our Afflictions. 3. For whom he ſuffered; it was for us vile Worms, wretched ſinful Creatures, who were Enemies to him; we ſuffer for God who is infinitely bleſſed to whom we owe all we are or have. 4. How freely he ſuffered; it was of his own accord, his own free grace moved him to it, he laid down his Life, none could take it from him; but for us, it is not in our liberty whether we will ſuffer or no, we are under the power of another. 5. How meekly he ſuffered; he was a Sheep before the ſhearer, his Sufferings no way diſquieted his Spirit, but ſtill it kept in a ſweet quiet Frame in the midſt of all. Thus ſet we Chriſt before us; let theſe Meditations be Meat and Drink unto us. In the Example of God's Suffering-Saints, conſider what precious, choice Spirited Men they were, how holy, how ſpiritual, how heavenly; what are we in compariſon of them? Conſider what they did, what they endured for the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. To this purpoſe there's a notable Chapter, Heb. 11. Read, and conſider; Is it not enough Heb. 11. for us that we have ſuch a cloud of Witneſſes, ſuch a noble Army of Martyrs before us, and with us?

Thus of Preparations for Afflictions before they come.

Sect. 3. Of the manner of bearing Sufferings when they come.

Mat. 16. 24. IF any will come after me (ſaith Chriſt) let him deny himſelf and take up his Croſs, and follow me. This Croſs is Sufferings; in which Condition one way or other we may be (if God ſo pleaſe) continually; the Soul might ſay, If I muſt bear this Croſs, I hope it is but now and then; nay, ſaith Luk. 9.23. Chriſt, let him take up his Croſs daily; but if every day (may the Soul ſay) I hope it is an eaſie Croſs: 1 Cor. 15. 31. Nay, ſaith Paul, it is a killing Croſs, I die daily; yet (may the Soul ſay) if it be a killing Croſs, I hope there are refreſhings ſome part of the day. Not Pſ. 44. 22. ſo neither, for thy ſake, (ſaith David) are we killed all the day long, (i. e.) 1. In regard of the danger of Death. 2. In regard of ſome Beginnings that we ſuffer. 3. In regard of our Willingneſs to undergo it. But though we tye not theſe actual Sufferings according to the Letter, to every Time and Moment: Yet certainly there is a time for that; and the Duties that concern us when God now calls us to ſuffer Afflictions, are theſe:——

1. That we be willing to come under them.
2. That we contentedly ſubmit our ſelves, and quietly behave our ſelves in them.
3. That we labour to improve them.

Sect. 1. We muſt be willing to come under Sufferings.

Dan. 3.18. IT was the honour of the three Children in Daniel, that they yielded their Bodies to thoſe fiery Flames they were caſt into. Let us not ſeek to put off Sufferings by diſtinctions; certainly, the beſt Policy in dangerous Times is the greateſt Purity. The Lacedemonians were wont to ſay, "It was a ſhame for any Man to fly in time of Danger, but for a Lacedemonian it was a ſhame to deliberate. How much more truly may this be ſaid of a Chriſtian, when God calls him to ſuffer? He ſhould before-hand be ſo reſolved, that it ſhould be a ſhame for him even to deliberate. And yet by way of Caution, before we come under Afflictions, let us look, 1. That our Cauſe be good. 2. That our Call be clear. 3. That our End be right.

1. Look that our Cauſe be good. It is not for every Cauſe that a Chriſtian ſhould ingage into Sufferings. Let none of you ſuffer as a Murtherer, or 1Pet.9.15. as a Thief, or as an evil Doer, or as a buſie body in other Mens Matters; to ſuffer in theſe or the like caſes, is not Chriſtian, neither will it be comfortable.

2. See that our Call be clear. Chriſt calls not all by Martyrdom; Phil.1.29. To you it is given to ſuffer (ſaith the Apoſtle) not only that you ſhould believe in Chriſt, but alſo ſuffer for his ſake. Affliction is a gift of Love, even as Faith is; it's Grace as well to bleed for Chriſt, as to believe in Chriſt. Let us be wiſe therefore to clear our Call. For Example, if Truth ſuffers by our Silence, then are we called to ſpeak; if the ſaving of our Life ſhould be Chriſts Denial, then are we called to die; if we are before a Magiſtrate for the Name of Chriſt, Chriſt then calls us not to be aſhamed of him; if ſin and ſuffering ſurround us ſo, as that we are neceſſitated to take the one and to leave the other, then we may conclude that Chriſt calls us to Suffering.

3. Let us eye our End in all our Sufferings; if our End be Self, how ſhould we expect Comfort? Some have dyed that their Names might live; a Roman Spirit can hold to Suffering and Death it ſelf; an oppoſing Spirit will put on ſome to die rather than yield: The Apoſtle hath left it a clear thing, that 'tis poſſible to give ones Body to be burnt, 1 Cor. 13. 3. and yet to want true divine Love. One may (I wiſh none did) ſuffer as much for ſelfiſh as ſublimer Reſpects, (i. e.) for his own Glory. O let us mind Chriſts Glory, Truths Propagation, the Maintenance of Equity and Righteouſneſs in all our Sufferings: And if ſo, go on, fear not, flinch not: If we draw back, his Soul will have no Heb. 10. 38. pleaſure in us. What! are we ſhy of the ways of Religion becauſe of Affliction? If ſuch Thoughts work in us at any time, take theſe Conſiderations.——

1. At what low rate do we prize the ways of God, that ſuch and ſuch more low Comforts muſt not be laid down for them; that ſuch light Afflictions muſt not be endured for the Maintenance of them?

2. Conſider if Chriſt had ſtood on ſuch terms as to have ſaid, "I could be content indeed, that theſe poor Creatures might be delivered from miſery; but ſeeing ſuch grievous Sufferings muſt be endured for their deliverance, let them periſh for me, I am not willing to ſave them on ſuch hard terms as theſe: O then what had become of us?

3. They who are ſo ſhy of Suffering, may be forced to ſuffer in ſpight of their Hearts; and what a ſad thing will that be to them? What a ſad thing was it to Cranmer after he had recanted for fear of ſufferings, that yet he was forced to ſuffer? What a darkening was it to his Spirit, to his Cauſe, and to his good Name?

4. Whatſoever Proſperity we enjoy, when God calls us to ſuffer for him, it is curſed unto us: If we bleſs our ſelves in our Name, in our Eſtate, our Liberty, our Life, and avoid the way of ſuffering that God calls us unto, we deceive our ſelves, for there is no Bleſſing in them, they are all accurſed unto us.

5. All the Duties of Religion that now we perform out of a ſuffering Condition, are not accepted of God. We muſt not think now, having avoided ſuffering for Gods Truth, that becauſe we are willing to perform Duties, therefore God now accepts of us; no, it was another work that God called us unto, a work of Suffering; and ſeeing we have refuſed this, do what we can, God caſts it as dung in our Faces, and he regards it not: This is a ſad condition; what Joy can ſuch a Man have of his Life, if he had but an inlightned Conſcience?

6. What intolerable Pride and Delicacy is this in us, that we will not venture the loſs of any thing, the enduring of any thing for God and his Truth? The leaſt Truth of God is more worth than Heaven and Earth; and what is our Eaſe, our Name, our Liberty, our Life to it?

7. How vile is the unbelief of our Hearts, who dare not truſt God with our Name, our Eſtate, our Liberty? How can we truſt God with our Souls, our eternal Eſtate? How lightly do we regard the Faithfulneſs, Mercy, Goodneſs, Wiſdom, Power of God, working for his People in their ſuffering Conditions? Of what little account are all thoſe gracious bleſſed Promiſes of God to us in this condition? Our baſe ſhyneſs and cowardize of Spirit is ſuch, as if there were no God, no Faithfulneſs, no Mercy, no Wiſdom, no Power to help us; as if there were no Promiſe to ſupport and relieve us.

8. How little love is there in our Hearts to God, when we are ſo ſhy of any thing to be ſuffered for God? Love rejoyces in ſuffering for the beloved: "The avoiding Hell, and the getting Heaven are "no great things (ſays Chryſoſtom) where the love "of God is.

Chryſoſt de amore dei, & tolerantia in adverſis.

9. What is the iſſue of ſoul Apoſtacy? If we draw back from Perſecution, we draw on to Perdition. Chriſt is not ſo ſweet in his dealing with Martyrs, but he is as dreadful in his diſcoveries to Apoſtates. Ask Spira, how doleful a condition Denying is? He'll tell you, that he could feel no comfort in his Heart, that there was no place there, but full of bitter Torments and hideous vexings of Spirit; he'll tell you of Gods wrath burning in him like the Torments of Hell, and that his Conſcience was afflicted with Pangs unutterable.

10. What honour ſhould God have in the World? Where would there be any witneſs to Truth againſt the rage and malice of the Devil and wicked Men, if all ſhould do as we do? If there be any Chriſtian Blood left in us, if any Spirit worthy of our Profeſſion, O be we aſhamed of our Baſeneſs this way, and be not ſo ſhy of Suffering.

Sect. 2. We muſt contentedly ſubmit our ſelves, and quietly behave our ſelves in Sufferings.

SEeing we are now under an Ordinance of God, take heed of the leaſt Murmuring or Repining againſt God, as if he were an hard Maſter. If our Spirits at any time begin to riſe in ſuch workings, let us charge our Souls to be ſilent to God; it is a ſhame for a Chriſtian not to be well skilled in that Art, inſtructed in that Myſtery of Chriſtian Contentation; let us ſay with our Saviour, Shall not I drink of that Cup which my Father hath given me to drink? It is the Cup of my Father, and ſhall not I quietly and contentedly drink of that Cup? Now we have an opportunity to manifeſt the power and excellency of our grace, to ſhew what our grace can enable us to do: Strength of Reaſon will go far in quieting and calming of the Heart under afflictions, but grace ſurely where it is true, will go further; it will teach us to ſubmit our ſelves, and to reſign our Spirits unto God, to be willing that God ſhall deliver us when he will, and as he will, and how he will, ſo that our Wills are melted into the very Will of God. It is true, we may be ſenſible of it, and make our moan to God concerning it, and deſire to be delivered of it, and ſeek it by all good and honeſt, and lawful means; yet we muſt not murmer or repine, we muſt not fret or vex; there muſt not be any tumultuouſneſs or unſetledneſs of Spirit in us; there muſt not be any diſtracted Fears in our Hearts, nor any ſinking Diſcouragements, baſe Shiftings, rebellious Riſings againſt our God. Now that we may attain this Frame, this grace of Contentment and quietneſs of Spirit, obſerve theſe Directions:——

1. Be we humbled in our Hearts for the want thereof, or that we have had ſo little of this grace in us; there is no way to ſet upon any Duty with profit, till the Heart be humbled for the want of the performance of the Duty before: Many Men when they hear of a Duty that they ſhould perform, they will labour to perform it, but firſt they ſhould be humbled for the want of it. Oh that I had this grace of Contentment, (ſhould every one ſay) what an happy life might I live? What abundance of Honour might I bring to the Name of God? But O Lord, thou knowſt it is far otherwiſe with me; I feel a kind of murmuring, and vexing, and fretting, within me; every little croſs puts me out of temper and frame of Spirit: O the boyſterouſneſs of my Spirit! What a deal of Evil doth God ſee in my heart? Oh the vexing, and fretting, and murmuring, and repining that is in me!

2. Pore not too much upon our Sufferings. Many Men have all their Thoughts taken up about their Croſſes and Afflictions, they are ever thinking of ſpeaking of them; when they awake in the Night their Thoughts are on them, and when they converſe with others (nay, it may be when they are praying to God) they are thinking on them. Oh! no marvel though we live diſcontented Lives, if our thoughts be always poring on ſuch things; we ſhould rather have our thoughts on thoſe things that may comfort us. It is very obſervable of Jacob, that when his Wife died in Child-birth, his Wife called the child Benoni, that is, a ſon of Sorrows. Now Jacob he thought with himſelf, If I ſhould call this Child Benoni, every time that I name him, it will put me in mind of the Death of my dear Wife, which will be a continual Affliction unto me, and therefore I will not have my Child have that Name: And ſo the Text ſaith, that Jacob called his Name Benjamin, that is, the ſon of my right hand. Now this is to ſhew us thus much, that when Afflictions befall us we ſhould not give way to have our Thoughts continually upon them, but rather upon thoſe things that may ſtir up our Thankfulneſs to God for his Mercies. It is the ſimilitude of Baſil, "It is in this caſe as it is with "Men and Women that have ſore Eyes; now "it is not fit for thoſe to be always looking on "the Fire or on the Beams of the Sun, but on "ſome things that are ſuitable, upon ſuch Objects "as are fit for one that hath ſore Eyes, as upon "green Colours, or the like: So Men or Women "that have weak Spirits, muſt not ever be looking "upon the fire of their Afflictions, upon thoſe things "that deject them or caſt them down, but they "are to look upon thoſe things rather that may be "ſuitable for the healing and helping of them. It will be of great uſe and benefit to us if we lay it to heart, not to be poring always upon Afflictions, but upon Mercies.

Gen. 35. 18

3. Let us make a good Interpretation of Gods ways towards us, if poſſibly we can. Should our Friends always make bad Interpretations of our ways towards them, we would take it ill. It is ill taken of the Spirit of God when we make ill Interpretation of his ways towards us; and therefore if we can make any good Interpretation of Gods ways towards us, let us make it. Ex. Gr. If any Affliction befall us, let us think thus, "It "may be God only intends to try me by this; it "may be God ſaw my Heart too much ſet upon "the Creature, and ſo intends to ſhew me what

“ there is in my Heart; it may be God ſaw that “ if my Eſtate did continue I ſhould fall into ſin,
“ and ſo the better my Eſtate were, the worſe
“ would my Soul be; it may be God intended “ only to exerciſe ſome grace in me; it may be “ God intends to prepare me for ſome great work “ which he hath for me to do; thus we ſhould reaſon. It is uſual with many otherwiſe to interpret Gods Dealings, juſt as they did in the Numb. 14. 3. Wilderneſs, God hath brought us hither to ſlay us, or to fall by the Sword; this is the worſt Interpretations that poſſibly we can make of Gods ways: Oh! why will we make theſe worſt Interpretations when there may be better? 1 Cor. 13. 5. Love thinketh no evil. Love is of that nature, that if there may be ten Interpretations made of a thing, if nine of them be naught, and one good, love will take that which is good, and leave the other nine: And ſo though there might be ten Interpretations preſented to us, concerning Gods ways towards us, and if but one be good, and nine naught, we ſhould take one that is good, and leave the other nine. Oh! retain good thoughts of God. Take heed of judging God to be an hard Maſter, make good Interpretation of his Ways, and that will further our Contentment in all our Afflictions.

4. Let us look upon all our Afflictions as ſanctified in Chriſt, and ſanctified in a Mediator. This is to ſee all the Sting, and Venom, and Poyſon of them, to be taken out by the Virtue of Jeſus Chriſt the Mediator between God and Man. Ex. Gr. Would a Chriſtian have Contentment? Say then, What is my Affliction? Is it Poverty that God ſtrikes me withal? Chriſt had not an Houſe to lay his Head in; Mat. 8. 20. the Foxes had holes, and the Fowls of the Air had neſts, but the Son of Man had not an hole to lay his Head in. O then, how is my Poverty ſanctified? I ſee by Faith, the curſe, and ſting, and venom of my Poverty taken out by the Poverty of Jeſus Chriſt. Chriſt was poor in this World to deliver me from the Curſe of my Poverty. Again, am I diſgraced, diſhonoured? Is my good Name taken away? Why Chriſt had diſhonour Mark 3. 22. John 8. 48. put upon him, he was called Beelzebub, a Samaritan, and they ſaid he had a Devil in him. All the foul Aſperſions that could be, were caſt upon Chriſt, and this was for me, that I might have the diſgrace that is caſt upon me to be ſanctified to me. Again, am I jeared and ſcoffed at? Why ſo was Jeſus Chriſt when he was in his greateſt Mat. 27. 29 Extremity, they could put Thorns on his Head, and a Reed in his Hand, and bow the Knee before him, and mock him, and ſay, Hail King of the Jews. How then may I attain Contentment in the midſt of Scorns and Jears? By conſidering that Chriſt was ſcorned, and by acting Faith upon that which Chriſt ſuffered for me. We ſee many Chriſtians lye under grievous Pains and Extremities very chearfully, and ſome wonder at it; why this is the way that they get it, viz. by acting their Faith upon what Pains Jeſus Chriſt ſuffered: Are we afraid of Death: Let us exerciſe our Faith upon the Death of Chriſt. Are we troubled in Soul? Doth God withdraw himſelf from us? Let us exerciſe our Faith upon the Sufferings that Chriſt endured in his Soul when he was in his Agony, and when he ſwate drops of Blood: And this will bring Contentment to our Souls.

5. Let us fetch ſtrength from Chriſt to bear all our Burdens. Now this is done by going out of our ſelves to Jeſus Chriſt, and by acting our Faith upon Chriſt, and by bringing the ſtrength of Chriſt into our Souls. A man may go very far with the uſe of reaſon alone to help him to Contentment, but when reaſon is at a non-plus, then ſet Faith on work: This is above reaſon. It would be a ridiculous thing in the Schools of Philoſophy to ſay, if there be a burthen upon you, you muſt fetch Strength from another; for another to come, and to ſtand under the Burthen they would eaſily grant, but that any one ſhou'd be ſtrengthened by anothers ſtrength, that is not near him in outward view, this they would think moſt ridiculous. O but true Believers find Contentment in every Condition by getting ſtrength from another. There is ſtrength in Chriſt, not only to ſanctifie us and ſave us, but to ſupport us under all our Burthens and Afflictions. And Chriſt expects when we are under any Burthen, that we ſhould act our Faith upon him, to draw virtue and ſtrength from him. O ſweet Conſolation! If a man have a Burthen upon him, yet if he have ſtrength added to him, if the Burthen be doubled, yet if his ſtrength be trebled, the Burthen will not be heavier, but lighter than it was before to his natural ſtrength; ſo if our Afflictions be heavy, and we cry out, Oh we cannot bear them! Yet if we cannot bear them with our own ſtrength, why may we not bear them with the ſtrength of Jeſus Chriſt? Do we think that Chriſt could not bear them? Or if we dare not think but that Chriſt could bear them, why may not we come to bear them? Some may queſtion, Can we have the ſtrength of Chriſt? Pſa. 28. 7. Pſa. 42. 2. Pſ. 118. 14. Yes; That very ſtrength is made over to us by Faith; for ſo the Scripture ſaith frequently, Iſa. 12. 2. Heb. 3. 19. Col. 1. 11. The Lord is our ſtrength, God is our ſtrength, and Chriſt is our ſtrength, and therefore is Chriſts ſtrength ours, made over unto us, that we may be able to bear whatſoever lies upon us. This was Pauls Prayer for the Coloſſians, that they they might be ſtrengthened with all might, according to his glorious power unto all patience and long ſuffering with joyfulneſs. 1. Here's ſtrengthening. 2. Here's ſtrengthening with all might. 3. Here's ſtrengthening with all might according to the glorious power of God in Chriſt. 4. Here's the end, unto what? It is unto all patience and long ſuffering with joyfulneſs. Oh! you that are now under ſad and heavy Afflictions more than ordinary, look upon this Scripture, and conſider how it is made good in you, that ſo you may with comfort ſay, Through Gods Mercy I find that ſtrength coming into me, that is here ſpoken of in this Scripture.

6. Let us fetch Contentment from the Covenant, and from the particular Promiſes in the Covenant for the ſupplying of every particular want. There is no Condition that a godly Man can be in, but there is ſome Promiſe or other in the Scripture to help him in that Condition: And this is the way of his Contentment to go out to the Promiſe, to plead the Promiſe, to fetch from the Promiſe that which may ſupply. But hath Faith warrant to believe whatſoever we find in the Promiſe literally. I dare not ſay ſo, but howſoever it may act upon it, and believe that God will make it good in his Object. own way. But I am in Affliction, and here is a Promiſe that God will deliver me out of it; I act Faith upon it, but I am not delivered; what good now is there in this Promiſe to me? I anſwer, Sol. 1. Nothwithſtanding our Non-deliverance, yet now we are under the protection of God more than others are. 2. Notwithſtanding the Affliction continues, yet the evil of the Affliction is now taken away. 3. Notwithſtanding God makes uſe of this Affliction for other Ends, yet he will make it up to us ſome other way, which ſhall be as good. q. d. Let me have your Health, your Liberty, your Life, you ſhall not loſe by it, I will make it up to you ſome other way.

7. Let us by Faith realize the glorious things of Heaven to us. Faith (we know) is the ſubſtance of things hoped for, and the evidence of things not ſeen. Faith makes the Kingdom of Heaven, and the Glory that is to come as now preſent: Hence the Martyrs had ſuch Contentments in their Sufferings, “Though we have but an hard breakfaſt (ſay ſome) yet we ſhall have a good dinner, we ſhall preſently be in Heaven. Let us but ſhut our Eyes (ſaid others) and we ſhall be in Heaven preſently. It is but a little cloud (ſaid Athanaſius) and it will be preſently over. We faint not (ſaid the Apoſtle) why? Becauſe theſe light Afflictions that are but for a moment, work for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. The Saints in their Afflictions ſee Heaven by them, and that contents them. As the Mariners, though they were troubled before they could ſee Land, yet when they come nigh the Shore, and ſee ſuch a Land-mark, that contents them exceedingly: So the godly, though they may be toſſed in the midſt of Waves and Storms, yet ſeeing the Glory of Heaven before them, they content themſelves. One drop of the ſweetneſs of Heaven is enough to take away all the ſour and bitter of all the Afflictions in the World.

Heb 11. 1.

2 Cor. 4. 16, 17.

8. Pray for this Grace of Contentment. It is Gods Gift, and it is a Soul-buſineſs; it is an inward, quiet, gracious Frame of Spirit; which comes not ſo much from any outward Arguments, or any outward thing, as from the diſpoſition of our own Hearts; that Contentment that comes meerly from external Arguments, will not hold long; if it be habitual and conſtant, it ever comes from the gracious temper of a Mans own Spirit; and therefore we had need to pray that God would create in us clean Hearts, and that he would renew right ſpirits, (or conſtant ſpirits (as it is in the original) within us. All the Rules and Helps in the World will do us little good, except we get a good temper within our Hearts, you can never make a Ship go ſteady with propping of it without; you know there muſt be ballaſt within the Ship that muſt make it go ſteady: And ſo there is nothing without us that can keep our Hearts in a ſteady conſtant way, but that that is within us; Grace is within the Soul, and that will do it. O pray we to God to create this Chriſtian Contentation within us, open we our hearts unto God, and then with Hannah we ſhall come from Prayer, and look no more ſad.

Sect. 3. How we muſt improve Suffering.

WE muſt not only be contented under Gods afflicting Hand, but we muſt labour to thrive under it. Certainly, there is a Bleſſing in every ordinance of God, if we have wiſdom and care to draw it forth, and to make it our own. Auſtin cry's out againſt ſuch who did not profit by Afflictions: You (ſaith he) have loſt the profit of this Calamity. As it is a ſign of great wickedneſs to turn Bleſſings into Curſes, ſo it is a ſign of great Grace to turn Curſes into Bleſſings; by this Improvement we ſhall not only get Water, but honey out of the Rock. But how ſhould we improve our Afflictions?

Per didiſtis utilitatem calamitatis. Aug. de civitate Dei, l. 2. c. 33.

1. Learn we thoſe Leſſons which God uſualy teacheth his People in a ſuffering Condition. I ſhall only preſent thoſe * three which are moſt comprehenſive.——

* Twenty ſeveral Leſſons are reckoned up.—— as 1. Compaſſion towards them which are in a ſuffering Condition, Heb. 5. 2. 2. A prizing of our outward Mercies, and Comforts more, and yet a doting upon them leſs, Deut. 8. 10, 11, 12. 3. Self-denial, and obediential ſubmiſſion to the Will of God, James 1. 3. 4. Humility and meekneſs of Spirit, Job 33. 17. 5. A diſcovery of unknown Corruptions in our Hearts, Deut. 8. 2. 6. Prayer, Iſa. 26. 18. 7. Acquaintance with the Word, Pſal 119. 25, 50, 103. 8. The need of ſound Evidences for Heaven, Pſal. 25. 8. 9. What an evil thing it is to grieve the Spirit, Jer. 44. 4. 10. Communion with God, Pſal. 88. 8, 18. 11. The exerciſe and improvement of Grace, Rev. 13. 10. 12. The Life of Faith, Heb. 2. 3, 4. 13. A truſting God more, and our ſelves leſs, 2 Tim. 1. 8, 9. 14. A knowing of God in his Holineſs, Juſtice, Faithfulneſs, Mercy, All-ſufficiency, Pſal. 9. 9, 10. 15. A minding the Duties of a ſuffering Condition more than ſafety, Acts 9. 6. Mich. 6. 9. 16. A minding the Priviledges and Advantages of a ſuffering Condition, Mat. 19. 29. 17. A minding and endeavouring after the one thing neceſſary, Luke 10. 42. 18. Time Redemption, Eph. 5. 16. 19. A valuing of Chriſts Sufferings, 1 Theſ. 1. 10 20. A prizing and longing after Heaven, Phil. 1. 23. Caſe, Correction, Inſtruction.

1. The ſinfulneſs of ſin; what is ſin but an Evil againſt God; Puniſhment is an Evil againſt the Creature, but ſin is a contradiction to the Will of God; whence we may ſafely conclude, that there is more Evil in the leaſt Sin, than there is in the greateſt Puniſhment, even Hell it ſelf; the Hell that is in ſin, is worſe than the Hell that is prepared for ſin; Now in Affliction ſin is laid open before a mans Eyes in ſuch ſort as he is inforced to plead guilty of the Evil of it; As many as I love, I rebuke and chaſten; the Greek words ſignifie, I convince and correct, Rev. 3. 19.

But thoſe three leſſons within named are moſt comprehenſive.

2. The Emptineſs of the Creature; in our Proſperity we ſtick in the Creature, and dote upon the Creature, as if there our Happineſs and Comfort were bound up: But in the day of Adverſity, God convinceth us of our Miſtakes, by cauſing us to ſee the Emptineſs and Vanity, of all ſublunary Contentments; we begin to find the World to be but a gilded Emptineſs, and a meer Nothing.

3. The Fulneſs of Jeſus Chriſt; there is an infinite Fulneſs in Jeſus Chriſt, it pleaſed the Father that in him ſhould all Fulneſs dwell; but we are not always in a capacity either to receive, or to ſee that Fulneſs; and the reaſon is, becauſe in our Proſperity we fill our ſelves ſo full with the World, that it fares with Chriſt now as it did when he was born, there is no room for him in the Inn; but now when God ſpreads Sack-cloth upon all the Beauty and Bravery of the Creature, and ſo hideth Pride from Man, then we can diſcover Beauty and Excellency in Chriſt, infinitely tranſcending all the Beauty and Excellency in the World; when the Soul is under the ſtairs, and in the clefts of the rocks, then ſhe can ſing, My beloved is white and ruddy, the chiefeſt among ten thouſands.

Cant. 5. 10.

2. Be jealous of our ſelves, leſt that our Sufferings ſhould paſs away unſanctified. Be we more afraid of the Affliction leaving of us, than of its continuing upon us; lay out our ſtrength more for a ſanctified uſe of it, than for deliverance from it, that we may ſay with David, It is good for me that I have been afflicted, that I might learn thy Statutes.

Pſ. 119 71.

3. Labour to know Gods mind in our Afflictions. The Man of Wiſdom ſees Gods name upon his rod, and he underſtands what God intends, viz. whether he ſends them for ſin or for ſome other ends. Only obſerve, though

God ſends Afflictions ſometimes for Tryal, and other Ends, rather than for ſin, yet it is ſin that makes us capable of ſuch a way of Tryal; were we not ſinful, God would not deal with us that way; therefore it is good in all to be humbled for ſin. But here two Queſtions are to be diſcuſſed:

1. How we may diſcern Gods Ends in our Afflictions.
2. If it be rather for ſin, how we may find out the particular ſin?

For the firſt, Gods Ends in afflicting us, may be diſcerned thus:——

1. If the Affliction be extraordinary, and come in an extraordinary way: and upon examination we find our ſelves not guilty of any ſpecial Evil beſides daily Incurſions, then we may comfortably hope Gods Intentions are not ſpecially for ſin, but for ſome other end; ſo it was in Job and Joſeph.

2. We may know from the work of the Affliction, which way it intends, and how God follows it; whether in it God ſetles not ſin upon our Heart for Humiliation more than ordinary; or whether the work of Gods Spirit be not rather for the ſtirring up of the Exerciſe of ſome other grace: For God in his Dealings with his People will work for the attaining the Ends he aims at.

3. Much may be learn'd from the Iſſue of an Affliction; when God comes chiefly for Tryal, in the iſſue his grace do's much abound towards his Servants, as it did in Joſeph and Job; What Honour was Joſeph advanced unto? And how had Job 42.10. Job given him twice as much as he had before? But when the Affliction is for ſin, it doth not uſe to have ſuch an iſſue; it is well if the ſinner may be reſtored into ſuch a comfortable condition as he was in before: When David was afflicted for his ſin, ſome skars ſtuck by him after his deliverance; he ſcarce ever was brought into that comfortable Condition he was in before.

For the ſecond, If the Affliction be for ſin, how may we find out the particular ſin? I anſwer;——

1. Look what Sins and Afflictions the Word hath coupled together; although every ſin deſerves all kinds of Afflictions, yet the Word joyns ſome ſpecial Correction to ſpecial Tranſgreſſions; as God ſorts ſeveral Promiſes to ſeveral Graces, ſo he ſorts ſeveral Afflictions to ſeveral Sins.

2. Conſider what Sins and Afflictions Providence couples in reſpect of Similitude: God often ſtamps the likeneſs of the Sin upon the Judgment, Judg. 1. 7, 8.

3. Enquire at the mouth of God by Prayer and Humiliation, as David did, 2 Sam. 21. 1. and as Job did, Job 10. 2. and as thoſe in Jeremiah did, Jer. 16. 10, 11.

4. Hearken to the Voice of Conſcience; that is God's Officer is our Souls; eſpecially after Humiliation and ſeeking of God, then liſten to the Voice of Conſcience; for as it is with an Officer whom you would have ſearch the Records, if you would have him diligent indeed in the Search, you muſt give him his Fee, elſe he will do the work but ſlightly; ſo we muſt give Conſcience, Gods Regiſter his Fee; (i. e.) we muſt let Conſcience have much Prayer and Humiliation which it calls for, and then it will tell us Gods mind more fully.

4. When we have found out our ſins, Let us, 1. take notice of Gods Diſpleaſure againſt us. 2. Let us be humbled for it. 3. Let us ſtir up our Hearts againſt it with Indignation. This is that which hath cauſed me all this woe, that hath brought upon me all this trouble and ſmart. As the Jews took hold on Paul, crying, Men of Iſrael Acts 21. 28. help, this is the Man that teacheth every where againſt the People: So ſhould we take hold on our ſin that we have found out, and cry to the Lord; Help O Lord, this is that ſin that hath made the Breach, this is that ſin that hath been the cauſe of ſo much evil unto me. As we read of Antonius after Julius Cæſar was murthered, he brought forth his Coat, all bloody and cut, and laid it before the People: "Look here (ſays he) you "have your Emperors Coat thus bloody and "torn. Whereupon the People were preſently in an uproar, and cryed out to ſlay thoſe Murtherers; thus by looking upon our Afflictions, and conſidering what Miſchief Sin hath done us, our hearts ſhould be raiſed to fly upon our ſin with indignation, and not be ſatisfied without the deſtruction of that which would have deſtroyed us.

5. Let us promiſe and covenant Reformation, and begin the work while the affliction is on us. Do ſomething now preſently, do not put off all till the ſuffering be over, till we be recovered, or delivered, and think, then I will do it. There is much deceit of the heart this way; Phil. 4.14. many miſcarry in their vows to God upon this ground, becauſe they put off all till they be out of their affliction; for by that time the impreſſion that was upon their ſpirits is abated, their hearts are cooled, and ſo the duty is neglected. Wherefore do ſomething preſently, and be always in doing, till that which was vowed be fully performed.

6. Let every Affliction drive us much to God in Prayer. Is any man afflicted, let him pray. It is a ſimilitude of Chryſoſtom, As Clouds darken Jam. 5. 13. the Heavens, and cauſe lowring weather, but being diſtilled into drops, then ſweet Sun-ſhine and fair Weather follows: ſo ſorrows and cares in the ſoul cloud the ſoul, till they be diſtilled in Prayer into tears, and poured forth before the Lord; but then the ſweet Beams of God's Grace comes in and much Bleſſing follows.

7. Let us not ceaſe to ſeek and ſue till we have ſome aſſurance that we have made our peace with God: This is that the Lord looks for at our hands in all our croſſes, and the chief end he aims at in afflicting his Children, to cauſe them to ſeek him more diligently, and to get better aſſurance of his favour, Let him take hold of my ſtrength (ſaith God) that he Iſa. 27. 5. may make peace with me, and he ſhall make peace with me. This is done theſe three ways. 1. By acknowledging unto God freely our manifold ſins, and ſo juſtifying him in his Judgments, as David did; I ſaid I will confeſs my tranſgreſſions unto the Lord, and thou forgaveſt the iniquity Pſa. 32. 5. of my ſin. Selah. 2. By praying for, and ſeeking aſſurance of his favour in the pardon of our ſins. Lord, in trouble have they viſited thee, they poured out a Prayer when thy chaſtening was Iſa. 25. 16. upon them. 3. By forſaking our ſin whereby we had provoked him. By this ſhall the iniquity of Jacob be purged, and this is all the fruit Iſa. 27. 9. to take away his ſin. It is good that we practice all theſe three ways, and never ceaſe practiſing, till God hath aſſured us that he is at peace with us.

8. Let us now (if ever) try, exerciſe and improve our Faith, Wiſdom, Zeal, Patience, and all other Graces of the ſpirit.

1. Let us try our Graces. What Graces? 1. Our Faith: It is an eaſie matter to truſt God when our Barns and Coffers are full, and to ſay, Give us our daily bread, when we have it in our Cup-boards; but when we have nothing, when we know not how nor whence to get any thing in the world, then to depend upon an inviſible Bounty, this is a true and noble act of Faith. 2. Our Wiſdom. Plato being demanded how he knew a wiſe man? anſwered, when being rebuked, he would not be angry; and being praiſed, he would not be proud; our diſpoſition is never well known to our ſelves until we be croſſed. 3. Our Zeal; a little water caſt upon the fire, makes it burn hotter and brighter; ſo ſhould Afflictions make us more zealous and fiery for God, and for good Cauſes, and for good Men. The wicked in Afflictions are many times furious, but never zealous; they are often like wild Beaſts that grow mad with baiting, if Croſſes or Loſſes ruſh in upon them, they fall to the language of Job's Wife, Curſe God and die; or to that of the King of Iſrael's Meſſenger, 2 Kings 6. 33. Why ſhould I ſerve God any longer? 4. Our Sincerity; Thus was Job's ſincerity diſcovered by Satan's malice; after all his loſſes, he ſays no more but, The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh, ——— In all this did not Job ſin with his lips. 5. Our Patience: When it is calm weather, the Sea is quiet and ſtill as any River; but let the winds ariſe once, and we ſhall ſee a difference; for then the ſea foams and rages, and caſteth out mire and dirt. We are that indeed which we are in temptation; if we cannot abide a drawing Plaiſter, to drain away corrupt blood and humors, how ſhould we abide cutting off joints and members? how pulling out eyes, which Repentance muſt do?

2. Let us exerciſe our Graces. Affliction gives opportunity for this; it calls forth whatſoever Grace there is in the heart to the exerciſe of it. The Apoſtle ſpeaking of Saints-ſufferings, ſaith thus, Here is the patience and the faith of Rev.13.10. Saints. (i. e.) Here is matter for their Patience and Faith to be exerciſed about; this calls for the working of their Patience and Faith; and ſo for other Graces, as Humility, ſelf-denial, love to God, meekneſs, waiting on Chriſt, loving our enemies, not reſiſting of evil, fervent prayer. O what mighty prayers, and lively ſtirrings of ſpirit are there many times Iſa. 26.16. in afflictions? They poured out a Prayer when thy chaſtening was upon them, our Prayers do but drop out before, now they are poured out. And this is it that many times makes God to afflict us, becauſe God delights much to ſee the exerciſe of our Graces: When ſpices are beaten, then they ſend forth their fragrant ſmell; ſo when God's ſervants are in afflictions, then their Graces ſend forth their ſweetneſs in the activeneſs of them; Grace is ever better for wearing.

Joh. 15.2. 3. Let us improve our Graces; Every branch in me (ſaith Chriſt) that beareth fruit, he purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit. This is the end of Chriſt's purging us, that we may be more fruitful; as Vines are made more fruitful by pruning, ſo are God's People by the pruning-knife of afflictions: Now they find more peace, more aſſurance, more ſtrength, than ever they did before; never ſuch ſweet joy, never ſuch full aſſurance, never ſuch uſe of faith, and patience, and love, as in the ſoreſt and longeſt afflictions: Is it thus with us now? O this may be a ſweet ſeal to our ſouls of their ſincerity ever after afflictions. God's People never thrive ſo much in Grace, as when they are watered in their own tears: Manaſſes his Chain was more profitable to him than his Crown. “There is a great deal of difference (could “Luther ſay) betwixt a Divine in outward Pomp, “and a Divine under the Croſs: They that are “afflicted to better underſtand Scripture, but “thoſe that are ſecure in their proſperity, read “them as Verſes in Ovid. But what Graces “muſt we improve? I anſwer, every Grace; only I ſhall inſtance in theſe. 1. Our ſpiritual Wiſdom. To this purpoſe God is ſaid to open the Job 33.16. ears of men even by their afflictions. We are beſt inſtructed when we are afflicted. It is good for me that I have been afflicted (ſaid David) Pſ. 119.71. that I might learn thy Statutes. Algerius, a Martyr, could ſay, That he received more Light in a dark Dungeon, than ever he received before in all the world. And Luther profeſſed, That he never underſtood ſome of Davids Pſalms till he was in affliction. When all is done (ſaid he) Tribulation is the plaineſt and moſt ſincere Divinity. Prayer, Reading, Meditation and Temptations make a Divine. 2. Our Patience. To this purpoſe, We Rom. 5.3. rejoyce in tribulation (ſaid the Apoſtle) knowing that tribulation bringeth forth Patience. My Brethren Jam. 1.23. (ſaith James) count it exceeding joy when ye fall into divers temptations, knowing that the tryal of your Faith bringeth forth patience. The Malice of our Enemies both proves and improves our patience. See it exemplified in David; when Shimei curſed, and caſt ſtones at David, and called him Murtherer and wicked man, poor afflicted David was ſo far from revenging it, or ſuffering others to revenge it, that he makes that very thing an argument of his Patience, which was the exerciſe of it. Behold, my Son, (ſaith he) 2 Sam. 16. 11. which came forth of my bowels, ſeeketh my Life; how much more now may this Benjamite do it? 3. Our Faith. To this end God afflicts us that our Faith may increaſe: As it is ſaid of the Palm-tree, that it groweth higher, and ſtronger, and more and more fruitful, by how much the more weight it hath hanging upon it: or as it is ſaid of the Lion, that ſhe ſeems to leave her young ones till they have almoſt killed themſelves with roaring and howling, but at laſt gaſp ſhe relieves them, whereby they become the more courageous; ſo it pleaſeth the Lord ſometimes to leave his Children: Out of the Depths have I cryed Pſ. 130. 1. unto thee (ſaith David) and then, and not till then it follows, the Lord heard me. The Lord ſaw him ſinking all the while, yet lets him alone till he was at the bottom, and then hearing him, David is in ſtronger in Faith. This is the height of Faith, and the worth of Faith, to have a ſtrong confidence in God, even in the worſt of affliction, this is thank-worthy; Hope in a ſtate hopeleſs, a Love to God, when there is nothing but ſigns of his heavy diſpleaſure, heavenly-mindedneſs when all worldly affairs draw contrary way, is the chief praiſe of Faith. What made our Saviour ſay to that Woman of Canaan, O Woman great is thy Faith; but Mat. 15.28. this, in that neither his ſilence, nor his flat denial could ſilence her? Such a Faith had Job; Though he kill me, yet will I truſt in him. Job 13.15. Here is Faith to the purpoſe; to love that God who croſſeth us, to kiſs that hand which ſtrikes us, to truſt in that power which kills us, this is the honourable Proof of a Chriſtian, this argues Faith indeed.

9. Be we thankful to God for our Afflictions. Thus Job was, notwithſtanding he was bereaved of his Eſtate; of his Children, and in a great meaſure given up into the hands of Satan, yet he bleſſeth the Lord: The Lord giveth, and the Lord taketh away, ——— bleſſed be the Name of the Lord. Job 1. 21. And this is the meaning of the Prophet; Wherefore glorifie ye the Lord in the Fires, even the Name Iſa. 24. 15. of the Lord God of Iſrael in the Iſles of the Sea. And thus adviſeth the Apoſtle, If any man ſuffer as a 1 Pet. 4. 16. Chriſtian, let him not be aſhamed; but let him glorifie God on this behalf. And a little before, If ye be reproached for the Name of Chriſt, happy are ye, for the Spirit of Glory, and of God reſteth on you. 14. As Noah's Dove hovered over the water, and found no place to reſt her foot on, until ſhe returned to the Ark; ſo doth the Spirit of God (as it were) hover over the Souls of men, it wanteth reſt, and when it ſees a Soul that Suffers for the Truth, there it lights, there it reſts; The Spirit of God and of Glory there reſteth upon you: A Chriſtian is more bound to be thankful for the opportunity of exerciſing one Grace than for all the proſperity in the world. Now there are ſome Graces that cannot be exerciſed but only in affliction the Saints in Heaven never exerciſe Patience: and without affliction the Saints on earth have no opportunity to exerciſe Patience: But what! Have we the opportunity of exerciſing that Grace that we had not before? Be we thankful to God.

Iſa. 12. 3. 10. Let us with joy draw water out of the wells of Salvation: Let us comfort our ſelves in our ſuffering condition: We ſhould not only be thankful, but joyful. Methinks I hear ſome ſuffering Saints ſigh and ſay, Lam. 1. 12. v. 2. "What! is it nothing "to you, all ye that paſs by? I weep ſore in "the night, and my Tears are on my Cheeks; "among all my Lovers there is none to comfort "me; all my Friends have dealt treacherouſly "with me, they have heard that I ſigh, and "there is none to refreſh me. I ſtand for Chriſt, "but there is none ſtands by me; I own him, but "none owns me. Bleeding Chriſtian, bear up, though Men forſake thee, yet Chriſt will own thee; though Men as Swallow-ſhallow Friends do leave thee in the winter of Afflictions, yet Chriſt as a conſtant Friend abides: It is thy Glory that thou ſuffereſt for Chriſt; rejoyce as Paul did in thy Sufferings, ſith in them thou filleſt up that which is behind of the Afflictions of Chriſt. Coloſ. 1. 24. Know this for thy comfort, that thou that ſuffereſt with him, thou ſhalt alſo reign with him. 2 Tim. 2. 12. In the mean while, what ſweetneſs doſt thou feel from Chriſt? It is thy Priviledge, and ſurely thou may'ſt, I hope thou do'ſt expect more than ordinary ſweetneſs from thy Saviour; See'ſt thou not Heaven clear over thee? Doth not Chriſt lead thee gently? The Cup in thy Hand, though it taſte bitter to the Fleſh, doth not the Spirit make it ſweet? What's that in the bottom of thy bloody Cup? Is it not Love? Are not thy draughts of Suffering ſweeter and ſweeter? What Glory is that which reſts upon thee? Is not Chriſt with thee in the fire, and doth not he paſs with thee through the water? In this thy Storm of Wind and Rain, doth not the Sun ſhine? "Ah no, I ſuffer for "Chriſt, and yet I am without Chriſt; could I "but have his Preſence, I ſhould ſlight Perſecutions; did he ſmile, I ſhould laugh at my Foes "frowns; were I but in the light of him, I could "ſing in this darkneſs; did I but enjoy the leaſt "of his love, I could triumph in the Flame of their "Wrath; but ah, alas, woe, &c. Stay O Soul, ſpeak not out thy Sorrows too ſpeedily, Chriſt cannot be long away; hark! He comes leaping over the Mountains; ſee how the Clouds fly away: Surely the Sun will ſhine preſently, he cannot be long away; thy very ſins ſhall not, therefore thy Sufferings cannot ſeparate between him and thee; Why ſayſt thou O Jacob, and ſpeakeſt O Iſrael, Iſa. 41. 27, 28. my way is hid from the Lord? Haſt thou not heard? Haſt thou not known the everlaſting God, the Lord, the Creator of the Ends of the Earth? He fainteth not, he giveth power to the faint. Sing ye Sufferers, rejoyce ye Priſoners of Hope, the Lord whom ye look for, and long after, he is with you, he cannot be abſent from you: Chriſt is in your Priſons (though it may be you are not aware of it,) however, Caſt not away your confidence, Heb. 10. 35, 37, 38. for he that ſhall come will come, and will not tarry. Now the juſt ſhall live by Faith. (tis ſpoken to Sufferers) But if any Man draw back, my Soul ſhall have no pleaſure in him.

But that I may draw out many Arguments for your comforts, conſider of theſe particulars: ——

1. Chriſt is eſpecially preſent with his ſuffering-Saints. Thus run the Promiſes, I will be with him in trouble, and will deliver him. Fear not O Iſrael, Iſa. 43. 1, 2. when thou paſſeſt through the water, I will be with thee; ——— when thou walkeſt through the fire, thou ſhalt not be burned, neither ſhall the flame kindle upon thee. O what ſweet Promiſes! What Flaggons of Wine are theſe to comfort the diſtreſſed Soul! As Cæſar ſaid to the trembling Mariners, Be not afraid, for you carry Cæſar: So may I ſay to poor perſecuted, afflicted Chriſtians, Be not afraid, for he that is your King is in you, for you, with you. Upon this ground David comforted his Soul, Though I walk through the valley of Pſal. 23. 4. the ſhadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me, thy rod, and thy Staff comfort me. When Paul was bereaved of his ſight, then (as ſome conceive) he was rap't into the third Heaven, and heard thoſe words from Chriſt not fit to be uttered. 2 Cor. 12. 4. When Stephen was at the Bar, and the ſhower of Stones was ready to fall upon his head, then he ſaw Heaven it ſelf open, and the Son of Man ſtanding Acts 7. 56. at the right hand of God. When the three Children were in the Furnace, Chriſt was there to make the fourth; I ſaw four Men looſe walking in Dan. 3. 25. the midſt of the fire, and the form of the fourth is like the Son of God.

2. Chriſt is not only preſent, but ſupportingly preſent with his in their Sufferings. Thou art with me (ſaith David) thy rod and thy ſtaff comfort me. Pſal. 23. 4. Though all Men forſook Paul when he was to anſwer before Nero, Notwithſtanding (ſaith Paul) 2 Tim. 4. 16, 17. Chriſt the Lord ſtood by me, and ſtrengthened me.

3. Chriſt gives his Saints Cordials ſuitable to their Sufferings. They ſhall put you out of the John 16. 2. Synagogue (ſaith Chriſt) and kill you. 1. They ſhall excommunicate you; now as ſuitable to this, Chriſt told them that he went to prepare John 14. 2. Manſions for them in his Fathers Houſe. 2. They ſhall kill you; now as ſuitable to this, Chriſt tells them that their Lives ſhould be as ſure as his; Joh. 14 19 Becauſe I live, ye ſhall live alſo. Thus Chriſt hath ſuitable Cordials; if Men frown, he hath Smiles; if Men diſgrace, he hath Honours; if you loſe periſhing Riches, he hath endurable, unſearchable.

Whatſoever you ſuffer loſs in, he will make it up.

4. Chriſt ſympathizeth with his Suffering-Saints. Iſa. 63. 9. In all their Affliction he was afflicted, and the Angel of his Preſence ſaved them. Chriſtians, ſuffer when and where you will, Chriſt ſuffers then and there with you. Had Perſecutors Eyes they would ſee this, and they would be afraid of this. If we periſh, Chriſt, periſheth with us, could Luthur ſay; Suffering-Saints! Chriſt ſo loves you, as that he ſuffers with you: Are you in Dungeons? Chriſt is there too: Are you with Job on the Dunghill? Chriſt there ſits by you: Every drop of Blood that you bleed goes to the heart of Jeſus Chriſt; the Baptiſm of Affliction wherewith ye are baptized, is Chriſts; Count not, call not that yours which is his; ſurely he rather ſuffers for you, than you for him; or if you will ſay, you ſuffer for him, yet know he ſympathizeth with you in thoſe Sufferings.

5. Chriſt ordereth all the Sufferings of his Saints for Quality, Quantity, and Duration. 1. For Quality; Chriſt orders to ſome Mockings, Bonds, Impriſonments; to others ſtonings, ſawing, killing with the Sword; Joh. 21. 19 Chriſt tells Peter by what death he ſhould glorifie him. Pſal. 56. 8. 2. For Quantity; Thou telleſt my wandrings; he means the wandrings whilſt he was perſecuted, ſuch wandrings as the Heb. 11. 37 Apoſtle means. They wandred about in ſheep skins, and goats skins, being deſtitute, afflicted, tormented. David muſt not wander a ſtep more than Chriſt will number out. 3. For Duration; he orders Rev. 2. 10. that too, Ye ſhall have tribulation ten days. Rev. 11. 2, 9. The Gentiles ſhall tread the holy City under foot fourty two Months. The Witneſſes ſhall lye in the ſtreets three days and a half. So many Days, Months, Years; Chriſt orders all.

6. Chriſt often gives to his Saints moſt glorious Viſions in their grievous Sufferings: Was it not thus with John and Stephen? Rev. 1. 12. Acts 7. 54, 55. And how many Martyrs have ſpoke of ſuch ſpiritual Viſions, Viſits, Incomes, which they have had in Priſons, the like unto which they never found nor felt at other times? We give our Rings, Jewels, Chains, Net-works to our Children if they be in pains, which we lock up in Cloſets and Cabinets at other times, Chriſt gives Cabinet-comforts lockt up, and unuſual Diſcoveries to his Members in Priſons and Dungeons, of which many have had ſweet and gracious Experiences.

7. Chriſt rewards all the Sufferings of his Saints. Luke 22. 29, 30. To you that have continued with me in my temptation, I appoint unto you a Kingdom, as my Father hath appointed unto me. 2 Cor. 4. 16, 17. For our light Affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. Rom. 8. 18. I reckon that the Sufferings of this preſent time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which ſhall be revealed in us. Jam. 1. 12. And, Bleſſed is the Man that endureth temptations, for when he is tryed he ſhall receive the crown of life. Tortures are but trading with God for glory, ſaid Gordius: And Perſecutors are but my Fathers Goldſmiths (ſaid Bernard) who are working to add Pearls to the Crowns of Saints. Chriſtians! comfort your ſelves with theſe words.

Sect. 4. Of the the manner how to carry our ſelves when Sufferings and Afflictions are gone.

THe Duties that concern us when Affliction is gone, are theſe:——

1. That we treaſure up all the Experiences we have had of God, and of our own Hearts in the time of our Afflictions, keep we them freſh in our Hearts, and work them upon our own Spirits, and make uſe of them as God offers occaſion.

2. Whatſoever we wiſhed that we had done then, be ſure now to ſet about, and never reſt till it be done, that when Affliction comes again it may not find it undone, if he doth, it will make the Affliction very bitter unto us: If this Rule were well obſerved, we ſhould have glorious Reformations.

3. Be we careful to perform the Vows we have made in our Afflictions. Moſt Hypocrites have many good Motions and purpoſes, and ſeem to be new Men in their Afflictions, but when Gods hand is removed, they return to their old Byaſs again, yea, become worſe than before, Exo. 9. 34. only the Elect are better for their Afflictions afterwards; Pſ. 119. 67. Before I was afflicted, I went aſtray, but now I have kept thy word.

4. Take heed of truſting to our own Promiſes that we have made to God for Obedience, rather than to his Promiſes that he hath made to us for Aſſiſtance.

5. Often call our ſelves to account after the Affliction is over, What is become of it? How was it with me then? And how is it now? Have I more peace now than I had then? And how comes it about? Hath my Peace grown upon good grounds, ſo as it may hold? I had workings of Spirit then, what are become of them? Have I been faithful to God and to my own Soul?

6. Inſtead of all other Rules, be ſure to obſerve this: Sit we down and reflect upon our own ſelves; turn we in upon our own Hearts, and examine our ſelves thus:——"Have Teachings been mixt with Chaſtenings? Have Inſtructions accompanied Corrections? Hath the Rod budded? Hath God diſcovered to me the ſinfulneſs of ſin, the emptineſs of the Creature, the fulneſs of Chriſt? Is no evil like to the evil of ſin, no good like to Jeſus Chriſt? Is the World become an empty Vanity, a Mockery, a nothing in mine Eyes? Can I ſay, It is good I have been afflicted? And can I point out that good, and ſay, This I have got by my Sufferings! Can I ſay, I know divine Truths more inwardly, more clearly, more experimentally, more powerfully, more ſweetly than ever? Can I ſay, I have quietly ſubmitted, and I have endeavoured to improve my Sufferings to Gods glory and my own good? Thus if we queſtion, our Hearts will give the anſwer either in the affirmative or in the negative. If in the affirmative, then fall on theſe Duties: As:——

1. Study to be thankful; ſay with David, What ſhall I render unto the Lord? Pſ. 116. 12. Conſider how great things God hath done for our Souls. 1. God hath done more for us, than if he had never brought us into Affliction and Trouble, or than if he had brought us out the very ſame day on which he ſent us in; prevention and deliverance may be in wrath, but this is in love. 2. God hath doubled his mercy and loving kindneſs to us; hath commanded deliverance and inſtruction too; a hoiſted mercy; yea, as deliverance and inſtruction were the return of Prayer, a Treble, a multiplyed Mercy, which ſhould greatly indear the Heart to God, and make it ſing with David, I will love the Lord, becauſe he hath heard the voice of my ſupplication. Pſa. 116. 1. 3. God hath ſealed up our Adoption and Sonſhip; If ye endure chaſtening, God dealeth with you as with ſons; for what ſon is he whom the Father chaſteneth not? Heb. 12. 7. Our Patmos in this caſe hath been our Paradiſe, wherein he hath given us his Loves. 4. God hath conſecrated our Sufferings; Afflictions have taken Orders as it were, and ſtand no longer in the rank of ordinary Providences, but ſerve now in the Order of Goſpel-Ordinances: A Priſon, a Bed of Sickneſs, is turned into a School, into a Temple, wherein God hath taught us into his own likeneſs. 5. As God hath conſecrated our Sufferings, ſo he hath conſecrated us alſo by our Sufferings; ye have Heb. 10. 36. need of patience, that when you have done the Will of God, you may inherit the Promiſes: When we have done Gods Will, all is not done, there is ſomewhat to be ſuffered, and therefore we have need of Patience, to carry us through the ſuffering part of our work as well as the doing, that ſo being perfect, we may inherit the Promiſes. Pſ. 94. 12. 6. God hath crowned us with the Bleſſing; Bleſſed is the Man whom thou chaſteneſt and teacheſt: By this means God turns the Crown of Thorns into a Crown of Gold, and ſets it on our Head, and now brings us forth wearing this Crown, and ſhews us to the World as a Monument of free Pſal. 116. 12. grace. O then ſay with David, What ſhall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits towards me? God Pſa.50.15. himſelf gives the anſwer, I will deliver thee, and thou ſhalt glorifie me.

2. Study how to preſerve and maintain that ſweet gracious Frame of Heart, into which God hath brought us by Affliction: It is a Duty which we ſhould practiſe as oft as we come from the Word, or from any other Divine Ordinance. If an Ordinance-Frame, if a gracious Impreſſion be on our Hearts, we ſhould rejoyce in it, and bleſs God for it, and labour to keep up ſuch a Frame in our Hearts, till our next ſolemn Approach unto God. But how much more ſhould this be our care and ſtudy, when we come out of God's Furnace, that ſolemn Ordinance of Affliction, to labour and maintain that melting Frame of Heart, that warmth and heat, that life and vigour, which we have brought with us out of Affliction? 2 John 6. Look to your ſelves that ye loſe not thoſe things which God hath wrought in you. And to that purpoſe, 1. Be often reading over the Leſſons which God hath taught us; frequently revive the remembrance of them in our hands, and work the impreſſions of them upon our hearts. 2. Renew often upon our Souls the remembrance of the ſharpneſs and bitterneſs of the Affliction: The Church found Lam.3.19. great advantage this way: Remembring mine Affliction, and my Miſery, the Wormwood and the Gall, my Soul hath them continually in remembrance. and is humbled in me. The meaning is this; The People of God among the Jews, that deſired to keep cloſe to God after their great deliverance from Babylon, experience a ſerious and conſtant remembrance of thoſe ſeventy years Sufferings, to be an excellent preſervative to that humble and gracious Frame of Heart, which God wrought them into in their Captivity, and yet that is not all; as remembrance of Affliction preſerved Humility, ſo Humility ſtrengthened Faith; this I recal to mind, therefore have I hope, by the kindly operation of the remembrance of former Diſpenſations, ſhe began to conceive good hope through grace, that God had not chaſtened her in wrath, but love. 3. Call often to mind the ſad Diſcourſes and Reaſonings, the Fears and Tremblings which we have had in our Boſoms in the times of ſuffering. I forget proſperity (ſaid the Church) and I ſaid, Lam.3.17. My ſtrength and my hope is periſhed from the Lord: Lam.3.14. So Jeremiah, Waters flowed over mine head, then I ſaid, I am cut off. Thus David, I ſaid in my Pſa.31.21. paſſion; And Jonah, I ſaid I am caſt out of thy Jonah2.4. ſight. Thus ſhould we call to mind our Saids; (i. e.) we ſhould ſit down and recount the Impatiences and Short-ſpiritedneſſes, the Murmur and Unbelief, the love of a preſent World, the fear of Death, the hard thoughts of God, all the Irregularities and Diſtempers of our own Spirits in the time of Tribulation: Doubtleſs it would be of ſingular uſe as to humble our Souls and to check Corruption, ſo to endear and preſerve the Teachings of God upon our Souls. Good and upright is the Lord, therefore Pſal. 25.8. will he teach ſinners in the way, q. d. I ſinned againſt the Lord in my Affliction, by my Impatience, Unbelief, Unhumbledneſs, &c. yet he was pleaſed not altogether to leave me without the Teachings of his Spirit; not becauſe I was good, but becauſe he was good; not becauſe I pleaſed him, but becauſe mercy pleaſed him; not becauſe I was upright before him, but becauſe he was upright, true, and faithful to his own Promiſe: Good and upright is the Lord, and therefore he hath taught me, though I was a ſinner, the way. 4. Attend conſtantly and conſcionably upon the Miniſtry of the Word. The truth is, the Word and the Rod teach the ſame Leſſons; the Rod many times is but the Words remembrancer; and therefore as the Rod quickens the Word, ſo the Word back again will revive and ſanctifie the Teachings of the Rod; they mutually help to ſet on one another with deeper Impreſſions. 5. Feed that Frame of Heart which God hath taught us into: “Meditate much upon the ſinfulneſs of Sin, the emptineſs of the Creature, the fulneſs of Chriſt, the exquiſiteneſs of his Sufferings, the ſeverity of the laſt Judgment, the torments of Hell, the joys of Heaven, the Horrour of Eternity; rich in Meditation, and rich in Grace. 6. Be much in Prayer: Strengthen O God (prays Pſ. 68. 23. David) that which thou haſt wrought in us. Accordingly was that Prayer of Luther, “Confirm O Lord, in us what thou haſt wrought, and perfect the work thou haſt begun in us to thy glory; So be it. Theſe are the means to preſerve a good Frame of Heart.

2. But on the other ſide, If our Heart anſwer in the negative, That our Chaſtnings have had no divine Teachings, our God hath not diſcovered to us the ſinfulneſs of Sin, the emptineſs of the Creature, the fulneſs of Chriſt; either the Rod was dumb, or we were deaf; Affliction hath left us as it found us, as ignorant, as unhumbled, as unſenſible of ſin, as worldly, as ſtrange to Chriſt and our own Hearts; as regardleſs of Eternity, as fit for ſin as we were before; as devoid of grace, as unthankful, as uncomfortable as ever: O it is ſad! and therefore, come, “roul we our ſelves in the Duſt before the Lord, ſmite upon our Thigh, ſigh with the breaking of our Loyns, and cry out with Ephraim, Jer.31.18. “Thou haſt chaſtiſed me and I was chaſtiſed, as a bullock unaccuſtomed to the yoke: “I have felt the Blows of God, but that is all; I have received no more Inſtructions than a brute Beaſt; or if I had, I have quickly loſt it; it is like the untimely Fruit of a Woman that never ſaw the Sun. Truly we have cauſe to ſit down and even wiſh for our Afflictions again: God hath put himſelf into our hands (as it were) and we have let him go without the bleſſing of ſaving Inſtruction: How may we even wiſh that we were in Priſon again, in our ſick Bed, again, in Baniſhment again, &c. However, humble our ſelves greatly before the Lord, and wreſtle mightily for the after-improvings of God upon our Hearts; pray, "Turn me Lord, and I ſhall "be turned, for thou art the Lord my God; "what Affliction hath not done, Lord do thou; "ſet Omnipotency on work, and it ſhall be done; "turn me, and I ſhall be turned; that ſo our Souls may yet ſpeak to the praiſe of free grace, After that I returned I repented, and after that I was inſtructed, I ſmote upon the thigh; I was aſhamed, yea even confounded, becauſe I did bear the reproach of my youth. Jer. 31. 19. Urge the Lord, as Samſon did after his Victory, Thou haſt given this great deliverance into the hand of thy Servant, and ſhall I now die for Thirſt, and fall into the hand of the uncircumciſed? Judges 12. 18. Say we, "Lord, thou haſt given thy Servant this "great deliverance from danger and death, and ſhall "I now periſh for want of divine Improvement, "and go down to Hell among the uncircumciſed? Teach me thy way, O Lord, and I will walk in thy truth. Pſ. 86. 11. ——— Teach me to do thy will, for thou art my God, thy Spirit is good, lead me into the Land of Uprightneſs. Pſal. 143. 10. In a word, deſire the Lord, that he would do all the work, and then take all the Glory.

Thus much of the Sufferings of Saints.

CHAP. XVII. SECT. I.

OF PREPARATIVES TO FASTING.

Hitherto of Duties Ordinary; now follow the extraordinary, Faſting and Feaſting: But becauſe the Book is ſwollen bigger then I had purpoſed it, and that much of the Extraordinary is contained in the Ordinary Duties, I ſhall therefore deliver in few words what I have to ſay of theſe Duties.

The firſt of theſe is Faſting, in which there is required ſomething {Antecedent.

Concomitant.
Subſequent.

1. The Antecedent or Preparation thereto, conſiſts in theſe particulars:——

1. Take but a moderate Supper the night before; for if a Man glut himſelf over night, he will be more unfit for the Duty of Humiliation the next day.

2. Immediately after Supper, all ſervile Works of our Calling laid aſide, begin the Preparation, and continue ſo long as we can conveniently ſit up, even longer and later than on other days: *From even to even ſhall ye celebrate your * Sabbath,* Lev. 23. 32 ſaith God; and therefore then ſet the time allotted apart for that holy work, propounding to our ſelves the End of our intended Faſt, reſolving to keep it to God according to his will, adding ſerious Petitions to God in our Prayers, in that behalf.

3. When we awake that night, let not our Thoughts be upon worldly Buſineſs, much leſs upon any wicked thing, but let them be holy, ſuch as may tend to the furtherance of the holy Actions to be done the next day.

4. Ariſe early the day of our Faſt; this agrees well with a Faſting-day; it is probable, that for this cauſe ſome lay on the ground, others 2 Sam. 12. 16. in ſack-cloth, in the nights of their Faſts, Joel 1. 13. not only to expreſs but to further their Humiliation, by keeping them from ſleeping over-much or overſweetly.

5. In the Morning (after ſome renewing of our Preparation, and Prayer for Gods Spiritual Grace to enable us to ſanctifie a Faſt that day) apply we our ſelves, to the main work of the day, of which in the next Section.

Sect. 2. Of the Duties required in Faſting.

In the Action of Faſting, there are Duties {inward. outward.

1. The inward Duties are {general.
more ſpecial.

1. The Duties that more generally concern the nature of the day, are ſuch as theſe:——

1. In the true ſpiritual Faſt, there muſt be faſting from ſin, or the forſaking of all our ſins; for whiles we abſtain from lawful things, we are admoniſhed much more to abſtain from all things that are utterly unlawful at all times: It is the Lords complaint, Behold, ye faſt for ſtrife and debate, and ſmite with the fiſt of wickedneſs, ye ſhall not faſt as ye do this day. Iſa. 58. 4. It is plain, the Lord will endure no Faſt of thoſe that go on ſtill in their wickedneſs.

2. The

* I ſpeak not this in reference to our Lords Day; Indeed the ſeventh day Sabbath among the Jews began at Evening, and ſo ended the next day Evening, according to the beginning and ending of natural days from the Creation (as it is ſaid) the Evening and Morning made the firſt day, but our Lords day beginneth in the Morning from the Reſurrection of Chriſt on the morning on that day, and that's not without a Myſtery, that the Legal Sabbath began with Darkneſs, and the Evangelical began with Light.

2. The Word and Prayer muſt be added. Neh. 1. 4. I faſted and prayed before the God of Heaven, Neh. 9. 3. ſaid Nehemiah: ——— And they ſtood up in their place, and read in the Book of the Law of the Lord their God, one fourth part of the day, and another fourth part they confeſſed and worſhiped the Lord their God: But whereas Prayer is a daily and ordinary Exerciſe of the Saints, it is manifeſt, that by Prayer coupled with Faſting, is underſtood a ſpecial and peerleſs kind of Prayer, wherein two things are required: 1. Fervency of Deſire; now we muſt not only pray, but cry unto the Joel 1.14. Lord, yea, as the Ninevites ſpeak, We are to cry Jonah 3. 8. mightily unto him: For the uſe of our outward Abſtinence, is but the wing of Prayer, wherewith it might more eaſily fly up to Heaven. 2. In ſuch a Prayer, there ſhould be an aſſurance of Faith: The Lord hath made a gracious Promiſe in many places to this Ordinance, 2 Chron. 7. 14. Iſa. 58. 8, 3. Joel 2. 18, 19. And let all the Faſts of the Church of Chriſt, both in the Old and New Teſtament be looked at, as Judges 20. 23. Ezra 9. 6. Eſth. 4. 16. Acts 13. 2, 3. And it will appear, that the End of their Faſts (kept in any meaſure of truth and ſincerity) was a Feaſt, and the iſſue of their Mourning, great Rejoycing; all which may ſerve wonderfully to ſtrengthen our Faith in this holy Performance.

3. Works of Mercy muſt be added; Is not Iſa. 58, 6, 7. this the Faſt that I have choſen, to looſe the bands of wickedneſs, to deal thy bread unto the hungry, to bring the poor that are caſt out, into thine houſe, and when thou ſeeſt the naked, to cover them? In all our Faſts this muſt be obſerved, that the poor may have the gain of our Faſting; If their loyns and bowels bleſs us, the Lord alſo will bleſs us abundantly.

4. We muſt ever in theſe days of Humiliation, renew our Covenant with the Lord; and not only unfeignedly purpoſe, but faithfully promiſe amendment of Life; this making, renewing and keeping our Covenant, is the life and ſum, and the one moſt neceſſary thing in this excellent and extraordinary exerciſe of Faſting and Prayer.

2. The particular Duties, wherein we muſt ſeriouſly exerciſe our Souls on ſuch a day, are theſe: ——

1. In a right ſurvey and full comprehenſion of all our Vileneſs, Iniquities, Tranſgreſſions and Sins.

2. In a right apprehenſion of Gods dreadful Wrath and flaming Vengeance againſt ſin.

3. In a feeling ſenſe of our own unſpeakable and inconceivable Miſery by reaſon thereof.

4. In a vile and baſe conceit and eſteem of our ſelves, abhorring our ſelves in Duſt and Aſhes.

5. In an inward Sorrow, renting of the Heart, bleeding of the Soul, accompanied with an outward bewailing, with a plentiful and heart piercing Confeſſion of all our Sins before Gods gracious Throne.

6. In a reſolute hatred, diſlike and averſion in the Will, in an impregnable reſolution and ſtrong reaſoning of the Mind, in a conſtant indeavour and watchful oppoſition againſt ſin.

7. In an hearty grieving that we cannot perform all theſe more heartily, ſincerely and ſoundly.

2. The outward Duties conſiſt eſpecially in outward Abſtinence: As ——

1. From full ſleep, whence that Exhortation in ſome ſenſe, Watch unto Prayer, Col. 4. 2. 1 Pet. 4. 7.

2. From coſtly Apparel, from Ornaments, and better Attire, Exod. 33. 4, 5, 6. Jonah 3. 6.

3. From Matrimonial Benevolence, from that Society which God hath ſanctify'd by his Word to married Perſons, 1 Cor. 7. 5. Joel 2. 16.

4. From bodily Labours and worldly Buſineſs, Lev. 16. 29, 31. —— 23. 22. Joel 1. 14. —— 2. 15.

5. From Food wholly; and yet this total Abſtinence from Meat and Drink is not ſo ſtrictly required, but that they whoſe Health cannot bear it, may in caſe of true neceſſity take ſome little refreſhing, leſt otherwiſe they hazard or hurt their Health, and unfit themſelves for the ſpiritual Exerciſe and Duty; indeed we have no Example of this caſe propounded in Scripture, yet we have a ſufficient ground for it, Hoſea 6. 6. Mat. 12. 7.

6. From all carnal Delights and Pleaſure of this Life, Joel 2. 16. David and Daniel would not anoint themſelves at ſuch a time, 1 Sam. 12. 20. Dan. 10. 3. And all theſe outward Duties are to be obſerved. 1. Partly as Helps to our Humiliation, in renouncing the hindrances thereof; 2. Partly as ſigns of our Humiliation, whereby we acknowledge our ſelves unworthy of theſe Delights. 3. Partly as Evidences of our Repentance, in that by way of godly Revenge, we deprive our Senſes (which have all ſinned) of their ſeveral Delights.

Sect. 3. Of the Duties after Faſting.

WHen all is done and performed, obſerve theſe particulars: ——

1. Take heed of inward Pride, and reſting in the Performance: Spiritual Pride is that Worm that will breed in the beſt Fruits of the Spirit, that Poyſon which the Devil (that helliſh Spider) will ſuck out of the beſt Flowers in Gods Garden; and if he can but prevail over us to be Self-conceited with our Enlargements, or to truſt to that Service we have done; he hath what he looks for, and deprives us of all the comfort of our Humiliation: Labour therefore as much as we can, to humble our ſelves with a through view of our Failings in the beſt of our Performances; and for our Enlargements, conſider we the Fountain of them, which is not any ability of our own, but the good Spirit of God, breathing where and when it liſteth, and ſetting out our ſtrait Hearts, which otherwiſe would be utterly cloſed and ſhut up; let Chriſt have the Glory of all our Abilities who hath given us his Grace, but will not give his Glory to another.

2. Hold the ſtrength which we have got that day as much as we can; keep we ſtill our Intereſt and Holy Acquaintance, which we have gotten with God, and with the holy Exerciſes of Religion; unlooſe not the bent of our Care and Affections againſt ſin, and for God: It is a Corruption of our Nature, and it is a Policy of Satan to help it forward, that (like ſome unwiſe Warriors when they have gotten the day of their Enemies) we grow full of Preſumption and Security, by which the Enemy taketh advantage to recollect his Forces, and coming upon us unlook'd for, gives us the foil, if not the overthrow; we are too apt, after a day of Humiliation to fall into a kind of Remiſneſs, as if then we had gotten the Maſtery; whereas, if Satan fly from us, if ſin be Luk. 4.13. weakned in us, it is but for a ſeaſon, and but in part, and eſpecially if we ſtand not upon our watch, Satan will take occaſion to return, and ſin Mat.12.44. will revive in us.

3. Wait upon God for return; we muſt not preſume that preſently upon the work done, God muſt grant our asking; as Hypocrites, that could Iſa. 58. 3. ſay, We have faſted, and thou haſt not regarded it; we may and muſt expect a gracious Hearing Mat.21.22. upon our unfeigned Humiliation; All things whatſoever ye ſhall ask in prayer, believing, ye ſhall receive; but as for when and how, we muſt 1 Joh. 5. 14. wait patiently; it is true, Faith ſecureth us of good Succeſs; This is the confidence that we have in him, that if we ask any thing according to his will, he heareth us; But Faith neither preſcribeth unto God Iſa. 40,13. how; For who hath directed the Spirit of the Lord, Iſa. 28.16. or being his councellor, hath taught him? Nor yet doth it make haſt, Behold, I lay in Zion for a Foundation a ſtone, a tryed ſtone, a precious corner ſtone, a ſure Foundation; he that believeth ſhall not make haſte: Faith waits Gods leiſure, when he in his wiſdom judgeth it moſt ſeaſonable, that is the time.

And thus much of our Duty before, in, and after Religious Faſting.

CHAP. XVIII. SECT. I.

OF THE DUTIES

To be Performed before

Thankſgiving or Feaſting.

THe ſecond Duty extraordinary, is Holy Feaſting or Thankſgiving; and the Preparation thereto conſiſts in theſe particulars: ——

Pſ. 103. 1, 2. 1. In the ſtirring up of our ſelves to the performance of this Duty: Bleſs the Lord, O my Soul, and all that is within me, bleſs his holy Name: Bleſs the Lord, O my Soul, and forget not all his benefits.

2. In meditating on Gods undeſerved Bounty towards us, and of our own unworthineſs to God: Gen.32.9, 10. O God of my Father's,— which ſaid'ſt to me,—— I will deal well with thee: I am not worthy of the leaſt of all thy mercies, and all the truth which thou haſt ſhewed unto thy Servant.

3. In craving the aſſiſtance of God's Spirit (be-Pſ. 15.17. cauſe of our ſelves we are unable) to open our lips, that we may ſhew forth his praiſe.

Sect. 2. Of the Duties required in Thankſgiving.

IN the Actions of Thankſgiving there are Duties. { inward. / outward. }

1. The inward Duties are { χάρις. Thankfulneſs. / χαρὰ. Chearfulneſs. }

1. Thankfulneſs of the Soul, which implies { Mindfulneſs, / Acknowledgment. / Affection. }

1. We muſt mind, and therefore we are often ſtirred up to remember Gods Benefits, Deut. 6. 12.——8. 18.——32. 18. Pſal. 103. 2.

2. We muſt acknowledge Gods goodneſs, James 1. 17. Deut. 8. 18. And our beholdingneſs, in reſpect of our own nullity and unworthineſs, 1 Cor. 4. 7. 1 Chron. 17. 16.

3. We muſt prize and eſteem Gods Benefits, endeavouring to amplifie them, in reſpect of their Greatneſs, Excellency, Profit, Neceſſity, Sufficiency, acknowledging therein Gods Wiſdom, Power, Goodneſs fatherly Providence and Bounty towards us, Pſal. 16. 5, 6. Mark 7. 37. Rom. 8. 28. And this Acknowledgment, if it be effectual, will work affection in the Heart, a ſenſe of Gods goodneſs and bounty towards us, cauſing us to love God, and to be obſequious towards God in all the Duties of Thankfulneſs.

2. Chearfulneſs and alacrity of Spirit; as the Lord loves a chearful Giver, ſo a chearful Thankſgiver, χάρις Thanks, comes of χαίρω, to rejoyce χάρις muſt be μετὰ χαρᾶς, with joy, Phil. 1. 4. James 5. 13. The Holy Ghoſt in many places hath joyn- Pſa. 9. 2. ed them together: I will be glad and rejoyce in thee, I Pſa. 33. 1. will ſing praiſe unto thy name, O thou moſt high: —— Rejoyce in the Lord, O ye Righteous, for praiſe is comely Pſal. 92. 1, 2. for the upright: —— It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to ſing praiſes unto thy Name, O moſt high; For thou Lord haſt made me glad through thy work, I will triumph in the works of thy hands.

2. The outward Duty is to expreſs our inward Thankfulneſs and Chearfulneſs. Our Thankfulneſs, by celebrating and praiſing the name of God, by extolling his Goodneſs, by recounting his Mercies, and exciting others to praiſe the Lord: Our Chearfulneſs, by making a joyful noiſe and ſinging unto God: Pſal. 82. 1. Sing aloud unto God our ſtrength, make a joyful noiſe unto the God of Jacob: —— Make a joyful noiſe unto Pſa. 100. 1, 2. the Lord, all ye Lands, ſerve the Lord with gladneſs, come before his preſence with ſinging: To this purpoſe we may ſing the Pſalms in the end of this Book, or ſome ſuch other.

Sect. 3. Of the Duties after Thankſgiving.

THe Duty after, conſiſts in theſe particulars: ——

1. In referring the Benefits and Gifts received, to the glory of God the Giver, in the good of his Church.

2. In ſeeking to glorifie God who hath been ſo gracious unto us, by bringing forth the Fruits of John 15.8. a godly Life: Herein is my Father glorified that ye bear much Fruit.

3. In honouring the Lord with our Subſtance, and acknowledging him to be the chief Lord of Prov. 3. 9. all we poſſeſs: Honour the Lord with thy Subſtance, and with the firſt Fruit of all thy encreaſe.

SECT.

SECT. 4.

Of Pſalms ſuitable to this Duty, tranſlated by Mr. W. B.

Pſalm 100 to the Tune, Have mercy, &c.

ALL men of mortal birth.
that dwell in all the earth;
2. O make a noiſe to God with joys,
and ſerve the Lord with mirth.
O come before his throne with ſinging, every one;
3. For certainly the Lord moſt high,
even he is God alone.

He made us, and not we;
not we our ſelves, but he.
His folk, and flock, and paſture ſtock be made us for to be:
4. With praiſe come to his gate.
and to his courts relate.
His laud and fame, and bleſs his name:
his honour celebrate.

5. For God is good for ever,
his mercy faileth never.
His truth doth laſt all ages paſt, and conſtant doth perſever.

PSAL. 108. Firſt Part.

O God I fix my heart,
my glory bears a part.
And as my tongue, ſo ſhall my ſong praiſe thee with muſicks art.
2. Wake Harp and Pſaltery.
right early wake will I:
3. Thy praiſes Lord, will I record,
the people ſtanding by.

I'le praiſe thee with my ſong,
the nations all among:
4. To heavens high, to clouds of sky,
his truth and mercy throng.
5. Exalted be thy name
above the heavens frame.
Let earth below the trumpet blow of thy renowned fame.

PSAL. 150.

PRaiſe, praiſe the Lord moſt high within his ſanctuary,
In topmoſt tower of his great power,
with praiſe him magnifie.
2. Praiſe him for acts renown'd,
with excellency crown'd;
According to his greatneſs, do praiſe him with trumpet ſound.

3. O praiſe him chearfully,
with Harp and Pſaltery:
4. And let the dance his praiſe advance,
and Timbrels melody
Praiſe him with joynt conſents of ſtringed inſtruments.
5. The Organs bring, loud Cymbals ring,
each one his praiſe preſents.

5. High ſounding Cymbals ring, let every Breathing thing

LIFES LEASE.

Gen. 47. 9.

Few and evil have the Days of my Life been.

WHEN Pharaoh was Egypt's King, Joſeph, Pharaoh's Steward, and Jacob, Joſeph's Father, there was a great Famine, which Pharaoh had dreamed, Joſeph foretold, and Jacob ſuffered, God that ſent Joſeph to Pharaoh, brings Jacob to Joſeph, the ſame Providence ſo diſpoſing of all, that yet ſome Food muſt be in Egypt, when nothing was found in all the Land of Canaan: Thither come and welcome (as you may ſee in the Story:) Pharaoh ſalutes Jacob with this Queſtion, What is thy Age? How many are thy Days? How many? alas, but few: What are they? alaſs, but evil: Thus we find Jacob at his Arithmetick; the Bill is ſhort, and the Number but a Cipher. Will you hear him caſt his Accounts? Firſt, they are Days; and without all Rules of Falſhood, by Subſtraction, few; by Addition, full of evil: contract all, and this is the ſum of all, Few and evil have the days of my Life been.

This Text, briefly, is the Leaſe of Jacob's Life; God the chief Lord enriched his Subſtance, ſtance, yet limits the Grant of his Time: will you queſtion the Leaſe? For what time? no more but my Life] ſaith Jacob: But a Life? what Years? No Years, but Days] ſaith Jacob: But Days? how many? Not many, but few] ſaith Jacob; but few? how good? not good, but evil] ſaith Jacob: Who can blaze the Arms of Life, that finds not in it Croſs and Croſlet? the Leaſe, but a Life] the Term, but Days,] the Number, few,] the Nature, evil;] nay, when all is done, we ſee all is out of date; the days are not, but are paſt, they have been;] Few and evil have the days of my life been.]

We muſt, you ſee, invert the Text, and begin with that on which all hangs; it is but my life,] ſaith Jacob.

Life.]

WOuld you know what is that? Take but a view of Nature and Scripture, and theſe will ſufficiently deſcribe our Life.

Ut Roſa Paſtano languet adepta jugo, Tifernas.

Firſt, Nature, whoſe dim Eye ſees thus far: What is it but a Roſe? ſaith Tifernas; which if you view in its growth, the Cold nips it, Heat withers it, the Wind ſhakes it; be it never ſo fair, it withers; be it never ſo lively, immediately we die and periſh.

Ut herba ſolſtitialis, Plaut.

ὁ βίος οὐ βίος ἀληθῶς, Philemon.

Scena eſt ludus, quoque vita. Luſcin.

Cum parumper ſe oſtendiſſet, mox ſe abſcondit. Anonym. Rodol. Agric.

Tu quieſcis ſecurus, & in modum gliris ſepultus jaces, Philonius.

ἀνέρες εἰκελόνειροι, Ariſtoph.

σκιᾶς ὄναρ ἄνθρωπος, Pind. in Pyth.

Vita quid niſi mortis imago? Cato.

A Roſe? that is too beautiful! Life is but Graſs, ſaith Plautus, green now, withered anon; thus like the Flower that is cut in Summer; aſſoon as we are born, Death is ready with his Scythe; aſſoon as we are dead, Angels gather in the Harveſt, on whoſe wings we are carried to that Barn of Heaven. Graſs? No, ſaith Philemon, Life is no better than a counterfeit Picture: what if the Colours be fair, and the reſemblance near? the ſhadow of Death, and the Curtains of our Grave will darken all. A Picture? That is too honourable; Life is (a worſe reſemblance) but a Play, ſaith Luſcinus; we enter at our Birth, and act all our Life; preſently; there is an Exit, or a back return, and away we go, ſhutting up all with a ſudden Tragedy. A Play? That is too large. Anonymus being asked what was Life? he ſhews himſelf a little, then hides himſelf again; his meaning was this, our Life is but a little Shew; and no ſooner are we ſeen, but immediately are we hid and gone. A Shew? that is too pleaſant; Life is nothing but a Sleep, ſaith Philonius; we live ſecure, and Dormice-like we ſlumber away our time; when all is done, as if all this were too little, we ſleep again, and go from (our Grave) the Bed, to (that Bed) our Grave. A Sleep? That is too quiet; it is nothing but a Dream, ſaith Ariſtophanes; all our worldly pleaſures are but waking Dreams, at laſt Death rowzeth our Souls that have ſlept in Sin, then lifting up our heads, and ſeeing all gone, we awake ſorrowing. A Dream, or the Dream of a Shadow, ſaith Pindarus; the worſt, the weakeſt Dream that can be imagined; ſure one ſtep further were to arrive at Death's door; and yet thus far are we led by the hand of Nature; nay, if you will lower; Death ſucceeds Life, and Life is but the Image of Death, ſaith Cato. Here is a true Picture of our Frailty; Life is like Death; indeed ſo like, ſo near together, that we cannot differ each from other.

See here the Condition of our Life; what is it but a Roſe, a Graſs, a Picture, a Play, a Shew, a Sleep, a Dream, an Image of Death? Such a thing is Life, that we ſo much talk of.

And if Nature give this Light, how blind are they that cannot ſee Lifes frailty? You need no more but mark the Deſtinies (as Poets feign) to ſpin their Threads; one holds, another draws, a third cuts it off; What is your Life but a Thread; ſome have a ſtronger twiſt, others a more ſlender: ſome live till near rot; others die when ſcarce born: there's none endure long; this Thred of Life is cut ſooner or later, and then our work is done, our courſe is finiſhed. Are theſe the Emblems of our Life? And dare we truſt to this broken ſtaff? How do the Heathen precede us Chriſtians in theſe Studies? Their Books were Sculls, their Desks were Graves, their Remembrance an Hour-glaſs. Awake your Souls, and bethink you of Mortality; Have you any privilege for your Lives? Are not Heathens and Chriſtians of one Father Adam? of one Mother Earth? The Goſpel may free you from the ſecond, not the firſt Death; only provide you for the firſt, to eſcape the ſecond Death. O men, what be your thoughts? nothing but of Goods, and Barns, and many Years? You may boaſt of Life, as Oromazes the Conjurer of his Egg, which (he ſaid) included the felicity of the world; yet being opened, there was nothing but Wind: Think what you pleaſe, your Life is but a Wind, which may be ſtopt ſoon, but cannot laſt long by the Law of Nature.

But ſecondly, as Nature, ſo Scripture will inform you in this Point. The Life of Man is but of little eſteem: What is it but a Shrub or a Briar in the Fire? As the crackling of Thorns under the Pot, ſo is the (Life or) Laughter of the Fool; momentany and vanity, Eccleſ. 7. 6. Nay, a Shrub were ſomething but our Life is leſs, no better than a Leaf not a tree, nor ſhrub, nor fruit, nor bloſſom: We all fade as a Leaf, and our iniquities like the Wind have ſwept us away, Iſa. 64. 6. Yet a Leaf may glory of his birth, it is deſcended of a Tree: Life is a Reed, ſometimes broken, at leaſt ſhaken; ſo vain, ſo infirm, ſo inconſtant is the Life of man: What went ye out to ſee? a Reed ſhaken with the wind? Mat. 11. 7. Nay a reed were ſomething, our life is baſer, indeed no better than a Ruſh or Flag. Can a Ruſh grow without Mire? though it were green, and not cut down, yet ſhall it wither before any other herb, Job 8. 11. 12. What ſhall I ſay more? what ſhall I cry, a Ruſh? All fleſh is graſs, and all the grace thereof as the flower of the field; the graſs withereth, the flower fadeth, ſurely the people is graſs, Iſa. 40. 7. I am deſcended beneath juſt patience, but not ſo low as the life of man; as all theſe reſemble life, ſo in ſome meaſure they have life: but life is a ſmoke, without any ſpark of light in it: thus cries David, My days are conſumed like ſmoak, and my bones are burnt like an hearth, Pſal. 102. 3. Yet here no ſtay, the ſmoke ingenders clouds, and a cloud is the fitteſt reſemblance of our life: My welfare paſſeth away as a cloud (ſaith Job) and our life ſhall paſs away as the trace of a cloud, and come to naught, as the Miſt that is driven away with the beams of the Sun, Job 30. 15. Neither is this all, clouds may hang calm, but life is like a tempeſt, Job 7. 7. it is a cloud and a wind too; Remember that my life is but a wind, and that mine eye ſhall not turn to ſee pleaſure, Job 7. 7. Nay, we muſt lower, and find a weaker Element; it is not a wind, but water; ſaid that woman of Tekoah, 2 Sam. 14. 14. We are as water ſpilt on the ground which cannot be gathered up again, 2 Sam. 14. 14. yet is water both a good and neceſſary Element. Life is the leaſt part of water, nothing but a Foam, a Bubble. Hoſ. 10. 7. The King of Samaria (that great King) is deſtroyed as the foam upon the water, Hoſ. 10. 7. I can no more, and yet here is ſomething leſs, a foam or bubble may burſt into a vapour, and what Jam. 4. 14. is your life? It is even a vapour that appeareth for a little time, and afterwards vaniſheth away, Jam. 4. 14. Leſs than this is nothing; yet life is ſomething leſs, nothing in ſubſtance; all it is, it is but 1 Chr. 29. 15. a ſhadow: We are ſtrangers and ſojourners as all our Fathers were; our days are like a ſhadow upon the earth, and there is none abiding, 1 Chron. 29. 15. See whither we have brought our life, and yet ere we part, we will down one ſtep lower; upon a ſtrict view we find neither ſubſtance nor ſhadow, Pſ. 39. 5. only a meer nothing, a very vanity: Behold thou haſt made my days as an hands breath, and mine Age is nothing in reſpect of thee; ſurely every man living is altogether vanity, Pſal. 39. 5.

Lo here the nature of our Life; it is a ſhrub a leaf, a read, a ruſh, a graſs, a ſmoak, a cloud, a wind, a water, a bubble, a vapour, a ſhadow, a nothing.

What mean we to make ſuch ado about a matter of nothing? I cannot chuſe but wonder at the vanity of men, that run, ride, toil, travel, undergo any labour to maintain this life; and what is it when they have their deſire which they ſo much toil for? We live, and yet whilſt we ſpeak this word, perhaps we die. Is this a Land of the living, or a Region of the dead? We that ſuck the Air, kindle this little Spark, where is our ſtanding but at Pſ. 9. 13. the gates of Death? Pſal. 9. 13. Where is our Luk. 1. 79. Walk, but in the ſhadow of Death? Luke 1. 79. What is our Manſion-houſe, but the body Rom. 7. 24. of Death? Rom 7. 24. What think ye? Is not this the Region of Death, where there is nothing but the gate of Death, and the ſhadow of Death, and the body of Death? Sure we dream that we live; but ſure it is that we die; or if we live, the beſt hold we have is but a Leaſe: God our chief Lord may beſtow what he pleaſeth; to the rich man wealth, to the wiſe man knowledge, to the good man peace; to all men ſomewhat; yet if you ask, Who is the Leſſor? God. Who is the Leſſee? Man. What is leaſed? This World. For What Term? My Life.] This Jacob tells Pharaoh, as the Text tells you, Few and evil have the days of my life] been.

Annon & hæc regio mortis, ubi porta mortis, umbra mortis, & corpus mortis?

This is the Leaſe; and now you have it, let us ſee what uſe you will make of it.

Uſe 1. Wiſd. 2. 6. 7. It is a bad Life ſome live; Come (ſay they) and let us enjoy the pleaſures that are preſent, and let us chearfully uſe the Creatures as in youth, let us fill our ſelves with coſtly wine and ointments, and let not the flower of life paſs by us. What a Life is here! Can it be, that Pleaſures, Wine, and Ointments ſhould have any durance in this Vale of Miſery? Suppoſe thy Life a continued Scene of Pleaſures; hadſt thou Dives's Fare, Solomon's Robes, David's Throne, Crœſus's Wealth; livedſt thou many Years without any Cares; yet at laſt comes Death, and takes away thy Soul in the midſt of her Pleaſures: Alaſs! what is all thy Glory, but a Snuff that goes out in ſtench? Couldeſt thou not have made Death more welcome, if he had found thee lying on a pad of Straw, feeding on Cruſts and Crumbs? Is not thy Pain more grievous, becauſe thou waſt more happy? Do not thy Joys more afflict thee, than if they had never been? O deceitful World, that grieveſt if thou croſſeſt; and yet to whom thou art beſt, they are moſt unhappy!

But to ſpeak to you who have paſſed the Pikes Uſe 2. and Pangs of the New Birth: Would you have Life indeed, and enjoy that Joy of Life which is immortal? Then head, revive, watch, and awake from Sin. Where you ſometimes dead in Sin? O but now live in Chriſt; Chriſt is the Life, John. 14. 6. Joh. 14. 6. Where you ſometimes dumb in your dying Pangs? O but now abide in Chriſt; Chriſt is the Word of Life, John 1. 1. Are you Joh. 1. 1. as yet Babes in Chriſt, feeble and but weak through Lifes Infirmities? Why then uſe all good Means, eat and be ſtrong; Chriſt is the Bread of Joh. 6. 48. Life, John 6. 48. Here is a Life indeed; would you not thus live for ever? Then believe in God, Joh. 17. 3. and in Jeſus Chriſt whom he hath ſent, and this is Life eternal, John 17. 3. O happy Life, which many a Man never dreams of! So much they ſtrive to protract this brittle Life, which but adds more Grief, that they forget Chriſt; nay, they forget their Creed, which begins with true Life, God; and ends with Life never-ending, Life everlaſting. Others that hope for Heaven, fix not their Thoughts on Earth: If you be God's Servants, lift up your Hearts above, for there is Life, and the God of Life, the Tree of Life, and the Well of Life, the Life of Angels, and the Life everlaſting.

One Sand is run, and the Text is leſſened; but as you have the Leaſe, ſo you may now expect to know the Date: The Leaſe is but a Life, the Date laſts but Days.

Days]

NOt Weeks, nor Months, nor Years; or if a Year, the beſt Arithmatick is to reduce or break it into Days: ſo we have it in the laſt Tranſlations, The days of the year.

Here then is the { Sum, A Year.
Fraction, Days.

Firſt, A Year: In the Spring is the youthful Spring of our Age, in the Summer is the aged time of our Youth: in the Autumn is the High-noon or Middle of our Age, when the Sun (which in our Soul) rules is the Equinoctial Line of our Life; in the Winter we grow old and cold, the nips of Froſt ſtrips the Tree of our Life, we fall into the Grave, and the Earth that nouriſhed us will then conſume us. See what is Man! A Spring of Tears, a Summers Duſt, an Autumns Care, a Winters Wo. Read but this Map, and you need travel no further to enquire of Life.

The firſt Quarter is our Spring, and that is full of Sin and Miſery; the Infant no ſooner breaths, but he ſucks the Poyſon of his Parents: In Adam all ſinned, and ſince his time all were defiled by his Sin. Is it not Natures Rule, That every Man begets one like himſelf?

And is it not God's Rule, That every Sinner begets another no better than himſelf? How may a foul Veſſel keep ſweet Water? Or how may an earthly Sinner beget an heavenly Saint? We are in the ſame ſtate of Sin, and ſo we fall into the ſame plunge of Sorrow. The Child in his Cradle ſleeps not ſo ſecure, but now he wakes, and then he weeps; Cold ſtarves him, Hunger pines him, Sores trouble him, Sickneſs gripes him, there is ſome Puniſhment, which without Sin had never been inflicted. It is wonderful to conſider how Nature hath provided for all Creatures; Birds with Feathers, Beaſts with Hides, Fiſhes with Scales, all with ſome Defence; only Man is born ſtark naked, without either Weapon in his Hand, or the leaſt thought of Defence in his Heart: Birds can fly, Beaſts can go, Fiſhes can ſwim; but infant-man, as he knows nothing, ſo neither is he able to do any thing: Indeed he can weep as ſoon as born, but not laugh (as ſome obſerve till forty days old; ſo ready are we born to Wo, but ſo far from the leaſt ſpark of Joy. O meer madneſs of Men, that from ſo poor, naked, and baſe Beginnings, can perſuade our ſelves we are born to be proud!

And if this be our Spring, what (think ye) is our Summer? Remember not the ſins of this time, Pſal. 25. 7. prays David, Pſalm 25. 7. And why? Their re- Job 13. 26. membrance is bitter, ſaith Job, Job 13. 26. If Mirth and Melody ſhould never meet with end, this were an happy Life; Rejoyce, O young man, in thy youth, let thine heart chear thee in the days of thy youth, walk in the ways of thy heart, and in the ſight of thine eyes; but remember, for all theſe things Eccleſ. 11. 9. God will bring thee to judgment, Eccleſ. 11. 9. This Judgment is the Damp that puts out all the Lights of Comfort: Could not Solomon have given the Reins, but he muſt pull again at Curb? Muſt Youth rejoyce; But for all this remember? What a Bar ſtands here in the very Door of Joy? Alaſs! that we ſhould trifle thus with Toys; which no ſooner we enjoy, but in grievous ſadneſs we repent our Follies. The Wiſe man that gave liberty to his ways, What cry's he but, Vanity, and after, Vanity of Vanities; and at laſt, All is vanity? What was the Wiſdom of Achitophel? a vain thing: What the ſwiftneſs of Aſahel? a vain thing: What the ſtrength of Goliah? a vain thing: What the pleaſures of Nebuchadnezzar? a vain thing: What the Honour of Haman? a vain thing: What the beauty of Abſolom? a vain thing. Thus if we ſee but the fruit that grows of ſin, we may boldly ſay of Laughter, Thou art Eccle. 2. 2. mad; and of Joy, what is this thou doeſt? Eccleſ. 2. 2.

And if this be our Summer, what may be our Autumn? an hour of joy, a world of ſorrow: If you look about you, how many Miſeries lie in wait to enſnare you? There is no place ſecure, no ſtate ſufficient, no pleaſure permanent whither will you go? The Chamber hath its care, the Houſe hath its fear, the Field hath its toil, the Country hath its frauds, the City hath its Fractions, the Church hath its Sects, the Court hath its envy; here is every place a field where is offered a Battle; or if this were better, conſider but you ſtates; the Beggar hath his ſores, the Souldier hath his ſcars, the Magiſtrate hath his troubles, the Merchant his travels, the Nobles their croſſes, the Great ones their vexations; here is every ſtate a Sea, toſſed with a world of Tempeſts; or yet if this were happier, bethink you a little longer of you fleeting joys; the Sweet hath its Sowr, the Crown hath its Care, the World hath its Want, Pleaſure hath its Pain, Profit hath its Grief, all theſe muſt have their end; here is a dram of Sugar mixt with an Ephah of bitter. Is this Manhood that is ſubject to all theſe Miſeries? Nay, what are theſe in compariſon of all it ſuffers? It is deformed with ſin, defiled with luſt, outraged with paſſions, over-carried with affections, pining with envy, burthened with gluttony, boiling with revenge, tranſported with rage; all man's Body is full of iniquity, and his Soul, (the bright Image of God) through ſin is transformed to the ugly ſhape of the Devil.

And if this be our Autumn, what (I pray) is the Winter? Then our Sun grows low, and we begin to die by degrees; ſhew me the Light which will not darken; ſhew me the Flower which will not fade; ſhew me the Fruit which will not corrupt; ſhew me the Garment which will not wear; ſhew me the Beauty which will not wither; ſhew me the ſtrength which will not weaken: Behold, now is the hour that thy Lights ſhall darken, thy Cheeks wrinkle, thy Skin be furrowed, thy Beauty fade, and thy Strength decay. Here is the ambition of a long Life; thy Leaſe lies a bleeding, and Death raps at the door of thy Heart to take poſſeſſion: O forcible entry will not Pleaſures delay? Cannot Riches ranſom? Dare not Strength defie? Is neither Wit nor Wealth able to deceive nor bribe? What may rent this Houſe, that the Soul may but lodge there one night longer? Poor Soul that dies (or departs) in unremedied pangs! our ſins may run on ſcore, and repentance forget her days of payment: yet our Leaſe ſhall end, the Date expire, this Body ſuffer, and the Soul be driven from her houſe an harbour. See the ſwift courſe of our mortal Sun, at North and South, in our Mothers Womb and Tomb both in one year.

Conſider this ye that forget God; you have but a year to live, and every ſeaſon yields ſome occa- Uſe. ſion to tell you ye muſt die: In Childhood, what is your Cheſt of Clouts, but a remembrance of your winding-ſheets? In Youth, what is your Mirth and Muſick, but a Summons to the Knell? In Manhood, what is your Houſe and Encloſure, but a token of the Coffin? In Age, what is your Chair or Litter, but a ſhew of the Bier, which at laſt ſhall convey you to your Graves: Man, ere he is aware, hath Dreſt his Herſe; every ſeaſon adding ſomething to his Solemnity. Where is the Adulterer, Murtherer, Drunkard, Blaſphemer, Are you about your ſins? Look on theſe objects; There is a Sun now ſetting, or a Candle burning, or an Hour-glaſs running, or a Flower decaying, or a Traveller paſſing, or a Vapour vaniſhing, or a ſick Man groaning, or a ſtrong Man dying; beſure there is ſomething pulls you by the ſleeve, and bids you beware to commit ſuch enormities: Who dares live in ſin, that conſiders with himſelf he muſt die ſoon? And who will not conſider, that ſees before his eyes ſo many Remembrancers, Alaſs, we muſt die, and howſoever we paſs from Childhood to Youth, from Youth to Mandhood, from Manhood to Age; yet there is none can be more than old. Here is the utmoſt of our Life, A Spring, a Summer, an Autumn, a Winter; and when that is done, you know the whole Year is finiſhed. Senectutem nemo excedit.

The Sum is a Year,] the Items are Days.] And what Days can ye expect of ſuch a Year? My Text, in relation to theſe days, gives us two Attributes; the firſt is, few, the ſecond is evil; if ye conſider our days, in regard of the fewneſs (which this word ſeems rather to intimate) you may ſee them in Scripture brought to fewer and fewer, till they are well near brought to nothing.

If we begin with the beginning, we find firſt, that the firſt Man Adam had a Leaſe of his Life in Fee, and (as Lawyers ſay) to have and to hold, from the beginning to everlaſting; but for eating the forbidden fruit, he made a forfeiture of that Gen. 2. 17. Eſtate: Of this he was forewarned; In the day that thou eateſt thereof, thou ſhalt die the death, Gen. 2. 17. And this he found too true; Becauſe thou haſt eaten of the Tree whereof I commanded thee, Thou ſhalt not eat; ——— What then? Amongſt other Gen. 3. 19. Curſes this was one, Duſt thou art, and to the duſt thou ſhalt return, Gen. 3. 19. After him, the longeſt life came of the number of a thouſand Gen. 5. 27. years: The days of Methuſalem (ſaith Moſes) were nine hundred ſixty and nine years, Gen. 5. 27. And had he come to a thouſand, which never was at- 2 Pet. 3. 8. tained by man; yet a thouſand years are but one day with God. 2 Pet. 3. 8. Yea but a yeſterday, Pſa. 90. 4. ſaith Moſes; A thouſand years in God's ſight are but as yeſterday, Pſal. 90. 4. But what ſpeak I of a thouſand years? No ſooner came the Flood, but the Age of man (of every man born after it (was ſhortned half in half. Theſe are the Ge- Gen. 11. 10 nerations of Sem (ſaith Moſes) Gen 11. 10. to wit, Arphaxad, and Selah, and Eber, none of which there could reach to the number of five hundred years; the longeſt liver was Eber, and yet all his days before and after his firſt-born, Gen. 11. 16, 17. Peleg, were but four hundred ſixty and four years, Gen. 11. 16, 17. Nay, as if half a thouſand were more than too much, you may ſee God halfs their Ages once again: Peleg lives as long as any man after him, and yet his days were neither a thouſand, nor half a thouſand, nor half of half a thouſand; no, no more than two hun- Gen. 11. 18, 19. dred thirty and nine years, Gen. 11. 18, 19. But this was a long Life too: If we come to arrive at the time of Jacob, we ſhall find this little time well near halfed again; when he ſpoke this Text, he tells he was one hundred and thirty years old; and after this he lived no lon- Gen. 47. 28 ger than ſeventeen years more; ſo that the whole Age of Jacob was but (ſevenſcore and ſeven) an hundred forty and ſeven years, Gen. 47. 28. Nay, to leave Jacob a while, and to come a little nearer our ſelves, in Moſes's time we find this little time halfed again, he brings ſevenſcore to Pſ. 90. 10. ſeventy; The days (ſaith he) of our age are threeſcore years and ten, and though men be ſo ſtrong that they come to fourſcore years, yet is their ſtrength then but labour and ſorrow, ſo ſoon paſſeth it away, and we are gone, Pſal. 90. 10. Here is half of halfs, and if we half it a while, ſure we ſhall half away all our time: Nay, we have a Cuſtom goes a little further, and tells us of a number a great deal ſhorter, we are fallen from ſeventy to ſeven in Life-Leaſes made by us. Nay, what ſpeak I of years, when my Text breaks them all into days? Few and evil have the days been, ſo our former Tranſlation, without any addition of years at all; and (if you mark it) our life in Scripture is more often termed days than years: The Books of Chronicles, which write of mens Lives, are called according to interpretation, Words of days; to this purpoſe we read, David was old and full of days, 1 Chron. 23. 1. 1 Chr. 23. 1. And, In the days of Jehoram Edom rebelled, 2 Chron. 21. 8. 2 Chr. 21. 8. So in the New Teſtament, In the days of Herod the King, Mat. 2. 1. Mat. 2. 1. And, In the days of Herod the King of Judah, Luke 1. 5. Luke 1. 5. In a word, thus Job ſpeaks of us, our life is but days, our days but a ſhadow. We know nothing (ſaith Job) and why ſo? Our days upon Earth are but a ſhadow, Job 8. 9. Job 8. 9.

Lo here the length of our little Life, it is not for ever; no, Adam loſt that eſtate, and he that lived longeſt after Adam, came ſhort of the number of a thouſand years; nay, that was halfed to ſomewhat leſs than five hundred, and that again halfed to little more than two hundred; Jacob yet halfs it again to a matter of ſevenſcore, and Moſes halfs that again to Seventy, or a little more: nay, our time brings it from ſeventy to ſeven; nay, Jacob yet brings it from years to days; Few and evil have the days] of the year] of my Life been.

Teach us, O Lord, to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wiſdom, Pſal. 90. 12. Vſe 1. Moſes's Arithmetick is worthy your meditation; learn of him to number, pray to God your Teacher, think every evening there is one day of your number gone, and every morning, there is another day of Miſery coming on, evening and morning meditate on God's Mercy and your own Miſery. Thus if you number your days, you ſhall have the leſs to account for at that Day when God ſhall call you to a final reckoning.

But miſerable men, who are not yet born, a- Vſe 2. gain, their days run on without any meditation in this kind: What think they of, but of long days, and many years? And were all their days as long as the day of Joſhua, when the Sun ſtood ſtill in the midſt of Heaven, yet it will be night at laſt, and their Sun ſhall ſet like others. True, God may give ſome a liberal time; but what enemies are they to themſelves, that of all their days allow themſelves not one? If 1 Pet. 3. 10. any man long after life, and to ſee good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips that they ſpeak no guile. How live they that would needs live long, and follow no Rules of Piety? Many can poſt off their Converſion from day to day, ſending Religion afore them to thirty, and then putting it off to forty, and not pleaſed yet to overtake it, promiſe it entertainment at threeſcore; at laſt Death comes, and allows not one hour: In Youth theſe men reſolve to reſerve the time of Age to ſerve God in; in Age they ſhuffle it off to Sickneſs; when Sickneſs comes, care to diſpoſe their Goods, loathneſs to die, hope to eſcape, martyrs that good thought. O miſerable men! if you have but the Leaſe of a Farm for twenty years, you make uſe of the time, and gather profit; but in this precious Farm of Time, you are ſo ill Husbands, that your Leaſe comes out before you are one penny-worth of Grace the richer by it. Why ſtand ye here all the day Mat. 20. 6. idle? There are but a few hours or days that ye have to live; at laſt comes the night of Death, that will ſhut up our eyes in ſleep till the day of Doom.

You ſee now the Term of our Leaſe, our Life laſts but Days.] And although we live many days, yet in this thy day, ſaith Chriſt; And, Give us this day our daily Bread, ſay we; as if no day could be called thy day, but this day: If there be any more, we ſhall ſoon number them; my Text tells you there are not many, but few; Few and evil have the days of my life been.

Luk. 9.42.
Mat. 6.12.

Few.]

OUR Leaſe is a life, our life is but days, our days are but few. The Phœnix, the Elephant, and the Lion, fulfil their hundreds; but man dieth when he thinks his Sun yet riſeth, before his eye be ſatisfied with ſeeing, or his ear with hearing, or his heart with luſting; Death knocks at his Door, and often will not give him leave to meditate an excuſe before he comes to Judgment: Is not this a wonder to ſee dumb Beaſts outſtrip Mans Life? The Phœnix lives thouſands (ſay ſome) but a thouſand years are a long Life with Man: Methuſalem (you ſaw) the longeſt liver, came ſhort of this number; and yet, could we attain to ſo ripe an Age, what are a thouſand Years to the Days everlaſting? If you took a little Moat to compare with the whole Earth, what great Difference were in theſe two? And if you compare this Life which is ſo ſhort, with the Life to come, which ſhall never have end, how much leſs will it yet appear? As drops of rain are unto the Sea, and as a gravel-ſtone is in compariſon to the Sand; ſo are a thouſand years to the days everlaſting. But will you have an exact account, and learn the juſt number? It was the Arithmetick of Holy Men to reckon their days but few,] as if the ſhorteſt cut were the beſt account. The Hebrews could ſubduct the time of Sleep, which is half our Life; ſo that if the Days of Men were threeſcore years and ten, here's five and thirty years ſtruck off at one blow. The Philoſophers could ſubduct the time of Weakneſs, which is moſt of life; ſo that if vivere be valere, that only a true Life which enjoys good Health, here's the beginning and the ending of our Days ſtruck off at the ſecond blow. The Fathers could ſubduct all times not preſent; and what ſay you to this account? Were the Days of Life at noon, Man grown to Man-hood? Look ye back, and the time paſt is nothing; Look ye forward, and the time to come is but uncertain: And if time paſt and time to come ſtand both for Cyphers, what is our Life but the preſent? And what is that but a moment? Nay, as if a moment were too much; look at Scripture, and you will ſee it brought to a leſſer paſs. Job (for his part) goes about to ſubduct the time of his Birth, which is the bud of Life; Let the day periſh (ſaith he) wherein I was born; nay, let it not be joyned unto the days of the year, nor let it come into the count of months, Job. 3. 6. Solomon could ſubduct not only Childhood, but the time of Youth too, which is the ſtrength of Life: Take away grief out of thine heart, and cauſe evil to depart from the fleſh; for childhood and youth both are but Vanity, Eccleſ. 11. 10. Paul could ſubduct the time of ſin, which is the Joy of Life; She that lives in pleaſure (lives not, nay ſhe) is dead while ſhe is alive, 1 Tim. 5. 6. Sum all, and ſuppoſe that the time of Birth, and Childhood, and Youth, and Sin, were gone, to what an Epitome were Mans Life come? Think of this all ye that travel towards Heaven, Had we not need to make haſte, that muſt go ſo long a Journey in ſo ſhort a time? How can he chuſe but run, that remembers his Days are few, nay, that every day runs away with his Life? The Workman that ſets a time for his Task, he liſtens to the Clock, and counts the Hours; not a minute muſt paſs, but his work goes onwards: How then do we neglect our time while we ſhould ſerve God? Work while it is day, ſaith Chriſt, and this is the day of ſalvation, ſaith the Apoſtle. Would you know your Task? You muſt work. Would you know the time? It is this day. A great Task, a ſhort time: Had we not need with Moſes to number our days, leſt we loſe a minute? It is true, of all numbers we cannot skill to number our days: We can number our Sheep, our Oxen, our Fields, our Coyn; but we think our Days are infinite, and never go about to number them. The Saints that went before us caſt another account; Moſes had his Tables, Job had his Meaſures; all agree both for meaſure and number, magnitude and multitude; our Life is but ſhort, our Days are but few. Few] and evil they have been.

Give me leave a little to amplifie on this Point: Would we throughly know the ſhortneſs of our Time, the fewneſs of our Days? I ſhall then ſet before you the magnitude of the one, and the multitude of the other.

And firſt, for the magnitude of the Time of our Life; A Man (ſays the Philoſophers) is Microcoſmus, a little World; little for Goodneſs, a World of Wickedneſs. Of this World, if you'll have the Dimenſions according to the Rules of Geomitricians, the length, breadth, and depth of our ſhort Life; then firſt for our length from Eaſt to Weſt, from our Birth to our Burial, I need not to take ſo many Paces, as will make mille paſſus, a mile; our little Life bears no proportion to ſuch a length: I dare not ſay as Stobæus relates, that our Life hath the laſt of a Cubits length; for that's more than the Scripture will afford it; It is but a ſpan or hand breadth, ſaith David, that's little: Nay, Alcæus in carmine Lyrico, ſaith, "It is but an Inch long, that's "leſs: Nay, ſaith Plutarch, All our Life is but a "prick, a point; yet leſs ſaith Seneca, It is a "Point that we live, and leſs than a Point, that's leſs than either I can ſay, or you conceive. What is it? Not a Mile, but a Cubit, but a Span, but an Inch, but a Point, nay leſs than that: Here's little Longitude of Life. Well, but our Latitude perhaps is greater: No; take a Meaſure if you pleaſe from one Pole to another, as we ſtand betwixt the terms of Life and Death, and whereſoever we are, Death is within a hand-breadth of our Life: If we be on the Sea, there's but a thick Board betwixt us and drowning; if on the Land, here's but a Shoe-ſole betwixt us and our Grave; if we ſleep, our Bed is our Bodies Grave, and there's but a Sheet (perhaps a Winding-ſheet) betwixt us and it; when we are awake, our Body is our Souls Grave, and there's but a few Skins (as ſay Phyſitians) betwixt death and us. What is it but the breadth of an Hand, of a Board, of a Shoe-ſole, of a thin Sheet, of a ſmall Skin; there's little Latitude you ſee. Well, but

Pſ. 39. 5.
Punctum eſt quod vivimus, & adhuc puncto minus.

but our Profoundity may help all this: Go to therefore, and ſee what that is. I ſhall not lead you down many Steps, for indeed there are not many Steps to lead you down. In one word, Come to the Centre of the Heart of Man: The Grecians, to expreſs the ſhallowneſs of this Life, give the ſame name to the Heart, that they do to Death; Κέαρ is the Heart, the Author of Life, and Κέαρ is Deſtiny the worker of Death; to ſhew, that as every Man hath an Heart, ſo Death hath a Dart for every Man. Chriſtians! Mortals! Conſider your Magnitude in all theſe Dimenſions: Alaſs! How is it that many of you make your ſelves ſo great? what mean thoſe Titles which you take upon you? Your Greatneſs, Your Highneſs, Your —— I know not what. O conſider the mortality of your Bodies, and that will tell you the juſt * ſcantling of your ſelves.

2. For the multitude of our days, he was branded with the name of a Fool, that thought he had many years to live. Moſes tells us, The days of our years are threeſcore years and ten, Pſal. 90. 10. But now (as you heard) we value our Life but at ſeven years, as if ſix years we had to labour, and to do all we had to do; but the ſeventh were a Sabbath to reſt with God, Rev. 14. 13. Nay, yet the Scripture comes ſomewhat lower, and becauſe a Plurality might cauſe a ſecurity, it beſtows but a unity upon our years: Thus Jacob in this Text reckons of a great number of one year, The days of the year of my Life are an hundred and thirty years, Gen. 47. 9. Nay Auſtine comes ſhorter, and compares our Life to a quarter of a year, like Jehoahaſh's reign, which laſted about three months time, 2 King. 23. 31. Nay, the Scripture deſcends from months to days? Few and evil are my Days, ſaith Jacob: Implying that this life is but a few days, or but * one day as ſome would have it, which is the meaning of Chriſts Prayer, Give us this day our daily bread, Matthew 6. 11. And yet that we may not think our death a great way off, the Scripture tells us, it is not a day to come: No, Boaſt not of to Morrow, for thou knoweſt not what a day may bring forth, Prov. 27. 1. Thy day is this preſent day, and therefore ſaith the Apoſtle, To day if you will hear his voice, Heb 3. 7. nay, to ſpeak further, this day (ſaith Job) is paſt already, We are but of yeſterday, Job 8. 9. nay, as if a day were too long for this life of Man, Moſes reſembles it to the Graſs that grows up in the Morning, and is cut down in the Evening, Pſalm 90. 6. and Gregory compares it to Jonahs Gourd, that came up in a Night, and periſhed ere the Day was done, Jonah 4. 10. The evening and the morning make but one day, Geneſis 1. 5. but * our day is oft-times an evening without a morning, and oft-times a morning without an evening. Nay, yet to go lower, as if half a day were more than our life could parallel, Moſes compares it to a Watch, which is but the fourth part of a night, Pſalm 90. 4. Yea, and as if this were longer than our life doth laſt, the Scripture calls it but an hour, John 5. 25. The hour is coming, and now is, ſaith Chriſt: Nay, our life is but a minute, or if we can ſay leſs, a moment: In a moment they go down to the grave, ſaith Job, Job 21. 13. and In a moment they ſhall die, ſaith Elihu, Job 34. 20. And a lying Tongue is but for a moment, ſaith Solomon, Prov. 12. 19. and Our light affliction is but for a moment, ſaith Paul, 2 Cor. 4. 17. Lo here the length of our little life, this is the gradation that God makes of it: at firſt a matter of ſeventy years, but theſe were tythed from ſeventy to ſeven; this number again was made no number, one ſingle year: a year? Nay a Month, nay a day, nay an hour, nay a minute, nay a moment; as ſoon as we were born, we began to draw to our end, Wiſd. 5. 13. There's but one poor moment which we have to live, and when that is ſpent, our life is gone; How? but one? and a moment? one is the leaſt number that is, and a moment the ſhorteſt time that ever was: O what men mean to plot and project for the time to come, as if this life would ever be done? O conſider of the littleneſs of the time that thou haſt to live! O conſider of the greatneſs of the matter that depends upon it! thy Body, Soul, Heaven and Hell, all hangs on this Thread, a ſhort life, a few days.] Few] and evil have the days of my life been.

You have learned Moſes Arithmetick to number your days: Practiſe a while, and you, find this Uſe.

1. Uſe.

God ſhortens your time, you that are unregenerate, leſt you defer your Repentance. It is ſaid of the Devil, that he is buſie, becauſe his time is ſhort, Revel. 12. 12. and are you worſe than Devils? Is not your time ſhorter, and yet are you more negligent? How do you give way to the old Serpent? he delays no time to bring you to Hell, and ye neglect all times to get you Heaven: What is your life but a Jonahs Gourd, ſuddenly ſprung up, and by and by withered again, and gone? whatſoever ye do, your Wheel whirls about apace: In a word ye die daily, and you all know thus much, that you have every one of you a poor Soul to ſave. I have wondered at men that deſire time after time, one time after another; why, if your Souls periſh, the day will come ſoon enough. It makes me weep (ſaid one of a better ſtamp) when my hour-glaſs is beſide me, and I ſee every drop of Sand follow other ſo ſpeedily. Your days are but few, and yet who knows whether this day his Sun may ſet? Take heed, you unregenerate, if Death come unawares, it is the price of your Souls, how you are provided! Who (alas!) would defer to be good, that knows not how ſoon he may go to judgment? The enemy keeps a daily Watch; a Friend prepares for your Welcome, and are you ſuch Enemies to your ſelves, that never are prepared to welcome Death?

Rev. 12. 12

2. Uſe.

But to ſeek to thee, whoſoever thou art that readeſt, regenerate, or unregenerate, the beſt counſel thou canſt learn, is to be ſtill in a readineſs; think every day thou riſeſt to be thy day of Death, and every night thou goeſt to Bed, that thou art laid down in the Grave: If thou ſhouldeſt forget, will not each Object be a remembrance? thy Sheets, of thy Winding-ſheet; thy Coverings of thy claſping Duſt; thy ſleep of thy Death, with whom (I may ſay truly) thou ſhakeſt hands every night: Who can forget his Grave, that lyes him down in his Bed? and who then would not ſo provide himſelf, as if every night he went to his Grave? Our days are but few, and the night will be ere long that we die indeed. What are we but Tenents at will in this Clay-Farm? the Foundation of all the building is a ſmall ſubſtance, always kept cold by an intercourſe of Air, the pillar is but a little Breath, the ſtrength ſome few Bones tied together with dry ſtrings, howſoever we piece and patch this poor Cottage, it will at laſt fall into the Lords hands, and we muſt give ſurrendour only in this Tenour, Few] and evil have the days of my Life been.

You now ſee the time of our Leaſe to the full; our Life laſts but Days, our Days are but few; who is ſo fond to ſettle his Care on this Leaſe, that ſo ſoon is expired, nay, with a blaſt is gone out? The Man that is wedded to this World, enjoys neither length of Days, nor a Day of Joy; as he is mortal, ſo is he miſerable: You ſhall ſee my Text joyn both the hands; nothing indeed but Death can looſe the Bonds; the Days of my Life are few, the few Days of my Life are evil; few in number, evil in nature; neither many nor good, but few and evil.

Evil.]

OUr Life is but Days, our Days are but few, our few Days but evil: Into what a Sea of Miſery have I now ruſhed Sail? Evil Life, Evil Days, but few, yet evil.

There waits on our Life { Sin.
{ Puniſhment.

Both theſe are evil; Sin, as the Father, plays the Bankrupt; and Puniſhment, the Son, muſt pay the Debt: Luſt conceives and brings forth ſin, then Jam. 1.15. ſin being finiſhed, brings forth death. Here is both the Work and Wages: Firſt, we commit, and then we ſuffer evil.

The Evils we commit are ſins, and ſee what a Troop of Enemies march about us; if you expect the Battel in Aray, what ſay you to thoſe Evils original? Theſe are the Inheritance which we have from our firſt Parents: It is the ſame Infection that diſtilled from them, abides in us; and therefore the ſame Puniſhment is due to us, that fell on them. O the Flood-gate of Evils that now are opened! Adams ſin in ours by imputation; we are Twigs of one Root, Streams of one Fountain, and by the ſame Reaſon partakers of one ſin. And as no Evil is alone, ſo beſides that imputed, we have another Inherent; this is the proclive Diſpoſition that we have to Evil, becauſe of the loſs of thoſe Powers that we had to good. * Firſt, the ſin of the Perſon infected Nature, but now the ſin of Nature infects the Perſon. Is not the Mind doubtful of the ways of God? Is not the Will prone to all manner of evil? Are not the Affections diſordered in their Actions? But as for Goodneſs, and Holineſs, and Vertue, and Grace, and Temperance, and Innocency, all theſe Ornaments are loſt; Adam received them for himſelf and us, and therefore loſt them from us as from himſelf: What wonder, if we being ſpoiled, Nature be left naked? A rotten Root muſt needs bear rotten Branches: If the firſt man be infected with ſin, what follows, but a Corrruption of the whole Nature of Man?

* Primò perſona infecit naturam, ſed poſt natura infecit perſonam. Polanus.

But theſe are but the Seeds; what ſay ye to the Off-ſpring? Evils original beget Evils Actual; and ſuch are they (as Auſtin defines them) * Whatſoever we ſay, or do, or think againſt the Law eternal. How many of theſe Furies haunt us; Our ſaying, doing, thinking, all is evil that is againſt Gods command: His Will is the Rule that ſhould meaſure all our Actions; our Actions are the Frame that ſhould be meaſured by his Will: Here then is ſins material and formal, the Actions of Man diverted from the Will of God; and if all theſe be Evils, how many Evils are they all?

* Dictum; vel factum vel concupitum, contra legem æternam. Aug. l. 22. contra Fauſt. cap. 27. initio tom.

Look at our omiſſion of good Duties, and come they not in like Moats in the Sun? How many Alms have they denied? How many Bleſſings have we refuſed? How many Sermons have we neglected? How many Lords Days have we miſ-ſpent? This was the ſin of that rich Man, of whom though Lazarus had no hurt, yet becauſe Luke 16. he could receive no Good, therefore he was tormented in that flame. Mat. 25. 42, 43. You know a day will come, when a Bill of Negatives ſhall be framed againſt the wicked, not what ye have done, but what ye have not done: I was hungry, and ye gave me no meat; I was thirſty, and ye gave me no drink; I was a ſtranger, and ye lodged not me; I was naked, and ye cloathed me not; ſick, and in priſon, and ye viſited me not, Mat. 25. 42. Mat.25.42. It is the not doing your Duties, muſt incur that heavy Sentence, Depart from me, ye curſed. Meer harmleſs Men are no fit Members for Gods Kingdom; if you mean to avoid Evil, you muſt neglect no good: Alaſs! who would ſlip any occaſion, that conſiders the juſt Reward of this Evil of Omiſſion?

But theſe are not half the count; there be Evils of commiſſion, whereby we fight againſt God, and provoke his juſtice againſt us: Of all the Commandments which we ſhould perform, there is not one Precept which we have not broken; God himſelf is diſhonoured, his Worſhip is neglected, his Name is blaſphemed, his Days are profaned: If you go any further, Parents are diſobeyed, Injury is maintained, Adultery is committed, Robbery is practiſed, falſe Witneſs is produced, Covetouſneſs is followed. Thus is the manner of our keeping the Commandments from the firſt to the laſt, having tranſgreſſed againſt all. Pſ. 15. 9. Hide thy face from my ſins, O Lord, and put away all mine iniquities. We had need to pray, Hide them; for if they be not hid, how many of theſe Evils will riſe up in judgment againſt us?

But here is no end; there be Evils external that accompany the Body; and what part of the Body is not poſſeſſed with ſome evil? Look at the Senſes; and wherein haſt thou employed thine Eyes, but in beholding Vanity? Wherein thine Ears, but in hearkning to Lies, wherein thy Taſting, Touching, Smelling, but in ſenſual Pleaſures? And as the Senſes, ſo are the Members full of evil; Iſa. 1. 5. The head is ſick, the Jer. 17. 9. heart deceitful, the tongue unruly, Jam. 3. 8. the teeth as ſwords, the jaws as knives, Prov. 30. 14. the hands are full of blood, Iſa. 1. 15. and the feet ſwift to ſhed Blood. Iſa. 59. 7. Thus from the Soal of the Feet to the Crown of the Head, there is nothing whole, but wounds, and ſwellings, and ſores full of corruption, Iſa. 1. 6. Iſa. 1. 6.

And if theſe be our outward, what be thoſe inward evils? Should I thruſt my hand into your Boſoms, O how leprous ſhould I pluck it out again! That Underſtanding created full of light, is now ſo blind, that it perceives not the things of the Spirit of God, neither can it know them, for they are ſpiritually diſcerned. 1 Cor. 2. 14. No doubt, there is in us a remaining ſpark of Nature, and that is the light of Reaſon which makes us Men; but if you look at this Reaſon, it perceives only natural and external things; it can perceive thy Houſe adorned dorned, thy Lands tilled, thy Grounds ſtocked; but thoſe ſpiritual Bleſſings, celeſtial Promiſes, eternal Priviledges, it cannot ſee, nor ſo much as think of: What are all our Thoughts but Gen. 8. 21. Vanity, and imagination of mans heart, but only evil? Gen. 8. 21. Neither is this all; God framing Mans Soul, planted in it two Faculties, the Underſtanding that informeth and the Will that followeth: And as the Underſtanding, ſo is the Will; it receives from Reaſon (her Counſellour) ſenſual Advice, and ſends forth to the Affections (her Courtiers injunctions of Vanity; here is a Counſellour indeed: What is it but Reaſon without Reaſon? And here is a Will indeed; what is it but a ſlave to ſin, without any Will to good; Man is ſo holden captive with the yoke of ſin, that of his own nature he can neither aſpire by deſire nor travel by endeavour to any goodneſs. I ſay not, but (as Bernard) to will is in us all; but to will Calv. Inſtitut. l. 2. c. 4. evil is of nature; to will good is of grace; away then with our Abilities, and confeſs we with the Rom. 7. 18. Apoſtle, that To will is preſent with me, but I find no means to perform that which is good, Rom. 7. 18.

And yet this is not all; take a view of thoſe Affections which attend the Will, and how are all evil? It is God ſhould be the Object both of our Will and Affections; and what ſay you? Do you love him, and fear him, and truſt in him, and ſerve him? Your ſins ſay, No: We can do nothing that is good, but we run upon evil; ſee thine Anger like a Serpent, thy Deſire like a Wolf, thy Fear like an Hart, thine Envy like a Viper, all thy Paſſions are become ſenſual, and every man Jer. 10. 14. is a beaſt by his own knowledge, Jeremiah 10. 14.

Bleſſed God! what a world of Evils are with- Orat. Manaſſ. in us? We have ſinned (O Lord) above the number of the ſands of the Seas, our tranſgreſſions (O Lord) are multiplyed, our offences are exceeding many: Many ſure, that contain theſe Streams; and yet how many are the Rivulets that iſſue from them. There be Evils of weakneſs againſt God the Father, whoſe Attribute is Power; there be Evils of Ignorance againſt God the Son, whoſe Attribute is Wiſdom; there be Evils of Malice againſt God and the Holy Ghoſt, whoſe Attribute is Love. Can we add any more? Mark but our Thoughts, our Delights, our Conſents to Evil: Or if theſe be not enough, ſee a ſwarm indeed that continually aſſaults us; Pſal. 11. 2. Anger, Hatred, Envy, Diſtruſt, Impatience, Avarice, Sacriledge, Pride, Deſpair, Preſumption, Indevotion, Suſpition, Contention, Deriſion, Exaction (give me leave to breathe in the numbring of this bed-roll) Perjury, Blaſphemy, Luxury, Simony, Perplexity, Inconſtancy, Hypocriſie, Apoſtaſie; here is the number numberleſs, groſs ſins, little ſins, known ſins, hid ſins: Who can underſtand his errours? O Lord, cleanſe me from my ſecret faults, Pſal. 19. 12. The Days of Life are few, but the Evils God knows how many; he that would number them, may tell a thouſand, and yet not tell one of a thouſand: Can the proudeſt Phariſee juſtifie himſelf? Remember the Swarms that lurk in thy venomed Conſcience; number thy wanton Words, Thy carnal Thoughts, thy unchriſtian Geſtures, thy outragious Sins, and come they not in by Troops and Herds, thicker than the Frogs in Egypt? Well may we ſtand amazed at their number, and as convicted Priſoners cry for that Pſalm of Mercy, Miſerere mei. Lord have mercy on us, moſt evil wretched ſinners.

Thus you ſee, Beloved, how evil be our days, ſith every day we do evil: Then to wander no further, now we have found ſuch a World of them, will you ſee them in a Trap: Here is Evils original, Evils actual, Evils of omiſſion, Evils of commiſſion, Evils of the Body, Evils of the Soul; well may we pray, Deliver us from Evil: What, ſo many Evils of Sin? Now the Lord deliver us.

Uſe 1. Pſal. 38. 4. Remember your ſelves, and who will not ſing Davids Burthen, Mine iniquities are gone over my head, and as a weighty burthen, they are too heavy for me to bear? There is in ſin (ſaith Auſtin) both weight and number; and is any one ſo dull or dead, that he is ſenſible of neither? Go ye to the Ballance, and what a Maſs lies upon you? Enough and enough again to ſink you down to Hell: Go ye to the count, and what a ſwarm comes upon you? a million, and a million of millions to keep you out of Heaven: When all your ſins muſt be called to account before that Judge of the World, what Account ſhall be given of this Account, that is endleſs? See them like the Stars, only theſe ſet and riſe; but your ſins riſe, and never ſet; ſee them like your Hairs, only theſe ſhed and loſe, but your ſins grow ever more and more; ſee them like the Sands, only theſe are covered with the Floods and Waters, but your ſins lye ſtill open, and are ever before you: Think on theſe Stars, theſe Hairs, theſe infinite innumerable Sands of Sins; and when all is done, let your Tears be the Flood to hide them over. It was Davids ſaying, Every night waſh I my bed, Pſal. 6. 6. and water my couch with my Tears: If your days be evil, let not your night ſlip without Repentance; go not to Bed, but beat your Breaſt with the Publican; lay you not down, but withal lift up your Voice, Lord, be merciful unto me a ſinner: How ſweet a Reſt doth that night bring, whoſe Sleep is prevented with the conſideration of our ſins? Though we are begirt with a thouſand Devils, this would be at the Watch of our Souls, and the Safeguard of our Perſons.

Uſe 2. But I muſt ſpeak with a difference: I ſtand over ſome of you, who are ſo far from * waſhing away your ſins with tears, that I fear you never took much notice of the multitude of your ſins: Should I tell you, that you brought ſin enough with you to damn you, when you firſt came into this World; ſhould I tell you that you have every one committed thouſands, and thouſand of thouſands of actual ſins, and yet any one of thoſe thouſands is enough to ſend you packing to Hell: You would think theſe ſtrange Points; but if God be true, there is no ſin of Man, either original or actual, either of omiſſion or commiſſion, either of the Body or of the Soul, which without Repentance will not produce eternal Death; and therefore in Gods fear take notice of your ſins, ſet before you the Commandments of God, and thereto comparing your Life, you may find out ſuch a Catalogue of your Sins, that will throughly convince you of your damnable Eſtate.

* When I ſpeak thus of Tears or Repentance, I argue not a Caſualty or Merit; only I infer a neceſſary Preſence of Repentance in thoſe that obtain pardon of ſin. All that I poſitively affirm, is this, that Repentance is the means or way which God hath appointed antecedently to pardon. Acts. 3. 19. Jer. 4. 14.

You may ask, To what End ſhould we be ſo careful to find out our ſins? I anſwer, To a very good End, both in reſpect of the { Regenerate.

Firſt, In reſpect of the Unregenerate. This is the firſt ſtep of Repentance; this is one of thoſe Paces that will lead you towards Heaven. You may be ſure, without Repentance; no Heaven; without Confeſſion, no Repentance; and without finding out ſin, there can be no Confeſſion. It were good therefore, and a ſingular means to bring you out of Corruption into Chriſtianity, and out of the State of Nature into the Kingdom of Grace, that you would every one of you have a Catalogue of your Sins: If you will not, I can tell you who will; there is an Adverſary called Satan (the Adverſary of Mankind) that ſtands at your back, and (I may ſay figuratively) with a ſcroll in his hands, wherein he writes down your Sins; not a day paſſeth on, but he can eaſily tell how many ſins you have committed all day. Lord, that Men would think on't! Are you about any ſin? At that very time Satan is regiſtring the Act, and Time, and Place, and every Circumſtance: Now woe, woe to Man, that lets Satan do his work for him! Would you do this your ſelf; would you but ſtudy for a Catalogue of your own ſins, that ſo you might confeſs them to God, and repent you thereof; this would be a daſh in the Devils Book, ſo that he could not have whereof to accuſe you; but if ſtill you go on ſecurely in ſin, and never go about to call your ſins to remembrance, a day will come (woe worth the day!) when that roaring Lion ſhall ſet all your Sins and Tranſgreſſions in order before you; then ſhall you read (perforce) your Sins original and actual, of omiſſion and commiſſion, of your Bodies and Souls. And I muſt tell you, herein is a great Policy of Satan; he lets you alone in your Security a while; if you will not trouble him, he will not trouble you; if you will not tell your own ſins, neither will he tell you of them; but he will change his Note (at furtheſt) when your few evil days finiſh: It is the very caſe, as many Creditors deal with their Debtors, while they have any Doings, as they ſay, and are in Trading, they will let them alone, in policy they will ſay nothing; but if once down the wind, in Sickneſs, Poverty, Diſgrace, or the like, then comes Serjeant after Serjeant, Arreſt upon Arreſt, Action upon Action: Juſt thus is Satans dealing with the Unregenerate Man; if you will but ſin, and never call your ſelves to a Reckoning, in policy he will ſay nothing; but when the Score is full, and Death comes to Arreſt you, then he will bring out his black Book of all your Sins committed all your days. O, I tremble to ſpeak of it: Then ſhall your ſins fall as foul on your Souls, as Ravens on the fallen Sheep, and keep you down for ever in the Dungeon of Deſpair.

Secondly, In reſpect of the Regenerate; that you have ready by you (or by heart) a Catalogue of your Sins, is neceſſary in many reſpects.

Firſt, To humble you: For no ſooner ſhall the poor Soul look on all the ſins he hath committed, both before and after his Regeneration; but confeſſing them in Prayer, it will pull down his Heart, and make the wound of his Remorſe to bleed a freſh, as before; and therefore this Catalogue is moſt neceſſary in days of Humiliation.

Secondly, It is neceſſary to prepare you for the receiving of the Sacrament; for indeed, I would have none to preſume to taſte of that Supper, but firſt to view over all his Sins, and to confeſs them in Prayer to his heavenly Father; There be many that in Confeſſion look on their Sins, as they do on the Stars in a dark cloudy night; they can ſee none but the great Ones, of the firſt or ſecond Magnitude, it may be here one and there one; but if they were truly enlightned, and informed aright, they might rather behold their Sins as thoſe innumerable Stars that appear in a fair Froſty Winters night; they are many, and many; and therefore take a little pains in compoſing your Catalogue, that ſo you may confeſs all (at leaſt for the kinds (before you preſume to come near that Table of the Lord.

Thirdly, It is neceſſary in times of Deſertion or Viſitation; yea, if the Lord ſhall pleaſe to exerciſe you with any Croſs, or Diſgrace, or Diſcountenance, loſs of Goods, diſeaſe of Body, terror of Soul, or the like; you may be ſure as no Miſery comes but for ſin, ſo then the enumeration of your ſins from a bleeding broken Heart, is the prime and firſt means to cauſe that Sun of mercy to break through the Clouds, and to beget a clear day; alaſs! our days are evil, and ſure we have as good reaſon as ever Jacob had to confeſs it: For my part, though I keep my Catalogue to my ſelf, yet in the general I cannot but confeſs to you all, My days have been evil, evil, evil: Few and evil.

And now we have done with the Work, it reſts that you ſhould know your Wages; there be days of ſin, and then days of ſorrow; as you have ſpent your days, ſo muſt you have your rewards; firſt we Treſpaſs, and then we pay for it; firſt we Sin, and then we ſuffer evil.

Rom. 5. 12.

2. The evils that we ſuffer may be ranked in this order; firſt, evils original fill up the Scene, and what a multitude of evils do enter with them? No ſooner had Adam ſinned, but a world of Miſeries fell on Man, ſo that as the Infection, in like manner the Puniſhment diſtils from him. By one man (ſaith the Apoſtle) entered Sin into the World: what, ſin alone? no, but death by Sin, and ſo death went over all men, Rom. 5. 12. Infants themſelves bring their Damnation with them from their Wombs; or if that be omitted, how many are the Miſeries of this Life, as the fore-runners of that Judgment? Look at the Mind, and what think ye of our Ignorance, not only that of wilful Diſpoſition, but (as the Schools diſtinguiſh) of pure Negation? If it be not a Sin, what is it but a Puniſhment for Sin? that our Underſtanding ſhould be obſcured and darkned, our Knowledge in things natural wounded, in ſupernatural utterly extinguiſhed: O the miſerable iſſue of that monſter Sin! But as evils come by Heaps, ſo of the ſame Parent here is another Brood, Ignorance and Forgetfulneſs; and is not this a Miſery, after all our time and ſtudy to get a little Knowledge, quickly to forget that we are ſo long a learning? Man in his whole ſtate, before the Fall, could not forget things taught him; but now (as the Hour-glaſs) we receive in at the one Ear, and it goes out at the other; or rather (like the Sieve) we always keep the Bran, but let the Flower go; ſo apt are we to retain the Bad, but we very eaſily forget the Good. And is this all? nay, yet more evils; ſee but our Affections, and to what a number of infinite Sorrows, Griefs, Anguiſhes, Suſpicions, Fears, Malices, Jealouſies, is the Soul of man ſubject? So prone are we to theſe miſerable Paſſions, that upon any occaſion we fall into them; or for want of cauſe from any other, we begin to be paſſionate with our ſelves? Why haſt thou, O Lord, ſet me againſt thee? I am become irkſome and burdenſome even unto mine own ſelf, Job 7. 20.

Job 7. 20.

Alaſs, poor man, how art thou beſet with a world of Miſeries? and yet, as if all theſe ſummed up together, could not make enough, look at the Body, and how many are its Sufferings? In the ſweat of thy Face ſhalt thou eat thy Bread, ſaid God, Geneſis 3. 19. The Spider Spins, and Weaves, and waſtes her very Bowels to make her Net, and when all is done, to what purpoſe ſerves it, but to catch a Flie? if this be vain work, how vain is man in his fond Imitation? The Birds and Beaſts can feed themſelves without any Pains; only man toils night and day, on Sea and Land, with Body and Mind; yet all is to no purpoſe, but to catch a Flie, to portract a Life, or to procure ſome Vanity. And yet, as if Miſery had no mean beſides our Induſtry, how is this Body ſtuffed with many an Infirmity? All the ſtrength of man is but a Reed, at beſt ſhaken, perhaps broken, howſoever weakned by every Wind that blows upon it. The Phyſicians Diſtinction of Temperamentum ad pondus, & juſtitiam, gives us thus much to learn, that no Conſtitution is ever ſo happy, to have a juſt Temper according to its Weight: Some are too Hot, others too Cold, all have ſome Defects, and ſo are diſpoſed to all kind of Infirmities: Man cannot carry himſelf, but he muſt needs carry about with him many Forms of his own Deſtruction. The Books of the Phyſicians tell us of many Diſeaſes, and yet many are the Diſeaſes; which their Books cannot tell of: we ſee in our own days, moſt labour of new Sickneſſes, unknown to our Fathers; or if any of us be free from any of theſe, yet every ones Body nouriſheth the Cauſes, and may be a receptacle of a thouſand Diſeaſes. How evil is Sin, that incurs ſo many evils of Puniſhment.

Gen. 3. 19.

De ipſo corpore tot exiſtunt morborum mala, ut nec libris Medicorum cuncta comprehenſa. Aug. de Civ. Dei. l. 22. cap. 22.

But as if all were too little, (becauſe our Sins are ſo many) if you will number any more, here is yet another reckoning, evils Originals, and evils Aventitious, evils of Neceſſity, and evils of Chance. Auſtine ſaith, What ſhall we ſay of thoſe innumerable Accidents that befall a Man? as Heat, and Cold, and Thunder, and Rain, and Storms, and Earth-quakes, and Poyſons, and Treaſons, and Robberies, and Wars, and Tumults, and what not? go whither you will, and every place is full of ſome of theſe evils; If you go on Sea, every Wave threatens you, every Wind fears you, every Rock and Sand is enough to drown you: If you go on Land, every Step dangers you, every wild Beaſt ſcares you, every Stone or Tree is enough to kill you: if you go no whither, you cannot be without Danger: Eli was ſitting, and what more ſecure? yet at the News of Gods Ark, that it was taken by the Philiſtines, he falls down backwards, and his Neck was broken. Korah was ſtanding, what more ſure? yet aſſoon as Moſes had made an end of ſpeaking, the Earth opened her Mouth, and ſwallowed him and his Family, and all the Men that were with him. Indeed Abſolom was riding, and what way more ready to eſcape the Enemy? yet, as the Mule carried him under a great thick Oak, his Head caught hold of the Oak, and he was taken up between the Heaven and the Earth, and the Mule that was under him went away. Whatſoever we do or whitherſoever we go, ſo long as we do evil, theſe evils will meet us. Go into the Ship, there is but a Board betwixt thee and the Waters: walk on the Ground, there is but a Shoe-ſole betwixt thee and thy Grave: take a turn in the Streets, and ſo many Perils hang over thee, as there are Tiles on the Houſes; travel in the Country, and ſo many Enemies are about thee, as thou meeteſt Beaſts in the Fields; if all theſe places be ſo dangerous, then retire to thy Houſe, and yet that is ſubject to Fire, or Water; or if it eſcape both, it may fall on thy Head: whitherſoever we turn us, all things about us ſeem to threaten our Death. Our days are evil indeed; and who is it that is exempted from every of theſe evils? Sinners are corrected, good Men are chaſtened, there is none eſcapes free.

Numb. 16. 32.

2 Sam. 18. 9.

To ſee a little the State of Gods own Friends and Children: Was not Abel murdered by his Brother? Noah mocked by his Son? Job ſcoffed by his Wife? Eli ſlain for his Sons? Will you all at once? Take one for all, and ſee Jacob our Patriarch, a notable Example of extream Infelicity: He is threatned by his Brother, baniſhed from his Father, abuſed by his Uncle, defrauded of his Wife; was not here Miſery enough to break one heart? But after this, for another Wifes ſake, ſee him enter into a new Service; In the day he is conſumed with heat, in the night with froſt: An hard Service ſure! Nay, after this that he got his Rachel, ſee then a Diviſion betwixt her and Leah, two Siſters brawling for one Husband, yet neither content after both enjoyed him. Bleſſed Saint! how waſt thou haunted with Afflictions? Yet after this, he agrees his Wives, and they all run from their Father, and now ſee a freſh purſuit; behind him, Laban, follows with a Hue and Cry; before him Eſau meets him with 400 Men; to go forwards intolerable, to go backwards unavailable; which way then? It was an Angel of God, nay, the God of Angels that now muſt comfort him.

Gen. 31. 40.

And yet again after his firſt Entry into his own Country, his Wife Rachel dies, his Daughter Dinah is raviſhed, his Son Reuben lyes with his Concubine; and if the defiling of a Wife be ſo great a grief to the Husband, what ſorrow and ſhame, when the wickedneſs is committed by a Mans own Son? What can we more? If yet his Heart be unbroken, here's another Grief great enough to match all the reſt, his Son, his Joſeph (they report) is loſt; and What News hears he of him, but that he is torn with wild Beaſts? And now ſee a Man of Miſeries indeed! He rends his cloaths, he puts ſackcloth about his loyns, he will not be comforted; but ſurely (ſaith he) I will go down into the grave unto my ſon mourning. Alaſs poor Jacob! what can they ſay to comfort him? To comfort, ſaid I? Nay, yet hear the tidings of a new Miſery, a Famine is begun, and another of his Sons is kept in Priſon: What a grief is here? Another in Priſon, and nothing to redeem him but his only Benjamin; here is the loſs of Son after Son; Gen. 42. 36. Joſeph is not, and Simeon is not, and now you will take Benjamin, all theſe things are againſt me. We need no more, if Jacob thus number, how many are the Miſeries he did daily ſuffer? Would you have the ſum? He himſelf the beſt witneſs of himſelf, affirms it to Pharaoh, Evil, Evil; Few and evil] have the days of the years of my life been.

Gen. 37. 34, 35.

So miſerable is our Life, that no Man can take his Breath before ſome evil or other do ſeize on his Perſon: If you would that we knit up all in one bundle, there be Evils original, Evils adventitious, Evils of the Mind, Evils of the Body, Evils that are common, Evils of the choſen; we had need pray again, Deliver us from evil.] What! ſo many Evils of Suffering? Now the Lord deliver us.

1. Uſe. What is ſweet in this Life, which ſo many Miſeries will not imbitter? If this be a Vale of Tears, where is thy place to Pleaſure? If this Life be a neſt of Cares, how canſt thou ſettle ſo great a Vanity as ſin in a Field of ſuch Miſery as the World? Pſ. 4. 2. O ye ſons of men, how long will ye blaſpheme mine honour, and have ſuch pleaſure in vanity, and ſeek after leaſing? Were Men not mad in their ways, or utterly beſotted in their Imaginations, well might theſe Miſeries of our Life breed their neglect of the World. Can we chuſe but wonder to ſee how buſily thou heapeſt up Riches, yet knoweſt not who ſhall eat the Grapes of thy planted Vineyard? God gave thee a Countenance erected towards Heaven, and muſt it ever be groveling and poring on the Earth? God gave thee a Soul to live with his bleſſed Angels, and wilt thou make it a Companion fitter for no other than brute Beaſts? Eccleſ. 5. 12. There is an evil ſickneſs (ſaith Solomon) that I have ſeen under the Sun; and what is that, but riches reſerved to the owners for their evil? See here the juſt Judgment of a righteous God; to this end is thy Rices; thou wouldſt live at eaſe, and out-laſt many years; therefore thy Life is but miſerable, and thy Death muſt be ſudden; thy Days are but few, and thy few Days are evil.

2. Uſe. But to comfort all you that live in the fear of God; it may be your Days are evil,] and what then? This is to make tryal of your love to God, and a tryal it is of Gods love to you.

Firſt, It makes a tryal of your love to God: Certainly, if you have but a ſpark of this love your days cannot be ſo evil, but in the midſt of thoſe evils you ſhall find ſome inward Conſolations that will ſweeten all. It is memorable how Jacob for Rachel ſerved Laban ſeven years: but yet (ſaith Gen. 29. 20. the Text) they ſeemed to him but a few days for the love he had to her. Nay, after Laban had deceived him in giving him blear-ey'd Leah inſtead of beautiful Rachel, Jacob then ſerves him another ſeven years Prentiſhip; love makes the Heart cheerful in the worſt of Sufferings: Though Jacob was conſumed with Drought in the day and Froſt in the night, which many and many a time made his Reſt and Sleep to depart from his eyes; Gen. 31. 40. yet his love of fair Rachel ſweetens all his labours: Why thus, thus will it be with you that wait on the Lord your God. What though Miſeries come upon you as thick as Hail-ſtorms in a ſharp Winters day? You may remember you have a better Maſter then Laban, a better Service than Jacobs, a fairer Prize than Rachel: Who is your Maſter, but ſuch a one as will ſurely keep his Covenant even the Lord your God? What is your Service, but ſuch a one as is moſt glorious and honourable, even a light burden, a perfect freedom? What is your Prize, but ſuch a one as ſurpaſſeth, all Prizes, whatſoever, even the Beauty of Heaven, beatifical Viſion of our bleſſed God? If then you but love God as Jacob did Rachel, what matters it how evil your few days be? Nay, be they never ſo evil, and were your days never ſo many, yet an hundred, a thouſand Years ſpent in Gods Service, they would ſeem but a few days for the love you bear to him. O Lord, work in us this love, and then command what thou wilt, Perſecution, Affliction, the Croſs, or Death; no ſervice ſo hard, but we ſhall readily obey thee.

Secondly, As your evils of Sufferings try your Love to God, ſo they are a Tryal (or Token) of Gods Love to you: 2 Cor. 4. 17. Our light Affliction which is but for a moment, cauſeth unto us a far more excellent and an eternal weight of Glory; and if this be the end, who would not endure the Means? O divine Mercy! therefore the dugs of this life taſte bitter, that thereby God may wean us from the love of this World to attain a better: Certainly God is good unto us in tempering theſe ſo fitly; bitterneſs attends this Life, that thou mayeſt ſigh continually for the true Life. Wouldſt thou not run through dangers for a Kingdom? wouldeſt thou not fetch a Crown for fear of a Thorn? nay, who would not go to Heaven, although it were with Eliah in a Whirl-wind? I count (ſaith Paul) that the Afflictions of this life are not worthy of the Glory which ſhall be ſhewed unto us. Rom. 8. 18. Come then ye that thirſt for long Life, believe in God, and you ſhall have life Eternal. All is well that ends well: though a while we ſink in Miſeries, yet at laſt the Joys of Heaven will refreſh us: then ſhall we live in Love, rejoyce in Hymns, ſing forth in Praiſes the wonderful Works of our Creator and Redeemer: this is that life of Heaven: and when our life ends here, Lord grant us life everlaſting.

Thus far you have ſeen the ſtate of our Life, this Leaſe breeds Sorrow, but the reverſion is our Joy; no ſooner ſhall this Life expire, but God will give us the purchaſe of his Son, that inheritance of Heaven; comfort then thy Soul that wades through this Sea of Miſeries, and the Lord ſo aſſiſt us in all our Troubles, that he lead us not into Temptation, but deliver us from Evil. Amen.

Have been.]

OUr life but days, our days are but few, our few days but evil, and now when all is done we find all is out of date. Few and evil have] the days if my life been.]

This laſt word is the leaſes Expiration: and why have been? If you will needs know the reaſon:

The time that is paſt is beſt known to Jacob.

Olim meminiſſe juvabit. Virg. And the life of Jacob is but as the time that is paſt.

Firſt, the time that is paſt is beſt known to Jacob: old Men can tell old Stories, and ſomething it delights them to remember the Storms gone over them. We all know How { Many years we have lived.

Great Miſeries we have ſuffered.

Jacob tells you, as you may tell each other, our years have been few, our few years have been evil. Eccleſ. 12. 6. To make this good, Have they not been few? Let me ask ſome old man whoſe Hairs are dipt in Snow, whoſe golden Ewer is broken, whoſe ſilver Cord is lengthened; How many be thy years? It may be thou wilt anſwer, as Moſes gives the Pſ. 90. 10. number, a matter of threeſcore years and ten, or fourſcore years. I cannot ſay but it is a long time to come; but alaſs, what are theſe fourſcore years now they are gone? Tell me you that have ſeen the many changes both of Moon and Sun, are they not ſwiftly run away? You may remember your Manhood, Childhood; and I pray what think ye? was it not yeſterſtay? is it not a while ſince? who will not wonder to ſee how quickly it is gone, and yet how long it was a coming? The time to come ſeems tedious, eſpecially to a man in hope of Bliſs; the time now paſt is a very nothing, eſpecially to a man in fear of Danger: go down to thoſe caſt-away Souls that now ſuffer in hell Flames; and what ſay they Wiſ. 5, 13. of their life, but as ſoon as we were born, we began to draw to our end. Go down to thoſe putrified Bodies, and find amongſt them the Duſts of Adam, Seth, Enoſh, Kenan, Mehalaleel, Jered, Enoch, Methuſalem, Every one of whom lived near to the number of a thouſand years, are they not dead? Gen. 5. and what is their Epitaph, but, They lived and died? Gen. 5. To ſumm up all in one, and to Gen. 47. 9. make this one ſerve for all, Jacob is an hundred and thirty years old (for ſo you ſee it regiſtered in Gods Book,) yet now being demanded to tell his Age, he anſwers but days, and his days are but Few; how ſhould they be many that now are gone already? theſe few days, they have been.]

Scribit in marmore læſus. Secondly, and as time paſt tells our days, ſo it counts all our Miſeries, Who cannot remember the Miſeries he doth ſuffer? The Poor, the Sick, the Baniſhed, the Impriſoned, the Traveller, the Souldier, every one can write a Chronicle of his Life, and make up large Volumes of their ſeveral Changes. What is the Hiſtory of the Bible but an holy brief Chronicle of the Saints grievous Sufferings? See the Miſeries of the Patriarchs deſcribed in the Books of Moſes: ſee the Wars of the Iſraelites ſet down in the Books Joſhua: ſee the Afflictions of David in the Books of Samuel, Ezra, Nehemiah, Eſter, Job, every one hath a Book of their ſeveral Calamities? and if all our Miſeries were but thus abbreviated, I ſuppoſe the World would not contain the Books that ſhould be written.] There is no man ſo cunning to know his future Condition; but for thoſe things which have been, every one can read them. Look then (beloved) at the time now paſt, and will you not ſay with Jacob, your days have been evil? Evil for your Sins, and evil for your Sufferings: if you live more days what do you but increaſe more Evils? the juſt man ſins ſeven times a day, and every one of us perhaps ſeventy times ſeven times a day; doe we thus multiply Sins? and think we to ſubtract our Sorrows? think but of thoſe Storms that already have gone over our Heads, Famines, Sores, Sickneſſes, Plagues; have we not ſeen many ſeaſons Unſeaſonable, becauſe we could find no ſeaſon to repentance? Our Springs have been Graves rather than Cradles, our Summers have not ſhot up, but withered our Graſs; our Autumns have took away the Flocks of our Sheep, and for our lateſt Harveſt, the Heavens themſelves have not ceaſed Weeping for us, that never yet found time to weep for our ſelves. And as this procured the Famine, ſo Famine uſhered the Peſtilence. O the miſerable Miſeries that at this time fell upon us! Were not our Houſes infected? Our Towns depopulated? Our Gardens made our Graves? And many a Grave a Bed to lodge in it a whole Family? Alas, what an hideous noiſe was heard about us? In every Church Bells tolling, in every Hamlet ſome dying, in every ſtreet men watching, in every place, every where, wailing and weeping, or groaning and dying. Theſe are the evils that have been,] and how ſhould we forget them that have once ſeen them with our eyes? Call to mind time paſt, was the rule of Bernard; Recole primordia. Bern. and what better rule have we to ſquare our lives, than the remembrance of thoſe evils which our lives have ſuffered? Look back then with Jacob, and we have good reaſon to redeem the time paſt, becauſe our days have been evil.

But there is yet another reaſon why theſe few evil days have been.] As the time paſt is beſt known to Jacob, ſo the Life of Jacob is but as the time paſt. Go to now (ſaith St. James) ye that ſay to Jam. 4. 13. day, or to morrow we will go into ſuch a City, and continue there a year, and buy and ſell, and get gain, and yet ye cannot tell what ſhall be to morrow, Jam. 4. 13. It is a meer preſumption to boaſt of the time to come: Can any man ſay he will live till to morrow? Look back ye that truſt to this Staff of Egypt, there is no man can aſſure you of this day; Man knoweth not his time, ſaith the Eccleſ. 9. 12. Preacher, Eccleſ. 9. 12. As near as it is to night, it may be before evening ſome one of us may be dead and cold, and fitter to lodge in our graves under earth, than in our beds above it; nay, aſſure your ſelves, our life is of no long continuance: What ſpeak we of to morrow, or this day? we are not ſure of (that leaſt of times diviſion) a very hour: Watch therefore (ſaith our Saviour) and will you know the reaſon: For ye Mat. 25. 13 know neither the day, nor the hour when the Son of Man will come, Matth. 25. 13. The man with ten or twenty diſhes ſet before him on his table, when he hath full intelligence that in one of them is poyſon, will he not refuſe all, leſt in eating of any he run upon the hazard of his life? What is our life but a few hours? and in one of them death muſt needs come; watch then, for the hour is at hand, and we know not how ſoon it will it ſeize upon us. This hour the breath thou draweſt may be thy infection, this hour the bread thou eateſt may be thy poyſon, this hour the cup thou takeſt may be that cup that muſt not paſs from thee. But what ſpeak we of this hour, ſeeing it is come, and gone? The ſweeteſt ditty that Moſes ſung, were his Briefs, and Seme-briefs of life, and what is it but a Pſ. 90. 4. watch, Pſal. 90. 4. what is it but a ſleep? Pſal. 90. Pſa. 90. 5. 4. We watch when it is dark, we ſleep when it is night; if then our life be no more but a night-work, what is truer than this wonder, our life is done, our days they have been.

You may think we go far to prove ſo ſtrange a Paradox: yet Job goes further, What are we but of yeſterday, for our days upon earth are but a ſhadow? Job. 8. 9. See here the Chronology of mans frailty, we have a time to live, and when is it, think you? Not to Morrow, nor to Day, nor this hour, nor laſt night, it is as long ſince as yeſterday it ſelf. Are not we ſtrangely deceived? What mean our plots and projects for the time to come? why, our Life is done, and we are now but dead Men. To ſpeak properly, In the midſt of Life we be in Death; our whole life being truly (if not paſt, yet) as the time paſt that is gone and vaniſhed. The ſimilitude, or reſemblance will run in theſe reſpects:

Job 8. 9.

the time paſt { cannot be recalled.
ſuddenly is vaniſhed.

And ſo is our life: can we recall that which is fled away? The life that we led yeſterday, you ſee it is gone; the life that we led laſt night, it is paſt and done; the life that we led this morning, it is now a going, nay, it is gone aſſoon as we have ſpoken. Nicodemus's ſaying according to the fleſh was true, How can a man be born which is old? can be enter into his Mothers Womb again, and be born? John 3. 4. How ſhould a Man recall that which is paſt? Can he receive again the Soul once given, and begin to live? Man never ſo great in power, and ſpreading himſelf like a green bay-tree; a tree] moſt durable; a bay-tree] moſt flouriſhing; a green bay-tree] that is moſt in prime, if any thing will ſtand at a ſtay, what is more likely; yet he paſſeth away (ſaith the Pſalmiſt) and lo he was gone; I ſought him but he could not be found, Pſalm 37. 35, 36. We cannot ſtay time preſent; How ſhould we recall time paſt? See here the Man on whom the Eyes of the World are fixt with Admiration, yet for all this he paſſeth] without ſtay; he is gone] without recal; I ſought him, but to find him] is without all recovery. Time was that Adam lived in Paradiſe, Noah built an Ark, David ſlew Goliah, Alexander overcame the World: Where be theſe Men that are the wonder of us living? We all know they are long ſince dead, and the Times they ſaw ſhall never come again. How fond was that fiction of Plato, that after the revolution of his tedious year, then he muſt live again and teach his Scholars in the ſame Chair he ſat in? Our Faith is above his Reaſons; for the heavens ſhall paſs away, the elements ſhall melt with heat, and the earth with the works therein ſhall be burnt up, 2 Peter 3. 10. Where then is the Life of Plato, when all theſe things ſhall turn to nothing? We may now for his Learning praiſe him were he is not, and he may then for his Error be damned and tormented where he is. Is there any Man with skill or power can call back but yeſterday? Once only we read of ſuch a Miracle, but it was only by the Hand of God Almighty. Hezekiah was ſick, 2 Kings 20. And to confirm the News that he muſt recover, he requires a ſign, What ſhall be the ſign that the Lord will heal me, and that I ſhall go up into the houſe of the Lord the third day? This was no temptation; for you ſee how the Prophet gives him ſatisfaction, This ſign ſhalt thou have of the Lord; wilt thou that the ſhadow go forward ten degrees, or go back ten degrees? Hezekiah thinks of Death, and the Prophet reſtores his Life; not only a time of fifteen years to come, but of ten degrees now gone; and thus it was obſerved in the Dial of Ahaz. This was a Miracle that but once happened ſince the beginning of the World; He then that ſleeps away his time in expectation of Hezekiahs Sun, may ſleep till his Death, and then not recall one Minute of his Life; as the time, ſo our life, is once paſt, it if irrevocable, irrecoverable.

John 3. 4.

Pſa. 37.35, 36.

Annus Platonicus.

2Pet.3.10.

2Kings 20.

2. And as it cannot be recalled again, ſo ſuddenly is it vaniſhed. Nothing makes life long, but our hope to live long: Take away thoſe Thoughts of the time to come, and there is nothing ſwifter than the life that is gone. Suppoſe then thou haſt lived ſo long, as from Adam to this time; as Auſtine ſaith, Certainly thou wouldſt think thy life but ſhort: And if that were ſhort, which we think ſo long, how long is our life, which in compariſon of that is ſo extremely ſhort? The time once paſt, we think it ſuddenly paſt, and ſo is life gone in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, ſo ſoon indeed, before it can be ſaid, This it is.] In every one of us Death hath ten thouſand times as much as Life; the life that is gone 'is Deaths, and the life yet to come is Deaths, our now is but an inſtant; yet this is all that belongs to; and all the life which any of us all is at once poſſeſſed of: here is a life indeed, that ſo ſoon is vaniſhed, before it can be numbred or meaſured; it is no time but now, yet ſtays not till the Syllable now may be written, or ſpoken: what can I ſay? the life that I had when I began to ſpeak this word, it is now gone ſince I began to ſpeak this word. May we call this life that is ever poſting towards Death. Do we what we can, and could we do yet more, all we do, and all we could do, were to no purpoſe to prolong our life: See how we ſhore this ruinous houſe of our Body with Food, with Raiment, with Exerciſe, with Sleep, yet nothing can preſerve it from returning to its earth: we go, and we go ſuddenly, witneſs thoſe two Cæſars, who put off themſelves whilſt they put on their Shooes; Fabius (ſtyled Maximus for his Exploits, and Cunctator for his delaying) yet could not delay Death, till notice might be taken he was ſick; but how many Examples in this kind have we daily amongſt us? you know how ſome lately have gone ſafe to Bed, and yet in the morning were found Dead and Cold: others in Health and Mirth laid down by their Wives, and yet ere Midnight found Breathleſs by their Sides. What need we further Inſtances? You ſee how we go before we know where we are; the life that we had, what is it but a nothing? the life that we have, what is it but a moment? and all that we can have, what is it but a fleeting Wind, begun and done in a trice of time, before we can imagine it. In a word, our Sun now ſets, our day is done; ask Jacob (the Clock-keeper of our time) this Text tells the Hour, and now ſtruck, you hear the Sound; our days are gone, Few and evil, they have been.

Certe videres vitam tuam non fuiſſe diuturnam. Aug. in Pſal. 36.

The CONCLUSION.

Occaſioned by the Death of CHARLES BRIDGEMAN, who deceaſed about the age of Twelve, in the Year of our Lord, 1632. He was a moſt pious Son of a moſt pious Mother, both now with God.

Here I thought to have finiſhed my Text and Sermon; But here is a ſad Accident to confirm my Saying; and whileſt I ſpeak of him, what can I ſay of his State, his Perſon, his Birth, his Life, of all he had, and of all he was, but that they have been?

Sweet Roſe, cropt in its Bloſſom; no ſooner budded, but Blaſted; how ſhall we remember his days, to forget our Sorrows? No ſooner had he learnt to ſpeak, but (contrary to our Cuſtom) he betook him to his Prayers: So ſoon had Grace quelled the corruption of his Nature, that being yet an infant, you might ſee his proneneſs to learn; nay ſometimes to teach them this Duty, who waited on to teach him his Devotion: Not long after he was ſet to School, where he learned by Book, what before he had learned by Heart: The ſweet Care, good Diſpoſition, ſincere Religion, which were in this Child, all may remember which caſt but their eyes upon him. O God, how haſt thou bereaved us of this Gem? Sure it is (as it was ſaid of another) for this cauſe only, that it might ſhine in Heaven. But this was but the beginning of his days, now they are paſt, they have been.]

Go a little further, we left him at School, but now learned he Chriſt, and him crucified? this was the Knowledge taught him by the Spirit of God in a wonderful manner: Out of the mouths of Babes and Sucklings haſt thou, O God, ordained Strength. To conſider again his religious Words, his upright Actions, his hearty Devotions, his fear of God, all then concluded, as they did of John, What manner of Child ſhall this be? No queſtion the grace of God was with him. If I ſhould inſtance in any of theſe, his frequency in Prayer, his reading of Scriptures, his reaſoning with others to get Knowledge to himſelf, we may wonder at Gods power in this Childs poor Weakneſs: Excuſe me while I tell nothing but Truths, and I hope they will tend to our own Inſtruction. In the morning he would not ſtir out of Doors, before he had poured out his Prayers; at noon he would not eat any Meat, before he had given the Lord thanks; at night he would not lye down on his Bed, before he had kneeled down on his Knees: We may remember thoſe times, when ſometimes that he had forgotten this Duty, no ſooner had he been in Bed, but up he would have got again, and ſo kneeling down on his bare Knees: covered with no Garment but his Linens, he would ask God forgiveneſs for that Sin of Forgetfulneſs; neither have his Brothers eſcaped without his Reprehenſion: For had they eat any Meal or Meat without a Grace, his Check was uſually: Dare you do this? Unleſs God be merciful to us, this bit of Bread may choak us. The wiſe Sentences, the religious Words, which often drop from his Mouth like Honey, can we remember them, and not grieve at the Death of him that ſpake them? What Comfort had we in thoſe days? What Sorrow have we to think thoſe days are done? they are gone, they have been.

1 Cor. 2.2.

Pſal. 8. 2.

Luk. 1.66.

Thus he lived; will you know how he died? Firſt a lingring Sickneſs ſeized upon him; againſt which, to comfort him, one tells him of Poſſeſſions that muſt fall to his Portion; And what are they? (ſaid he) I had rather have the Kingdom of Heaven than a thouſand ſuch Inheritances. Thus he minds Heaven; and God ſo minding him, preſently ſent him his Sickneſs that ſhould ſummon him thither. And now how ſhould I repeat his Words, with the life that he ſpake them dying? No ſooner had God ſtruck his Body with that fatal Sickneſs, but he asks, and needs would know his Souls Eſtate: I have heard of the Soul, (ſaith he) but what is the Soul? the Mind, he queſtions, and queſtioning anſwers, better (I fear) that many, too many Gray-headed amongſt us; but the anſwer given, how the Soul conſiſted of the Will and the Underſtanding, he ſays, he is ſatisfied, and now underſtands better than he did before. Another comes to him, and then he begins another Queſtion; now he knows the Soul, he deſires yet to know further, How his Soul may be ſaved? O bleſſed Soul, how wiſely couldſt thou queſtion for thine own Souls good! The anſwer given, By Faith applying Chriſts Merits: he heard it, and had it, anon telling them, who before had taught it him. Reſolved in theſe Queſtions, he queſtions no further, but will now anſwer them that go about to queſtion him: One asks him, whether he had rather live or die? he gives the anſwer, and not without Pauls reaſon: I deſire to die, (ſaid he) that I might go to my Saviour. O bleſſed Spirit, how didſt thou inſpire into this Child thy Wiſdom and Goodneſs! This done, his Pain begins again to afflict him, and this occaſions another thus to queſtion him, whether he would rather ſtill endure thoſe Pains, or forſake his Chriſt? Alas (ſaid he) I know not what to ſay as a Child, for theſe Pains might ſtagger a ſtrong Man: but I will ſtrive to endure the beſt I can. Upon this he preſently calls to mind that Martyr, who being in Priſon, the night before his Burning, put his Finger in the Candle, to know how he could endure the Fire; O, (ſaid he) had I lived then, I would have run through the Fire to have gone to Chriſt. Sweet Reſolution of a ſilly Child! who can hear, and not wonder wonder, and not deſire to hear that he may wonder ſtill? Bleſſed Child, hadſt thou lived, that we might have wondred at thy Wiſdom! but his days were determined, and now is the number turned to this poor Cypher, that are not, they have been.

Thom. Bilney.

I cannot leave him yet, his Sickneſs laſts long, and at leaſt three days before his Death, he Propheſies his Departure, and how ſtrange a Propheſie? not only that he muſt die, but foretelling the very day; On the Lords day (ſaid he) look to me. Neither was that a word of courſe, which you may gueſs by his often Repetition; every day asking till the day came indeed, What, is Sunday come? At laſt the Lookt-for day came on, and no ſooner had the Sun beautified that Morning with his Light, but he falls into a Trance; What (think ye) meant his bleſſed Soul, whileſt the Body it ſelf uſed ſuch an Action? his Eyes were fixed, his Face chearful, his Lips ſmiling, his Hands and Arms claſping in a Bow, as if he would have received ſome bleſſed Angel, that there was at hand to receive his Soul; but he comes to himſelf, and tells them how he ſaw the ſweeteſt Boy that ever eyes beheld, and bids them, Be of good chear, for he muſt preſently go with him. One ſtanding near, as now ſuſpecting his time of Diſſolution, bids him ſay, Lord, into thy hands I commend my Spirit;

Spirit; Yes, (ſaid he) into thy hands, Lord, I commit my Spirit, which is thy due, for why? thou haſt redeemed it, O Lord my God moſt true. Who will not believe this Child ſings in Heaven, that ſo ſoon had learned this Davids Pſalm on Earth? I cannot hold my ſelf, nor will I hold you long; but how may I omit his heavenly Ejaculations! Beloved, I beſeech you pardon me whileſt I ſpeak his Words, and I will promiſe you to ſpeak no word, but the very ſame formally which were his own: Pray, pray, pray, nay yet pray, and the more Prayers, the better all proſpers: God is the beſt Phyſician; Into his hands I commend my Spirit: O Lord Jeſus, receive my Soul. Now cloſe mine eyes, forgive me, Father, Mother, Brother, Siſter, all the World. Now I am well, my Pain is almoſt gone, my joy is at hand; Lord, have mercy on me, O Lord receive my Soul unto thee. Where am I whilſt I ſpeak theſe words? Bleſſed Saint, now thou ſingeſt in Heaven, God hath bid thee welcome, the Angels are hugging thee, the Saints rejoyce with thee, this day is the Crown ſet on thy Head, this day is the Palm of Victory in thy hand; now art thou arayed in the ſhining robes of Heaven, and all the Hoſt do Triumph at thy Coronation. Sweet Soul, how am I raviſhed to think upon thee! What Joy is this? The Patriarchs ſalute thee, the Prophets welcome thee, the Apoſtles hug thee, all hands clap for Joy, all Harps warble, all Hearts are merry and glad. O thou Creator of Men and Angels, help us all to Heaven, that when our days have been,] we may all meet together in thy bleſſed Kingdom.

I have done: turn back by the ſame Thred that led you through this labyrinth, and you ſhall have in two words the Summ of this whole Text.

The time of our Leaſe, what is it but our Life? what is this Life, but a number of few days? what are theſe days, but a world full of evil? But a life, but days, but few, but evil; can we add any more? Yes, Life is life howſoever we live, and better you think to have a bad Leaſe in being, than our life to be quite extinguiſhed: Nay, be not deceived, this Life is but Death, the days that we ſpend, they are paſt and done, few and evil they have been. Thus ends the Text with the expiration of our Leaſe: yet is not all done; when we loſe this life, we have another Free-hold prepared in Heaven; and this is not leaſed, but purchaſed; not for a life, but Inheritance; not for days, but for ever Croſs but the words of my Text, and many and happy ſhall the Ages of thy life be in Heaven, for ever and ever, Amen.

DEATH's ARREST.

LUKE 12. 20.

This Night thy Soul ſhall be required of thee.

MAn's Body (we ſay) is cloſed up within the Elements, his Blood in his Body, his Spirits in his Blood, his Soul in his Spirits, and GOD or Satan in his Soul. Who holds the poſſeſſion, we may gueſs in Life; but then is it moſt apparent when we come to Death? The Tree may bend Eaſt, or Weſt, or North, or South; but as it falleth ſo it lieth: our Affections may look up or down, towards Heaven or Hell; but as we die we receive our doom, and then whoſe we are ſhall be fully be made manifeſt to all the world. Luke 16. There is a Parable of poor Lazarus, whoſe Life was nothing but a Catalogue of Miſeries, his Body full of Sores, his Mind full of Sorrows; what Spectacle could we think more pitiful, whoſe beſt Dainties were but broken Crumbs, and his warmeſt Lodging but the rich Man's Gates? Here is a Parable of a certain rich Man, who enjoys, (or at leaſt purpoſeth) a delicious Fare; he hath V. 16, 17. 18, 19. Lands, verſe 16. Fruits, ver. 17. Buildings, verſe 18. And if this be the Inventory, what is the Sum? See it collected in the Verſe ſucceeding; Soul, thou haſt much Goods laid up for many years; now live at eaſe, eat, drink, and take thy paſtime. Theſe two Eſtates thus different, how ſhould they Mat. 6,24. be but of divers Tenures? No Man can ſerve God and Mammon. See Lazarus dying, and the Angels carry him into Abraham's boſom. See this rich man dying, and they (that is, Devils) require his Soul. God receives one, and his Soul is in Heaven; Satan takes the other and drags down his Soul to Hell: He is comforted that received pains, and thou art tormented that waſt full of eaſe: This is the doom, and that he may undergo this, Death now gives the Summons, This Night thy Soul ſhall be required of thee.

The Text we may Chriſten Death's Arreſt; it is we that offend his Majeſty of Heaven, and his Precepts are given unto Death, to attach our Souls. See here a Preſident; a rich man taken on a ſudden, who muſt inſtantly appear before the Judge of Heaven: When? This night] What? Thy Soul] Why? It is required.] Of whom? Of thee.]

Or if this will not find the Offender, ſee yet a more narrow ſearch; every Word is like ſome dark Cloſet, therefore we will open the Windows that you may have full light. This Text is Death's Arreſt, which as it muſt be executed, ſo it admits of no other time but This.] This, what? This day, whilſt the Sun gives light to the world, and the light gives pleaſure to the eye? This were ſome comfort, no, but then ſuddenly whilſt all ſleep ſecurely; not this day, but this night,] And what, this night? Is it to attach the Body of ſome great Perſonage, whoſe looks might affrighten Officers had they come by day? No, let his Body rot in duſt, whilſt the Soul muſt anſwer his defaults, it is not thy Body, 'tis thy Soul.] And what of his Soul? Is this a Subject liable to Arreſt? Rather can they beg it at his hands, or will he yield it at their fair entreaties? No, it is neither begg'd nor intreated; but by virtue of God's Writ, it is required] And how required? Of his Sureties bound for his appearing? He hath many friends, and all, either have, or would have entred Bonds: No, he muſt go without Bail or Main-prize, it is not required of his ſureties, but himſelf; not of others, but of thee] is thy Soul this night required.

You here the Text's harmony; of each ſtring we will give a touch, and firſt note the Time, This night.

This]

NO other but This? Were it a Fortnight, a Seven-night; any but This] night, and his Griefs were leſſened; the News is more heartleſs, in that it comes more ſudden.

Obſerv.

You may obſerve, Then are the greateſt loſſes when they come on us by heaps, and without fear or ſuſpicions of any ſuch matter, here was a man ſwimming in his fulneſs, and a ſudden death robs him of all his Treaſures. To give you a full view, ſee his poſſeſſions, and how great was the loſs, becauſe of the ſuddenneſs: This] night.

Firſt, Thoſe Goods whereof he boaſted, are now confiſcate; not a Penny, not a Dram, not a Mite ſhall be left him, ſave only a token of remembrance (I mean his winding-ſheet) which he carries along with him to his Grave.

Ver. 16.

Secondly, His Goods and Grounds both were took from him at his Death: He that commanded ſo much of earth, muſt now have no more Earth to pleaſure him but a Grave: What a change was this? his Grounds were fertil, and they brought forth plenteouſly, but a blaſt of Death hath ſtruck both the Fruit and the Ground; and nothing is now left him but a barren Tomb.

Thirdly, His Lands and Houſes both went together. You may gueſs that great Demeſnes muſt have ſtately Halls; We read of his Building, and eſpecially of his Barns; when theſe were too little for his ſtore, he tells us, he will pull them down, and he will build greater. He never thinks of any little Room in the Bowels of the poor. But now what a ſtrange Lot happens on him? His Halls, Houſes, Barns, Buildings, all run round in a Dance of Death before his eyes.

Ex Damaſceno.

Fourthly, His Houſe and Friends both left him when Death came. The Parable is common: A man had three Friends, two whereof he loved moſt entirely, the third he made no account of; this man being ſent for to come before his King, he deſires his firſt Friend to go with him, but he could not, only he would give him ſomething for his Journey; He deſires his ſecond Friend to go with him, but he would not, only he would bring him a little piece of his way; when both theſe forſook him, he goes to the laſt, which before he eſteemed leaſt, and this Friend was the Party that went with him to the King, and anſwered for him in all his Cauſes. This is the Caſe of every man dying; the King our Judge, ſends Death his Serjeant to ſummon you to your Judgment. Come to your firſt Friends, (I mean your Riches) alas, they cannot go with you, but give you a Sheet, as neceſſary for your journey: Come to your ſecond Friends, (I mean your Acquaintance) alas, they will not go with you, but bring you to your Graves, and there leave you to your ſelves. Come you to your laſt Friends, which you now leaſt think of (I mean your Conſcience) and you ſhall find that is the trueſt Friend, that will go with you to the Judge, anſwer for you to the King, and either acquit you, or condemn you; bring you to the Gates of Heaven, or deliver you to the Goal of Hell. Have a care of your Conſciences, if you mean to ſpeed well at this day: How bleſſed a man had this Worldling been, if only a good Conſcience had accompanied him to the Judge of Heaven? But now when Death ſummons him, there is no Friend to ſolicite, no Advocate to plead, no man to ſpeak one word in his Soul's behalf; it is his bad Conſcience keeps him company, and though all others leave him, he can deviſe no means to ſhake this from him.

Fifthly, There is a Jewel irrevocable, of which this ſudden Death robs him, I mean his Time; and what a loſs is this? All his Goods, Grounds, Barns, Buildings, were they more worth than the world it ſelf, yet were they not able to reſtore one minute of his time: if this could be purchaſed, what a rate would he give for a little reſpite? Nothing is now ſo precious as a piece of Time, which before by Months and Years he laviſhly miſpent: They that paſs away Time with Mirth and Paſtime, ſhall one day ſee, to their grief, what a loſs they have; now we revel it out, dally it away, uſe all means and occaſions to make it ſhort enough; but when this golden ſhower is gone, and thoſe opportunities of Salvation loſt by negligence, then we may wiſh and wiſh again, O had we a little time, a little ſpace to repent! Imagine that this Worldling (whom now you muſt ſuppoſe to lie frying in hell-flames) were diſpenſed with for a little Time, to live here again on earth amongſt us; would but the Lord vouchſafe him one hour of a new trial, a minute-ſeaſon of a gracious Viſitation, O how highly would he prize, how eagerly would he apprehend, with what infinite watching, prayings, faſting, would he improve that ſhort time, that he might repent him? I know not how effectually this may work in our hearts, but I am fully perſwaded, if any damned Creature had but the happineſs to hear this Sermon, you ſhould ſee how his very heart would bleed within him; bleed, ſaid I? Nay, break and fall aſunder in his Breaſt like drops of Water. Oh with what inflamed attention would he hear and liſten? with what inſatiable graſping would he lay hold on Chriſt? with what ſtreaming Tears would he water his Cheeks, as if he would melt himſelf, like Niobe, into a Fountain? Bleſſed God! how fond are fooliſh men that never think of this till their Time be loſt? We that are alive, have only this benefit of opportunity, and if we neglect it, a day will come (we know not how ſoon) that we ſhall be paſt it, and cannot recover it, no, not one hour, if we would give a thouſand, ten thouſand worlds for it. What can I ſay? Reflect on your ſelves, you that have Souls to ſave: you have yet a little Time (and the Time preſent is that Time;) What then, but ſo uſe it now, as when you are gone, you need not with grief to wiſh you here again?

Sixthly, Yet more Loſs, and that is the loſs of Loſſes, the loſs of his Soul; his Riches, Lands, Houſes, Friends, Time, and all were nothing to his Soul. This is that Paragon, Peer, Roſe and Spouſe of our well-beloved Chriſt. How many a tear ſhed he to ſave it? What Groans, Cries, Prayers, Tears and Blood poured he before God, that he might redeem it from the Jaws of Satan? And is this loſt notwithſtanding all this labour, O ſweet Jeſu! what a loſs is this? Thou waſt born, livedſt, diedſt, and that a ſhameful Death (the Death of the Croſs) and all this ſuffering was to ſave poor Souls; yet ſee a Soul here loſt, and the Blood of God, though able, not effectual to redeem it. Whoſe heart would not melt into Blood that but knew this Miſery? Suppoſe you could ſee the Soul of this wretched Worldling, no ſooner had it left the Body, but immediately was it ſeized on by infernal Fiends, now lies it on a Bed of Fire, tortoured, tormented, ſcourged, and ſcorched in thoſe furious Flames; there his Conſcience ſtings him, his Sorrow gripes him, his Pain ſo handles him, that he cries and roars, Wo, wo, and alaſs for evermore. Who now for ſhadows of ſhort Pleaſures, would incur theſe Sorrows of eternal Pains? In this world we can weep and wail for a loſs of Trifles: an Houſe, a Field, an Oxe took from us is enough to cruciate us; but how ſhall we bewail the loſs of a Soul, which no ſooner plunged into that pit of horrour, but it ſhall feel a puniſhment without pity, Miſery without mercy, ſorrow without ſuccour, crying without comfort, torment without eaſe, a world of miſchief, without all meaſure, or redreſs? Such is the loſs of this man's Soul; whilſt he was cheering it with an home-bred ſolace; Soul, thou haſt much goods laid up for many years; God whiſpers in his ears, and tells him other News: What? of his Soul: How? it is required: When? this night: a fearful ſound, unlookt-for Meſſage, ſpeedy diſpatch, no more delays, nor days, only this night; for then muſt his Soul be taken from him.

You ſee all his Loſſes; and now in the ſeventh place, to contract them, there is one grief more than all, that all is loſt on a ſudden. Loſſes that come by ſucceſſion are better born with, but all on a ſudden is the worſt of all; yet ſuch is the miſery of man, when he goes, all goes with him, and he and all paſs away on a ſudden. Mat. 24. 38. As in the days of Noah, they ate, and drank, married, and gave in Marriage, aud knew nothing till the Flood came and took them all away: So is the coming of the Son of Man, Matthew 24. 38. How many have been thus took tripping in their wickedneſs? Belſhazzar in his Mirth, Herod in his Pride, the Philiſtims in their Banqueting, the men of Ziklag in their Feaſting, Job's Children in their Drunkenneſs, the Sodomites in their Filthineſs, the Steward in his Security, this Churle in his Plenty. Miſerable end, when men end in their Sin. Call to mind this (O my Soul!) and tremble: ſleep not in ſin, leſt the ſleep of Death ſurprize thee: Certamors incerta hora. The hour is certain in nothing but uncertainties; for ſure thou muſt die; yet thou knoweſt not on what day, nor in what place, nor how thou ſhalt be diſpoſed when Death muſt be entertained. Do you not ſee moſt die, whilſt they are moſt buſie how to live? He that once thought but to begin to take his eaſe, was fain that very night (whether he would or no), to make his end: Would you have thought this? Ps 37. 35, 36. He but now flouriſhed like a green Bay-tree, his thoughts full of Mirth, his Soul of Eaſe; but I paſſed by, and lo, he was gone: gone, whither? his Body to the Grave, his Soul to Hell, in the midſt of his Jollity. God threats Deſtruction; Devils Execution; Death Expedition; and thus like a Swan he ſings his Funerals. Ecclus. 11. 19. There is that ſaith, I have found reſt, and now I will eat continually of my Goods, and yet he knoweth not what time ſhall come upon him, and that he muſt leave thoſe things to others, and die. The higher our Babel-Tower of Joy is raiſed, the nearer it is to Ruine and Confuſion; Sodom in the heat of their ſins, had that ſhower of Fire poured on their heads: Nebuchadnezzar, in the height of his pride, became ſuddenly a Beaſt, that ruled before as a King: once for all, here was a man ſolacing, ſinging, warbling out pleaſant ſongs of eaſe and paſtime; but (O the miſery!) in the midſt of his Note here is a ſudden ſtop; he dreams of Longs and Larges, he hears of Briefs and Semi-briefs; no longer a day, but this very night, and then ſhall thy Soul be taken from thee.

See here the many Loſſes of one man, his Goods, his Grounds, his Houſes, his Friends, his Time, his Soul, and all on a ſudden, whilſt the word is ſpoken, this] night.

Uſe. 1. Our Neighbour's Fire cannot but give warning of approaching Flames. Ecclus. 38. 22. Remember his Judgment, thine alſo may be likewiſe: unto me yeſterday, and unto thee to day. Whoſe turn is next God only knows, who knows all. Is not Madneſs in the hearts of Men whilſt they live? In the leaſt ſuſpicion of loſing worldly Riches, all watch and break their ſleep; you ſhall ſee men work, and toil, and fear, and care, and all too little to prevent a loſs; but for all theſe loſſes which are linked together, Eccleſ. 9. 3. our Riches, Lands, Houſes, Friends, Time, and Soul, and all we have, there is few or none regards them. O that men are ſo careful in Trifles, and ſo negligent in matters of a great importance! It is ſtoried of Archimedes, that when Syracuſe was taken, he only was ſitting ſecure at home, and drawing Circles with his Compaſs in the duſt. Thus ſome we have, that when the eternal Salvation of their Souls is in queſtion, they are handling their duſt, nothing but Suits or Money-matters are their daily Objects: but (alaſs!) what will your Goods, or Grounds, or Houſes, or Friends avail you, when Death comes? Where did ever that man dwell that was comforted by any of theſe, in that laſt and ſoreſt Conflict? Give me a man amongſt you, that ſpends the ſpan of his tranſitory Life in graſping Gold, gathering Wealth, growing great, enriching his Poſterity, without any endeavour or care to treaſure up Grace againſt that fatal hour; and I dare certainly tell him whenſoever he comes to his Death-bed, he ſhall find nothing but an horrible confuſion, extreameſt horror and heavineſs of heart, nay, his Soul ſhall preſently down into the Kingdom of Darkneſs, and there lie and fry in everlaſting Fires. Nor ſpeak I only to the covetous (though my Text ſeems more directly to point at them;) but whoſoever thou art that goeſt on daily in a courſe of ſin, in the fear of God bethink thee of Mortality: Some of you may think I ſpeak not to you, and others, I ſpeak not to you; the truth is, I ſpeak to you all; but to you more eſpecially that to this day have ſinned with delight, but never as yet felt the ſmart for ſin upon your Souls or Conſciences: O beloved! this is it I call for, and muſt call for till you feel a Change, a thorow Change in you: Would but ſome of you at this preſent examine your Conſciences, and ſay, whether have I not been inordinate in Drunkenneſs, or Wantonneſs, or Covetouſneſs? Whether have I not ſworn an Oath, or told a Lye, or diſſembled in my Heart when I have ſpoken? O who can ſay amongſt you, I am clean, I am clean? And aſſure your ſelves, if you are guilty, you muſt either feel Heart-grief, or you can never be provided for Deaths diſmal Arreſt. If you were but ſenſible of ſin, if you felt but the weight and horrour of Gods wrath for ſin, I am verily perſuaded you would not take a quiet ſleep in your Beds for fear, and horrour, and heavineſs of Heart: What is it but madneſs of a Man to lye down in eaſe upon a Feather-bed, and to lodge in his Boſom that deadly Enemy Sin?

But (horrour of horrours!) what if this night whilſt you ſleep in your ſin, Death ſhould arreſt you on your Beds? This I tell you is no wonder; are ſudden Deaths common and ordinary among the Sons of Men? How many have we heard that went to bed well over night, for ought any Man could tell, and yet were found dead in the morning? I will not ſay carried away out of their Beds, and caſt into Hell Fire; whether it be ſo or no, the Lord our God knows: But howſoever it is with them, if we for our parts commit ſin, and repent not thereof, by crying and ſobbing, and ſorrowing for ſin; it may be this night, (and that is not long to) you may ſleep your laſt in this World, and then ſhall your Souls be hurried by Devils to that infernal Lake, whence there is no Redemption. O beloved! O wretch, whoſoever thou art! Canſt thou poſſibly ſleep in ſuch a caſe as this? Canſt thou go to bed with a Conſcience laden with ſin, Canſt thou take any ſleep (which is the Brother of Death) when thou lyeſt down in danger of eternal Death? Conſider, I pray, what ſpace, what diſtance, how far off is thy Soul from Death, from Hell, from Eternity? No more but a Breath, one Breath and no more; no more but a Step, one Step and no more: O beloved! were not this lamentable, that ſome one of us that now are ſtanding or ſitting, ſhould this night ſleep his laſt, and to morrow have his Body brought to be buried; yea, and before to morrow morning have his Soul (which the Lord forbid) caſt from his Bed of Feathers to a Bed of Fire? And yet alaſs! alaſs! if any of us this night die in his ſin, or in a State unregenerate, thus will it be with him whoſoever he be; to morrow may his Body lye cold under the Earth, and his Soul lodge in Hell with this miſerable rich Man.

Vſe. 2. But let me ſpeak to you, of whom I hope better things; it is good Counſel for you all to expect Death every day, and by this means, Death foreſeen cannot poſſibly be ſudden: No, it is he only dies ſuddenly that dies unpreparedly; Watch therefore, ſaith our Saviour, be ever in a readineſs. Finally, that this rich Man may be your warning, you that tender your Souls, learn that Leſſon of our Saviour; Lay not up for your ſelves treaſures upon earth, where moth and ruſt doth corrupt, and where thieves break thorow and ſteal: Mat. 6. 19. 20. but lay up for your ſelves treaſures in Heaven, where neither moth nor ruſt doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break thorow, nor ſteal, Mat. 6. 19. 20. You will ſay, What Treaſures are thoſe? I anſwer: Theſe Treaſures are thoſe ſtocks of Grace that will laſt for ever, it is that circumſpect walking, Epheſians 5. 15. Epheſ. 5. 15. that fervency of Spirit, Romans 12. 11. Rom. 12. 11. that zeal of good works, Titus 2. 14. Titus 2. 14. that purity, which John makes a property of every true-hearted Profeſſor, 1 John 3. 3. 1 Joh. 3. 3. In a word, it is the Work, the Life, the Power of that Prayer, that the reſt of our life hereafter may be pure and holy; theſe are heavenly hoards indeed. O that we would treaſure up ſuch Proviſion againſt the day of Calamity! If while it is called to day, we would make our peace with his heavenly Highneſs, by an humble continued Exerciſe of Repentance; if in this time of grace we would purchaſe Gods Favour, and thoſe rareſt Jewels of Faith and a good Conſcience; if now before we appear at the dreadful Tribunal, we would make God and his Angels our Friends in the Court of Heaven; O then how bleſſed would our Death be to us? Came it never ſo ſuddenly, ſtill ſhould Death find us ready, and if ready, no matter how ſuddenly, yea, though it were this] this night.

I have broke open the Writ, and you ſee when it muſt be ſerved, this] night; but in this Quando, there is both ſuddenneſs and ſadneſs; it is not this day, but this night.] Let this] end this days Diſcourſe, and the next day we will lay open the nights dark ſadneſs; it is a diſmal time, and God give us grace ſo to provide, that we may be ready with Oyl in our Lamps, and enter with our Saviour into his bleſſed Kingdom.

Night]

HE ſins all day, and dies at night; and why at night? This you know is frequent, and there is reaſon, moſt are begot, and born, and therefore die at night: But we muſt further than the Liſts of Nature; this night was more than ordinary, as being the fitteſt time to aggravate his grief; weigh but the Circumſtances.

Firſt, it was a night of Darkneſs, and this may encreaſe the horrour of his Judgment: Think but what a fear ſeized on the Egyptians, when no power of the fire muſt give them Wiſd. 17. 5 light, nor might the clear flames of the ſtars lighten the horrible night that fell upon them. The Husband-men, the Shepherds, the Workmen, all were bound with one Chain of Darkneſs, No man ſaw another, neither roſe up from Exod. 19. 23. the place where he was for three days, Exodus 10. 23. Was not this fearful Darkneſs? you may gueſs it by the effects; they were troubled, and terrified, and ſwooned, as though their own Souls ſhould betray them. Whether it were an hiſſing Wiſd. 7. 18 19. wind, or a ſweet noiſe of Birds among the ſpreading Branches, or a pleaſing fall of Waters running violently, or a terrible ſound of ſtones, or the running of ſkipping Beaſts, or the noiſe of cruel Beaſts, or the Eccho that anſwereth again in the hollow Mountains, theſe fearful things made them to ſwoon for fear:

And if thus the Egyptians, how was it with this Worldling? a Darkneſs ſeized on him, that engendred a thouſand times more intolerable Torments. This was the Image of that Darkneſs which ſhould afterwards receive him, and yet was he unto himſelf more grievous than the Darkneſs. It was not an outward, but an utter darkneſs, not only to be not ſeen, but to be felt and feared, Imagine then what Viſions, what Sounds and Sights, what ſudden Fires appeared unto him? Unhappy Worldling, look round about thee; although it be dark, here is ſomething to be ſeen: above is the angry Judge, beneath is the burning Lake, before his gloomy Darkneſs, behind is infallible Death, on thy right and left hand a Legion of evil Angels, expecting every moment to receive the prey. Here is a ſight indeed, able to break the very heart-ſtrings of each Seer. If ſome have loſt their Wits by means of ſome dreadful ſight; yea, if the very ſuſpicion of Devils have cauſed many men to tremble, and the hairs of their head to ſtand ſtaring upright, what then was the fear and terror of this man, when ſo many dreadful, horrible, helliſh Monſters ſtood round about him, now ready to receive him? O ye ſons of men, ſtand in awe, and ſin not, commune with your own hearts, and in your Chambers, and be ſtill. Will not this fear you from your ſins? Suppoſe then you lay on your Beds of Death, were the Judge in his Throne, your Souls at the Bar, the Accuſer at your Elbows, and Hell ready open to ſhut her mouth upon you; O then, how would you curſe your ſelves, and bewail your ſins? What horrible Viſions would appear to you in the dark? horrible indeed! Inſomuch (ſaith * one) that were there no other puniſhment than the appearing of Devils, you would rather burn to aſhes than endure their ſight. Good God! that any Chriſtian ſhould live in this danger, and yet never heed it till he ſees its Terror: How many have gone thus fearfully out of this miſerable World? I know not what you have ſeen, but there is very few which have not heard of many, too many, in this caſe: What were Judas's thoughts, when he ſtrangled himſelf, that his Bowels guſhed out again? What were Cain's Viſions, when he ran like a vagabond roaring and crying, Whoſoever findeth me ſhall ſlay me? What are all their Affrights, that cry when they are dying, they ſee Spirits and Devils flying about them, coming for them, roaring againſt them, as if an Hell entred into them, before themſelves could enter it? I dare inſtance in no other but this wretched Miſer: What a Night was that to him, when on a ſudden a darkneſs ſeized on him, that never after left him? Thus many go to bed, that never riſe again till they be awakened by the fearful ſound of the laſt Trumpet? And was not this a Terror? Whoſe heart doth not quake? Whoſe fleſh doth not tremble? Whoſe ſenſes are not aſtoniſhed whilſt we do but think on it? And then what were the ſufferings of himſelf in his perſon? He might cry and roar, and wail, and weep, yet there is none to help him; his heart-ſtrings break, the bleſſed Angels leave him, Devils ſtill expect him, and now the Judge hath pronounced his Sentence, This night, in the dark, they muſt ſeize upon him.

Gen. 4. 14.

Yet this was not all the horror; it was a Night both of darkneſs and drowſineſs, or ſecurity in ſin. He that reads the life of this man, may well wonder at the fearful end of ſo fair beginnings: Walk into his Fields, and there his Cattel proſper; come nearer to his Houſe, and there his Barns ſwell with Corn; enter into his Gates, and there every Table ſtands richly furniſhed; ſtep yet into his Chambers, and you may imagine Down-beds curtain'd with golden Hangings; nay, yet come nearer, we will draw the Curtains, and you ſhall view the Perſon; he had toiled all day, and now ſee how ſecurely he takes his reſt; this night, he dreams Golden Dreams of Eaſe, of Mirth, of Paſtime (as all our worldly Pleaſures are but waking Dreams) but ſtay a while and ſee the iſſue; juſt like a man, who ſtarting out of ſleep, ſees his Houſe on fire, his Goods ranſacked, his Family murthered, himſelf near loſt, and not one to pity him, when the very thruſting in of an Arm might deliver him; this, and no other was the Caſe of this dying Miſer; in that Night while his Senſes were moſt drowſie, moſt ſecure, Death comes in the dark, and arreſts him on his Bed; Awake, rich Cormorant! what Charms have lulled thee thus aſleep? Canſt thou ſlumber whilſt Death breaks down this Houſe thy Body, to rob thee of that Jewel thy Soul? What a deep, dull, drowſie, dead Sleep is this? O fool, this night is thy Soul aſſaulted; ſee Death approaching, Devils hovering, God's Juſtice threatning; canſt thou yet ſleep? and are thine eyes yet heavy? Behold the hour is at hand, and thy Soul muſt be delivered into the hands of thine enemies: Heavy Eyes! he ſleeps ſtill, his Care all day, had caſt him into ſo dead a ſleep this night, that nothing can warn him until Death awake him. That Thief is moſt dangerous that comes at night; ſuch a Thief is Death, a Thief that ſteals men; which then is moſt buſie whilſt we are moſt drowſie, moſt ſecure in ſin: Heark the Sluggard, that lulls himſelf in his ſins, Yet a little more ſleep, a little more ſlumber; is not his deſtruction ſudden, and poverty coming on him like an armed Man? Prov. 6. 11. Watch (ſaith our Saviour) for you know not when the Maſter of the Houſe cometh, at even, or at midnight, at the Cock's Crow, or in the morning, leſt coming ſuddenly he ſhould find you ſleeping, Mark. 13. 35. Was not this the wretchedneſs of the fooliſh Virgins? how ſweetly could they Slumber? how ſoundly could they Sleep until mid-night? they never awake, nor ſo much as dream to buy Oyl for their Lamps; imagine then how fearful were thoſe Summons to theſe Souls: Behold, the Bridegroom, go ye out to meet him. Sudden Fears of all others are moſt dangerous. Was it not a fearful waking to this rich man, when no ſooner that he opened his eyes, but he ſaw Deaths Uglineſs afore his Face? What a ſight was this? at his doors enters the King of fear, accompanied with all his abhorred Horrours, and ſtinging Dread: on his Curtains he may read his Sins, arrayed and armed in their griſlieſt Forms, and with their fieryeſt Stings; about his Bed are the powers of Darkneſs, now preſenting to his View his damnable State, his deplorable Miſery: What can he do that is thus beſet with ſuch a world of woful Work, and helliſh Rage?

his Tongue faulters, his Breath ſhortens, his Throat rattles, he would not watch, and now cannot reſiſt; the Cry is made, the Midnight come, God ſounds Deſtruction, and thus runs the Proclamation, This night ſo drowſie, thy Soul muſt be taken from thee.

3. And yet more Horrour; it was a night of Drowſineſs and Sadneſs. How is he but ſad when he ſees the night coming, and his laſt day decaying? Read but the copy of this rich mans Will, and ſee how he deals all he hath about him; he bequeaths his Garments to the Moth, his Gold to Ruſt, his Body to the Grave, his Soul to Hell, his Goods and Lands he knows not to whom; Whoſe ſhall theſe things be? Here is the man that made ſuch mirth all day, and now is he forced to leave all he hath this night. It is the fruit of merry Lives, to give ſad Farewells. You that ſport your ſelves, and ſpoil others, that rob God in his Members, and treaſure up your own Damnations; will not Death make ſorry hearts for your merry nights? a night will come as ſad as Sadneſs in her ſterneſt Looks, and then what a Lot will befall you? O that men are ſuch cruel Caitiffs to their own Souls! Is this a life (think ye) fit for the Servants of our God, Revelling, Swearing, Drinking, Railing? what other did this Miſer? he would Eat, and Drink, and Sing, and then came fear as Deſolation, and his Deſtruction on a ſudden as a Whirl-wind: If this be our life, how ſhould we eſcape his Death? Alas, for the ſilly mirth that now we pleaſure in! you may be ſure a night will come that muſt pay for all, and then ſhall your Pleaſures vaniſh, your Griefs begin, and your numberleſs Sins (like ſo many envenomed Stings) run into your damned Souls, and pierce them through with everlaſting Sorrow: away with this Fond, Fooliſh, Sottiſh Vanity; Prov. 14. 13. The end of mirth is Heavineſs, (ſaith Solomon) Prov. 14. 13. What will the Sons and Daughters of Pleaſure do then? all thoſe ſweet Delights ſhall be as Scourges and Scorpions for your naked Souls. Then (though too late) will you lamentably cry Wiſ. 5. 8, 9. out, What hath Pride profited us? or what profit hath the pomp of Riches brought us? all thoſe things are paſſed away as a Shadow, or as a Poſt that paſſeth by: Look on this man as he lyes on his Bed of Death, Eccleſ. 12. 4. here is neither Smile nor Dimple, All the Daughters of Muſick are brought low. His Voice is hoarſe, his Lips pale, his Cheeks wan, his Noſtrils run out, his Eyes ſink into his Head, and all the Parts and Members of his Body now loſe their Office to aſſiſt him: Is this the merry man that made Eſa. 3, 24. ſuch Paſtime? Oh what a change is this? In ſtead of ſweet Smell, there is a Stench; inſtead of a Girdle, a Rent; inſtead of well-ſet Hair, Baldneſs, inſtead of Beauty, Burning; in ſtead of Mirth, Mourning and Lamentation, Weeping, and Wailing and Gnaſhing of Teeth. Muſt not ſadneſs ſeize on that Soul which incurs this Doom? Here is a Malefactor ſtands at Bar, indicted by the name of Fool, charged with the guilt of Treaſon, condemned by the Judge of Heaven, and this night (the ſaddeſt that ever he ſaw) is that fearful execution, that his Soul is taken.

1. And yet more Horrour: It was a night of Sin, and this doth encreaſe the Sorrow; Pſal. 116. 13. How dear in the Sight of the Lord, is the Death of his Saints? and we may ſay on the contrary, How abominable in the ſight of the Lord is the Death of the Wicked? Was not this a Grief to be took thus tripping in his Wickedneſs? even now whilſt he was buſily plotting his Eaſe and Paſtime, Death ſtands at his Door, and over-hears all his Plots and Projects. It was a Death to his Soul to be took in his Sin: hear how he Roars and Cries, O that I had lived ſo virtuouſly as I ſhould; had I embraced the often Inſpirations of Gods bleſſed Spirit; had I followed his Laws, obeyed his Commands, attended to his Will, how ſweet and pleaſant would they now be unto me? Wo and alas that I had not fore-ſeen this Day! what have I done, but for a little Pleaſure a fleeting Vanity, loſt a Kingdom, purchaſed Damnation? O Beloved! what think ye of your ſelves, whilſt you hear this Voice? You ſit here as Senſeleſs of this Judgment, as the Seats, the Pillars, the Walls, the Duſt; nay, as the dead Bodies themſelves on which you tread: but ſuppoſe (and it were a bleſſed Meditation) you that are ſo freſh and frolick at this day, that ſpend it Merrily, uſe it Profanely, Swearing, Revelling, Singing, Danceing; What if this night, while you are in your Sin, the hand of Death ſhould Arreſt you? Could I ſpeak with you on your Death-Beds, I am ſure I ſhould find you in another Caſe: how? but Sorrowing; Grieving, Roaring, that your time were loſt; and theſe words not heeded, whiles the time well ſerved: how would you tear your Hair, gnaſh your Teeth, bite your Nails, ſeek all means poſſibly to annihilate your ſelves; and can nothing warn you before Death ſeize on you? take heed, if you go on in Sin, the next Step is Damnation. It was the Apoſtles Advice, Now it is high time to wake out of Sleep, for Rom. 13: 11. now is our Salvation nearer than when we believed, Rom. 13. 11. If this wretched man had obſerved the preſent time, how happy had he been this hour of his Departure? But as Officers take Malefactors drinking or drabbing, ſo is the neareſt Danger when deepeſt in the mire of Pleaſure. Look at all thoſe that are gone before us, and which of them thought their end ſo near, while they lived ſo merry? I muſt needs tell you, there is a Fire, a Worm, a Sting, a Darkneſs, an Hell provided for all wicked Wretches, and there moſt certainly muſt you be this night, if you die this day in your natural ſtate of Sin. Lord! that men ſhould be ſo ſtrangely bewitched by the Prince of the Air, as for the momentany enjoyment of ſome glorious Miſeries, bitter-ſweet Pleaſures, heart-vexing Riches, deſperately and willfully to abandon God, and to caſt themſelves head-long into the jaws of Satan. Such a prodigious Madneſs ſeized on this Worldling, he Sings, he Revels, he Dallies, then dies. Thus greateſt Evils ariſe out of greateſt Joys; as the ears with vehement Sounds, and the eyes with brighter Objects; ſo many by Felicity have loſt both their Senſe and Being. Gallus dies in the act of Pleaſure, Iſh- Plin. l. 7. c. 23. boſheth dies in the midſt of Sleep, the Iſraelites 2 Sam. 4. 7. die in their day of Luſt, this Worldling dies Numb. 11. 33. in that night of Sin, even then on a ſudden his Soul is taken.

5. And yet more Horror, it was a night of Death, and this was the worſt of all, the Darkneſs, Drowſineſs, Sadneſs, Sin, all were Ariſtot. lib. 3. Mor. cap. 6. nothing to this, all nothing in themſelves, if Death had not followed: this is that moſt terrible of all Terribles; all Fears, Griefs, Suſpicions, Pains as ſo many ſmall Brooks, are ſwallowed up, and drowned in this Ocean of miſery. Now rich Man! What ſayeſt thou to thy Barns, Buildings, Riches, Lands? Do theſe pleaſure thee in this thy extreme and dying Agony? Thou lieſt this night on thy departing Bed, burthened with the heavy Load of thy former Treſpaſſes, Pangs come ſore and ſharp upon thee, thy Breſt pants, thy Pulſe beats ſhort, thy Breath it ſelf ſmells of the Earth and Rottenneſs: Whither wilt thou go for a little Eaſe or Succour? What help canſt thou have in thy heaps of Gold, or hoard of Wealth? Should we bring them to Diſcip. de temp. ſerm. 118. ex Num. in tract. de ſeptuplici timore. thy Bed, (as we read of one dying, Commanded that his golden Veſſels and ſilver Plate ſhould be ſet before him, which looking on, he promiſed to his Soul, it ſhould have them all, on condition of its ſtay with him: But the Remedy being ſilly, at laſt moſt deſperately he commends it to the Devil, ſeeing it would not ſtay in his Body, and ſo gave up the Ghoſt) Alas, theſe trifling Treaſures can no more deliver thee from the Arreſt of that inexorable Serjeant, then can an handful of Duſt. Wretched men! What ſhall be your Thoughts when you come to this miſerable Caſe? full ſad and heavy Thoughts (Lord thou knoweſt:) You may lye upon your Beds, like wild Bulls in a Net, full of the Fury of the Lord: Deut. 28. 67. In the morning thou ſhalt ſay, Would God it were evening; and at even thou ſhalt ſay, Would God it were morning: for the fear of thine Heart wherewith thou ſhalt fear, and for the ſight of thine eyes which thou ſhalt ſee, Deut. 28. 67. Here is the Terrour of that night of Death, when you may wiſh with all your Hearts, that you had never been born; if the Lord once let looſe the Cords of your Conſcience, what account will you make of Crowns, of Poſſeſſions? all theſe will be ſo far from healing the Wound, that they will turn rather into fiery Scorpions, for your further Torments. Now, now, now is the diſmal time of Death, what will you do? Whither will you go? To whom will you pray? The Angels are offended, and they will not guard you; God is diſhonoured, and he will not hear you; only the Devil had your Service, and only Hell muſt be your Wages. Conſider this, ye that forget God, leſt ye be Pſ. 50.22. torn in pieces, and there be none to deliver you. It is cruel for your Souls thus to ſuffer, to be torn, and torn in pieces, and ſo torn in pieces, that none may deliver you. Better this Worldling had been a Worm, a Toad, an Adder, any venomous Creature, than ſo to live, and thus to have died; yet hither it is come, his Sickneſs is Remedileſs, his Riches Comfortleſs, his Torments Eaſeleſs, ſtill he muſt Suffer, and there is none to Deliver, he is torn, torn to pieces, and none may deliver him. What need you more, now we are come to this Period? his Glaſs is run, his Sun is ſet, his Day is finiſhed, and now this night, the very night of Death, his Soul is required, and is received of him.

Lo here, the Diſmal, Dreadful, Terrible time of this mans Departure, it was in the night, a night of Darkneſs, Drowſineſs, Sadneſs, Sin, Death and Deſtruction.

1. Uſe. Who will not provide each day againſt this fearful night? howſoever we paſs away our time in Sin, we muſt of neceſſity, ere long, lye gaſping for Breath upon our dying Beds, there ſhall we grapple hand to hand with the utmoſt powers of Death and Darkneſs: What ſhould we do then, but Sow our Seed while the Seed time laſteth? We have yet a day, and how ſhort this day is, God only knows: be ſure the night cometh wherein none can work, John 9. 4. and then what a fearful time will come upon us? I know there be ſome that dream of doing good in another World, or at leaſt will defer it longer, till ſometime hereafter; ſuch vain hopes of future Performances have undone many a Soul: I muſt work the work of him that John 9. 4. ſent me, while it is day, ſaith our Saviour. The way-faring man travels not in Darkneſs, but while the day ſhines on him, then he knows he is under the protection of the Laws, the Light of the Sun, the bleſſing of Heaven; John 11,8. Are there not twelve hours in the Day? If any man walk in the day, he ſtumbleth not, becauſe he ſeeth the light of this World; but if a man walk in the night, he ſtumbleth, becauſe there is no light in him.] Do good then, and lay hold of every Seaſon which may get you to Heaven; Let the whole courſe of your Life be a conſcionable Preparative againſt Death. Suppoſe every day your laſt, as if at night you ſhould be called to account before that high and great Tribunal: in a word, whatſoever you think, or ſpeak, or do, ſay thus with your ſelf, Would I do this, and this, If I knew this night to be my laſt? Who is it would Sin, if he thought at that inſtant he muſt go to Judgment.

2. Uſe. But if we neglect the day, be ſure the night will come to our Condemnation; where be thoſe Wonders that ſo dazled our Eyes, while the day ſhone on them? Where is Abſaloms Beauty, Jezabels Paint, Sauls Perſonage. nay, where is this wretched Worldling? he had a day to work out his own Salvation, and that being loſt, at laſt came night, before he had gone two ſteps toward Heaven. O beloved! Walk while ye have Light, that Joh.12,35. ye may be Children of the Light. You may be ſure the meaneſt Soul that hath the work of Grace upon it, death is to him no night, but the Day-break of eternal Brightneſs. This may make us in love with the ſincerity of Religion; this may make us to labour, and never ceaſe labouring till we have gotten out of the eſtate of Nature, into the ſtate of Grace. O that I could ſay of every one of you, as Paul of the Epheſians, Ye were once Darkneſs, but now are ye Light in the Lord. Epheſ.5.8. Ye were once Carnal, but now are ye Spiritual: Ye were once Unregenerate, but now are ye a Firſt-fruits dedicated to God. If it were thus with you, then, (to your comfort) upon your dying Beds you ſhould meet with a glorious Troop of bleſſed Angels, you ſhould feel the glorious Preſence of the ſweeteſt Comforter, you ſhould ſee the glorious Light of Gods ſhining Countenance, you ſhould have a night (if it were night) turn'd all into a mid-day, Now the Lord give you ſuch a day, whenſoever you die, through Chriſt our Lord.

You have heard the time of Deaths Arreſt,] This night.] Now for the party we'll make a privy Search, and if we ſtir one word, we ſhall find him at next Door, it is thy Soul.]

Thy Soul.]

THe party under arreſt is the rich mans Soul,] No Warranty could prevail, no Riches ſatisfie, no Strength reſcue; Death now demands it, and there's none can redeem it, therefore This night they will have his Soul.]

Firſt, if you ask what is the Soul? 'tis a Subſtance.] How fond were the Opinions of ſome Philoſophers? one would have it to be nothing [vox & præterea nihil] and how many of us are of this Opinion? Do not we live as if we had no Souls at all? The Epicure is for his Belly, the ambitious for his Body, but who is he that provides for his Soul? Sure we imagine it to be nothing valuable, or how ſhould our Eſtimation of it be ſo groſs and vile, to prefer the Body, to neglect the Soul? There were other Philoſophers went a pace yet further, and they gave it a Being, but what? No better than an Accident, that might live or die without Death of the Subject; this they call κρᾶσις humorum, a certain temper compoſed of the Elements, or nothing but the Harmony of thoſe humours in the Body. Is this the Soul? then of all Creatures are Men (ſay we,) of all men are we (ſaith the Apoſtle) moſt miſerable, moſt unhappy. Look at Beaſts, and in reſpect, we and they are even as one condition, Eccleſ. 3. 19., Look at Trees, and in their Corruption you may ſee the like Conſtitution both of us and them. Look at Stones, and by their diſſolution, we may argue the Temper of Compoſition in them alſo; if then our Soul were nothing but this κρᾶσις, not only Men, but Beaſts, and Plants, and Stones, and Metals have a Soul: Far be this from your Thoughts, whoſe Souls are prized to be of more worth than a World, there being nothing in the World that may give a recompence for your Souls, Matt. 16. 26. Others have gone a little further, and they ſuppoſe it to be a Subſtance: but how? only Bodily, and not Spiritual; ſuch groſs Conceits have many Idolaters of the Deity, as if this our Image were of Gods own Subſtance, and this Subſtance nothing elſe but a bodily Being. A Spirit (ſaith our Saviour) hath not Fleſh and Bones, as you ſee me have. It is the Body is the Fleſh, but the Soul is the Spirit; the Body you may ſee and handle, but the Soul is not ſeen, not handled: As the Diſciples then did Err in ſuppoſing a Spirit when they ſaw his Body; no leſs is their Errour in ſuppoſing a Body where is only a Spirit. The worſt Soul is better than the beſt of Bodies. O precious Soul (ſaith Bernard,) eſpouſed to thy God, endowed with his Spirit, redeemed by his Son, What art thou to the Fleſh, whoſe being is from Heaven? Others again have paſſed this Opinion, and they call it a Form: But what? only material, not ſubſtantial, and ſuch as are the Souls of Beaſts that die with their Bodies, as being deduced from the matter of ſome Bodies pre-exiſtent. It is not ſo with the Souls of Men, which though for a while they are knit and united to this houſe of Clay, yet may they be ſeparated from it, and ſubſiſt without it; this is that goodneſs of God, that as our Souls are intellectual, ſo their being is perpetual, not but that our Souls might die (ſeeing every thing that is of nothing may return into the ſame nothing whence it ſprung) but that God ſo ſuſtains them by his glorious Goodneſs, that as he gave the firſt being, ſo he would continue that he gave, What have we, that we have not received? Or to ſpeak of the Soul, What are we that God, and God only hath not beſtowed upon us? our Parents begot our Bodies, God only gave our Souls: our Bodies are buried again in the Womb of our common Mother, but our Souls return to God, as to their chiefeſt Good. So immaterial is the Soul, that neither Will nor Underſtanding depends on the dying Organ. What then is the Soul? a Nothing? an Accident? a Body? a Form? only material? No, but on the contrary, an Ens, a Subſtance, a Spirit, a Form, a Subſtantial being of it ſelf ſubſiſting.

* Fallacia diviſionis.

Ariſt. de anima l. 2. c. 1.

But we'll aſcend a little higher, it is a Subſtance created.] Not traduced, as ſome would have it.) I muſt confeſs the opinion was not a little ſtrong, that as our Bodies, ſo our Souls were both propagated from our Parents. Tertullian, and the Fathers of the Weſt (as Jerome witneſſeth) were moſt on that ſide: the reaſon of this opinion was becauſe of Original Sin, which defiling the Soul, as well as the Body of each man ſprung from Adam, they could ſee no means how both were corrupted, except withal the Soul, were propagated. But are not our Souls as the Angels? and therefore if our Souls, then may the Angels beget one another; nay, if this were true, what Soul were generated, but another were corrupted: for the rule is infallible, There can be no generation without a Tranſmutation, and ſo would every Soul be ſubject to corruption. Concerning that objection of Original Sin, (If the Soul were not traduced from the Loins of Adam, how then ſhould that Sin be imputed to our Souls? I muſt confeſs, the queſtion is intricate; we ſhould rather believe it, than enquire of it; and we may better enquire of it, than underſtand it; and yet more eaſily underſtand it; than expreſs it. But ſo well as we can, we ſhall untie the Knot. Firſt then, we ſay 'tis * a fallacy to divide Soul and Body, for not the Soul without the Body, nor the Body without the Soul, but the whole man ſin'd in Adam, as the whole man is begot of Adam; ſo ſoon therefore as the Soul is conjoyn'd to the Body, and of the Soul and Body is conſtituted the whole man, that man being now made a Member of Adam, is ſaid to ſin with him, and to derive that Sin from him. But for a further Satisfaction, although the Soul depend on God according to its ſubſtance, yet it is created in that Body which is produced of the Parents: thus in ſome ſort we may ſay that the Soul is begotten, (Non quoad eſſentiam, ſed quoad εἶναι) God only gives the Eſſence, but to exiſt comes from the Parents. What is the Soul but a Form of the Body, and of what Body, but of that which is organical, as being apt for the Soul? This aptneſs then whereby it is prepared for the Form, being received from the Parents, we may ſay of the Soul, that thus it is generated, as not beginning to ſubſiſt before the Body is prepared. This is true in ſome ſort, though not properly. Conſider then the excellency of mans Soul, which is not born, but created,] and howſoever now it is beſpotted with Sin, yet was it then pure and undefiled, as the untouched Virgin: how is it but pure, which the hands of God have made? it was the Devil that cauſed Sin, but all that God made was good, Gen. 1. 31. Sedibus æthereis ſpiritus ille venit. and very good, Gen. 1. 31. and ſuch a Soul hath every man. It is created by God, infuſed by his Spirit, of nothing made ſomething, of what ſomething, but an excellent Work, befitting ſuch an excellent Workman?

And yet there be more Stairs to aſcend: it is thirdly inviſible.] Hath any man ſeen God? Or hath any man ſeen Gods Image (which is the Soul) and lived? Subſtances that are more pure are leſs viſible. We ſee but darkly through a Glaſs, nay, the beſt eye upon Earth looks but through a Lattice, a Window, an obſcuring Impediment; mortal eyes cannot behold immortal things; how then ſhould this corruptible ſight, ſee a Spiritual Soul? The object is too clear for our weak eyes, our eyes are but earthly, the Soul of an heavenly Nature. O divine Being! not only heavenly, but Heaven it ſelf: as God and man met both in Chriſt, ſo Heaven and Earth met both in man: would you ſee this Earth? That is the Body, Out of it waſt thou taken, and into it muſt Gen. 4. 19. thou return, Gen. 4. 19. Would you ſee this Heaven? That is the Soul, the God of Heaven gave it, and to the God of Heaven returns Eccleſ. 12. 7. it, Eccleſ. 12. 7. The Body is but a lump, but the Soul is that breath of life: of earth came the Body, of God was the Soul: thus Earth and Heaven met in the Creation, and Gen. 2. 7. Eſt cœlum ſancta anima, habent ſolem intellectum, lunam fidem, aſtra virtutes. Bern. ſuper Cant. the man was made a living Soul, Gen. 2. 7. The ſanctified Soul is an Heaven upon Earth, where the Sun is underſtanding, the Moon is faith, and the Stars gracious Affections: what Heaven is in that Body, which lives and moves by ſuch a Soul, yet ſo wonderful is Gods mercy to mankind, that as reaſon doth poſſeſs the Soul, ſo the Soul muſt poſſeſs this Body. Here is that union of things viſible, and inviſible: as the light is Spiritual, Incorruptible, Indiviſible, and ſo united to the Air, that of theſe two is made one, without confuſion of either; in like manner is the Soul united to this Body, one together, diſtinguiſhed aſunder: only here's the difference, the light is moſt viſible, the Soul is inviſible, ſhe is the breath of God, the beauty of Man, the wonder of Angels, the envy of Devils, that immortal Splendor which never eye hath ſeen, never eye muſt ſee.

And yet we muſt up another ſtep, it is fourthly Incorporeal,] as not ſeen with a mortal eye, ſo neither clogg'd with a bodily ſhape; I ſay not but the Soul hath a Body for his Organ, to which it is ſo knit and tyed, that they cannot be ſevered without much Sorrow or Strugling; yet is it not a Body, but a Spirit dwelling in it: the Body is an houſe, and the Soul the Inhabitant: every one knows the Houſe is not the Inhabitant, and yet (O wonder!) there is no room in the Houſe, where the Inhabitant lives not; would you pleaſe to ſee the Rooms? The Eye is her Window, The Head is her Tower, the Heart is her Cloſet, the Mouth is her Hall, the Lungs her Preſence-chamber, the Senſes her Cinqueports, the common Senſe her Cuſtom-houſe, the Phantaſie her Mint, the Memory her Treaſury, the Lips are her two leav'd Doors, that ſhut and open, and all theſe, and all the reſt, (as the motions in a Watch,) are acted and moved by this Spring, the Soul. See here a compoſition without confuſion, the Soul is in the Body, yet it is not bodily? as in the greateſt World the Earth is more ſolid, the Water leſs, the Air yet leſſer, the Fire leaſt of all: ſo in this little world of Man, the meaner parts are of groſſer ſubſtance, and the Soul by how much more excellent, by ſo much more Spiritual; and wholly withdrawn from all bodily being.

5. And yet a little higher, it is fifthly Immortal] It was the Errour of many Fathers, That Bodies and Souls muſt both die till Dooms-day, Scalig. notæ in Nov. Teſt. and then the Bodies being raiſed, the Souls muſt be revived. Were that true, why then cryes Stephen, Lord Jeſu, receive my Spirit? Or why Acts 7. 59. ſhould Paul be diſſolved, that he might be with Phil. 1. 23. Chriſt? Bleſſed men are but men, and therefore no wonder if ſubject to ſome Errour. Others more abſolutely deny the Souls immortality, We are born (ſay they) at all Adventures, and we ſhall be hereafter, as though we had never been; (Why ſo?) for the breath is a Wiſ. 2. 2, 3. ſmoak in our Noſtrils, and the words as a ſpark raiſed out of our Hearts, which being extinguiſhed, the Body is turned into Aſhes, and the Spirit vaniſheth as ſoft Air. What, is the Soul a Smoke? And the Spirit no better than the ſoft vaniſhing Air? Wretched men! Have you not read Mat. 22. 32 what is ſpoken of God, ſaying, I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Iſaac, and the God of Jacob? Now God (ſaith Chriſt) is not the God of the dead, but of the living. Abraham, Iſaac, Jacob, they are not dead then in (the better part) their Souls, but paſſed indeed from the valley of Death, unto the land of the Living. Whoſoever liveth and believeth in me (ſaith our Saviour) ſhall never die, John 11. John 11. 26. 26. Not die] againſt ſome, never die] againſt others: what can we more? only live and believe in him that redeemed us, and be ſure his Promiſes ſhall never fail us; our Souls muſt live, live for ever. Sweet Soul, bleſſed with the Felicity of eternal life! here's a Joy unſpeakable, that this Soul now clogged with Cares, Vexations, Griefs, Paſſions, ſhall one day enjoy thoſe Joys immortal, not for a day, or two (though this were more than we can imagine) but through all Eternity, Nullus erit defectus, nullus terminus. There ſhall be no defect, nor end: after millions of Ages the Soul muſt ſtill live in her Happineſs, it is not of a periſhing, but an everlaſting Subſtance.

6. And yet the perfection of the Soul goes higher, it is moſt like to God.] So far it tranſcends all earthly Happineſs: I cannot ſay, but in ſome ſort all Creatures have this likeneſs; every effect hath at leaſt ſome ſimilitude with its cauſe, but with a difference; ſome only have a Being, as Stones; others Being and life, as Plants; but men above all hath a Being, Life and Reaſon, and therefore of all other the moſt like unto his Creator.

7. Can we any more? Yes, one ſtep higher, and we are at the top of Jacobs Ladder: The Soul is not only like God, but the Image of God, I cannot deny, but there is ſome appearance of it in the outward Man, and therefore the Body in ſome meaſure partakes of this Image of the Deity, it was man, and whole man that was corrupted by Sin, and (by the law of Contraries) it was man, and whole man, that was beautified with this Image. Pleaſe you to look at the Body, is it not a little World, wherein every thing that God made was good? as therefore all Goodneſs comes from him, ſo was he the Pattern of all Goodneſs; that being in him perfectly, which only is in us partly. This is that Idea, whereby God is ſaid to be the exemplar of the World: Man then in his Body being as the Worlds Map, what is it but that Image, in which the Builder of the World is manifeſt? but if you look at the parts of his Body, how often are they Attributed (though in a Metaphor, yet in reſemblance) to his Maker? Our Eyes are the Image of his Wiſdom, our hands are the Image of his Power, our Heart is the Image of his Knowledge, and our Tongue the lively Image of his revealed Will: God therefore, before he made the Gen. 1.26. Body, ſaid, Let us make man in our own Image: and what was the meaning, but that Soul and Body ſhould both bear the Image of his Majeſty? Be aſtoniſhed then, ye men of the Earth! If this Duſt, this Clay, this Body of ours be ſo glorious, what think ye of the Soul, whoſe Subſtance, Faculties, Qualities, Dignities, every way repreſent Gods omnipotent Eſſence; Look on this Glaſs, and firſt for Subſtance, is the Soul Inviſible? John 1.18. Why, ſo is God: No man hath ſeen him at any time, John 1. 18. Is the Soul Incorporeal? Acts 17.29. Why, ſo is God: We ought not to think him like unto Gold, or Silver, or Stone, graven with Art, Acts 17. 29. Is the Soul 1 Tim. 6.16 Immortal? Why, ſo is God: He is the King of Kings and Lord of Lords, who only hath Immortality, 1 Timothy 6. 16. Is the Soul Spiritual? John 4.24. Why, ſo is God: God is a Spirit, and they that worſhip him, muſt worſhip him in Spirit, John 4. 24. Is the Soul one Eſſence? Why, Eph. 4. 6. ſo is God: There is one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all, Epheſians 4. 6. See here the lively Image of God in every Soul of man. But there is another Character imprinted in every Faculty, ſo that not only the Subſtance, but the powers of the Soul bear this Image in them: As there is one God and three Perſons, ſo there is one Soul and three Faculties: the Father, Son, and holy Ghoſt are but one God; the Underſtanding, Will, and Memory, are but one Soul; the Father is not the Son, nor the Son the Holy Ghoſt; ſo the Underſtanding is not the Will, nor the Will the Memory: and yet the Father is God, the Son is God, and the holy Ghoſt is God; ſo the Underſtanding is the Soul, the Will is the Soul, and the Memory is the Soul. I dare not ſay, but there is ſome difference. * This Trinity in us, we rather ſee it than believe it; but that Trinity of Perſons, we more believe it than ſee it: Howſoever then our Soul is no proof of the God head, yet is it a true ſign of that Image of God in the Soul. Nay, (yet as if this Stamp were of a deeper Impreſſion,) ſee the dowry of Gods Spouſe, and who wonders not at the Qualities, and Conditions with which the Soul is arayed? Pſ. 45. 13. The Kings Daughter is all glorious within, her Clothing is of broydered Gold. What ſay you to that Heavenly Knowledge inſpired into us? God that created Man, filled him with Knowledge of Underſtanding, and ſhewed him Good and Evil. Ecclus. 17. 7. What ſay you to thoſe Heavenly Impreſſions that are ſtampt upon us? ſuch are the new Mans Marks, which after God is created in Righteouſneſs and true Holineſs, Epheſians 4. 24. Ephes. 4. 24. Theſe make the Soul like God, and God loving to the ſoul; is it not clad with Righteouſneſs, as with a Garment? Witneſs the Integrity of Adam, in that ſweet Subjection, his ſoul to the Lord, his Affections to the ſoul, his Body to the Affections, the whole Man to God, as to the chiefeſt Good: and as Truth and Mercy meet together, ſo Righteouſneſs and Holineſs kiſs each other: O bleſſed Image! how nearly doſt thou reſemble thy Creator? He is the Pattern of Perfection, and we bear the Image of that Pattern, Be ye Holy as I am Holy, 1 Pet. 1. 15. 1 Pet. 1.15. And yet again, as if this Picture were of a deeper Dye, how like is the ſoul to is Creator in her full Dominion over all the Creatures? Thou art Beautiful, O my ſoul, as Tirzah, Comely as Jeruſalem, Terrible as an Army with Banners. Cant. 6. 3. What is it will not ſtoop to this Gods Vice-gerent? Jam. 3. 7. Beaſts, and Birds, and Serpents, and things of the Sea are tamed, and have been tamed of the Nature of Man, James 3. 7. What a thing is this ſoul? She can tame the Wild, command the Proud, pull down the Lofty, do what She will, by Compounding Comparing, Contemplation, Commanding. O excellent Nature! that ſitteſt on Earth, canſt reach to Heaven, mayeſt dive to Hell, nothing being able to reſiſt thy Power, ſo long as thou art ſubject to that Power of God. Is this the ſoul? Pſal. 8. 6. Lo, what is Man that thou art mindful of him? thou haſt made him to have Dominion in the Works of thy Hands, thou haſt put all things in ſubjection under his Feet. Pſalm 8. 6.

* Trinitatem in nobis videmus potius quàm credimus. Deum verò eſſe Trinitatem credimus potius quàm videmus. Aug. de Trin. l. 15. c. 6.

> O my ſoul, my ſoul! what can we ſay of ſuch a Creature? To ſum up all; She is in nature a Subſtance, Created by God, Inviſible of Men, Incorporeal with Angels, Immortal through Grace, moſt like to God, in a way of Nearneſs, and bearing his Image in the glorious Stamp of her created Likeneſs.

Is this the Darling of our Lord? Where then is the rich man that hath loſt this Pearl? He that could tell his Soul, Verſ. 19. ſoul thou haſt much Goods laid up for many years, live at Eaſe, Eat, Drink, and take thy Paſtime. Now on a ſudden his ſoul is taken, and whoſe ſhall thoſe things be which he hath provided? The Loſs of all Loſſes is the Loſs of a ſoul, without which, had we never ſo much, we could truly enjoy nothing; what truſt then in your earthly Treaſures? what, ſtay on ſuch broken Staves of Reed? one day you ſhall find them moſt deceitful, leaving your naked ſouls to the open rage of Wind and Weather, to the Scourges and Scorpions of Guiltineſs and Fear: Could you purchaſe a monopoly of all the World, had you the Gold of the Weſt, the Treaſures of the Eaſt, the Spices of the South, the Pearls of the North, all is nothing to (this incarnate Angel) this invaluable ſoul. O wretched Worldling! what haſt thou done then to undo thy ſoul? Was it a Wedge of Gold, an Heap of Silver, an Hoard of Pearl, to which thou rruſtedſt? See, they are gone, and thy Soul is required] Alaſs, poor ſoul! whither muſt it go? to Heaven? to its Creator? to God that gave it? No, there there is another way for wandring Sinners; Go ye into everlaſting Fire, prepared for the Devil and his Angels: thither muſt it go with heavineſs of Heart, into a Kingdom of Darkneſs, a Lake of Burning, a Priſon of horrible Confuſion, of terrible Tortures: O poor ſoul! what a Miſery is this? Darkneſs, Burning, Confuſion, Torments, Are theſe the Welcomes of his Soul to Hell? What meant the rich man in his unhappy Fore-caſt? He propounded to his ſoul a World of Eaſe, of Pleaſures, of Paſtime; it proves far otherwiſe: this other World is a World of Torments, which (like infinite Rivers of Brimſtone) feed upon his ſoul without Eaſe or End. What avails now his pompous Pride at his doleful Funerals? the News is ſounded [he is dead] Friends muſt lament him, Paſſing-peals ring for him, an Hearſe-cloth wrap him, a Tomb-ſtone lye over him, all muſt have mourning Suits, and (may be) rejoycing Hearts; but all this while his ſoul is going to Judgment, without one Friend or the leaſt Acquaintance to ſpeak in his Cauſe: O that his ſoul were Mortal, and body and ſoul to be buried, both together in one Grave! Muſt his body die, and his ſoul live? In what World or Nation? In what Place or Region? It is another World, another Nation, where Devils are Companions, Brimſtone the Fire, Horrour the Language, and eternal Death the Souls eternal Life; never to be cured, and never muſt be ended. O my ſoul, (ſaith Bernard) what a terrible day ſhall that be, when thou ſhalt leave this Manſion, and enter into an unknown Region? Who will deliver thee from theſe ramping Lions? Who can defend thee from thoſe helliſh Monſters? God is incenſed, Hell prepared, Juſtice threatned, only Mercy muſt prevent, or the ſoul is Damned. View this rich man on his Deaths-bed, the Pain ſhoots through his Head, and at laſt comes to his Heart, anon Death appears in his Face, and ſuddenly falls on to Arreſt his ſoul; Is it Death? what is it he demands? Can his Goods ſatisfy? No, the World claims them: muſt his Body go? No, the Worms claim that: What Debt is this, which neither Goods nor Body can diſcharge? [Habeas animam ejus coram nobis: Gods Warrant bids fetch the ſoul? O miſerable News! the ſoul committed Sin, Sin morgaged it to Death, death now demands it; and what if he gain the World? he muſt loſe his Soul: This night [thy Soul] ſhall be required of thee.

Bernard, in elledit.

Uſe 1.

Animula vagula, blandula, ſaid dying Adrian; Pretty, little, wandring Soul, whither goeſt thou from me? Wilt thou leave me alone, that cannot live withthee? O what Conflicts ſuffers the poor Soul? when this time is come, muſt the Soul be gone? Help Friends, Phyſick, Pleaſure, Riches; Nay, take a World to reprieve a Soul; ſo different are the Thoughts of men dying, from them living: now are they for their Pleaſure, or Profit, the Body, or the World, but then nothing is eſteemed but the Soul: What can we ſay? But if you mean your Souls muſt be ſaved, O then let theſe precious, dear everlaſting things breathed into your Bodies for a ſhort Abode, ſcorn to feed on Earth, or any earthly things: it is Matter of a more heavenly Metal, Treaſures of an higher Temper, Riches of a nobler Nature, that muſt help your Souls. Do you think that ever any glorified Soul, that now looks God Almighty in the Face, and tramples under foot the Sun and Moon, is ſo bewitcht as was Achan with a Wedge of Gold? No, it is only the Communion of Saints, the Society of Angels, the Fruition of the Deity, the Depth of Eternity, which can only feed and fill the Soul. So live then, as that when you die, your Souls may receive this Bliſs, and the Lord Jeſus our Saviour receive all your Souls.

Joſh.7.21.

Uſe. 2. Si magna mercedis eſt à morte eripere carnem, quanti eſt meriti à morte liberare animam? Ambroſ. offic. 1 Quid eſt quod velis habere malum? nihil omnino; Aug. In quod, ſerm.

I muſt end, but gladly would I win a Soul: If the Reward be ſo great (as you know it) to recover a ſick Body, which for all that muſt die, of what reward is that cure to ſave a Soul, which muſt ever, ever live? O ſweet Jeſu! why ſheddeſt thou the moſt precious and warmeſt Blood of thy Heart, but only to ſave Souls? thou waſt Scourged, Buffetted, Judged, Condemned, Hanged; was all this for us? and ſhall we do nothing for our ſelves? What is it thou wouldeſt have bad, if thou couldeſt wiſh it good? not thy Houſe, nor thy Wife, nor thy Children, nor thy Goods: nor thy Cloaths, but no matter for thy Soul; I beſeech you, value not your Souls at a leſs price than your Shooes; you can pleaſe the Fleſh with Delicates, which is nought but Worms-meat; but the Soul pines for Want, which is a Creature Inviſible, Incorporeal, Immortal, moſt like to God: Are we thus careful of Pelf, and ſo careleſs of this Pearl? certainly, I cannot chooſe but wonder, when ſeeing the Streets peopled with Men that follow Suits, run to Courts, attend and wait on their Councellors for this caſe, and that caſe, this Houſe, or that Land; that not one of theſe, no nor one of all us will ride, nor run, or creep, or go to have Counſel for his Soul! I muſt confeſs, I have ſometimes dwelt on this Meditation: and (Beloved, let me ſpeak homely to you) be our Councellors in this Town every week ſolicited by their Clients? and have we no Clients in Soul-caſes? Not one that will come to us with their caſes of Conſcience? Sure you are either careleſs of your Souls, or belike you have no need of particular Inſtructions: O let us not be ſo forward for the World, and ſo backward for the Soul: yet I pray miſtake not; I invite you not for Fees, as noble Terentius, when he had petitioned for the Chriſtians, and ſaw it torn in pieces before his Face, gathered up the Pieces, and ſaid, I have my Reward; I have not ſued for Gold, Silver, Honour, or Pleaſure, but a Church: ſo ſay I, in midſt of your Neglect, I have not ſued for your Gold, or Silver, for your Houſes, or Lands, but for your Souls, your precious Souls: and if I cannot, or ſhall not wooe them to come to Chriſt, God raiſe up ſome Child of the Bride chamber which may do it better; if neither I, nor any other can prevail, O then fear that Speech of Elies Sons, They hearkened not unto the Voice of their Father, becauſe the Lord would ſlay them, 1 Samuel 2. 25.

In ſuch a caſe, O that my Head were full of Water, and mine Eyes a Fountain of Tears, that I might weep day and night for your Sins! O that I could waſh your Souls with my Tears from that filth of Sin, wherewith they are beſmeared and defiled! O that for the Salvation of your Souls, I might be made a Sacrifice unto Death! But the Lord be praiſed, for your Souls and my Soul Chriſt Jeſus hath died; and if now we but repent us of our Sins, and believe in our Saviour, if now we will but deny our ſelves and take up his Croſs and follow him; if now we will but turn unto him, that he may turn his loving Countenance unto us, if now we will but become new Creatures, and ever hereafter walk in the holy Path, the narrow way which leads unto Heaven, why, then may our Souls be ſaved. This is that we had need to care for, not ſo much for the Body, as for the Souls good: to this purpoſe ſaith Hugo; Why clothe we the Body in Silks, which muſt rot in the Grave, and adorn not the Soul with Faith and good Works, which one day muſt appear before God and his Angels? O think of this day, this night, this hour of Death, for then muſt your Souls be taken from you.

Cur carnem adornas, & animam non adornas? Hugo de clauſtro amæ.

Thus far you ſee the rich mans Arreſt: God enjoyns it, Death ſerves it; the time was this night, and the party is his Soul.] God give us grace to provide our Souls, that when Death Arreſts, we may be ready and then, O God, have thou mercy on our Souls.

Shall be required.

THe Original is Ἀπαιτοῦσι, They ſhall require it: wherein you have, the { Serjeants.

Arreſt.

The Serjeants, They,] and the Arreſt it ſelf, They require] his Soul.

We'll firſt take a view of the Serjeants.

They: who? Not God, he knows not Sinners, what ſhould he do with a Drunken, Prophane, Covetous, Senſual Soul? He that never ſo much as thought on God in this Life, will God accept of the commending of his Soul to him at his Death? No, the Lord of Heaven will none of it: He that forſook God, is juſtly forſaken of God. See the true weight of this Balance; he would not receive Gods grace into his Soul, and God will not receive his graceleſs Soul into Heaven. But who then? Will the Angels take it? No, they have nothing to do with the Soul of a dying Sinner; the Angels are only Porters for the Souls of the Juſt: Poor Lazarus that could neither go, nor ſit, nor ſtand for Sores, it is he muſt be carried on the Wings of Angels; but for this rich Man, not the loweſt Angel will do him pooreſt ſervice. Who then? Will the Saints receive it? No, they have no ſuch commiſſion to receive a Soul; that blind Opinion (which every one may bluſh at) that Saint Peter ſhould be heavens porter, and that none may go in, but to whom he will open: if it be true, why may not a Saint help a departing ſoul? Away with this dreaming folly! not Peter, nor Paul, nor all the Saints of Heaven have any ſuch priviledge; if God will not hear us, what will our Prayers do to Saints? Heaven is too far off; they cannot hear, or were it nearer, they will not, cannot help: It is God muſt ſave us, or we periſh for ever. Who then are the Serjeants? Not God, nor Saints, nor Angels; no, there is another crew, Death and Devils ſtand in a readineſs, and they are the Parties that arreſt his Priſoner.

Stay, what would Death have? The ſoul cannot die, and for the Body, no matter who receives it. O yes! there is death of the ſoul, as well as of the Body: I mean not ſuch a death whereby it may be annihilated, but a ſecond death that ſhall ever accompany it; this is a death of the Soul that will always keep it in death pangs. But not to ſpeak of this death, there is another death temporal that ſhall ſever the Soul and Body each from other; theſe two twins that have lived together ſince their firſt Eſpouſal, theſe two lovely ones that were made, and married by the hands of God; theſe two made one till death them do part, and make them two again; now is their rueful time of divorce: When Death comes, he gives over the Body to the Grave, and arreſts the Soul, to appear in preſence before Gods high Tribunal. Such a Bayliff hath now laid hands on this rich mans Soul, when he leaſt thought on't, Death comes on a ſudden, and arreſts his Perſon. O wretched worldling! who is this behind thee? Call we this Gods Serjeant? What grim, ugly, monſtrous Viſage is this we ſee? Have ever any of you ſeen the griſly Picture of Death before you? How was it but with hallow eyes, open ſkull, grinning teeth naked ribs, a few bones knit together with dry ſtrings, as preſenting to your eyes the moſt deformed Image of a Man in Moulds? But what's that in his hands? An hour-glaſs and a dart: the one expreſſing the decreaſings of our Life, and the other Deaths Stroke that he gives us in our death. Such Emblems are moſt fit to expreſs Mortality: And imagine ſuch a thing to arreſt this rich Man, would it not terrifie him, whilſt looking back, Death ſuddenly claps him on his ſhoulder; away he muſt with this Meſſenger; all the Gold and Pearls of Eaſt and Weſt cannot ſtay him one hour: Now rich Man, what avails all thy worldly Pleaſure? Hadſt thou in thy hands the Reins of all earthly Kingdoms: Wert thou exalted as the Eagle, and thy neſt ſet among the ſtars, yet all this, and whatſoever elſe thou canſt imagine, is not worth a button: Where did that Man dwell, or of what cloth was his Garment, that was ever comforted by his Goods or Greatneſs, in this laſt and foreſt Conflict? See, worldling, Death requires thy Soul; no Bribe will be taken, no Entreaty will prevail, no Riches reſcue, nothing at all redeem: Death is impartial.

Obad. 1. 4.

But (O horrour!) Death is not all, ſee yet more Serjeants: Devils and Dragons are about thy Bed, and theſe are they that will hurry away thy Soul to Hell. How? Devils? O worldling, ſtay thy Soul, and never yield it! better to die a thouſand Deaths, than to leave it in their hands; but alaſs! thou canſt not chooſe, thy laſt hour is come, and here is neither hope, nor help, nor place of any longer tarrying. See but the miſery of a miſerable Soul! What ſhall it do? Whither ſhall it flie from theſe damned Furies? Would they take it and tear it into nothing, it were ſomewhat tolerable; but to tear it in pieces, and never to make an end of tearing, to give it torments without all patience or reſiſtance; this is that load which it cannot bear, and yet (O extremity!) it ever, ever muſt be born. Think on this, O my Soul! and whilſt thou haſt a minutes ſtay in this Body, call upon God to prevent this Arreſt of Devils: Was it not (think ye) a terrour to this rich Man, when ſo many hell-hounds waited for his Soul? We read of one Man, who being took away with a Devil through the air, was ſaid ſo to roar and yell, that many miles diſtant his noiſe was heard to many a mans trembling. And if a Soul had but the Organs of a Sound, what a Shreek would it make, being ſeiz'd on by a Devil? Witneſs the Cries of many deſperate Souls, when as yet they are ſafe in their Beds, how do they roar and rage? How do they call and cry, Help, help us, ſave us, deliver us from theſe Fiends about us? Theſe are thoſe evening Wolves enraged with helliſh hunger; theſe are thoſe ramping Lions ever ready to devour our Souls; theſe are thoſe walkers up and down the Earth, which are now come and entred into this rich Mans Lodging. Whereſoever the dead carkaſs is, thither (ſaith our Saviour) will the Eagles reſort: Mat.24.28. And whereſoever a damned Soul is, thither with alacrity will theſe Spirits come: O how they flie and flutter round about him! What fires do they breath to enkindle them on his Soul? What claws do they open, to receive her at the parting? And what aſtoniſhment is that poor Soul in, that perceives theſe Serjeants even ready to clap her in their burning Arms? See (O Coſmopolite) what thy ſin hath cauſed! Luſt hath tranſported thine Eyes, Blaſphemy thy Tongue, Pride thy Foot, Oppreſſion thy Hand, Covetouſneſs thy Heart, and now Death and Devils, they are the Serjeants that require thy Sonl.

Hartmundus Schedel. in vit. Pap.

Uſe. Reflect theſe thoughts on your own ſouls, and conſider with your ſelves what may be your caſes; it may be as yet thou ſtandeſt upright without any Changes, hitherto thou haſt ſeen no days of Sorrow, but even waſhed thy ſteps with butter, and the rock hath poured thee out rivers of oyl. Deut. 32. 13, 14. Alaſs! was not this the caſe of this wretched Worlding? Yet for all this, you ſee a night came that paid for all: And ſo may it be with thee; a day, an hour, a moment, is enough to overturn the things that ſeem to have been founded, and rooted in Adamant; Caſaub. Dies, hora, momentum, &c. who can tell whether this night, this ſtorm may fall upon thee? Art thou not ſtrangely nailed and glued unto ſenſe? Art thou not ſtupidily ſenſeleſs in ſpiritual things, that for Pelf, Vanity, Dung, Nothing wilt run headlong and wilfully into eaſeleſs, endleſs, and remedileſs Torments? Yet ſuch is thy doing, (if thou beeſt a Worldling,) to get Riches to thy Body, and let Death and Devils have thy ſoul. O beloved! conſider in time; and ſeeing you have ſuch a terrible Example ſet before you, let this Worlding be your warning.

We have done with the Serjeants, but what's their Office? To beg? To ſue? No, but to force, to require: thy ſoul is required.

How? Required? Is any ſo bold to approach his Gates, and make a forcible Entry? Yes, God hath his ſpecial Bayliffs that will fear no colours; Riches cannot ranſom, Caſtles cannot keep, Holes cannot hide, Hills nor their Forts protect: Sits Herod on his Throne? There's a Writ of Remove, and the Worms are his Bailiffs: Is Dives at his Table? Death brings the Mittimus, and Devils are his Jaylours: Sits Lazarus at his Gates? The King greets him well, (we may ſay,) and the Angels are his Keepers: Poor, rich, good, bad, all muſt be ſerved at the Kings ſuit; no Place can priviledge, no Power ſecure, no Valour reſcue, no Liberty exempt; with a non omittas propter aliquam libertatem, runs this Warrant: O rich Man! what wilt thou now do? The ſorrows of death compaſs thee, and the floods of Belial make thee afraid. 2 Sam. 22. 5. What? No Friends to help? No Power to reſcue? Is there no other way but yield and die for it? O miſery! enough to break a heart of braſs again: Imagine that a Prince a while poſſeſſed ſome Royal City, where (if you walk the ſtreets,) you may ſee Peace flouriſhing, Wealth abounding, Pleaſure waiting, all his Neighbours offering their Service, and promiſing to aſſiſt him in all his Needs and Affairs: If on a ſudden this City were beſieged by ſome deadly Enemy, who coming (like a violent Stream) takes one Hold after another, one Wall after another, one Caſtle after another, and at laſt drives this Prince only to a little Tower, and there ſets on him; what fear, anguiſh and miſery would this Prince be in? If he looks about, his Holds are taken, his Men are ſlain, his Friends and Neighbours now ſtand aloof off, and they begin to abandon him; were not this a woful plight trow you? Even ſo it fares with a poor ſoul at the hour of her departure; the Body wherein ſhe Reigned like a jolly Princeſs, then droops and languiſhes, the keepers tremble, the ſtrong men bow, the grinders ceaſe, and they wax dark that look out at the windows; Eccle.12.3 no wonder if Fear be in the way, when the Arms, the Legs, the Teeth, the Eye, (as ſo many Walls wherein the ſoul was invironed,) are now ſurprized and beaten to the ground; her laſt Refuge is the Heart, and this is the little Tower, whither at laſt ſhe is driven: But what, is ſhe there ſecure? No, but moſt fiercely aſſailed with a thouſand Enemies; her deareſt Friends, (Youth and Phyſick) and other helps,) which ſoothed her in Proſperity, do now abandon her; what will ſhe do? The Enemy will grant no Truce, will make no League, but night and day aſſails the Heart, which now (like a Turret ſtruck with thunder,) begins all to ſhiver; here is the woful ſtate of a wicked ſoul; God is her Enemy, the Devil her Foe, Angels hate her, the Earth groans under her, Hell gapes for her: The reaſon of all, ſin ſtruck the Alarm, and Death gives the Battel? It is but This night (a minute longer) and will the raging Enemy enter on her. Death is no Beggar to intreat, no Suitor to wooe, no Petitioner to aſk, no Solicitor to crouch and crave a Favour: She runs raging, ruling, charging, requiring; Quaque ruit, furibunda ruit. hark this rich Mans Arreſt, thy ſoul ſhall be required.] It ſhall? Yes, the Word is peremptory; what? Be required? Yes, it comes with Authority. Here's a fatal requiring, when the ſoul ſhall be forced by an unwilling Neceſſity, and Devils by force hurry her to her endleſs Fury. Adieu poor ſoul! the Writ is ſerved, the Goal prepared, the Judgment paſt, and Death (the Executioner) will delay no longer; This night thy ſoul ſhall be required of thee.

Uſe. 1. But to whom ſpeak I? Think of it, you miſerable covetous, that joyn houſe to houſe, and call the lands after your own names: You may truſt in your Wealth, and boaſt your ſelves in the multitude of your Riches, but none of you can by any means redeem his Brother, no nor himſelf, Pſal. 49. 6. Pſal. 49. 6, 7. When Death comes, (I pray) what compoſition with the Lord of Heaven? Could ever any buy out his Damnation with his Coyn? Howſoever, you live merrily, deliciouſly, go richly; yet Death will at laſt knock at your doors, and notwithſtanding all your Wealth, Honours, Tears, and groans of your deareſt Friends) will take you away as his Priſoners, to his darkeſt dungeon. Your caſe is as with a rich Man who lying faſt aſleep upon the edge of ſome ſteep high Rock, dreams merrily of Crowns, Kingdoms, Poſſeſſions; but upon the ſudden, ſtarting for joy, he breaks his Neck, and tumbles into the bottom of ſome violent Sea: Thus is your danger every hour; Satan makes you a Bed, lulls you aſleep, charms you into golden Dreams, and you conceive you are wallowing in the Sea of all worldly Happineſs; at laſt Death comes (againſt which there is no reſiſtance) and then are ſuddenly ſwallowed up of deſpair and drowned in that Pit of eternal Death and Perdition.

I have read of ſome, whom (in ſome ſort) we might parallel with this rich Man concerning their fearful, horrid departure out of this miſerable world: Yea, I ſuppoſe the Books are ſo working, that any Man whoſoever he is, that would but read them and ponder them in a ſerious way, they would certainly work in him much matter of Humiliation, and make him to flie ſin, as the very ſting of a Scorpion.

William Rogers, The Young mans warningpiece, by Rob. Abbot.

One of them I mean to ſpeak of, was an Engliſhman: Mr. Abbot that relates the Story, tells indeed of two in one year that died thus uncomfortably; the one ſo many ways looking homewards, that he died miſerably rich: The other ſo laſhed outward that he died miſerably poor; both of different ways of Life, yet both of uncomfortable Paſſages out of the World. The one coming to his Deaths-bed, the Author reports of him, “ that firſt the Devil preſented himſelf unto “ him to be his Phyſician, and after Chriſt appear- “ ed to him ſitting on the Throne, condemning his “ unprofitable Life, and bidding him ſhift for him- “ ſelf, for he would have nothing to do with “ him: The other (of whom I am to ſpeak,) as if he would prevent Chriſt, condemned himſelf to Hell for ever and ever: “ O (ſaid he) that I “ might burn a long time in that fire, ſo I might “ not burn in Hell.—I have had (ſaid he) a little “ Pleaſure, and now I muſt go to the torments “ of Hell for ever. Then praying to God (as “ he was preſſed by others) to forgive him his “ ſins, and to have mercy upon him, he would “ add, but I know God will not do it, I muſt “ go to Hell for evermore. Whatſoever came be- “ tween whiles, this was the cloſe, I muſt be “ burned in Hell, I muſt to the Furnace of Hell, “ millions and millions of Ages. The Author of this Story (who was Miniſter of the place where he lived,) went to him; offered him the comforts the Goſpel, opened to him the Promiſes of the largeſt ſize, ſhewed him that God was delighted to ſave Souls, and not to deſtroy them, and that his ſweet Promiſes were without exception of time, place, Perſon, or ſin, except that againſt the Holy Ghoſt, which he aſſured him too, was not committed by him: And what was the iſſue? All this could not faſten on him, but ſtill he would anſwer, Alas, it is too late, I muſt be burned in Hell. That Man of God (the Shepherd of his Soul) ſeeing his Soul in this danger, came to him again and again, and at laſt ſecluding the the Company, he preſſes him with Tears in his Eyes, not to caſt away that Soul for which Chriſt died; he told him, that Chriſt rejected none that did not reject him; but for all this he could have no other anſwer, but that he had caſt off Chriſt, and therefore muſt go to Hell. The Miniſter replies, Yet pray with me (ſaith he,) that Chriſt would come again; there is yet an hour in the day, and if Chriſt come, he can and will aſſiſt you to do a great deal of work on a ſudden? no, he would not hear of that: Former counſels and prayers might have done me good, ſaid he, but now it is too late.

O horrour, that ever any ſoul ſhould ſuffer theſe conflicts for ſin! But what ſins were they? He was (ſaith the Author) no Swearer, no Whoremonger, no Thief, no ſcoffer at Religion, no perjured Wretch, no wilful liar at all, only Drunkenneſs and neglect of Mens Bodies, (for he was an Apothecary) neglect of Prayer, Gods Word, and his Sacraments, ſo awak't his trembling Conſcience, that he was forced to paſs this fearful Doom upon his Soul, I muſt be burned in the Furnace of Hell, millions of millions of Ages: And at laſt (the Lord knows) in idleneſs of Thoughts and Talk, he ended his miſerable Life.

A relation of the fearful eſtate of Francis Spira. 1548.

The other I mean to ſpeak of was an Italian, under the Juriſdiction of Venice, called Francis Spira, who being exceſſively covetous of Money, and for fear of the World, having renounced the Truth, which before he profeſſed; he thought at laſt he heard a direful Voice ſpeaking to him, Thou wicked wretch, thou haſt denied me, thou haſt broken thy vow: hence Apoſtate, and bear with thee the ſentence of thy eternal damnation: At this Voice he trembling and quaking, fell down in a ſwoon; and after recovering himſelf, he profeſſed that he was captivated under the revenging hand of the great God of Heaven, and that he heard continually that fearful ſentence of Chriſt now paſt on his own Soul: His Friends to comfort him, propounded many of Gods Promiſes recorded, in Scripture; Oh but my ſin (ſaid he) is greater than the mercy of God: Nay, anſwered they, the mercy of God is above all ſin; God would have all Men to be ſaved; it is true (ſaid he) he would have all men that he hath elected to be ſaved; but he would not have reprobates to be ſaved, and I am one of that number: After this roaring out in the bitterneſs of his Spirit, he ſaid, It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God: Theſe troubles of mind brought him to a diſtemper of Body, which the Phyſicians perceiving, they wiſht him to ſeek ſome ſpiritual comfort; thoſe Comforters come, and obſerving the diſtemper to ariſe from the ſenſe and horrour of Hell Pains; they ask him, whether he thought there were any worſe pains than what he endured? He ſaid, He knew there were far worſe pains; yet do I deſire nothing more, ſaid he, than that I may come to that place, where I may be ſure to feel the worſt, and to be freed from fear of worſe to come.

As on this manner he was ſpeaking, he obſerved (ſaith my Author) divers flies that came about him, and ſome lighted on him, whereat, preſently remembring how Beelzebub ſignifies the God of Flies; Behold, ſaid he, now alſo Beelzebub comes to his Banquet, you ſhall ſhortly ſee my end, and in me an example to many of the juſtice and judgment of God. Then he began to reckon up what fearful Dreams and Viſions he was continually troubled withal: That he ſaw the Devils come flocking into his Chamber, and about his bed, terrifying him with ſtrange noiſes; and that theſe were not fancies, but that he ſaw them as really as the ſtanders by: and that beſide theſe outward terrours, he felt continually a racking torture of his Mind, and a continual butchery of his Conſcience, being the very proper pangs of the damned wights in Hell.

But of all the reſt, moſt deſperate was that laſt Speech of his, when ſnatching a Knife (as intending to miſchief himſelf, but ſtop'd by his Friends,) he roared with indignation, I would I were above God, for I know he will have no mercy on me; and thus living a while, he appeared at length a very perfect Anatomy, expreſſing to the view nothing but Sinews and Bones, vehemently raging for drink; ever pining, yet fearful to live long; dreadful of Hell, yet coveting Death; in a continual Torment, yet his own Tormentor; conſuming himſelf with Grief and Horrour, Impatience and Deſpair, till at laſt he ended his miſerable Life.

And now (beloved) if ſuch be the departure of a ſinful Soul, O who would live in ſin to come to ſuch a departure! For my part, I dare not ſay theſe Parties, thus miſerable in their own apprehenſions, are now among Devils in Hell: I find the Authors themſelves to incline to the right hand; beſides, what am I, that I ſhould ſit in Gods Chair? Only this I ſay, That there miſerable Deaths may very well give warning to us all; nor need you think much at me for uttering theſe (terribilia) terrible Stories; for if ſometimes you did not hear of Gods Judgments againſt ſin, a day might come that you would moſt of all cry out on the Preacher: To this purpoſe we have a Story of a certain rich Man, who lying on his Death bed, My Soul (ſaid he) I bequeath to the Devil, who owns it; my Wife to the Devil, who drew me to my ungodly life, and my Chaplain to the Devil who flattered me in it. I pray God I never hear of ſuch a Legacy from any of you: Sure I had better to tell you aforehand to prevent it, than not telling you to feel it. And let this be for my Apology in relating theſe Stories.

Uſe. 2. But for a ſecond Uſe, give me leave, I pray you, to ſeparate the precious from the vile. Now then to ſweeten the thoughts of all true Penitents, the Souls of Saints are not required, but received. Rejoyce then, ye righteous, that mourn in Sion; what though a while ye ſuffer? Death is a Goal-delivery to your Souls, not bringing in, but freeing out of Thraldom. Here the good man finds ſharpeſt miſery, the evil Man ſweeteſt Felicity; therefore it is juſt, that there ſhould be a time of changing turns; The rich Mans Table ſtood full of Delicates, Lazarus lacks Crumbs; Luke 16. 25. but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented. Wo unto you Luk. 6. 25. that laugh, for you ſhall mourn, Luke 6. 25. Bleſſed Mat. 5. 4. are you that mourn, for you ſhall rejoyce, Mat. 5. 4. Happy Lazarus! who from thy beggary and loathſome Sores wert carried by Angels into Abrahams boſom: Happy Thief, who upon thy true Repentance and unfeigned Prayer, wert received from the Croſs to the Paradiſe of thy Saviour: Happy are all they that ſuffer tribulation; Death ſhall looſe their Souls from Bonds and Fetters; and inſtead of a Bailiff to arreſt them, ſhall be a Porter to conduct them to the Gates of Heaven; there ſhalt thou tread on Serpents, trample on thine Enemies, ſing ſweet Trophies: Were not this enough? Thy Conqueſts ſhall be crowned by the hands of Seraphims, triumphed with the ſound of Angels, warbled by the Quire of Spirits, confirmed by the King of Kings and Lord of Hoſts. Happy Soul! that art not required by Devils, but received by Angels; and when we die, Lord Jeſus, ſend thine Angels to receive our Souls.

You ſee now Deaths Arreſt; and what remains further, ſave to accept of ſome Bail? But what Bail, where you have the Kings Commandment from his own mouth? This requiring is not of any other but himſelf; of no Surety but of thee (ſaith God,) muſt thy Soul be required.

Of thee.]

ONce more (you ſee) I have brought this rich Man on the ſtage; his Doom is now at hand, and Death (Gods Meſſenger) ſummons him to appear by Requiring of his Soul;] But of whom is it Required? Had he any Sureties to put in? Or was any Bail ſufficient to be taken for him? No, he muſt go himſelf, without all help or remedy; it was he that ſinned, and it is he muſt pay for it; Of thee] it is required.

How? Of thee? Sure, Death miſtakes; we can find thouſands more fit, none more fearful, there ſtands a Saul, near him his Armour-bearer, behold a Judas; ſuch will out-face Deaths fury; nay, rather than it fail in its Office, they will not much queſtion to be their own Deaths-men: But this Of thee (who art at league with Hell, in love with Earth, at peace with all) is moſt terribly fearful.

Stay Death! there ſtands a poor Lazarus at the Gates, like Job on his Dung-hill, his Eyes blind, his Ears deaf, his Feet lame, his Body ſtruck with boiles, and his Soul chooſing rather to be ſtrangled and Job 7. 15. die, than to be in his bones: Where not this a fit Object for Deaths cruelty? Would he ſpare the rich, he ſhould be welcome to the poor? But Death is inexorable, he muſt not live, nor ſhall the Beggar beg his own Death for another: Of thee] it is required.

But (Death!) yet ſtay thy hand, here's a better Surety; what needs Death a Preſs, when he may have Voluntiers? There ſtands an old Man as ready for the grave, as the grave for him; his face is furrowed, his hairs hoary, his back bowing, his hams bending, and therefore no Song is fitter than old Simeons, Lord, now Luk. 2. 29. letteſt thou thy ſervant depart in peace: Youth is loath, but Age is merry to depart from miſery; let Death then take him that ſtandeth neareſt Deaths-door; no, the old muſt die, but the young may; he muſt die ſoon, yet be ſure thou ſhalt not live long. Of thee] it is required.

Cannot this ſerve? Let Death yet ſtay his hand, there ſtands a ſervant waiting at this rich Mans beck, as if he would ſpend his own Life to ſave his Maſters? He can make a Pageant of Cringes, act a whole Speech of Flatteries, every part owes him ſervice, feet to run, hands to work, head to crouch, and as the Eyes of a Maiden unto the hand of her Miſtreſs, ſo the Eyes of his Servants look unto thee Hands of their Maſter: But where be theſe Attendants when Death comes? Was ever any Maſter better than Chriſt? were ever any ſervants truer than his Apoſtles? Yet ſee their fidelity: Muſt their Saviour die? One betrays him, another forſwears him, all run from him, and leave him alone in the midſt of all his enemies: What then is the truſt of Servants? The rich man may command and go without, if Death ſhould require them, they would not; or if they ſhould deſire Death, he will not; his Arreſt concerns not the ſervants, it is for the Maſter himſelf; he that commands others, now Death commands him: Of thee] it is required.

Will not all do? Let Death but ſtay this once; there ſtands a Friend that will loſe his own, to ſave his life: Greater Love than this hath no man ſaith our Saviour) when any man beſtoweth his Life Joh. 15. 13. for his friends, John 15. 13. Riches may perhaps procure ſuch Love, and get ſome friend to anſwer Death's quarrel which he owes this man: Jonathan loves David, David Abſolom; and ſure it was a Love indeed, when Jonathan preſerves the Life of David, and David wiſheth a death to himſelf in the ſtead of Abſolom: O my Son Abſolom, would God I had died for thee; O Abſolom, my Son, my Son. 2 Sam. 18. 33. But where be any friends ſo reſpective of this Worldling? He wants a Jonathan, a David; upon a ſtrict enquiry we find no friend, no father, no ſon, neither heirs nor aſſigns to whom he may beſtow his Lands. But what if he had Friends as near to himſelf as himſelf? No man can die for another: or as the Pſalmiſt, No man may deliver his brother, nor make agreement unto God for him; for it coſt more to redeem their ſouls, ſo that he muſt let that alone for ever. Pſa.49.7,8. Should the poor man beg, the old man pray, his Servants kneel, his Friends lie at Death's feet, and all theſe offer up all their lives for this rich man's recovery, all were but vain; it is thy Soul is arreſted, and it is thy ſelf muſt yield it: Of thee] it is required.

You ſee there is no way but one with him: to conclude then, we'll bid him his farewel (this is the laſt office we can do this rich man) and ſo we'll leave him.

The hour is come, and the dawning of that dreadful day appeareth; now he begins to wiſh that he had ſome ſpace, ſome piece of time to repent him; and if he might obtain it, O what would he do, or what would he not do? Relieve the weak, viſit the ſick, feed the hungry, lodge the ſtranger, cloath the naked, give half his Goods to the poor, and if he had done any wrong, reſtore it him again ſeven fold. But alas! all is too late, the Candle that but follows him, cannot light him to heaven. A ſudden death denies his Suit, and the increaſing of his ſickneſs will give him no leaſure to fulfil thoſe Duties: What cold Sweats are thoſe that ſeize upon him? His Senſes fail, his Speech falters, his Eyes ſink, his Breaſt ſwells, his Feet die, his Heart faints, ſuch are the outward pangs; What then are the inward Griefs? If the Body thus ſuffers, what Cares and Conflicts endures the Soul? Had he the Riches of Cræſus, the Empires of Alexander, the Robes of Solomon, the Fare of that rich man who lived deliciouſly every day, what could they do in the extremity of theſe pangs? O rich man, thou couldſt tell us of pulling down Barns, and building greater; but now imagine the vaſt Cope of Heaven thy Barn (and that were large enough) and all the Riches of the world thy Grain (and that were Crop enough) yet all theſe cannot buy a minute of eaſe, now that Death will have thy Body, Hell thy Soul. O dark Dungeon of impriſoned men! whoſe help wilt thou crave? whoſe aid wilt thou ask? what releaſe canſt thou expect from ſuch a Priſon? the Diſeaſe is paſt cure, the Sickneſs wants remedy; Alaſs! what may recover now the Heart-ſtrings break aſunder? Thy date expires, thy laſt breath goes, and now is thy Soul and Body required of thee.

I have hitherto with Nathan beat ſinful David on a ſtranger's Coat. You muſt give me leave to take off the Maſk, and ſhew you your own Faces in this Glaſs.

Uſe 1. Believe thou who readeſt this, that ſhortly there will be two holes where thine Eyes now ſtand, and then others may take up thy skull, and ſpeak of thee dead, as I have done of thee living: how ſoon I know not, but this I am ſure of, Thy time is appointed, thy months are determined, thy days are numbered, thy very laſt hour is limited. Job 14.14. And what follows, but that thy Body lie cold at the root of the rocks, at the foot of the mountains? Job 14.5. Pſal.20.12. Joh.11.9. Go to the Graves of thoſe that are gone before us, and there ſee; are not their Eyes waſted, their Mouths corrupted, there Bones ſcattered? Where be thoſe ruddy Lips, lovely Cheeks, ſparkling Eyes, comely Noſe, hairy Locks? Are not all gone as a Dream in the night, or as a Shadow in the morning? Alaſs! that we neglect theſe thoughts, and ſet our minds wholly upon the world and its vanity! We are careful, fearful, and immoderately painful to get tranſitory riches, like Children following Butterflies; we run and toil, and perhaps miſs our purpoſe; but if we catch them, what is it but a Fly to beſmear our hands; Riches are but empty, and yet be they what they will be, all at laſt will be nothing. Saladine that great Turk, after all his Conqueſts, gets his Shirt faſtned to his Spear in manner of an Enſign; this done, a Prieſt makes Proclamation, This is all that Saladine carries away with him, of all the Riches he hath gotten. Knoll's Turkiſh Hiſtory, p. 73. Shall a Turk ſay thus, and do Chriſtians forget their duties? Remember your ſelves ye ſons of earth, of Adam, what is this Earth you dote on? Be ſure you ſhall have enough of it, when your Mouths muſt be filled and crammed with it, and (as your ſouls deſire it, ſo) at that day ſhall your Bodies turn to it. O that men are thus given to gaſping greedineſs! There is a generation, and they are too common amongſt us, that we may preach, and preach (as they ſay) our hearts out, yet will not they ſtir a foot farther from the world, or an inch nearer unto God; but could we ſpeak with them on their Death-bed, when their Conſciences are awaked, then ſhould we hear them yell out thoſe Complaints, What hath Pride profited us? or what good have Riches with our vaunting brought us? Wiſd. 5.8. Aſſure your ſelves this day or this night will come, and imagine (I pray thee) that the ten, twenty, thirty, forty years, or months, or days, or hours, which you have yet to live, were at an end; were you at this preſent ſtretched on your beds, wearied with ſtrugling againſt your wearied pangs; were your Friends weeping, your Phyſicians parting, your children crying, your wives howling, and your ſelves lying mute and dumb in a moſt pitiful Agony?

Beloved Chriſtians! whoſoever thou art) ſtay a while (I pray thee) and practiſe this Meditation; Suppoſe thou now felteſt the cramp of Death wreſting thy heart-ſtrings, and ready to make that rueful Divorce betwixt thy Body and thy Soul; ſuppoſe thou layeſt now panting for breath, ſwimming in a cold fatal ſweat; ſuppoſe thy words were fled, thy tongue ſtruck dumb, thy ſoul amazed, thy ſenſes frighted; ſuppoſe thy feet beginning even to die, thy knees to wax cold and ſtiff, thy noſtrils to run out, thine eyes to ſink into thy head, and all the parts of the Body to loſe their office to aſſiſt thee; upon this ſuppoſal lift up thy Soul, and look about thee (O I can tell thee, if thou liveſt and dieſt in ſin) there would be no where any comfort, but a world of terror and perplexity; look upwards, there ſhouldſt thou ſee the terrible Sword of Gods Juſtice threatning; look downwards there ſhouldſt thou ſee the Grave in expectation ready gaping; look within thee, there ſhouldſt thou feel the Worm of Conſcience bitter gnawing; look without thee, there ſhouldſt thou ſee good and evil Angels on both ſides, waiting whether of them ſhould have the prey: Now alas! (then wouldſt thou ſay) The Soul to depart from the Body were a thing intolerable, to continue ſtill therein were a thing impoſſible; and to defer this departure any longer, (ſuppoſing this hour thy laſt hour) no Phyſick could prevail, it were a thing unavoidable: What then would thy poor Soul do, thus environed with ſo many ſtraits? O fond fools of Adam's ſeed, that neglect the time till this terrible paſſage! how much wouldſt thou give (if thus it were) for an hours repentance? at what rate wouldſt thou value a days contrition? worlds are worthleſs in reſpect of a little reſpite; a ſhort truce would ſeem more precious than the Treaſures of Empires; nothing would then be ſo much eſteemed as a trice of time, which before by months and years thou laviſhly miſſpent. Think on thy ſins, nay, thou couldſt not chuſe but think Satan would write them on the Curtains of thy Bed, and thy agaſhed eyes would be forced to look upon them, there wouldſt thou ſee thouſands committed, not one confeſſed or throughly repented; then too late thou wouldſt begin to wiſh, O had I led a better Life, and were it to begin again, O then how would I faſt and pray; how repent, how live! Certainly, certainly, if thou goeſt on in ſin, thus would be thy departure, thy Carkaſs lying cold among the ſtones of the pit, and thy Soul, by the weight of ſin, irrecoverably ſinking into the bottom of that bottomleſs burning Lake.

Uſe 2. But to prevent this evil, take this uſe of Advice for thy Farewel: whilſt yet thy Life laſteth, whilſt yet the Lord gives thee a gracious day of viſitation, ply, ply all thoſe bleſſed means of Salvation, as Prayer and Conference, and Meditation, and Sermons, and Sacraments, and Faſtings, and Watchings, and Patience, and Faith, and a good Conſcience; in a word, ſo live, that when this day or night of death comes, thou mayeſt then ſtand firm and ſure; as yet thou art in the way of a tranſitory Life, as yet thou art not entered into the confines of Eternity! If now therefore thou wilt walk in the holy path, if now thou wilt ſtand out againſt any ſin whatſoever, if now thou wilt take on thee the yoke of our Saviour Chriſt, if now thou wilt aſſociate thy ſelf to that Sect and Brotherhood, that is every where ſpoken againſt; if now thou wilt direct thy words to the glorifying of God, and to give grace unto the hearers; if now thou wilt delight in the Word, the Ways, the Saints, the Services of God; if now thou wilt never turn again unto folly, or to thy trade of ſin, though Satan ſet upon thee with his baits and allurements, to detain thee in his bondage, but by one darling-delight, one minion-ſin, then I dare aſſure thee, dear, right dear would be thy death in the ſight of the Lord; with joy and triumph wouldſt thou paſs through all the terrors of death, with ſinging and rejoycing would thy Soul be received into thoſe ſacred Manſions above. O happy Soul, if this be thy caſe! O happy night or day, whenſoever the news comes, that then muſt thy Soul be taken from thee! Pſ.116.15.

You may think it now high time, that we bid this Farewel-Funeral-Text adieu. Then for concluſion, let every word be thy warning. Leſt this] be thy time, provide for this and every time; leſt the night] be dreadful, do not ſleep as do others, but watch and be ſober; leſt thy Soul] ſhould ſuffer, deſire the ſufferings of thy God to ſatisfie; leſt Death require] it of thee by force, offer it up to God with a chearful devotion; and leſt this of thee] be fearful, who haſt lived in ſin, correct theſe courſes amend thy ways, and the bleſſing of God be with thee all thy life, at the hour of death, now, henceforth, and for ever, Amen. 1Theſ.5.6.

DOOMS-

DOOMS-DAY.

MATT. 16. 27.

Then ſhall he reward every man according to his works.

THE Dependance of this Text is limited in few Lines; and that your Eyes wander no further than this Verſe, therein is kept a general Aſſize; the Judge, Officers, Priſoners ſtand in array; the Judge is God and the Son of Man; The Officers, Angels, and they are his Angels; the Priſoners, Men, and becauſe of the Goal delivery, every man; If you will have all together, you have a Judge, his Circuit, his Habit, his Attendants, his Judgments; a Judge, the Son of Man; his Circuit, he ſhall come; his Habit, in the glory of his Father; his Attendants, with his Angels: What now remains, but the execution of Juſtice? Then without more ado ſee the Text, and you ſee all; the Scales in his hand, our Works in the Scales, the Reward for our Works, * of juſt weight each to other; Then he ſhall reward every man according to his works.

 I mean not an Arithmetical, but a Geometrical weight; rewards (eſpecially of Heaven) are not equal according to Juſtice, but proportionable according to promiſe.*

This Text gives us the proceeding of Dooms-day, which is the laſt day, the laſt Seſſions, the laſt Aſſize, that muſt be kept on earth, or is decreed in Heaven; if you expect Sheriffs, or Judges, Plantiffs, or Priſoners, all are in this Verſe, ſome in each Word. Then] is Time's Trumpet, that proclaims their coming. He] is the Judge that examines all their Lives. Reward] is the doom, that proceeds from him in his Throne. Man] is the Malefactor; Every man] ſtands before him as a Priſoner. Works] are the Indictments; and according to our works] muſt go the Trial, howſoever we have done, good or evil.

Give me yet leave, this Judge ſits on Trials as well as Priſoners, it is an high Court of Appeal, where Plantiffs, Counſellors, Judges, all muſt appear and anſwer: Would you learn the Proceedings? There is the Term, Then] the Judge, He] the Sentence, ſhall reward] the Parties, every man] the Trial it ſelf, which you may find in all to be juſt and legal, every man his reward according to his works.]

We have opened the Text, and now you ſhall have the hearing.

Then.]

THen] When? The Anſwer is { Negative. Poſitive.

First, Negative, Then;] not on a ſudden, or (at leaſt) not at this preſent. This life is no time to receive rewards; the Rain and Sun pleaſure both the good and bad; nay, oftentimes the bad fare beſt, and God's own Children are moſt fiercely ſcorched in the Furnace of affliction; The earth is giving into the hands of the wicked, ſaith Job; but, If any man will follow me, he muſt take up his Croſs, ſaith our Saviour. Joy, and Pleaſure and Happineſs attend the ungodly, while God's poor Servants run through the Thicket of Briars and Brambles to the Kingdom of Heaven: but, Shall not the Judge of all the World do right? A time ſhall come when both theſe muſt have their change; Mark the upright, and behold the juſt, for the end of that man is peace; but the tranſgreſſors ſhall be deſtroyed together, and the end of the wicked ſhall be cut off, Pſalm 37. 37, 38. The effects of things is beſt known to us in ſome iſſue of time; and then ſhall we have our rewards, when the Son of man ſhall come in the glory of his Father. Let this admoniſh us to have patience in all our expectations: What is it to ſuffer a while, an inch of time, conſidering the reward is great indeed, everlaſting in durance? Reſt in the Lord (ſaith David) and wait patiently for him: fret not thy ſelf for him which proſpereth in his way: And will you know the reaſon? For yet a little while, and the wicked ſhall not be; but the meek ſhall inherit the earth, and ſhall delight themſelves in the abundance of peace, Pſal. 37. 10, 11. So they ſhall indeed, if only they will expect a little time; not now, but then] ſtay yet a while, and be ſure anon the reward ſhall be given.

2. But to anſwer poſitively, this Then is no other than Dooms-day, and when this will be, will be known beſt by { Conjectures.

Signs.

We will begin with the former.

Some would have it in the year 6000 from the beginning of the world; this was the ſentence of Elias (ſay the Jews) whoſe Prophecy thus runs, Two thouſand years before the Law, two thouſand under the Law, and two thouſand under the Goſpel: how untrue this ſounds, any one may gueſs that conſiders; in the firſt number he fails, becauſe it was too little; in the ſecond number he errs, becauſe it was too much: and if Elias ſay amiſs for the time now paſt, how ſhould we believe him for that yet to come? Others, beſides Teſtimony, produce Reaſon; that as God was creating the World ſix days, ſo he muſt be a governing it ſix thouſand years; here is a ſeeming proportion, but upon what reaſon? Every day (ſay they) muſt be a thouſand years with man, becauſe a thouſand years are but as one day with God. It were too frivolous pains to repeat any more, or to anſwer theſe: Is not this ſacrilege to break into into God's place, and pry into his Sanctuary? Why ſhould we preſume to know more than God would have us? Look at the Apoſtles were they not God's Secretaries? Look at the Angels, are they not God's Heralds? Look at Chriſt himſelf, is he not the Son of God? and yet as he is Mar.13.32. the Son of man, he ſpeaks of all, Of that day and hour knoweth no man, no Angel, neither the Son, but the Father only, Mark 13. 32. Ne nos addamus inquirere, quod ille non addidit dicere, Aug. Epiſt. 145. It is not for us to ſeek where the Lord hath not a Tongue to ſpeak. Why ſhould we know more than other men, than all men, than Angels, than Chriſt himſelf, who (as man) was either ignorant of it, or at leaſt had no commiſſion to reveal it. It is not for you to know the times and ſeaſons, which the Father Acts 1, 7. hath put in his own power, Acts 1. 7. It is a better uſe which our Saviour makes, Take heed, watch and pray; for ye know not when the time is, Mar.13.33. Mark 13. 33. As a Thief in the night, ſo is Dooms-day, it come ſuddenly, it will come ſhort-1Theſ.5.2. ly; Would you needs know when? Why then when you leaſt imagine ſuch a matter, then when worldly honours profit nothing, then when Kindred and Acquaintance fail, then when the world ſhall be ſet on Fire, then] then he ſhall reward every man according to his works.

But ſecondly, if Conjectures fail, the Signs are certain, Jerom reports of fifteen Miracles for for fifteen days, which he writes to have found in the Hebrew Annals, and immmediately muſt Teſte Tho. Aqu.Suppl. ad 3 par. q 73. art. 1. precede the Judge's coming. "The firſt day (ſaith he) the Sea ſhall ſwell, and lift up her waves, at leaſt fifteen cubits above the height of the higheſt hills. The ſecond day, unlike to the former, the Sea ſhall ebb again, and the waves be fallen till they ſcarce be ſeen. The third day, the Sea muſt return to its ancient courſe, and ſo abide that day as it was before. The fourth day, Sea-monſters ſhall appear above the Sea, whoſe bellowing roars ſhall fill the Air with cries, which God alone underſtands, and men ſhall tremble at. The fifth day, all the Fowls of the Air ſhall flock together, and meeting in the fields, ſhall there chatter, and ſtarve for fear of the approaching times. The ſixth day, Floods of fire ſhall riſe up againſt the Firmament, which kindling at the falling Sun, ſhall run like a lightning to the riſing morn. The ſeventh day, all Stars and Planets ſhall ſhoot out fiery Comets. The eighth day, there ſhall be a general Earthquake, and the motion ſo violent, that the ground ſhall hop, and the living Creatures not ſtand on their feet, that walk on the tottering floors. The ninth day, Trees ſhall ſweat blood. The tenth day, all the ſtones of the earth ſhall war together, and with a thundering noiſe break one upon another. The eleventh day, all Buildings ſhall be ruined, and all the hills and mountains melt into duſt and powder. The twelfth day, all beaſts of the field ſhall come from their woods and dens, and ſo abſtaining from their food, ſhall roar and bellow up and down the Plains. The thirteenth day, all Graves ſhall be open, from the riſing up of the Sun unto the going down of the ſame. The fourteenth day, all men ſhall come abroad, and ſuch a diſtraction ſeize on their heavy hearts, that they ſhall loſe the ſpeech and volubility of their Tongues, and the fifteenth (which is the laſt day) the living Men ſhall die, and the dead ſhall live again, all above earth be changed, and thoſe in their graves be raiſed and recovered.

I will not ſay theſe things are certain (I leave you to the Author, that recites them) but if any whit true, why (bleſſed Lord!) what a day of appearance ſhall this be? I know not (ſaith one) what others may think of it, but for Chryſoſt. my ſelf, it makes me tremble to conſider it. Hom 77. in Mat. It is a day of Anger and wrath, a day of trouble and Zeph. 1. 15 heavineſs, a day of obſcurity and darkneſs, a day of clouds and blackneſs, a day of the trumpet and alarm againſt the ſtrong Cities, and againſt the high towers, Zep. 1. 15. I will but run through the Signs, as we find them in God's writ, and then ſee if your hearts will not fail for fear.

Then] ſhall the Sun be darkned. Can Nature Mat.24.29. ſtand ſuffer a general Eclipſe? When God died the Sun could diſcolour its Beauty, and ſute it ſelf in black to its Maker's condition; and now Man dies, the Sun is clad again in mourning robes. Alas! what can it do but mourn? God lives, but Mankind dies: though he was the Creator, yet we are the Creature for whom it was created: When the Houſholder dies, the Patre familias moriente turbatur domus. Chry. in Mat. 24. Family grieves. Were all eyes dry, here is the eye of the World weeps it ſelf blind to ſee this Diſſolution: Is man bereft of compaſſion, for whom the Sun it ſelf undergoes this Paſſion? Think on thoſe times, when darkneſs that may be felt, ſhall ſpread over all the earth; how ſhould Plants but whither; or Beaſts of the field but waſte? How ſhould men but die, when they ſtumble at noon-day? Their eyes ſhall fail them, the light forſakes them; Miſerable men! the Sun ſhall not ſhine on them, becauſe God will judge them. But this is not all.

Then] ſhall the Moon not give her light: as the Matth. 24. 29. day and night are both alike with God, ſo the day and night ſhall be alike with man: the Sun will not lend its luſtre, nor can the Moon borrow any more light: but what ſtrange war makes this confuſion of Nature? the Sun ſhall look black; and the Moon be turned into blood. Joel 2. 31. Here is a new Moon, and ſuch change as before was never ſeen: there is no encreaſe, no Full, no Wane, but all the light is at once extinguiſhed: unhappy Creatures that depend upon her Influence! how ſhould they live, when ſhe her ſelf wades in Blood? God made theſe Lights for Signs, and for Seaſons, for Days, and Gen. 1.14. for Years: but now Signs are out, Seaſons paſt, Days are done, Years aboliſhed: the Angel Rev. 10. 6. hath ſworn by him that lives for ever, that time ſhall be no longer, Revelations 10. 6. Who will not believe that hears this ſacred Oath? Was it a man? No, an Angel:] did he ſay it? No, he ſwore it:] how? by himſelf? No, it was by him that lives for ever:] and what? That time muſt be little? Nay it muſt be no longer, time ſhall be no more.] How ſhall it be any more? The Sun is disfigured, the Moon diſrobed, both eclipſed. But this not all.

Then] ſhall the Stars be ſhaken; the power of Heaven ſhall move, and the Lamps of Heaven ſhall tremble: theſe were Gods threats againſt the Babylonians, Eſay 13. 10. For the ſtars of Eſay 13.10 Heaven, and the Planets thereof ſhall not give their Ezek.32.7. light. Againſt the Egyptians, Ezek. 32. 7. I will cover the Heaven, and make the ſtars dark over thee: Againſt all his Enemies, Joel 3. 15. The Joel 3. 15. Sun and Moon ſhall be darkned, (but not they alone, for) and the ſtars themſelves ſhall withdraw their ſhining: But what ſpeak we of darkneſs, or the Stars not ſhining? They Mark. 13. 15. ſhall not only dim, but down. In thoſe days (ſaith our Saviour) after that tribulation the Sun and the Moon ſhall darken, and the ſtars of Heaven ſhall fall: how fall? Tymne, &c. ſo thick (ſay Expoſitors) that the Firmament ſhall ſeem to be without all light. I cannot ſay theſe Signs ſhall be real; whether it is by Subtraction of their light, or the conceit of brain-troubled Sinners, or the fall of ſome enflamed Vapours, or the Apoſtaſie of ſome enlightened Perſons: for certain (to ſpeak literally) there ſhall be ſome change in the whole order of Nature: Sun and Moon, Stars and Planets, all muſt loſe their light, and by all likelyhood, it is the glory of the Judge that will dazle thoſe Candles. Neither is this all.

2Pet.3.18. Then] ſhall the Elements melt, the Fire ſhall fall down from Heaven, the Air turn it ſelf into Vapours, the Sea ſwell above all Clouds, the Earth be full of yawning Clifts, and violent Tremblings. A Fire ſhall firſt uſher the Judge, and ſuch a Fire as ſhall have the property of all Fires; that Fire in its Sphear, this Fire on Earth, the fearful Fire which torments in Hell, all ſhall meet in one, and according to their ſeveral Qualities, produce their ſeveral Effects: If we believe the Author in the margent, the juſt ſhall be refined by one, the wicked ſhall be tormented by another, the earth be conſumed by a third: There is no Creature but it muſt be fuel for this Fire; as the firſt world was deſtroyed with Water, to quench the heat of their Luſt; ſo muſt this be deſtroyed with Fire, to warm the cold of our Charity. But not the Fire alone.

Elementaris ſubtiliando, tereſtris conſumendo, infernalis puniendo. Joh. de Combit.

Then] ſhall the Air breed Wonders: what ſhall be ſeen but Lightnings, Whirl-winds, Coruſcations, Blazing-ſtars, flaſhing Thunders? Here a Comet runs round in a Circuit, there a Crown compaſſeth that Comet; near them a fiery Dragon fumes in Flames; every where appears a ſhooting Fire, as if all above us were nothing but inflamed Air, Yet not the Air alone.

Luk.21.15 Then] ſhall the Waters roar, Rivers ſhall wax dry, the Sea froth, and foam, and fume; thoſe that dwell near ſhall wonder at the ſwelling Tides, others afar off ſhall tremble at the roaring Noiſe: What threats are thoſe which the Surges murmur? War is proclaimed by Noiſe, ſet on by Blaſts, continued by Storms; the Floods and Tides ſhall run over all the Plains, the Sea, and Waves ſhall mount up to the very Skies: now would they war with Heaven, then overwhelm the Earth, anon will they ſink to Hell; and thus ſhall they rove and rage, as if they would threat all the world with a ſecond Inundation. Nay yet again.

Mat.24.7. Joel 1.10. Then] ſhall the earth be ſhaken in divers places (ſaith Matthew;) in all places (ſaith Joel) for all the earth ſhall tremble before him. Here is an Earthquake indeed; not ſome part of the Land, by reaſon of ſome cloiſtered Wind, but the Rocks, Mountains, Caſtles, Cities, Countries, ſome ſhall remove, others be ruined; thus all the earth ſhall be a ſwollowing Gulf, that all things here ſituated, may be then devoured. What can I more?

Then] ſhall Plants ceaſe their Growth, Beaſts want their Senſe, Men loſe their Reaſon: were this but little; you may wonder more. The Sibyls could affirm, that Nature ſhould both ceaſe, and change her being; the Trees inſtead of growth ſhould ſweat out Blood; the Beaſts ſhould bellow up and down the Fields, then want their Senſe; Men ſhould have diſfigured Faces, aſtoniſhed Hearts, affrighted Looks, then loſe their Reaſon: Nay, what marvel then, if at the worlds end, they be at their wits end? O fearful Signs, enough to move flinty Stones! if this be the Term, what is the Suit, the Bill, the Doom, the Execution? A Trump ſhall Summon, Death will Arreſt, God muſt have appearance, and Then] is the day: Then] he ſhall reward every man according to his works.

What a Chaos is here when the world muſt be thus turned topſie turvie? The Sun, the Moon, the Stars: come yet lower, the Fire, the Air, the Sea, the Earth; nay, Trees, and Beaſts, and Men, all muſt be out of order in the whole courſe of Nature.

1. Uſe. Who can read or hear this Prognoſtication of Dooms-day, and not wonder at the Signs which ſhall hang over all our Heads? We ſee by experience when any outragious ſtorm happens on Sea or Land, how wonderfully men are diſmaid, how ſtrangely aſtoniſhed: now then, when the Heavens, the Earth, the Sea, the Air ſhall be wholly diſtempered and diſordered; when the Sun ſhall threaten with Mourning, the Moon with Blood, the Stars with their Falling; yea, when all the Heavens ſhall ſhrink and paſs away as a Paper-ſcroul, who then dares Eat, or Drink, or Sleep, or take a minutes Reſt? Be ſure theſe days ſhall come, and the Signs ſhall paſs: Awake ye Drunkards, and weep, all drinkers of Wine, becauſe of the new wine; for it ſhall be pulled from your mouths. Gird your ſelves, and lament, ye Prieſts, howl, ye Miniſters of the Altar: Alaſs! for the day, for the day of the Lord is at hand, and as a deſtruction from Almighty ſhall it come. Joel 1.5, 13, 15. What? Are ye inſenſible of theſe Signs? The impriſoned Thief fears at the news of the Aſſize: and is the Sinner ſo impudent that he fears nothing? The day ſhall come when the men of earth ſhall fear, and be full of fear; every ſign ſhall breed a Wonder, and every ſight ſhall breed a wondrous Terrour; men ſhall hide themſelves in the caves of Beaſts, and the Beaſts ſeek to ſave themſelves in the houſes of Men: where then ſhall the wicked ſtand, when all the world ſhall be thus in uproar?

2 Uſe. Yet a word for us all; we have all warning, and we had beſt to provide; yet the weather is fair, we may frame an Ark to ſave us from the Flood; yet are the Angels at the gates of Sodom, yet is Jonas in the ſtreets of Nineveh; yet the Prophet wooes, O Judah, how ſhould I entreat thee? Hoſ. 6. 4. Yet the Apoſtle prays, nay, We pray you in Chriſts ſtead that ye will be reconciled unto God: 2Cor.5.10 to conclude, yet the Bride-groom ſtays the Virgins leiſure; Lord, that they would make ſpeed, ſeeing the joys of Heaven tarry for them! This Term is at hand, and is it not time to petition to the Judge of Heaven? What a dangerous courſe is it, never to call to mind that time of Times, untill we ſee the Earth flaming, the Heavens melting, the Judgment haſtening, the Judge with all his Angels coming in the Clouds to denounce the laſt doom upon all Fleſh, which ſhall be unto ſome Wo, wo, when they ſhall call to the Mountains to cover them, and for ſhame of their ſins, hide themſelves (if it were poſſible) in hell Fire! If we have any fear, this ſhould move fear; if we have any care, this ſhould move us all to be careful indeed. We have not two Souls that we may hazard one, neither have we two Lives that we may truſt to another, but as thy laſt day leaves thee, ſo will this Dooms-day find thee. Who would not but accept the Fatherly forewarning of Chriſt our Saviour. See you not now many Signs as the Heralds and Forerunners of his glorious coming? The abounding of Iniquity, the waxing cold of Charity, the riſing up of Nation againſt Nation? Was there ever leſs Love? Was there ever more Hatred? Where is that Jonathan that loves David as his own ſoul? Nay, where is not that Joab that can embrace friendly, but carries a malicious heart towards Abner? Sure we are near the end indeed, when Charity is grown thus cold. You then that would have the comfort of the day, take theſe Signs for Warnings; provide for him who hath thus long waited for you; and ſeeing you look for ſuch things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in peace, without ſpot, and blameleſs. Who would endanger their ſouls for a little ſin? buſie Clients heed nothing but their cauſe; and if you would recover Heaven, be ſure that ye mark this Term. The time draws on, now the Writs are out, anon comes the Judge, and then is the day. Then] he ſhall reward every man according to his work.

You ſee the Term, and now you may expect to view the Judge: the Term is Then,] the Judge is He.] Stay a while, and the next time you ſhall ſee him in his Judgment-ſeat.

He.]

Hoc facit, ut ad infimam ſe ſortem hominum dejiciat. Muſculus in Matth. cap. 8.

Pſal. 8, 4.

HE? Who? If you look at the fore-going words you may ſee who he is: The Son of man, ſhall come in the glory of his Father, and it is he that ſhall reward us according to our works.

This title of the Son of man, denotes unto us the Humility of the Son of God; what is the Son of man, but man? And this tells us how humble he was for us, that being God, was made man, or the Son of man, which is as all one, according to that, Pſal. 8. 4. What is man that thou art mindful of him? Or the Son of man that thou viſiteſt him.

Heb. 12. 23.

Act. 17. 31.

John 5. 27.

John 5. 22.

It is true, God is the Judge of all, Heb. 12. 23. and yet it is true, this God is man, Acts 17. 31. God (ſaith Paul) will judge the world, but it is by that man whom he hath ordained. God hath the Power, but God as man hath only the Commiſſion. He (who is God) hath given him authority to execute Judgment. And would you know the reaſon? It is only becauſe he is the Son of man, John 5. 27. In a word, God ſhall judge; the whole Trinity by preſcription, Chriſt only in execution: The Father judgeth, but by the Son; or as the Evangeliſt John, the Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment to the Son, John 5. 22.

But becauſe as man, there appears in him a double form, as humbled, as glorified; we'll diſcuſs theſe queſtions, which reſolve all doubts.

1. Whether Chriſt, as man.
2. Whether man, as glorified.

} ſhall appear unto us, when he will reward us?

To the firſt we ſay, that only as man he will appear our Judge, who as man appeared when himſelf was judged; what better reaſon to expreſs the benefit of our Redemption, than ſo to judge us as he did redeem us? Was he not man that ſuffered, died, and was buried? And is he not man that one day ſhall come to judge both the quick and dead? he that came obſcurely to be judged by the unjuſt, ſhall then appear openly to judge all the juſt: the ſame man, who is God and man, ſhall be our Judge in his human nature, by his divine power. Thus we ſay, God (who is the Ancient of days) hath the power original; but man (who is the Son of God) hath the power traduced; and therefore ſaith Daniel, One like the Son of man came with the clouds of Heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him, and there was given him dominion, and glory, and a Kingdom.

Conſider this, ye that are going to the Bar; what a ſight will this be to the faithleſs Jews, ſtubborn Gentiles, wicked Chriſtians, when Every eye ſhall ſee him, and they alſo which pierced him! This is the man (ſhall they ſay) that was crucified for us, and again crucified by us: why, alaſs! every ſin is a Croſs, every oath is a Spear, and when that day is come, you muſt behold the man, whom thus you do crucify by your daily ſins: Sure this will be a fearful ſight; where is the bloody Swearer, that can tear his Wounds, and Heart, and Blood, and all? At this day of Doom † thoſe wounds ſhall appear, that heart be viſible, that body and blood be ſeen, both of good and bad, and then ſhall that fearful voice proceed from his Throne, This was the heart thou pierceſt, theſe are the wounds thou raceſt, and this is the blood thou ſpilleſt: Here is the fearful Judgment, when thou that art the Murtherer ſhalt ſee the ſlain man ſit thy Judge: what favour canſt thou expect at his hands, whom thou haſt ſo vilely abuſed by thy daily ſins? Be ſure, the Son of man will come, as it is written of him, but wo be unto that man by whom the Son of man is betrayed, it had been good for that man if he had not been born, Matth. 26. 24.

† Sic Aug. habet ſuum (fortaſſe) de Chriſti & martyrum vulneribus, & quod non ſit deformitas iis, ſed dignitas. Novi quod quæritur, an cicatrices remaneant in corpore perfecto & glorificato?

Attamen Chriſtus apparuit Thomæ cum cicatricibus ad fidem ejus confirmandum, John 20. 27. Mat. 26. 24.

To the ſecond queſtion we anſwer, That as Chriſt ſhall appear in the form of man, ſo this man ſhall appear in a glorious form: he that is a Mediator betwixt God and man, muſt both interceed for man to God, and communicate thoſe things which are of God to man: to this purpoſe both theſe offices are agreeable to him, in that he participates of both extreams; he is man to abide the judgments due from God, he is God to convey all his benefits unto man: as then, in his firſt coming, he pleaſed God by taking the infirmities of man upon him, ſo in his ſecond coming, will he judge us men, by appearing in that glory which he derives from God. But look about you! who is this Judge, arrayed in ſuch a majeſty? A fire devours before him, and behind him a flame burns up, on every ſide the people tremble, and all faces ſhall gather blackneſs: here is a change indeed, he that was in a Cratch, now ſits on a Throne; then Chriſt ſtood like a Lamb before Pilate, now Pilate ſtands like a Malefactor before Chriſt; he that was once made the foot-ſtool of his enemies, muſt now judge, till he hath made all his enemies his footſtool. Where ſhall they run?

Joel 2. 3.

Pſal. 110. 1.

And how ſhall they ſeek the clifts of the Rocks, and hallow places? The glory of his Majeſty Revel. 21. 17. kindles a flame, while the heaven and earth ſhall flie from the preſence of this Judge. O ye heavens! why do you flie away? What have ye done? Why are ye afraid? It is the Majeſty of the Judge that will amaze the innocent; the greatneſs of whoſe indignation will be able to ſtrike all the heavens with terrour and admiration; when the Sea is outragious, and tempeſtuous, he that ſtands on the ſhoar will be ſtruck into a kind of fear: or when the Father goes like a Lion about his houſe, in puniſhing his Bond-ſlave, the innocent Son ſtands in great fear and trouble! and how then ſhall the wicked tremble, Greg. in Mor. when the very heavens ſhall be afraid? If the goodly Cedars of Lebanon be ſhaken, what ſhall become of the tender twiggs in the Deſart? If the ſturdy Rams ſtoop and tremble, how will the 1Pet. 4. 18. bleating Lambs cry and run away? And if the juſt and righteous ſcarcely be ſaved, where ſhall the ungodly and the ſinner appear? The mountains and heaven ſhall melt before the Lord; and what ſtony hearts have we, that (for all this) are nothing at all yet moved.

But (may be) I prevent your expectation; if here be a Judge, where is the guard? Behold him coming from above with great power and glory: would you know his Habit? He is cloathed with Majeſty: ſeek you the Colour? 'Tis the brightneſs of his Father: would you view his Attendants? They are an hoſt of Angels: look you for the Guard? They are a troop of ſhining Cherubims: nay, yet ſee a longer Train, a further Company, the Souls of Saints deſcend from their imperial ſeats, and attend the Lamb with great glory, and glorious Majeſty: never was any Judge Lord of ſuch a circuit: his Footſtool are the Clouds, his Seat the Rain-bow, his Juſtices Saints, his Officers Angels, and the Arch-Angels Trump proclaims a Silence, whilſt a juſt Sentence comes from his mouth on all the World. Thus are the Aſſizes begun to be ſolemnized; the Dan. 7. 9. thrones (as Daniel ſaw in his viſion) were ſet up, and the ancient of days ſate down, his garments white as ſnow, and the hair of his head like pure wool, his Throne like the fiery flame, and his wheels as burning fire, Dan. 7. 9. This is the Judge whoſe coming is ſo fearful, uſhered by a fiery Flood, apparelled in ſnowy white, carried in his circuit on burning Wheels, and attended with the number of thouſand thouſands. O ye Jews, behold the man, whom before you crucified like a Malefactor; behold him in his Throne, whom, you ſaid, his Diſciples had ſtolen by night out Matth. 28. 13. of his Grave: behold him in his Majeſty, whom you would not deign to look upon in his humility; the Greg. ſub Ill. baſer you eſteemed his weakneſs, the heavier muſt you Matth. 24. In nubibus cœli. find and feel his mightineſs. The Son of man appears, and the kindreds of the earth muſt mourn; ſuch a ſhout of fury follows the ſight of his Majeſty, that the Vaults ſhall eccho, the Hills reſound, the Earth ſhake, the Heavens change their ſcituation, and be turned to a confuſion; then ſhall the wicked weep and wail, and yet their tears not ſerve their turn; their Sins paſt betray them, their Shame preſent condemns them, and their Torment to come confounds them; thus ſhall they bewail their miſerable Hap, their unfortunate Birth, and their Cant. 6. 4. 5. curſed End: O fearful Judge, terrible as an Army with Banners; turn away thine eyes from us, which overcome the proudeſt Potentates: the Kings of the earth ſhall be aſtoniſhed, and the Nations from the Iſles ſhall fear from far: Every eye ſhall ſee him whom they have pierced, and tremble at the preſence of his ſight. Conceive the guilty Priſoner coming to his Trial, will not the red robes of his Judge, make his heart bleed for his blood-ſhed? doth not that ſcarlet Cloth preſent a monſtrous hew before his eyes? O then! what ſight is this, when the man ſlain, ſits in the Judgment-ſeat, the roſie wounds of our Saviour ſtill bleeding (as it were) in the Priſoners preſence? Theſe are the wounds, Aquin ſupplem. q. 90. A. 2. ad ſecundum. not as tokens of infirmity, but victory; and theſe now ſhall appear, not as if he muſt ſuffer, but to ſhew us he hath ſuffered. See here an object full of Glory, Splendor Majeſty, Excellency, and this is He] the man, the Judge, the rewarder of every man according to his works.

The Judge we have ſet in his Throne, and before we appear, let us practiſe our repentance, that we anſwer the better.

Uſe 1. Think but (O ſinner) what ſhall be thy reward, when thou ſhalt meet this Judge; the Adulterer for a while may flatter Beauty, the Swearer grace his words with Oaths, the Drunkard kiſs his Cups, and drink his bodies Health, till he bring his ſoul to ruine: But remember Eccleſ. 11. 9. for all theſe things God will bring thee to judgment. Cold comfort in the end. The Adulterer ſhall ſatisfy his luſt, when he lyes on a bed of Fire, all hugged and embraced with thoſe Flames; the Swearer ſhall have enough of Wounds and Blood, when Devils torture his body, and rack his ſoul in Hell; the Drunkard ſhall have plenty of his Cups, when ſcalding Lead ſhall be poured down his throat, and his breath draw flames of fire inſtead of Air: as is thy ſin, ſo is the nature of thy puniſhment; the juſt Judge ſhall give juſt meaſure, and the balance of his wrath poiſe in a juſt proportion.

Uſe 2. Yet I will not diſcomfort you, who are the Judges deareſt favourites: Now is the day (if you are Gods ſervants) that Satan ſhall be trod under your feet, and you with your Lord and Maſter Chriſt, ſhall be carried into the holieſt of Holies. You may remember how all the men of God in their greateſt Anguiſhes here below, have fetcht comfort by the eye of faith at this Mountain: Job rejoyced being caſt on the Dung-hill, that his Redeemer lived, and that he ſhould ſee him at the laſt day ſtand on the earth: John longed and cried, Come, Lord Jeſus, come quickly; and had we the ſame precious Faith, we have the ſame precious Promiſes: why then are we not raviſhed at the remembrance of theſe things? Certainly there is an happy faith (whereſoever it ſhould be found) that ſhall not be aſhamed at that day: 1 Joh. 2. 28. Now therefore little children, abide in him, that when he ſhall appear, we may have confidence: Confidence? what elſe? I will ſee you again (ſaith our Saviour Judge) and your heart ſhall rejoyce, and your joy no man taketh from you. O bleſſed mercy, that ſo triumphs againſt judgment; our hearts muſt joy, our joys endure, and all this occaſioned by the ſight of our Saviour; for He] Joh. 16. 22. ſhall reward every man according to his works.

We have prepared the Judge for ſentence: he hath rid his circuit in the Clouds, and made the Rain-bow his chair of State, for his Judgment-ſeat; his Sheriffs are the Saints, that now riſe from the Duſt to meet their Judge, whom long they have expected: the Summons is ſent out by a ſhout from Heaven; the cry no ſooner made, but the Graves flie open, and the dead ariſe; ſtay a while till I ready them; you have ſeen the Judge, and now we prepare the judged. He] is the Judge; every man] the judged; and He ſhall reward every man according to his works.

Every man.]

THe perſons to be judged, are a world of Men, all men of the world, good and bad, elect and reprobates, but in a different manner: To give you a full view of them, I muſt lead your attentions orderly through theſe paſſages; there muſt be a Citation, Reſurrection, Collection, Separation: follow me in theſe Paths, and you may ſee both the men and their difference, before they come to their Judgements.

Surgite mortui, venite ad judicium. Hieronymus ſuper Matthæum. Verè vox tubæ terribilis, cui omnia obediunt elementa, petras ſcindit, inferos &c. Chryſoſt. 1. ad Corinth: 15.

Firſt, there is a Summons, and Every man muſt hear it: it is performed by a ſhout from Heaven, and the voice of the laſt Trump: the clangor of this Trump could ever ſound in Jeroms ears, Ariſe ye dead, and come to judgment: The clangor of this Trump will ſound in all mens ears, it ſhall wake the dead out of their drowſie Sleep, and change the living from their mortal ſtate, make Devils tremble, and the whole world ſhake with terrour: A terrible voice, a Trumpet ſhall ſound, that ſhall ſhake the World, rend the Rocks, break the Mountains, diſſolve the bonds of Death, burſt down the gates of Hell, and unite all Spirits to their own Bodies. What ſay you to this Trump, that can make the whole Univerſe tremble? No ſooner ſhall it ſound, but the Earth ſhall ſhake, the Mountains skip like Rams, and the little Hills like young Sheep: It ſhall pierce the Waters, and fetch from the bottom of the Sea the duſt of Adams ſeed, it ſhall tear the rocky Tombs of earthly Princes, and make their haughty Minds to ſtoop before the King of Heaven; it ſhall remove the Centre, and tear the Bowels of the Earth, open the Graves of all the dead, and fetch their ſouls from Heaven or Hell, to reunite them to their bodies. A dreadful ſummons of the wicked, whom this ſudden noiſe will no leſs aſtoniſh, than confound; the dark pitchy walls of that infernal pit of Hell, ſhall be ſhaken with the ſhout, when the dreadful ſoul ſhall leave its place of terrour, and once more re-enter into her ſtinking Carrion, to receive a greater condemnation: What terrour will this be to the wicked wretch? What woful ſalutations will there be between that body and ſoul, which living together in the height of iniquity, muſt now be re-united to enjoy the fulneſs of their miſery? The voice of Chriſt is powerful, The dead ſhall hear his voice, and they ſhall come forth, they that have done good, unto the reſurrection of life, and they that have done evil, unto the reſurrection of condemnation. John 5. 28, 29.

You hear the ſummons, and the next is your appearance: death the Goaler brings all his Priſoners from the Grave, and they muſt ſtand and appear before the Judge of Heaven.

The ſummons is given, and every man muſt appear: Death muſt now give back all their Spoils, and reſtore again all that ſhe hath took from the World. What a gaſtly ſight will this be, to ſee all the Sepulchers open, to ſee dead men riſe out of their Graves, and the ſcattered duſt to flie on the wings of the Wind, till it meet together in one compacted body? Ezekiels dry bones ſhall live: thus ſaith the Lord, I will lay ſinews upon you, and make fleſh grow upon you, and cover you with skin, and put breath in you, and you ſhall know that I am the Lord, Ezek. 37. 6. This duſt of ours ſhall be devoured by Worms, conſumed by Serpents, which crawl and ſpring from the marrow of our bones: look in a dead mans Grave, and ſee what you find but Duſt, and Worms, and Bones, and Sculls, putrified Fleſh, an houſe full of Stench and Vermine; Behold then the power of God Almighty, out of this grave and duſt of the earth; from theſe chambers of death and darkneſs, ſhall ariſe the bodies of the Buried, the Graves will flie open, and the dead go out; not an Hair, not a Duſt, not a bone ſhall be denied, but whatſoever holds their Duſt ſhall yield their Bodies: I ſaw the dead (ſaith John) ſmall and great ſtand before God; and the Sea gave up the dead which were in it, and Death and Hell delivered up the dead which were in them, and they were judged every man according to their works, Rev. 20. 12, 13. What a wonderful ſight will this be, to ſee the ſea and earth bring forth in all parts ſuch variety of Bodies: to ſee ſo many ſorts of People and Nations to come together? Huge Armies innumerable, as the Caterpillars of Egypt, all ſhall ariſe, and every one appear before the Lords Tribunal: Worms and Corruption cannot hinder the Reſurrection; he that ſaid to Corruption, Thou art my Father, and to the Worm, Thou art my ſiſter and mother, ſaid alſo, I know that my Redeemer liveth, and mine eyes ſhall behold him. O good God how wonderful is thy power! this fleſh of ours ſhall turn to duſt, be eaten of Worms, conſume to nothing; if there be any reliques of our Aſhes, the Wind may ſcatter them, the Blaſts divide them, our Feet trample them, the Beaſts digeſt them, the Vermine devour them; if nothing, yet time will conſume them. But for all this, God is as able to raiſe us from the Duſt, as to create us of the Duſt, not one Duſt of this clay ſhall periſh; though ſcattered, divided, trampled, devoured, conſumed; it ſhall be gathered, recovered, revived, refined, and raiſed; and as one duſt ſhall not be loſt of one man, ſo neither ſhall one man be loſt of all the World: this is that general day that ſhall congregate all, they ſhall come from the four winds and corners of the World, to make an univerſal appearance; all the Children of Adam ſhall then meet together; yea, all the kindreds of the earth ſhall meet together, and mourn; Aſſemble your ſelves, and come, all ye heathen, to the valley of Jehoſhaphat, for there will I ſit to Judge all the heathen, Joel 3. 11, 12.

Job 17. 14.

Job 19. 25.

Joel 3. 11, 12.

The ſummons are ſounded, the dead are raiſed, and yet to give you a fuller view of the parties, ſee how God the Judge now ſends his meſſengers, to fetch the living bodies to his Court.

3. Mat. 24.31 He ſhall ſend his Angels (ſaith our Saviour) and they ſhall gather together his Elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to another, Matth. 24. 31. True it is, all ſhall be gathered, yet with a difference; ſome with a ſwift pace flie to the Throne, where is the hope of their deliverance; others draw and pull back, whiles the Angels hale them to the Judgment-ſeat; the righteous have nimble ſwift Bodies, that fly to the Judge, as a Bird to her neſt and young ones; but the wicked have their Bodies black and heavy, they cannot flye, but flag in the Air, and the Angels do not bear, but drag them to the Judgment-ſeat: how can this chuſe but fear the wicked, when like Malefactors they are brought before the wrathful Judge? as they were born or buried, ſo muſt they riſe again naked and miſerable; what a ſhame is this? and yet the more horrible, in that their nakedneſs ſhall be covered with a filthy blackneſs; needs muſt deſperate fears ſeize on the Soul, when it is again united to her Body, transformed to ſuch an ugly form: is this the Body fed with Delights and Delicates? Is this the Fleſh pampered with Eaſe and Luſt? is this the Face masked from the Wind and Sun? are theſe the Hands decked with Rings and Diamonds? how become theſe ſo ſwarthy horrible, which before were ſo fair and amiable? this is the change of the wicked, when through ſorrow and confuſion they ſhall cry to the Rocks, Cover our nakedneſs, and to the Hills Hide our uglineſs; nay, rather than appear, let the infernal Furies tear and tatter us into a thouſand pieces. Look your Beauties (Beloved) in this glaſs: ſuch is the end of this worlds glory, ſo vain the pleaſure of this Body: Now is the end of all things come, and what remains, but a ſea of fears and miſeries ruſhing on them? before ſhall the Angels drag them, behind ſhall the black Crew follow them, within ſhall their Conſciences torture them, and without ſhall hot flames of fire fume, and fry, and furiouſly torment them; fear within, and fire without: but worſe then all, a Judge above all, and thither muſt they go; Angels uſher them, Devils attend them, the Crier hath called them, the Angels trump hath ſummoned them, and now they muſt appear.

We have brought all together, now we muſt part them aſunder, the ſheep ſhall be put on the right hand, and the goats on the left, as every man hath been qualified.

Two travellers go together, feed together, lye together, ſleep together, but in the morning their ways part aſunder: thus the ſheep and the goats eat together, drink together, ſleep together, rot together, but at this day there ſhall be a ſeparation, Mat. 13. 30. Let them grow together, corn and tares untill the harveſt: this world is the floor; fan while you will, there will be ſome chaff; love peace like lambs, there will be ſome goats to trouble; the ſheep and goats live both together in one fold, the world; lye both together in one cote, the grave: the world is a common Inn, which entertains all manner of paſſengers: the rode-way to death is the Kings highway free for all travellers: after the paſſage of this weary day, death hath provided a large Bed to lay all in, the Grave: all live together and all lye together: all reſt together, and all rot together: but when this night is paſt, and the laſt day is ſprung, then is the woful ſeparation; ſome turn on the right, and thoſe are the bleſſed; others on the left hand and thoſe are the curſed. Here is the beginning of woes, when the wicked ſhall curſe, and howl, like the fiends of Hell. O Lord puniſh me here, (ſaith one devoutly) rack me in pieces, cut me in ſhreds, burn me in fire, ſo that I may be there placed at thy right hand: Domine, hic ure, hic ſeca, modo non in æternum peream. Aug. Bleſſed are they that have a place amongſt thoſe elect ſheep: what now remains but their doom, which is a lot that muſt befall every man? for he ſhall reward (not one, or ſome, but every one) every man according to his works.

The ſummons are given, the dead are raiſed, the priſoners conducted to the bar, and the ſheep and goats ſevered aſunder each from other.

And now ſee the parties thus ſummoned, raiſed, gathered, ſevered; Is not here a world of Uſe. 1. men to be judged all in one day? Multitudes, Joel 3.41. multitudes in the valley of deciſion, for the day of the Lord is near in the valley of deciſion, Joel. 3. 14. Bleſſed God! what a multitude ſhall ſtand before thee? all Tongues, all Nations, all People of the earth ſhall appear at once: all we ſhall then behold each ſon of Adam, and Adam our grandfather ſhall then ſee all his poſterity. Conſider this, high and low, rich and poor, one with another: God is no accepter of perſons. Heark, O Beggar! petitions are out of date, and yet thou needeſt not fear, thou ſhalt have juſtice; this day all cauſes ſhall be heard, and thou (though a poor one) muſt appear with others to receive thy ſentence. Heark, O Farmer, now are thy lives and leaſes together finiſhed; this day is the new harveſt of thy Judge, who gathers his wheat into his garner, and burns up Mat. 3.12. the chaff in fire unquenchable: no Boon, no Bribe, no Prayers, no Tears can avail thy ſoul: but as thou haſt done, ſo art thou ſentenced at the firſt appearing. Heark, O Land-lord, where is thy purchaſe to thee and thy Heirs for ever? this day makes an end of all, and happy were thy ſoul, if thou hadſt no better land than a barren Rock, to cover and ſhelter thee from the Judges preſence. Heark, O Captain, vain now is the hope of man to be ſaved by the multitude of an hoſt: hadſt thou command of all the Armies on Earth and Hell, yet couldſt thou not reſiſt the power of Heaven: ſee, the Trump ſound, the Alarum ſummons thee, thou muſt appear. Heark, O Prince, what is the Crown and Scepter againſt Thunder? The greatneſs of man, when it comes to encounter with God, is weakneſs and vanity. Heark, Ecclus. 4. 34. all the World, From him that ſitteth upon the glorious throne unto him that is beneath in earth and aſhes: From him that is cloathed in blew ſilk, and weareth a Crown, even to him that is cloathed in ſimple linnen: all muſt appear before him, the Beggar, Farmer, Land-lord, Captain, King, and Prince, and every man, (when that day is come) come) ſhall receive his reward according to his works.

But O here is the miſery, Every man muſt appear, but Every man will not think on it: would you know the ſign of that man, which this day ſhall be bleſſed? It is he, and only he that again and again thinks on this day, that Jerome-like, meditates on this Summons, and Reſurrection, and Collection, and Separation. Examine then your ſelves by this rule; is your mind often carried to theſe Objects? Soar you on high with the wings of faith, and a ſound eye to this hill? Why then, you are right birds, truly bred, and not of the baſtard brood. I pray you mark it, every Croſs, and Diſgrace, and Slander, and Diſcountenance, loſs of Goods, diſeaſe of Body, or whatſoever Calamity (if you are the children of God, and deſtined to ſit at the right hand of our Saviour) they will ever and anon by carrying your minds to ſome of thoſe objects of Dooms-day. And if you can but ſay that experimentally you find this true in your ſelves: if ordinarily in your miſeries, or other times, you think on this time of refreſhing, then be of good comfort; for you are of the brides company, and ſhall enter into the Marriage-chamber, to abide there for ever. But if you are deſtitute of theſe kind of motions, O then ſtrive for theſe Properties, that are the inſeparable breathings and movings of an holy Heart, ſound Mind, and bleſſed Perſon; every day meditate that every man ſhall appear one day, and receive his reward according to his works.

You ſee how we have followed the cauſe, and well-near brought it to final ſentence, the Term is diſcovered, the Judge revealed, the Priſoners prepared, and the next time we ſhall bring them to the Bar, to receive their rewards. This time depart in peace, and the God of peace keep your ſouls ſpotleſs without ſin, that you may be well prepared for this day of Judgment.

According to his works.]

WE have brought the Priſoners to their Tryal, and now to go on, how ſhould this Tryal be? I anſwer: not by faith, but works; by faith we are juſtified, by works we are judged: faith only cauſeth, but works only manifeſt that we are juſt indeed. Here then is the tryal, that every ſoul of man muſt undergo that day. Works are the matter that muſt be firſt enquired of: and is there any wicked man to receive his ſentence? let him never hope to be ſaved by anothers ſupererogating; the matter of enquiring is not aliena, but ſua; not anothers, but his] works. Or is there any good man on whom the ſmiling Judge is ready to pronounce a bleſſed doom? Let him never boaſt of meriting Heaven by his juſt deſervings; ſee the reward given, not propter, but ſecundum, as (Gregory tells us) not for his works, as if they were the cauſe, but according to his works] as being the beſt witneſſes of his inward righteouſneſs.

Greg. 1. in illa verba 7. Pſal. penit. Auditam fac mihi mane miſericordiam.

But the better to acquaint you with this tryal, there be two points, of which eſpecially we are to make inquiry.

1. How all mens works ſhall be manifeſt to us.
2. How all mens works ſhall be examined by GOD?

1. Of the manifeſtation of every mans work, John ſpeaketh, And I ſaw the dead, ſmall and great ſtand before God, and the books were opened, and another book was opened, which is the book of life, and the dead were judged out of thoſe things which were written in the books according to their works, Revelations 20. 12. God is ſaid to have Books, not properly, but figuratively: all things are as certain and manifeſt to him as if he had Regiſters in Heaven to keep Records of them. Remember this, O forgetful! you may commit, add, multiply your Sins, and yet run on, ſcore till they are grown ſo many, that they are out of memory; but God keeps them in a Regiſter, and not one ſhall be forgotten; there is a book and Books, and when all the dead ſhall ſtand before God to receive their ſentence, then muſt theſe Books be opened. Rev.20.12

That is, the book of
- Gods memory.
- Mans conſcience.
- Eternal life.

There is a book of Gods memory, and herein are all the acts and monuments of all men whatſoever enrolled and regiſtred; A book of remembrance was written before God, for them that feared the Lord, and thought upon his Name, Malach 3. 16. This is that which manifeſts all ſecrets, whether mental or actual; this is that which reveals all doings, whether good or evil. In theſe Records are found at large Abels Sacrifice, Cains Murther, Abſaloms Rebellion, Davids Devotion, the Jews Cruelty, the Prophets Innocency, good mens Intentions, and the ſinners Actions; Nothing ſhall be hid when this book is opened, for all may run and read it, ſtand and hear it. How fond are we that imagine Heavens eye (ſuch is this Book) to be ſhut upon us? Do we not ſee many run to corners to commit their ſins? There can they ſay, Let us take our fill of love untill the morning, for darkneſs hath covered us, and who ſeeth us? who knoweth us? Eſay 29. 15. But are not the Angels of God about you? We are a ſpectacle to the Angels (ſaith the Apoſtle;) I am ſure we muſt be to Angels, and to men, and to all the world: O do not that before the Angels, of God, yea before the God of Angels, which you would ſhame to do in the ſight and preſence of an earthly man! Alaſs! muſt our Thoughts be known, and ſhall not dark-corner-ſins be revealed? Muſt every Word and Syllable we ſpeak be writ and recorded in Gods memorable book, and muſt not ill Deeds, ill Demeanours, ill works of Darkneſs be diſcloſed at that day? Yes, God ſhall bring every work unto judgment, with every ſecret thing, be it good or evil, Eccleſ. 12. 14. Wail ye wicked, and tremble in aſtoniſhment. Now your Cloſet-ſins muſt be diſcloſed, your private Faults laid open; God keeps the Account-book of every Sin, every Tranſgreſſion: Imprimis, for Adultery, Item, for Envy, Blaſphemy, Oaths, Drunkenneſs, Violence, Murther, and every Sin, from the beginning to this time, from our Birth to our Burial; the total ſum, eternal Death and Damnation: this is the note of Accounts, wherein are all thy Offences written; the debt is Death, the pay Perdition, which fury pays over to Deſtruction.

Malach. 3. 16.

Prov.7.18.

Eſay 29. 15.

1 Cor.4.9.

Eccleſ.12. 14.

But there is another book, that ſhall give (a more full, I cannot ſay, but) a more fearful evidence than the former, which is the book of every mans conſcience: Some call it the book of Teſtimony, which every man ſtill bears about him. There is within us a Book and Secretary, the Book is Conſcience, and the Secretary is our Soul: whatſoever we do is known to the Soul, and writ in our Book of Conſcience: there is no man can ſo much as commit one ſin, but his Soul, that is privy to the fact, will write it in this Book. In what a woful caſe will thy heart then be? in what ſtrange terrour and trembling muſt it ſtand poſſeſt, when this muſt be opened, and thy ſins revealed? It is now perhaps a book ſhut up and ſealed, but in the day of Judgment ſhall be opened: and if once opened, what ſhall be the evidence that it will bring forth; There is a private Seſſions to be held in the breaſt of every condemned Sinner; the Memory is Recorder, Grief an Accuſer, Truth is the Law, Damnation the Judgment, Hell the Priſon, Devils the Jaylors, and Conſcience both Witneſs and Judge to paſs ſentence on thee. What hopes he at the general Aſſize, whoſe Conſcience hath condemned him before he appear? Look well to thy life, thou beareſt about thee a book of Teſtimony, which though for a time it be ſhut till it be full fraught with Accuſations, yet then (at the day of Doom) it muſt be opened, when thou ſhall read, and weep, and read; every period ſtop with a ſigh, every word be enough to break thy heart, and every Syllable reveal ſome ſecret, thy own Conſcience (upon the matter) being both Witneſs, Judge, Accuſer, and Condemner.

Liber ſignatus & clauſus, in die judicii aperiendus.

But yet there is another Book we read of, and that is the Book of Life. Herein are written all the names of God's elect, from the beginning of the World till the end thereof, theſe are the golden Leaves? this is that precious Book of Heaven, wherein if we are regiſtred, not all the powers of Hell, or Death, or Devils ſhall blot us out again. Here is the glory of each devout Soldier of our Saviour; how many have ſpent their Lives, ſpilt their Bloods, run upon ſudden Deaths to gain a perpetual Name? And yet for all their doings, many of theſe are dead and gone, and their memories periſhed with them; only Chriſts Soldier hath immortal Fame: he, and only he is writ in that Book that muſt never periſh. Come hither ye Ambitious! your Names may be writ in Chronicles, yet loſt: writ in durable Marble, yet periſh; writ in a Monument equal to a Coloſſus, yet be ignominious. O were you but writ in this book of Life, your names ſhould never die, never ſuffer any Ignominy! It is an axiom moſt true, They that are written, in the eternal leaves of heaven, ſhall never be wrapt in the cloudy ſheets of darkneſs. Here then is the joy of Saints, at that Day of Doom this book ſhall be opened, and all the elect whom God hath ordained to ſalvation, ſhall ſee it, read it, hear it, and greatly rejoyce at it. The Diſciples caſting out Devils, return with Miracles in their Mouths, O Lord (ſay they) even Devils are ſubject to us through thy Name. True, (ſaith Chriſt) I ſaw Satan as lightening fall from heaven: notwithſtanding in this rejoyce not, that the ſpirits are ſubject unto you, but rather rejoyce becauſe your names are written in Heaven, Luke 10. 20. And well may the Saints rejoyce that have their names written in Gods Book, they ſhall ſee them (to their comfort) writ in letters of Gold, penned with the Almighties Finger, ingraven with a pen of a Diamond: thus will this Book give in the evidence, and accordingly will the Judge proceed to ſentence.

Luk. 10. 22.

Uſe 1. Conſider (thou that readeſt) what Books one day muſt be ſet before thee: a time will come when every thought of thy Heart, every word of thy Mouth, every glance of thy Eye, every moment of thy Time, every Office thou haſt born, every Company thou haſt uſed, every Sermon thou haſt heard, every Action thou haſt done, and every omiſſion of any Duty or good Deed thou haſt left undone, ſhall be ſeen in theſe Books at the firſt opening of them: thy conſcience ſhall then be ſuddenly, clearly, and univerſally enlarged with extraordinary light to look upon all thy life at once; Gods memory ſhall then ſhine forth, and ſhew it ſelf, when all men looking on it as a reflecting Glaſs, they ſhall behold all the paſſages of their miſ-ſpent lives from their Births to their Burials. Where is the wicked and deceitful man? Wilt thou commit thy Villanies, Treacheries, Robberies, Murthers, Debates, and Impieties? Let me tell thee (if ſo) to thy hearts Grief, and ſecret ſins and Cloſet-villanies, that no eye ever lookt upon (but that which is a thouſand times brighter than the Sun) ſhall then be diſcloſed, and laid open before Angels, Men, and Devils, and thou ſhalt then and there be horribly, univerſally, and everlaſtingly aſhamed: never therefore go about to commit any ſin, becauſe it is midnight, or that the doors are lockt upon thee: ſuppoſe it be concealed, and lye hid (in as great darkneſs as it was committed till Dooms-day again) yet then ſhall it out with a Witneſs, and be as legible in thy forehead, as if it were writ with the brighteſt Stars, or the moſt glittering Sun-beam upon a wall of Chryſtal.

Uſe 2. As you mean the good of your ſouls, amend your lives, call your ſelves to account while it is called to day, ſearch and examine all your Thoughts, Words, and Deeds, and proſtrating your ſelves before God, with broken and bleeding Affections, pray and ſue for aſſurance that your names are written in that Book of life.] This will be the joy of your Hearts, the peace of your Souls, the reſt of your Minds: yea, how glad will you then be to have * all theſe books laid open? By this means (I ſpeak it to the comfort of all true-hearted Chriſtians) ſhall your Obedience, and Repentance, and Faith, and Love, and Zeal, and Patience, &c. come to light and be known. God is not unrighteous to forget your works of Labour and Love. No, all muſt out, eſpecially at that day when the books ſhall be opened, our works manifeſted, and as we have done, ſo muſt we be rewarded; for then he ſhall reward every man according to his works.

* It is a queſtion, whether the ſins of Gods people ſhall be manifeſted at that day; ſome ſay, they ſhall be manifeſted, not for their ignominy or confuſion, but only that the goodneſs and grace of God may be made the more illuſtrious; and for this they urge, Matth. 12. 36. 2 Cor. 5. 10. Rev. 20. 12. Others ſay, they ſhall not be manifeſted. 1. Becauſe Chriſt in his ſentence only enumerates the good works they had done, but takes no notice of their ſins. 2. Becauſe this agrees beſt with thoſe Expreſſions, that God blotteth out our ſins, and that they are thrown into the bottom of the Sea. 3. Becauſe Chriſt is their Bridegroom, Friend, Advocate; and how ill would it become one in ſuch relations to accuſe or lay open their ſins? Which of theſe opinions is trueſt, is hard to ſay, Heb. 6. 10.

The books are opened, and now are the matters to be examined: there is firſt a view, and then a trial.

The Law-book whereby we are tried contains three leaves; Nature, the Law, and the Goſpel: the Gentiles muſt be tried by the firſt, the unbelieving Jews and Gentiles by the ſecond, and the faithful Jews and Gentiles by the laſt. Thoſe that confeſs no God by nature, muſt be judged by the law of Nature: thoſe that confeſs a God, no Chriſt, muſt be judged by the Law of God without the merits of Chriſt: thoſe that confeſs God the Father, and believe in the Son, ſhall be judged by the Goſpel, which reconcileth us to God the Father by the Merits of Chriſt. Atheiſts by the law of nature, Infidels by the law of God, Chriſtians by the Goſpel of our Saviour Chriſt. To the ſtatutes of the former who can anſwer? Our hope is in the latter, we appeal to the Goſpel, and by the Goſpel we ſhall have our tryal: Rom. 2. 12. They that have ſinned without the Law, ſhall periſh without the Law; and they that have ſinned under the Law, ſhall be judged by the Law. 16. But God ſhall judge the ſecrets of all hearts (of all our hearts) by Jeſus Chriſt according to my Goſpel; Rom. 2. 12, 16.

Uſe. Let this then forewarn us what we have to do: It is the Goſpel that will either throughly juſtifie thee, or extreamly condemn thee. The Spirit ſhall convince the World of ſin, (ſaith Chriſt) and why ſo? but becauſe they believe not on me, John 16. 9. There is no ſin, but Infidelity; no righteouſneſs, but Faith: not that Adultery, Intemperance, Malice are no ſins; but if unfaithfulneſs remain not, all theſe ſins are pardoned, and ſo they are as if they were no ſins indeed. How quick a riddance true repenting faith makes with our ſins? They are too heavy for our ſhoulders, and we cannot bear them; faith only turns them over unto Chriſt, and we are disburthened of them: whereas there would go with us to judgment an huge kennel of Luſts, an army of vain Words, a legion of evil Deeds, faith inſtantly diſchargeth them all, and kneeling down to Jeſus Chriſt, beſeecheth him to anſwer for them all, howſoever committed. O then make we much of Faith! but not of ſuch a Faith neither as goes alone without Works: it is nothing at this judgment to ſay, I have believed, and not well lived: The Goſpel requires both faith to believe, and obedience to work: not only to repent and believe the Goſpel, Mark 1. 15. but to obey from the heart that form of Doctrine, Rom. 16. 17. True indeed, thou ſhalt be ſaved for thy faith, not for thy works; but for ſuch a faith as is without works thou ſhalt never be ſaved; we ſay therefore, works are disjoyned from the act of juſtifying; not from the perſon juſtified: Heaven is given to us for Chriſts merits, but we muſt ſhew him the fair copy of our Lives. O then let this move us to abound in Knowledge, and Faith, and Repentance, and Love, and Zeal, and Cloathing, and Feeding, and Lodging the poor members of Chriſt Jeſus; and howſoever all theſe can merit nothing at Gods hands, yet will he crown his own gifts, and rewards them in his mercy. Say then, doſt thou relieve a poor member of Chriſt Jeſus? doſt thou give a cup of cold water to a Prophet, in the name of a Prophet? Chriſt doth promiſe thee of his truth he will not let thee loſe thy reward: certainly he will not, ſo thy works be done in faith: why, this is the covenant, the glad tidings of the Goſpel, to live well and believe well. O let not that which is a word of comfort to us, be a bill of Indictment to us! Albeit in our juſtification we may ſay, Be it to us according to our Faith; yet in our retribution it is ſaid (as you have it before you in this Text read unto you) Then he ſhall reward every man (for the manifeſtation of his faith) according to his works.

Vel te totaliter abſolvit, vel te capitaliter damnat. Joh. 16.9.

Mark 1.15.

Rom.6.17.

A juſtificando, non à juſtificato.

Mat. 10.42.

A little to recall our ſelves: The Priſoners are tried, the Verdict is brought in, the Indictment is found, and the Judge now ſits on life and death, even ready with ſparkling eyes to pronounce his ſentence. This we muſt defer a while, and the next time you ſhall hear what you have long expected. The Lord grant us an happy iſſue, that when this day is come, then ſentence may be for us, and we may be ſaved to our endleſs comfort.

Shall reward.

WHat Aſſize is this that affords each circumſtance of each priſoners tryal? The time is Then,] the Judge is He] the Priſoners Men,] the evidence Works] which no ſooner given in, but the ſentence follows, which is, to reward] every man according to his works.

This reward is nothing in effect but a retaliation; if we live well here, God will then crown his own gifts; but if we ſin without repentance, we may not eſcape without puniſhment. There is a God that ſits and ſees, and anon will reward us.

Non coronat Deus merita tua tanquam merita tua, ſed tanquam dona ſua, Aug. lib. de grat, & lib. arbit. cap. 7.

But to unfold this reward,] there lyes in it a { Doom, and Execution.

God ſpeaks it in the firſt, effects it in the ſecond: he gives it in our doom, and we receive it in the execution.

The doom is of two ſorts, according to the parties that receive it. One is an abſolution which is the doom of Saints: the other is a condemnation, which is the doom of reprobates: there is a reward on the right hand beſtowed on the bleſſed, and an heavy judgment which falls on the left hand upon the heads of the wicked.

To begin with that in our meditation, which our Saviour begins with in action: Imagine what a bleſſed day will this be to the godly, when ſtanding on the right hand of the Judge, they ſhall hear the heavenly muſick of their happy ſentence, Come, ye bleſſed of my Father, inherit the Kingdom prepared for you from the beginning of the world. Mat. 25. 34.

In which gracious ſpeech we may obſerve four gradations. Firſt, a gentle invitation, Come. Secondly, a ſweet benediction, Ye bleſſed of my father. Thirdly, heavens poſſeſſion, Inherit the Kingdom. Fourthly, a glorious ordination to felicity, Prepared for you from the beginning of the world.

Firſt you have, Come.] It is the ſweet voice of Chriſt inviting the Saints before, and now giving their welcome to his heavenly Canaan. He called often, Come, all that labour: Come, all that travel: The Spirit and the Bride ſay, Come, and let him that heareth ſay, Come, and let him that is athirſt come. Thus he calls all men to his grace, but only the elect to his glory: Now he deſires every man to come, but the righteous alone ſhall have this Welcome. O how leaps that ſoul with joy, that hears this Voice of her ſweet Saviour! all the muſick of Angels cannot ſo raviſh the mind, as this voice of our Saviour glads the ſoul; now are the gates of Heaven open, and the Judge, who is Maſter of the feaſt, bids the gueſts Come and Welcome.

Mat. 11. 28
Rev. 22. 17.

Mat. 5.

But who are they? Ye Bleſſed of my Father.] A word able to make them bleſſed, when pronounced. Down on your knees rebellious Sons; and ſo long as you live on earth, beg, pray, ſue for the bleſſing of your Father in Heaven. They that are Gods Servants, are no leſs his Sons; therefore every Morn, Night, and Noon, ask bleſſing boldly, and God will beſtow it liberally. The firſt Sermon that ever Chriſt preached was full of bleſſings, Matthew 5. Bleſſed are the poor in ſpirit. Bleſſed are they that mourn. Bleſſed are the meek. Bleſſed are the merciful. And as he begun, ſo he concludes, Come ye Bleſſed, ye Bleſſed of my Father.

Sic æterna ſine ſucceſſione, diſtributa ſine diminutione, communis ſine invidia, beata ſine omni miſeria.

Muſt they come? For what? To inherit the Kingdom.] Of all Tenures Inheritance is beſt, of all inheritances a Kingdom is moſt excellent; but that all ſhall inherit, and there is no ſcantling, this is Heavens wonder, and the Angels bliſs. An heavenly inheritance ſure, that is continued without ſucceſſion, divided without diminution, common without envy, for ever happy, and without all miſery. This is the inheritance of the juſt, the poſſeſſion whereof makes every Saint no leſs glorious than a King; Kings are they indeed, whoſe Dominions are not limited, nor their Borders bounded, nor their People numbred, nor the time of their Reign preſcribed. Such glorious things are ſpoken of thee, O thou City of God.

Luk. 12.23

Is this their Inheritance? But upon what right? It is prepared for you from the beginning of the world.] Had the Lord ſuch care to provide for his Children before they were? How may his Sons triumph when born to ſuch dignity? God will ſo certain their Salvation, that he hath prepared it for them from before the foundation of the World. O bleſſed Souls, if you be God's Servants! though a while you ſuffer ſorrow and tribulation, yet here is the hope of Saints, It is your Fathers good pleaſure to give you the Kingdom. Heaven is prepared of old, there is the place of God's Majeſty, and there the Saints of God ſhall receive the Crown, the reward of Victory.

Uſe.

I cannot expreſs what this Joy affords to the one half of it. Come, bleſſed Souls bathed in repenting tears; here is a ſentence able to revive the dead, much more the afflicted. Are you now ſorrowing for your ſins? Leave it a while, and meditate with me on this enſuing melody. Hear yonder a Quire of Angels, a Song of Sion, an heavenly Conſort, ſounding to the Judge whilſt he is pronouncing of thy Sentence. Bleſſed Souls! how pant you dancing at the uttering of each ſyllable? Come] ſaith our Saviour, and if he but ſay, Come, joy, happineſs, glory, felicity, all come on heaps into the indeared ſoul. Ye bleſſed] ſaith our Saviour, and if he but ſay, Bleſſed, the Angels, Archangels, Cherubims, Seraphims, all joy at the enjoying of this bleſſed company. Inherit the Kingdom] ſaith our Saviour, and if he but ſay, Inherit, Crowns, Scepters, Garlands, Diadems, all theſe are the inheritance of God's adopted Children. Prepared for you] ſaith our Saviour, and if he but ſay, Prepared, the Love, Mercy, Election, Compaſſion of our Lord will ſhine forth to the ſoul, to her everlaſting comfort. O raviſhing voice! I charge you, O daughters of Jeruſalem, if you find my well beloved, that you tell him I am ſick of Love. What elſe? you that are God's ſervants, are no leſs his Spouſe; your Soul is the Bride, and when the day is come (this day of doom) God give you joy, the joy of heaven for ever and ever.

Cant. 5.8.

But I muſt turn to the left hand, and ſhew you another crew prepared for another Sentence.

Iſa. 30.27.

Mat.25.41

And what a terrible Sentence will that be, which at firſt hearing will make all ears glow and tingle? His lips (ſaith the Prophet) are full of indignation, and his tongue like a conſuming fire, Iſaiah 30. 27. What fire ſo hot as that fiery ſentence? Depart ye curſed, into everlaſting fire prepared for the Devil and his Angels? Here is every particular full of horror, gradually inhancing their judgment. Firſt, a grievous refuſal, Depart. Secondly, the loſs of ſalvation, from me. Thirdly, that deſerved malediction, ye curſed. Fourthly, the horror of pains, into everlaſting fire. Fifthly, the pre-ordinance of their torments, prepared for the Devil and his Angels.

Firſt, They muſt depart.] This ſeems nothing to the wicked now: Depart. They are contented to be gone; much more delight have they in ſin than in God's ſervice. But as when a gracious Prince opening his long-lookt up Treaſury, bids in ſome to receive, but others to depart, this muſt needs be a diſgraceful vexation; ſo, when the Glory of Heaven, and thoſe of unvaluable Treaſures ſhall be opened, and dealt about to the faithful, what horror will it be to the reprobates to be caſt off with a depart? No ſhare accrues to them, no not ſo much as one glimpſe of glory muſt chear their dejected countenances; but as ill-meriting followers, they are thruſt from the Gates with this Watch-word to be gone, Depart.

But whence? There is the loſs, from me,] and if from me, then from all that is mine; my Mercy, my Glory, my Salvation. Here is an univerſal ſpoil of all things; of God, in whom is all goodneſs; of the Saints, in whom is all ſolace; of the Angels, in whom is all happineſs; of Heaven, wherein all pleaſures live ever and ever. Whither, O Lord, ſhall the curſed go that depart from thee? into what Heaven ſhall they arrive? What maſter ſhall they ſerve? Is it thought ſo great a puniſhment to be baniſhed from our native Soils? what then is this to be baniſhed from Almighty God? and whither, but into a place of horror? to whom, but to a curſed crew of howling reprobates? Depart from me.

Pſ.109.17.

Who are they? Ye curſed] Chriſt hath before invited you with Bleſſings, but theſe refuſed, now take you the curſed to your deſpight: The wicked man (ſaith the Prophet) as he hath loved curſing, ſo let it come unto him; hath he loved it? let him take his love: As he hath cloathed himſelf with curſing as with a garment, ſo let it come into his bowels like water, and like Oyl into his bones, Pſal. 109. 18. No ſooner our Saviour curſed the Fig-tree, but leaves and boughs, body and root, all wither away, and never any more fruit grows thereon; and thus ſhall the wicked have a curſe, like the Ax, which put to the Mat. 3. 10. root of the Tree, ſhall hew it down, and be caſt into the fire. Go ye curſed.

But whether muſt they go? Into everlaſting fire.] O what a bed is this for delicate and dainty perſons? no feathers but fire; no friends but furies; no eaſe but fetters; no light but ſmoak; no Chimes nor Clock to paſs away the night, but timeleſs Eternity. A fire? Intolerable; a fire burning, never dying? O immortal pains! Iſa. 33. 14. Which of you (ſaith the Prophet) is able to dwell in the burning fire? who can endure the everlaſting flames? It ſhall not be quenched night nor day, the ſmoak thereof ſhall go up for evermore; Iſa. 30. 33. The pile is fire, and much wood, and the breath of the Lord like a river of Brimſtone kindles it. What torment, what calamity can be compared with the ſhadow of this? The wicked muſt be crowded together like Brick in a fiery Furnace: there is no ſervant to fan cold air on their tormented parts, not ſo much as a chink, where the leaſt puff of wind might enter in to cool them; it is a fire, an everlaſting fire.

For whom? prepared for the Devil and his Angels;] heavy company for diſtreſſed ſouls: The Serpent's policy could not eſcape hell, nor can the craft of our Age ſo deal with this Serpent as thereby to prevent this fire; it was ſure prepared for ſome, as ſome have prepared themſelves for it; burning in luſt, in malice, in revenge, until themſelves, their luſt, malice, revenge, and all Iſa. 30. 33. burn together in hell. Tophet is prepared of old, whither that Day-ſtar is fallen from Heaven, and and a black crew of Angels guard him round in that lake of Hell: There muſt theſe howling Reprobates keep their reſidence; the laſt ſentence that never is recalled, is now pronounced: What? Go? Who? ye curſed; Whither? into everlaſting fire; To what company? to a crew of Devils and their Angels. O take heed that ye live in God's fear! leſt that leaving his Service, he give you this reward, Depart ye curſed.

Uſe. And is not this worthy your meditation? Conſider, I pray you, what fearful tremblings ſeize on their Souls that have their Sentence for eternal flames, If a Lord have mercy on thee, Take him away Jaylor, will cauſe ſuch ſhedding of tears, folding of arms and wringing of hands, what will this Sentence do, Go ye curſed, &c. O which way will they turn? or how will they eſcape the Almighty's wrath? To go backward is impoſſible, to go forwards intolerable; whoſe help will they crave? God is their judge, Heaven their Foe, the Saints deride them, Angels hate them, all Creatures cry for vengeance on them. Good Lord! what a world of miſery hath ſeized on theſe miſerable Souls! Their Executioners are Devils, the Dungeon Hell, the Earth ſtands open, and the cruel Furnace ready boiling to receive them: Into what a ſhaking fit of diſtractions will theſe terrors drive them? Every part ſhall bear a part in this doleful Ditty, Eyes weep, Hands wring, Breaſts beat, Hearts ake, Voices cry, Horror, Dread; Terror, Confuſion are lively Equipages of this Tragick Scene. Now (O Man of Earth) what will all thy wealth avail thee? what can all thy Pleaſures profit thee? one drop of water to cool thy fiery tongue in hell is more worth than a world of Treaſures; all the Gold and precious Stones the World affords will not buy one Bottle of Water: all thy golden Gods and ſilver Plates cannot prevail for one dram of comfort; but rather as they were thy bane on Earth, ſo will they aggravate thy pain in Hell. Who pities not the vileſt Creature, to ſee it ſuffer torments, and no way to releaſe it? Who then will not pity this end of the Wicked, when they muſt ſuffer and ſuffer, yet never feel eaſe of pain, nor end of torments? A Sentence not to be revoked, yet unſufferably to be endured; torment on torment, anguiſh on anguiſh, fire upon fire, and though a River (nay, a Sea) of tears drop from their eyes, yet cannot one ſpark be quenched. The worm never dies, the fire never Mark 9. 44 goes out. Go ye into everlaſting fire, not piled of conſuming wood, or the black moulds turning to white aſhes; but kindled by the Judge's breath, of Pitch and Sulphur; Rivers of boiling Brimſtone run from everlaſting ſprings: in theſe hot Baths was that Dives divided, when thoſe fiery words came flaming from his mouth as ſpitting fire: Let Lazarus dip the tip of his Luk. 16. 24 finger in water to cool my tongue: Alaſs, what ſhould a drop of water do on a finger, when Rivers cannot quench the tip of his tongue? He lies on a Bed of never dying flames, where Brimſtone is the Fewel, Devils the Kindlers, the Breath of an offended God the Bellows, and Hell the Furnace, where Body and Soul muſt ever lie and fry in ſchorching torments O let the heat of theſe flames quench the heat of our ſin: if once the Sentence paſs, there is no reprive to be hoped for; this is the laſt Day of Doom, when our ſins muſt be revealed, our Reward proportioned, and as we have done, ſo we muſt be ſentenced: for Then he ſhall] reward ever man according to his work.

Thus you have heard the Sentence of the juſt and wicked; and now is the Judge ariſing from his glorious Seat; the Saints that were invited guard him along, and the ſentenced Priſoners are delivered to the Jaylors to be bound in burning Steel and Iron; the reward of execution.

The Sentence being paſt in all preſcribed order, the Execution muſt needs follow: but as there is a double Sentence, ſo a double retribulation: Firſt, for the wicked, who immediately after the ſentence ſhall be chaſed into hell, the Execution being ſpeedily and fearfully done upon them, with all horror and haſte by the Angels. O what a ſcriech of horrour will be heard? what woes and lamentations will be uttered, when Devils and Reprobates and all the damned crew of hell ſhall be driven into hell, whereinto they ſhall be thruſt with violence, never to return again? How deſperate is their caſe, when none will comfort them? The Saints deride them, Angels mock them, their own friends ſcoff them, Devils hate them, the Earth groans under them, and hell will ſwallow them. Down they go howling, and ſhrieking, and gnaſhing their teeth, the effect of a moſt impatient fury. The World leaves them, the Earth forſakes them, Hell entertains them, there they muſt live and die, and yet not live nor die, but dying live, and living die; death in life, live in death, miſerable ever. If the drowning of the old world, ſwallowing up of Korah and his Complices, burning up of Sodom with brimſtone, were attended with ſuch terrors and hideous out-cries, how infinitely tranſcendent to all poſſibility of conceit, expreſſion, or belief, will the confuſions and tremblings of that red-dread-fiery day be? It is not a few, but many; nor many only, but all the wicked of the earth, being many millions of men, ſhall be dragged down, with all the Devils of hell to torments without end, or eaſe, or paſt imagination; then, to ſpeak it again, that I may the deeper imprint it in your minds and memories; ſure there was horrible ſhrieking when thoſe five filthy Cities firſt felt fire and brimſtone drop down upon their heads; when thoſe Rebels ſaw the ground cleave aſunder, and themſelves and all theirs go down quick into the pit, when all the Sons and Daughters of Adam found the Flood riſing and ready to overflow them all at once. But the moſt horrid cry that ever was heard, or ever ſhall be heard in Heaven or on Earth, in this World, or in the World that is to come, will be then when all the forlorn condemned Reprobates upon ſentence given, ſhall be violently and unreſiſtibly haled down to hell; neither ſhall any tears, or prayers, or promiſes, or ſuits, or cries, or yellings, or calling upon Rocks and Mountains, or wiſhes never to have been, or now to be made nothing, be then heard, or prevail in their behalf; nay (yet more to encreaſe their torments) there is not one in Earth or Heaven that will ſpeak one word in their behalf; but without mercy, without ſtay, without any farewel at all, they ſhall be immediately and irrecoverably caſt down into the bottomleſs pit of eaſeleſs, endleſs and remedileſs torments. Oh! what then will be the gnawings of the never-dying Worm? what rage of guilty Conſciences? what furious deſpair? what horrour of mind? what diſtractions and fear? what tearing their hair and gnaſhing of teeth? In a word, what wailling, weeping, roaring, yelling, filling heaven and earth and hell? O miſerable Caitiffs, catcht and wrapt in the ſnares of Satan! What need we more? This is the Judge's Charge, the Sheriff's Mat.22.13. Commiſſion, the Sinner's Execution, Take them away, caſt them into utter darkneſs, there ſhall be weeping and gnaſhing of teeth. A darkneſs indeed, that muſt ever be debarred from the ſight of heaven: no Sun-ſhine ever peeps within thoſe walls, no Light, no Fire, no Candle? alas! nothing is there but Clouds and Darkneſs, thick Smoke, and fiery Sulphur; and ſuch is the Portion of ſinners, the Reward of the wicked.

Uſe. What Faith or Fear have the wicked that go dancing and leaping to this fire, as it were to a Prov. 7.22. Banquet? or like Solomon's Fool, that runneth, and ſwiftly runneth to the Stocks? Is this our pleaſure, to ſin a while, and burn for ever? for one ſmall ſpark of ſilly Joy, to ſuffer univerſal and perpetual pains? Who buyes at ſo dear a rate? Iſa. 24.17, 18, 19, 20, 22. Fear, and the pit, and the ſnare are upon thee, O Inhabitant of the Earth; and he that fleeth from the noiſe of the fear, ſhall fall into the pit; and he that cometh up out of the pit, ſhall be taken in the ſnare; for the windows from on high are open, and the foundations of the earth do ſhake: the earth is utterly broken down, the earth is clean diſſolved, the earth is moved exceedingly, the earth ſhall reel to and fro like a drunken man, and ſhall be removed like a Tent, and the iniquity thereof ſhall be heavy upon it, ſo that it ſhall fall and riſe no more, Iſa, 24. 17. O miſerable fear to the wicked! If the Earth fall, how ſhall the Sinner ſtand? Nay, They ſhall be gathered together as priſoners in the pit, and ſhall be ſhut up in the priſon, never more to be viſited, releaſed, or comforted. Be forewarned then (beloved leſt you alſo come into this place of torment. Luke. 16. 28. It is a fearful Priſon, and God give us Grace ſo to arraign, judge, caſt and condemn our ſelves here, that we may eſcape this Execution of the damned hereafter.

I have no will to end with Terror: Then to ſweeten your thoughts with the Joy of Saints, look upwards, and you may ſee a bleſſed company.

After the wicked are caſt down into hell, Chriſt and the bleſſed Saints aſcend into heaven. From the Tribunal Seat of Judgment Chriſt ſhall ariſe, and with all the glorious Company of Heaven, march toward the Heaven of Heavens. O what a comely March is this? What Songs of Triumph are here ſung and warbled? Iſa. 52. 8. The voice of the Watchmen ſhall be heard, they ſhall lift up their voice and ſhout together; for they ſhall ſee eye to eye, when the Lord ſhall bring again Sion, Iſa. 52. 8. Here is a Victory indeed, the Souldiers in arrayed Order both marching and triumphing; Chriſt leads the way, the Cherubims attend, the Seraphims burn in love, Angels, Arch-angels, Principalities, Powers, Patriarchs, Prophets, Prieſts, Evangeliſts, Martyrs, Profeſſors, and Confeſſors of God's Law and Goſpel, following, attend the Judge and King of Glory; ſinging with Melody, as never ear hath heard, ſhining with Majeſty, as never eye hath ſeen, rejoicing without meaſure, as never heart conceived. O bleſſed Train of Souldiers, goodly Troop of Captains! each one doth bear a Palm of Victory in his hands, each one muſt wear a Crown of Glory on his head; the Church militant is now Triumphant; with a final overthrow have they conquered Devils, and now muſt they enjoy God, Life and Heaven: and thus as they march along, Heaven opens unto them: O infinite Joy! Tell me, O my Soul, what an happy hour will that be, when thou ſhalt firſt enter into the gates of heaven, when the bleſſed Trinity ſhall gladly entertain thee, and with a Well done good and faithful Servant, bid thee come and enter into thy Mat 25.2. Maſters Joy: when all the Angels and Archangels ſhall ſalute thee; when Cherubims and Seraphims ſhall come to meet thee; when all the Powers of heaven ſhall congratulate thy coming, and joy for thy arrival at the Port of Peace! Here is the end of the godly, the fruits of his end, the Reward it ſelf. What can I ſay? but live in God's fear, and the Lord reward you; nay, he will ſo. If you live ſo; for Then he ſhall reward every man according to his works.

And now this Sermon done, you ſee the Court is diſſolved: Stay but to receive a Writ of Review, and you ſhall hear in a word all the News of this Aſſize, from the beginning to the ending.

What a ſtrange Aſſize was this, where every circumſtance was to the wicked ſo terribly fearful? the Term full of horror, the Judge full of Majeſty, the Priſoners full of anguiſh, the Trial full of fear, the Doom full of grief to the wicked, as of comfort to the elect. 2Pet 3 11. Seeing therefore that all theſe things are thus, what manner of perſons ought ye to be in holy converſation and godlineſs? A word of Judgment could make Jeremiah weep, juſt Job be afraid, Felix to tremble? and cannot this uſual ſound of the hammers a little mollifie our ſtony hearts? How Iſa. 1. 22. is the gold become droſs, and the ſilver Iron? We run over Reaſon, and tread upon Conſcience, and fling by Counſel, and go by the Word, and poſt to Death, but will you not remember, that for all theſe things you muſt come to judgment? Be ſure Eccl,11.9. there is a Term for our appearance, Then;] there is a Judge that will ſit upon us, He;] there is a band of Priſoners, Every man;] there is a Bill of Indictment framed, according to our works;] and laſt of all, there is a Sentence, after which follows the Execution, the reward] due to us, which then he will give us; only now beſtow on us thoſe Graces of thy Spirit, and then (O Lord) reward us according to our works. Amen.

HELL's HORROR.

MATT. 13. 30.

Bind them in Bundles to burn them.

THis Text is the Harveſt of Tares, and that you may know the Huſbandry, here is firſt, the ſowing, ver. 25. Secondly, the coming up, ver. 26. Thirdly, the Overſeers of it, ver. 27. Fourthly, their intent to weed it, ver. 28. Fifthly, the ſufferance of its growth till the harveſt, verſe 29. Sixthly, the harveſt it ſelf, verſe 30. Or yet to give you the Parable in a more ample wiſe, here is a man ſows good ſeed in his field, and the enemy, whilſt his ſervants ſleep, ſows tares amongſt the wheat: The Seeding done, and the fertil ſoyl made fruitful by heavens ſhowers, the blade of the corn ſprings up, and the tares appear in their kinds amongſt them; thoſe heavenly Angels, which are God's ſtewards of this field, pitching their watchful eyes about, firſt ſee, then run to their Maſter with this meſſage, Maſter, ſowedſt thou not good ſeed in thy field? from whence then hath it tares? God, whoſe all-knowing wiſdom can reſolve all doubts, tells them expreſly, an Enemy hath done this; an Enemy ſure? yea, as Peter calls him a devouring Enemy: Such is the Fruit iſſuing from ſo bad an Author. Yet ſee the ſedulous care of God's holy ſervants, they will not ſpare to root up what Envy ſowes, and with a willing obedience expect only his Command; Wilt thou that we go and gather them up? Nay ſee the Almighty diſparkling a while his beams of Mercy; all muſt ſtay till the harveſt, and then goes forth his Royal Command to the Reaper; Gather ye together firſt the tares, and bind them in Bundles to burn them.

Ver.25,26, 27,28,29, 30.

Pet. 5. 8.

But, methinks, I hear you ſay to me, as the Diſciples to our Saviour, Declare unto us this Parable; for the doing of which, I ſhall place before you a Field, the World; the Reapers, Angels; the Houſholder, God; good men, as Corn; the wicked, as Tares; the Harveſt that muſt gather all, is the end of the world; and then are the Reapers enjoyned this heavy taſk, Separate the bad from the good, and caſt them into hell-fire to burn them.

See here the miſerable condition of impenitent ſouls, each circumſtance aggravates their torment; and that you may in this Text view a Series of the Cauſes, here is firſt the Efficient, Bind;] the Material, them;] the Formal, in Bundles;] the Final, to burn them;] Every word, like ſo many links, makes up this fiery chain of torment, Bind] heavy doom to be fettered in hell-fire! them:] miſerable Souls to be captivated in thoſe bands! in bundles:] cruel anguiſh to be crowded in heaps! to burn them:] intolerable heats, to be ſcorched, bliſtered, burned! And yet ſee here at once this heavy, miſerable, cruel, intolerable doom fall on the wicked? The Command is out; What? Bind,] Whom? Them, [How? in bundles,] For what? to burn them.] Not a word, but it ſpeaks horror to the damned, either binding, or bundling, or burning: Bind them in bundles to burn them.

The work you ſee, is ordered; now we put in our ſicle: only God proſper our labour, till we have done the Harveſt.

Them.]

WE will begin firſt with the ſubject, that you may know of whom it is ſpoken, Bind them;] Them? whom? If you will view the precedent words, the Text tells you they are Tares, Gather ye firſt the Tares, and bind them. In Gods field there is Corn and Cockle, and as for the one there is provided a Barn, ſo for the other there is nothing better than binding and burning.

The Greek word calls them ζιζάνια tares; the Hebrews call them Hadul, thiſtles or thorns; and both are apt expreſſions of the matter in hand: what are tares for, but to be gathered, bound, and burned, ſaith our Saviour? and what are thorns for, but to be rejected, curſed, and burned, ſaith the Apoſtle? Heb. 6. 8. Such is the penalty of this weed of the earth (for they are neither better) that as men deal with thorns, who firſt cut them up with Bills, then lay them up to wither; and laſtly, burn them in the furnace: ſo God deals with Tares, he weeds them, binds them, burns them; not a Tare eſcapes the fire, but all come to combuſtion. Heb. 6. 8.

But only to follow the Original, they are called τὰ ζιζάνια, Tares: and that of a double derivation, the firſt is, ζιζάνιον, quaſi, σιτάνιον, παρὰ τὸ τ̃ σίτον σίνειν, becauſe they hurt the corn wherewith they are joyned; the ſecond is, ζιζάνιον, quaſi τῷ σίτῳ ἰζάνον, becauſe they imitate, aſſociate, and ſo unite them- ſelves with the corn, as if they were the very ſame. To begin with the laſt,

We all come together to the Church, and amongſt us are Tares and Wheat, good and bad; in all companies there will be evil Intruders, Satan amongſt the Angels, Saul among the Prophets, Judas among the Apoſtles, Demas among the Profeſſors; yet who can diſcern the Tares, but God alone who knows our hearts? Hypocrites can work diſſimulation in a web, and this ſo cunningly is platted, that no difference is diſcerned: ſuch are hot meteors in the Air, which ſhoot and ſhew like Stars, but are indeed nothing leſs: your eyes may be fixed on Heaven, your ears all liſtening to this Sermon: yet (as I condemn none, ſo) I never knew, but Darnel hath ever been in Gods field. The Church Chriſt calls a net, an houſe, a floor, a field: a net that takes Fiſh, good and bad: an houſe, that harbors veſſels of wrath and honour: a floor, whereon is poured Wheat and Chaff; a field, wherein is ſowed Corn and Cockle: Thus good and bad Seed are a while as that Treaſure hid in the Field, which cannot be diſcovered: But is there not a God that ſearcheth both the Heart and Reins? Be not deceived, ye deceivers of the World! God is not mocked; it is not a falſe heart with a fair look, it is not a meer ſhew of Religion which God accepts: Silly Tares, hide cloſe your ſins in the darkeſt furrows, or mount up your heads amongſt the flouriſhing Wheat, yet know there is a Fan that will purge the floor; you would grow, and you ſhall grow till the Harveſt: God ſuffers that Seed till the Fruit grows ripe, but then, gather the Tares, and bind them (wicked diſſemblers) bind them in Bundles to Burn them.

Matth. 13. 44.
Gal. 6. 7.
Mat. 13. 12

Secondly, as the Tares are Hypocritical, ſo are they hurtful; they ſeem at unity, but are at enmity with the Wheat about them: And theſe Tares are either Hereticks, as moſt Fathers underſtood them; or any ſinner whoſoever, that is a Child of the wicked one, as our Saviour did expound them.

Verſe 38.

Firſt, they are Hereticks, wicked Tares indeed; and that you may know who are theſe: Αἵρεσις is a choice, or election; at firſt a good word in Philoſophy, taken for a right form of learning: but now in Divinity it is a word of diſgrace, and intends a Stubborn diviation from the received truth. This infection (like the Tares) firſt begins whiles men ſleep, the Paſtors negligence gives way unto it, and becauſe of its little ſeed, or ſmall beginning, it is never heeded, or regarded, till the whole houſe be infected: thus Popery crept up in the dark, like a thief putting out the lights, that he might rob the houſe more ſecurely; and as it began with a little, ſo it went on by degrees, till an univerſal Apoſtaſie, was (as it were) over the face of the Word. Auſtine ſaith of Arius his hereſie, It was at firſt a little Spark, but it ſpread ſo at laſt, that the flame of it ſinged the whole World: ſo the Pope roſe by degrees, firſt above Biſhops, then above Patriarchs, then above Councils, then above Kings, then above Scriptures; even ſo the Apoſtle ſpeaks of Antichriſt, He hath exalted himſelf above all that is called God, 2 Theſ. 2. 4. Hereſies creeps in a little Hole, like a Plague that comes in at the Windows, and then propagates it ſelf beyond all meaſure: O that theſe Tares were weeded, that Iſhmael were caſt out of doors, ſo that Sarah and her ſon Iſaac might live in quiet and peace; or if they muſt grow until the harveſt, what remains, but, I beſeech you, brethren, mark them which cauſe diviſions, and offences, contrary to the doctrine that ye have learned, and avoid them.

Una ſcintilla fuit. Totum orbem ejus flamma populata eſt.
2 Theſ. 2. 4.
Rom. 16. 17.

But as Hereticks, ſo all Reprobates are the Tares here ſpoken of, they are offenders on all hands, both in doctrine and converſation; and thus our Saviour interprets, The good ſeed are the children of the Kingdom, but the Tares are the children of the wicked one, Verſe 38. And moſt fitly are the reprobates called Tares in reſpect of their { Intruſion here.

Verſe 38.

Separation hereafter.

Firſt, as the Tares grow amongſt Corn, ſo the wicked all their life aſſociate themſelves with the Godly; the Church (ſaith Auſtine) is full both of Wheat and Chaff: I avoid the chaff leſt I become chaff, but I keep the floor leſt I become nothing. What elſe? in this life the beſt company is not free from the intruſion of tares; therefore cries David, Wo is me that I am conſtrained to dwell with Meſech, and to have my habitation among the tents of Kedar, Pſal. 120. 4. No greater diſcomfort than to co-habit with the wicked: are they not pricks in your eyes, and thorns in your ſides? yea, they are thorns indeed, ſaith the Lord to Ezekiel, Lo, the thorns and bryers are with thee, and thou doſt dwell among Scorpions, Ezek. 2. 6. Sure we had no need of ſecurity, that are thus compaſt with Enemies, the Briers may ſcratch us, the Thorns prick us, the Scorpions ſting us, we can hardly ſo eſcape, but ſome of theſe will hurt us. A good man with ill company, is like a living man bound to a dead Corps, and (may I appeal to your ſelves) is the living likely to revive the dead? or the dead more like to ſuffocate the living? O ye children of the Kingdom, bleſs you whiles you live; lo, the tares are among you like Wolves amongſt Lambs; be wiſe then in your carriage, and ſave your ſelves, your own ſouls.

Fugio paleam ne hoc ſim; non aream, ne nihil ſim. Auguſtin.
Pſal. 120. 4.
Numb. 33. 55.
Ezek 2. 6.

Secondly, as the tares, ſo reprobates ſhall one day be ſeparated from the Wheat, the good: In time of Harveſt (ſaith our Saviour) I will ſay to the reapers, gather ye firſt the tares: Here is that woful ſeparation between true Chriſtians, and the profane wretches of this World. It is begun at death, and then muſt they part till the day of doom; but when that comes, there muſt be a final ſeparation; He ſhall ſit upon the throne of his glory, and before him ſhall be gathered all nations, and he ſhall ſeparate them one from another, as a ſhepherd divideth his ſheep from the goats, Matthew 25 32. Here is a ſeparation indeed, not for a Day, or a Year, but for timeleſs Eternity. Lo a vaſt and immeaſurable gulf betwixt Heaven and Hell, ſo that as Abraham tells the rich man, They that would paſs from hence to you cannot, neither can they paſs to us, that would paſs from thence, Luke 16. 26. This is that endleſs divorce of the Wheat and Tares, this is that unpaſſable diſtance 'twixt Heaven and Hell, through all Eternity. O miſerable Tares! what a loſs hath befallen you? now you live with the Wheat, and you o'retop them, trouble them, vex them with your Society; but hereafter you muſt ſhake hands for ever; for the wheat muſt be gathered into Gods barn, his Kingdom, whileſt the miſerable Tares are gathered by Angels, and bound up in bundles for the burning.

Matth. 25. 31, 32.
Luk. 16. 26.

Lo here a world of tares, and that I may give you them in a Map, what are they but Hypocrites, Hereticks, Reprobates? all children whatſoever, that have Satan to their father; for of them] is this ſpoken.

Uſe. The Proverb is, Ill weeds grow apace, nay, they are ſo common, that it is hard to ſet the foot beſides them. Look into your Hearts, you Sons and Daughters of Adam, are not your furrows full of Cockle and Darnel; the earth (ſaith the Philoſopher) is now an own Mother to Weeds, but a ſtep-mother to good Herbs; man of his own inclination is apt to produce Weeds and Tares, but ere he can bring forth Herbs and Graces, God muſt take pains with him indeed. No husbandman ſo labours his grounds, as God doth our hearts: happy earth that yields him an expected harveſt; and that our hearts may be herein, what ſhall we ſay unto thee, O thou preſerver Cant.4.16. of men? Awake, O north-wind: and come, thou ſouth, blow upon my garden, that the ſpices thereof may flow out, yea let my beloved come into his Garden, and eat his pleaſant fruits, Canticles 4. 16.

And yet again, that I may weed the Tares amongſt us, conſider with your ſelves, you that go on in your ſins, will you run upon ruine, and can we ſay nothing to keep you out of the fire? O ſweet Saviour! what didſt thou endure for us, that we might eſcape this durance? and yet we are ſecure, and care not, vilifying that blood that was of more value than a world. Think of it, you that are in the blade, ere the harveſt come: No man deſires to purchaſe land, that will bring forth nothing but Weeds: and ſhall God buy ſo baſe a ground, that will be no better, at ſo ineſtimable a price, as the incorruptible blood of his only Son? O ye weeds of the Earth turn your ſelves, or be ye turned into wheat; call, and ſue, and cry for the mercy of God in Chriſt our Saviour: yea again, and again, beg of your Jeſus that he may root up your Weed, and plant in you his Graces, that like good corn you may fructiſy here, and when the harveſt comes, you may be gathered into the barn and remain in his Kingdom.

Thus far you ſee the priſoners; the next point is the chains wherewith theſe priſoners, are bound: but of that hereafter. Remember in the mean time the Tares, and as good ſeed, bring ye forth good fruit, ſome thirty, ſome ſixty, ſome an hundred fold, that when the reaping comes, we may be ready for the barn, and then, Lord Jeſus come when thou wilt, even, Lord Jeſu, come quickly, Amen.

Bind.]

THe malefactor, whoſe hands are pinion'd, legs chain'd, feet corded, may lye reſtleſs in his Thoughts, eaſeleſs in all Parts: the wicked are caſt into a priſon under lock and bolts, where the Devil is jaylor, Hell the priſon, and the bolts ſuch other as burning Steel and Iron. See here a jaylor, jayle, and manacles, all which are provided for the damned: and becauſe of their relation each to other, give me leave to produce them in their order.

The Tares muſt be bound, and for the executing of this doom, the Judge here delivers them over to the jaylor. Jaylor? whom? good and bad Angels; for both theſe are the executioners of Gods direful ſentence.

First the good Angels; ſo ſaith our Saviour, Mat.13.39 The reapers are the Angels, ver. 39. and he will ſay unto the reapers, ver. 30. Gather ye firſt the Tares, Verſ 30. and bind them up in bundles. They which are all mercy to the good, are here the executioners of Gods judgments on the wicked. Thus was Sodom Gen. 19. deſtroyed by an Angel, Gen. 19. The army of Sennacherib 2 King.19. was overthrown by an Angel, 2 King 19. Seventy thouſand men of Iſrael were ſtruck with Peſtilence by an Angel, 2 Sam. 24. Blaſphemous 2 Sam. 24. Herod was ſmitten by an Angel, Act. 12. 23. Act.12.23. Yea the Tares themſelves muſt be gathered by Angels, who will bind them in heaps like faggots, and then caſt them into Hell-fire to burn them.

How fearful is it to fall into the hands of Gods hoſt? no power can reſiſt, no policy prevail, all the Stratagems of war are but folly to Gods wiſdom; then into what moats and atoms ſhall the proud duſt of ſinful man be torn? what dares he ſtruggle againſt Heaven? See God and Angels are become his enemies, and whoſe help ſhould he have, when Heaven it ſelf makes war? Mountains and Rocks are no defence againſt God: ſhields and ſpears cannot keep ſafe the Tares? no, God hath his warriours that will pluck, and tear, and tortour reprobates: the Angels are his reapers, that muſt gather the Tares, and bind] them in bundles to burn them.

But ſecondly, good and bad Angels both joyn in this office to bind the Tares: if there be any difference, it is in this, the good Angels begin, and the bad continue, to make the binding everlaſting. Here is a jaylor indeed, and if you would ſee him in his form, you may take the deſcription from that great Leviathan, Job 41. 18. Job 41.18, 19, 20, 21. By his neeſings a light doth ſhine, and his eyes are like the eye-lids of the morning, out of his mouth go burning lamps; and ſparks of fire leap out; out of his noſtrils goeth ſmoke as out of a Seething-pot or Cauldron; his breath kindleth coals, and a flame goeth out of his mouth, Job 41. 18, 19, 20, 21. What an ugly Devil is this, whom God only myſtically deſcribes with ſuch terrible Shapes? his neeſing Flames, his Eyes ſtare, his Mouth ſhoots fire, his Noſtrils ſmoke, his very Breath ſets all a burning round about him. Such a jaylor hath God prepared for Hell-priſoners. As God hath fettered him, ſo he lays fetters on them, revenging his own malice on his fellow-ſufferers. The Devil firſt tempts, and then he fetters Tares: whiles men live on earth, he lays ſnares for ſouls: thus he prepared Flatterers for Rehoboam, Liars for Ahab, Concubines for Solomon, Sorcerers for Pharoah, Witches for Saul, Wine for Benhadad, Gold for Achan, a Ship for Jonas, and a Rope for Haman: but he that makes Gins, and Nets, and Snares on Earth, makes Bolts, and Hammers, and Whips in Hell; thus he hath prepared Darkneſs for Herod, a Fire for Dives, Plagues for Pilate, Brimſtone for Judas, Snares for Demas, and fiery Fetters for all Reprobate Tares: What need poor ſouls any farther Fetters, whom the Devil once ſhuts within his Den! dare you live in ſuch a neſt amongſt ſpeckled Poyſons? there Serpents girdle the Loins, and Cockatrices kill with their Eyes, and Dragons ſpit fire from their Mouths, and Wolves all devour mens ſouls, and Lions roar for the Prey, and Vipers ſting and ſtrike with their Tails: O fearful Jaylors! what ſtrange kind of furies live in Hell?

You ſee the Jaylor, now turn your eyes from ſo bad a ſpectacle, and let us view the den where this Monſter lyes.

The Hebrews call it Sheol, a great Ditch or Dungeon; the Greeks Ζόφος, even darkneſs it ſelf; the Latines Infernus, a place under ground: all agree it is a Dungeon under earth, containing these two properties; { Deepneſs. Darkneſs.

1. It is deep: as Heaven is high, ſo (moſt probable it is) that Hell is deep. John calls it a bottomleſs pit, Revel. 9. 1. as if Reprobates were always falling, yet never could find bottom where to reſt; or howſoever this be a Metaphor, yet without queſtion, Heaven and Hell are as oppoſite as may be: and whether the Centre be the place of torment, or (as others think) all the gulfs of the Sea, and hallows of the Earth, as being more capable to contain the Damned, I leave it to the Schools; as for the Pulpit, I think this prayer more fit, Lord, ſhew us what it is, but never where.

Revel.9.1.

Kecker. Syſt Theo. de inferno.

Secondly, the deepneſs is yoaked with darkneſs; ſuch a dungeon fits the Tares, they committed works of darkneſs, and are caſt into utter darkneſs; a darkneſs that may be felt, thick Clouds that may he handled, damps and miſts that ſtrike at their hearts with ſenſible griefs. This is that bottomleſs pit in the heart of the Earth: There ſhines no Sun, no Moon, nor Stars; there is no light of Candle, Torch, or Taper, ſhine the Sun never ſo fair, it is ſtill night there: the Dungeon is dark, and this makes the place more ſad, more uncomfortable. Let Poets feign of Tantalus Tortures, Prometheus Vultures, Ixions Wheel, and Charons rowing; theſe come far ſhort to expreſs the pains of thoſe that rage in Hell: there Plagues have no eaſe, Cries have no help, Time has no end, Place no redemption: It is the dark Priſon where the Tares are chained, and the wicked bound in fetters of fire and darkneſs. Could men have a ſight of Hell whiles they live on earth, I doubt not their Hearts would tremble in their Boſoms: yet view it in a way of Meditation, and ſee what you find; are there not wonderful Engines, ſharp and ſore inſtruments of Revenge, fiery Brimſtone, pitchy Sulphur, red-hot Chains, flaming Whips, ſcorching Darkneſs? will you any more? The worm is immortal, cold, intolerable; Stench indurable, Fire unquenchable, Darkneſs palpable: This is that priſon of the Damned, then whoſe eyes dare behold ſuch amazing Objects? But if not, ſee, yet liſten with your Ears, is there any charm in Hell to conjure away Devils, or to raviſh Souls? What muſick affords the place, but roaring, and crying, and howling? curſing their Hymns, wailing their Tunes, blaſphemies their Ditties, lacrymæ their Notes, lamentations their Songs, ſcriecbing their Streins; theſe are their evening and their morning Songs: Moab ſhall cry againſt Moab, one againſt another, all againſt God. O fearful Priſon! what torments have the Tares that lye here fettered? Their Feet are chained in the Stocks, and the Iron pierceth their Souls; it is a dungeon where the light never ſhined, but the walls are as black as Pitch, the Vaults are ſmoked as Chimneys, the roof as dark as Hell, nay the Dungeon is Hell, where the Tares lye bound and fettered Think of this Goal, ye offenders of Gods Law, and Majeſty; the Angels ſee our doings, the Judge now expects our returning, the Tares grow till the harveſt; and if ſtill they offend, Death apprehends them, God will judge them, the Jaylor take them, Hell impriſon them: there are they bound. You hear the Evidence brought in, and the ſentence gone out, Take them, Bind them, Bind them in bundles to burn them.

And if this be the Jaylors Goal, what then be the Bonds or Chains.

The Angels which kept not their firſt eſtate (ſaith Jude) God hath reſerved in everlaſting Chains; and God ſpared not the Angels that ſinned (ſaith Peter) but caſt them down to Hell, and delivered them into Chains of darkneſs. Thus Chriſt doomed him that had not on his Weeding Garment, Bind him hand and foot: and what may theſe chains and bonds inſinuate, but that the Tares are tyed to their torments? might they but remove from place to place, this would afford ſome eaſe; might they but ſtir a foot, or but turn about, or have any little motion to refreſh their tormented Parts, this would yield ſome comfort; but here is an univerſal binding, hand and foot, body and ſoul, all muſt be bound with everlaſting chains. The reprobates are pack't and crowded together, like bricks in a fiery furnace, having not ſo much as a chink where any wind may enter in to cool them. O ye that live in the ſinful wealth of this World, conſider but this one puniſhment of Hell, and be afraid! if a man enjoying quiet of Mind, and health of Body, ſhould lye chained on a ſoft down-bed for a month, or year, how would he abide it? But this is nothing: If a man ſhould lye ſick of a Feaver, ſwollen in a Dropſie, pained with the Gout, and (though it were for the recovery of his health) without any turning, toſſing, ſtirring, this were a great torture ſure, and a queſtion it were, whether the Diſeaſe or the Phyſick were more intolerable? Witneſs poor Patients, who change their Sides, wiſh other Beds, ſeek other Rooms, and all theſe ſhifts but to mitigate their Pains: How wretched then are the Tares bound in Chains? They are not in Health, nor bound for a Month, nor ſick of a Feaver, nor lye for a Year; their Pain is grievous, their Bonds heavy, their Torments durable, their reſtleſs Reſt eternal. The worm ſhall gnaw their Spirit, the fire torture their Fleſh; were theſe nothing, yet ſmall ſorrows grow great with continuance; the fire ſhall torture, yet never ceaſe; worms gnaw the heart, yet never gnaw in ſunder the ſtrings: wretched ſouls are bound indeed, whoſe bonds are never out of date: A ſeven years prentiſhip would ere long expire, but what are ſeven years to a world of Ages? The Reprobates muſt ſerve Years, Ages, even to a million of Millions, and yet are never free: O bondage not to be uttered, yet muſt be endured! Is it not a Bedlam-fury, that muſt have ſuch bonds? a little to expreſs their torments by our ſufferings, which yet are nothing, nothing in compariſon. What mean theſe Chains, and Whips, and Links, and Scourges? Iron chains, whips of Steel, fiery Links, knotty Scourges? Furies ſhake their bolts to affrighten Souls, the Irons ſtrike through their Ears, and the hooked Engines tear their Bowels, as if the torment of tares were the delight of Devils. Here is a priſon indeed, where Jude 6.

Mat.13.

Vermis conſcientiam, ignis comburet carnem.

where is nothing heard but Yells and Groans, and ſudden Cries; the Fire ſlakes not, the Worm dies not, the Chains looſe not, the Links wear not, Revenge tires not, but for ever are the Torments freſh, and the Fetters on fire, as they came firſt from their Forge.

What a ſtrange kind of torture falls upon the wicked? they are bound to fiery Pillars, and Devils laſh at them with their fiery Whips: is there any part of man ſcapes free in ſuch a fray? The fleſh ſhall fry, the blood boil, the veins be ſcorch't, the ſinews rack't, Serpents ſhall eat the body, furies tear the ſoul; this is that woful plight of Tares, which lye bound in Hell. The ſick man at Sea may go from his Ship to his Boat, and from his Boat to his Ship again: the ſick man in his Bed may tumble from his right ſide to his left, and from his left to his right again; only the Tares are tied hand and foot, bound limb and joynt: their feet walk not, their fingers move not, their eyes muſt no more wander as before: lo, all is bound. O theſe manacles that rot the fleſh, and pierce the inward parts! O unmatchable torments, yet moſt fit for Tares; ſin made them furious, Hell muſt tame their phrenſie; the Judge thus commands, and the Executioners muſt diſpatch; fetter them, fire them, Bind] them in bundles to burn them.

I have led you through the dungeon, let this ſight ſerve for a terrour that you never come nearer: To that purpuſe (for exhortation) conſider:

Uſe 1. Alaſs! all hangs on life, there's but a twine-thread betwixt the ſoul of a ſinner, and the ſcorching flames: who then would ſo live, as to run his ſoul into hazard? The Judge threatens us, Devils hate us, the Bonds expect us, it is only our conſcience muſt clear us, or condemn us. Search then thy ways, and ſtir up thy remembrance to her Items: haſt thou diſhonoured God, blaſphemed his Name, decayed his Image, ſubduing thy ſoul to Sin, that was created for Heaven? repent theſe courſes, ask God forgiveneſs, and he will turn away thy puniſhment. I know your ſins are grievous, and my ſoul grieves at the knowledge: many evils have poſſeſſed too many; Dunkenneſs, and Oaths, and Malice, and Revenge; are not theſe gueſts entertained into all houſes? baniſh them your hearts, that the King of glory may come in: As I live (ſaith the Lord) I deſire not the death of the wicked, but that the wicked turn from his way and live. Ezek. 33. 11. Would God beſtow mercy? and ſhould we refuſe his bounty? as you love Heaven, your Souls, your Selves, leave your ſins.

Uſe 2. And then (here is a word of conſolation) the penitent needs not fear Hell, Gods ſervant is free from bonds; yea, if we love him who hath firſt loved us, Epheſ. 5. 2. all the chains and pains of Hell can neither hold, nor hurt us.

Uſe 3. O then ye ſons of Adam (ſuffer a reproof) what do ye, that ye do not repent you of your ſins? is it not a madneſs above admiration, that men (who are reaſonable creatures) having eyes in their Heads, hearts in their Bodies, underſtanding like the Angels, and conſciences capable of unſpeakable Horrour, never will be warned, until the fire of that infernal Lake flaſh and flame about their ears? Let the Angels bluſh, Heaven and Earth be amazed, and all the Creatures ſtand aſtoniſhed at it. I am ſure a time will come, when the Tares ſhall feel, what now they may juſtly fear; you hear enough, ſuch weeds muſt be bound, thus ſtrait is the Lords command; Bind] them in bundles to burn them.

But all is not done; Chains have their links, and we muſt bring all together. Sinners are coupled in Hell as Tares in Bundles: But of theſe when we next meet; in the mean while let this we have heard, Bind us all to our duties, that we hear attentively, remember carefully, practice conſcionably, that ſo God may reward accordingly, and at laſt crown us with his glory. The Tares muſt be bound up in bundles; but, Lord, make us free in Heaven, to ſit with Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob in thy bleſſed Kingdom.

In bundles.]

THe command is out: what? Bind] whom? them] how? in bundles.] The Tares muſt on heaps, which gives us a double obſervation.

{ General.
{ Special.

In the general it intimates theſe two points; the gathering of the weed, and its ſevering from the wheat: both are bound in bundles, but the wheat by it ſelf, and the Tares by themſelves: as at that doom (when all the world muſt be gathered, and ſevered) ſome ſtand at the right hand, others at the left: ſo at this execution, ſome are for the fire, and others for the Barn; they are bundled together, yet according to the difference of the ſeveral parties, each from the other.

First, The Tares muſt together: Wo is me (ſaith David) that I am conſtrained to dwell with Meſech: Obſerv. 1. Pſal. 120. 4. and if David think it woful to converſe with his living enemies, then what puniſhment have the wicked, whom the Devil and damned, the black Angels and everlaſting horrour muſt accompany for ever? The Tares muſt be gathered, and bundled; and the more bundles, the more and more miſeries: Company yields no comfort in hell-fire; nay, what greater diſcomfort than to ſee thy friends in flames, thy fellows in torments, the Fiends with flaming whips, revenging each others malice on thy ſelf and enemy? It was the rich mans laſt petition, when he had ſo many repulſes for his own eaſe, to make one ſuit for his living brethren; he knew their company would encreaſe his torment, to prevent which, he cries out, I pray thee, father Abraham, that thou wouldſt ſend Lazarus to my fathers houſe, for I have five brethren, that he may teſtify unto them, leſt they alſo come into this place of torment. Luk. 16. 27, 28. Why, it may be God will hear him for them, eſpecially making ſuch a reaſonable requeſt as this was, that Lazarus might only warn his brethren of future judgment: no, but to teach you, if you ſell your ſouls to ſin, to leave a rich poſterity on earth, you ſhall not only your ſelves (without all remorſe and pity) be damned in Hell, but your poſterity ſhall be a torment to you whileſt they live, and a greater torment if they come to you when they are dead. To converſe with Devils is fearful, but altogether to accompany each other, is a plague fit for Tares. In this life they flouriſhed amongſt the wheat, Let them both grow together, corn and tares until the harveſt, but the harveſt come, God will now ſeparate them both aſunder, and as in Heaven there are none but Saints, ſo in Hell there are none but Reprobates: To encreaſe this torment, as they grow together, ſo all their conference is curſe each other: Moab ſhall cry againſt Moab, father againſt ſon, ſon againſt father: what comfort in this company? The Devil (that was Author of ſuch miſchiefs) appears in moſt griſly forms, his Angels, (the Black-guard of Hell) torture poor ſouls in flames: there live Swearers with their flaming Tongues, Uſurers with talent Hands, Drunkards with ſcorched Throats, all theſe tares like fiery faggots burning together in Hell-flames; this is the firſt puniſhment, all the Tares muſt meet, they are bundled together.

Cbſerv. 2. Secondly, as the tares muſt together, ſo they muſt together by themſelves; thus are they bundled, and ſevered; bundled all together, but from the wheat all aſunder.

Quia damni pœnam infert. Baſil. Aſcer. in c: 2. pag. 25. Hell is called damnation, Becauſe it brings Heavens Loſs, and this by conſent of moſt Divines, is the more horrible part of Hell: So Baſil, "alienated or ſeparated from the preſence "of God, his Saints, and Angels, is far more "grievous than the pains of Hell. Chryſoſt. in Marth. Hom. 24. So Chryſoſtom, "The pain of Hell is intolerable indeed; yet "a thouſand Hells are nothing to the loſs of "that moſt glorious Kingdom. Bern. de interdomo. cap. 38. So Bernard, It is "a pain far ſurpaſſing all the tortures in Hell, not "to ſee God, and thoſe joys immortal, which "are prepared for his Children. O then what hells are in Hell, when beſides the pains of ſenſe, there is a pain of loſs, the loſs of God, loſs of Saints, loſs of Angels, loſs of Heaven, loſs of that beatifical viſion of the moſt Soveraign God, our ever-bleſſed Maker! Conſider with your ſelves if at the parting of the ſoul and body there be ſuch Pangs, and Gripes, and Stings, and Sorrows: what grief then will it be, to be ſevered for ever from the Higheſt and ſupremeſt Good? Suppoſe your bodies (as ſome Martyrs have been uſed) ſhould be torn in ſunder, and that wild Horſes, driven contrary ways ſhould wrack and pull your Arms and Legs, and Heart and Bowels, one piece from another, what an horrible kind of death would this be, think you? and yet a thouſand rentings of this member from that, or of the ſoul from the body, are infinitely leſs than this one ſeparation of the ſoul from God. When Jacob got the bleſſing from his brother Eſau, it is ſaid in the Text, Gen.27.38 that he roared with a great cry, and bitter, ſaying to his father, Haſt thou not reſerved one bleſſing for me alſo, Imagine then, when the wheat muſt have the bleſſing, how will the tares (figured in Eſau) roar, and cry, and yell, and howl again? and yet notwithſtanding this unſpeakable rage, all the tares of Hell ſhall never be ſufficient to bewail the loſs of Heaven. Hence breeds that worm that is always gnawing at the Conſcience; A worm (ſaith our Saviour) that Mark9.44. dies not, Mark 9. 44. It ſhall lie day and night, biting, gnawing, and feeding upon the bowels of the damned perſons: O the ſtings of this Worm! no ſooner ſhall the damned conſider the cauſe of their miſery, to wit, the miſpending of their time, the greatneſs of their ſin, the many opportunities loſt, when they might have gotten Heaven for a tear, or a ſigh, or a groan from a penitent heart; but this worm (or remorſe) ſhall at every conſideration give them a deadly bite, and then ſhall they roar it out, "Miſerable wretch what have I done? "I had a time to have wrought out the ſalvation of my ſoul, many a powerful ſearching Sermon have I heard, any one paſſage "whereof (had I not wickedly and wilfully "forſook mine own Mercy) might have been "unto me the beginning of the new Birth; "but thoſe golden days are gone, and for want "of a little ſorrow, a little repentance, a little "faith, now am I burning in hell-fire: O precious Time! O Days, Months, Years, how "are ye vaniſhed, that you will never come again? And have I thus miſerably undone my ſelf? "Come Furies, tear me into as many pieces as "there are moats in the Sun, rip up my Breaſt, dig "into my Bowels, pull out my Heart, leave me "not an hair on my Head, but let all burn "in theſe flames, till I moulder into nothing. O madneſs of men, that never think on this all the days of your viſitation! And then when the bottomleſs Pit hath ſhut her ſelf upon you, thus will this worm gnaw you hearts with unconceivable griefs. Be amazed, O ye heavens, tremble thou earth! let all creatures ſtand aſtoniſhed; whilſt the Tares are thus ſentenced, Bundle them and burn them.

Thus far of the Word in general; but if we look on it with a more narrow eye, it gives to our hands this ſpecial Obſervation.

The Tares muſt have Chains proportionable to their Sins. Obſerv. Bind them in bundles:] ſaith my Text; not in one, but in many faggots, an Adulterer with an Adultereſs, a Drunkard with a Drunkard, a Traytor with a Traytor. As there be ſeveral Sins, ſo ſeveral Bundles; all are puniſhed in the ſame fire, but all are not puniſhed in the ſame degree; ſome have heavier chains, and ſome have lighter, but all in juſt weight and meaſure. The Proud ſhall be trod under foot, the Glutton ſuffer ineſtimable hunger, the Daunkard feel a burning thirſt, the Covetous pine in wants, the Adulterer lie with Serpents, Dragons, Scorpions. Give me leave to bind theſe in bundles, and ſo leave them for the fire; they are firſt bundled, then burned.

1. Where is Lady Pride and her followers? ſee them piled for the furnace: you that jet it with your balls and bracelets, tires and tablets, Iſa. 3. rings and jewels, and changeable ſuits, think but what a change will come, when all you (like birds of a feather) muſt together, to be bound in bundles. What then will your Pride avail, or your Riches profit, or your Gold do good, or your Treaſures help, when you muſt be conſtrained to vomit up again your Riches, Job 20.26. the increaſe of your houſe departing away, and a fire not blown utterly conſuming you and them? The rich man in the Goſpel could for a time go richly, fare ſumptuouſly, and that not only on Sabbaths or Holy-days, but (as the Text) every day: yet no ſooner had Death ſeized on his Body, but he was fain to alter both his Suit and Diet; hear him how he begs for water, that had plenty of wines; and ſee him that was cloathed in purple, now apparelled in another ſuit (yet of the ſame colour too) even in purple flames: O that his delicate morſels muſt want a drop of water, and that his fine apparel muſt coſt him ſo dear as the high price of his Soul! Why, rich man, it is come to this? the time was, that Purple and fine Linnen was thy uſual Apparel, that Banquets of ſumptuous

Diſhes were thy ordinary fare; but now not the pooreſt Beggar (even Lazarus himſelf) that would change eſtate with thee: Change, ſaid I? no, Remember (ſaith old Abraham) Lu. 16.25. that thou in thy Life-time receivedſt thy good things, and likewiſe Lazarus evil things; but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented. Luke 16. 25.

2. But there are other Bundles where is Gluttony and her ſurfetters? Do we not ſee how the Earth is plowed, the Sea is furrowed, and all to furniſh one Epicure's Table? Sevil ſends Fruit, Canary Sugars, Moluques Spices, Egypt Balſamum, Candy Oyls, Spain Sweet-meats, France Wines; Our own Land cannot ſatisfie, but foreign Kingdoms and Countries muſt needs be ſacrificed to our Belly-gods: but what Dainties have ſuch Nabals when they come to hell? There is a black Banquet prepared for Devils and Reprobates; the firſt Diſh is weeping, the ſecond gnaſhing of Teeth; and what Mirth is there were theſe two Courſes muſt laſt all the Feaſt? The lazy Friar ſweating at his long meats and meals, Heu quantum patimur, cries he, Alas, how much do we ſuffer which are Friers? But alas, how much muſt you ſuffer at this Supper, where the Meat is poyſon; the Attendants, Furies; the Muſick, Groans; and time without end the Sauce of every Diſh? See here the proviſion for the damned, their Chains looſe not, their Fire cools not, their Worm dies not, their Woes end not, ſuch Gall and Vinegar bitters every Morſel. God hath proportioned this puniſhment for theſe ſheaves, they are ſent from Surfeits to an empty Dungeon, that ſent away Beggars empty from their doors.

3. Iſa. 28. 3. But more Bundles yet: Where is Drunkenneſs with her Rioters? Lo, they are trodden under foot, ſaith the Prophet, they whoſe tables were full of vomit and filthineſs, are now driven to that ſcarcity and want, that not a cup of Wine, nor a draught of Beer, nor a drop of Water can be got in all hell for them. Sin muſt have its puniſhment in a juſt proportion; the tongue of that rich man that had turned down ſo many Tuns of Wine, cannot procure in hell one pot of water to cool it; in his tongue he ſinned, in his tongue he is tormented; fiery heats breed a ſcorching thirſt, yet becauſe he denied Lazarus a crumb of bread, Lazarus muſt not bring him a drop of Water. How? a drop of water? Alas, what are ten thouſand rivers, or the whole Sea of water unto that infinite world of fire? Here is a poor ſuit indeed; what, begs he but a cup of water, an handful of water, a drop of water; nay, were it but a wet finger, to cool the tip of his ſcorched tongue? Hearken ye Drunkards, and fear theſe flames that one day muſt parch your tongues. Here you may recreate your ſelves by ſleep when you have too much, or by idle company when you would have more; but hereafter you ſhall find no means to qualifie theſe pains: Sleep there is none, though it be nothing but an everlaſting night! Friends there be none, though all could profeſs their everlaſting loves; you may indeed commerce with ſome company, but who are they ſave devils and reprobates, (miſerable comforters!) in the ſame condemnation? Who is not ſober, that knows what portion muſt befal theſe reprobates? their mouths dry as duſt, their tongues red as fire, their throats parcht as coals, all their Bowels clung together as the burning parchment. He that ſows iniquity ſhall reap vanity; the Drunkard that abuſeth ſo much Wine, muſt there want a little Water, his tongue ſhall cleave to the roof of his mouth, and goblets of boiling Lead run down his throat; as the pleaſure, ſo the pain; he was comforted, and is tormented.

And yet more Bundles; where is Covetouſneſs and her gripers? O the Iron Age we live in! Was there ever leſs Love? ever more diſſembling? the covetous hoardeth, holdeth, oppreſſeth, or it may be, puts out to Uſury, but never without Sureties, Pledges, Mortgages, Bills, or Bonds: Think of thoſe Bonds, ye covetous, that muſt bind you in bundles; had you then ten thouſand worlds, and were they all compoſed of pureſt Gold, and brim-full with richeſt Jewels, yet would you caſt them all at the foot of ſome Lazarus, for one drap of water, or one puff of wind, to cool any part or piece of your tormented members. See the cruel effect of ſin; he that hath no pity, ſhall not be pitied; no, He ſhall have judgment without mercy, that hath ſhewed Jam. 2. 13. no mercy, James 2. 13. Thus to pay the covetous in his own coin, Coffers and Cheſts ſhall be brought before him, there ſhall Devils ring him a peal of this damned coin, of Pounds, of Shillings, of Pence, theſe accounts ſhall ſound through his ears; and to ſatisfie his heart, melted Gold ſhall be poured down his throat; yea, he ſhall be ſerved too with his meat in Plate, and Plate and meat all boil together to his loathed Supper; thus God hath ſatisfied him that could never ſatisfie himſelf; his Gold now wants no weight, his Silver is not ſcarce, Mountains and Loads are prepared for him to his greater torments.

Yet again more Bundles; where is Adultery with her minions? Lo, ugly fiends do embrace them, and the furies of Hell, be as their Boſom-Concubines. I have read ſomewhere (but I will not deliver it as a truth) that a voluptuous man dying, and going to this place of torment, he was there ſaluted in this fearful manner: “Firſt, Lucifer commands to fetch him a Chair, and forthwith an iron Chair red-hot with ſparkling fire was brought, and he ſet thereon? this done, Lucifer commands again to fetch him Drink, and a Drink of melted lead was brought in a Cup, which they ſtraitway pouring into his open mouth, anon it came running out of all his members, this done, Lucifer commands again, that according to his uſe they ſhould fetch him Muſitians to make him merry, and a ſort of Muſitians came with hot glowing Trumpets, and ſounding them at his ears (whereto they laid them) anon there come ſparks of fire leaping out of his Mouth, his Eyes, and Noſtrils, all about him; this done, Lucifer commands again, that according to his wonted manner he ſhould have his Concubines, and upon this they bring him to a bed of Fire, where Furies give him Kiſſes, fiery Serpents hug about his Neck, and the gnawing Worms ſuck blood from his Heart and Breſt, for ever and ever. Howſoever in this ſtory, it may be altogether truth was not brought to bed; yet imagine what a welcome ſhall be to the damned ſouls? Their eyes ſhall ſtartle, their Ears glow, their Noſtrils ſuck up flames, their Mouths taſte bitterneſs, and for the ſenſe of feeling, (according to the meaſure of their ſin) they are wrapped in the griſly embracements of ſtinging and ſtinking Flames; where now are thoſe dainty Delights, ſweet Muſick, merry Company? are all left behind? and is there no recreation in thoſe ſmoaky Vaults? Unhappy dungeon, where there is no order but Horrour, no ſinging but Howling, no ditties but their Woes, no conſorts but Shreeks, no beauty but Blackneſs, and no perfumes or odour, but Pitch and Sulphur. Let the heat of this fire cool the heat of your Luſt; Pleaſure ends with Pain. In as much (ſaith God) as the harlot glorified her ſelf, and lived in pleaſure, ſo much give ye to her torment and ſorrow: Rev. 18. 7.

Rev. 18.7. You ſee now (Beloved) what Tares are in bundles, the Proud, Gluttons, Drunkards, Covetous, Adulterers, theſe and ſuch others are bundled by the Reapers at the general Harveſt.

O then, having yet a little time, how ſhould we labour to eſcape Hells Horrour? let the Proud Uſe. be humbled, the Epicure faſt, the Drunkard pray, the Adulterer chaſtiſe himſelf to pull down his body; and for the Covetous wretch, let him with all holy greedineſs lay out his bags for the eternal good of his ſoul: Alas, one foot in Heaven is better than all your lands on Earth. I had rather be a door-keeper in the houſe of my God, then to Pſal.84.10. dwell in the Tents (in the Houſes, in the Pallaces) of the wicked. Now then in the fear of God reform your lives, and your harveſt, without queſtion, ſhall be the joy of Heaven; or if Tares will be Tares, what remains but Binding, and Bundling? Bind them, Bundle them, Burn them.

The Harveſt is done, and the Angels ſing and ſhout for their ended task: the Tares are reaped, the Furrows cleanſed, the Sickles laid aſide, the Sheaves Bundled: and to ſhut up all, they muſt be Burned: but ſtay we them a while, and at our next meeting we will ſet them on fire. God make us better ſeed, that we may receive a better crop, even that Crown of glory in the higheſt Heavens.

To burn them.

WE have followed the Priſoners from the Bar, and brought them to the Stake; what remains further, but to kindle the Faggots, and ſo to ſhut up all with the burning?

Hell-fire (at the firſt naming) makes my ſoul to tremble; and would the boldeſt courage but enter into a ſerious Meditation, what it were to lye everlaſtingly in a red-hot ſcorching fire, how could he chuſe but ſtand aſtoniſhed at the conſideration? It is a furious fire: rouze up (beloved) for either this, or nothing will awake you from the ſleep of ſin wherein you ſnort too ſecurely.

Some differences there are about this fire: many think it a Metaphorical, others a material fire; be it whether it will, it is every way fearful, and far above the reach either of human or Angelical thoughts to conceive.

If it be Metaphorical (as Gregory and Calvine are of a mind) then is it either more, or nothing leſs terrible: when the Holy Ghoſt ſhaddows unto us the Joys of Heaven by gold, and pearls and pre- Rev.21. cious ſtones, Rev. 21. there is no one thinks but thoſe joys do far ſurpaſs theſe ſhaddows: and if the pains of hell are ſet out by fire, and flames, and brimſtone, and burning, what pains are thoſe, to which theſe are nothing but dumb ſhows or types?

Or if hell-fire be material (as Auguſtine and Bullenger do conjecture) yet is it far beyond any fire on earth: mark but the difference: our fire is made for comfort: hell fire is created for nothing elſe but torment: our fire is blown with ſome airy breath of man, but hell-fire is blown with the angry breath of God: our fire is fed with the fuel of Wood or Coal, but hell-fire is tempered with all the terrible torturing Ingredients of Sulphur and Brimſtone; or (to cut the way nearer) I will reduce all the differences to ſome of theſe four, and ſo proceed in their order: they differ; firſt, in heat; ſecondly, in light; thirdly, in their object; fourthly, in durance.

Firſt, In heat: The pile thereof is fire and much Eſay 30.33 wood, and the breath of the Lord like a ſtream of brimſtone doth kindle it, Eſay 30. 33. This fire is not made by the hand of man, nor blown from the bellows of ſome Forge, nor fed with any fuel of combuſtible matter: no, it is the arm of God, and the breath of God, and the anger of God that kindles it ſharply, and continues it everlaſtingly; and (I pray) if the breath that kindles it, be like a ſtream of brimſtone, what is the fire it ſelf? you know there is a great difference betwixt the heat of our breath, and the fire in our Chimneys: Now then, if the breath of God that kindles hell-fire be diſſolved into brimſtone, what a fearful fire is that, which a great torrent of burning Brimſtone doth ever mightily blow? A torrent of Brimſtone ſaid I? no, it is not Brimſtone, but like Brimſtone, like to our capacity, although for the nature this like is not like; nay, could we know exactly what this breath were, you would ſay (I warrant you) it were far more hotter than ten thouſand Rivers of Brimſtone, were they all put together: Our God (ſaith the Apoſtle) is a conſuming fire, Hebrews 12. 29: Heb.12.29 And if God be a fire, what then is hell fire kindled by the breath of God? O my ſoul, how canſt thou but tremble at the thought of this fire, at which the very Devils themſelves do quake and ſhiver? Pauſe a while and conſider; wert thou arraigned at ſome earthly Bar, thy doom paſt, the execution at hand, and thy body now ready to be caſt, (as many a Martyrs was) into ſome burning [illegible] or boyling Caldron: O how wouldeſt thou ſhout, and roar, and cry through the extremity of torment? but what is a boyling Caldron to that boyling ſea of Fire and Brimſtone? Pitch and Sulphur boyl'd altogether, were not this enough? See there the perplexing properties of ſuch heats; they burn as brimſtone; darkly, to grieve the ſight; ſharply, to afflict the ſenſe; loathſomely, to perplex the ſmell: it is a fire that needs no bellows to kindle it, nor admits of the leaſt air to cool it; the fuel waſtes not, the ſmoke vents not; the chimnies are as Reprobates cradles, where they lye ſcorching, burning, howling their Lullabys, and their nurſes Furies. The flames of Nebuchadnezzars fire could aſcend forty nine Cubits: but if hell be a bottomleſs pit, ſure theſe flames have an endleſs height; How hot then is that glowing Oven, where the fire burns lively, the blaſts go ſtrongly, the wheels turn roundly, and the darkned fuel are

thoſe damned ſouls that burn in an heat ſurpaſſing ours, unſpeakable of us! Here is one difference.

Secondly, As hell-fire differs from ours in Mat.25.30 heat, ſo in light; Caſt that unprofitable ſervant (ſaith our Saviour) into utter darkneſs, Matthew 25. 30. Utter,] to perplex the mind; Darkneſs,] to confound the eye. Conſider but the terrour of this circumſtance; if a man alone in darkneſs ſhould ſuddenly hear a noiſe of Ghoſts and Spirits coming towards him, now would his hair briſtle, his tongue falter, his blood run to the heart? yea, (I dare ſay) although he felt never a laſh from them on his body, yet the only howling of Devils would make his very inmoſt heart to ſhake and ſhiver? O then, what horrour is that, when darkneſs muſt ſurround thee, and Devils hollow to thee, and reprobates ſhriek at the laſhing of their bodies, and all hell be filled with the cries and ecchoes of Wo, wo, wo for their torments, and the darkneſs? May be you will object, if there be fire, there is aſſuredly light: nay, (without queſtion) this fire hath heat, no light; it is a dark ſmoky flame, that burns dim to the eye, yet ſharp to the ſenſe; or it may be, (as ſome do imagine) this fire affords a little Sulphureous or obſcure light; but how? not for comfort, but confuſion. Conceive it thus, he that in the twilight ſees deformed Images, or in the night beholds ſhapes of Ghoſts, and Spirits, by a dim dark light, why, better he ſaw nothing, than ſuch terrible viſions; ſuch fears nay a thouſand times worſe are preſented to the eyes of Reprobates; they may diſcern through darkneſs, the ugly faces of Fiends, the foul viſages of Reprobates, the furious torments of their Friends or Parents, while all lye together in the ſame condemnation. What comfort affords this light, where nothing is ſeen but the Judges wrath, and the priſoners puniſhment? O (will they cry) that our eyes were out, or the flames were quenched, or that ſome period were put to this endleſs night of darkneſs! but all in vain; lo, pillars of ſmoak ariſe out of the infernal pit, which darken the light, as the fire lightens the darkneſs: and this is the ſecond difference.

Thirdly, there is yet another difference, in the fuel or object of this fire; ours burn not without materials, this works alſo on ſpirituals. It is (I confeſs) a queſtion whether devils ſuffer by fire? and how may that be? ſome are of opinion, that they are not only ſpirits, but have bodies; not organical as ours, but aereal, or ſomewhat more ſubtile than the Air it ſelf; this August. de civit dei l. 21, c. 10. opinion howſoever moſt deny, yet Auſtine argues for it; for if men and Devils (ſaith he) are puniſhed in the ſame fire, and that fire be corporeal, how are Devils capable of the ſuffering, unleſs they have bodies (like men) fit for the impreſſion? And yet if we deny them to have bodies, I ſee no impoſſibility, but that ſpirits themſelves may ſuffer in hell-fire: is it not as eaſie with God to joyn ſpirits and fire, as ſouls and bodies? as therefore the ſoul may ſuffer through the body, ſo likewiſe may thoſe ſpirits be tormented by fire. I will not argue the caſe either with, or againſt Auſtine; yet ſafely may be put this concluſion, Not only men Mat.25.41. in their bodies, but devils and ſouls muſt together be tormented in hell-fire: Thus our Saviour couples them in that laſt heavy doom, Go, ye curſed into everlaſting fire prepared for the Devil and his Angels. What a fire is this? it tries the reins, it ſearcheth the bowels, it pierceth the very ſoul and inmoſt thoughts. O fire above measure! where ſpirits are the tormentors, damnation the puniſhment, men and Devils the fuel, and the breath of an offended God the Bellows. Think not on your fires, that give you heat for warmth, or light for comfort; neither fear you him that kills your bodies, but hath no further commiſſion to hurt your ſouls: here is another fire, another Judge; a fire that kindles ſouls, a Judge that ſends bodies and ſouls to everlaſting fire: ſuch heats, ſuch darkneſs, ſuch objects accompany this fire; the heat is intolerable, darkneſs palpable, body and ſoul both combuſtible, all burn together that have ſinned together. This is the third difference.

Laſtly, there is a difference in Durance; our Miris, ſed fire dies quickly, but hell-fire laſts for ever. This veris modis is done (ſaith Auſtine) admirably, yet actually; the Aug. ibid. burning bodies never conſume, the kindled fire Aug. de civit. Dei. never waſtes with any length of time. We l. 21. read of a certain ſalt in Sicilia, that if put into the fire, it ſwims as in water, and being put into water cracles as in fire; We read of a fountain in Lybia, that in a cold night is ſo hot, that none can touch it, and in a hot day ſo cold that none could drink it: If God thus work miracles on earth, doſt thou ſeek a reaſon of Gods high and heavy judgment in Hell? I ſee the pit, I cannot find the depth; there is a fire that now ſtands as it was created; it muſt be endured, yet never, never muſt be ended. The cuſtom of ſome Countreys, that burn Malefactors, uſe the leaſt fires for greateſt Offenders, that ſo the heat being leſſened, the pains might be prolonged; but if this be ſo terrible to them, whoſe fire is but little, and whoſe time cannot be long; what an exceeding horrible torment is this in Hell, where the fire is extream great, and the time for ever and everlaſting? Suppoſe you, or any one of you ſhould lye one night grievouſly afflicted with a raging, a fit of the Stone, Chollick, Strangury, Tooth-ach, pangs of Travel, and a thouſand ſuch miſeries incident to man, how would you toſs and tumble? how would you turn your ſides, tell the Clock, count the Hours, expect every moment for the gay-bright Morn, and till then eſteem every hour a year, and every pang a miſery matchleſs, and intolerable? O then what will it be (think you) to lye in fire and brimſtone, kept in higheſt flame by the unquenchable wrath of God, world without end? How tedious will be that endleſs night, where the clock never ſtrikes, the time never paſſes, the morn never dawns, the Sun never riſes; where thou canſt not turn, nor toſs, nor tumble, nor yet take any reſt; where thou ſhalt have nothing about thee but darkneſs, and horrour, and wailing, end yelling, wringing of hands, and gnaſhing of teeth for evermore? Good Lord, that for a ſmile of pleaſant pleaſure, men ſhould run upon the rock of eternal vengeance! Come, ye that purſue vanity, and ſee here the fruit of ſin at this harveſt of Tares; Pleaſures are but momen- Momentaneum quod tany, but the pangs are eternal; Eternal? how delectat, æternum long is that? Nay, here we are ſilenced, no Lim- quod cruciat. ner can ſet it forth, no Oratour can expreſs it; if all times that ever were, and ever ſhall be, ſhould be put together, they would infinitely come ſhort of this fiery eternity; the latitude thereof is not to be meaſured, neither by Hours, nor Days, nor Weeks, nor Months, nor Years, nor Luſtra's, nor Olympiads, nor Indictions, nor Jubiles, nor Ages, nor Plato*'s years, nor by the moſt ſlow motion of the eighth ſphear, though all theſe were multiplied by thouſands, or millions, or the greateſt Multiplier, or number numbring that can be imagined.* Plainly in a word, count if you pleaſe, ten hundred thouſand millions of years, and add a thouſand myriads of ages to them, and when all is done, multiply all again by a thouſand, thouſand, thouſand of Thouſands; and being yet too ſhort, count all the Thoughts, Motions, Mutations of Men and Angels; add to them all the Sands of the Sea, Piles on the Earth, Stars in the Heavens; and when all this is done, multiply all again by all the Numbers, Squares, Cubicks of Arithmetick; and yet all theſe are ſo far ſhort of Eternity, that they neither touch end, nor middle, nor the leaſt part or parcel of it: What then is this which the damned ſuffer? eternal fire: we had need to cry out, Fire, fire, fire: Alas, to what end? there is no help to extinguiſh fire that muſt burn for ever: Your Buckets may quench other fires, not this; No Milk nor Vinegar can extinguiſh that wild fire: It is a fire which no means can moderate, no patience can endure, no time can for ever change, but in it whoſoever wofully lyes, their fleſh ſhall fry, their blood ſhall boil, their hearts conſume; yet they ſhall never die, but dying live, and living die; death in life, life in death, miſerable ever. This is that conſideration, which ſhall bring all the damned Reprobates to ſhriek and howl everlaſtingly, were they perſuaded that after millions of years they ſhould have one year of Pleaſure, or after thouſands of millions they ſhould have ſome end of torment, here would be a little hope; But this word Ever,] breaks their hearts aſunder: this ever, ever, gives new life again to thoſe inſufferable ſorrows; and hence it is, that when all thoſe millions of years are done and gone, then (God knows) muſt the wheels of their torments whirl about and about: Alas, the fire is durable, the heat continual, the fuel immortal, and ſuch is the end of Tares, they muſt burn without end: Bind them in bundles to burn them.

Lo here the fire of hell, which compared to ours on earth, it differs in heat, in light, in fuel, in durance: Let your ſouls work on theſe objects, that they never come nearer to thoſe flames.

Uſe. 1. Eſay 33.14 Who amongſt us would dwell with devouring fire? Who amongſt us would dwell with everlaſting burnings? Beloved, as you tender your ſouls, and would eſcape the flames, reform your live whiles you have a little time. You hear it ſounded in Synagogues, and preached in Pulpits: what ſound? but heaven or hell, joys or torments, the one befalling the good, and the other the juſt end of the wicked. Do we believe the truth? and dare we commit ſin, whoſe reward is this fiery death? upon due conſideration, how is it that we ſleep, or reſt, or take a minutes eaſe? leſſer dangers have beſtraught ſome out of their wits, nay bereaved many of their lives; how is it then that we run head-long into this fire, yet never weigh whither we are going, till we are droping into the pit, whence there is no redemption! Look about you while it is called to day, or otherwiſe wo and alas that ever you were born; be ſure a time will come, when miſeries ſhall march, Angels beat alarms, God ſound deſtruction, and the tents of his Uſe. 2. enemies be all ſet on fire, bind them in bundles to burn them.

Or yet, if compariſons can Prevail? ſuppoſe one of you ſhould be taken, and brought along to the mouth of an hot fiery furnace? then (comparing ſin with its puniſhment) might I queſtion you, how much pleaſure would you ask to continue there burning but one year? how much (would you ſay?) ſurely not for all the pleaſures and treaſures that all this world can afford you. How is it then, that for a little ſin, that endures but a moment, ſo many of you ſo little regard eternal puniſhment in hell-fire? If we ſhould but ſee a little child fall into the fire, and his very bowels burn out, how would it grieve us, and made our very hearts bleed within us? how much more then ſhould it grieve you to ſee, not a child, but your own bodies and ſouls caſt away for a momentary ſin into the lake of fire, that never ſhall be quenched? If a man ſhould come amongſt us, and cry, Fire, Fire, thy houſe is all on Fire, thy Corn, thy Cattel, thy Wife, thy Children, and all thou haſt are burning altogether; how would this aſtoniſh us, making both the hair to ſtand upright on our heads, and the tears to guſh out of our eyes? Behold then, and ſee the Spirit of God cries out, Fire, Fire; even the dreadful fire of hell gapeth ready to devour; not thy Houſe, thy Corn, or thy Cattel; but thy poor ſoul, and that for evermore: O then how ſhould this break your flinty hearts aſunder, and make your ſouls bleed again and again? if you have any ſpark of Grace, this (methinks) ſhould move you to a ſtrict courſe of life; if you have any care of your ſouls; this (methinks) ſhould make you to walk humbly, and purely, carefully and conſcionably towards God, and towards man: if not, 3. what remains but fire, fire? Bind them in bundles to burn them.

Or yet, if example can perſuade us more; meditate on the miſerable condition of that nameleſs rich man: Suppoſe you ſaw him in hell-torments, compaſt about with Furies, Fires, and all the Black-guard below; his Tongue flaming, his Eyes ſtaring, his Conſcience biting, his Soul ſuffering, his Body all over burning in that fire of Hell. O lamentable ſight! but to make it more lamentable, hearken how he roars and cries through the extremity of pains: O torment, torment! how am I tormented in this fire? my Head, my Heart, my Eyes, my Ears, my Tongue; my Tongue is all on fire; What ſhall I do? whither ſhall I fly for ſuccour? Within me is the Worm, without me is fire, about me are Devils, above me is Abraham, and what glorious ſtar is yonder I ſee, but Lazarus, poor Lazarus in his boſom? what, is a beggar exalted? and am I in torments? Why, Abraham, father Abraham have mercy on me: See here a man burning, ſcorching, frying in hell-flames; one dram of mercy, one drop of water to a tormented ſoul; Oh I burn, I burn, I burn without eaſe or end, and is there none to pity me? Come, Lazarus (if Abraham will not hear) let me beg of the a beggar, and howſoever I denied thee a crum of bread, yet be ſo good, ſo charitable as to dip the tip of thy finger in water, and cool my tongue. It is a poor ſuit I ask; not to dive, but dip; not thy hand, but finger; not all, but the tip of it; not in ſnow, but water; not to quench, but to cool; not my body, but my leaſt member, be it my tongue only: no eaſe ſo little, no grant ſo poor, no remedy ſo ſmall, but happy were I if I could obtain it, though I begged it with tears and prayers of a thouſand thouſand years continuance: But ſee Abraham and Lazarus deny my ſuits; I burn, and neither God, nor Saint, nor Angel takes pity of me: and ſhall I cry for help on Devils? alas! they are my tormentors that laſh me, and cut me with their whips of burning Steel and Iron. O beloved! what ſhall we ſay to the roaring rage of this tormented Wretch? Alas! alas! how little do men think on this? they can paſs away time ſporting and playing, as if they went to priſon but for a few weeks, or days; juſt like men, who having the ſentence of death paſt upon them, run fooling and laughing to the execution; but when once hell-mouth hath ſhut her ſelf, then ſhall they find nothing but eternity of torments: In the fear of God take heed in time of this eternity, eternity, leſt you alſo come into this place of eternity, eternity of torment: it is the doom of Tares, wo to them whoſoever, that are of the number, for they, they] muſt be gathered, and bound, and bundled, and burned.

We have now done our task, and ended the harveſt: if you pleaſe to caſt back your eye upon the particulars delivered, they amount to this ſum.

Whatſoever a man ſows, that ſhall he reap, Gal. 6. 7. If the enemy ſow Tares, and we nouriſh the ſeed, what think you is the Harveſt? Gather ye together firſt the Tares, ſaith our Saviour to the Angels: they are branded in their name, Tares,] ſped in the time firſt] curſt in their doom, gathered] but worſt in the hands of their executioners, it is by Angels;] and yet what is all this to the latter work in hand? If the Tares weeded up might rot in the furrows, the puniſhment were leſs; but as they are gathered, ſo they muſt be bound.] Is that all? Nay; as they are bound ſo they muſt be bundled.] Is that all? nay, as they are bound and bundled, ſo they muſt be burned.] Bind them in bundles to burn them.] I muſt end this Text, yet am loth to leave you where it ends: As there is an harveſt of Tares, ſo there is an harveſt of Wheat; They that ſow in Tears, ſhall reap in joy; Pſa. 126. 5. If we repent us of our ſins, we ſhall have a bleſſed harveſt indeed: how? forty grains for one? nay, (by the promiſe of our Saviour) an hundred fold. A meaſure heaped, and ſhaken, and thruſt together, and yet running over. Luk. 6. 38. Every Saint ſhall have joy and glory, fountains of Pleaſure, and rivers of Delight, where they may ſwim, and bathe their ſouls for ever and ever: what though tares muſt to the fire? the Wheat is gathered into Heaven. Pray you then with me, that we may be Wheat, not Tares; and God ſo bleſs the ſeed, that every ſoul of us may have a joyful harveſt in the Kingdom of Heaven. Amen.

Right Purgatory.

HEB. 1. 3.

When he had by himſelf purged our ſins.

THe point is not full, but to make it up, the Text ſtands compaſt with words of wonder, concerning the Word, our Saviour; he that is the Son of God, Heir of all things, Creator of the World, the brightneſs of His Glory, the Image of his Perſon, and upholder of all things by the Word of his Power, ſtands here as the ſubject of Humility and Glory. He purged our ſins, and ſits on the right hand of the Majeſty on high. He purged our ſins, by his ſuffering on the Croſs; He ſits on Gods right Hand, by obtaining the Crown; He purged our ſins, by dying for them; He ſits on Gods right Hand, by ruling with him: what need we more? Here is his paſſion and ſeſſion in the ſame order he performed them, for then He ſate down on the right Hand of his Father, when he had by himſelf purged our ſins.

But to come nearer the words, they are as the drugs of an Apothecary, and we will examine the Ingredients. Cant. 5. 8. O I am ſick of Love, ſaith the Church in Canticles, Cant. 5. 8. Sick indeed, not of love only, but of ſin alſo; a diſeaſe that infatuates the Mind, gripes the Conſcience, diſtempers the Humours, diſturbs the paſſions, corrupts the Body, indangers the Soul: Is not he bleſſed that can help this Malady? Come then ye that labour of ſin, and to your endleſs Comfort, ſee here the manner of the Cure, there is a Phyſition, He,] the patient, himſelf] the Phyſick adminiſtred, when he had purged,] the ill Humours evacuated, When he had purged our ſins,]

Or to gather up the crumbs, leſt in this coſtly Receipt or Phyſick any thing be loſt; ſee here the remedy girt and compaſt with each neceſſary circumſtance: the time, When;] the perſon, he;] the matter, purged;] the manner, by himſelf;] the diſeaſe, ſin;] the extent of it, our.] Obſerve all, and you find no time more diſmal than this When,] no perſon more humbled than this he,] no Phyſick more operative than this purge,] no diſeaſe more dangerous, no plague more ſpreading than ſin] our] ſin, for which he ſuffered, When he by himſelf had purged our ſins.]

We have opened the body of the Text, now look on the parts, and you may ſee the Anatomy of our Saviour in every Member of it.

When.]

Ne ſedendo videatur purgare: Annot. Eraſm. in Text.

THe Text begins with the time, When] he had purged: and this time (ſaith Eraſmus) according to the Original denotes the time paſt, leſt that we had thought, He had purged our ſins by his ſetting him down at the hand of God. Firſt therefore (ſaith the Apoſtle) he purged,] and then ſate:] he firſt purged by his death, and when that was done, He ſate at the right hand of the Majeſty, in the higheſt places. Whence obſerve:

Doctrine. Matth. 1. 18. Matt. 4. 1. Luke 2. 21. Mat. 11. 19. John 8. 59. Mat. 26. 16 Mat. 26. 50 Matt. 27. 29, 35.

The time that Chriſt purged, was in the days of his humiliation. Then was he born, Matth. 1. 18. then was he tempted, Matth 4. 1. then was he circumciſed, Luke 2. 21. then was he traduced, Matth. 11. 19. then was he perſecuted, John 8. 59. then was he betrayed, Matth. 26. 16. then was he apprehended, Matth. 26. 50. then was he mocked, Matth, 27. 29. then was he crucified, Matth. 27. 35. But as all his Life was full of infirmity, ſo (according to the nature of all infirmities) he had thoſe four times mentioned by Phyſicians in his life: the beginning, the increaſe, the Akmen or ſtate, and declination. Give me leave but to proſecute theſe times, and by that time we have done the hour (I know) will ſummon us to a concluſion.

Firſt, then he had his ἀρχὴν his beginning, and that was the firſt time of his purging, even at his birth; then took he our infirmities upon him, and in ſome meaſure evacuated the brightneſs of his Glory, to become for us a poor, a weak, a ſilly babe on Earth. Mark (I pray) how this purge works with him at his firſt entrance into the world, it brings him into ſo poor and low eſtate, that Heaven and Earth ſtand amazed at ſo great a change: Where was he born, but at Bethlehem, a little City? Where did the Shepherds find him, but in a poor ſorry Cottage? And there if we look after Majeſty, we find no guard but Joſeph, no attendants but Mary, no Heraulds but Shepherds, none of the Bed-chamber but Beaſts and Oxen; and howſoever he is ſtyled King of the Jews, yet the Jews cry out, They have no King but Cæſar. His Mother indeed deſcended of Kings, and he himſelf gives Crowns to others, of Victory, of Life, of Glory; but for his own head no Crown is prepared but a Crown of Thorns: anon you may ſee him cloathed in Purple, anointed with Spittle: but for the Crown we ſpeak of, they can afford him no richer than of the Hedge, no eaſier than of Thorns.

Rev. 4. 10.

Thus far the beginning! what then is the encreaſe of this?

This increaſe (ſay Phyſitians) is, when the Symptoms more manifeſtly appear either of life or death; and no ſooner was our Saviour born, but he had manifeſt tokens evidently ſhewing that for us he muſt die. If you run through his Life, what was it but a ſickneſs and a purge? Conſider his parcity in Abſtinence, his conſtancy in Watching, his fervency in Prayer, his aſſiduity in Labour. But how ſoon, an Herod makes him flee into Egypt, and live an exile in a ſtrange Land? At his return he dwells at Nazareth, and there is accounted Jeſus the Carpenter. When he enters into his Miniſtery, he hath no Houſe to repoſe him, no Money to relieve him, no Friends to comfort him. See him firſt ſet on by Satan, then by men; he is led into the Wilderneſs by the Spirit, and there he faſts fourty Days and fourty Nights, without bit of Bread, or drop of Water. The Devil (ſeeing this opportunity) begins his Temptation; who preſently overcome, the Jews follow after him with hue and cry: Mark but their words and works: In word they call him a Glutton, a Drunkard, a Deceiver, a Sinner, a Madman, a Samaritane, and one poſſeſſed with a Devil. Good words I pray! is not he the anointed of God? the Saviour of men? yes; but They rendred me evil for good, and hated for my good will, ſaid the Pſalmiſt in his perſon. When therefore he did Miracles, he was a Sorcerer; when he reproved Sinners, he was a Seducer; when he received Sinners, he was their Favourer; when he healed the Sick, he was a breaker of the Sabbath; when he caſt out Devils, it was by the power of Devils; what and how many unjuſt Contumelies endured he of the Phariſees, who ſometimes caſt him out of the City, accuſed him of Blaſphemy, cried Out upon him, he was a man not worthy to live. And as they ſay, they do; obſerve but their works: Firſt, they ſend Officers to apprehend him, but they being overcome with the grace of his Speeches, return only with this anſwer, Never man ſpake like this man. Then took they up Stones to ſtone him, but by his miraculous paſſage (whiles they are conſpiring his death) he eſcapes out of their hands: Then led they him to an Hill, thinking to throw him down head-long, and yet all would not do; for ere they are aware of it, he fairly paſſeth through the midſt of them all. At laſt his paſſion draws near, and then Men and Devils combine in one to make him at once wretched and miſerable: He is deſpiſed and rejected of men; yea, he is a man full of ſorrows, (ſaith the Prophet) and hath experience of infirmities, Eſay 53. 3.

Or for a further inquiry, let us do what our Saviour bids, Search the Scriptures, for they are they which teſtify of him. We have but two Teſtaments in the whole Bible, and both theſe give full evidence of Chriſts miſerable life. In the old Teſtament it was prefigured by Adams Penalties, Abels Death, Abrahams Exile, Iſaacs Offering, Jacobs Wreſtling, Joſephs Bonds, Jobs Suffering, Davids Mourning; yea, the Prophets themſelves were both Figures, and delivered Propheſies of our Saviours Afflictions. Thus Eſay of him: Surely he hath born our griefs, and carried our ſorrows, yet we did eſteem him ſtricken, ſmitten of God, and Afflicted, Eſa. 53. 4. Thus Jeremy of him: He gives his cheeks to him that ſmites him, he is filled full with reproach, Lam. 3. 30. Thus Daniel of him, After threeſcore and two Weeks ſhall Meſſiah be ſlain: and ſhall have nothing, Dan. 9. 26. Thus Zechary of him, What are theſe Wounds in the midſt of thy hands? and he ſhall ſay, with theſe wounds was I wounded in the houſe of my friends, Zachariah 13. 6. But come we to the New Teſtament; and in every Goſpel, we may not only read but ſee him ſuffer! Matthew who relates the hiſtory Matth.
of his life; what writes he but a Tragedy, Chap.
wherein every chapter is a Scene? Look through the whole book, and you read in the firſt Chapter, 1, Joſeph will not farther him; in the ſecond, Herod 2, ſeeks to kill him; in the third, John the Baptiſt 3, would needs out of his Humility deny him Baptiſm; in the fourth, he faſts fourty days, and 4, fourty nights, and is tempted in the Wilderneſs;
in the fifth, he foretells Perſecutions, and all man- 5, ner of evil againſt his Apoſtles; in the ſixth, he 6,

7, of Enemies; in the ſeventh, he concludes his Sermon made on the top of a Mountain; in the eighth, 8, he comes down, and towards night hath no houſe to harbour in, nor pillow to reſt his head on; in 9, the ninth he is rebuked of the Phariſees for not 10, faſting; in the tenth, all men hate his Diſciples 11, for his ſake; in the eleventh, they call him that knew no exceſs, a Glutton and a Drunkard; in 12, the twelfth, they tell him how he caſts out Devils through Beelzebub prince of Devils; in the thir-13, teenth, they are offended at him, and derive his pedegree from a Carpenter; in the fourteenth, Herod
14, thinks him to be John Baptiſts Ghoſt; in the fif-15, teenth, the Scribes reprehend him for the breach 16, of their Traditions; in the ſixteenth, the Saddu-17. ces tempt him for a token; in the ſeventeenth, he pays tribute to Cæſar; in all the reſt he foretels and executes his paſſion: Now count not Chapters, but hours, from that hour wherein he was ſought for, until the ſixth hour of his crucifying; one betrays him, another apprehends him; one binds him, another leads him bound from Pilate to Herod, from Herod back again to Pilate, thus they never leave him, till his ſoul leave the world, and he be a dead man amongſt them.

You have ſeen the beginning and encreaſe, and we'll now draw the Curtains, that you may behold the Bridegroom where he lyeth at Noonday, to wit, in the ſtate or vigour of his grievous ſufferings.

This ſtate, or Akmen (ſay Phyſicians) is when nature and the diſeaſe are in greateſt contention, when all the ſymptoms are become moſt vehement; ſo that either nature or the infirmity muſt needs have the victory; Keker Syſt. l. 3. c. 4. and although (ſay Divines) all Chriſts life was full of miſeries, yet principally and chiefly is that called his paſſion in Scripture, which he endured two days before death: and to this extream paſſion (ſaith a Modern) is the purging of ſins chiefly attributed. Come then, ye that paſs by, behold and ſee, if there was ever any ſorrow like unto this ſorrow, which is done unto him in the day of God's anger. Lamen. 1. 12. His infirmities are now at full, and the Symptoms which make it evident unto us, are ſome inward, ſome outward; inward in his ſoul, outward in his body! we'll take a view of them both.

First, his ſoul, It began to be ſorrowful, ſaith Matthew: Mat.26.37 To be amazed, and very heavy ſaith Mark: Mark 14. 33. To be in an agony, ſaith Luke: Lu. 22.44. To be troubled, ſaith John: Joh.12.27 Here is Sorrow, and Heavineſs, and Agony, and Trouble, the eſtimate whereof we may take from his own words in the Garden; Mat.26.38 My ſoul is exceeding ſorrowful, even unto death: Now was the time be purged, not only in his body, but his ſoul too, Joh. 12.27 Now is my ſoul troubled, and what ſhall I ſay? Father, ſave me from this hour, but for this cauſe came I unto this hour. A fatal hour ſure, of which it was ſaid before often, Mat.26.45 His hour was not yet come; but being come, he could then tell his Diſciples, Lu.22.53. The hour is at hand; and after tell the Jews, This is your Hour, and the power of Darkneſs; Now was it that Chriſt yielded his ſoul for our ſouls, to the ſuſception of ſorrow, perpeſſion of pain, and diſſolution of nature: And therefore even ſick with ſorrow; Heb. 5.7. he never left ſweating, weeping, and crying, till he was heard in that which he feared.

Secondly, as his Soul, ſo his Body had her ſymtoms of approaching death: Our very eye will ſoon tell us no place was left in his Body where he might be ſmitten, and was not: His Skin was torn, his Fleſh was rent, his Bones unjoynted, his Sinews ſtreined: ſhould we ſum up all? See that face of his, fairer than the ſons of men, Pſal.45.2. how it is defiled with Spittle, ſwollen with Buffets, masked with a cover of gore-blood; See that head, white as white wool, and Snow; Rev. 1.14. how is it crowned with Thorns, beaten with a Reed, and both head and hair dyed in a ſanguine red that iſſued from it: See thoſe eyes, that were as a flame of fire, Reve. Ibid. how they ſwim with tears, are dim with blood, and darken at the ſad approach of dreadful death: See that mouth, which ſpake as never man ſpake, John 7.46. how it is wan with Stroaks, grim with Death, and embittered with that tarteſt portion of Gall and Vinegar! Should we any lower? See thoſe arms that could embace all the power of the World, how they are ſtrained and ſtretched on the Croſs; thoſe ſhoulders that could bear the frame of Heaven, how they are laſht with knotty cords, and whips; thoſe hands that made the World, and all therein, how they are knailed and clenched to a piece of wood; that Heart were never dwelt deceit nor ſin, how is it pierced, and wounded with a Souldiers Spear; thoſe Bowels that yearned with compaſſion of others infirmities, how they are dry and pent with ſtraining pulls; thoſe Feet that walked in the ways of God, how they are boarded, and faſtned to a Croſs with Nails: from hand to foot, there is no part free, but all over he is covered in a mantle of cold blood, whoſe garments were doft before, and took of them that were his Hangmen. Poor Saviour, what a woful ſight is this? A bloody Face, thorny Head, watery Eyes, wan Mouth, ſtrained Arms, laſhed Shoulders, nailed Hands, wounded Heart, griping Bowels, bored Feet: Here is ſorry pains, when no part is free: And theſe are the outward Symptoms of his ſtate that appear in his Body.

Mal. 4. 2.

We have thus far ſeen our Sun (the Son of Righteouſneſs) in the day-break, and riſing, and height of his ſuffering: What remains further, but that we come to the Declination, and ſo end our journey for this time?

This Declination (ſay Phyſitians) is, when Nature overcomes ſickneſs, ſo that all diſeaſes attain not this time; but thoſe, and thoſe only that admit of Galen. lib. 3. de Criſ. cap. 5. a Recovery; yet howſoever (ſaith my * Author) there is no true declination before death: there is at leaſt a ſeeming declination, when ſometimes the ſymptoms may become more remiſs, becauſe of weak nature yielding to the fury and tyranny of death overcoming it. I will not ſay directly, that our Saviour declined thus, either in deed, or in ſhew: for neither abſolutely was the cup removed from him, nor died he by degrees; but in perfect ſenſe, and perfect patience both of body and ſoul, he did voluntarily, and miraculouſly reſign his Spirit (as he was praying) into the Hands of his Father. Here then was the true declination of this Patient; not before death, but in death, and rightly [illegible]o: For then was it that this Sun went down in a ruddy Cloud: Then was it that this Patient received the laſt dregs of his Purge; then was it that Gods Juſtice was ſatisfied, the conſummatum eſt was effected, all was finiſhed; as for his Burial, Reſurrection, and Aſcenſion, which follow after this time, they ſerve not to make any ſatisfaction for ſin, but only to confirm it, or apply it, after it was made and accompliſhed.

Uſe 1. But what uſe of all this? Give me leave (I pray) to ſhake the tree, and then do you gather the fruit. From the firſt part, his Birth, we may learn Humility, a grace moſt prevailing with God for the obtaining of all Graces; this was it that made David a King, Moſes, a Governour; nay, what ſay we to Chriſt himſelf, who from his firſt entrance, until his departure to his Father, was the very mirrour of true Humility it ſelf? Learn of me (ſaith he) to be humble and lowly in Spirit, and Mat.11.29. you ſhall find reſt unto your ſouls. Hereunto accorded his Doctrine, when he pronounced them Bleſſed Matt. 5.3. who were Poor in Spirit; hereunto accorded his reprehenſion, when he diſliked their manner Luk.14.7. who were wont to chooſe out the chief rooms at Feaſts; hereunto accorded his practiſe, when he John13.5. vouchſafed to waſh his Diſciples feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded. O Humility, how great are thy Riches, that art thus commended to us! thou pleaſeſt Men, delighteſt Angels, confoundeſt Devils, and bringeſt thy Creator to a Manger, where he is lapped in rags, and cloathed in fleſh? Had we Chriſtian Hearts to conſider the Humility of our Redeemer, and how far he was from our haughty diſpoſition, it would pull down our Phariſaical humours, and make us far better to remember our ſelves.

Uſe 2. Secondly, as we learn Humility from his Birth, ſo we may learn Patience from his Life. If any Mat.16.24. man will come after me (ſaith our Saviour) let him deny himſelf, and take up his Croſs, and follow me. Dear Chriſtian, if thou wilt be ſaved, mind thy Chriſt: Art thou abuſed by Lies, Reproaches, evil Sayings, or Doings? we cannot more ſhew how we have profited in Chriſts School, then by enduring them all: If patience be in our calamities, they are no calamities, but comfort: This is that comfort that keeps the heart from envy, the hand from revenge, the tongue from contumely, and often overcomes our very enemies themſelves, without any weapons at all. Come then, and do you learn this leſſon of our bleſſed Redeemer: Are you ſtricken? ſo was Chriſt of the Jews: Are you mocked? So was Chriſt of the Souldiers: Are you betrayed of your friends? ſo was Chriſt of his Apoſtle: Are you accuſed of your enemies? ſo was Chriſt of the Phariſees: Why complain you of being injured, and maligned, when you ſee the Maſter of the houſe himſelf 1Pet.2.21. called Beelzebub? Hereunto ye are called, (ſaith Peter) for Chriſt alſo ſuffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye ſhould follow his ſteps, 1 Peter 2. 21.

Uſe 3. Lam.1.12. Thirdly, as Patience from his Life, ſo we may learn Remorſe from his Paſſion; Is it nothing to you, all ye that paſs by? O look on him, and let this look breed in you a remorſe and ſorrow for your ſins: Our Saviour labours in the extremity of pangs, his ſoul is ſick, his body faints, and would you know the reaſon? Why, thus is the head wounded that he might renew health to all the body; we ſin, and Chriſt Jeſus is heavy, and ſore, and ſick, and dies for it: His ſoul was in our ſouls ſtead, his body endured a Purgatory for us, that we both in body and ſoul might eſcape hell-fire, which our ſins had deſerved: Who but conſiders what evils our ſins have done, that will not grieve and mourn at the ſin he hath committed? O that my head were a fountain of Tears, that I might weep day and night for the ſins of the Daughters of my People! We have ſinned, and what ſhall we ſay to thee, O Saviour of men? Alas! Our ſins have whipped thee, ſcourged thee, crowned thee, crucified thee; and if I have no compaſſion to weep for thee, yet, O Lord, give me grace to weep for my ſelf, who have done thus to thee: O my Saviour! O my ſins! It is I that offend, it is thou that muſt ſmart for it.

Fourthly, we may yet learn another Leſſon, Philip.2 8. Chriſt (ſaith Paul) humbled himſelf, and became obedient to the death, even the death of the Croſs, Phil. 2. 8. and is it not our parts to be obedient to him who became thus obedient for us? We may gather Humility from his Birth, and Patience from his Life, and Remorſe from his Paſſion, and to make up the Poſie, here is one flower more, Obedience, which that Tree alſo yielded whereon he ſuffered. If you love me (ſaith our Saviour) keep my commandments. Joh.14.15 How, Bleſſed Saviour? If you love me? Who will not love thee, who haſt ſo dearly loved us, as to give up thy deareſt life for the ranſom of our ſouls? But to tell us that there is no better teſtimony of our Love, than to obey his Commands, he Cant.5.13. wooes us with theſe ſugared words, (whoſe Lips like Lilies, are dropping down pure Myrrh) If you love me: if you love me, learn Obedience of me, keep my Commandments: and to move us the more, (if all this cannot) what love and obedience was there in him, think you? Conſider, and wonder! That the Son of God would baniſh himſelf thirty years from his glorious Majeſty; and what more? would be born man; and what more? would be the meaneſt amongſt men; and what more? would endure the miſeries of life; and what more? would come to the bitter pangs of death; and what more? would be made obedient to the death, even the death of the Croſs; a degree beyond death. O Son of God, whither doth thy humility deſcend? but Quo deſcendit humilitas? Aug. medit. 7. thus it muſt be, the Prophets had foretold it, and according to their Propheſies the days were accompliſhed, When he himſelf muſt be purged: he was born, he lived, he ſuffered, he died: and thus run round the wheels of thoſe miſerable times; When] he had by himſelf purged our ſins.

You ſee the Time's paſt, and a new Time muſt give you the remainder of the Text; the Time is When] the Perſon He] and He it is that in order will next come after; only have you the patience, till we have the leiſure to draw out his Picture, and then you ſhall ſee him in ſome mean proportion, Who had by himſelf purged our ſins.

He]

WE have obſerved the time When he purged, and now time it is that you know the Phyſitian who adminiſters it: the Apoſtle tells you it is He] that is, Chriſt our Saviour, who ſeeing us labour in the pains and pangs of ſin, he bows the Heavens, and comes down; he takes upon him our frailty, that we through him might have the remedy to eſcape hell fire. Come then, and behold the Man, who undertakes this cure of ſouls; He cometh leaping upon the Mountains, ſkipping upon the hills, ſaith Solomon in his Song: Cant. 2. 8. and would you know his leaps, ſaith Gregory? See then how he leaps from his Throne to his Cratch, from his Cratch to his Greg. hom. 39. Croſs, from his Croſs to his Crown; downwards and upwards, like a Roe or a young Heart upon the Mountains of Spices.

His

Mark 15. 39.

His firſt leap downwards was from Heaven, and this tells us how he was God from everlaſting: ſo ſaid the Centurion, Surely this Man was the Son of God, Mark 15. 39. How elſe? the ſin of man could no otherwiſe be expiated but by the Son of God; Man had ſinned, and God was offended, therefore God became man, to reconcile man to God: Had he been man alone, not God, he might have ſuffered, but he could not have ſatisfied; therefore this man was God, that in his manhood he might ſuffer, and by his God-head he might ſatisfy: O wonderful Redemption, that God muſt take upon him our frailty! Had we thus far run upon the ſcore of vengeance, that none could ſatisfie but God himſelf? could not he have made his Angels Ambaſſadours, but he himſelf muſt come in perſon? no; Angels or Saints could neither ſuperogate; but if God will ſave us, God himſelf muſt come and die for us: It were ſure no little benefit, if the King would pardon a Thief; but that the King himſelf ſhould die for this Malefactor, this were moſt wonderful, and indeed beyond all expectation; and yet thus will the King of Heaven deal with us; he will not only pardon our faults, but ſatisfie the Law: We ſin againſt God, and God againſt whom we ſin, muſt die for it: This is a depth beyond ſounding, an height above all human reach; What is he? God.

Iſay 6. 2.
Rev. 5. 13. 14.

2. But we muſt fall a note, the Creator is become a Creature; if you ask what Creature? I muſt tell you, though it were an Angel, yet this were a great leap, which no created underſtanding could meaſure: What are the Angels in reſpect of God? He is their Lord, they but his Servants, Miniſters, Meſſengers; and howſoever it would dazle us to behold their faces, yet cannot the brighteſt Angel ſtand before God, but they are fain to cover their own faces with a pair of wings: The difference may appear in Revelat. 5. 13, 14. where the Lamb is ſaid to ſit upon the Throne, but the four Beaſts and four and twenty elders fall down and worſhip him. Is not here a great diſtance betwixt the Lamb in his Throne, and the Beaſts at his feet? and yet thus far will the Lamb deſcend, that for our ſakes he will dethrone himſelf: reject his ſtate, take the office of an Angel, to bring us the glad tidings of Salvation in purging our Sins.

Heb. 2. 9.

Pſalm 8. 9. Cited alſo in the Perſon of Chriſt.

3. And was he an Angel? nay, that was too much; He was made (ſaith the Apoſtle) a little lower than the Angels for the ſuffering of death, Hebrews 2. 9. What? the Son of God to be made lower than the Angels? Here was a leap beyond the reach or compaſs of all human Thoughts; He that made the Angels, is made lower by a little than the Angels; The Creator is not only become a Creature, but inferiour to ſome Creatures that he did Create? O ye Angels, how ſtand you amazed at this Humility? That God your Maſter ſhould become meaner than his Servants, that the Lord of Heaven ſhould deny the dignity of Powers, Principalities, Cherubims, Seraphims, Arch-Angel, or Angel: O Jeſu! how contrary art thou to thy aſpiring Creatures? Some Angels through pride would needs be as God, but God through humility is made lower than the Angels, not equal with them, but a Note below them, as David that ſweet Singer of Iſrael ſung, Thou madeſt him a little lower than the Angels, Pſalm 8. 9.

Heb. 2. 7.

But how much lower? By a little (ſaith Paul) and if you would know what that little was, he tells you again, that He took not on him the nature of Angels, but he took on him the ſeed of Abraham. Hebrews 2. 16. Here is that great Abyſs, which all the Powers of Heaven could no leſs but wonder at, Abraham's Lord is become Abraham's Son; the God of Abraham, the God of Iſaac, and the God of Jacob, hath took upon him the Seed of Abraham, the Seed of Iſaac, and the Seed of Jacob; wonder above wonders! that God ſhould take the ſhape of Angels, is more than we can think; but to take on him the nature of Man, is more than the Tongue of Angels can expreſs; that the King of Heaven ſhould leave his glorious Manſion, and from the Boſom of his Father come into the Womb of his Mother from that company of Angels, and Arch-Angels, to a rude rout of ſinful men: Tell ye the daughter of Sion, Behold, thy King cometh unto thee, ſaith the Prophet, Eſay, in the 62. Chapter, 11 verſe, and the Prophet Zechary, in the 9*th Chapter*, verſe 9. What could he leſs? And what canſt thou more? Wonderful Love that he would come, but more wonderful is the manner of his coming: He that before made Man a Soul after the Image of God, now makes himſelf a Body after the Image of Men; and he that was more excellent than all Angels, becomes leſſer, lower than the Angels, even a mortal, miſerable, wretched Man.

Mat. 8. 20.

5. But what man? As he is King of Heaven, let him be King of all the World: if he be Man, let him be the Ruler of Mankind; no, thou art deceived (O Jew) that expecteſt in thy Saviour the Glory of the World: fear not, Herod, the loſs of thy Diadem; for this Child is born; not to be thy Succeſſor, but if thou wilt believe, to be thy Saviour. Was he a King on Earth? Alas! look through the Chronicles of his Life, and you find him ſo far from a King, that he is the meaneſt ſubject of all men? Where was he born, but at Bethlehem, a little? Where did the Shepherds find him, but in ſorry Cottage? Who were his Diſciples, but poor Fiſhermen? Who his Companions, but Publicans and Sinners? Is he hungry? Where ſtands his Table, but on plain ground? What are his Dainties, but Bread and a few Fiſhes? Who are his Gueſts, but a rout of hungry ſtarved Creatures? And where is his Lodging, but at the Stern of a Ship? Here is a poor King, without either Preſence or Bed-Chamber: The Foxes have Holes, and the Birds of the Air have Neſts, but the Son of Man hath not whereon to lay his Head, Matth. 8. 20.

Mark 6. 3.
Apoc. 18. 23.

6. Deſcend we a little lower, and Place him in our own Rank: What was he but a Carpenter? ſay the Jews in ſcorn, Is not this the Carpenter, Maries Son? Mark 6. 3. A poor Trade ſure; but to ſhew us that he was man, and how much he hated idleneſs, ſome time he will beſtow in the labours of Man's life: But, O Wonder! if he will reject Majeſty, let him uſe at leaſt ſome of thoſe liberal Arts: Or if he will be Mechanical, let him chooſe to ſome noble Trade, Thy Merchants were the great men of the Earth, ſaid the Angel to Babylon, Apoc. 18. 23. Ay, but our Saviour is no Adventurer, neither is he ſo ſtockt to follow any ſuch Profeſſion: Once indeed he travelled into Egypt with Joſeph and Mary; but to ſhew us that it was no Prize, you may ſee Mary his Mother ſteal him away by Night, without further preparation: What, gone on a ſudden? it ſeems there was no Treaſure to hide; no Hangings to take down, no Lands to ſecure, his Mother needs do more but lock the Doors and away: What Portion then is for the Lord of Heaven? O ſweet Jeſu! Thou muſt be content for us to hew Sticks and Stocks; beſides which (after his coming out of Egypt, about the ſeventh Year of his Age, until his Baptiſm by John, which was the thirtieth) we find little elſe Recorded in any Writers, Prophane or Eccleſiaſtical.
